He has apparently decided to make consumers tighten their belts. Sources close to the Economics Ministry predict Thieu will propose radical reforms including a devaluation of the piaster.

The informants said Wednesday that Thieu will recommend a flat rate of 400 piasters to the dollar, a clampdown on the black market in currency and goods, a revamped tax structure, measures to increase exports and decrease imports, and reform the current laws to encourage foreign investment.

He is expected to present the austerity package Monday to South Vietnam's legislators, many of whom awoke to their government's heavy dependence on the United States when the Senate voted down President Nixon's foreign aid bill.

The Senate action might goad the National Assembly into accepting Thieu's proposals. Conversely, Thieu's program could persuade Washington congressmen to reconsider $565 million in aid to Vietnam.

In any event, reform would come none too soon in a consumer-oriented economy where the piaster's value fluctuates wildly, imports exceed exports nearly 50 to 1 and production is near a standstill.

U.S. economists have long advocated devaluation. The piaster has four rates of exchange for the dollar:

-118 for American-funded imports, which amount to about $300 million a year.

-275 for all foreigners, tourists and GIs who change money legally.

-400 for importers drawing on South Vietnam's dollar reserves to buy non-American goods.

South Vietnam maintains its army, police and civilian bureaucracy mostly from funds generated by the U.S. aid program.

More than 60 per cent of the country's 235-million piaster budget comes from such funds, and all of that 60 percent goes to pay the 1.1-million-man army. Equipment and military hardware are granted under the foreign aid and military procurement bills.

Veterans Celebrate Original Armistice

By the Associated Press

"Our Armistice Day is Nov. 11," said Paul Andre, Ohio quartermaster of the Veterans of World War I. "It always was and it always will be."

Members of Andre's group and many other veterans, particularly those who fought in World War I, are marking Veterans Day on Thursday even though the legal date of the holiday was Oct. 25.

Veterans Day-called Armistice Day until a few years ago-traditionally marked the anniversary of the end of World War I. Congress changed the date to the fourth Monday in October to provide an extra three-day weekend.

The official ceremonies held Oct. 25 were highlighted by a wreath-laying at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier at Arlington National Cemetery in Washington. Some antiwar groups also demonstrated that day, joining veterans' parades in about a dozen large cities.

Many veterans' groups, however, boycotted the Oct. 25 celebrations.

In Cambridge, Mass., Chapter 464 of the World War I veterans announced ceremonies for Thursday and a spokesman said: "This organization does not intend to allow a great day to be juggled around to a date that means nothing. Our services may be simple, but they will be held. To hell with phony holidays."

"You have to be one of us to realize what this really means," said William P. Shapleigh, the council adjutant.

Shapleigh said his group didn't participate in Oct. 25 ceremonies. "That means nothing to us," he said. "Any move...to change history by legislating new dates for the observance of patriotic holidays is a tragic mistake."

DRUMMER BOY'S
Special Offer
Genuine Chinese Food
道地中國菜
Business Hours: Wed., Thurs., Fri., lunch: 12 noon to 1:30 p.m.
Evenings: 5 p.m. to 8 p.m. Sat. & Sun. 11 a.m. to 9 a.m.
For take out orders, phone 253-2116

Listen to New Country Rock
By The Ramrods
At THE CHEQUERS
9:30-close TONITE Thurs.

PETER FONDA * DENNIS HOPPER
In
"THE TRIP"
(in color)
Music by the ELECTRIC FLAG
Screen play by Jack Nicholson
FRIDAY EVENING - NOV. 12
MAHAR AUD. 7, 9, 11 p.m.

SATURDAY NOVEMBER 13 SATURDAY NOVEMBER 13
The Five-College Student Coordinating Board
Announces
Five-College Orientation
see the Other College Campuses
on Saturday, November 13, morning and afternoon
Special buses will run according to the schedule below.
Two buses will circle the Five Colleges, in opposite directions.
These buses are FREE to all students at the Five Colleges.
GUIDED TOURS of each Campus will be provided.
Bus Loading and Stopping Points:
UMASS. -- Waiting Station
AMHERST -- Converse
HAMPSHIRE -- Library
MOUNT HOLYOKE -- Main Gate
SMITH -- John M. Greene

BUS SCHEDULE Smith — Umass — Amherst — Hampshire — Mt. Holyoke — Smith

	Morning			Afternoon
LEAVE SMITH	8:35	9:55	11:15	1:35	2:55	4:15 SMITH
LEAVE UMASS	9:00	10:20	11:40	2:00	3:20	4:40 UMASS
LV AMHERST	9:10	10:30	11:50	2:10	3:30	4:50 AMH
LV HAMPSHIRE	9:20	10:40	12:00	2:20	3:40	5:00 HAMP
LEAVE MHC	9:30	10:50	12:10	2:30	3:50	5:10 MHC
ARRIVE SMITH	9:55	11:15	12:35	2:55	4:15	5:35 SMITH
	Morning			Afternoon
LEAVE MHC	8:50	10:10	11:30	1:50	3:10	4:30 MHC
LV HAMPSHIRE	9:00	10:20	11:40	2:00	3:20	4:40 HAMP
LEAVE AMH	9:10	10:30	11:50	2:10	3:30	4:50 AMH
LV UMASS	9:20	10:40	12:00	2:20	3:40	5:00 UMASS
LV SMITH	9:45	11:05	12:25	2:45	4:05	5:25 SMITH
ARR MHC	10:10	11:30	12:50	3:10	4:30	5:50 MHC

This schedule is in effect ONLY Saturday, November 13. It is in addition to regualr Five College bus service.
Additional copies of schedule are available at Campus Center information desk.
MORE INFORMATION? CALL:
LESLIE HANDLER Hampshire 542-5138
JOHN THEISMANN Amherst 256-8250
GEORGE SELTZER 502 Field House UMass 546-6810

Marathon Schedule For Thursday

8:00 a.m.-10:00 p.m.
Room 126-Self evolving learning environment. (See Monday) Klein and Rabel
9:00 a.m.-10:00 a.m.
Room 122-"Architectural Hinderances to the Mobility Disadvantaged". Marie Desmond Montague-Bringing Futuristic Activities to the Classroom. Pat Burke.
Room 226-228 Dealing With the T.V. Child. Nathan Rutstein
Room 128 "Techniques and Technologies of School Scheduling: A Preview". A SMERD presentation. Dick Slone.
9:00 a.m.-11:00 a.m.
Childrens' Library "Plans for Teaching Children Thinking". Jim Weiner
Mark's Meadow Library Jim Weiner
9:00 a.m.-12:00 p.m.
Mary Lyon/Main Lounge An environment of Trust, Openness, Realization and Interdependence will be created via participants engaging in a number of verbal and non verbal experiences to heighten the sense of community feeling. John Canfield.
10:00 a.m.-11:00 a.m.
Room 228-"Education for Global Survival". Population. L. Clark
Room 226-"Repression Through Education: The Great Conspiracy". From the liberal arts of classical education to the modern state school system. Robert Dyer
10:00 a.m.-11:30 a.m.
Montague House Psychological Curriculum. Doris Shallcross
10:00 a.m.-12:00 p.m.
Room 128 "Probability, Or Why Things Go Wrong". A SMERD presentation. Ernest Anderson.
Knowlton/Main Lounge Organization Development Demonstration. The Human Relations Center
Room 122 "Moral Development in the Classroom". Robert Hawley
11:00 a.m.-12:00 p.m.
Children's Library "Computers and Educational Data Bank". Limited to first 10. Tim Martyn
Room 226 "Model Program to Recruit Functionally Illiterate Adults into Basic Adult Education". Mark Rossman
11:00 a.m.-1:00 p.m.
Room 228 "Community Medical Care & Community Schooling". A presentation discussion of pediatric medical care needs and schooling. Gregg Wright
12:00 p.m.-1:00 p.m.
Montague House Department of Education's Role in the Open Campus. Pete Demers Auditorium Film: Huelga! Sponsored by the Committee to Combat Racism at the School of Ed.
Room 122 "History of UMass School of Education". A critical history of the UMass School of Education: What happened? Why? How? Denis Tippo
Room 226 Panel Discussion led by Massachusetts Task Force for Equality examining the impact of the Serrano court decision in California. Panel will consist of Dr. Louis Fischer (UMass), Paul Dimond (Harvard Center for Law and Education), Dr. Byrd Jones (UMass) and Laird Warner (UMass).
12:00 p.m.-1:30 p.m.
Room 128 "Media & Reading". Robert Parker
12:30 p.m.-2:00 p.m.
Dwight/Main Lounge "Racism & the Refugee Problem in Southern Africa". Nana Mbelle
1:00 p.m.-2:00 p.m.
Room 226 "A Program in Third World Education for Undergraduates". George Urch
Room 123-The Completely Modular Curriculum: An Alternative to Traditional Course Scheduling. Phil Christenson
1:00 p.m.-3:00 p.m.
Auditorium "Drugs, Education, and the Future." Dr. Wayne O. Evans
Room 238-"Empathetic teacher training". A workshop in empathetic teacher training through psychodramatic procedures with videotape feedback. Dr. Lawrence Goldstein, Ruth Goldstein
2:00 p.m.-3:00 p.m.
Children's Library "Pygmalion's Computer" A demonstration of computer-assisted instruction and discussion. Howard Peelle
Montague House "The Development of the First Clinic in Education". Is it possible for educators to diagnose difficulties in the teaching learning process? Michael Melnick
Room 226 Myths perpetuated by the Great American Reading Machine. Dave Yarington
2:00 p.m.-3:30 p.m.
Room 122 "A Personal Experience". Recognizing and accepting alternative learning styles. Pat Burke and Chip Wood
2:00 p.m.-4:00 p.m.
Room 128 Lecture-discussion. The relationship between perceptual and motor development and learning. Barry Wadsworth, Ass't. Prof. of Psych. and Ed., Mt. Holyoke
Montague House Fantasy, improvisational theatre, and games in the classroom to develop humanistic/psychological curriculum programs. R. Wilsri
Dwight/Main Lounge Principles of Marxism. Marx's concept of man, theory of alienation, class struggle, critique of capitalism, and relevancy for American Education. T. McCabe
2:30 p.m.-4:30 p.m.
Cafeteria Positive Focus: Classroom activities and procedures to build self-esteem and group cohesiveness. Audience participation, plus some theory. David Britton
2:45 p.m.-4:00 p.m.
Gym Presentation: A Trip Through the Womb. Experience birth, take a trip through the womb. Wear grubbies. Michael Kalinowski, ANISA staff
3:00 p.m.-4:00 p.m.
Auditorium Racism and the Suppression of Human Potential. Dan Jordan
Room 228-"Use of the Overhead". I will show the use of transparencies as an effective medium of communication in the classroom. Examples of various types of transparencies will be displayed. Paul Davis, Media
3:00 p.m.-5:00 p.m.
Room 21 "An Introduction to Computers and Computer Programming" (part of a series on Computer Uses in Education) 4 videotapes on what a computer is, how a computer works, (prepared at Hampshire College). Profs. Jack LeTourneau, H.A. Peelle with Larry Wolfe.
Children's Library "Computer Games" (part of a series on Computer Uses in Education). Hands-on Game-playing with an interactive computer. Howard Peelle
Room 226-The Role of a Community Mental Health Technician in Public Schools. Marga Coler, Assoc. Prof. in community mental health at Greenfield Community College
4:00 p.m.-5:00 p.m.
Room 128 "Alienation and Social Learning: A Critique" A SMERD presentation. David Coffing
Dwight/Main Lounge "American Indian: An Approach to Ethnic Studies." A discussion of goals and strategies for teaching about American Indians. Susan Carpenter
Room 122 Implications of Politics for Education in England. Dr. T.L. Bernard, Ass't. Prof. Mt. Holyoke
4:00 p.m.-5:30 p.m.
Montague House Panel discussion which will deal with professional and individual attitudes of racism. Glenn Ray, Jean Moss, and Charles Parsons will serve on the panel, with Dr. H. Glenn, Dr. D. Flighl, Dr. A.D. Kesselheim, and Dr. R. Militz as discussion leaders.
4:00 p.m.-6:00 p.m.
Auditorium Film: The Salt of the Earth. Sponsored by the Committee to Combat Racism, School of Ed.
4:00 p.m.-7:00 p.m.
Gym Case Method Workshop and Discussion: We will engage in a case method analysis of a counseling tape, edited for this purpose into 3 parts (first 1 and 1/2 hour) Jack Wideman
4:30 p.m.-7:00 p.m.
Mark's Meadow Cafeteria Paper Mache Happening. Varied techniques in constructing papier-mache masks, animals, puppets, etc. Cardboard Workshops Puppet theatre furniture. Ann Childs
5:00 p.m.-6:00 p.m.
Room 228-The Educational Park Concept: A physical description and discussion of the educational advantages of the park. John Murphy, Supt. of Schools, Yarmouth, MA
Room 122 Drafi education in the schools. A slice tape presentation. Richard Prunty
5:00 p.m.-7:00 p.m.
Room 226 Comprehensive Achievement monitering, CAM Slide show. Dave Evans
6:00 p.m.-7:00 p.m.
Room 128 Ostorshire "Open Education". Slides and discussion of Open Education. Phillip H. Woodruff
Room 228 From Kitsch to Shibui. Group will decide on amount of money (about $1.00) and go over to the college book store and buy a Kitsch (bad taste) or Shibui (good taste) article, and from there go to work with the idea of bad taste and ideal taste. William Ilson, Art Educator, Smith College Room 122 Analyzing reading difficulties. Video tape of child and demonstration of packaged phonics program for first grade. Carole Norris
7:00 p.m.-8:00 p.m.
Room 122 "Individualism and Groupism in Schools" Jerome Schaffran
7:00 p.m.-9:00 p.m.
Cafeteria "Slide Tape Presentation of Outward Bound Experience." Experiences of CLA and TASP students on Hurricane Island September-October 1971. Andy Lehner
Room 226-228 "Teachers and Children in the Integrated Day". Slides presentation of English infant and junior schools and a discussion. Peter Wilson
7:00 p.m.-10:00 p.m.
Room 128 "Men's Liberation Workshop". Men only. Barry Kaufman
Dwight/Main Lounge Improvisational Theatre Creative Dynamics. Jacquie Lowell and Ken Bell
7:30 p.m.
Auditorium "A Trip for Tina." A play about juvenile delinquency by the kids from West field Detention Center.
8:00 p.m.-10:00 p.m.
Room 122 "New Zealand Education System". Workshop on the New Zealand Educational System. Bud Teilelbaum

MDC NEWS HOTLINE 5-2550

Campus II
Butch Cassidy
and the Sundance Kid 9 p.m.
and
Elliott Gould & Donald Sunderland
M-A-S-H 7 p.m.

Campus Cinemas 256-6411 AMHERST-HADLEY LINE - Route 9 -
Monday Nights! Ladies $1.00

Campus I
Daily 7 & 9
Fri. & Sat.
7:00, 8:30, 10:00
FIND OUT YOURSELF WHY EVERYONE'S TALKING ABOUT-X
Together

Campus III
at 7:15 & 9:15 (R)
Ingmar Bergman's first English language motion picture starring
Elliott Gould
The Touch

Our Entire Stock of
ATCO, ATLANTIC, ELEKTRA
CAPRICORN, REPRISE & WARNER RECORDS & TAPES including all Allman Brothers, Black Sabbath, Judy Collins, Johnathan Edwards, Greatful Dead, Fleetwood Mac, Van Morrison, Jethro Tull & many others.
RECORDS C 2.98 D 3.88 E 4.48
TAPES G 4.85 H 5.75 J 6.75
THE LISTENING POST
25 So. Pleasant St., Amherst 186 Main St., Northampton
Sale thru Sat. Nov. 13

"Black History and the Collapse of the Republic"
— BILL STRICKLAND —
from the Institute of the Black World
Thurs., Nov. 11, at 8:00 in Thompson 104
dap

A prison bus returning to the Cherokee County Public works camp near Canton, Ga., burst into flames (background) and one of 19 inmates seriously burned stands in pain in foreground waiting for help. Eleven prisoners were critically burned. The pictures were made moments after the bus burst into flames by photographer Andrew Seddon of Canton.

Alumni Sponsoring Dinners "To Establish Dialogue"

By JEANNETTE MARTINEAU

The UMass Alumni Association is following its UCLA counterpart in sponsoring "Pilot" dinners "to establish dialogue between students, alumni and faculty.

"The program is being instituted on a 'Pilot' basis," James Allen, Director of Alumni Affairs (Memorial Hall), explained, "with small dinners being held at the homes of various Alumni in the Springfield area."

According to the American Alumni Council's Commentary: "One of the challenges facing UCLA - indeed, every school and college - is how to increase the understanding of alumni and the surrounding community about the concerns of the campus.

"The impetus behind the program comes from the willingness of alumni to act as hosts. Without exception, each host or hostess has indicated on the follow-up questionnaire that he or she would be willing to host another dinner. Alumni host couples find themselves in the unique position of setting the tone and style of the evening, and having most of the arrangements made by the Alumni Association staff and student assistants."

Mr. and Mrs. Vic Gagnon of Springfield hosted UMass first dinner last Friday night. Guests included Professor and Mrs. Bernard Berger representing faculty--Professor Berger is associated with the Water Resource Center at UMass; Student Senate President Lee Sandwen, Phoebe Pepper of SWAP, and Kathy Reilly, President of Mortar Board. Students were selected and invited, Allen explained, on the basis of their contact with the Alumni Association.

Discussed at last Friday's dinner was the reciprocal nature of the almnus-university relationship, and proposed were such things as alumni library cards, use of research facilities, and social and cultural calendars.

In turn, the alumni could help out in scholarship and placement matters, or serve on selection committees. One alumnus is on the Chancellor Selection Committee.

Another post for the alumni, the dinner guests considered, is in the classroom, i.e., as guest lecturers from their respective fields. "Alumni used as input," Allen summarized.

"There are approximately 35,000 members in the Alumni Association," he added, "and 65% have graduated since 1960."

Allen projected that the "Pilot" dinners would serve: "to mix people together, to generate ideas, to find out what alumni can do for the University and vice versa, and to establish dialogue between the various constituencies of the University of Mass."

English Studies Office Here To Help Students

By EDWARD G. KELLEY

"A broker between student and faculty" is the way Prof. Charles Moran describes the role of the English Department Undergraduate Studies Office.

"Our chief purpose is to talk to students with problems," Moran said during an interview in his Bartlett Hall office recently. He added, "We handle such problems as the transfer of credits, overloads, releases from English Dept. requirements, taking semesters off and obtaining course credit elsewhere than the department."

The English Dept. Undergraduate Studies Office is located in 252 Bartlett Hall. Moran is the director of the program; Ms. Irma Forader, receptionist; Prof. Johnathan Quick, chief advisor; along with ten fellow advisors who compose the nucleus of the program. An advisor is on duty Mon.-Fri. from 9 to 5. "John or I are in five afternoons a week," Prof. Moran adds.

Probed as to the responsibilities of the Undergrad. office, Moran said, "We help determine department policies. This entails what courses will be given, soliciting courses from teachers, requests from students. We also schedule the courses given in the residence halls."

The Undergrad. office also advises EDUC, the English Department Undergraduate Council. Moran, who is also the faculty advisor to EDUC, explained that "The three undergrads on the committee have voting power; mainly they act in an advisory capacity. EDUC recommended the new one-credit course, which involves getting credit for a course given any time and for any amount of time between any number of students and a faculty member."

As to the innovative actions of the Undergrad. office in terms of curriculum, Moran said, "If it concerns a new course, we (the office) act on our own; if it affects the entire department, say, using form x or y, we obtain a department vote before going ahead with the proposal at hand."

Moran adds, "The Undergrad. office is responsible for and has a knowledge of library science, we keep a job count for English majors as to career work

Could B.C. Lose?

Buy around trip ticket to B.C. Game & see!

NOV. 20

Department 10:30 a.m.

C.C. BUS CIRCLE

BUY NOW $6
RSO OFFICE

ACADEMY OF MUSIC

AT THE GATES OF SMITH COLLEGE

NOW..Ends TUES. 2 Encore Hits

NORTHAMPTON, MASS. 584-8435 - PARK MASONIC ST. LOT

D. H. LAWRENCE'S "WOMEN IN LOVE" United Artists

Show at 9:05

JEROME HELLMAN-JOHN SCHLESINGER PRODUCTION "MIDNIGHT COWBOY" R COLOR by DeLuxe United Artists

Shown at 7:00

Starts Wed. Nov. 17-Rohmer's "CLAIRE'S KNEE"
Starts Sun. Nov. 21-Truffaut's "BED & BOARD"

Attention CCEBS Seniors

Candid shots of the CCEBS SENIORS
(those graduating May '72 and January '73),

for the CCEBS yearbook will be taken

Wednesday, Thursday and Friday,

November 10, 11 and 12, 1971

The dates, times and locations are as follow:

Whitmore (Parking lot side) on the rocks	10 A.M. til 12 noon
Pyramid of Stairs (Southwest)	1 P.M. til 3 P.M. November 10
Garden (between Infirmary and Pres' Path)	10 A.M. til 12 noon
Cultural Center (stairs of New Africa House)	1 P.M. til 3 P.M. November 11
Campus Center Stairs	10 A.M. til 12 noon
North East Dorms	1 P.M. til 3 P.M. November 12

Please let us know your choice by contacting the CCEBS office 5-0031 immediately. We are pushed for time.

Winter at OWH

We have just lowered our prices on all kinds of winter clothes.

OLD WEIRD HAROLD'S

NEW & OLD CLOTHING
Handicrafts Too!
Route 9
Road Northampton
(Next to Walter's of Hadley)
Tel: 586-3727

Mon. thru Fri. 10 a.m. - 11 p.m.
Saturday 10 a.m. - 11 p.m.

Jeans $2.50
13 Button Navy Pants $5.00
Flannel & Corduroy Shirts $1.50
Sweaters $3.00 & $6.00
Corduroy Jackets $5.00
Workshirts $2.00
Overalls Jumpsuits $4.50
Fatigue Pants $2.00
Furs $10 - 30
Shawls $2.00

Leathers, Corduroys, Velvets, & Antique Dresses (20's-30's) Parkas, Denim Jackets, authentic P-Coats, new Parkas, Felt Hats, Moutons, Tunics, Berets, Hbt-Shirts & Pants, Long Wool Coats, M-53's, Eisenhowers, Boots, etc.

Time Of Change And Trouble In The U.N.

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) - For the deeply troubled United Nations, a time of uncertainty lies ahead-a time, perhaps, of shocking change.

Will the world organization Survive all its ailments, or will it go the way of its predecessors the League of Nations and die a lingering death?

Ask the question in this big glass house overlooking New York's East River and the reply invariably is: "What else in there."

Ahead are awesome problems with the destiny of humanity hanging in the balance. These are not only questions of war or peace. They include challenges of pollution, of exploding population, of dwingling resources, of seeking wider distribution of the world's wealth.

Will the United Nations, with all its weaknesses and worries, be equal to dealing with them?

"We are definitely entering into a new phase in the history of the United Nations,," says Cyrus R. Vance, who heads the policy studies committee of the U.N. Association of the U.S.A. "This is an absolutely critical time to try to make of the organization what it must be if this is going to be the kind of work it should be."

Vance, former U.S. ambassador at the Vietnam peace talks in Paris, told an interviewer: "One thing we must face up to and particularly large countries like the United States-is that we cannot have a strong United Nations if it is continually teetering on the verge of bankruptcy."

Bankruptcy is only one threat to the organization's health. It suffers from being frequently bypassed by its members in time of crisis, from neglect and sometimes even scorn from its members, from pessimism about its effectiveness, and now from worry engendered by the uncertainty surrounding Red China's entry as a member wielding the power of veto.

Often in the past delegates here have been told that a basic weakness of the United Nations was the fact that China, with a quarter of humanity, was not represented.

Now that complaint is to be put to the test.

"China," says J. Russell Wiggins, a former U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, "probably will confront the United Nations with many difficulties."

For example, China may insist on sitting in on Middle East talks, up to now the province of the Russians, Americans, British and French. Apart from demanding a weighty voice on major issues, Peking is apt to demand strong representation on the secretariat and a big say in the selection on the next secretary-general.

Its admission brings within the U.N. walls a new dimension to what for 26 years had been a two-sided contest between superpowers. Peking claims to speak for smaller and poorer nations, sometimes called the Third World. This promises new difficulties apart from the implicit three-cornered rivalry.

Irritation with that Third World role in the General Assembly has provoked pained outcry in Washington, brought calls to slash the American financial contribution, and raised demands for rejiggering the U.N. Charter.

The immediate source of this American pain was the defeat of the United States on the issue of expelling Nationalist China. To some Americans this suggested that however strong the superpowers might be outside the United Nations, the small nations had too much power within it.

Even its best friends admit that the structure is far from perfect. What worries some people here is that U.S. disenchantment might revive isolationist sentiment of the sort that contributed to the death of the League of Nations, which the United States never joined.

What are the chances of pumping new health into the United Nations?

Vance says it would be unrealistic now to try to make any fundamental changes in the charter. But he sees a possibility of attacking some of the problems along the lines of proposals made by a panel in a recent study under his association's auspicies.

On the ministates-There might be a new membership category created by the Security Council giving small new members "associate" nonvoting status. This would relieve them of assessments while permitting them to have observers at all sessions. The status could not be made retroactive for present members, but might attract some to whom the assessments are burdensome.

On finances-If necessary, there should be a special General Assembly session to deal solely with this problem. Without its solution, the panel feels, an insolvent United Nations will be incapable of effective peace action.

On peacekeeping-The Security Council might be strengthened by formation of a coalition of U.N. members willing in advance to carryout any resolution the council adopts unanimously. Also recommended is a fact-finding council which would supply all pertinent data in any crisis area, permitting rapid response.

Most of the organization's well-wishers concede there are no ready cures to all the ailments and that the organization's health ultimately must depend on the good will of its powerful members.

Writing Paper and Postal Cards
MIZAUR'S MERCANTILE next to Amherst Tower

Correction

A story concerning District Attorney Callahan in yesterday's MDC incorrectly named Paul Ford as an undercover State Police Trooper. The undercover Trooper's name is Ronald Ford. We regret the error.

FREE SODA
with purchase of a Sub
from Mobile Deli; Butterfield Terrace & Southwest (near Prince House)
November 9 - 12

Fraternity guys are nothing but beer swilling, sex crazed, jocks.

Do you believe everything you read in the Collegian? Find out for yourself.

Phi Sigma Kappa

Open Smoker Thursday 8 p.m.

510 North Pleasant St.

545-0174

MDC CLASSIFIED

AUTOS FOR SALE

1965 Pontiac, excellent condition, $485. Also 1963 Dodge runs very well, $270. Call 1-536-8577 eves. or 549-6360. tf11-12

68 Firebird, exc. con., extras bo over 1650 sacrifice, moving to Europe. Jayni weekdays 9-4, 545-0290 after 6. 967-5157 or 967-4074. tf11-12

63 Ply. Fury, gd. eng. & trs., needs new minor reps. Only 58000 mi. Call Stan 549-6344, cheap. tf11-17

61 Bonneville, ex., cond., rebuilt 389, rebuilt auto. trans., all power, must sell $500. Phone 967-5463 after 6 p.m. tf11

1966 Peugot convertible in excellent condition. Call Catherine anytime 549-6612. tf11-11

71 Renault 10, yellow, 4-speed, radials, regularly maint., locally warranied 16ty tan. Need $ fast. Best offer. Call Bob (1) 268-3327. tf11-11

62 Buick, new tires, air con'd, call 546-9090, leave number. tf11-11

1971 Ford Econoline, saddle & tan finished interior, 5 passenger, positraction, hd, 3/4 ton, $2950. 586-3064 day, 369-4652 nights - Sunday. 2

70 VW green, sunroof, radio, good cond. Call 549-6142. tf11-12

61 Chevy, 8 cyl. auto., exc. mech. cond., new front end, body needs work, 2 new tires, $50 or best offer. 549-6026. After 6 p.m. tf11-12

68 Fiat 850 coupe, excellent condition, motor rebuilt, $800 or best offer; Polaroid land camera, hardly used $70. Call Phil 253-7246. tf11-11

62 Chevy SS Conv., 283, 4 barrel, new tires, chromes, excel. condition, $450 or best offer. 546-9434 ask for Steve. tf11-11

1971 blue Chevy Vega hatchback coupe auto. trans., 7 good tires incl. snow tires, excellent cond. Call 549-6730 after 5 p.m. tf11-16

MOTORCYCLES FOR SALE

Triumph 650 Chopper Crome 65 Bonn. Lew 256-6008. tf-11-12

Honda CB350 low mileage, excellent cond., $700. Call Gary 6-0151, 1971. 11-11

FOR SALE

Canon ft/qi 50 mm 1.4 lense, 200mm 4.5 lense, lectronic lite tripod filters extenders many more accessories. Call Paul 546-7118. tf11-12

Michelin X tires (2) almost like new $40. 6-4538. tf11-12

Hockey equipment gloves, knee-pads, complete outfit, $30.00, 6-4538. tf11-12

16mm filmmaking outfit bolex rex-5 uher synch-sound, lights, editing equipment, $2300. All or separate lots 6-4538. tf11-12

Chrome slotted wheels (4) 14 x 6", 5-lugfit all GM and others $50. 6-4538. tf11-12

Duneit 3 speed mens English bike. Good cond. 546-6257 nites. tf11-12

Skis: Factory new, hart Javelin XXL-2 oocm. $150. Fisher supergiass-205cm. $130. Also used Fisher Alu w/bind. 200cm $60. Call 546-5450. tf11-11

Skis; head comp. GS210cm. w/out bind. $80. Knissel red star 195cm. $80. Lange std. boots 9 1/2m $50. Great boots! Call 546-5450. tf11-11

Telescope edmonton 6" reflector orig. $290 asking $200 and realistic tape deck sound on sound asking $100. 545-2416 Bill rm. 128. tf11-16

Fur cont ladies medium muscrat full length fine shape and super warm $30. Call Peggy 253-9667 p.m.'s. tf11-11

Head masters 205cm marker bindings: originally $210 now $140. Call Peter Zandan in 417 Greenough 545-2630. tf11-17

Head 185 skis, 205 cm with tyrolia bindings $50 or best offer-also bass amplifier 30 watts, $30 or best offer. Call Bob 549-1180. tf11-12

Teischo Dei Ray bass guitar w/case $50 miracord turn table-changer w/shure cartridge $50. Call Bob at 546-5290. tf11-12

Guitars Amps, drums, acc. at reasonable prices. The Guitar Workshop, 98 Main St. North. 586-1706. tf11-30

WANTED

Help-I need Uncle Toms Cabin in monarch notes. Please call Larry 546-6118. 11-11

Photographer wants open-minded female models. Good pay. No experience needed. Write: Rob, P.O. Box #272, Chicopee, Mass. 01014. tf11-12

Need ride to UNH Nov. 12 - 14. Call Brad 665-3305. tf11-11

Amplifier preferably small fender (prechs) can't go over $250. Call Larry, 546-7226, 720 Webster. tf11-16

5 girls need place to live next semester in Amherst area. Please call 546-7500 or 546-7191. tf11-12

FOR RENT

Available Jan. 1st. 2 bedroom townhouse, Squire Village, Sunderland, $215, all utilities, all conviences. Call 665-4777. tf11-11

Furnished room, 5 1/2 mi. UMass. Kitchen priv. available immediately. Call 586-0030. tf11-16

4-bedroom house now available for rent. Call 6:30 - 7:30 p.m. Skibski Real Estate 584-3126. tf11-12

PERSONAL

You Gunky-I love you! Happy anniversary! - The Kid. 11-11

Gunky: Happy first and many morst. Remember our secret I love you. Cha Ba Gam. 11-11

You're warm, warmer, now you're hot in an authentic air force parka: Mens $37.50, boys & girls $34.50 Call Al at 549-6014-275 Puffton VIII. tf11-19

Male 24 seeks rlns. with mature female, 21-35 without hang-up on marriage. 549-6416. After 6. tf11-12

To the first floor of Crampton and everyone else who helped make my birthday the best one ever. Thanks love Laurie. 11-11

Carl J., saw you on Sam's T.V. He edited you. Sorry & sorry for the meanies of late. I still like you. Sometimes. Yeah I do. D. Simeon. 11-11

Hillel sponsors: Ali Campus, Computer Dance, Sat., Nov. 13, pickup forms in office SU 2nd floor. tf11-12

SERVICES

I'll fix your smokey car, brakes etc. Remember winter is coming. Call Wendell, 256-8638. 11-2-8-15

ROOMMATES WANTED

Roommate wanted to share one bedroom modern Riverglade Apart., incl. util., $67.50/mo., 5 min. from campus. Call 253-9121 avail. immed. tf11-12

Female grad student wanted to share a 3 bedroom apt. in 205 Puffton. Call 549-6358. tf11-12

MOVIE

DENNIS HOPPER & PETER FONDA IN "THE TRIP" IN COLOR. (THE FILM BEFORE "EASY RIDER") FRI. NOV. 12, MAHAR AUD. SCREENINGS 7, 9, 11 P.M. tf11-12

LOST

Lost black wallet foreign driv. License, foreign ID's, UMass ID & 40 $ if found call Raoul 546-1015. Return of money would be welcome. tf11-12

Diamond engagement ring, gold setting. Sat. at the stadium. If found call Sheila 256-6844. Reward. tf11-15

RIDE WANTED

I need a ride to Burlington Vt. Fri., Nov. 12. Will share costs. Call Liz, 204 Wheeler 5-2420. 11-11

Help! Stranded commuter needs ride Spfld., UMass. for 8 a.m., class Tuth. Also UM-Spfld., Tu. 5:30 p.m., can help expenses! 734-2215 after 6 p.m. tf11-10

Sprfield. to UM a.m. UM. to Sprfield. p.m. Call 788-6174 before 9 p.m. ask for Scott after 10 p.m. 733-6174 one way beats none. tf11-12

ENTERTAINMENT

Rock group Phoenix for your party or dance, old standard music at reasonable rates, make res. for Xmas parties now. Call Pete 549-6028. tf11-17

Fusion, a six piece jazz-rock band (two horns, female vocalist, bass, lead, & drums) is available for future engagements. Call Dave 256-6229. tf11-11

Friday Afternoon Club is coming soon to the Blue Wall Cafeteria. tf11-11

STUDENTS BOOK MATCHING

Register your book in S.U. Rm. 318. Every student with your course next semester will need your books save $ money, sell direct. tf-sem.

TYPING

Typing-theses, dissertations, etc. Fast, accurate, experienced, have Math and Chem. symbols. Call 253-3601. tf12-21

Term papers typed at reasonable rate, fast!! Please call Nancy at 6-5266 before 5 p.m. tf11-12

WORKSHOP

Silkscreen Workshop, Nov. 13 & 14. Learn how to silkscreen. All materials supplied. $15. Call 549-3631. tf11-12

TO SUBLET

Apt. to sub let, available Dec. 1, 1 bdrm Cliffside $145. All utilities. Call 665-3440 after 4:00 p.m. tf11-12

TRAVEL

Crimson Travel offers low cost Spring vacation trips to Bermuda and Nassau. For more info. call Rich Margil, 412 Dwight, 545-0700. tf11-12

GIVE AWAY

Free German shorthair Pointer. Good with kids. Right age for training. Call 549-6416. tf11-12

EDITING

Want your papers and reports to say what you mean? I'll edit any paper or rough draft so that its meaning is clear. Low rates, 665-4025. tf11-12

PSYCH EXPERIMENT

Dating or attached couples interested in $3.00 for an hour's work? Call Richard between 8 and 10 p.m. on Nov. 11th or 12th at 6-6543. tf11-12

REWARD

Wedding ring lost somewhere in the Amherst area. Wide gold band with initials KMF to JSF, 6/7/70. Please call 549-3616 or 549-1311. tf11-15

Harris Drops Out

WASHINGTON (AP)-Sen. Fred R. Harris of Oklahoma today ended his brief campaign for the Democratic presidential nomination because "I am broke..."

Harris said at a news conference that those who believe as he does that America needs fundamental change in 1972 "should not be hurt by an underfinanced campaign."

He said his campaign to date has convinced him "America is ready for fundamental change."

Notices

BLUES CLUB:
Formulation meeting. Anyone with even a minute interest in blues welcome. All facets of authentic blues-- literature, movies, concerts, playing, singing and recording--will be examined, discussed, and presented. 6:30-8 p.m., Rm. 801 CC.

BRIDGE CLUB:
There will be a bridge play tonight at 7 p.m. in Rm. 165 CC.

CAMPUS SCOUTS:
All scouts meeting Nov. 16 in CC 804-808 at 7 p.m. If you can't attend please call 6-7504.

COMMITTEE ON POVERTY:
Important meeting tonight, 6 p.m. in 178 CC involving financial transactions that need approval of the membership. Members please attend.

FILM:
"The Trip" in color, starring Dennis Hopper and Peter Fonda. Friday in Mahar Aud., 7, 9, 11 p.m.

FOLKSINGING:
Hillel folksinging in Van Meter tonight, refreshments and entertainment free. All welcome.

PARKING COMMITTEE:
Anyone with a stake in the campus parking situation is urged to attend a meeting of the Student Senate Parking Committee tonight at 8 p.m. in Rm. 803 CC.

SCROLLS:
Short, important meeting at 6 p.m. in Rm. 811-815 CC. Bring any candy money you already have collected. Call 6-8240 if you can't come.

STUDENT HOMOPHILE LEAGUE:
Bisexuality? What's it mean to you...some new defining of a worn out word. Thursday night at 7 p.m. in CC 917-- or call 545-0154 or come to Rm. 413B Student Union (balcony above lobby) for further information.

STUDENT MOBILIZATION COMMITTEE:
The SMC will meet tonight in the MOBE office (Franklin Room, Student Union) at 7 p.m. to resolve financial and action schedule for the rest of the semester. All members please attend.

SWEET CORN THEATRE WORKSHOP:
Show your bod--play tonight with us at 8 p.m. Marks Meadow gym.

THOREAU:
BAREFOOT IN THE PARK starring Jane Fonda and Robert Redford. SU Ballroom, Saturday at 7 & 9 p.m.

LOST:
2 young cats, 1 all black male & 1 calico female. If found call 6-9530.

Textbook, Mineralogy, Monday in Franklin Commons. Call Wayne 6-8787.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

by SYDNEY OMARR

Readers and writers are traditionally associated with Gemini and Virgo, while publishers are Sagittarians. Check with your local librarian. Should a survey be taken, the odds are that those who do most of the checking out of books will be born under those three zodiacal signs.

*****

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Conditions subject to abrupt change. There are postponements, substitutions. Messages tend to go awry. Have alternative plans at hand. Those you usually depend upon act in eccentric manner.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Lover's quarrel could be featured. Children could make unreasonable demands. Hold reins on self control. No long range commitments. Wait and see. Emotional storm will blow over. Patience.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Disruption of basic plan could boomerang in your favor. Don't force issues. Ride with tide. Family member sings blues. Be sympathetic but refuse to act as human crying towel. Adhere to principles.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Hold off on journeys, if practical. Don't write letters or make calls while angry. Steer a conservative course. Check facts. Be sure of reference material. Older individual acts in cantankerous manner.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Finish what you start. Take it easy where financial ventures are concerned. Examine various aspects of any proposal. Some around you talk for sake of hearing sound of their own voices. Respond accordingly.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): What appears an aggressive move may be mere maneuver to attract your attention. Those who make threats probably are bluffing. Hold ground, but review position. You get chance for new start.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Difficult, if not impossible, to keep secrets. Confidential conference could turn into public gathering. Know this and be prepared. Study published material. What you seek already has been made public.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Complete revision of hopes, wishes indicated. Friends act in manner calculated to arouse animosity. Maintain sense of humor. Stress versatility. Refuse to be backed into corner: emotional or otherwise.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Study contracts. Check legal aspects of any enterprise. Accent on how to hold together a special relationship. Attention required in public relations area. Mate, partner expresses unorthodox desire.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Communication lines may be disrupted. Be sure meanings are clear. Some now have tendency to misquote you. Make changes. Be flexible. Listen and learn. But maintain attitude of intelligent skepticism.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Don't mix money and friendship. If you do, both could be lost. Control temper. Give logic equal time with impulse. Make living quarters more comfortable. Strive for greater family harmony.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Work behind scenes. Give full effort to project aimed at promoting worthwhile charity. Be considerate toward one confined to home, hospital. Important to be discreet; let others show their hands. Another Piscean figures prominently.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are intuitive, a natural teacher, an individual capable of creating, building, doing almost anything, once confidence replaces self doubt. Recent financial squeeze is just about over; you will find yourself in more comfortable position during upcoming months.

Memo To The Secretary

SAIGON (AP)—A petition signed by nearly 1,000 soldiers, sailors and airmen opposed to continued U.S. military involvement in Southeast Asia will be sent to Secretary of the Navy John H. Chafee on Thursday for forwarding to Congress.

The signatures were collected in the Saigon area by Navy Radarman James Mohler II, 24, of Cuyahoga Falls, Ohio, and Ens. Philip O. Geier III, 23, of Cincinnati.

The petition is being sent to Chafee because Navy regulations require that all such petitions be submitted through the secretary.

The text of the petition, addressed to the Congress, reads:

"We, the undersigned American servicemen on duty in Vietnam, wish to express our opposition to further United States military involvement by air, sea or land forces in Vietnam, Laos, Cambodia or other countries in Southeast Asia. We petition the United States Congress to take whatever action is necessary to assure an immediate cessation of all hostilities in Southeast Asia; to set a near date for final and complete American withdrawal; to insure a rapid and peaceful return of American prisoners of war; and to assume and assert its responsibility for determination of future American foreign policy."

Geier said today he hopes the petition will call attention to the fact that despite new troop cuts to be announced next week by President Nixon, in Geier's view a residual force will remain in Vietnam, along with U.S. air support based in Thailand and flown from Navy carriers.

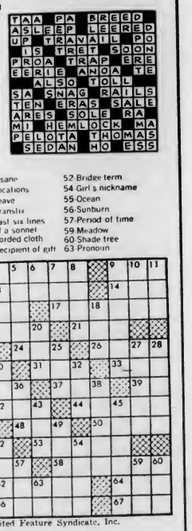
There was no immediate comment in Washington from Chafee or Pentagon.

A Cannon FT camera in Holdsworth photogramatry lab, and a 100 mm lens. Call Trish 665-4048.

Pair of wire-rimmed glasses--maybe in a maroon case. If found, call 546-5256 and ask for Ed.

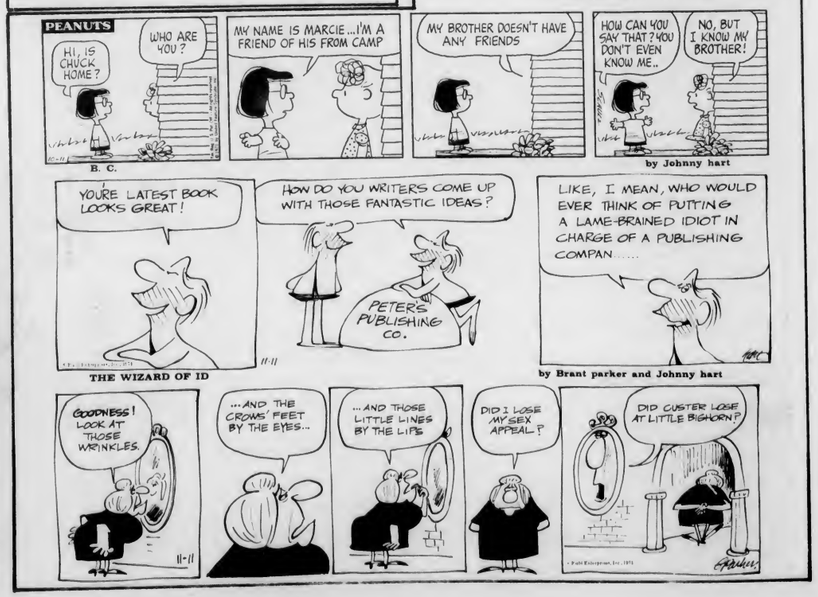
On Wednesday in Bartlett Aud. for Adlo. Psych class, handmade knitted hat, brown with green hounds-tooth design--call Arthur 201 Chadbourne 5-2640.

Room To Move
Drop-In Center
5-0400, 5-0401



CROSSWORD PUZZLE

ARGOSY



1-Paid notices
4 Salt solution
9 Label
12 Drunkard
13 Downy duck
14 Macaw
15 Moves about stealthily
17 Desires
19 Ceremonies
21 Capuchin monkey
22 Merriment
23 Transgress
26 Chief god of Memphis
29 Passageway
31 Tear
33 Mountain in Crete
34 Perpetrator
35 Of chest
37 Dance step
39 Tedious deals
40 Conducted
42 Hellebore
44 Hard-hearted cotton thread
46 River in Belgium
48 Performed
50 Golf mounds
51 Horrible part
53 Memoranda
55 Metal fastener
58 Bonds
61 Organ of hearing
62 Sign of zodiac
64 Lamprey
65 Emmet
66 Parlor car
67 Scottish cap

1 Snare
2 Clerk's [illegible]

3 Retail establishments
4 Strip of leather
5 Ascends
6 Gymnoid fish
7 Recent
8 Goddess of discord
9 Pacific island
10 Exist
11 Aeriform fluid
16 Handle
18 Weaken
20 Title of respect
22 Merrily
23 Boundaries
25 Pinch
27 Girl's name
28 Rabbits
30 Dono
32 Crony (colloq.)
36 Insane
38 Locations
41 Leave
43 Transfix
45 Last six lines of a sonnet
47 Corded cloth
49 Recipient of gift
52 Bridge term
54 Girl's nickname
59 Ocean
56 Sunburn
57 Period of time
59 Meadow
60 Shade tree
63 Pronoun

Distr. by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.

NOW...YOUR CHOICE OF 5!
Showcase
Rt. 5-W. Spfld.
Cinema 1-2-3-4-5
733-5131
MORE NEW SHOWS!
MORE NEW LOUNGER SEATS!
MORE NEW PARKING!
MATINEES DAILY...POPULAR PRICES
Adults $1.50 Mon thru Fri Mats
1 Ryan's Daughter GP
2 Together X
3 2001 Space Odyssey G
4 Desparate Characters R
5 French Connection R
ACRES FREE PARKING
ROCKER LOUNGERS
CHARGE YOUR TICKETS

DeFlavio Might Fly North To Play Professional Ball

By MARK VOGLER

When Bill DeFlavio completes his education at the University he intends to pack his bags and head for Canada. That would seem the common thing to do for any graduating student these days--especially if his lottery number is as low as 91.

But Bill DeFlavio is no draft dodger. UMass' two-year All-New England defensive tackle is trapped between two doors of discrimination.

At 5'9" and 225 pounds he's blessed with the natural exemption on the grounds that he's overweight for his height. With these same dimensions on the football turf, no matter what kind of reputation he's established for himself in the collegiate circuit, DeFlavio is classified too small as a professional ball player in the States.

Although there is always that slim chance that DeFlavio would be drafted by some pro outfit, he has his heart set on playing Canadian ball until that time comes.

"Canada seems to be the melting pot for small ball players," commented the senior veteran. "Stillwagon from Notre Dame and Georgia Tech's Rock Perdioni have made it up there. And I've been told by scouts that I'm about the same size as they are.

"I understand that the rules are different from the American brand of ball. The field is 20 yards longer and a little wider. There are 12 men to a team and a series of plays consists of only three downs.

"I want to play if I can make it. If not, I'd be content to coach somewhere. But there's really nothing definite as yet. I just look forward to playing ball regardless where it is."

Coach Dick MacPherson doesn't think that DeFlavio will get drafted by the NFL and he cites his height as the only drawback. Needing no reminder of the fact that DeFlavio has been a first team selection at his position in both the Yankee Conference and New England for the past two years, the coach writes him down in his book as "the best in New England".

"He's a tremendous competitor," notes MacPherson. "He's so quick off the snap of the ball that many coaches have the opinion that he's offside till they see their films and find out that he isn't.

"We need 'em to make our defense go--he makes it go. He's a natural leader and has helped the squad out by this. Everybody on the squad respects him as a football player.

"Next year I know we will be saying: 'How do you replace the irreplaceable?' Best defensive tackle that ever played for UMass. Oh, yes, definitely."

Skip Parmenter, a fellow tackle for the Redmen defense--which has looked so devastating the past few outings--especially on the pass rush, says that DeFlavio is such a hardnosed competitor that even double and triple-teaming won't stop him. "He's really a great performer to play with. He helps you out and makes your job that much easier."

DeFlavio described his angle of approach: "I love to hit, my main objective is to get to the ball carrier on every play. Every play is a read for me, and most of the time I have to read two men at once.

"If I figure they're double or triple-teaming me, they're coming over that side. If I can't beat 'em, I try to plug the hole."

A little bit shaken by the recent stance some Student Senators took in favor of folding up the football program altogether, DeFlavio took a poke at it: "I live playing football because it's such a great game. And I'm sort of disenchanted over the Senators trying to vote it down a couple of weeks ago.

"It wouldn't have any direct impact on me at the present. But I certainly would care a few years from now if I returned to UMass to watch a football game and there was no team. There would be nothing worth my coming back. I'm afraid some of those guys who occupy seats in the Senate just don't know what football is about."

THE CANADA KID-If you were a ball carrier and saw this guy coming at you, you'd probably wish he was somewhere in Canada...just wait until next season, make the same wish...and he will be in Canada.

Special Report.....

Where Do They Run Now?

By STEVE GERSHMAN
COLLEGIAN SPORTS STAFF

Last week schoolboy track received another in a long series of blows. Already facing many problems in it's running facilities, the leagues lost the use of the Boston Garden for the State Meet. This is just another problem the sport has to contend with. While interest in high school sports seems to be dwindling, track is especially hard hit. As collegiate and amateur track lose interest in this area, schoolboy track also feels the pressure. So I feel it is time to illustrate a few of the problems one of the major leagues in the Boston area has faced over the years. Maybe if more people realize the plight of the kids, something can be done.

The Metropolitan Track League located in the Greater Boston area includes most of the teams in Boston and the suburbs in indoor track. Composed of three divisions of eight teams, the Met League encompasses over four hundred boys. Teams run against teams in their own division according to school size, with interdivision running in the state meet. In the past, division three was sort of special as most of its teams were Bay State League rivals in other sports. The Met League produced some great runners and one in particular is Holy Cross runner Art Dulong who ran for Randolf in division two. Dulong has been one of the finest middle distance runners in this part of the country the past few years.

Five years ago the league ran its meets in the Commonwealth Armory in Boston on a cement floor; not exactly the perfect place for kids to run. Four years ago they were allowed to run on local college tracks including Harvard, M.I.T., and Northeastern. Although running conditions improved, the schedule worsened and at some points was absurd. Because the colleges needed the tracks for their own use, many of the meets had to be run during Christmas vacation and were very bunched together. This put an undue burden on the runners as they had to be in shape for these early meets or run one-half the season. It was hard for the kids to get up for four meets in eight days during vacation, as we did two years in a row.

Last year Division three separated partially as the teams from the Bay State League ran their own league meets. Some of these teams also competed in the Met League, in the upper divisions. Last year was also a real down year for the league as they lost the college tracks, and this really hurt. For a time people weren't sure if there would be a league. Luckily, if you want to consider this luck, the Met League was able to run at the Fargo Building in Boston on a basketball floor. Meanwhile, the Bay State League was able to run in the Armory on the cement floor. Many of these meets were run on week nights at ridiculous hours.

This season the kids are able to run a few meets at the colleges, except Harvard, but they still must use the Armory, and the Fargo Building for the majority of meets. I talked with my former track coach at Milton High School, Robert Kent, about the latest problems. Mr. Kent has been a coach at Milton for six years in cross- country, indoor, and outdoor track. Between 1966 and 1968 he helped lead Milton to twenty-five consecutive victories in the Met League and knows what has been going on, along with being a fine coach.

I asked him how the bunched meets effected the kids in the past, and he replied, "Because of the great number of meets in cross-country and then the ones together in indoor track, the kids feel it by the end of the season." When asked how the loss of the Garden would effect the kids he answered, "Milton kids have enough meets and aren't too concerned, but because it is a state meet, the stars from other teams will feel it. It will effect them in that they won't be able to say they ran at the Garden." I personally feel the kids will be effected as the thrill of possibly running at the Garden always made us run a little harder. I also asked Mr. Kent about the latest on the track facility bill, and he said bitterly, "I don't know, it's been pending for ten years." The disappointment was clear and I can't blame him.

The schoolboy track facility is just another case of bureaucratic foolishness. As stated, there has been a bill pending for some time to build the facility. Last year things looked good when the bill was finally passed and the three million was appropriated. The cutoff date was set for December 31, 1970. Well the bureaucrats got involved and did their usual good job of botching things up. They fought over the site of the building, as originally it was set for the Waltham area, near route 128. They fought because supposedly this isn't a central location near to Boston. Well, most of the teams that will use it are in the suburbs outside the city and travel by bus to the meets, so staying away from the city would be an advantage. The date went by while they haggled and now more money is needed as costs are rising as they wait.

So, at the moment track is in a precarious position and may be folding fast. The fight goes on every year for a place for the kids to run and will until a facility is built. If the league crumbles, over 400 kids will be out with nothing to do. Certainly, these kids deserve a better fate than this. As usual, while the politicians fight, the kids suffer.

Patriots Kiner Named Defensive Player of Week

FOXBORO, Mass. (AP) — Linebacker Steve Kiner is called "a different type from most" by his coach.

"He's not as big as most NFL linebackers," pointed out John Mazur, coach of the New England Patriots, "but he makes up for it with his quickness and desire. He loves to play football."

Kiner, who weighs 212 pounds, showed Sunday that size is not the only criterion in judging a linebacker. With the Patriots trailing Houston with five minutes to play, he intercepted a pass that led to the go-ahead touchdown, then forced a fumble leading to an insurance score in New England's 28-20 victory.

For his efforts, Kiner was named Wednesday as The Associated Press Defensive Player of the Week in the National Football League.

"He's the guy who turned it around for us," said Mazur. "He's played that way since he came here."

Kiner, a second-year pro who was traded to the Patriots from Dallas this year for a fourth-round draft choice, does not think his relative lack of size affects his play.

"I don't think my size bothers me at all out there," he said. "My speed compensates for it. I don't think size is that important. It's just a gross exaggeration that football tries to project to the public."

Nick Polano Still Lives

HAPPINESS IS COMING
Friday Nite
S.U. Ballroom

EVERY FRIDAY....
Our superb buffet will be from 6:30 a.m. to 9:00 p.m. Please come up to the buffet as many times as you wish. $5.50 per person.
The Lord Jeffery
30 Baltwood Ave. AMHERST, MASS. 253-2576
RAOUL DIETRICH, INNKEEPER

GROUP RATES-733-5131
5 CINEMAS-MATINEES DAILY
Showcase
CHARGE IT!
RT. 5
RIVERDALE RD.
WEST SPFLD.
Cinema 1-2-3-4-5

In the great tradition of American thrillers.

20th CENTURY FOX PRESENTS
THE FRENCH CONNECTION
20th CENTURY-FOX PRESENTS "THE FRENCH CONNECTION" A PHILIP D'ANTONI PRODUCTION
STARRING GENE HACKMAN FERNANDO REY ROY SCHEIDER TONY LO BIANCO MARCEL BOZZUFFI
DIRECTED BY WILLIAM FRIEDKIN PRODUCED BY PHILIP D'ANTONI ASSOCIATE PRODUCER KENNETH UTT
EXECUTIVE PRODUCER G. DAVID SCHINE SCREENPLAY BY ERNEST TIDYMAN MUSIC COMPOSED AND CONDUCTED BY DON ELLIS
COLOR BY DE LUXE®
R

"Who's Playing In Durham?"

By DAN KAMAL

Somehow, the atmosphere seemed a lot brighter than at past Varsity M luncheons. Maybe, just maybe, it was the big win over Holy Cross that caused it.

In past weeks, it has been explanations; not alibis, but disappointed explanations. Even after the wins, there was the speculation that UMass should have won by more; after the losses, all by big margins, there was the prominent question--why?

Not this week.

Dick MacPherson set the trend for the lighthearted affair when he introduced guard Ron Marino. "People say Marino looks like a Green Bay Packer guard lead--the sweeps. Being the modest person that he is, Ron says--yes."

"I'm interested in what Ron has to say," continued the coach, "I enjoy his lockerroom conversations."

Marino, shunning any of his basic lockerroom jargon, spoke about the "large adjustment" in adapting to the MacPherson system after three years under the Fusia system. He added, "As we showed against Holy Cross, we've fully adjusted. Now we'd like to bring the Yankee Conference back to UMass."

Incidentally, Marino, who pulled a hamstring against the Cross, has improved rapidly and may be able to play at New Hampshire Saturday. It had been thought that the senior guard would miss the remaining two games. As MacPherson said, "He's a quick healer; I guess it's the water-bed that does it for him."

Dick Etna, also a senior guard, played an integral part in the Redman offensive success against the Crusaders. He mentioned that it's a "different kind of feeling opening holes for running backs who in turn get the glory." He hastened to add that the feeling is a "gratifying one".

Etna added that, "The most rewarding feeling against Holy Cross was that late in the game they saw we were running, but they still couldn't stop us. I think it epitomizes the way the team has been playing lately." He added a personal note by stating, "There are two games left in my college career; there is nothing I'd like better than to have us beat New Hampshire for the Conference Championship and to gain a big upset over BC."

There was a third member of the team on hand at the luncheon. When he introduced Joe Sabulis, MacPherson quipped, "Sit back and relax, this guy's a talker."

Sabulis, a linebacker who hits a lot more than he talks, said, "We (the defense) would really like to show people how good we really are in the next two weeks."

After Assistant Coach Larry Pasquale gave a brief scouting report on the University of New Hampshire, it was the time for the weekly "Wednesday afternoon at the movies with Sports Information Director Dick Page." Believe it or not, Paul Metallo looked even faster on film.

MacPherson had a lot of praise for the Crusaders who "kept coming back when we thought we had put the ballgame away."

As for New Hampshire, Mac said, "I hope their quarterback Hopkins is ready; we want to play the best team for the Championship."

The luncheon ended just the way it had started, with a MacPherson funny. "I thought I had the guys really going about the game Saturday. I mentioned there's going to be a sellout at Durham. Then I saw some giggling in the back of the room which I didn't appreciate at first. It turned out that Mark Tripucka had turned to Timmy Berra and asked--'Who's playing in Durham?'"

Daily Collegian

SPORTS

MR. WILSON..MEET THE REDMEN-Holy Cross halfback Joe Wilson receives some good home town hospitality from Redmen Doug Winslow (50), Ray Bouchard (40), Joe Sabulis (52) and Dennis Keating (41).

Runners At UNH

By JAY NESTOR

If there is any particular problem that the cross country team might encounter against UNH today, it would be not being able to get up for this meet.

After getting so charged up for the New Englands, the problem of treating this dual meet overly lightly will have to be overcome. The cool temperature in Durham could prove to be somewhat uncomfortable for running, and may hamper some attitudes also. After an entire season of mild weather, the sudden drop of the mercury could possibly hurt some of the harriers' performances.

The Wildcats finished second in the Yankee Conference, and while they do not pose an immediate threat, the possibility of an upset is not entirely out of the picture. Placing a dismal fourteenth in the New England Meet, UNH could be up for this tussle with the Redmen.

The Wildcats may harbor some individual threats to the strong Redman unit. Dan Forbush ran a good race in the Conference meet to finish third, and he, along with Ed Shorey and Fred Doyle, have the ability to give the UMass front runners a challenge. New Hampshire's backup men will pose no problem for the Redman depth.

With the IC4A's coming up next Monday, this dual meet will help determine the seven varsity slots for that New York championship meet. Rick Barry, Wayne Lucas, Chris Chambers, and Don Dunsky all ran well in the New England Meet, and they could possibly break into the top seven Varsity.

There has been much talk about the Redman depth, but the fact of the matter is that no member of the top five or six has proven vastly superior to the rest of the team. All through the season, the opposing top men have been consistently broken up by whoever on the team met the challenge at that particular meet.

A significant factor on the team has been the continuing presence of a new man to take the place of a faltering teammate. As this season draws to its conclusion, Coach O'Brien can find sustenance with the thought that the majority of the team will return to form an extremely promising squad next year.

Omitting the New Englands, the present won-loss record stands at 10 and 3, not a bad tally when you consider the precarious start that the team experienced. The New Hampshire meet rounds out a dual meet season that UMass can be proud of.

WMUA

Tune in tonight to WMUA, 91.1 fm, at 7:30 for "Warpath". This week Marty Kelley and Ken Best will host assistant coach George Flood and Redman guards Ron Marino and Dick Etna. The topic for tonight's show: the Yankee Conference showdown between UMass and New Hampshire on Saturday.

And don't forget to tune in at 10 p.m. Sunday night for "Sports Talk" when Kelley and Best will host head basketball coach Jack Leaman and the captain for this year's team, Mike Pagliara.

WMUA, the Voice of Redman Sports.

Soccer Review Tomorrow

Surprise, Ken O'Brien! You're Coach Of The Year

By EARLE BARROLL

In the midst of the mass chaos at Monday's New England cross-country championship, UMass coach Ken OBrien was caught off guard by an award he admits he forgot all about...The New England Track and Cross- Country Coach of the Year.

"It was a surprise to me, I had forgotten all about it," he said yesterday at his office. "I was standing around watching the award presentations for the athletes and was reflecting on the accomplishment of my runners when the award was announced."

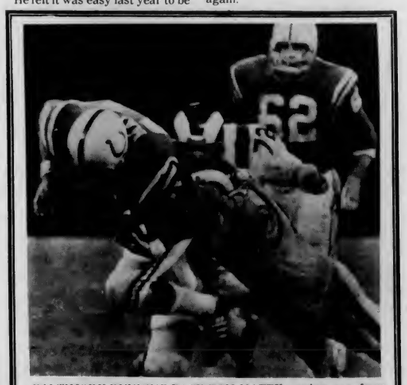
For O'Brien, who called an award like this, "a reflection of the team and the kids on it", this recognition is only of supplementary nature to the satisfaction he gets out of seeing his runners compete and improve week after week.

"Awards like this are satisfying in a way, but I get my reward from the happenings during the season. This is what you live on, the day to day accomplishments of the runners.

"I got so swept up in the momentum of the team this year and I was so busy living for the meets that this award is nowhere near the satisfaction I get from seeing team improvement."

He actually calls this award "gravy" to this season that has seen him take an unexperienced group of runners and develope them into a New England power to the surprise of many.

"Things like seeing Ron Wayne win the New England's last year and seeing freshman Randy Thomas come in eleventh this year are a bigger boost than the award," he added.



The balloting was probably a no contest affair although the final results were not announced. O'Brien's accomplishments of last season read something like a rogues gallery of the very best in track and cross- country: Yankee Conference championships in cross-country and track and runner-ups in both sports in New England.

He won the award from 42 other coaches in the New England Track association. "They try to pick a situation, or a team, or a school that's developed a good all-around program," he explained.

He felt it was easy last year to be coach of the year with the seniors he had. This year he has a good start with his team's impressive showing in cross-country, but track is another story.

"We graduated the top men in 12 of 16 events from the track team and this will pose a problem."

What does this award do to him as a coach? Just about nothing outside of the prestige he gets. But as for his program, "You try to do the best job you can and you don't try to build your program on the goal of reaching this award again."

BALTIMORE RUNNING BACK TOM MATTE crashes over from the four-yard line to score a touchdown in the first period of game with Los Angeles. Coming up too late to stop the play are the Rams' Phil Olson, 72, and another, unidentified defender. (AP Wirephoto)

New England's Largest College Daily

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

Weather: The plants are dying, dying, dead. Have you eaten them?

VOLUME XCIX, ISSUE 46 UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 12, 1971

Dr. John Roberts, of the Zoology Department, speaks to the Faculty Senate about Faculty representation on the Board of Trustees. Faculty Senate president David Booth sits in the foreground. (Photo by Steve (Snap!) Schmidt)

Faculty Ask For Board Rep.

By DON GLICKSTEIN

A seemingly angered, frustrated, and slighted Faculty Senate, upset over recent decisions and non-decisions of the Board of Trustees, voted unanimously yesterday to submit a bill to the Legislature that would permit the appointment of three Faculty trustees, one from each campus.

Two students, each with full voting power and privileges, are currently members of the Trustees. The Board permits a non-voting Faculty representative to sit in on meetings.

Introducing his motion to the body, former Faculty Senate representative to the Board, John L. Roberts, declared: "Reconsideration of faculty participation in the activities of the Board of Trustees is critical at the present time. The governance position of this faculty has become weaker because reorganization of the administrative structure, by the addition of the central systems office, has put another rung in the administrative ladder...It is weaker because students have the advantage of Board membership."

Current Faculty representative, Joseph Burroughs of the Human Development Department concurred with Roberts by saying that he has often had to "cool his heels" in the hallways while the Trustees, including Student Senate President Lee Sandwen, carried on important business in Executive Session.

Dean Bruce R. Morris, Chairman of the Committee of Concern, echoed the frustration many faculty feel about the Trustees when he reported "Nothing really happened" at Wednesday's Board meeting. The Trustees refused to make a clarification of University System limitations and responsibilities then that the joint faculty-student committee had requested.

One direction the faculty may be headed for is organizing as a union, as suggested by Howard Brogan, an English professor. Brogan, as well as Dr. Roberts, urged their fellow Senators to begin to develop collective bargaining procedures in order to improve the position and power of faculty.

Status of Women

The faculty argued extensively about motions made by the Senate's Committee of the Status of Women.

Chair "person"ed by English's Lee Edwards, the Committee presented eight motions, debated one, and reached agreement about none.

Most of the motions concerned themselves with preventing discrimination in University personnel policies on the basis of sex. The one proposal that was debated would have established a new administrative position, no lower than that of associate provost, whose office would be responsible for the administraton of programs oriented toward the improving of the condition of women on campus.

Controversy developed immediately as Dr. Edwards read the recommendation so as to include not only women, but all minority groups as defined by Department of Health, Education, and Welfare guidelines. Edwards explained that the Committee's charge was to report on women, but that the Committee wished its recommendations to include all minority groups.

Senators argued back and forth about various merit and demerits of the motion: whether or not the committee could make resolutions that were not relevant to its immediate mandate, whether a new associate provost position should be established or whether to fill the first vacancy with a woman, whether men in the Home Economics Department were considered a minority group, whether the Ombudsman and grievance committees were sufficient vehicles for minority complaints, and whether the Committee itself was in agreement with itself.

A vigorous exchange occurred on an amendment to substitute the words "this individual" or the impersonal third person "he" for the more liberated original wording of "her" in a sentence of the motion. "This individual" wording passed, but a question of whether or not to call Dr. Edwards the "chairperson", "chairlady" or "chairman" remained.

All debate on all motions of the Committee on the Status of Women ceased at 5:50 PM when the Senate adjourned. It will continue at the next meeting.

Announcements

In other business, Acting Chancellor R. W. Bromery announced that he had appointed James Perry to the position of Special Assistant to the Chancellor for Alumni Affairs. His duties will be to develop budgetary and administrative procedures for the Alumni Office.

Bromery also announced that an unrestricted endowment fund of $286,000 and land estimated to be worth about half a million dollars has been willed to the Board of Trustees from the Murray D. Lincoln Estate. Bromery had "no idea at all" about how the money was to be allocated between the three University campuses.

Because of vague Federal guidelines on the wage freeze and a question as to what cost of living raises the Legislature approves, Vice-Chancellor Robert Glickstern expressed doubt over whether merit pay increases would occur.

Glickstern warned the faculty to be prepared to reexamine tenure practices. He said that a stable enrollment at UMass-Amherst would necessitate the imposing of guidelines from the President's Office unless the faculty could justify their tenured appointments. He suggested that the total number of tenured faculty should not get much higher than 50% of the total faculty.

The Vice-Chancellor advised the Senate that a change in the nepotism policy was being formulated. The new policy would not be retroactive. It would permit husbands and wives to be University employees as long as they were not supervising each other or were making personnel decision in regard to each other. Exceptions would be made in grant supervisions.

Faculty Senate Secretary Robert Wellman announced two open-to-listeners meetings of the Chancellor's Search Committee to be held at 4 PM on November 17 and 23 in the Board Room at Whitmore. The agenda of the meetings is search procedures and qualifications of a Chancellor.

On The Inside:

- Strickland on Blacks See page 3
- Yankee Conference Info See page 16
- Poor Richard's See page 8

Prison Reform Activists To Visit Campus

Two young men recently released from California Prisons will be giving lectures and conducting workshops at UMass during the next two weeks.

Willie Johnston and David Solomon, both Black, both aged twenty-six and members of the Committee for Abolition of the Prisons are being sponsored by the Emergency Defense Committee in a speaking tour of the area.

In a statement released today, the Committee said.

> "These two Brothers command our attention. Theirs has been the typical experience of the majority of young Black men in the jails."

David Solomon grew up in Los Angeles, where he was very active in community affairs. He was also warlord for the Watts Gladiators, a Black fighting gang. His first encounter with penal institutions came at age nine, when he was sent to the California Youth Authority for "being incorrigible." As a result of his association with the Gladiators, he became familiar with most of the youth correctional institutions during his teens.

He graduated from high school and attended the University of Southern California for two years. As a result of a fight with a white man during the Watts Rebellion, he was sent to prison on an indeterminate sentence in 1965. He spent six years in most of California's penal institutions, the last three in Soledad on an assault charge.

While in jail, he was active in setting up political education and Black studies classes. He also did legal research for other prisoners and helped prepare legal briefs. He is currently engaged in doing research into the workings of the penal system and in work for the Committee for Prison Abolition.

Willie Charles Johnston was born on the West-Side of Los Angeles. He was arrested on a charge of attempted burglary and sent to California Youth Authority while still in high school. Upon release, he was refused re-entrance into high school, and was soon sent up again on a five-to-life sentence, of which he served eight years on an armed robbery charge.

In prison, he graduated from high school and participated in political activity, setting up educational classes and Afro-Associations among the inmates. He has been an inmate of most of California's major penal institutions.

In prison, he worked as a medical assistant in the prison hospitals, where he witnessed many abuses, such as the deliberate drug addiction of Black prisoners by the authorities. In some instances, he says, prisoners were left to die because medical attention was deliberately withheld.

Both men say that their attitudes, as well as that of many other Black inmates, were profoundly affected by the rise of Black pride inherent in the slogan "Black Power" in the Sixties. Men like Eldrige Cleaver and George Jackson had profound effects on the morale and collective discipline of Black prisoners through their teaching and examples in the prisons.

Johnston and Solomon will be talking on "Racism in the Prisons" at 12:00 o'clock in room 21 at the School of Education today.

Willie Charles Johnston

Veterans Get Credit Academic, Of Course

By ROBERT MEDEIROS

Veterans who are now students at the University are now eligible to receive 2 or 4 credits toward graduation depending on their length of military service.

The bill which was presented to the Board of Admissions and Records by Bill Loder, Assistant Registrar, and passed on October 19, 1971, makes it possible for veterans to receive 2 credits for the completion of six months to one full year in the military service. This military service will be accepted as meeting the requirements in Military Science at the freshman level.

The bill also makes it possible for the veteran who has completed over one year of military service to receive 4 credits. This one plus year of military service will be accepted as meeting the requirements in Military Science at the freshman and sophomore levels.

These 4 credits will also be considered as meeting the Physical Education requirements of freshman and sophomore levels provided the veteran's military service was of more than one year's duration.

Loder said that ever since the passage of the October 19th bill, there has been a rush to his office by veterans to obtain the credits they deserve. He said that the veterans should be patient and that it is not essential to obtain these credits now unless they plan to graduate soon or because of other extenuating circumstances.

Loder said that under a previous policy veterans are also eligible to receive credits for educational experiences connected with military service.

In order to make things easier and more efficient concerning veteran's credits, Loder said that the veteran should bring to the Registrar's Office an extra copy of his 214 discharge or a diploma from the school where the veteran received his educational services while in the military.

The Black Repertory Theatre will present two plays tonite in Bowker Auditorium. "Antigone" and "In Splendid Error". In this photo Hameon (right) is played by Winston Williams and Antigone, (left) is played by Ester Terry. (Photo by Gib Fullerton)

Could B.C. Lose?

Buy around trip bus ticket to B.C. Game & see!

NOV. 20

Departure 10:30 a.m.

C.C. BUS CIRCLE

BUY NOW $6
RSO OFFICE
or call
Student Senate
Bus Service

TOWER of London OF AMHERST

WATCHES
JEWELRY
UM MUGS

EXPERT
REPAIR SERVICE

65 N. Pleasant St.

So you didn't think winter would ever arrive huh...well it has, so check out

THE SHOE-BIN

for BOOTS

BOOTS,

BOOTS!!

HIKERS, FRYE BOOTS, WORK SHOES, FLEECE LINED, SIDE ZIPPER, FRONT ZIPPER, and more.

At prices you can afford.

(In the Alley)

Friday's Fling

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

Office of the DAILY COLLEGIAN are on the second floor of the Student Union on the University campus. ZIP code 01002. Phones are 545-2550 (news), 545-0344 (sports), and 549-1311 (editor).

Second class postage paid at Amherst, the DAILY COLLEGIAN publishes five times weekly Monday through Friday during the academic year except during vacation and exam periods, three or four times a week following a vacation or exam period or when a holiday falls within a week. Accepted for mailing under the authority of the act of March 8, 1879 as amended by the act of June 11, 1943. Subscription rates are $6.00 per semester, $10.00 per year.

PRINT SALE

Original prints ONLY (woodcuts, lithographs, silk screens, etchings) may be sold by grad students and undergraduates

Please have prints in the Art Office by noon, December 13.

Sale to be held Dec. 15 - 17

Cape Cod Lounge

9:30 - 5:30 (Wed. & Fri.)
9:30 - 8:00 (Thurs.)

For further information, contact the Program Council Office.

Alternatives To Ulster

BILL STRICKLAND

By BOB McWILLIAMS

The alternative directions of the Black movement in America were discussed by writer, historian and political activist Bill Strickland last night at Thompson Hall.

"We must have a national political movement that speaks to the needs of the Black population. We must smash the two party system--or Ulster everywhere," Strickland proclaimed cooly.

Strickland emphasized the need to transform the government by creating a pluralistic system in which a Black party would be politically effective, because in his words, "the state stands as the ultimate enforcer of racism in America...and the meaning of racism is a question of the very structure of the state".

From an international perspective Strickland pointed to the recent entry of China into the UN as an example of the declining prestige of the US in the world.

"The American identity" Strickland said, "is corroding because it has always been an identity of master".

Strickland charged that the official versions of the recent incidents at San Quentin and Attica were fabricated deceptions.

He repeatedly called on his enthusiastic audience of more than 100 to "end exploitation of man based on race and re-define the nature of man".

Spring Concert: Homecoming '70 Repeat?

By LARRY LADD

Planning a concert in the stadium this spring was the purpose of an open meeting of the Concert Subcommittee of the Student Senate last night.

Joe Tropiano, senator from Dwight House, began the meeting by explaining the official university policy on concerts. The policy, as he explained it, prohibits concerts everywhere except a field near Southwest. He also explained other aspects of the policy he called "unnecessary." He explained that the stadium was the only alternative, but that getting it required appealing to the highest levels of the administration.

The results of a recent referendum were then presented. Three thousand students voted in favor of having such a concert and thirty students voted against. Students chose the Rolling Stones as their first preference and The Who as their second. Chicago was the third choice and Crosby, Stills, and Nash were fourth.

Tropiano reported on a meeting with David Bischoff, Dean of the School of Physical Education. According to Tropiano, the Dean gave his "tacit approval" to using the stadium, but gave many conditions. The most important condition was that the Student Senate or some equivalent group offer a "bond in escrow" (money) to pay for damages or other losses.

The consensus of the committee was that planning such a concert would be extremely difficult, but still possible. Among the problems are:

(1) Security-How can we prevent damages and avoid widespread gatecrashing?

(2) Money-How can we get the funds we need in advance to get a commitment from a group and to pay all concert expanses?

Most of the discussion centered around these problems. At the Collegian's deadline, the committee was still discussing various plans to overcome them.

The Bleeding Rose

By KARL GERDES

Thanks to the many people willing to donate their blood, and to the large number of volunteer workers, this year's drive proved highly successful, providing over 1,000 pints.

Mrs. Thomas Fox, chairman of the University women, said she was very pleased by the turnout.

"So many people signed up, and time was booked so closely, that we were not able to accept those who wanted to donate without signing up beforehand", she stated. "Almost 300 people showed up every day, and we only had room for 21 beds."

Mrs. Fox also mentioned how pleased she was that the drive was located in the Campus Center Auditorium, rather than in one of the Student Union meeting rooms. "There was much more room for us to work in this year; the size also allowed better ventilation than we had last year, which helped donors to recover easier."

There were over 40 volunteers working every day for this project, coming from the ranks of A.P.O., Gamma Sigma Sigma, the University student nurses, and the townspeople of Amherst. To them, Mrs. Fox expresses her deepest appreciation.

Art Exhibit At The New Africa House

I do what I do because of what I is. This has everything to do with what I have done, am doing and will do. I do to extend the boundaries of Black peoples. (Fuck the boundaries of art)

Professor Ed Love maintains that the parameters of art stifle creative forms to the dictates of cold sterile museums of the Western world. This is anti-life, anti-human. Artists are seduced to concentrate their energies on exhibiting at museums, at Art festivals and at corporate monstrosities like David Rockefeller's Chase Manhattan Bank in New York.

They are also victims of the scrutiny of art critics, who determine the contours of excellence value and success. These are the outrageous excesses of capitalist control and prostitution of art. Ed Love, professor of Art at Howard University has dedicated his creative energies to the Black communities from where he has drawn his inspiration. He gives to the African world the fruits of his labor, since he feels himself to be a conscious part of the Black expression affirming its creative integrity. He maintains "to begin with, I feel a solidarity with the ordinary Black man, and the only certainty left to me in that of naked suffering common to all oppressed peoples, intermingling its roots with those of a stubborn hope".

Brother Ed Love will be sharing his experiences this weekend with the Amherst community. His work will be shown at the New Africa House from Friday, November 12, at 5:00 p.m. thru Sunday November 14, 1971. He will also present at the New Africa House a Sound and Light Show on Saturday night at 11:00 p.m. and a Workshop on Sunday at 2:00 p.m. Concerned publics are invited to dig where the brother is coming from.

W.E.B. DuBois
Dept. of Afro-American Studies

THE TALKIE CINEMA
Intersection of Rte. 5 and Rte. 9
NORTHAMPTON CENTER
584-6909

LUCHINO VISCONTI'S

Death in Venice

Lives

at the Talkie
Held Over

7:00 and 9:30

for that Xtra Special
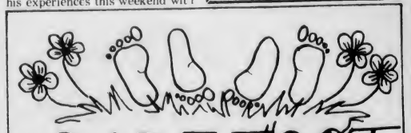
SEAFOOD DINNER

Tell your Date about
The Original
Jack August's



We've been feeding UMass students since 1935

LOBSTERS
are our speciality

Near the underpass on Lower Main Street

Northampton

ROOM TO MOVE
Campus Drug
Drop-In Center
CALL 5-0400
24 HOURS A DAY
7 DAYS A WEEK

GET IT ON AT THE FIRST FRIDAY AFTERNOON CLUB (FAC) AT THE Bluewall cafeteria

the perfect way to end the week and begin the weekend

LIVE ENTERTAINMENT
DANCING
HAPPY HOUR! LIQUOR PRICES
FROM 2:30-5:30 EVERY FRIDAY
THIS WEEK: ONLY 25¢
HICKORY WIND

P.S. CAFETERIA IS OPEN TOO!!!

In The Nation And The World

Nixon Working In Anticipation Of Nov. 15

WASHINGTON (AP)-The President's Price Commission adopted complex guidelines Thursday requiring post-freeze price increases to be justified by legitimate business costs and aimed at holding the national inflation rate to 2.5 per cent a year.

The new guidelines will be effective for the Phase 2 economic period that begins at 12:01 A.M. Sunday, but an immediate upsurge of retail prices next week may be effectively blocked by a commission rule requiring posted price lists.

"This means that some prices will go down," said Price Commission Chairman C. Jackson Grayson. "Some will not increase at all. Some will go up more than 2.5 per cent."

The commission shied away from adopting a general price standard applying to the nation's businesses, but instead laid down general rules covering prices by manufacturers, retailers, wholesalers, service industries and professionals.

The basic guideline is this: Only price increases that can be justified on the basis of cost increases, minus any amount of worker productivity gains, will be allowed. If the price is over 2.5 per cent and can be justified by this formula, it will be allowed by the commission.

But the price boost may not be so great as to cause an increase in a company's pre-tax profit rates, measured as a percentage of sales. In other words, profits can increase only through a rise in sales volume if a price increase is involved.

The commission's guidelines, announced at a news conference after days of late-evening work sessions by the seven-member panel, raised many questions that will be answered only when final regulations are published. The commission said the regulations may be published by the end of the week.

But Grayson conceded that consumers may have a difficult time knowing when a price has been boosted legally in line with the commission's guidelines.

Companies will be encouraged, but not required, to show customers cost information that would justify price increases in their stores, he said.

The commission provision that may prevent a quick upswing in retail prices immediately after the freeze ends requires that all retail prices will remain frozen until stores post prominently lists of prices that were in effect during the freeze.

The price list must be posted for all food items. For other retail stores, a list of selected items-such as a product that does a high volume of business-must be posted.

Grayson said the detailed regulations on posting will be announced soon. The price lists must be posted no later than Jan. 1, 1972, he said.

The price guidelines cover only the period that begins Sunday, Nov. 14. Prices may be increased to recover only those increased costs incurred after 12:01 a.m. Sunday. Firms will not be allowed to increase prices to get relief, retroactively, for costs that might have gone up during or before the freeze.

Some prices could go up immediately Sunday, Grayson said, because a business could claim that it began incurring new costs on that date.

The price guidelines will be policed under a complicated three-tier economic system announced Wednesday.

Price boosts that may be announced by the nation's largest companies will be frozen for at least another month.

It is these companies-those with annual sales of more than $100 million-that must notify the government of all planned price increases in advance.

The commission's guidelines say the large companies will be able to put price increases into effect if the commission has not ruled to the contrary within 30 days.

The commission's guidelines say the large companies will be able to put price increases into effect if the commission has not ruled to the contrary within 30 days.

About 45 per cent of all sales will be in this category, the government says.

Another 5 per cent of sales will be a second group, companies which can put price increases into effect after merely reporting to the government.

Other prices, those of a corner grocery store or a local drug store, will be subject merely to spot checks by the Internal Revenue Service to determine if there are violations.

Grayson said consumers can complain to their local IRS offices if they feel a violation has occurred.

The Cost of Living Council has already exempted nearly one-fifth of the goods and services that make up the average American's cost of living, including prices of used cars, homes, custom-made goods, raw agricultural products, dues, taxes and interest rates.

Here are other highlights of the guidelines:

—Rents will remain frozen until the Price Commission hammers out final guidelines. The government, however, has exempted commercial, industrial and farm rents from controls, as well as rents on new homes or apartments.

—The guidelines apply generally to prices charged for services, including such things as doctor's and dental fees. The commission said, however, because of the widely varying types of costs and market conditions in service industries, separate regulations may be required.

—Rate increases by the nation's largest utilities must be submitted to the commission for approval, and all rate boosts by utilities will be subject to the price controls.

"Some regulated firms' proposed rate increases have been approved by regulatory authorities, but were not allowed to become effective because of the freeze," the commission said.

"Such increases may go into effect; however, the appropriate regulatory authority shall review such increases for consistency with the goals of the economic stabilization program."

In other economic developments Thursday, the House Banking Committee killed any chance that President Nixon's Phase 2 economic legislation will be enacted until at least next month.

In Brief...

WASHINGTON (AP)-House leaders said today Secretary of Agriculture Clifford M. Hardin has resigned. They said Earl L. Butz, former assistant secretary and now on the staff of Purdue University, would succeed him.

WASHINGTON (AP)-The Senate passed a $1.5-billion military aid bill Thursday after restoring $318 million in response to a warning that the sharply cut measure might jeopardize U.S. withdrawal efforts in Vietnam.

WASHINGTON (AP)-President Nixon stood brief vigil at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier Thursday and said the three nameless Americans who lie there from wars of yester-year may soon be joined by a brother who fell in Vietnam.

WASHINGTON (AP)-The House Banking Committee killed any chance of early enactment of President Nixon's Phase 2 legislation by recessing today until Nov. 30 with its work on the measure still incomplete.

The action means the House will not vote on the legislation at least until the week of Dec. 6-three weeks after the present freeze expires. However, the administration is prepared to put essential elements of Phase 2 into effect under existing authority.

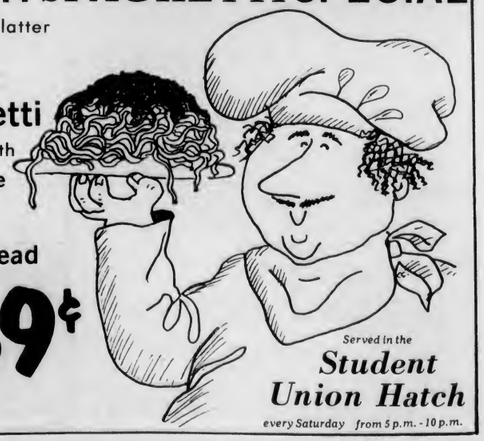
(AP)—Americans have been going steady with their cars for 70 years now and the love affair may be turning into a love-hate relationship. Too often it seems the automobile is the slowest means between two points that are separated by smog, traffic jams, endless concrete and a filled parking lot at the end of the road.

Military Bill Augmented

WASHINGTON (AP)-The Senate voted 46 to 42 today to restore $318 million to the military aid bill after a warning that sharp cuts by the Foreign Relations Committee jeopardize the U.S. withdrawal from Vietnam.

It approved the amendment by Sen. John C. Stennis, (D—Miss.,) adding the funds after rejecting 64 to 24 a proposal by Sen. J. W. Fulbright, (D—Ark.), to cut an additional $153 million on top of the $538-million reduction by the Foreign Relations panel.

Administration forces predicted the bill, swelled to about $1.5 billion by the amendment, would be passed later in the day but some senators said the additional funds could jeopardize its chances.



Country Comfort
Coffee House
Tonight 8 p.m.
Crabtree Basement
ALL WELCOME
IT'S FREE

TREASURE HUNT
Tonight at 7 p.m.
First clue is at Newman Center Lounge.
Bring flashlights & friends-good prizes.

FREE SODA
with purchase of a Sub
from Mobile Deli; Butterfield Terrace & Southwest (near Prince House)
November 9 - 12

Keep warm this winter
Rugged parkas
Hunting jackets
Blanket and pile lined denim jackets
Leather flight and bomber jackets
Suede and buckskin jackets
FLANNEL SHIRTS
DENIM WORK SHIRTS
CARTER OVERALLS

WEAR-HOUSE
Friday's Fling
Open Fridays until 9

HATCH SPAGHETTI SPECIAL
Heaping Platter of Hot Spaghetti covered with Meat Sauce plus Hot Garlic Bread
ONLY 59¢

Served in the Student Union Hatch
every Saturday from 5 p.m. - 10 p.m.

Has American Aid Fostered Revolution Abroad?

U.N.—Huang Hua, Mainland Chinese ambassador to Canada, has been named by Peking as its permanent United Nations representive and delegate to the 15-nation Security Council.

NEW YORK (AP)-American-aided universities abroad are sometimes described as breeding grounds for native revolutionaries. The two top Chinese delegates to the United Nations who arrived here Thursday are cited as cases in point.

The chief representative of the People's Republic of China, Chiao Kuan-hua, graduated in 1933 from American-backed Tsinghua University in Peking. His deputy, Huang Hua, who will sit on the U.N. Security Council, graduated from Yenching, an architecturally beautiful university in Peking supported by American Christians.

In his early years Chiao was better known to foreign correspondents, among them this writer, as the husband of Kung Peng, the attractive press spokesman for Chou En-lai, now China's premier.

Kung Peng occupied a small, barely furnished house on a rubbish-littered lane in the war-time Chinese capital of Chungking. With an infant in her arms, she received visitors with a cup of steaming tea and the party line.

Her husband, a newspaperman, mingled easily with the American and other foreign newsmen who went daily to their home to catch up on Communist political attitudes. But he generally remained in the background.

Kung Peng died in 1970 after a long illness.

Chiao, born in Kiangsu Province of well-to-do parents, went to France, Japan and Germany after getting his bachelor's degree from Tsinghua. He won a doctorate in philosophy from Tubingen University in Germany and on returning to China joined the Communist party.

It was not until the creation of the People's Republic in 1949 that Chiao began to come into his own. He became a Foreign Ministry adviser to Chou Enlai. He went with him to the Geneva conference on Indochina in 1954 and the 1962 conference on Laos in the same city.

He made an appearance at the United Nations 21 years ago, as a deputy in a Peking delegation to accuse the United States of aggression in Korea and Taiwan.

Give Them Equal Schools, Lily-White Neighborhoods

WASHINGTON (AP)-Sen. Henry M. Jackson said Thursday he believes in integration "in the fullest sense" but objects to school busing which would move his children to slum area schools from their "lily white neighborhood."

Jackson, an unannounced contender for the Democratic presidential nomination, told a group of party contributors that the answer to the busing problem is to provide equal schools for all neighborhoods.

New York Mayor John V. Lindsay and Sens. Hubert H. Humphrey and Edmund S. Muskie also talked to the gathering of campaign givers during the day-long meeting.

Jackson said he is one of the few members of Congress whose children attend public schools in Washington.

"We live in a lily white neighborhood," Jackson said, but he said some 30 per cent of the neighborhood school's pupils are blacks bused in from other areas of the city.

"And they're coming in there from inferior schools," he added.

"I would oppose moving my daughter from a good school to a bad one," Jackson said. "A thoughtful parent is going to see to it his kid goes to the best schools.

"My daughter has a black teacher and a black principal," Jackson said, "and I believe in integration in the fullest sense and I try to practice what I preach."

"I supported, you know, all the civil rights programs," Jackson continued, "but you can't support a program when you've got 80-90 per cent of the people up in arms."

Lindsay told the contributors President Nixon can be beaten in 1972 if Democrats get over the idea that the President is unbeatable.

"Frankly, I'm surprised by the number of Democrats who doubt we can change anything next year," Lindsay said.

Lindsay said he is distressed by what he termed the growing opinion that Nixon cannot be defeated if he can bring the troops home from Vietnam, stabilize the economy and visit Peking and Moscow successfully before the 1972 election.

"Don't you believe it," Lindsay said. "That just isn't true. The people won't be fooled."

In perhaps his strongest attack against Nixon since leaving the Republican party for the Democrats, Lindsay also said the trips to Peking and Moscow won't save Nixon "when our foreign policy from Japan to Israel and from Pakistan to Greece is consistent only in its arrogance."

Higher Social Security Urged

PITTSBURGH (AP)-Brandeis University President Charles I. Schottland, an authority on social welfare, Thursday called for higher social security payments and a guaranteed income as steps toward eliminating American poverty.

Schottland, who served as commissioner of social security in the Eisenhower administration, proposed that social security payments be raised to at least $200 a month. The guaranteed income should be at a level sufficient to raise all Americans above the poverty line, he said.

"Our government programs cannot be permitted to pay benefits to the poor which are designed to help them out of poverty on a level which keeps them in poverty," he said in a prepared speech to the 40th General Assembly of the Council of Jewish Federations and Welfare Funds.

Schottland also proposed federalizing all public assistance programs, a public works program to eradicate unemployment and a federal task force charged with directing the fight against poverty.

A poverty-free nation is not a difficult goal, he said.

"Just one-quarter...of the budget for the Department of Defense distributed through a guaranteed minimum income could raise every poor person above the poverty line," he said.

"Many students of poverty feel that money alone will not solve the problem. My own bias is very clear

Wanna Play Wooster?

WESTPORT, Mass. (AP)-Russian negotiators and officials of a local fishing firm suing the Soviet Union for damage to lobster traps met for the third day Thursday and said they'd make a joint announcement Friday morning.

A spokesman for Prelude Corp., which operates four ocean-going lobster vessels off the Massachusetts coast, declined to say whether the scheduled news conference meant a settlement of the firm's $377,000 suit and had been reached.

The company claims Russian trawlers damaged $177,000 worth of its lobster catching gear off Nantucket last spring and summer. Its suit, later withdrawn on the stipulation the Russians would negotiate, also sought $200,000 in punitive damages.

Last summer, a Russian freighter was seized in San Francisco Bay as security against the suit, but a federal judge ordered the vessel released a week later.

The Russian delegation, led by Semeonovich Babaev, president of the Soviet fishing fleet, arrived in this coastal town of 10,000 last Tuesday.

Negotiations with the president of Prelude, Joseph Gaziano, his assistants and attorneys, have been held since then behind closed doors.

A Prelude official said it was believed to be the first time the Soviet Union has negotiated directly with an American firm in a damage claim.

Prelude's suit climaxed months of what American lobstermen claimed was harassment by Russian trawlers and fishing vessels of some Soviet bloc nations.

The lobstermen said the trawlers repeatedly hauled their big nets through clearly-marked areas baited with lobster traps.

House of Lords
Pocket Billiards
65 Univ. Drive
"Great for a Date" escorted girls FREE open daily and Sun. 1-1
Sat. 10-12
Call 253-3305

"Rosemary's Baby"
Tonight
7 - 9: 30 - 12:
CC Auditorium
75¢

TOP OF THE CAMPUS
Black Magic featuring
Natalie Cole
FRIDAY
SATURDAY
9-1
9-1
Gwen Cooper with the Mixed Emotions

AUTO INSURANCE
ALL CARS — ALL DRIVERS
BUDGET PAYMENTS
CYCLES — SCOOTERS
Tekoa Insurance Agency
160 Pleasant St. Northampton 586-2742
10 Broad St. Westfield 562-3604

Campus Cinemas 256-6411 AMHERST-HADLEY LINE
In the Zayre's Shopping Center - Route 9.
Monday Nights! Ladies $1.00
Campus II
PAUL NEWMAN IS BUTCH CASSIDY AND THE SUNDANCE KID IS ROBERT REDFORD.
at 9:00

and
at 7:00
MASH
Campus I
Daily 7 & 9
Fri. & Sat.
7:00, 8:30, 10:00
FIND OUT YOURSELF WHY EVERYONE'S TALKING ABOUT - Rated X
Together
Campus III
at 7:15 & 9:15 (R)
Ingmar Bergman's first English language motion picture starring
Elliott Gould
The Touch

UMass Scientists Study Plastics

Research is underway at the UMass in Amherst on a new high-density polyethylene, highly transparent and tough at low temperatures.

The UMass Polymer Research Institute has produced small quantities of the new polyethylene in the laboratory. The UMass scientists are now learning more about its crystal structure and how to produce it in larger quantities.

According to Roger Porter, head of Polymer Science and Engineering at UMass, the new material has potential as a commercial plastic. "Transparency will make it aesthetically pleasing," he said. "The improved engineering properties can be used to advantage in items requiring a high tensile strength."

Significant from a commercial standpoint, he added, is that these properties can be achieved potentially at little difference in processing cost over producing conventional polyethylene.

Polyethylene is a workhorse plastic that is used in packaging, as a structural plastic and in many other ways. In conventional form it is opaque and fairly soft. At low temperatures it is brittle and breaks easily.

The new UMass polyethylene has complete visual transparency and up to six times the tensile strength of the same polymer conventionally produced. The unusual properties are the result of crystallization pronounced in molecular extension and believes.

This occurs when material is highly stressed near the melting point. The result is a structure with crystals in virtually perfect alignment along the filament length. Research has provided the first documented example of a transparent and extended chain crystal structure in polyethylene, Dr. Porter said.

John Southern, a doctoral student, began research with Dr. Porter. Graduate students Norman Weeks and Tokio Nikuni are continuing it.

China Delegates in New York

NEW YORK (AP) — Communist China's chief delegates to the United Nations flew into New York on Thursday, announcing that their aim was "safeguarding the international peace and promoting human progress."

The historic linkup between Red China and the international organization was a two-state affair. The 44-member delegation split into two groups and traveled in separate planes. They had spent the night in Paris.

The first contingent included the top men in the delegation. As they debarked at Kennedy Airport, demonstrators for and against them sang, chanted and raised banners-but out of sight and sound of the Chinese visitors.

The pro-Red Chinese sang paeans to Communist party chairman Mao Tse-tung, waved red banners and displayed signs reading, "Warmly welcome our delegates from motherland."

The counter-demonstrators brandished signs reading "down with Mao," and one which urged the arriving Chinese to "Defect Now."

The Chinese delegation was voted into the United Nations Oct. 25, replacing Nationalist China. Leading it are Deputy Foreign Minister Chiao Kuanhua, and his chief deputy, Huang Hua, Security Council representative, head of the permanent delegation and former Chinese ambassador to Canada.

"They were friendly, polite, animated and delightful traveling companions," said Peter Steward, who crossed the Atlantic with the initial Chinese group aboard an Air France 707.

Waiting for the Chinese on the brisk autumn day were official greeters from the United Nations and the City of New York, and Albanian, Pakistani and Zambian representatives from the United Nations.

Also on hand was a six-man Communist Chinese team who arrived Monday as an advance party. They had made arrangements for the new Chinese delegation to take over the entire 14th floor of the Roosevelt Hotel in midtown Manhattan-at a cost of about $2,300 a day. It consists of 72 rooms.

How far away from the Roosevelt the Red Chinese will be able to venture remained under consideration by administration policy makers in Washington.

Soviet envoys at the United Nations must give at least 48 hours notice before traveling beyond a 25-mile radius of the organization's headquarters, and need special U.S. permission to visit sections of the country ruled off-limits to them.

Communists with no diplomatic ties with Washington such as the Albanians, Mongolians and Cubans must get permission to travel anywhere beyond the 25-mile limit.

Casiac Eases Counseling Confusion

In an effort to alleviate much of the confusion that accompanies the counseling period, CASIAC is making an attempt to acquaint students with the different major departments within the College of Arts and Sciences. The chief undergraduate advisors for each department will be available to meet with students to discuss prospective programs within each advisor's major department. These sessions will be held on an informal walk- in basis at the CASIAC office, E-22 Machmer Hall, beginning Monday morning November 15 and continuing until Tuesday afternoon November 23.

Students are encouraged to take advantage of this opportunity to meet with the chief advisors in a relaxed atmosphere.

The following chief advisors will be available for general academic counseling at the CASIAC office as described in the following schedule:

Monday, November 15
9-12 a.m. Joe Contino, Music (R. Faulkner, T.O. Wilkinson, Sociology.
1:30-4:30 Jonathan Quick, English

Tuesday, November 16
9-12 a.m. G. Gunderson, Economics; A. Quinton, Physics; R. Smith, Pre Vet.
1:30-4:30 p.m. H. Schumer, Psychology; P. Berube, Art.

Wednesday, Nov. 17
9-12 a.m. W. Davis, History; R. Mortlock, Microbiology; T. Rice, Geology.

Thursday, Nov. 18
9-12 a.m. N. Lamb, French.
1:30-4:30 p.m. E. Phinney Classics; H. Steeper, Government; Lake, Russian; Terrizzi, Italian.

Friday, Nov. 19
9-12 a.m. J. Chandler, Chemistry; Lenson, Comp. Lit.
1:30-4:30 p.m. J. Savereid, Speech.

Monday, Nov. 22
9-12 a.m. S. Wexler, Spanish; T. Andrews, Zoology; T. Arny, Astronomy.
1:30-4:30 p.m. R. Wille, Botany.

Tuesday, Nov. 23
9-12 a.m. H. Lea, German; W. Naff, Asian Studies.
1:30-4:30 p.m. R. Fuller, Biochemistry.

You don't like to be cold . . . . and neither do your feet!!

treat them to BOOTS from The Shoe-Bin

(at prices you can afford)

Clothe Thyself

The Dealer

A Clothing Store
56 1/2 Main St.

Fri. til 9

EVERY FRIDAY . . . .

Our superb buffet will be from 6:30 a.m. to 9:00 p.m. Please come up to the buffet as many times as you wish. $5.50 per person.

The Lord Jeffery
30 Boltwood Ave. AMHERST, MASS. 253-2576

RAOUL DIETRICH, INNKEEPER

Winter at OWH

We have just lowered our prices on all kinds of winter clothes.

OLD WEIRD HAROLD'S

NEW & OLD CLOTHING
Handicrafts Too!
Route 9
Road Northampton
(Next to Walter's of Hadley)
Tel: 586-3727
Mon. thru Fri. 10 a.m. - 11 p.m.
Saturday 10 a.m. - 11 p.m.

Jeans $2.50	13 Button Navy Pants $5.00	Flannel & Corduroy Shirts $1.50
Sweaters $3.00 & $6.00	Corduroy Jackets $5.00	Workshirts $2.00
Overalls Jumpsuits $4.50	Fatigue Pants $2.00	Furs $10 - 30 Shawls $2.00

Leathers, Corduroys, Velvets, & Antique Dresses (20's-30's)
Parkas, Denim Jackets, authentic P-Coats, new Parkas, Felt Hats, Moutons, Tunics, Berets, Hbt-Shirts & Pants, Long Wool Coats, M-43's, Eisenhowers, Boots, etc.

Attention CCEBS Seniors

Candid shots of the CCEBS SENIORS
(those graduating May '72 and January '73),

for the CCEBS yearbook will be taken

Wednesday, Thursday and Friday,

November 10, 11 and 12, 1971

The dates, times and locations are as follow:

Whitmore (Parking lot side) on the rocks	10 A.M. til 12 noon
Pyramid of Stairs (Southwest)	1 P.M. til 3 P.M. November 10
Garden (between Infirmary and Pres' Path)	10 A.M. til 12 noon
Cultural Center (stairs of New Africa House)	1 P.M. til 3 P.M. November 11
Campus Center Stairs	10 A.M. til 12 noon
North East Dorms	1 P.M. til 3 P.M. November 12

Please let us know your choice by contacting the CCEBS office 5-0031 immediately. We are pushed for time.

Liberation News Service

A Fight Against Strip Mining

HAZARD, Kentucky (LNS) -- There's a spirit moving the hills of Eastern Kentucky. It's the spirit of a people uniting to save their land. Strip mining operations here have polluted the water, cut down the forests and turned the mountains into badlands. Appalachian mountain people, a people of the land, are gathering their forces to put an end to the destruction.

Paul Combs discussing the destruction of the land due to strip mining, Hazard, Kentucky.

"They're going to flatten Eastern Kentucky," said Paul Combs angrily as he looked over a wasted hillside. If they keep up at the rate they've been going, the land won't be good for anything. The government might as well build a dam and flood the whole region. A reservoir would at least serve the people of this area."

Strip mining has done the damage here in only a few years. The stripping boom didn't really begin until 1968, although coal companies have been underground mining the area for years.

But strip mining is a very different operationfrom underground mining. Underground mining removes the coal from the earth. Strip mining removes the earth from the coal. To get at the coal beneath the surface, strippers use dynamite and earth moving machines so big that they have to be assembled at the work site.

After cutting a roadway into the mining area--often as wide as a four-lane highway, to allow the giant coal trucks to travel faster--the monster digging machines go to work. They cut a three-story high swath along the edge of the mountainside above the coal seam. The earth and rock removed are pushed over the side of the hill, leaving a giant apron of unstable debris. Above the coal seam a great cliff or "highwall" is left as a scar encircling the mountain. In some areas, several seams are mined, one above the other, in this way.

After the coal is removed from the strip mine bench, the augering begins. Giant drills bore into the edge of the exposed seam of coal penetrating 100 to 200 feet beneath the mountain, taking the coal from a series of parallel holes.

Paul Ashley, a vocational high school teacher in the area, held up a bottle of water. "I got this water from the creek behind my house," he said. "Yesterday, I put a shiny new nail into the bottle, and you can see what the water has done to it." The nail was bent and encrusted with rust. "Before they started strip mining in our community, I used to fish in that creek," he said, "now there isn't a single living thing there."

"Since the stripping killed the creek where I live," Paul Combs added, "everyone has started throwing their garbage into it...tin cans and all. But the stream is as clean as a whistle. Inside a week the water eats up everything."

"Up the road there's a family with eight children," Mr. Combs continued. "All of these kids have ulcers. Their parents can't keep them from playing in the creek, and you don't have to swallow much of that water to get ulcers. The acid level in the water is so high it eats right through your stomach. If the mine water gets in a family's well, they have to dig a new well, try to neutralize the water or move. You can't drink acid-water, that's for sure."

The acid run-off from strip mining comes from having the coal face exposed to the weather. In deep mining, the sulfuric acid that is mixed with the coal and shale never comes to the surface. But when it rains on a strip mine, the acid is washed down the barren hillsides in a thousand streamlets, poisoning the rivers and streams in the valley below.

"Every tree is like a little dam," Mr. Combs explained, "holding back and absorbing water. When they strip the hills there's no place for the rain water to go but into the river. We've had some floods here, but I'll predict we haven't seen the worst of it, if they continue stripping."

The coal companies are supposed to "reclaim" the land after they're finished stripping it. They're bound by law to replant the hillsides and repack the loose dirt against the coal seam. In fact, though, their reclamation efforts are only half-hearted attempts, or they don't bother with it at all. So far, no reclamation project has really worked.

The companies talk of the "millions of dollars being spent on research into reclamation technology," as if this were a sign of their social responsibility. The people of Appalachia realize this is an admission that the companies don't yet know how to restore the land they have ruined. Yet the coal concerns continue to chew up the countryside as fast as their machines will work.

The law certainly isn't going to stop them. In Appalachia, King Coal is the law. Coal operators own 44% of all the land in West Virginia. In 1970, strippers extracted 154,361,000 tons of coal from the Appalachian region (not to mention the 274,834,000 tons from underground mines). Getting $8.00 a ton for the coal, operators have enough economic clout to get whatever they want.

"They own the courts, the police and the politicians," one local resident said. "It's no good trying to take the owners to court. It's just as likely you'll end up in jail as them. The judges would change the ten commandments if the operators told them to!"

When the courts move too slowly or when it would be awkward to call in the state police, the companies provide their own law enforcement. Most of the access roads to strip mining operations are patroled by deputized armed guards. "The owners will go to other counties and find the meanest, scar-faced people they can find and hire them as guards," Paul Combs said. "They'll shoot you if you come on company property, no questions asked. The courts will back up the goons every time."

*****

The people of the Appalachian movement against strip mining know the hired guards and the men who operate the huge stripping machinery are not their enemies. There have been guerrilla type attacks on strip mining sites, but the objective has always been to destroy the machinery, not kill people.

"They've got babies to feed too," said a local activist, referring to the guards.

The people in the movement to stop strip mining and restore the land see big-city corporate conglomerates (U.S. Steel, Bethlehem Steel, Norfolk & Western Railway), who own and lease the coal fields, as their real enemy. They have sat in their cars by railroad crossings and waited for the five-mile coal trains to pass, heading east. They have seen the wealth of the land leave the area, and grieve over the ravaged countryside.

"They take everything there is to take, and leave us with Jay Rockefeller," a West Virginia resident said, scoffing at his state's governor.

Electric power companies are the main consumers of coal, and the big-city demands for power provide the incentive and profit margin for the coal operators. To maintain the electric American standard of living, Appalachia is being turned into a wasteland.

As long as there is profit, the strippers intend to keep stripping. But the movement against the pillage for profit is growing stronger every day. At almost every meeting they sing, "Ain't nobody goin to turn me 'round." They mean it.

Getting Rich Off A Poor Neighborhood

DALLAS (LNS) Smith Furniture Company operates seven stores in Dallas, all of which are in the black, Chicano, or deteriorating lower middle class sections of the city.

The bulk of their furniture stock consists of inexpensive appliances, and poorly constructed, inferior quality furniture purchased by the car load and retailed as "Budget housewares." The mark-ups run as high as 400%.

The key to selling "Budget" furniture is credit, and the Smith Company has it down to an art. Let's say a cheap refrigerator costs the store $55.00; the retail price can be set between $110 and $150.

The salesman will ask the purchaser for a 20% to 30% down payment. The store receives most of the actual cost immediately. Now to the purchase price is added sales tax, interest, a delivery charge and possibly a service warranty. Service warranties are optional but the salesman will make it sound like that if it quit running tomorrow you would be out a lot of bread; and for a small fee you will have the security of our "free" service department while you are making those 12 easy payments.

What the customer isn't told is that if you miss one of those 12 easy payments Smith will come and jerk that new ice box out of your pad. At the same time, you're going to be out a lot of bread anyway.

Most customers, regardless of their credit status, make at least a couple of payments. The merchandise is new and they don't want to lose it the first month.

With the first payment, the store is probably already into the profit. At this point if they have the opportunity to repossess the box the company can make that piece of misfortune into some really big money. If the refrigerator got repossessed the store starts by marking the original cost down from $55 less say to $10, that's a $45 income tax deduction.

The customer, whom we may now classify as a bad credit risk, is slapped with what is called a deficiency balance. He is still liable for (can be required to pay) the amount of the markdown ($45), a fee for putting the box in resaleable condition, (usually $1 to $10), plus the full interest on the contract (even if he only had it a couple of months) the delivery charge, and the amount of the service warranty (if he signed up for one).

The credit risk is out the amount of money they paid, doesn't have a refrigerator and could still owe the company more than the original value of the merchandise. If they don't pay, that will be padded with additional interest each month, turned over to a collection agency and finally deducted from the company's income tax if the debt proves to be uncollectable.

And what happens to the refrigerator? It doesn't get thrown in the trash. A maintenance man who gets paid by the hour polishes it up and rolls it back out on the sales floor to be sold again. And not for $10 either. A Smith employee told a reporter that repossesses that look new are sold for the full retail price. "I've seen them come in full of cockroaches and be sold three days later as floor models."

On beds, upholstered furniture and wooden items (soft goods) the markups are really fantastic. Something that costs $20 can be sold for $80. Soft goods sometimes come in sets or combinations, sometimes a single sale covers a complete room full of furniture.

Let's say you've been a good customer of the Smith Furniture Company. You bought a couple of hundred dollars worth of furniture two years ago and are now within five payments of having it clear. Your account card will be marked with a special tab by the bookkeeping department.

When you go in to make your next installment some friendly salesman will just pop over to rap with you. But he didn't just pop over, he was called over by the cashier while you were making out your check because you're ready for an Add-On Contract.

He's going to lay a really big hype on you, about what a sterling customer you are. He has this far-out stuff he wants to show you and you're not going to have to pay anything down. Your payments won't start until the old contract is all paid off. He's going to make it sound like they are giving it away and you just happened to be first in line.

But don't get too excited,, because it doesn't work that way. Add-On Contracts are gimmicks that allow the company to not only charge you a high interest rate on your new purchase, but also charge you the same high interest rate on the unpaid balance of your old purchase. Most people don't know that, and a good fast-talking credit manager can slip it to you fast, and let you walk out smiling.

And do you know why there's no down payment? An Add-On Contract binds the old purchase to the new purchase. If you default in your payments the company can repossess every piece of merchandise listed as sold to you on both contracts. In fact, if you had 5 add-ons spread out over a period of years they could require you legally to surrender everything you ever bought from them. And according to the letter of the law, they could press charges against you for any missing items sold or given away because it is against the law to sell or give away mortgaged furniture. But they don't tell you that.

What is it like to have something repossessed? Smith trucks make as many repo trips as they do deliveries. The drivers collect past due accounts, and do an ad-hoc repossession act that would do justice to a burglary ring.

If the customer can't be reached or refuses to surrender the merchandise the drivers are supposed to improvise. They sometimes threaten and intimidate customers, collection agency style. They sometimes find an unlocked house with no one home and take what they came for. They also tell baby sitters and children left alone that they are repairman and haul off the goods.

When the repo-rapers come to your house you are within your legal rights to ask to see the signed court order.

Remember:

Bill collectors cannot have a customer jailed for failure to pay a debt.

If you are threatened with a fraud charge, they are the ones who will have to prove you had no intentions of paying for it when you bought it.

If the merchandise is lost or stolen tell them to fuck-off, they'll write it off anyway.

If the merchandise breaks down and they won't fix it for free, make them take it back. Most stores don't stand behind a guarantee unless you spend a lot of money with them.

The Massachusetts
Daily Collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

BOARD OF EDITORS

EDITOR IN CHIEF — Richard C. Hanson
MANAGING EDITOR — Nathan Gorenstein
BUSINESS MANAGER — James Gold
EXECUTIVE EDITOR — Barry J. Rubenstein
NEWS EDITOR — Anne C. Stadnicki
SPORTS EDITOR — Earle T. Barroll

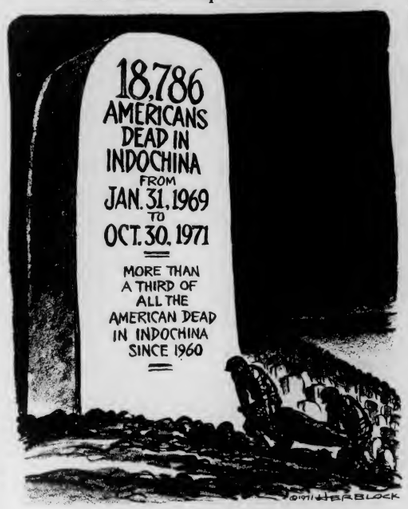

PHOTO EDITOR — Gib Fullerton
FINE ARTS EDITOR — Robert Nesti

TODAY'S STAFF

ISSUE EDITOR — Ann Gurnett
NEWS STAFF — Steve Fine
EDITORIAL — Barry Rubenstein
SPORTS — Bob Medeiros
DARKROOM — Barbara Brecher
AD LAYOUT — Bill Manburg

Undergraduate newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The Staff is responsible for its content and no faculty members or administration read it for accuracy of approval prior to publication.
Unsigned editorials represent the views of this paper. They do not necessarily reflect the views of the faculty, administration, or student body as a whole. Signed editorials, columns, reviews, and letters represent the personal views of the writers.

The Other Troop Withdrawals

Near Alberton

I remember here.
I once was here.
The place is now mine,
For when I travel home,
All roads will be that road...within my mind.

T. David Barrett

Appeal

Unfortunately, the article which appeared in the Collegian last week concerning theft from the University Store went unheeded. This evening I am witnessing the prosecution of eight students accused of "ripping-off" the store. In addition, I have six more complaints to be filed with the Student Judiciary. These students all face penalties ranging from a letter of censure to expulsion from the University.

Please, before you decided to "rip-off" the store, think of the consequences. If you really need something and you haven't the money to pay for it, please see me in my office in 921 of the Campus Center, and we will try to help you.

Henry P. Bouffard
Student Attorney General

Correction

The editorial which appeared in yesterday's Collegian entitled "Caged In Again?" was written by Bill Gorcyzca, a member of the editorial staff. It was not meant to represent the views of this paper but simply those of the author.

Art Buchwald

The Way The World Goes

WASHINGTON–The best quote to come out of the Amchitka H-bomb test can be attributed to Maj. Gen. Edward B. Giller who has the title of "assistant general manager for military application" at the Atomic Energy Commission. After the test Gen. Giller told reporters, "I don't foresee another test, but I won't say we'll never come back. It depends on how the world goes."

Well, everyone knows how the world is going to go.

The Russian military chiefs are going to say to the Kremlin, "See here, Comrade Rulers, the Americans have just exploded a five-megaton bomb 6,000 feet below surface of earth. Is important we explode six-megaton bomb 7,000 feet below surface of earth or they will think they are ahead of us in nuclear warfare."

"Is safe exploding six-megaton bomb below the earth?" the Kremlin asks.

"Who knows? But national security, it is involved, and safe is not what we should worry about. Is Spartan missile we must worry about."

"Spartan missile, Comrade Generals?"

"Is missile used in ABM system to shoot down our missile. Americans say explosion was success. Is proof that we cannot get through their defense. Is giving United States such confidence they might attack us without warning. Soviets must explode six-megaton H-bomb to show Washington not ahead in missile race."

"Comrade Generals," the Kremlin asks, "suppose this explosion is causing earthquakes all over Siberia?"

"Impossible, Comrade Rulers. The Soviet supreme court has just voted four to three that six-megaton H-bomb can't cause earthquakes."

"All right, Comrade Generals. Go with explosion. National security more important than lousy earthquakes."

Six months later, back at the White House:

"Mr. President, the Soviets have just exploded a six-megaton H-bomb 7,000 feet below the surface of the earth."

"What does that mean, General?"

"We're not sure, sir. But it could mean that their Shashlik missile can penetrate our Spartan missile, which as you know is our first line of defense, whenever we get it built."

"I was afraid you'd say that, General. I would hate to be the first President to go down in history who allowed a Shashlik missile to get through our Spartan missile defense system."

"Precisely, sir. This test has given the Soviets added confidence and, unless we prove to them that we have something to stop the Shashlik, we might have to blink in our next eyeball-to-eyeball confrontation."

"What do you suggest, General?"

"That we lay it on the Soviets once and for all. We must set off a 15-megaton H-bomb 20,000 feet below the surface of the earth."

"Are there any environmental hazards?"

"None comparable to the risk of our national security. We might lose part of Alaska in the explosion and there could be some cracks in the Western half of Canada, but that's the way the world goes."

"I'm for the test, of course, General, but I have to think of the political repercussions. Suppose the environmentalists sue and take the case to the Supreme Court?"

"But Mr. President, have you forgotten? It's your Supreme Court."

Copyright 1971, Los Angeles Times

Hell To Be Female

By CHARLOTTE LETTIS
Editorial Staff

It is hell to be female. To live in a constant guilt of self-hatred and insecurity. To be forced into roles, placed into categories, judged, chosen, whistled at or ridiculed, just because we happen to have been born female. We constantly are banging our heads against a social wall which years of conditioning has taught us to believe is real.

One important conditioning, sexual freedom, subjects us to play the "normal" sexual roles-male or female. The female, ingrained with the fear of pregnancy outside of marriage, looks upon sexual activity as undesirable, but not necessarily unenjoyable. Men, on the other hand, are free of the threat of pregnancy/social condemnation, and therefore function with more sexual appetite and experience more sexual satisfaction. Thus, there is the logical development of the myth that men are more sexual than women.

The woman who is imprisoned by the possibility of the unacceptable and unwanted pregnancy is labeled as being frigid or less sexual. Many years of this kind of social restriction on the female, as opposed to the freedom given the male, eventually create and still creates the belief that all male and female characteristics are innate. This belief not only perpetuates the imprisonment of women as human beings, but also perpetuates male supremacy. In order to be accepted, a woman must have a husband to justify hher sexual activities. The man is able to encounter as many sexual experiences as he desires; in fact the more experiences he has the more "masculine" it supposedly makes him. The marriage or relationship becomes totally one-sided.

The women is traditionally dedicated, loving and responsible, but only to preserve her position as a sexual being without social condemnation. She becomes a housewife, a mother, and a legalized whore (one who receives payment) in order to appease the male-dominated social structure. In the same sense, men are as unaware of this myth of male sexuality as are most women.

Even most men who I consider fairly radical still feel women are less sexual than men. It does appear that way. Do you see lines of construction women lined up whistling and cat-calling at the men passing by? The most you usually see is a restrained glance and even that is usually at the man's face. Women seem to be such pathetically non-sexual beings. Unable to express themselves sexually they turn to intellectual or to total non-expression. The weaker, more insecure and competitive women are kept, the easier it is for men to maintain their roles as kings of the land.

Ten years ago unmarried couples living together would have been unthinkable. Yet now it is becoming more common and acceptable due to birth control. The woman now has no consequences to pay for her acknowledged sexual being. The pregnancy being not only socially unacceptable, but also a burden, another imprisonment that keeps women from becoming potentially what they could be.

All of this continues into other life functions, not only sexual freedom. One important point I would like to make is that these so called "female characteristics" are a myth and that it not only hinders women sexually but imprisons them politically, economically, creatively...on and on. All relate to the position women are forced into because of their dependency on the male for security and love. Think about that dependency next time a decision has to be made. Who usually makes it if a male is involved. Why? If we as women can come to the realization that we are not inferior, then and only then can we change our position as second rate beings. As far as men are concerned all I ask is they accept the real reason behind their own sexual freedom and begin to think about women as people - people who can define their existance by what they do, not by what they were conditioned to be.

'SO YOU'RE GOING TO INVESTIGATE CONGRESS, MR. NADER? DO I MIND? NOT AT ALL—MY RECORD IS AN OPEN BOOK! COME RIGHT IN . . .'

Letters To The Editor

Peace Corps Shows Gains

By Crocker Snow, Jr.

It's been just over 10 years since Congress, at President Kennedy's behest, formally established the Peace Corps "to help foreign countries meet their urgent needs for skilled manpower."

Today, in spite of a general US retreat from various military and economic commitments around the world, in spite of the current Senate shenanigans with the foreign aid bill, and in spite of an orgy of doubting our morals and motives abroad, the Peace Corps is alive and remarkably well.

Applications have risen by almost 40 percent this year and requests by foreign countries for volunteers are on the increase, too. Both are reversing four-year downward curves.

This turnaround, this resilence currently shown by the Peace Corps, suggests the fundamental merits of the concept. It indicates that it is not merely a glamorous gimmick of the '60s and the New Frontier to be discarded on the dustheap of broken American ideals. Yes, Virginia, there is a place in the world for volunteer service by the people of developed countries for the benefit of those that are developing.

That's in the abstract. In the concrete, the modest resurgence of the Peace Corps is a credit to the redirection which has been brought about in the last few years by director Joseph Blatchford.

An energetic, former collegiate All-America tennis player, Blatchford first captured the public imagination as the man who was beaned by partner Spiro Agnew's wayward serve in a celebrated Washington tennis match several years ago.

The 36-year-old Blatchford weathered that indignity and has gone on the breathe new life into the volunteer organization which many people were beginning to view as an idea whose time had come-and gone.

Blatchford's contribution has been to set the Peace Corps in some notable "new directions." Contrary to Sargent Shriver's Corps of the early '60s, featuring phalanxes of Ivy-educated generalists floating the backwaters of the Nile or the Amazon on a postgraduate period abroad, the emphasis today is on experienced professionals fulfilling specific and often technical functions.

The Peace Corps-henceforth to be known as Action for its recent fusion with the domestic version Vista-is experimenting with all manner of volunteer service and servants now. This includes married couples serving as a team, and persons specially prepared through subsidized education at selected colleges (including the University of Massachusetts) for a year in-service domestically after college and then two years abroad.

This is one instance in which the hard figures have responded to the soft theorizing about improving and updating. Where the Peace Corps had been steadily declining in both applications and selected volunteers from a peak of more than 10,000 five years ago, this trend has now been reversed.

Applications jumped from 19,000 during the period September, 1969, to August, 1970, to 26,500 in the same 12-month period just ended. As of last month, there were 8213 volunteers in 56 countries around the world.

No one is doing any real tub-thumping about this state of affairs. For Peace Corps officials are anxious to maintain a low posture around the world, free from all the bravado and braggadocio associated with the venture 10 years ago.

One place where this is especially so is Chile where the Peace Corps maintains a modest and apparently satisfactory operation, and is very adverse to calling attention to it.

Chile is a land where several years ago two Communist senators launched a full-scale congressional investigation of alleged Peace Corps involvement with the CIA in an attempt to get rid of the program altogether. These elements had reason to believe they had an ally in Allende, the first freely-elected Marxist president in the Western Hemisphere.

Just a year ago, in fact at the time of Allende's inauguration, some Washington officials in the State Department were proposing that the Peace Corps be withdrawn from Chile before it was thrown out.

Neither thing happened. Today there are some 62 men and women volunteers in the country, engaged primarily in forestry and fishery works and in the noteworthy fish meal concentrate program. Requests from Chilean government for 22 additional volunteers are now outstanding, and a number of these are now in training, including a winning college basketball coach (from Delaware U.), requested to prep the Chilean national team for the next Pan American games.

The future of the Peace Corp in Chile as elsewhere isn't fully secure. Officials hasten to point out that the welcome mat could be withdrawn at any time.

But the organization is demonstrating more durability there than many an American corporation, such as Anaconda Copper. It's proven itself sufficiently so that it won't sink or swim simply on the future won-lost record of Chile's national basketball team.

(Reprinted from the Boston Globe 11/11)

Editorial Points

Would it be unfair to say that the Athletic Council issue has become a political football?

•••

In the continuing game to name the new library the latest entry is "Lederle's Last Erection".

•••

Rumor has it that the Senate will give the Collegian a new car if the MDC promises to have its drivers take a crash course in driving.

•••

"Myra Breckinridge" is the kind of movie that you go to see only to tear it apart and then find out that the movie has done a good enough job of this on its own.

•••

After the U.S.O. runs out of military bases it should turn to college campuses. After all, haven't you ever looked at your mailbox and wondered, "Does anybody know I'm here?".

Campus Aid And Reform

Optimistic expectations of effective Federal aid to the nation's deficit-ridden colleges and universities may have been premature. Congress is moving toward final action on differing House and Senate versions of a measure designed to authorize $700 million to $1 billion in annual subsidies for higher education. But, even before enactment, planners inside the Administration and the appropriations committees are talking about releasing only a modest fraction of such amounts-a totally inadequate response to a crisis that threatens hundreds of institutions.

No less disturbing, a totally unrelated issue may get in the way of agreement on any education aid plan. This danger arises out of the irrational House decision to tack on to the measure the $1.5-billion bill for Federal aid in public school desegregation, along with its controversial antibusing amendments. The right way to prevent a scuttling of both the higher education bill and the desegregation subsidy is for the conferees to drop the anti busing provisions, which are at best meaningless and at worst possibly unconstitutional.

At this historic juncture, when for the first time general aid to higher education is evolving, patterns of higher education support can be established which may affect the American campus for years to come. Federal dollars will henceforth continuously flow into both public and private institutions. It is therefore important to make sure that the money will not merely shore up but also improve the academic enterprise.

The Senate bill rests on the premise that institutional self-improvement and educational aid to the individual student can best be achieved by rewarding colleges for the number of Federal scholarship students they admit. The House has adopted the Senate formula for one-third of the total subsidy.

But under the House bill, the remaining two-thirds would be given to all colleges, computed on the basis of the total number of students irrespective of Federal scholarship-holders. This across-the board formula is designed to help the many small colleges, as well as some relatively weak larger ones, that would find it difficult to attract federally aided students. However, a disproportionately large amount of across-the-board aid would tend to underwrite the status quo. A formula that encourages competition among colleges in attracting the able poor could have the opposite effect. Furthermore, the National Foundation for Higher Education, established under the Senate bill, could be a valuable device for support of institutional experimentation and reform, giving added assurance that Federal funds would not simply be used to freeze the educational structure in its present mold.

Since the two bills contain the basic ingredients needed to avert disaster, the Senate-House conference has the opportunity to make sure that the final measure-in addition to providing immediate succor to some institutions-will direct its major effort toward the lasting improvement of higher education.

(Reprinted from the NY Times 11/11)

The World Around Us

How Ya Gonna Keep Him Down On The Farm?

By RUSSELL BAKER

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10-More conversations with John Mitchell:

"It's good of you to come by, John, but ———."

"Mr. President, I never want it to be said that John Mitchell was too busy to see the President."

"Yes. Well, that's very decent of you, John, but you've caught me on a very busy day. Can you make it brief, John? I'm already ten minutes late for my chopsticks lesson."

"It's about your travel plans during the election campaign, Mr. President. Several of our state Republican leaders are in touch with my office, and they want commitments for you to come into their states next year."

"Listen to this, John: 'Una tavola per due vicino alla finestra, per piacere.' That's Italian. I just learned that this morning from my Italian records."

"What does it mean, Mr. President?"

"It means, John, 'Give me a table for two, please, near the window.'"

"It would do us a lot of good if you could work it into a campaign speech in New Jersey sometime next year, Mr. President."

"New Jersey, John! I'm not learning Italian so I can campaign in New Jersey. No! I'm learning Italian for my trip to Rome when I hold conversations with the Pope."

"I see, Mr. President. You're going to ask the Pope to give you a table for two near the window, so the two of you can have a tete-a-tete. That will be a great moment for world peace. Now, I think a series of trips into Pennsylvania, Ohio and Illinois ———."

"John! John! How can you talk about Pennsylvania, Ohio and Illinois when Moscow is beckoning. The onion domes of St. Basil's. The Kremlin walls, John. Smerdyakov and old Fyodor Pavlovich Karamazov. Do you remember who Smerdyakov was, John?"

"Was he one of those judges we nominated for the Supreme Court, Mr. President?"

"No, John. Smerdyakov was not one of our Supreme Court appointees. He was a famous character created by the great Russian novelist, Dostoievski, author of ———."

"You're really going to be well-briefed for Moscow, Mr. President. Now, we'd like you to go into Georgia and ———."

"———author of 'Crime and Punishment,' John. And speaking of crime and punishment, I'm getting sick and tired of being mugged right here in the White House, John. We're supposed to have reduced crime in the nation's capital. Why can't I even take an evening stroll to the White House billiard room without being robbed of all my pocket money?"

"We're going to do something about that, Mr. President. In fact, I'm going to start interpreting the White House crime statistics myself, so that it won't seem that you're being mugged here as much as you are. Now, about these trips to Georgia and ———."

"I don't see how I can possibly work Georgia in John, without giving up my trip to Albania."

"You're going to Albania, Mr. President?"

"They've never seen a President in Albania, John. I could become the first President ever to visit Tirana. Do you know what Tirana is, John?"

"Mr. President, I wish you wouldn't test me on subjects I haven't done homework on. Tirana. Let's see. Just guessing, I'd say it's a small, flesh-eating fish by Dostoievski. Now, Mr. President, we really should think about a full campaign tour of California."

"Tirana, John, is the capital of Albania. Situated in the mountain fastnesses ———."

"About the California campaign, Mr. President ———."

"I'll be in California at San Clemente resting between my trip to Nepal and my trip to Lichtenstein, John. Do you have any idea how they make bird's nest soup? I've just come from a cuisine briefing by Henry Kissinger, who tells me ———. Well, never mind that now. Is that all you had in mind, John?"

"We would really like to see you campaign in New York next year, Mr. President."

"Do you think a trip to New York is more important than my visits to Guatemala, Brazil, Togo, the Maldives and Scotland, John?"

"Well, Mr. President, I know this campaign can be won on the far sides of the earth, but it never hurts any candidate to keep his fences mended back home."

"I'll be traveling in America, John. No need to worry about that. I'll be in Florida at Key Biscayne as soon as winter sets in. And of course I'll be flying in and out of the Washington White House to have my clothes pressed as the campaign goes on. Listen, John, stop worrying. You ought to travel more. Get the burdens of government off your mind. Tell you what. Bring Martha over to the White House tonight for a little mah-jongg. And when you come in, watch out for those potted palms in the East Room. There've been three muggings there already this week."

(Reprinted from the NY Times 11/11)

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 13 SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 13

The Five-College Student Coordinating Board

Announces

Five-College Orientation

GUIDED TOURS of each Campus will be provided.

See the other College Campuses

on Saturday, November 13, morning and afternoon

Special buses will run according to the schedule below.

Two buses will circle the five colleges, in opposite directions.

These buses are FREE to all students at the five colleges.

Bus Loading and Stopping Points:

UMASS -- Waiting Station

AMHERST -- Converse

HAMPSHIRE -- Library

MOUNT HOLYOKE -- Main Gate

SMITH -- John M. Greene

BUS SCHEDULE

Smith – UMass – Amherst – Hampshire – Mt. Holyoke – Smith

	Morning			Afternoon
LEAVE SMITH	8:35	9:55	11:15	1:35	2:55	4:15 SMITH
LEAVE UMASS	9:00	10:20	11:40	2:00	3:20	4:40 UMASS
LV AMHERST	9:10	10:30	11:50	2:10	3:30	4:50 AMH
LV HAMPSHIRE	9:20	10:40	12:00	2:20	3:40	5:00 HAMP
LEAVE MHC	9:30	10:50	12:10	2:30	3:50	5:10 MHC
ARRIVE SMITH	9:55	11:15	12:35	2:55	4:15	5:35 SMITH

Mt. Holyoke – Hampshire – Amherst – UMass – Smith – Mt. Holyoke

	Morning			Afternoon
LEAVE MHC	8:50	10:10	11:30	1:50	3:10	4:30 MHC
LV HAMPSHIRE	9:00	10:20	11:40	2:00	3:20	4:40 HAMP
LEAVE AMH	9:10	10:30	11:50	2:10	3:30	4:50 AMH
LV UMASS	9:20	10:40	12:00	2:20	3:40	5:00 UMASS
LV SMITH	9:45	11:05	12:25	2:45	4:05	5:25 SMITH
ARR MHC	10:10	11:30	12:50	3:10	4:30	5:50 MHC

This schedule is in effect ONLY Saturday, November 13.

It is in addition to regular five college bus service.

Additional copies of schedule are available at:

Campus Center Information Desk.

★★ More Information? Call:

Leslie Handler
Hampshire 542-5138

John Theismann
Amherst 256-8250

George Seltzer
502 Field House
UMass 546-6810

Whipping Those Enzymes Up To A Froth

A UMass food science-chemical engineering research team has begun a study aimed at putting enzymes to work in new ways as catalysts in the food industry, in medicine and in the chemical process industry.

The University has been awarded a grant of $44,000 by the National Science Foundation to initiate a research program entitled "Studies of a Catalytic Reactor Using an Immobilized Multi-enzyme System." The program is under the direction of Dr. H.O. Hultin, professor of food science and technology, and Dr. James R. Kittrell and Dr. Robert L. Laurence, both associate professors in the department of chemical engineering.

"Catalysts are widely used in industry to transform materials of low value into consumer goods of higher value. For example, virtually all gasoline, synthetic fibers, and plastics are produced with the aid of catalysts," Dr. Kittrell explained.

Enzymes are protein catalysts used in the life processes of plants and animals, and are highly active and highly selective when compared to catalysts normally encountered in industrial applications. The primary limitation to more general use of enzymes is the high cost of production and usage of enzymic catalysts. Many of the problems associated with process applications have been circumvented through immobilization of the enzyme by attaching it to an inert solid, he said.

The UMass research, sponsored by a new program in the National Science Foundation, Research Applied to National Needs (RANN), is directed towards the understanding of such immobilized enzyme systems and the associated development of catalytic reactor systems in which enzymes serve as catalysts. The research program emcompasses the development of new immobilized enzyme catalysts, fundamental studies of the behavior of these new catalysts, and development of certain enzyme catalysts for producing products of industrial importance. "These developments should allow broader use of enzymic catalysts in the food industry, in medicine, and in the chemical process industry where their activity and specificity can aid in producing consumer goods more economically," Dr. Kittrell said.

5 College Symposium On Paul Valery

The French departments of Amherst, Hampshire, Mount Holyoke, and Smith Colleges, and the University of Massachusetts will cooperate to co-host a symposium on the poet and philosopher, Paul Valery, today and tomorrow.

Two and one-half days of lectures and discussions by four leading specialists, given to commemorate the centennial on Valery's birth, will be held on the Five-College campuses. Jean Hytier, Visiting Professor of French at the University of Massachusetts, will speak at the University, Thursday at 5:30 p.m., on "Le Paradoxe de la Poesie de Velery". Jackson Mathews, Professor of French Literature at Wayne State University, will speak Friday at 10:00 a.m. in the Alumni House at Amherst on "Paul Valery as himself". Albert Sonnenfeld, Professor of French Literature at Princeton University, will speak on "Eros and Paul Valery", Friday at 4:00 p.m. in the New York Room, Mary E. Woolley Hall, Mount Holyoke College.

Saturday, at 10:00 a.m., Daniel Moutote, Professeur a l'University Paul Valery, will speak in the Wright Hall Auditorium, Smith College on "Le Moi Valeryien". The Symposium will close on Saturday afternoon at Hampshire College with a panel discussion headed by Jean Hytier. All activities of the symposium are open to the public.

Albert Sonnenfield, who will speak at Mount Holyoke College on Friday, November 12, at 4:00 p.m. in the New York Room, is Professor of French Literature at Princeton University. His special interest is in French and European Literature since 1850. He is a frequent lecturer at colleges in this country and abroad. His publications include: L'Oeuvre poetique de Tristan Corbiere (1960); Thirty-Six French Poems: An Anthology (1960); Temoins de l'homme: Recits et Nouvelles (1889-1959), with Edward Sullivan (1965); and numerous articles. He is first Master of Princeton Inn College, a coeducational living facility for some 320 undergraduates.

Professor Sonnenfeld graduated a member of Phi Betta Kappa from Oberlin College in 1955, received his M.A. in 1957 and his Ph.D. in 1958, both from Princeton. He has been the recipient of a Princeton University Council for Research in the Humanities Grant, an American Philosophical Society Grant and a Fulbright Senior Lectureship and Travel Grant to England.

Police Log For Oct. 28-Nov. 3

OCT. 28

11:26 P.M. Report of nude male at campus pond.

12:18 P.M. Two under arrest for larceny under $100.

1:32 A.M. Pumpkin thrown through window in Gorman.

3:45 P.M. Report of a vehicle driven in an erratic manner-hit two parked cars.

4:56 P.M. Pedestrian hit by motorcycle.

OCT. 29

2:09 A.M. One under arrest at this time-driving under the influence of narcotic drug-poss. of marijuana.

4:25 A.M. Vehicle at Kennedy loaded with pumpkins and males-all non students requested to leave area.

11:15 A.M. Accident in front of hills.

OCT. 30

1:05 A.M. One under arrest at this time-charged with ten motor vehicle violations and drunkenness.

OCT. 31

Seven arrested for drunkenness between 12:30-2:00 A.M. celebrating Halloween.

10:00 A.M. Hit/run accident at Haigis Mall.

10:10 P.M. Two subjects arrested on warrant for receiving stolen property.

NOV. 1

4:29 P.M. $1,000 worth of equipment stolen from library construction site over weekend.

NOV. 2

3:35 A.M. Report of large number of thefts in Coolidge during past week.

NOV. 3

4:06 A.M. One under arrest-narcotics.

12:40 P.M. Accident on Commonwealth Avenue. Two injured.

UMass students continue to make life interesting for the campus police. This week many thefts and incidents of drunkenness were reported and investigated.

Likens On The Ecosystem, Nutrient Cycles, Forests

Cornell University Professor Gene E. Likens will discuss the "Effect of Forest Manipulations on Nutrient Cycles" at Amherst College on Monday, Nov. 15.

A Joint Biology-Geology Lecture Series event, the discussion will be at 8 p.m. in the Lecture Room, Pratt Museum, on the Amherst campus. It is open to the public without charge.

Professor Likens, an ecosystem biologist by training, will discuss some of the results of an on-going stream-forest ecosystem study at the Hubbard Brook Experimental Forest in New Hampshire.

You'll Drop Your Pants!!

When you see the fantastic selection of CORDUROYS, DENIMS, and KNIT PANTS, Low Slung HIP HUGGERS for Girls, Regular Cut for Guys.

Also: FLANNEL SHIRTS OVERALLS
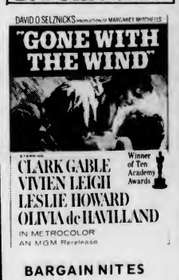
PARKAS & COATS
and a huge selection of KNIT TOPS, SWEATERS & JERSEYS

The Biggest Little Store Around . . . .



WEARHOUSE (Wear-Else?)

CALVIN
TEL 584 2310

Now . . . Ends Tues.

Eves., 7:45 p.m.

Low Price $1.50

BARGAIN NITES
Mon. & Tues. $1.00

Happiness is here . . .

AGNES VARDA'S
LeBonheur
IN COLOR

(Lovers and existentialists will be seated in the center section)

Friday
November 12
7:00
9:00
11:00
S.U.
Ballroom

There will be an emergency meeting of Women's Lib directly after the last showing.

Notices

ATTENTION FOREIGN STUDENTS:
Party sponsored by the New Friends International Hosts, for Saturday, Nov. 13th, cancelled due to unavoidable delay in Newsletter.

ALPHA LAMBA DELTA:
All members invited to come to the initiation for new members on Sunday at 2:30 in the Colonial Lounge, SU. A reception with Phi Eta Sigma will follow ceremony.

BELCHERTOWN VOLUNTEERS:
There will be a bus leaving Whitmore on Saturday at 12:45 p.m. for the State chool. All interested people are welcome.

BUS RIDES:
Five college orientation will take place on Saturday. Busses will run to and from the 5 campuses and campus tours will be given. See bus schedule in today's Collegian.

CHINA NIGHT 1971:
A festival of dance and traditional music. Nov. 21 (Sunday) at 8 p.m. in CC Aud. Tickets available at RSO office, or Dunne Fong, 316 Gorman, 546-6489.

CHRISTIANS:
Bus leaving Sunday for Florence Congregational Church from the Newman Ctr. at 8:35; the bus stop opp. Morrill at 8:37; Hamlin at 8:45 and from Emerson on Univ. Dr. at 8:45.
Family time will be held at 6:30 p.m. in 917 CC. All are cordially invited.

CONCERT:
On Saturday at 8 p.m. in Cance Main Lounge, there will be a party featuring the ONE WAY OUT from Boston. Everyone welcome. Come get your doors blown off!!

EDUCATION MAJORS:
E-40 Methods Potpourri: Meeting to choose courses for the third period of the Potpourri will be held on Monday, Nov. 15 at 4 p.m. in the School of Ed Aud and on Tuesday at 8:30 a.m. in Rm. 128 of the School of Ed.

FENCING CLUB:
The Fencing Club will meet in Rm. 8 of WoPE between 7-9 p.m. tonight. Everyone is welcome.

SWEET CORN THEATRE WORKSHOP:
Sundays at 2 p.m. in CC 174. Get the load out and play with us.

OVER 21 CLUB "BEER BUST":
Tonight at 9 p.m. Come mingle and meet new people.

HILLEL:
Computer dance for Saturday night has been cancelled. Refunds in Hillel office (Rm. 420 SU), Dec. 2, 11-1. Services tonight will be at 7:30 in the Hillel office.
Israeli dancing every Tuesday night at 7 p.m. in Hillel office. Free instructions given.

MULTI MEDIA DOCUMENTARY FILM-"We Went to Armenia." Journey thru historic Armenia as it is today as Soviet Armenia. Nov. 21-8 p.m. in Rm 174-176 CC.

NEWMAN CLUB:
Tonight at 8, the Newman Club is sponsoring a Treasure Hunt with clues, prizes, fun and refreshments. Prizes are good. First clue is at Newman Social Lounge. Bring a friend and flashlight.

RECREATION SOCIETY:
Let's get this one straight; There will be a meeting of the infamous Recreation Society on Thursday, 18th. Watch for a notice Wed. Also watch for Kelley's Blackboard Communication Systems.

TEP:
TEP Open House, Friday at 8 p.m. to ?

LOST:
5 mo. old black and tan doberman-shepard; has red collar. Answers to Gus. 549-0490.
Brown wool sweater. Left in driver's car while hitchhiking Saturday nite. Went to C & C liquors with driver.

FOUND:
1 black case with 3 pens in Herter Hall. Go to CC lost & found to claim.
1 pair wire-rimmed glasses near Lincoon Apts. Call Bill at 545-0195 or 545-0156.

PINNINGS:
Rita Lucier, '71 to Dick Gargagliano, '73, EAE.
Chris LeCam, '73, Lowell Tech. to Warren Cormier, '73, EAE.
Becky Woodward, '73, School of Nursing to Charlie Peters, '73, EAE.
Pat Bash, '73, Crampton to Tom Nally, '72, TEP.
Helaine Winzelberg, '72, IGU to Keith Rosenfield, '72, LCA.

ENGAGEMENTS:
Sherrie Katzen, '72, Patterson to William Alford, '71, Northeastern.
Carolyn Gowdy, '74, Shelburne to John Wheeler, Colrain.
Susan Benoit, New Bedford to Larry Edmundson, '72, EAE.

WMUA

TONIGHT ON 91.1FM:
7:00 p.m. NEWS - 30 minutes with a five minute recap at 7:25.
7:30 p.m. Progressive music (30 minutes).
8:00 p.m. UJAMAA DRUM - the popular black program offering jazz, soul, black poetry, information for the black community, and News compiled by the staff of Black Mass Communications.
11:00 p.m. NEWS - another 30 minute report from WMUA News.
11:30 p.m. - 1:00 a.m. JOHN LORING with music.
1:00 a.m. THE BEST OF SHERLOCK HOLMES - the famous oldtime radio series from England.
1:30 a.m. - 3:00 a.m. JOHN LORING keeps on truckin' with music.

Clothe Thyself
The Dealer
A Clothing Store
56 1/2 Main St.
Fri. til 9

Need something special as a gift?
Try this!!
Silver Plated Bud Vase -
A real special at $7.50
from
BAKER-WINN JEWELERS
"everyone's favorite jeweler"
31 So. Pleasant St., Amherst

FACES OF EARTH
159 North Pleasant St.
Amherst, Mass.
Winter Coats
$7.50 to $25.95
Parkas
$24.95 to $49.95
Open to 10: 00 p.m.

Take Out

-The best fresh steak in the area
-Many kinds of cold cuts
-A fine cheese table set with 8 different varieties and more to come
-Pickled eggs, potato salad, pickled sausage, 10X, polish sausage...

-9 different Grinders (7 cold and 2 hot)
-Cold - Chicken, Ham, Salami, Cold Cut, Roast Beef, Turkey, Pepperone.
-Hot - Hot Sausage and Meatball.
-Beef Stew everyday plus a
-Special stew for every week day
-Special supper menue each day.

Junction of Routes 116 and 47, Sunderland

Black Kettle Deli and Stew House — GRAND OPENING —
Sat., Nov. 13, 1971
Mon.-Thurs. 11 a.m.-11 p.m.
Friday-11 a.m.-1 a.m.
Saturday-9 a.m.-1 a.m.
Sunday-11 a.m.-11 p.m.
Telephone: - 665-4084

To be given away:
10 lb. Lindy's Southern Country Style Ham
Please fill this coupon out now and deposit it in our entry box.
Name _____
Address _____
City or Town _____
Phone _____
Winner will be announced in the COLLEGIAN and the GREENFIELD RECORDER.

Friday At The School Of Ed Marathon

8:00 a.m.-10:00 p.m.
Room 126 Self evolving learning environment. (See Monday.) Klein and Rabel.

9:00 a.m.-10:00 a.m.
Montague House Education for Global Survival: Aggressor and Conflict. W. Johnson.
Room 128 Moral competence and the ANISA Model (American National Institute for Social Advancement) Sue Theroux.
Room 122 Seminar offering information and ideas concerning the need for and potentials of a viable non commercial public access channel on a community cable system. Michael Humphries.

9:00 a.m.-12:30 p.m.
Auditorium Film: To Save Tomorrow. Award winning film series dealing with experimental psychiatric programs. Three films and discussion by film producer. Rudyard Prapst.

9:30 a.m.-12:00 p.m.
Room 226-228 Presentations, panel and small group discussions. Included in the panel will be Dr. Anne Bussis and/or Dr. Edward Chittenden, Education Testing Service, Princeton, New Jersey. Co authors or "Analysis of an Approach to Open Education." Pat Carini, Director of Research and Evaluation, Prospect School, Bennington, Vermont. Mary Lilla Sherburne, Open Education Advisory, Washington, D.C. Susan Thomas, Training, Development and Research Associates, Co-author of "Characteristics of Open Education: Toward an Operational Definition."

10:00 a.m.-11:00 a.m.
Room 122 The tax-supported free school. A meeting of people who desire knowledge or experience in setting up a tax-supported free school. David Cleary.
Room 128 "Introduction to Uses of the Computer in Education" A SMERD Presentation Bill Bower.
Montague House Global Survival: Values and Attitudes. S. Guild.

10:00 a.m.-12:00 p.m.
Mary Lyon Main Lounge Gestalt Awareness Training in the Classroom. "Who am I? What Do I Want? J. Canfield, Co-Director of N.E. Center.
Dwight Main Lounge "Education as a Basis for Revolution in America-A. Model." A presentation/seminar. Dave Magnani.

11:00 a.m.-12:00 p.m.
Room 122 Human Systems Design, Administration, and Implementation. Panel will include representatives from N.Y. School of Psychiatry and N.Y. State Department of Mental Hygiene. Joyce Hinkley.
Room 128 "Eye Movements and Reading" A SMERD presentation. Anthony Comunale.

12:00 a.m.-1:00 p.m.
Room 226-228 The Black Experience in Children's Books. A discussion with Rose H. Agree reviewer of children's books for the Instructor, winner of the Dutton Award, and consultant to three Black Studies Institutes. She will talk about the books themselves, the philosophy behind them, and tell of her work with the basic black booklist she worked on for the ALA committee on minorities in children's books. Rose Agree Room 122 A close look at adult basic education in Massachusetts. Mark Rossman.

12:00 a.m.-2:00 p.m.
Room 128 Lecturer, educator, and authoress Toni Cade will speak on her book The Black Woman. Toni Cade.

1:00 p.m.-2:00 p.m.
Room 122 Lecture with slides and photographs on recent studies of the planets Venus and Mars. William Irvine.

1:00-3:00 p.m.
Dwight Main Lounge Games as a Strategy for Cross Cultural Education. An examination of a variety of games and their use as a tool in non-formal education in a cross cultural education. Steve Guild.
Room 226-228 The Predicament of Mankind Environmental impacts on the future of education. Ken Hoagland and Draper Kauffman.

2:00 p.m.-3:00 p.m.
Room 128 The Arts and Cognitive Learning. Nat French.

2:00 p.m.-4:00 p.m.
Montague House-Sex roles, Education and War. Cross cultural analysis of the connections between agencies such as schools which socialize men and women into roles and the characteristics of those roles which lend or do not lend themselves to extra group aggression and totalitarian infrastructures. David Scondras.
Room 122 Classroom Discipline: Delight or Disaster? Each session will feature an initial presentation of 30-40 minutes followed by discussion. Sy Schwartz.

2:30 p.m.-4:30 p.m.
Gym Movement Workshop: Combining elements of dance, acting and mime. The object of this workshop is to expose individuals to exercises and experiences which can be helpful in many fields, especially education. Another objective is to help people become aware of different ways their bodies move. A participatory experience-no previous experience necessary. Gail Herman, Victoria Hutchinson, Frank Murry.

3:00 p.m.-4:00 p.m.
Room 128 Bio-Documentary Video Tapes: An exploration of the use of video tape in cross cultural studies. Participants will view and discuss a number of video tapes. Al Hannans.
Audit Film: Harvest of Shame Sponsored by the Committee to Combat Racism School of Education.

3:00 p.m.-5:00 p.m.
Room 21 "An Introduction to Computers and Computer Programming." Four video tapes (about 20 minutes each) on what a computer is, how a computer works, what a programming language is, how to program (in APL), with sample programs. (Prepared at Hampshire College) Profs. Jack LeTourneau, H.A. Peelle, Larry Wolfe
Children's Library "Computer Games" (part of a series on Computer Uses in Education) Hands-on game-playing with an interactive computer. Educational Games include NIM, HANGMAN, 5 in a Row, and THE GAME OF LIFE. H.A. Peelle.
Cafeteria Increasing Task Group Effectiveness. Dave Britton.

4:00 p.m.-5:00 p.m.
Dwight Main Lounge Seminar on Crime and Delinquency. Larry Dye.
Room 128 "Comprehensive Achievement Monitoring: A Methodology for Classroom Evaluation." A SMERD presentation. John Newby.
Room 122 Geriatrics, gereryology. Special emphasis on nursing home life. Mrs. Thenese Hinkell, Nursing Supervisor.

Room To Move
Drop-In Center
5-0400, 5-0401

Love In Steel

Because the Black artist works and creates for the benefit of the community, this does not rule out opportunities for individual expression. With this idea in mind Ed Love, presently on the faculty at Howard University (Washington, D.C.) creates his unique expression out of steel. His reactions to external stimuli in accordance with his community experience is well viewed.

The Department of Afro-American Studies invites and encourages attendance at a reception opening of Love's contributions in the sculpture and drawing medium. The opening will be held in the "New Africa House Art Gallery" (Mills House Black Cultural Center) at 5:00 P.M. today.

Saturday, Love will present a Sound and Light Show and Poetry Session. This will take place in the Gallery also. This show will take the direction of a now structural experience. It shows us that any instrument may be used in art expression. In essence, the true value of an art form depends on the people and their reactions to their own values.

TEP
Open House Tonight
8 to ?
418 N. Pleasant St., Amherst

coiffures continental
Where Adam, John, Silvio, and Paul will go to your head. If it has anything to do with hair. They can do it- perfectly. . . For both men and women.
26 Main St., Amherst
253-9293 & 253-9271
Mon. - Fri., 9 to 7:30
Sat 9 to 5

THE BLOCK CHOPPING

Swap Fee Due

The SWAP Committee reminds all of its participants that fees must be paid by today, Friday, November 12. Also, there will be a SWAP Committee Meeting on Sunday, November 14 in the Campus Center at 5:30 PM. (just before the Pre-SWAP introductory meeting at 7:30 PM).

MDC CLASSIFIED

AUTOS FOR SALE

1965 Pontiac, excellent condition, $485. Also 1963 Dodge runs very well, $270. Call 1-538-8577 eves. or 549-6360. tf11-12

68 Firebird, exc. con., extras bo over 1050 sacrifice, moving to Europe. Jaynl weekdays 9-1, 545-0290 after 6, 867-3157 or 967-4074. tf11-12

63 Ply. Fury, gd. eng. & trs., needs new minor reps. Only 58000 mi. Call Stan 549-6341, cheap. tf11-17

1971 Ford Econoline, saddle & tan finished interior, 5 passenger, positraction, hd. 3/4 ton, $2950. 586-3661 day, 369-9652 nights - Sunday. tf11-12

70 VW green, sunroof, radio, good cond. Call 549-6147. tf11-12

61 Chevy, 8 cyl. auto., exc. mech. cond., new front end, body needs work, 2 new tires, $50 or best offer. 549-6026. After 6 p.m. tf11-12

1971 blue Chevy Vega hatchback coupe auto trans., 7 good tires incl. snow tires, excellent cond. Call 549-6730 after 5 p.m. tf11-16

Mustang '65, worth more than $800 must sell, will take best and fastest offer. Call 1-533-3179 after 5 p.m. tf11-16

1966 red Porsche 912, new tires, new battery, good mechanical condition. Best offer. tf11-17

MOTORCYCLES FOR SALE

Triumph 650 Chopper Crome 65 Bonn. Lew 256-6408. tf-11-12

Honda 350 cl, 1970, ex. cond. Call 253-5068 after 5 p.m. tf11-17

FOR SALE

Canon fl/ql 50 mm 1.4 lense, 200mm 4.5 lense, lectronic lite tripod filters extenders many more accessories. Call Paul 546-7118. tf11-12

Michelin X tires (2) almost like new $40. 6-4538. tf11-12

Hockey equipment gloves, knee-pads, complete outfit, $30.00. 6-4538. tf11-12

16mm filmmaking outfit bolex rex-5 uher synch-sound, lights, editing equipment, $2300. All or separate lots. 6-4538. tf11-12

Chrome slotted wheels (4) 14 x 6", 5-lugfit all GM and others $50. 6-4538. tf11-12

Dunelt 3 speed mens English bike. Good cond. 546-6257 nites. tf11-12

Telescope edmonion 6" reflector orig. $290 asking $200 and realistic tape deck sound on sound asking $100. 545-2418 Bill rm. 128. tf11-16

Head masters 205cm marker bindings originally $210 now $140. Call Peter Zandan in 417 Greenough 545-2639 tf11-17

Head GS skis, 205 cm with tyrolia bindings $50 or best offer-also bass amplifier 30 watts, $30 or best offer. Call Bob 549-1180. tf11-12

Portable stereo record player, good condition $15. Call Judy 546-5128. tf11-15

Teisclo Del Ray bass guitar w/case $50 miracord turn table-changer w/shure cartridge $50. Call Bob at 546-5290. tf11-12

Guitars Amps, drums, acc. at reasonable prices. The Guitar Workshop, 88 Main St., North. 586-1706. tf11-30

WANTED

Photographer wants open-minded female models. Good pay. No exp. required. Write: Rob, PO Box 272, Chicopee, Mass. 01014. tf11-18

Photographer wants open-minded female models. Good pay. No experience needed. Write: Rob, P.O. Box #272, Chicopee, Mass. 01014. tf11-12

Amplifier preferably small fender (preche) can't go over $250. Call Larry, 546-7226, 720 Webster. tf11-16

5 girls need place to live next semester in Amherst area. Please call 546-7500 or 546-7494. tf11-12

FOR RENT

For rent 3 room apt. close to school, good for couple, $135/mo., inclu. heat, hot water. Call Nancy Thomas evenings 665-3258 avail. now. tf11-15

Furnished room, 5 1/2 mi. UMass. Kitchen priv. available immediately. Call 586-0030. tf11-16

4-bedroom house now available for rent. Call 6:30 - 7:30 p.m. Skibiski Real Estate 584-3128. tf11-12

PERSONAL

Happy birthday to two great Beta Phis - Lori and Buddy !! Love Marsha. 11-12

Ken darling, this has been the greatest year of my life. Thanx for all that you've given me; Happy Nov. 12, Je t'aime forever Susie. 11-12

Sugarlips and Marcypoo - in 50 years you'll be dead. Heh-heh-heh. Love, us guys. 11-12

Temptation Eyes: You look and then you look away. It makes me sadder day be day. Shs guy. 11-12

Very real woman would like to meet single man (30-40) who desires mature human contact. Write PO Box 190, Amherst. tf11-17

Marjory: used to watch you play tennis where have you been? See you at the computer! I hope. 11-12

Dance Fri., Nov. 12, Berkshire Clubroom. Rock group Patch. 8:30 - 12:30, 50¢, beer served. 11-12

Happy Anni 143 O. 11-12

You're warm, warmer, now you're hot in an authentic air force parka: Mens $37.50, boys & girls $34.50 Call Al at 549-0814-275 Puffton Vill. tf11-19

Male 24 seeks rins. with mature female, 21-35 without hang-up on marriage. 549-6416. After 8. tf11-12

Illilel sponsors: All Campus, Computer Dance, Sat., Nov. 13, pickup forms in office SU 2nd floor. tf11-12

SERVICES

I'll fix your smokey car, brakes etc. Remember winter is coming. Call Wendell, 256-8638. 11-2-8-15

ROOMMATES WANTED

Roommate wanted to share one bedroom modern Riverglade Apart., incl. util., $87.50/mo., 5 min. from campus. Call 253-9423 avail. immed. tf11-12

Female grad student wanted to share a 3 bedroom apt. in 205 Puffton. Call 549-6358. tf11-12

To share large 2 bedroom apt. in Northampton, avail. immediately, approx. $70 inc. util. Male grad. pref., but not necessary. 586-3650 aft. 5. tf11-15

MOVIE

DENNIS HOPPER & PETER FONDA IN "THE TRIP" IN COLOR. (THE FILM BEFORE "EASY RIDER") FRI., NOV. 12, MAHAR AUD. SCREENINGS 7, 9, 11 P.M. tf11-12

"Barefoot In The Park" starring Robert Redford and Jane Fonda Sat., Nov. 13, S.U. Ballroom, 7 & 9 p.m., 50¢. 11-12

LOST

Lost black wallet foreign driv. license, foreign ID's, UMass ID & $$ If found call Raoul 546-1015. Return of money would be welcome. tf11-12

Diamond engagement ring, gold setting. Sat. at the stadium. If found call Sheila 256-6844. Reward. tf11-15

RIDE WANTED

Ride to No. Carolina prefer Chapel Hill and or return during Thanksgiving period. Can pay expenses. Call Joan 253-3003. tf11-17

Help! Stranded commuter needs ride Spfld., UMass. for 8 a.m., class Tuth. Also UM-Spfld., Tu. 5:30 p.m., can help expenses! 734-2215 after 8 p.m. tf11-16

Sprfield, to UM a.m. UM, to Sprfield, p.m. Call 788-6174 before 9 p.m. ask for Scott after 10 p.m. 733-6174 one way beats none. tf11-12

ENTERTAINMENT

Rock group Phoenix for your party or dance, old standard music at reasonable rates, make res. for Xmas parties now. Call Pete 549-6028. tf11-17

Wine and cheese party McGovern for president. Marshmallow toast this Sunday, Nov. 14, 4 - 7 p.m. 41 Phillips Amh. $2, campaign donation. 11-12

STUDENTS BOOK MATCHING

Register your book in S.U. Rm. 318. Every student with your course next semester will need your books save $ money, sell direct. tf-aem.

SALE

Furniture, baby need appliances, give aways, and gifts. Nov. 12, 6-9 Nov. 13, 9-3, 102 Van Meter Drive, rain or shine 11-12

EMPLOYMENT

International jobs-Europe, S. America, Asia, Australia, USA. Openings in all fields-soc., sci., bus., sci., engineering, ed., etc. Alaska const. & pipeline work. Earnings to $500 weekly. Summer or permanent. Paid expenses, bonuses, travel, info. only $3, money back guarantee. International Employment, Box 721-M514, Peabody, Mass. 01960. 11-12

TYPING

Typing-theses, dissertations, etc. Fast, accurate, experienced. Have Math and Chem. symbols. Call 253-3601. tf12-21

Term papers typed at reasonable rate, fast! Please call Nancy at 6-5266 before 5 p.m. tf11-12

WORD WORKSHOP

Silkscreen Workshop, Nov. 13 & 14. Learn how to silkscreen. All materials supplied, $15. Call 549-3631. tf11-12

TO SUBLET

Apt. to sub let, available Dec. 1, 1 bdrm Cliffside $145. All utilities. Call 665-3440 after 4:00 p.m. tf11-12

TRAVEL

Crimson Travel offers low cost Spring vacation trips to Bermuda and Nassau. For more info. call Rich Margil, 412 Dwight, 545-0790. tf11-12

GIVE AWAY

Free German shorthair Pointer. Good with kids. Right age for training. Call 549-6416. tf11-12

EDITING

Want your papers and reports to say what you mean? I'll edit any paper or rough draft so that its meaning is clear. Low rates, 665-4035. tf11-12

PSYCH EXPERIMENT

Dating or attached couples interested in $3.00 for an hour's work? Call Richard between 9 and 10 p.m. on Nov. 11th or 12th at 6-4543. tf11-12

REWARD

Wedding ring lost somewhere in the Amherst area. Wide gold band with initials KNE to JNE 6/7/70. Please call 549-3016 or 549-1311. tf11-15

"That's The First Objective Of Our Programs"

By MARTY KELLEY

If a cynical prognosticator were to walk up to coach Dick MacPherson way back when and suggest a Yankee Conference title game for Durham's November frost, "Mac" would probably have blinked, smiled a bit and asked the forecaster to kindly check his New England map.

But it's all on the line tomorrow as the Redmen visit the Wildcats in without a doubt the most important contest of the season. For UMass, 3-3-1 and in the midst of a "turned around" season, a conference championship is at stake.

"That's the first objective of our program", noted MacPherson. "Regardless of who we play outside the conference, we've got to win the title first." Although a shot at the crown looked awful bleak at the season's advent, a win or tie at Durham will give coach MacPherson a share of the beanpot in his baptismal year. A Rhode Island victory over UConn (tied with UMass at 2-1-1) will give UMass the championship.

You might say that the Redmen will have the momentum going into the fray. The sensational running of Paul Metallo, the timely upset of the Cross, back to back weekend offensive explosions and the simply devastating rise to form by the offensive line should help to provide the needed impetus at Durham.

It doesn't really matter with who or where the conference championship is being staged. "We didn't think it would boil down to this," explained three year starting cornerback Billy Bush. "We may have gotten off to a slow start, but this one is for the championship and we'll be ready."

Although the Greenfield native would like to perform at Alumni Stadium's stage, the foreign turf won't make a difference. "Home or away the crowd really won't make that much difference. But I'm sure there will be plenty of UMass supporters there," adds Bush.

The weather will definitely be a factor in the championship tilt. The regular rawness of New Hampshire in November should stiffen one particular shoulder. "I know my shoulder will be abnormally stiff, but what can you do," sighed wounded quarterback Piel Pennington. About the ballgame the rookie from New Canaan, Conn. was honest about a few pre-game jitters but promised they'll be gone by game time.

An interesting matchup in the game will find quarterback Bob Hopkins firing bullets to flanker Bob O'Neil amid a little interference from safety Jack O'Neil. The brothers will be on different sides of the line tomorrow as Jack, the senior free safety, will be trying to limit the effectiveness of Bob, a junior flanker from Jim Root's Wildcats.

"I'd love to get him alone out there," quipped O'Neil. "On the field he's just another football player." But the confrontation between the two has embellished interesting supper conversation with the O'Neil clan, especially at Thanksgiving when the brothers get reunited for the first time in the semester outside of the gridiron.

At UHN it's Father's Day and the elder O'Neil doesn't really know to which team the parental ties will lie. "Dad's going to be on the bench because it's Dad's Day. But my mother will sit wherever she can get a good seat. But regardless I think they'll be leaning towards us because we have a shot at the title."

In last Saturday's 28-28 surprise tie against Springfield, quarterback Hopkins didn't play. Without his generalship, New Hampshire is strictly a running team. Hopkin's status is rather doubtful but O'Neil ushers the sentiment of the team as he explains why he hopes Hopkins will be in the starting lineup.

"I don't want an qualms about the championship," commented O'Neil. "We want to play the best so you can say the better team won." You can bet the rest of the squad feels the same way including the 18 seniors who play their final conference game.

But for this year's edition of Redman football, an estended amount of intestinal fortitude and the leadership of coach "Mac" and the staff have combined to keep the UMass eleven in rejuvinated stride, so much so, that the Bean Pot will be back on its well-torn path back to the Amherst campus late Saturday afternoon.

Cliche's Are In

Wm. Saroyan's

the CAVE DWELLERS

Bartlett Aud.

8:30 p.m.
Nov. 11-13 18-20

Reserved Seating
Call
545-2579

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

By SYDNEY OMARR

On positive level, Aries can lead. On negative side, members of this zodiacal sign tend to dominate. Leo can entertain, but on negative level these natives can substitute showmanship for actual knowledge. Gemini can be articulate, but on negative side these persons can talk much about nothing. Capricorn can be patient but also can wait too long, permitting opportunity to fly away.

*****

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Stick to basic issues. You can accomplish chores, get house in order. Keep diet, health resolutions. Attend to details. Correct false impression affecting family member. Profit indicated if thorough.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Give full play to creative urges. Don't hold back. Now is time to imprint your own style. Be ready for change, travel, variety. Open lines of communication. Pisces plays prominent role.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Find out the why of events. Refuse to be satisfied with superficial explanations. Get down to basics. There is paucity of information about values, costs, inventory. Do added research.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Where efforts were blocked, co-operation now is received. Journey that had been cancelled can be put back on schedule. Relations with neighbors, close relatives improve. Harmony replaces discontent.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Money situation improves. What has been held back is released. Additional funds could become available. Take initiative. Stress originality, independence. Put forth views in confident, sure manner.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Study Leo message. Those who argued now act in accord. You become beneficiary. Lunar cycle favors efforts. Move ahead. Welcome new starts in new directions. Take lead. Create own style.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You find yourself actively concerned with hospital, institution, special group or organization. Fine for theatrical work aimed at raising funds for charity. Reach beyond imagined limitations.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Accent on fulfillment of desires. What appears a restriction may be a protective measure. Realize this don't jump to conclusions. A friend is shielding you. You have more going for you than can be guessed.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Spotlight on advancement, career, relating abilities to ambitions. Some changes are due. Gemini, Virgo individuals may be involved. You could receive message which sends pride, prestige soaring.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Concern with philosophical, religious concepts tends to dominate. Gain co-operation of family. You need a more solid base. Time for mere procrastination is finished. Get program going.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): What was obscured can now be revealed to your benefit. Profit possible, pounce on investment opportunity. Male partner takes initiative. Maintain dignity, but be flexible. Pisces is in picture.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Co-operate with Aquarius individual. Emphasis is on public reaction to your efforts. You make gains by utilizing past experience. Caution now is better part of valor. Know this act accordingly.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you have fine sense of humor; you can be life of any party. But those who really know you understand that your feelings run deep. In actuality, you can feel alone in a crowd. But recent events have given you greater self-understanding. If single, marriage is on horizon.

Copyright 1971, Gen Fea Corp

CROSSWORD PUZZLE

Across

1 Church bench
4 European herring
9 Parcel of land
12 Macaw
13 Approaches
14 Fuss
15 Season of year
17 Defaced
19 Abounds
21 Unit of Portuguese currency
22 I ran to 24 Exclamation
26 Strokes
29 Conducted
30 Vigorous
32 Cooled lava
33 Reverence
34 Female (colloq.)
35 A continent (abbr.)
36 Claimant to a throne
39 Through
40 Let it stand
41 Metal
42 Flower
43 Uncooked
45 Metal
47 Enthusiasm
50 Native American
53 Native metal
54 Demon
56 Prefix: three
57 Conjunction
58 Small stoves
59 Slippery fish

DOWN

1 Animal's foot
2 Silkworm
3 Needed
4 Disk
5 Lasting
6 Sun god
7 Limb
8 Former Russian ruler
9 Lasso
10 Poem
11 Bushy clump
16 Spread for drying
18 Repulse
20 Pronoun
22 Strikes
23 Vital organ
25 Country of South America
27 Fork prongs
28 Frighten
30 Female sheep
31 Long, slender fish
33 Essence
37 Weirder
38 Underworld god
39 Courteous
42 Communist
44 Spruce
46 Finishes
47 Offspring
48 In favor of
49 Small bird
51 Exist
52 Nothing
55 Printer's measure

Answer to Yesterday's Puzzle

A	D	S		B	R	I	N	E		T A G
S	O	T		E	I	D	E	R		A R A
P	R	O	W	L	S		W	I	S	H E S
			R	I	T	E	S		S A I
G	L	E	E		S	U	N	P	T	A H
A	I	S	L	E		R	I	P		I D A
I	N		D	A	M		P	A	S	E R
L	E	D		P	A	P		I	S	L E
Y	S	E	R		D	I	D	T	E	E S
		P	E	S		N	O	T	E	S
S	T	A	P	L	E		N	E	S	T L E
E	A	R		A	R	I	E	S		S E L
A	N	T		W	A	T	E	R		T I A M

27

Distr. by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.

LAST CALL FOR COMMUTER ASSEMBLY NOMINATION PAPERS DUE BY 5 P.M. TODAY

Booters Slump In Stretch Run Spells Season

By STEVE FERBER

Ah, the psych of sport. That's a course taught here at UMass and the next time the professor needs an example of how a team can go from riches to ruins as a result of just one game, the UMass soccer team will amply fit the bill.

What started out to be the strongest soccer season in the history of Redmen booters, ended up as an above average season, but a sore disappointment for all those who have followed Redmen soccer this year, and last. At the mid-way point the Redmen held a 5-0-1 mark, were just two points away from the fourth ranked team in New England, while only nine away from second place Wesleyan.

To their credit had been an unreal total of five shutout games, recorded by junior John Kiah. In that span the Redmen had outscored their opposition by an 18-2 goal margin, and in that sixth game, the very last one spelling win, UMass thrashed Coast Guard 6-2, in what Coach Berryman called, "the best game of all, a game in which we put everything together, with out halfbacks swinging up and back, and doing the job of linking better than they had all season."

What happened was Tufts. Tufts was ranked 9th in New England, yet they were undefeated and untied and UMass knew that they were trouble. Most spectators on the afternoon of the 23rd of last month, saw a Redmen team outplay the visitors, but come away on the short end of a 2-1 score. And from there it was forgetitsville.

Halfbacks were no longer linking successfully, and in the big Yankee Conference battle against Vermont, UMass lost the services of both co-captains Lindo Alves and Augie Calheno, both having been thrown out of the game. The problems also were linked to the loss of center fullback Paul Slack. Slack was injured in the first minutes of the Tufts game, and saw only sparring action in one more game.

Thus Slack was the UMass center fullback for the undefeated first half of the season, and did not play in any of the Redmen losses. How much the loss of Slack meant can only be empirically judged, but on the basis of these rather glaring statistics, his loss meant quite a bit.

There were problems of psychology, as most of the Redmen players were shooting towards that tournament, which includes four teams from New England. The loss to Tufts hurt tremendously those chances, but by no means did it ruin them. The tie to Worcester Poly Institute did and the loss to Vermont; and the tie with Springfield; and the season ending loss to New Hampshire.

The last four games were dreadful, as a poor field at Worcester, some ejected co-captains at Vermont, and plain lack of hustle and aggressiveness at both Springfield and New Hampshire put the once fourth ranked UMass booters out of the top 10 in New England.

Individually there was Alves on the line, Bobby Grom at the defensive helm, and Kiah in the goal who shined brilliantly and consistently for UMass. Most often these three were cited by the opposing coaches for excellent contributions, game after game, as each did their job well in their respective positions.

Alves up front led all scorers with 16 points, on 10 goals and 6 assists, and considering that UMass scored only 24 goals all season long (while yielding 12) Alves' contribution to 16 of those scores shows how important he really was.

And while Alves was handling the ball on the front lines, Grom was feeding it to him from the defense. Game after game Grom put in an excellent effort, as he alone could be cited as having played a good game against the Wildcats of New Hampshire in the season finale last Saturday. At left fullback, the play of Grom forced many opponenets to work the other side, and this was never more obvious than against UNH.

Kiah in goal had two outstanding games, one a shutout, the other a two goal effort, but few would say that on his two-goal effort was less than impressive. On the B.U. astroturf Kiah turned away numerous shots, and of all his saves through the season, his driving grab of a B.U.'s forwards blast is most often remembered.

Through the season Coach Berryman worked with a nucleus of 16 men, often shuffling in and out halfbacks and lineman. And among these 16, all had exceptionally bright moments throughout the season. Probably one of the most heartening things was the play of freshmen Tom Coburn, who played well after sustaining an early season injury to become the second leading scorer on the team.

The five game season ending skein which produced a whopping total of 6 goals offensively, cost the Redmen not only a tourney berth but a YanCon crown, one they had owned for the first time last year. Their winning season seems ready forgotten, for expectations were high, and were somehow never reached. Perhaps that loss to Tufts didn't really "psych-out" the booters as much as it might have seemed, but chances are that the professor in psych of sport will continue to use that example until UMass athletics provide him with a better one.

Marty Evans: "Football Has Been My Life"

By MARK VOGLER

For back-up Redman quarterback Marty Evans and his football oriented family, life has been a constant migration from one city to the next. And while his present place of residence (Medfield, Mass.) can only be termed temporary, his stay at UMass has been more than welcome.

His father Dick has made coaching a livelihood. In 20 years of the profession he has been places. Currently an assistant mentor for the New England Patriots, he also served in the Packer, Redskin, Brown, and Eagle organizations. His travels in the collegiate ranks have taken him to such notable schools as Notre Dame, Santa Barbara, and Nevada.

Consequently, anywhere Mr. Evans finds employment, his family must follow. All this moving around certainly can become inconvenient, but it has yet to get to quarterback Evans, a senior veteran.

He says it's great. "I like it a lot. I see a lot of country. If I had to do it all over again I would. I know it's hectic moving all over and not being able to call anyplace home. But I prefer it and wouldn't have it any other way."

Besides being a coach, Evans' pop was also a professional player, putting in a few years with the Packers and later the old Chicago Cardinals. He spent his college years playing end for Iowa University. It was there that he formed a friendship with Nile Kinick, an All-American who was killed in World War II.

Football evidently runs in the Evans household. Marty's brother Nile, who was named after Kinick, was a tight end for Syracuse. Being so geared toward the gridiron, it seems likely that Mr. Evans had a big influence on his boys--that the game of football was something he was gung-ho on their playing.

"Not so, declares Evans, "my dad worked under the theory that if you were not 100% behind a sport, you weren't going to do well at it. He didn't force us to compete in sports and he left the coaching up to our own individual coaches.

"From my home life, I guess football has been my life. Speaking about the game in general, it's been the greatest thing in the world. Because of the pople you meet and how close you can get your coaches and teammates off and on the field. It's been simply great for me."

MARTY EVANS-Evans received his first starting nod in a varsity game this year against Rhode Island.

Evans spent his schoolboy days in Philadelphia at Lower Merion High. He played baseball and quarterbacked the school's football team.

His brother Nile, who was a year ahead of Marty, was eligible for pass receptions much of the time--since both were starters. But only once was there an attempt of a brother-brother aerial combination. And despite the wrong pass pattern being run, the completion was made.

Before coming to UMass, Evans attended Bordentown Military Institute in Trenton, New Jersey, for a year. He called the signals for the football club there, too.

As a freshman at the university he split the quarterbacking chores with Bill Bush under Coach Dave Kelly's direction. Since that time he has seen little front line action. But with Piel Pennington out of the line-up for the Rhody game, Evans got the starting nod for the first time in his varsity collegiate career.

Asked how he felt about putting in much of his time on the bench while sophomore Pennington was directing the offensive attack, Evans replied: "Naturally anybody who plays a sport wants to be on the first string. I'd much rather be out there on the field than watch from the sidelines. I think I make my feelings obvious about this.

"Piel, though, does a great job. And when you win like we won last weekend, it's certainly degrading when you don't get a piece of the action. Winning's the name of the game. And if Piel does the job, I certainly don't have any qualms."

Coach Dick MacPherson lables Evans "a real fine quarterback from ball handling to footwork. He is exceptionally knowledgeable about the game. But he is now a senior who hasn't played too much, so he doesn't have the confidence he should have with his ability. Excellent team man, just a very fine gentleman."

McDonald's is coming to Hadley!
GRAND OPENING TUESDAY
McDonald's
377 RUSSELL STREET

SING & DRINK WITH THE DUSTMEN
FAMOUS RECORDING IRISH FOLK SINGING TROUPE at The CHEQUERS
TONITE 9:30 til close

"COME TO WHERE THE ACTION IS"
DIALTONE
Route 5 West Hatfield
Featuring the famous Recording Group
The Vandell's
Every nite
9 p.m.-1 a.m.
Ladies' Nite Sun.-Thurs. Drinks 1/2 Price

DRUMMER BOY'S
Special Offer
Genuine Chinese Food
道地中國菜
Business Hours: Wed., Thurs., Fri., lunch: 12 noon to 1:30 p.m.
Evenings: 5 p.m. to 8 p.m. Sat. & Sun. 11 a.m. to 9 a.m.
For take out orders, phone 253-2116

THE ski touring specialists
MONTCO
• X-C SKIS
• SKI PARKAS
• DOWN CLOTHING
from the people who give a damn
CLIMBERS & CAMPERS 510 MAIN ST. SPRINGFIELD 736-7938

Beanpot Up For Grabs At UNH

By DAN KAMAL

"It will accomplish a pre-season objective. A win will bring the Beanpot (symbol of Yankee Conference supremacy) back to UMass where it belongs."

That was the way Dick MacPherson summed up his feelings on the UMass-University of New Hampshire championshipgame at Durham tomorrow at 1 p.m.

It is obvious to coaches, players, and fans alike that this Redman team is not the same one that just a few weeks ago absorbed a crushing defeat at the hands of the University of Rhode Island. To those who follow the team, it is apparent that it has finally started to jell. The "jelling" comes none too soon.

MacPherson did a bit of reflecting on the early season problems: "We did not play well. It was a great concern to the players and the coaches." He added, "However, we hung in there together. We didn't give up on the players, and they didn't give up on us. We conquered adversity; now the question is–can we cope with success?"

The head coach cited the "Dartmouth psyche" as the primary factor in the early season stall. "I oversold the Dartmouth game, and we got bombed. I had to pull the players out of it--it took quite a while."

"Things started to change after the Connecticut game; since then we've been putting it together. It's a much better team now than the one that played Cornell to a tie back in early September. The players like what's going on now. They believe in themselves-it makes the team 100% better."

MacPherson had a lot of praise for New Hampshire. "It's a great credit to Jim Root (UNH coach) and his team. We did not expect that New Hampshire would be the team to beat for the championship."

New Hampshire is having an injury problem at the vital quarterback position. It is questionable whether Bob Hopkins will be able to play. If not, his back-up man will be Bill McAndrew.

According to MacPherson, "If McAndrew is at quarterback then we must stop the running attack; if Hopkins starts, who knows?"

When asked about the surprising UNH tie with an inferior Springfield team, Mac said, "It is very obvious that they were not ready for Springfield. They finally woke up in the third quarter when they were way behind and came back to tie the game."

MacPherson labeled the UNH defense as "sound". However, he spoke more highly of the offense equating it with the Dartmouth offense. He cited specifically running backs Dennis Coady a sophomore from Scituate who is "real fast and is coming on like a gangbuster"; John Richard from Saugus; and Ken Roberson. He also mentioned end Bill Degan from Quincy "who really goes after the ball"; and quarterback Hopkins.

As far as the physical condition of UMass going into this crucial contest, Timmy Edwards (broken finger), Ron Marino (pulled hamstring), Tom Mullen (knee injury), and Paul Metallo (bruised ribs) are all hurting but are expected to play.

It's been a long road back for the Redmen and the new coaching staff. A win tomorrow will make the return trip very nearly complete.

INTERCEPTION!-Jack O'Neil, (45) turned ball carrier aiter intercepting a Holy Cross pass in the 38-27 Redmen victory. Bill DeFlavio, (76) and Dennis Collins, (43) turned blockers and lead the way for a big runback. (MDC photo by Barbara Brecher)

Daily Collegian

SPORTS

Frosh Gridders Home Today In Season Finale

By BILL BALLOU

The UMass frosh, winners of their last two games, finish their season this afternoon at 1:30 when they host the Freshmen from New Hampshire. A win here would cap off a great season for Coach Billy Maxwell's Redmen, putting their record at four wins against one defeat. New Hampshire, on the other hand, needs this one to even their record at 3-3.

The Redmen started the season strongly, beating Boston University 32-19, but faltered against Boston College at home, losing 13-7. The next two games saw them come back strong against Rhode Island and Connecticut, and Dartmouth in succession. This leaves them at 2-3 and all they can salvage out of this game is a .500 season and "the thrill of victory."

The Wildcat attack generally has been the old infantry game of slogging through the mud and grit for yards, in short a ground game. They have the horses to do it in the persons of John Sexton and Ed Whalen. Sexton has averaged five yards a carry thus far this season, and Whalen has been averaging over 100 yards per game on the ground. If they have to go to the air, quarterback Kevin Bacher has shown he can do the job, but very few quarterbacks have had much success against the UMass pass defense.

The Redmen come into this one in good shape, physically speaking, with the only casualty from UConn being guard Bob Venezia, who stretched some ligaments in his knee and will be out for just a short time. Ed Wagner is back and both he and Paul Lovejoy will see action in the defensive line.

Other than that the Redmen will be the same team that shutout Connecticut the week before. The frosh have allowed fewer points each week as the season progressed, but it is simply impossible to improve on a shutout. It will be interestng to see just how the defense performs. Game time is 1:30 at Alumni Field.

Erving Makes N.Y. Debut

By EARLE BARROLL

It seems like old times again to sit in back of a typewriter and hit the keys with that nostalgic twinge of getting ready to see an old facr that's been missing for what seems eternity.

But that's just the case at this moment...and the old friend is no stranger to the UMass sports scene. His name, Julius Erving, and he'll be making his New York debut tonight at the Island Gardens in Hempstead, Long Island, when the Virginia Squires battle the New York Nets.

The rise of Julius to a status of top-dog rookie in either league has been the story of the basketball season. His performances for the Squires have overshadowed such celebrated rookies as Artis Gilmore, Johnny Neumann, Jim McDaniels and George McGinnis to name a few.

He has lead the Squires to a tie for the lead in the Eastern Division of the ABA with Kentucky, both with 10-4 slates. Going into tonight's game Julius is averaging 23.1 points and 13.6 rebounds a game while playing just over 40 minutes per contest.

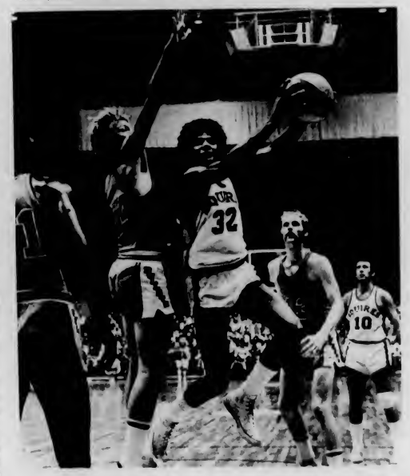
In a telephone conversation yesterday with Steve Harriman, publicity director for the Squires, he said the fans were crazy over Julie and the crowds have been larger than ever.

He also said that his office has been glooded with phone calls everyday about Julius from all over the country and that the New York press is going all out to make tonight's game a big event for New York basketball.

What hasbeen the biggest single effort this season for the big guy? Harriman cited the first exhibition game of the season when Virginia played Kentucky.

"Everyone came to see 7'2 Artis Gilmore play, but Julius stole the show with 30 points and 13 rebounds. Our game plan was to go right at Gilmore and it seemed that Erving was the guy that was doing it...he jumped right over Gilmore on a number of occasions."

And just to show this was no fluke Julius came back the next week and smoke Gilmore again with 36 points and 16 rebounds...not bad for a former UMass basketball player.



Another added feature tonight will be the Nets all-pro forward Rick Barry, the "easy rider" of basketball, who has made the rounds in both leagues since his graduation from Miami about six years back...the trouble is for every revolution he turns he still keeps pouring in 30 points a game.

It's possible that Julius and Barry could be matched up for this game.

The Squires have won seven in a row on the road and eight of nine all together, while the Nets are chasing both Virginia and Kentucky in third place.

And so the sage of number 32 continues to grow and grow and with the expected large throng of UMies scheduled to take the trip to the 5000 seat Island Gardens it just might be called a home game for the big guy.

Now, how about 36 and 36 for the hometown fans!!!

DOES HE LOOK FAMILIAR?-You bet he does..the number 32, the graceful drive to the basketball and it's all in a Squires uniform to be seen tonight at the Island Gardens in Julius Erving's New York debut.

Monroe Traded To Knicks

NEW YORK (AP)-Earl "The Pearl" Monroe was acquired by the New York Knicks in a multi-faceted trade with Baltimore Thursday and agreed to join the club despite a problem created by the Bullets' refusal to pay him most of his salary for the last two seasons.

The revelation of the Bullets' refusal to pay Monroe the deferred portions of his salary came several hours after the announcement of the trade in which the Knicks sent forward Dave Stallworth, guard Mike Riordan and an undisclosed amount of cash to the Bullets.

It came in the form of a statement from Monroe's attorney, Larry Fleisher, who said negotiations with the Knicks had been smooth, but "A problem arose in that the Baltimore management has sent a letter to Monroe sayingthat they are refusing to pay him the overwhelming portion of his salary ...over the past two years."

Fleisher said the money involved was defered payments "due in a few more years and there was no question about his having earned it.

WMUA

Tune in tomorrow to WMUA, 91.1 FM, for the Yankee Conference showdown between the Redmen and UNH. Marty Kelley will host the pre-game show at 12:30 to be followed at 12:45 by Redman football with Ken Best calling all the action, with Kelley on color.

On Sunday night at 10 Kelley and Best will host basketball coach Jack Leaman and captain Mike Pagliara on "Sports Talk."

Harriers Rout UNH

The UMass cross-country team warmed up for Monday's IC4A's yesterday by soundly whipping New Hampshire in their last dual meet of the season. Freshman Randy Thomas, who came in 11th in the New England's this past Monday, was the individual winner setting a new course record in doing so. Another freshman Bill Gillin came in third. Doug O'Connell came in fourth. These two plus the second place man from UNH also broke the record.

For all the details on this race and a complete look at the IC4A's, see Monday's sports page.

Metawampe

The page is tight, the info is good, so I shall make a quick one inside this five point hood. To UNH the Redmen go to challenge for the Bean Pot bowl, and in the skies I see the light that says the Redmen shall win this fight. UMASS 24, UNH 13.

Poor Richard's

A Weekly Magazine

The Midnight Skulker and friend try one on for size.

"These Machines, Man. What Good Are They?"

by David Williams

Ron Evers (not his real name) ives on the twenty-second floor of a tower in Southwest. He likes it up there because he has a good view of the sunset every afternoon. Ron spends a lot of time in his room; he has a single. He goes out during the day occasionally to go over to Munchy's and buy a carton of milk and a loaf of bread and pick up a Collegian. He doesn't hit many classes.

But Ron spends a lot of time walking around at night, usually quickly and stealthily, because he trashes dorm vending machines, and that's a risky business.

Ron makes a lot of money breaking into machines, but he's not what you'd call a big spender. It's not the money that lures Ron to dorm basements where he mutilates cigarette and coke machines; it's the challenge of breaking into a machine.

"I see that type of machine as evil," Ron says. "There's something evil about the way you have to buy this pre-packaged food in a dispenser. Even the rats in Bartlett basement have a better life than some of the people who eat out of those machines. And what's behind that is even worse. We're being conditioned by the captalists to accept an ever-growing machine culture. Someday we're all going to wake up and it's gonna be all over."

Ron comes from Wakefield. His father works for Sylvania on Rt. 128. His mother is a key-punch operator for an insurance company. They both ride in a car-pool to work every day with an electronics engineer who also works at Sylvania, and a technician who works at Tektronix.

"When I was a little kid, I used to get Erector sets and shit like that at Christmas time. The only books I was ever given were all about airplanes and ships and dams. When I got older I took all kinds of science courses in high school. I was gonna be an engineer, man."

Ron has gotten very adept at breaking into vending machines. His first score was a coke machine in his high school.

"It used to sit just outside the mens' locker room downstairs. One day me and a friend were late getting in from track practice, no one was around, so we

Continued on page 3A

Aardvarks

Was The Trip Worth It?

It was a clear cold day as the president walked across campus to his office. He was musing as he walked.

I wonder what changing my sex would be like, he wondered idly.

Is it advisable or inadvisable? Thoughts flashed across his mind like the meal tickets flash in front of the ticket-takers' eyes.

I must explore the ramifications of such a move.

Whe the president got to his office he called his semi-private secretary and instructed her to call the world's most famous surgeons and find out prices and things.

By noon he had his estimate.

I must remember to slip a little extra something to my secretary for her bonus this week. He sat at his desk and let silly thoughts fill his afternoon.

By supper-time he had his plane reservations to a far-away country and his room reserved in one of the world's most famous hospitals. He was looking forward to his reversal.

In three days time he had been transformed, enjoying himself tentatively.

How odd this is. I must remember to remember in case I forget.

In a months' time he was ready to go home.

It's nice to be back but...His knees rattled with anticipation..

But he was fooled. Life was no different. Everyone regarded him with the same cool eye.

How very disturbing. What can be the matter with me? He sat with a puzzled wrinkle in his forehead.

He resolved to settle this disturbing predicament before it got out of hand. To this end, he bought himself an elaborate disguise, consisting of various faces and wigs.

But this was of no help. He was always recognized wherever he went. He felt his posture in his community slipping slowly away and yet he was powerless to stop it.

Whatever can be done? Whatever can I do? Must I always live like this? His questioning grew ever more incessant.

He was relaxing with his elephant gun out on the moors when he ran into a hippogator. The hippogator was sunning itself on the bank of the only river in the area. The president came whisking through the sunlit woods, chuckling as he came.

Then he ran into the hippogator. The hippogator rose up on its front legs and devoured him with a terrible roar. All that was left of him was his garter belt.

The hippogator yawned and stretched. It walked around in a circle and plopped itself down on the ground.

Ahh, yes. The hippogator reflected on a prosperous and enjoyable day. A fruitcake a day keeps the doctor away.

What's Happened To The Big Three?

It's no longer obscene to say 'fuck you'. It isn't even cool anymore. So sorority girls and basketball coaches can say 'fuck' and vent their anger, but for the rest of us, well, we have to move on to something a little bit stronger, dirtier, more obscene. And why? Let Frank Baglione enlighten you. Read his analysis of the new generation of dirty words. See why it's cool to be a c---lapper.

Page 5a

All Mimsy Were The Borogoves

Alice in Wonderland..."Brillig"--Glickstein, MDC... "Frabjous! I chortled all the way to the stables"--Caterpillar, The Mushroom..."A truly slithy tove of a performance"--Queen, Heart Magazine..."The dormouse gyred and gimbled himself right into my wabe!" --Carroll, Daily Times... "I saw it and I don't even like little girls" --Fields, Daily Hookhah... "Oh beamish day, culoo, culay!" --Bremary, Massachusetts Gazette... "See what a little culture can do for you. Give it a try." --Schwartz, Fine Arts News... "To be perfectly frank, I saw it all three times, and I was offended each time" --Curtis, Good Homekeeping...

Page 9a

It Could Happen To You

Straight from Love of Life on Channel 22 or whatever station you care to choose which runs soap operas, this gritty little tale, told in the first person singular by the unwitting accomplice, is a story that will rend your heart strings, flush out your tear ducts, and give you a new perspective on a few things, heads of residences and University security included.

Page 4a

And A Host Of Other Delights

Frank Johnson continues his discussion of tape recorders this week, spending a little bit more time detailing the workings of certain components. Lloyd Adalist favorably reviews the BSO Collage, which appeared on campus last week. Steve Feld, Ken Sulin, and Pete Forget tackel a bunch of new releases on our album page. Death In Venice and the new Bergman film, The Touch, are subjected to close scrutiny by our crack film reviewers on the films page. And rounding out the issue is the old standby, Weekend. The editors of Poor Richard's welcome any and all comments.

Poor Richard's

Vol. I number six

Compiled weekly by Bob Nesti and David Williams

This week's staff

This week's staff: Frank Johnson, Frank Baglione, Kenneth Sulin, Steve Feld, Pete Forget, Don Glickstein

Photo credits: Alan Chapman, p. 1a. Steve Schmidt, p. 3a.

Poor Richard's is the weekly magazine of the MDC. Contributions and comments may be delivered to the MDC office. Prospective staff members may contact either David Williams or Bob Nesti.

What Good Are These Machines? (continued)

kicked in the front and scooped out thirty dollars worth of dimes."

He got caught and had to pay for repairs to the machine.

"That was the last time I hit a machine before I came up here. I always had an itch to hit another one, but I didn't want to risk getting caught. I used to go up to coke machines and sort of thump them lightly with my fist but I never broke open another one. Until I came up here, that is. Then I went wild."

Ron started one night up on Orchard Hill by breaking into three out the four machines in Dickinson. The next night he hit Field, then Grayson, finally Webster.

"We had security going batty," Ron laughs. "When we hit Dickinson we made it look like an inside job. We hit it on a weeknight, I think it was a Thursday. They always figure that anything that happens on a weekend is done by an outsider. So they didn't watch the other Hill dorms too closely. Then we hit Field. They wised up a little and put someone on the front desk. But we snuck in through an open window. Grayson and Webster were really tough. We had to sneak into the dorm during the day and hide in a bathroom. We'd get into a stall, crouch on the toilet and lock the door. When it got late enough we'd go downstairs and tear open the machines."

Ron's usual method of entry is a large crowbar with which he rips the door locks to bits. But the Ara vending machine company started putting heavy padlocks attached to thick steel plates on all its machines. Ron began to use a heavy-duty conduit cutter along with his crowbar and cut through the padlocks with ease.

"When I first started out it was sort of a thrill to break a machine open. Some of them have pretty elaborate lock systems, but a little bit of brute force would break'em. Last year I met a kid who was working the machines down in Southwest who used to open the machines without wrecking them. I don't know how he did it. He had a collection of little stainless steel tools that he used to use. He'd jam some kind of little pronged thing into the key hole, wiggle it around, and the door would pop open. I ran into him once in Crampton, I think it was. I was working laundries because they have more quarters and it's easier to roll quarters into those paper tubes. Anyway, he and I both worked the laundry over. He took half and I took half. I hear he's trying to figure out a way to get into the pinball machines in the Campus Center. Good luck to him. Those are worse than vending machines, if you ask me."

"It's those laundries, man, those laundries.."

Ron's worst night came when he was working the lounges in one of the towers. He and a friend who used to accompany him on his midnight trips to the snack room were working on a cigarette machine on the twelfth floor after trashing a cigarette machine, a coke machine and an ice cream machine on the nineteenth floor, when they heard people coming.

"At first we didn't know what to do and got a little scared," Ron said. "But then we realized that we hadn't done anything to these particular machines so we had nothing to worry about. By the time the people got to the room we were on our way out with cokes in our hands, completely innocent-looking. As soon as they left after checking the machines we went back and hit them."

Ron doesn't hit as many machines as he used to. For one thing, he says, security has gotten much better in the dorms in the last year or so. It's harder to pass yourself as a resident, especially late at night. Lately Ron has been working in the academic buildings, riskier than dorms because the machines are right out in the corridors and not in little rooms in the basements, or in lounges.

What makes him do it?

"I don't exactly know. It's kind of a thrill to be able to just smash the machines. The money part isn't all that important. I save most of it. It's the machine and what it stands for. It's like these towers. Pre-packaged units, everything very anonymous. No wonder I'm going insane."

Jazz Sebastian Bach With The Swingle Singers

The Swingle Singers, recording group that sprang onto the musical scene a few years back with their singing, swinging interpretation of the music of Bach, will perform Monday, November 22 at 8:00 p.m. in Bowker Auditorium as part of the UMass Fine Arts Countil series of special events.

Despite the name, taken from their leader, Ward Swingle, the Swingle Singers come from Paris. The group was created in 1962 when these eight singers decided to record their first album: Bach's Greatest Hits (French title: Jazz Sebastien Bach). They had been working together in the Parisian recording studios doing vocal backgrounds for various singing stars and jazz groups. During breaks they amused themselves inventing exercises to increase their vocal agility. As their interest in the experiment grew they decided to look for their exercises in the preludes and fugues of the composer they admired most: J.S. Bach.

The sonority obtained in "playing" Bach's instrumental works with their voices proved to be quite fascinating. Also, the singers rapidly discovered the swinging character of Bach's baroque rhythms. They then decided to add string bass and drums to the group to underline the rhythmic element, and to record the result.

It should be stressed, however, that the singers are absolutely respectful of the original writing in the works they interpret--the works of Bach as well as those of the other composers they have recorded since: Haendel, Vivaldi, Mozart, Beethoven, Albeniz, etc...

Ward Swingle, himself a classically trained musician, insists that the Swingle Singers interpretations are in no way aimed at replacing the traditional ones. He presents interpretations which he believes pleasant and joyful, while at the same time respectful and musical.

Following the success of Bach's Greatest Hits, the group hesitated to make the jump from the recording studio to the concert stage. It was President Johnson who forced them to make that jump when he invited them, in May 1964, to give a concert at the White House. This caused great excitement among the Swingles. What started as vocal exercises had indeed come a long way. There was no question of turning the President's gracious invitation down, so they began furiously to work on problem number one: learning their entire repertoire by heart. This was no mean feat, considering the intricacies of each individual part, plus the necessity of remembering all the onomatopoeia, or "scat" syllables.

The result surprised everyone. Added to the aural beauty of the sound was the visual interest of watching the development of Bach's intricate counterpoint on the lips of these eight singers. It was quite impressive for the audience, whether musical or not, to watch the mastery and ease with which the singers handled these difficult works, accompanied by the gently swinging rhythm section.

Since Washington, they have sung in New York (Carnegie Hall), Chicago (Orchestra Hall), Hollywood, Berlin, Amsterdam, London, Paris, Buenos-Aires, Mexico, Tokyo, etc...Many projects are under way which will take them throughout the world.

The group consists of four women, two sopranos and two altos, and four men, two tenors and two bass-baritones. Ward Swingle also sings as the director of this unique combination of voices.

The program on the 22nd will include works by J.S. Bach, Mozart, Telemann, Haendel, Albeniz, Ravel, Sarasate, Rodrigo, De Falla and Gershwin.

Reserved tickets for the performance are available in the Fine Arts Council, 125 Herter Hall, Telephone 545-0202. Remaining tickets will be available at Bowker Auditorium one hour prior to the concert.

Ticket prices: $1.50 UM Undergrads, $2.50 Other Full-time Students, $3.00 UM Faculty/Staff, $3.50 General Staff.

NOW..YOUR CHOICE OF 5!
Showcase
Rt. 5 W. Spfld.
Cinema 1-2-3-4-5
733-5131
MORE NEW SHOWS!
MORE NEW LOUNGER SEATS!
MORE NEW PARKING!
MATINEES DAILY...POPULAR PRICES
Adults $1.50 Mon Thru Fri Matts
1 Ryan's Daughter GP
2 Together X
3 2001 Space Odyssey G
4 Desparate Characters R
5 French Connection R
ACRES FREE PARKING
ROCKER LOUNGERS
CHARGE YOUR TICKETS

"Rosemary's Baby"
Tonight
7 - 9: 30 - 12-
CC Auditorium
75¢

Campus II
PAUL NEWMAN IS BUTCH CASSIDY AND THE SUNDANCE KID IS ROBERT REDFORD.
at 9:00
I And
at 7:00
MASH

Campus Cinemas
256-6411
AMHERST-HADLEY LINE
In the Zayre's Shopping Center - Route 9.

Monday Nights!
Ladies $1.00

Campus I
Daily 7 & 9
Fri. & Sat.
7:00, 8:30, 10:00
FIND OUT YOURSELF WHY EVERYONE'S TALKING ABOUT-
Together
Rated X

Campus III
at 7:15 & 9:15 (R)
Ingmar Bergman's first English language motion picture starring
Elliott Gould
The Touch

It Could Happen To You

by Joan Summers

I got the first phone call on a weeknight. I was sitting alone in my room, as usual, reading a book and drinking diet cola when the stupid thing began to ring.

"Hello?"

"Hello, Miss Summers?"

"Yes, this is she."

"This is Sgt. Cavendish from University security calling."

"Yes. . ."

"I have a letter here signed by you. ."

"I don't remember writing a letter to anybody at security. What's the first name?"

"Joan."

"It could be my mother. What's it about?"

"Here, I'd better read you some of it: 'I am a freshman from the Southwest. Ever since coming to UMass I have been disturbed by some of the things I have seen up here, particularly the illicit drug use.' That's how it starts. It goes on. 'I would like to offer my services as an informer.' That's down towards the end. Miss Summers, we'd like to have a talk with you about this letter. Can we meet somewhere tonight? Perhaps in your dorm parking lot? I'll be in a. . ."

"But I didn't write that letter. I didn't write that at all. nd I don't think my mother would have either."

"We'd really like to get this straightened out, Miss Summers. If you didn't sign it, perhaps you can give us some clue as to who actually did sign it. Why don't you meet me in the parking lot in fifteen minutes? I'll be in a. . ."

"How do I know you're really from security?"

"All right. I'll meet you in the lobby if you like."

"Then if you show me some kind of identification I'll talk to you."

"OK, see you in fifteen minutes."

I hung up slightly puzzled. Why would security be calling me up about a letter I had never even written? I did want to get it straightened out because it would upset my father if he thought the police were accusing me of something.

I changed out of my dressing robe into some clothes and went down to the lobby. There was a man leaning on the desk who straightened when I got near him.

"Miss Summers?"

"Yes."

"I'm Sgt. Cavendish from security."

He held up an open wallet with a silver badge on it.

"Oh yes. I see."

"Can we talk outside in the car?"

"All right."

We went out to his car in the parking lot. It wasn't a police car.

"Miss Summers, I think if you read that letter, you'll see why we would like to get this cleared up rather quickly."

I read the letter. It was all about a shy girl from the Southwest part of the country who had been brought up in a sheltered home who was very shocked by the things she had seen going on in her dorm. She ended up offering her services as an informer and gave a list of names, all people from my dorm, who used drugs. I knew most of the people on the list but I was only sure of two whom I knew smoked pot. And the letter was signed by me, and I'm from Arizona!

"Sgt. Cavendish, I don't care if you don t believe me, but I didn't write this letter."

"Now, we didn't say that you wrote it. We just said it was signed by you. This could have been written by anyone. Do you know of anyone who has any sort of a grudge against you who might do this sort of thing?"

I told him about the two people on the list who I was sure used drugs. They were these two silly boys on the other corridor in my dorm who both tried to get me to go to bed with them my first week up here.

"Hmmm. It could have been them. What about your roommate? Do you two get along?"

My roommate was hardly ever in the room. She worked for the newspaper on campus and just came to the room to eat and sleep. Sometimes her boyfriend and another friend of theirs would come up for supper. But she and I never fought. We hardly ever saw each other.

"What's your roommate's name?"

I told him.

"My suggestion is that we go in and talk about this with your head of residence. He can maybe give us another perspective on it."

My head of residence is married with two kids. He used to be a high-school English teacher but came up here to get his Master's degree. He was drinking a bottle of beer when we knocked on his door.

"Joannie. Is something the matter?"

"No, Mr. McKinley. We just have something to talk about with you. This is Sgt. Cavendish from security."

"Yes, I know. How are you, Roger?"

"Fine."

"Sgt. Cavendish has a letter that someone sent to security that's signed by me, only I didn't write it, and it says I want to be an informer."

"Can I take a look at that, Roger?"

Mr. McKinley read the letter slowly.

"You say you didn't write this, Joannie."

"That's right."

"Do you know any of these people?"

"They're all on my corridor. Well, my floor anyway."

"Do you know if any of them use drugs?"

I told him which two.

"Jim, we were trying to figure out if Joannie had any enemies, besides these two here, who might have written the letter. She doesn't think they would have done it. And she hasn't had any trouble with her roommate."

"Well, this is very well written, Joannie. Your roommate works for the paper doesn't she?"

I had to agree with that.

"I think we can figure out who did this. Look, the letter is typewritten, but the signature is done in ink. All we have to do is to go up to your room and find a sample of your roommate's handwriting and match them up. If she wrote it, it will show up."

Mr. McKinley was already digging for his master key but I didn't like the idea. After all, my roommate had some rights. I couldn't let Mr. McKinley go digging through her personal stuff to find something for the police.

"I really don't think she would have written this. We get along fine and everything."

"Are you sure, Joannie? She would stab a roommate in her sleep if she thought she'd get a single out of it. We had a lot of trouble with her last year."

"No, I really don't think she would have done anything like this. We get along just fine."

"Joannie, I have to get back down to the office. My shift is starting soon. Will you call either Jim or myself if you can think of anyone who might have written this?"

"Ok."

"Thank you very much. Good night, Jim."

"Good night, Roger, And thanks."

Mr. McKinley closed the door and stood with his back to it, still holding the handle.

"Joannie, now you be sure and let us know if you can think of anyone who may have written this. This is for your own protection. All right?"

"All right, Mr. McKinley."

Mr. McKinley made the second phone call.

"Hello?"

"Joannie, is your roommate in?"

"No. . ."

"Good. I'm coming up to get a sample of her handwriting."

"No, Mr. McKinley. I don't think you'd better. I'm not going to let you in the room if you come up."

"Oh, c'mon Joannie. I'll be up in a few minutes."

I didn't know what to do. When I told my parents about the letter they got upset. My father told me to call his lawyer and talk to him if anything else happened. So I called him. He said not to let anyone in the room unless he had a search warrant.

"Joannie. Unlock the door and let me in."

"No, Mr. McKinley. I can't let you in unless you have a search warrant."

"OK, Joannie."

He left. But he was back again in a few minutes with Sgt. Cavendish.

"Joannie, open the door please. Sgt. Cavendish has a warrant."

I had to let him in, but the warrant didn't look very impressive. It was written on a piece of plain paper and signed by Sgt. Cavendish.

"I can't let you touch anything on my roommate's side of the room. You can't touch anything there at all."

"Would you have anything on your side that she had written on?"

"I don't think so. She carries all her notebooks with her and she doesn't leave notes or anything."

"Is this her handwriting?"

"No."

"I don't think we're going to find anything, Jim. Why don't I just take type samples from Joannie's typewriters and we'll let it go at that."

The reason I had two typewriters was because my academic advisor told me that the one I brought with me had the wrong kind of type. It was elite instead of pica, and he said instructors wouldn't grade anything typed in elite. I had to send home for another typewriter, only this time a pica. The company shipped the cheaper model so I had my parents complain. There was another typewriter in the mail someplace. Electric, of course.

I don't know who made the third phone call or the fourth phone call. I was sitting alone playing my guitar.

"Hello?"

"I just wanted to tell you that we're on to you and that if any of our buddies get busted, you're in trouble."

"Hello? Hello?"

The fourth one was almost the same.

"We know you're an informer. We know where you are. If you squeal on us, we'll get you."

I called Mr. McKinley right away. He said he'd call Sgt. Cavendish. They decided that they wanted to tap my phone and put a tape recorder on it. I didn't like the idea, so I called my father's lawyer again. He said that I should definitely forbid the tap but that I could ok a tracer, but for no more than two days.

"Don't you think we should tell my roommate if we're going to put a tracer on the phone? It's hers too, you know."

"Joannie, what sense would that make? If she were behind all this and we told her there was a tracer that recorded the origin of every call the phone got, she certainly wouldn't make any calls while it was on. Besides, this will be just the thing I need to get her out of the dorm. After all the trouble we had with her last year, and the complaints about her this year, it'll be a pleasure to see her move off to another dorm. She'll be someone else's problem then, not mine."

After two days I guess the tracer went off because I got a notice from the phone company saying so. Not much happened after that. I didn't get anymore phone calls and I didn't talk to either Mr. McKinley or Sgt. Cavendish.

Then a few weeks later something happened with my roommate. She told me one day that she and her boyfriend were going to have a small party for some friends on a Saturday night about a week away. She was just telling me so I could find something to do. But the day before her party I found out at the infirmary that I had mononucleosis. I felt terrible. I went up to my dorm and went straight to bed. I had to tell her that she just wouldn't be able to have her party after all.

She got very mad. She and her boyfriend both started in on me. I began to cry, she began to cry. It was awful. Her boyfriend began to insult me and call me a crybaby and a hypochondriac, which made me furious. I am sick a lot, but I had just found out the day before it was because I had been carrying mono since July. My resistance was way down, that's all. I couldn't even shake a cold.

They stormed out, leaving me crying and feeling very mad. I decided to go down and tell Mr. McKinley. I was sure he'd be very interested in knowing that they were going to try and kick me out of my own room when I was sick.

"I'm not surprised, Joannie, and I'll tell you why. I knew she'd start that kind of stuff again this year. She couldn't get along with her roommate last year so she moved out of the room. I guess her new roommate spent a lot of time in her boyfriend's apartment, so she had a single a lot of the time. This year she moved down the hall to this room. I guess she figured she'd get a single out of that somehow. We get all kinds of complaints about her. Someone's parents came down raging one day because they saw her boyfriend coming out of the shower with a towel wrapped around him, wringing wet. She was with him. You know what I think I'm gonna do? I'll bring this up at the heads of residence meeting Sunday night. We can probably get her out of the dorm on some kind of illicit behavior charge."

That suited me fine. The sooner they got rid of her, the better, as far as I was concerned. I went back to my room feeling pleased.

But the next day I didn't feel so pleased. It was really very immature of me to go down to the head of residence without talking with her about it. And all this other stuff about the letter and everything. . . I decided I'd tell her all about everything when she and her boyfriend came back from shopping. His name got mentioned quite a bit too by Sgt. Cavendish and Mr. McKinley. They wanted to know if he smoked pot, or if he could have written the letter.

I must say they took it very well. We made up over the fight and I told them I had something else to tell them that all began with a phone call and a letter.

They really did take it well. When I got through with my story, we were all friends again. They didn't seem mad that I had gone down to the head of residence. In fact, she and I even went down and told him that we had made up and that I really didn't want to get rid of her as a roommate. He was flabbergasted. He said he was glad we had settled our differences.

She and her boyfriend left to go to the newspaper office. I felt that everything had been settled and started to pack my suitcase because the doctor said I would have to start living in the infirmary because of my mono. I had to be there the next day.

It wasn't too bad; I'm used to hospitals anyway, but I was glad to get a visitor.

The girl from across the hall brought me some books I had forgotten.

"Did you hear about your roommate?"

"No, I haven't talked to anybody since the other day. What happened to her?"

"Nothing happened to her. She moved out of the room to another dorm. She and her boyfriend and two other guys came and she was gone in fifteen minutes. Nobody has any idea why."

"I wonder why she did that. We settled everything. Did you bring my books?"

"Mr. McKinley came up just after she left because he couldn't believe it. He opened your room up and looked around. All her stuff was gone. I guess he just walked off down the hall shaking his head and chuckling to himself."

"He always was a ding-dong. Hand me a kleenex, please?"

What's Happened To The Big Three?

'Bastard', 'Bitch', and 'Fuck' Have Lost Their Sting

by Frank Baglione

This past summer a letter appeared in a weekly Boston paper, the Phoenix, thanking the editors for printing the reader's sentiments on a contemporary subject. It seems the same letter had been refused publication in the Boston Globe because it contained the word "chick" when referring to the female of the species Homo sapien. The editors of the Globe stated that there were women in their reading audience who had made known their feelings of offense when this word was printed.

This incident points up an amazing characteristic of present society--new obscenities have been evolving to replace those defused by the widening social rebellion. Instead of creating a censorship-free society in America, the political movements now moving towards power have created new taboos on expression which are enforced by a tremendous moral aggression. In the face of this agressiveness old line papers like the Globe have been forced to add the new obscenities to the old ones; politically radical papers (or what is left of them), print the old obscenities but refuse to publish, that is to say censor, any material containing the new obscenities. Only "new culture" papers, similar to the Phoenix, have refused to engage in censorship of either the old or the new "naughty words" in spite of the fact that they otherwise fall more to the radical side when they take up political issues.

Interesting enough, the new obscenities, like the old, are mainly related to sex. What is different is that where the old obscenities were objectionable because they dealt with sexual practices or were related to sex organs, the new obscenities are objected to because of the symbolism and imagery the sexual references call to mind, or because of the way some are used in metaphors. Because of this relation between obscenity and sex it is not surprising to find the leading proponents of the new censorship of the new obscenity to be groups in political struggle largely defined by sexual make-up. That is, women's liberation and gay liberation. It is true that both the anti-war movement and the black liberation movement have engaged in verbal banality and are as willing to label things "sin" and devise their own forms of social punishment as are the women's and gay movements. However these are usually of a more complex nature and represent a change of emphasis or a qualification that denies simple analysis. For example, the word "black" is now nearly mandatory for reference to an individual of the Negro race, but the use of the same word "black" to mean "sinister" or "evil" is frowned upon because of the images it might call up concerning "black" people. Whether one feels this is silly, or stupid, or unreasonable is not at issue. The point is that no new obscenities objectionable in any form have sprung up around the black and anti-war movements the way they have concerning the more sexual women's and gay movements. Whereas "black" has a neutral denotation and both good and bad connotations, those in the sexual political movements see words like "chick" and "queer" as either of neutral denotation (the first a chicken's young, the second something odd), or only derrogatory connotations.

Before further investigating the rationalizations of those attempting to create new obscenities some definitions are in order. For example, the obscene need not be solely related to indecent or offensive sexual terms or acts. One often hears wars characterized as obscene; a commercial ad that is particularly crass or inane or insensitive may be described as obscene. But for the most part when people are talking about obscenity they refer to the offense given them by some literal or symbolic use of sexual vocabulary.

Until very recently, obscenities were well defined falling into a number of categories. Most will be familiar with these. There was the Big Three of obscenity: "fuck," "bitch," and "bastard." (Once again recall we are dealing with obscenity of a sexual nature and will not be refering to religiously profane statements like "go to hell," or "goddamn you," no matter how offensive some people may find these. I suspect few do still find these "obscene.") The Big Three were probably the most potent of the socially acceptable obscenities I can recall. That is to say the terms were the strongest and therefore gentlemen and ladies could be forgiven their use only if the situation evoked the unutterable. Thus you might be allowed to say "Fuck you" to the Nazi asking you to round up some Jews; or one could pit out a "bastard" towards someone who had been caught in the act of brutally beating a small child. These words were very strong and fit the situation. Yet no matter what the provocation they were never seen in print unless the publication itself was obscene. The giant of the Big Three, "Fuck," has yet to be seen in an established dictionary.

What has the "revolutionary" movements of our generation done to the Big Three? All but annihilated them. "Bastard" has been knocked right off the list of obscenities. Since illegitimacy is no longer a state of condemnation, "bastard" has lost its social sting. It is still used against villains but usually the villain and his deed are more naughty than nasty when it is invoked. "Bastard" is such a rich, full-throated word, especially when used by Burton, that its aesthetic qualities would have liberated it for usage with or without the extra push it received by the deliberate rebelliousness of the "new revolutionaries."

"Bitch," on the other hand, has not come off the obscenity list. "Son of a bitch" is not taken too seriously anymore for few fail for "bitch" is a very handy and succinct expression and is almost as pleasant to the ear as "bastard." Both words seem headed for increased usage and will probably remain retired from anybody's obscenities' list.

The most powerful of the Big Three does not seem to be faring as well. "Fuck" was so completely obscene that it was almost to be expected that the new generation's revolutionaries would use it to offend their opponents in the Old World and, in social settings, use it to demonstrate their personal liberation. The revolutionaries were almost desperate in their use of "fuck," so eager to "fuck the war," and "fuck the system" which was "fucking over the people." (This last one was particularly used by the Ultra-Hip revolutionary leaders; it signaled one's political status and awareness.) "Fuck" became the least obscene of the former Big Three. Indeed, its over-use became so obnoxious, so contrived, so obviously a childish means of "showing off," that "fuck" has gone from a withering obscenity to a dull and slightly annoying expression of poor taste.

Of the old Big Three, then, we find that the new revolutionaries, the politicos, find only "bitch" obscene, while the new culturists, the freaks who are not involved with radical politics, see none of these words as obscene. As a last effort to resurrect "fuck" as an obscenity, though, it might be mentioned that the politicos, due to women's lib pressure, take a rather ambiguous position on the quality of synonyms for "fuck", like "ball", which are used almost exclusively to describe male sexual aggression towards females as in "I'd like to ball that chick."

Outside of the Big Three there are any number of obscenities. One group, which can be easily dismissed, are the scatological obscenities the most common of which are "shit" and "piss." The new generation almost unanimously does not consider these to be obscenities. "Shithead," "shitty," "piss on you" and "pisser" are all commonly used descriptive terms which carry no grevious insult or offense. For example, the new generation uses "shithead" in much the same way the old generation's Scarlet O'Hara chastized her friends with "You silly goose." There is some form of "penis envy" on the part of women's liberation that a man can "piss on you" from a distance while a woman must be squatting over you, but it is hardly likely a substantial issue can be made of this natural difference. In the other form of excretment all are equal, and equally sure that it is not an obscenity. Unfortunately, the present generations unabashedly open display of bodily function seems to have gone a bit too far. While burping and farting should not be the cause of severe social condemnation or personal emotional trauma, one's restraint in the degree of enthusiasm one puts behind them is usually appreciated. And last year I witnessed the somewhat disturbing affair of a "nouveau hip" liberated mother changing her offspring's diaper on top of a dining table in, of all places, the Blue Wall cafeteria. This young woman was among a group of people dining in the company of Gil Salk, our local counterculture advocate and draft counselor. I trust they all cleaned their plates.

> "Outside of the Big Three there are any number of obscenities. One group, which can be easily dismissed, are the scatological obscenities, the most common of which are "shit" and "piss." The new generation almost unanimously does not consider these to be obscenities..Unfortunately,the present generations' unabashedly open display of bodily function seems to have gone a bit too far. While burping and farting should not be the cause of severe social condemnation or personal emotional trauma, one's restraint in the degree of enthusiasm one puts behind them is usually appreciated."

Having now dealt with the Big Three and scatological obscenities we come to an area where the new generation has nearly as many obscenities as the old. Obscenities dealing with the genitalia usually carry an implied gender and thus, to some minds, are more obviously "sexist." They are also lower case, a rather vulgar way of saying another word--even another obscenity. For example, "cunt" is a less genteel way of expressing the idea of "bitch," while "prick" might be what Frank Sinatra thinks when he hears Richard Burton say "bastard". The complete list of genital obscenities would include, besides "prick" and "cunt," "asshole," and "balls," along with the related terms "cocksucker" and "cuntlapper."

While Women's lib might certainly wish to add "prick" to the politicos' list of obscenities because it carries the idea of strength, potency and aggressiveness of the male (even though it is used pejoritively), it is the word "cunt" to which they most object. Their adding it to the list of new generation obscenities stems from its similarity in meaning to two other words condemned by the politicos--"bitch" and "chick". The image that "cunt" carries is not, like "prick," one of strength, potency and aggressiveness. It is, rather, a word that implies passivity, emptiness, vulnerability. At very best "cunt" can, by association with "womb," have a connotation of fertility. These are the very qualities the extreme women's libbers seek to destroy in women. In their opinion women should not be passive, vulnerable or fecund, but rather aggressive and strong. That is to say they should be "pricks," not "cunts."

Happily, the word "asshole" has no such dual set of attributes since it is common to both genders. The new generation, therefore, found no difficulty in removing it from the list of "bad words." Yet one suspects it has managed to retain its sting. Somehow it is still humiliating to be linked in a persons mind with that particular hole, and so, much like ethnic slurs (wop, frog, harp) the tone of the person uttering the word determines whether it be grieviously offensive or merely playful.

The area begins to heat up again when we treat the terms "cocksucker" and "cuntlapper". In addition to the obvious objections to the descriptions that can be evoked from women's groups, the new force on the political scene, Gay liberation, would take particular offense at these obscenities. Since both these activities make up a large part of the homosexuals' expertise, the words are personally insulting and oppressive to him. Cunnilingus and fellatio are forms of oral intercourse also familiar to the heterosexual. But in the forms "cuntlapper" and "cocksucker" they have a plainly derogatory tone. It is a way of charging someone with being a fool, or pitifully exploited, or a mean and undesireable character, gross and base.

Militant homosexual movements have added to this list of obscenities some words that were previously in general use, being considered in poor taste but not obscene. These words are "queer," "fag" and "faggot." Just as we all must now be very careful to say "black" when we mean "Negro", or "colored," we must also be sure to say "gay" when we are thinking "homo" or "fag." These words are so charged that I am sure if I wrote a letter to a newspaper saying I had eaten two big faggots in England, the editors would return the letter suggesting I make it more clear that the faggots I had eaten were "meatballs." If the paper to which the letter had been sent was a radical sheet, I am sure it would have been printed with a searing denunciation of the oppressive language I had used.

It is still the women's movement, however, and not the gays, who are the most absurd in the nature of the words they deem obscene and their certainty that these words should be censored from the press. Early in 1970 I received in the mail a copy of the Old Mole, a now defunct Boston underground paper. The owmen on the paper had moved into a position of power and were now setting policy for the paper. On the editorial page there appeared a notice saying that from that date onward letters containing the word "chick" to mean woman, or the word "balls" to mean courage would not be printed. In effect, a radical newspaper was

Continued on page 11A

Albums

Bootlegs One More Time Around

By Steve Feld

The nature of bootlegs demands that their release be, at best, sporadic. Ones that were thought to be rare and unobtainable suddenly show up in mass. And with increased publicity, people become aware of the ease with which they can create their own. It has blossomed to the point where every music enthusiast has his own collection of rare tapes. Therefore, the bootleg business is thriving. With this in mind, here is the latest of the bootlegs.

BANGLA DESH -- George Harrison, Ringo Starr, Bob Dylan, Eric Clapton, Leon Russell, and others (Bangla Records). This is the one everybody has been waiting for. For those who don't know, Bangla Desh is a city in East Pakistan that was suddenly struck with a mass famine. Increased population, combined with decreased food production, was the cause. Thousands have died and people still are dying.

Ravi Shankar originated the idea of a benefit concert. He called George Harrison, who organized it. It took place at Madison Square Garden in August, and it was one of the most incredible moments in rock.

Harrison, backed by Starr, Clapton, Russell and others put on a fantastic show. How could he miss? On this record is "My Sweet Lord," "While My Guitar Gently Weeps," "Something," and other Harrison hits. Ringo does "It Don't Come Easy."

On a record like this, the quality does not matter. I would get it no matter what. In this case, the quality ranges from good to poor. But it is all distinguishable, and it is all great.

Side Two has Harrison introducing, "a friend of us all - Bob Dylan." He does "Mr. Tambourine Man" and "Just Like A Woman."

Enough said. The official version will be out soon. It is a rumored 3-record set. I am awaiting it with baited breath.

LET IT BE-LIVE -- The Beatles (Silver Greatest Records) -- Some more bad quality "Kum Back." On this record, however, is the only place where I have found the complete version of Lennon's "Dig It." There is also a different version of "One After 909," which is also a first.

BOB DYLAN - THE VILLAGER (Kathy and Steve Records) -- Want to do something special for your girl on her birthday? Why not name a record label after her? This record, a 2-set, was extremely rare at one time, but has again resurfaced to the underground. It was all recorded at the Gaslight in Greenwich Village, 1963. It is more historic Dylan. Since there are no songwriting credits on the labels, one does not know which of these Dylan wrote. Someone get ahold of A. J. Weberman.

Those were the days

The quality is good -- most historic Dylan is. It's pretty hard to fuck up when you are recording a man and his guitar.

THE KINDEST CUT -- Bob Dylan (Kindest Cut Records). Some old Dylan, again. This contains Dylan's "VD" songs ("Blues," "Waltz," "City," and "Gunner's Blues"). Contains seventeen songs, which must be some sort of a record for a record. My favorite is "Follow You Down." If someone will release a bootleg 45, make it this one.

ELTON JOHN, SUPERSTAR, LIVE (EJL records) -- The last time he was in New York, Elton John played a live concert in a radio studio, and it was broadcasted. Instant bootleg. The only thing was that Uni Records released songs from that concert and called it "11-17-70", Elton's last album. This, however, has "Country Comfort" and others not on the official. So, that's cool.

It is unfortunate, however, that Elton John sounds almost exactly alike live as he does on record.

MICK JAGGER INTERVIEW -- In April, disc-jockey Tom Donahue conducted an interview with Jagger. It was supposed to be very risque and, as Marshall Chess put it, "It's not one of those 'what's your favorite color' interviews."

Rolling Stones Records released it as a promotional copy, to newspapers and radio stations. Some enterprising individual bootlegged it. I have never heard it, but if you hurry, you might be able to get ahold of it. The seller had just one more copy left on November 21, 1970. He lives somewhere in Harvard Square.

200 MOTELS -- The Mothers of Invention and Zubin Mehta and the Los Angeles Philharmonic. This one is a first in a lot of ways. At last, a Mothers' bootleg. Also, this is the first bootleg of a Philharmonic Orchestra. Classical music has finally had the honor of being bootlegged!

But wait, this all isn't classical music. The first side is all old mothers' songs. And they sound good. They do stuff from way back, their first couple albums. The second side is just a snip from the complete performance of "200 Motels." This is the show that was written up in "Playboy" about half a year ago. It was in a basketball court that they played, and as Zappa put it. "When you play music in a place made for basketball, you take your chances." He took a chance and won. It's a good record.

Mr. Zappa

ROD STEWART WITH THE SMALL FACES (Rootie Newton Productions) -- And so Rod Stewart hits the high echelons of the bootlegged!

The quality on this one is pretty good, and the songs impressive. He does "Love In Vain," "Country Comfort" and "Maybe I'm Amazed," among others. Side Two contains two medlies where he sings a bunch of his stuff. Check out the cover, it's witty.

THE ROLLING STONES LIVE IN EUROPE, 1970 (Rope and Roll Records) -- This is from the tour they did after the Altamont mess. New songs, live, include "Dead Flowers" and "Brown Sugar." They toured Europe with a brass section, but the quality is so bad that one can hardly hear it. And Jagger is still using that same line, "Well, all right." He should have at least learned how to say it in French or German!

YOUNG MAN'S FANCY -- Neil Young (Zerocks Records). Watch out for this one. This is a 2 record set, and ten of the songs on this one are the exact ones from "Live on Sugar Mountain." The first song is called "It's So Hard To Wait," but it is just "On The Way Home." "Tell Me Why" is on this one, though. So is "I Am A Child." The only other songs that aren't on "Live on Sugar Mountain" are "Don't Let It Bring You Down" and "Cowgirl in the Sand", but they are on "4-Way Street".

The quality on this one is inferior, also, to "Sugar Mountain." It was a good move to release "Sugar Mountain," because as long as that one is around, it will obviate this one.

Cactus: A Desert Of Talent

by Pete Forget

This new release on Atco (division of Atlantic) features a lot of noise and little talent or creativity. The title cut "Restrictions" is an aptly named attempt at hard rock which drags on endlessly. The group ineffectively uses some dynamics and falls short of anything one can appreciate. On to something called "Token Chokin' ". This starts off in a Zappa like fashion but is so simple one can only hope it was intended that way. A fair slide guitar saves this one. "Guiltless Glider" is a song which is typical of this album. Beginning with a slow pounding rhythm, it steps up into a quick tempo but gets boring after several minutes. The drumming seems to be holding the rest of the group together and should be praised. A screaming lead guitar becomes repetitive and one has to look forward to the end of this song and a poor first side.

Starting out with "Evil" and more of the same pounding rhythm we move on to "Alaska". This one s not much but the relatively soft blues pattern makes this the only bright spot on the album. There is a harp which is a pleasant change but the vocals just don't make it.

Something entitled "Sweet Sixteen" brings the listener back to a harsh reality. Once again the drummer is doing some nice work but the guitar comes across like some God-forsaken fuzz-toned nightmare. "Bay Drag" proves the narrow limits in which Cactus is working. This ear splitting cut leads into a tune called "Mean Night in Cleveland" which is written about some group experiences on the road. This one follows a blues progression and is acoustical. Slide guitar and harp backing are adequate. This musical vein is what Cactus should be concentrating more on and the song brings down the curtain on a truly mundane album. Unless there's a thirteen year old on your Christmas list who has everything, this one's better left in the stacks.

No Way To Treat A Fiddle

by Kenneth Sulin

John Hartford is one of those people who never really made it with kids today so therefore he changed his image and his music to suit everyone-at least he thought he did. The South was a fine place to choose country musicians so why not go there and see what possibilities were available, see what to rummage up so he could hit the record buyers with something strange or bizarre. Hartford took care of all the necessities, grew longish hair, dressed in worn-torn clothing and selected some middle-aged personnel to produce "Aereo Plain" which, sorry to say, is a bomb.

Hartford himself is primarily a banjo player but occasionally fingerpicks a guitar both in concert and in the studio. His voice is gallantly deep and he can easily be mistaken for Pete Seeger on vocals but the tunes themselves will tell you differently. The lyrics are horrible--very, very silly and disgustingly trite. One track called "Boogie" presents John, unaccompanied, reciting a pathetic little verse in a growly low voice which is perhaps enough to make your stomach turn.

The album has its share of fiddle and violin playing but there's seldom anything to get excited about here. Hartford sees himself as a protegee of Bill Monroe and the Bluegrass Boys straight from the deep South however he fails considerably because even though he uses the typical southern instruments his overall quality just falls flat. Probably the only sideman worth noting would be found in Randy Scruggs who plays bass on the album.

You're lucky though if you purchase this record since you'll be getting two identical cuts on the same album. That's right, Hartford has put "Turn On Your Radio" on each side--pretty good way to fill up space or maybe it was supposed to be done for special effects. . .

There's nothing here worth spending three-and-a-half dollars on so don't waste your money unless you happen to be an enthusiast of Cajun music. .Big John is.

Versatile Kirk Does His Remarkable Best

by Pete Forget

This album features ten cuts recorded over the past few years in several different studios and live concerts. Starting with "Volunteered Slavery" Kirk is on tenor sax. This one is a contemporary spiritual featuring a conglomeration of musical and vocal sounds and is easy listening. One is prepared for anything that might follow as the unpredictable Kirk leads the listener through many feelings and settles him back on his feet. "The Inflated Ear" is Kirk on flexaphone (can you believe that?) This is gentle and reedy with soft piano chords in the background. Gradually building, it falls back to a peaceful conclusion. "Lady's Blues" is Kirk doing some beautiful work on flute. The strings are very nicely arranged and Kirk dedicates this sensitive song to Billie Holiday and "for a lot of beautiful ladies".

Next is "A Medley" recorded live at the Village Vanguard in New York which includes "Going Home", "Sentimental Journey", "In Monument", and "Lover". It is Kirk at his best. "Search for the Reason Why" features the Rahsaan Roland Kirk Spirit Choir and Kirk playing in an Afro-Latin beat.

The second side starts with a song called "Making Love After Hours". Kirk is again on flute in this blues tune. This song contains some nice piano work and makes for some nice listening. "Black Root" is Kirk blowing black mystery pipes (made of bamboo and a long metal tube) while accompanying himself on bass drum and cymbals. An amazing ability to perform on several instruments simulatenously is Kirk's forte.

"One Ton" is a quick blues number with Kirk doing an unbelievable flute solo while singing at the same time. He makes his flute sound like a guitar and then makes a siren whistle fly out of the flute at the end of this unique song. "A Laugh for Rory" is Kirk on a happy flute. A tight percussion accompaniment and some nice running bass lines plus some fine jazz piano work by Ron Burton lend some excellent fill to this fast tune. Lastly is "Rahsaanica" in which Kirk plays piccolo and later flute in this mysterious Eastern cut. Aided by congas and tambourine Kirk weaves a splendid musical tale for the listener.

Ten distinctly different musical experiences comprise this remarkable album. Words can't describe Rahsaan Roland Kirk's versatile talents and one doesn't have to be into jazz to appreciate this album either. A unique addition to any record collection.

Highly Satisfying Album By New Fleetwood Mac

by Kenneth Sulin

The Fleetwood Mac train has been moving along now for several years and with "Future Games", their sixth American album, we have a look at the fourth band they have presented to us.

It all started back in 1967 when John Mayall was, as always, in his recruiting stages; auditioning respectable musicians and cutting an album or two with them only to see his newly found talents escaping to start out on their own. Peter Green was one such person who quickly flew through the Mayall phase taking along a drummer and bass player, Mick Fleetwood and John McVie respectively. Adding another guitarist by the name of Jeremy Spencer, Peter Green's Fleetwood Mac was formed; the name later being shortened to simply Fleetwood Mac.

Oddly enough they never really caught on in the United States during the beginning years, however; their record sales actually exceeded those of the Stones' in Britain; obviously Fleetwood Mac became one of England's finest groups and still are to this day. Their style, their type of music was the most perfect exhibition of amplified blues one could find being incredibly versatile and almost completely unblemished.

A startling event then took place--the addition of yet another guitarist, Danny Kirwan to make the total three. How of all things could a blues group survive with three guitars? As it turned out the sound was just magnificent and Fleetwood Mac was producing such songs as "Albatross" and "Black Magic Woman". This concludes the first of four bands they have comprised to this date.

The second contained the same personnel but now they had become a rock and roll band with the issuing of their third album entitled "Then Play On." Unfortunately Peter Green tired of the music business, donated all his money to charity and had at this time left the group. Things did not change since the remaining four members contributed in making probably one of the finest records released in the last five years, "Kiln House." This, the third band, was still rock but rock of the fifties with tributes to Buddy Holley and Elvis Presley done to perfection.

When Jeremy Spencer decided to leave due to religious beliefs I thought without a doubt that Fleetwood Mac had now met their match and could never again be a group equalling the qualities they had always preserved. After Green left the Fleetwood engine changed tracks and became as good as ever but now that Mr. Spencer was gone they appeared certainly to be doomed.

Once again however we have not been let down, a few changes have come about but the exactness, the originality and most of all the perfection has been retained. With "Future Games" Fleetwood has again crossed previous styles and find themselves now involved with a more soothing, more mellow sound; a soft, easy-listening tone. New additions include Christine Perfect, ex-vocalist with Chicken Shack and the first female to join the group. She at first wanted to record on her own but found a place here as singer, organist and pianist--something Fleetwood had never encountered in their music. The second new member was Robert Welch, the first American to join, who added the necessary second guitar to combine delicately with the coasting and flowing rhythms of Kirwan.

The album itself was nearly a year in the making; the readjusting, familiarizing and mixing were definitely worth the pains since we have now been given another example of the confidence of Fleetwood Mac. The introductory cut entitled "Woman of a Thousand Years" if by far the strongest on the record. Kirwan on vocal after a long introduction of organ and guitar blendings, fade-ins, fade-outs--the entire song emits an air of ease and calmness. There are three Kirwan songs and they seem to be the most representative of Fleetwood Mac. Christine Perfect contributes two excellent selections sounding exactly as she did with Chicken Shack.

Not blues, not rock, but solemn, highly serious and satisfying music is to be found here. At times the songs are brisk, some even are sharp and tangy but all are genuine displaying absolutely no traces of boredom or uninterest. This seems to be a record you should listen to while alone sometime just for the enjoyment of all its aspects and qualities.

If you're in the market, I suggest picking up a copy of "Future Games" and you too will probably find yourself biting on the lure of Fleetwood Mac.

Wm. Saroyan's
the
CAVE DUELLERS
Bartlett Aud.
8:30 p.m.
Nov. 11-13 18-20
Reserved Seating
Call
545-2579

The Original American Touring Company
of
J.C. SUPERSTAR
Live — In Person
at American International College
(A.I.C.)
Roosevelt Avenue, Spfld., Mass.
Tues., Nov. 16th
at 7:00 p.m.
Tickets Available at
R.S.O. Office
Lower Level, Student Union, U. Mass.
ADVANCED SALES ONLY . . . LIMITED NUMBER AVAILABLE

Films

A Beautiful Yet Flawed Interpretation

by BOB NESTI

Death In Venice is a breathtakingly bad film. Luchino Visconti's lush interpretation of Thomas Mann's 1911 novella concerns an aging conposer (here patterned after the German Master Gustav Mahler) who, while vacationing in cholera-ridden Venice, captures a glimpse of perfect beauty in the form of a fourteen year old boy. This film is oddly fascinating in its visually loveliness, yet is too often vague and static, turning the older Achenbach's interest for the young Tadzio into a parody of a homosexual tryst. The older man follows the boy everywhere. There is hardly a moments respite from the two gawking at each other from across restaurants or parks or beaches. Achenbach's death at the film's conclusion serves a dual purpose: first it set him free from his personal anguish caused by his failure to comprehend his interest in the young boy, and secondly, it releases the audience from viewing this static and ultimately unsatisfying film.

Whether or not Visconti paralleled his film accurately enough after Mann is a point for academic purists to quibble over. Yet writers and composers have often reinterpreted each others works to dazzling effects. Witness, the Richard Strauss tone poems and Joyce's Ulysses for striking examples. What we have with Death In Venice is a legitimate interpretation, unfortunately it is a faulty one. Visconti's vision fails on its own merits as being repetitive and vacuous in both plot and theme.

The sheer weight of the film inhibits the dramatic action. The director's emphasis on production seems to have led him to lose sight of a workable plot to act as a framework for his grandiose intentions. Death just sort of hangs together; it is filled with many fine moments that collectively lack any form.

His production is the film's major virtue. It is an exquisite recreation of 1911 Venice that captures a stunning sense of historical accuracy. From the gorgeous costumes to the neo-Victorian hotel decor, combined with the then-contemporary Mahler music, makes for a near perfect evocation of time and place. The film is even sustained for some time with the photography that captures these elements and blends them into an atmosphere suggesting a rich and near decadent beauty. Visconti obviously decided that here, in creating a mood to complement and accent Mann's story, was where his emphasis would be. Yet painstaking detail was never meant to compensate for structure and cannot make up for the lack of substantive plot.

What simple plot the film does have runs as such: An aging composer, named Achenbach becomes infatuated with a beautiful young boy while resting in death-ridden Venice. They see each other everywhere, as the boy teases and taunts the composer almost out of sadistic pleasure. The older man overstays his visit, contracts cholera, and dies on the beach while glimpsing a final vision of the young man standing graceful and erect in the water. Add to this somewhat mawkish notion some choppy sequences in which the composer and one of his apprentices participate in a lengthy argument as to the nature of beauty. Reinforce his hetrosexuality with dreamlike memory sequences showing him with his wife and the deceased daughter, plus add to this a rather obligatory visit to a prostitute and that's about all there is to this rather lengthy film.

The dialogue is kept at a minimum. The only moments of conversation were those of the philosophical argument between Achenbach and his protegee and the petty daily exchanges between the composer and various Venetians. He never addresses Tadzio, rather their relationship is comprised of black stares and nothing more. Perhaps the philosophical arguments are not to fully drawn, but Achenbach's interest in the boy seems less of the mind and more of the body. Yet Achenbach is incapable of going beyond any parochial interest in the boy Tadzio and his confusion, this ambiavance, is really the film's vaguest and faultiest point.

Visconti seems to have clumsily blocked his film together (the editing, for the most part, is pretty terrible). The striking visuals mesh with the empty and repetitive action and the philosophical argument between Achenbach and his friend, which was meant as a thematic framework, seems out-of-place with the rest of the film. It's point is to present Achenbach's interest in the boy to be one of a strictly Platonic nature, yet the visuals betray this. No matter how vainly Visconti infuses his films with high-minded sentiments, Achenbach cruises Tadzio with an overt physical attraction.

Achenbach's reaction to this attraction is one of revulsion, then fascination, and finally submission. He at first attempts to escape, then laughs with a spinsterish delight when he fails. Towards the end he even goes as far as attempting a physical overhaul which made him appear like a sosmeticized doll, devoid of any real humanity and a stingingly accurate portrait of quite a man who can't face growing old. His entire trip to Venice and his interest in the boy seem to lack any sort of meaning beyond his, the director, and the screenwriter's comprehension.

Dirk Bogarde as Achenbach is strangely moving. His performance, often resembles the kind of spinster roles Geraldine Page has made famous. Yet as the composer becomes more and more overwhelmed by the boy, Bogarde'sperformance becomes less and less interesting. Tadzio, the Polish youth played by Bjorn Andersenn, isn't asked to do anything more but tease, and even that is done with such seriousness that it seems ludicruous.

Yet despite his ultimate failure, Visconti managed two brilliantly drawn sequences. The first is the film's opening whose evocation of Venice at dawn (to the music of Mahler's Fifth) is glorious to behold; and the second was the lengthy final sequence on the beach which quite nearly redeems the waste which precedes it. Here, though, Visconti's use of near Pavlovian techniques to wrench empathy from his audience seem to serve the opposite effect and only inhibits any genuine emotion. This is the Love Story for the intellectual chic; not quite as banal as the other film, after all it reeks of class, but still designed to demand a similar response. It's the old Hollywood unfulfilled ramance this time in lavender.

Death In Venice is not a film for the impatient as its length isn't sustained by material. The film's major accomplishment is cinematically pinpointing a time and place in which to present its story. Unfortunately the physical design cannot make up for the vacuousness of both script and direction and Death at first leaves you fidgety, then downright bored.

Bergman's Latest: A Touch Of The Poet

By DAN MURPHY AND BOB BISHOFF

One approaches the work of an artist like Bergman with a kind of delicacy, and there is a fine line between delicacy and intimidation. Symbolism extraneous to the texture of the work, cliched situations, and over-worked popular technical devices might be reason enough to dismiss the work of a lesser film maker, though in Bergman's The Touch they prompt a meek "why?" And somewhat more demanding than meek, critics have asked, "why English, why Elliot Gould?"

"Why...?" certainly isn't the best of critical questions, but it does lead us to the problem of ostensibly simple minded cliche in a film made by a mind famous certainly not for cliche making. However, Bergman's film does function at least on the fringes of romantic and religious cliche, and this, at first glance, is rathertroublesome. The Touch is the story of a love triangle between Bibi Andersson, Max Von Sydow, and Elliot Gould (which places the latter in fairly fast company). Bibi Andersson plays the familiar bored/affluent housewife married to a basically kind and tender, yet too-busy-with-his-work Max Von Sydow. Right out of the Ross Hunter film we have the domestic household complete with the harried but lighthearted breakfast scene and a housewife left with nothing to do but have an affair--in this case, with Gould, the American archeologist who falls in love with Bibi Andersson at first sight. Harkening back to the dreadful "sexual" encounters between Rock Hudson and Doris Day, Bergman shows us the clumsy sexual preliminaries at the lovers' first illicit rendezvous, and as the affair grows there is the usual ordeal of separation, the suspicious husband, and, of course, the confrontation between cuckold and lover.

Interwoven into this romantic cliche is a system of more serious, though no less banal religious symbolism. We learn that Bibi Andersson and Max Von Sydow are fond of gardening; Gould becomes, quite obviously, the snake in their domestic garden, and the image is compounded by lingering shots of the archtypal snake carved on the wall of a nearby medieval church. It is this church that Gould, the archeologist, has come to Sweden to excavate. In one of its walls he discovers a wooden statue of the madonna and child hidden there for several centuries. When it is removed, they find that a kind of extinct bug--dormant those years--has been awakened and is eating the statue from within, an all too handy parallel to the condition of the lovers. While this is the central religious symbol, there are no less blatant images of the crucifixion and general sin.

This sounds rather deadly, and at first glance it certainly is. Then why the cliches? A cliche is a dead metaphor, a way of filling space and time without meaning. And it is on this framework that Bergman hangs his intensely personal vision of a woman's search for revitalized life in the face of death which is presented in the first scene. Here, brilliantly acted and photographed, Bibi Andersson stands over the body of her mother dead in a hospital bed. And it is here that Gould first sees her as she crys for her dead mother, and it is here that Gould-- a man professionally interested in dead things--falls in love with her. In a kind of search for freshness, she leaves her staid household with a man incapable of freshness. This presents, too, a plausible explanation for the use of English. The characters are people speaking a language in which the words have only surface meaning, a language devoid of freshness, originality, and precision. To the Swedish couple, English is literally a foreign language. For the Jewish- German- American portrayed by Gould, communication of any kind is foreign. The people themselves are cliches; therefore, they are creatively rendered in cliches.

So if the impetus to explain away flaws is prompted by a kind of intimidation, it is well worth the trouble, for the endeavor leads the viewer into a profoundly rich and ambivalent experience. Bergman's artistic impulse is explorative rather than didactic, and The Touch is no exception. The wealth of visual imagery--merely hinted at by the superficial structure presents a creative vision of human relationships, leaving conclusions to the audience as creative participant. We shouldn't ask much more of film.

Elliot Gould joins Max Von Sydow and Bibi Andersson in "The Touch"

Theater

"All Mimsy Were The Borogoves..."

by Don Glickstein

By now, we've read all the rave reviews and symbolic interpretations of the Manhatten Project's Alice in Wonderland. We've read about its psychological and existential imagery, its dramatic metaphors, its adult orientation. We've read about its innovative theater techniques, we've read about its "Open Theater" similarities. Well, critics have always filled up their space by trying to tell their readers the REAL meaning of "jabberwocky". There isn't much more I can add.

Alice in Wonderland proved once again that the Fine Arts Council doesn't squander $THE $3 student fees it gets. It played to three sold-out houses in Grinnell Arena early this week, and it was brilliant. I wish the troupe had taken a curtain call. Or a couple of them.

The genius of the performance lay in the excellence of the actor's visual masks and layouts. Larry Pine, who played the duck, the dormouse, and the caterpillar, summed up the cast's philosophy best:

"Wow! When are you going to take off your clothes? WOW!"

Director Andre Gregory achieved a brilligous distinction at the UMass performances by ordering "off with her head! Off with his head!" as each person walked into the cozy horse rink and sat down on the bulb-lighted benches or soft sawdust. As Alice began and Jerry Mayer, the Mad Hatter, took a handful of high-grade butter (it wasn't margarine) and smashed it into the slithy toves of the dormouse, Gerry Bammon was metaphysically going mad, dreaming of intense Quixotic allusions and illusions, in his role as the White Knight.

The ultimate psychological evidence of Carroll's madness was symbolically the Cheshire Cat, played by Tom Costello. This ambitious attempt at the portrayal of a degenerate baby pig was all the more impressive as Alice herself started the audience off on a sneezing spell because of the talcum powdered grin--the grin that has now become as famous as DaVinci's immortal Mona Lisa.

Saskia Noordhoek Hegt was depicted by the Red Queen (no kidding!). This Nixonic character gyred and gimbled her way through the human stakes of coquettish croquet, smashing babies and bopping knights under the guise of a tattered, moaning umbrella, until Alice, with Ellsberg-like wabe spoke with stacked courage, "I won't! You're nothing but a pack of cards anyway!"

Angela Pietropinto is not Barbara Streisand or Marlo Thomas, but then again, Marlo and Barbara ain't Alice. Angela is Alice. Such an innocent, yet curious waif, never the world did see; she falls down and down, grows up and up, balloons into a princess, runs like a nice and sultry Brooklyn girl who just met Prince Charming who wants to lay before he marries her, and she isn't entirely opposed to the idea, even if Charming does look like the egg Humpty Dumpty squashed on his head. John Holmes, the stage manager, contributed to Alice's performance by making sure she knew her lines, and that was nice.

* * *

One can lose perspective of it all, hidden away in this University. The student theatres and actors of the area seem to be forgetting more and more that the primary purpose of theater is to entertain, not to impart to its audience some great existential Beckettian or Ionescan truth. They don't seem to understand that clarity does not depend upon a theatrical accent and dialect. The difference between professional companies and amateur companies is that most professional ones respect the needs of their audience, while maintaining their artistic innovation and integrity. They have to; their bread depends upon this relationship.

The Manhattan Company is professional.

College Gives Impressive Performance

by Lloyd Adalist

The Boston Symphony's new contemporary group Collage made its first public appearance at Bowker Auditorium last Friday evening, performing a variety of 20th century compositions. Collage has as its goal the performance of 20th century music of both well known and unknown composers, a function that the BSO itself cannot as a whole carry out. Bowker was nearly full for the first half of the concert, though the audience thinned somewhat after intermission, for reasons which will become evident. The concert opened with Mario Davidovsky's Synchronisms No. 1 for Flute and Electronic Sounds, composed in 1963. Davidovsky provided an interesting blend of electronic effects to go with the flute, and in general it came off well. Unlike much of the electronic noise we hear so often these days, there was not a great amount of strident and cacophonous screeching in this composition. Synchronisms ended rather suddenly, and flutist Paul Fried felt forced to take a bow to make the audience aware that the piece was over.

Following Synchronisms were Three Madrigals for Soprano, Vibraphone and Contrabass, written in 1965 by George Crumb of the University of Pennsylvania. The madrigal is, of course, a very old musical form dating from Medieval times, but here, Mr. Crumb set extracts of three poems by the late Spanish poet Frederico Garcia Lorca (1899-1936) to music. The first,

"Verte desnuda es recordar la tierra," was not impressive, but the other two, "No piensan en lluvia, y se han dormido" and "Los muertos leevan alas de musgo" were excellent. In the second, all three performers: Joan Heller, soprano; Frank Epstein, vibraphone; and Larry Wolfe, contrabass, were asked by the composer to transmit the sounds of rain (lluvia), and did so admirably. And in the final madrigal, some very ghostlike noises were made both by the soprano and on the contrabass to convey the feeling of the dead (muertos) flying along with mossy wings (alas de musgo).

Jacob Druckman's Valentine for Contrabass, written in 1969 came across as a rather humorous work, though whether so intended or not is unclear. However, Larry Wolfe's performance and stage presence kept the audience chuckling to itself throughout the piece. Druckman calls not only for use of the bow and pizzicato, but also for tympany sticks and the hands to be used on the bass, as the performer hums tones. If nothing else, this composition proves that the contrabass, and bassist Wolfe, can be much more versatile than many had previously thought.

What followed was an unmitigated disaster. The audience was subjected to the first performance of Nocturnes by Tibor Pusztai. Hardly reminiscent of the nocturnes to which most of us are accustomed, this "composition" asked an amplified violin to screech at us, an amplified clarinet to howl at us, put a dancer whose body was gaudily painted on the stage for the audience to look at, and in general made many people uncomfortable. At least one elderly couple walked out in the middle of the performance, and the end of the work was greeted by at least a few hisses, and deservedly so. Falling as it did right before intermission, Nocturnes unfairly alienated some members of the audience, and for this reason there were not a few empty seats after the break. It is sad that this occurred, because the second half of the concert certainly merited their staying.

Ernst Krenek's Trio for Violin, Clarinet and Piano, Opus 108, opened the second half of the concert. A short work composed in 1946, it was not unpleasant, though the three musicians didn't seem to put a great deal into their performance. The concert closed with the chamber version of Lukas Foss' Time Cycle. This was perhaps the most beautiful work performed last Friday evening. It set to music writings of W. H. Auden, A. E. Hausman, Franz Kafka, and Friedrich Nietzche, on the subjects of time, clocks, and bells. The most lovely part of this work was the use of cello and clarinet together. There are very few instruments which go together as well as these two mellow ones, and with the fine performances of Ronald Feldman on cello and Peter Hadcock on clarinet, this harmonious relationship was that much better.

With the exception of Nocturnes, Collage gave an impressive concert a week ago. It was sad that the program was designed in a way that alienated a portion of the audience half way through, but I suppose these sort of accidents do occur. I hope that the group will return, because there are exciting things going on in composition these days. The contrast of this concert with the remainder of the Fine Arts Council's Chamber Music Series is perhaps sharp, but certainly not to be condemned, regardless of what one thought of the Collage concert.

CLEAR SKY
SAT. 8:30
WOODSIDE LOUNGE
on Rt. 9 Williamsburg at Rt. 143
-just past Northampden
$1 cover - food - regular bar prices

Program Council Presents
"Goodbye, Mister Chips"
— with Peter O'Toole
Sunday, Nov. 14
6:45 and 9:45 p.m.
S.U. Ballroom 50¢

Basic Audio

Tape Recorders - Part II

by Frank Johnson

Last time we saw how a tape head works as a transducer. As we want to know something about how tape is handled by tape recorders, we'll take up this topic today.

Like any other component, the cost of a tape machine will rise according to how elaborate it is. Sophistication usually takes form in convenience and mechanical features, for making low-noise electronics on a tape recorder is less of a problem today than it used to be. More expensive machines use more than one drive motor, usually three. One is used to drive the capstan, which operates in conjunction with a pulley and travels the tape across the heads. The other two motors turn the reels. Their power is most needed, however, when the tape is either advanced forward quickly (in the fast-forward mode) or else rewound. Quick operation is desired for one basic reason: to put more tape on a tape recorder, we need a bigger reel. When we have a lot of tape on a reel, slow rewinding wastes a lot of time. This is not so much of a problem with standard 7" reel sizes holding 1200' of tape, but when we either go up to 2400' lengths or 10-1/2" sized reels, we need a tape machine with 3 motors.

Increasing the size of the reel can be done only up to a certain degree, because many machines can't accept extra-large reels. Only a few open-reel tape recorders take 10-1/2" reels (known as "Broadcast-size") - most of them will only accept 7" reels- and cartridge machines such as the cassette have even more of a problem, because the size of the cartridge cannot be allowed to increase. In this case the tape itself must be thinner, if it is to fit on the same hub; this can be done by simply reducing the thickness of the backing. But as we do this, the strength of the backing is concurrently reduced. Weak backing is a particular fault of acetate, used on low-cost tape, because when acetate backing is thinner than 1.5 mils (1 mil-1/1000") it breaks rather easily. Backing thickness becomes easier to reduce when acetate is replaced by polyester (also known as Mylar), which is considerably stronger and does not break as easily. Polyester nevertheless has a tendency to stretch, so it should be pre-stressed (tensilized) to avoid this potential problem. In this case, we can reduce backing thickness to 1/3 that of acetate, and increase the time for one side of the tape reel.

Another way of getting more time out of tape is to decrease the speed at which it travels. Tape speeds are fractions of 30, measured in inches travelled/sec. (ips). (When the metric system is used, it is centimeters/sec (cps).) The first tape recorders, like the first records, needed a very fast speed to get high-fidelity results- they had to run at 30 ips, a rather wasteful speed. As tape and tape heads improved, this was reduced to 15 ips when tape began to be in widespread use; more economical, but hardly acceptable with small reel sizes. With the advent of precise oxide formulations and thinner backings, 7-1/2 ips became possible, and it is now the current industry standard. Later on, the "slow speeds" were developed, though originally they were confined to dictation and voice work because fidelity was not as good as results with the faster speeds. It is with the "slow speeds"- 3-3/4, 1-7/8, and 15/16 ips- that both economy and simplicity can be realized. Because each descending speed is one-half that of the preceding faster speed, twice as much time for the same amount of tape is possible.

Do your tapes hiss? Try one of these on for size. Sixteen track tape for studio recording, a must when you're mixing sixteen tracks down to two- noise increases by about 10db.

What is not possible virtually dictates whether or not these speeds are acceptable for critical use. Each time speed is decreased, wow and flutter (for definition, see earlier turntable column) increases, because stabilizing inertia is not so great. High-frequency response decreases, because electromagnetic transfer is not as efficient. The gap of the tape head must be much narrower than normal to achieve the same results with a slower speed, and the oxide particles on the tape must be finer and more precise. Adjustment of the heads is more critical, also. If all these refinements are realized, however, slow-speed tape performance can be quite acceptable. It is due to these and other factors that 3-3/4 ips cartridges, plus the ubiquitous cassette (which travels at 1-7/8 ips) have achieved their popularity.

Changing over to tape formulations for a moment, we should point out that although the transduction principle is the same with all different kinds of tape, the formulation of the oxide with different brands may not be identical; in fact, very few are. As our uses become more critical, so does consistency in tape oxide formulations. We discussed the need for proper bias in the last column: bias is one of the most important aspects in critical tape operation, because different brands of tape react differently to the same amount of bias current. This really begins to get important when we try to deal with a recurring problem with all tape machines: tape hiss.

If you have done a lot of hi-fi listening, you have no doubt listened to minor yet detectable background hissy noise on LP records. This comes from the master tape, which was recorded before the record was cut. It is an almost unsolved problem with tape, but it can be reduced to more acceptable levels by several methods. The simplest method is to use better tape than the usual kind, which generates less noise with the same level. This low-noise tape not only reduces hiss, but it can be run at a slower speed on many machines as well, with essentially the same results. If we really want to take advantage of low-noise tape, though, we need to adjust the bias current for it, because it tends to use more bias current than standard or normal tape. Cassettes can now benefit from new oxides, such as chromium dioxide (CrO_2), but this oxide needs much more bias than regular tapes. If low-noise tape seems to be a good investment, it is a good idea to have the machine specially adjusted for it to realize its full potential.

Besides a change in bias current, this adjustment should also include a change in what we call equalization. This is a process by which low frequencies are attenuated and high frequencies boosted during the recording process. During playback, the lows are boosted and the highs attenuated to give a flat response. This is necessary to reduce hiss, and if we plan to change over to low-noise tape, we should include a change in equalization as well, for it differs slightly in this case. During the adjustment, we should also make sure that the tape heads are aligned properly. All the heads should have correct azimuth (vertical alignment) to make sure that the head gap is placed so as to get the best high-frequency response. In addition, other tape head factors such as tilt, tangency (constant perpendicularity to the tape), and height are necessary. Some of these important parameters need not be so critical with tape recorders that use pressure pads to hold the tape closely against the heads. At the sacrifice of some increased head wear, alignment is not so critical.

Also, we must be able to adjust the input level so as to get as good a compromise between high sensitivity for quiet passages, and freedom from distortion and overload on loud peaks. For this we need some kind of indicating device, either in the form of an electron tube or a VU (Volume Unit) meter. Although meters are more common than tubes, they are difficult to design for very accurate operation, and in many cases will only give us very relative indication of level. An electron "eye" type tube can be much more accurate because its response is instantaneous, but it has grown into disfavor with transistorized tape recorders simply because it is a tube and it needs special circuitry. In any event, both a tube and a meter should indicate optimum input level, corresponding to 0 VU, or 0.775 volt. When the tape recorder input is so adjusted, we will have a much better signal-to-noise ratio- the ratio of noise and distortion to music (expressed in db)- and this means less tape hiss.

Finally, for the greatest hiss reduction, we can use a new device called the Dolby noise-reduction system. This device has permitted cassettes to be really competitive with records by virtue of reducing their inherently high hiss. It works by monitoring the input level of the tape recorder and reducing the level during quiet passages, and then increasing it during peaks, so as to realize the full potential of the tape. There are two kinds of Dolbys- type A and type B- the one we should be most concerned about is Type B, the "home use" model. Type A divides the input into five noise-reducing bands, whereas Type B affects only frequencies closest to hiss (over 10,000 cycles). Many new machines come with a Dolby already installed, but it is possible to add one to your present deck if you so desire. A Dolby unit must be used both in the record and playback mode. This means that it doesn't do much good to Dolby-ize a tape if you don't have Dolby circuitry on your tape recorder. If this is the case, some peaky high frequencies will result, plus some increased distortion. With low-noise tape and a Dolby device, however, a tape recorder can really compete with the quality on a record, producing truly "state-of-the-art" results.

Microphones come next on the list of transducers, a logical follow-up to tape recorders. We'll look at them next week.

Weekend

Continued from page 12A

Malayan jungles. The film is best remembered for the torrid shower scene featuring Harlow. Gable later recreated his original role, this time with Ava Gardner, in the lavish 1954 spectacle Mogambo.

Rosemary's Baby (Friday, Campus Center Auditorium, 7, 9:30, 12)

Roman Polanski's film version of the Ira Levin eerie bestseller which seems even more gruesome today in lieu of the Manson murders. It is an appropriate blend of suspense and psychological nuance about a young bride who believes her husband has made some sort of deal with the Devil where he exchanged fame and fortune for their firstborn. Mia Farrow gives her finest performance to date as the confused Rosemary and is well assisted by John Cassavettes and Ruth Gordon who are both snively evil as her husband and neighbor respectfully. The film's best point is Polanski's direction which has a perverse pleasure ingrained in it that builds to a suspenseful and frightening conclusion that's even better than the book.

Ryan's Daughter (Showcase Cinema, West Springfield)

An inflated romantic epic that is redeemed through some of its beautiful photography. The story is quite conventional, approaching banality, which concerns the infidelities of a young, Irish woman during the Irish Revolution. The music swells, the scenery awes, the waves roar, the revolution is fought, and the actors do their best with the hopelessly ordinary script of Robert Bolt. David Lean captures the right atmosphere and manages a number of interesting performances, namely John Mills in a supporting role which won him an Oscar and Trevor Howard, yet even his sense of style cannot save this mawkish epic.

Skin Game (Amherst Cinema, Amherst)

A funny and delightful film, one of the more underrated of recent months. A white and black man pose as confidence men in pre-Civil War South until complications arise. James Garner and Lou Gossett are quite good as the two in this extremely likeable comedy.

Together (Showcase Cinema, West Springfield; Campus Cinemas, Hadley)

A mother and daughter commented upon this film upon seeing it and said these people had beautiful bodies and did nothing but sex all day through. As far as the mother was concerned the film was boring, because they couldn't talk intelligently about art.

The Touch (Campus Cinemas, Hadley)

Igmar Bergman's first English language film and Elliot Gould's first attempt at acting. For more see review on page 8a.

The Trip (Friday, Mahar, 7, 9, 11)

Roger Corman's most pretentious film and one of the first attempts at approximating the drug experience on the screen. It doesn't hold up well at all, looking more like an exercise in flashy technique than an equivalent of Acid tripping. The screenplay by Jack Nicholson is rather simple as is most of the acting by Peter Fonda as a television commercial director who expands his mind with a little bit of sunshine. The film, though, was one of the first which viewed sex from above the covers and the final montage of Fonda and some girl is quite sensual.

2001: A Space Odyssey (Showcase Cinema, West Springfield)

Unquestionably one of the finest films in recent years. A beautiful synthesis by the great American director Stanely Kubrick of pop philosophy and beautiful cinematic imagery that is quite awe-inspiring. The special effects are amongst the finest ever seen in film. The loose-three part structure concerns the transformation of man, from ape to a future superman, through the help of superior beings from another galaxy. The music and photography all complement the mighty theme which succeeds magnificently on a visual level alone and proves Kubrick to be a genius among American filmmakers.

Woman In Love (Academy of Music, Northampton)

Ken Russell's lush interpretation of D.H. Lawrence's social and sexual tract about the changing mores of early Twentieth Century England. The film may seem a bit difficult to follow without some beforehand knowledge of the social context in which it all occurs, yet the stunning technique Russell employs in telling his story of the interrelationships of four diverse people make it well worth seeing.

Murray Lewis Company Visits Next Week

The Murray Louis Dance Company will appear at the UMass-Amherst for a three-day residency, Tuesday through Thursday, Nov. 16-18, as part of the UMass Fine Arts Council series of dance performances.

For its second appearance at UMass, The Murray Louis Dance Company, headed by the noted dancer and choreographer, Murray Louis, will offer two different evening performances in Bowker Auditorium at 8 p.m. Nov. 17 and 18, and a Master Class Nov. 16 at 3:30 p.m. in the Studio of the Women's Physical Education Building.

This residency is part of the 1971 Massachusetts Coordinated Dance Residency Project co-sponsored by the Massachusetts Council on Arts and Humanities and The National Endowment for the Arts.

For 22 years, Murray Louis was closely associated with choreographer Alwin Nikolais and his company, as student, principal dancer and collaborator. In 1969 Murray Louis formed his own company and the two companies have continued their creative lives side by side. Clive Barnes, New York Times reviewer has characterized Mr. Louis this way: "Louis himself is a brilliant dancer--one of the best technicians in modern dance. He excels in rhythmic responses and muscular control, but also has an exceptional beauty of line that is more like that of a classical than a modern dancer. He has in abundance, a theatricality, a coldly dada sense of the ridiculous, and a crystal bright imagination."

The evening performances on Nov. 17 and 18 will feature two different three-part programs. The Wednesday, Nov. 17, program will include "GO 6" created in 1968 with a sound score by Arnold Heinrich; and "Calligraph For Martyrs" (1961), performed in costumes that make the dancers seem like richly colored shards of stained glass from a medieval cathedral. The "Calligraph" dance creates an analogy between our nuclear day and that of the Middle Ages when the Black Plague covered the earth and people waited helplessly to die. Music and lighting for "Calligraph" are by Alwin Nikolais. "Personnae" (1971), with music by Free Life Communications, will also be performed Wednesday. "Personnae" was completed through a fellowship from the John Simon Guggenheim Foundation.

The Thursday, Nov. 18, program will include "Proximities" (1969), with music by Johannes Brahms, and "Continuum" (1971), with music by Corky Siegel Blues Band. Both were commissioned by a grant from U.S. National Endowment for the Arts. "Personnae" (1971) will also be performed that night.

UT Presents Saroyan Play

UMass Theatre will present William Saroyan's THE CAVE DWELLERS, Thursday through Saturday evenings, Nov. 11-13 and 18-20, 8:30 p.m., in Bartlett Auditorium. THE CAVE DWELLERS, demonstrates all of the strengths of Saroyan's work as a dramatist.

The poetry of suffering that gives dignity and charm to destitute people (in this case a once great clown, a former famous actress, and down and out prize fighter) is evident in the CAVE DWELLERS. A number of surprising people wander into this play, a frightened young girl, a trainer with his performing bear, a pregnant woman who gives birth to her child between acts, a mute milkman, and a goodhearted boss of a wrecking crew. Their conversation is about the things Saroyan's people usually talk about, such as love, hope and fear. It is a situation appropriate for our day as it was when it was produced successfully on Broadway in 1957.

It is essentially an independent work, original in fancy and inimitable in sentiment. As always Saroyan always believed in his people and we are able to share in his belief.

At one point The King (the former clown) says, "I cannot be angry...This is the world...What is the world for? It's for putting up with...with humor, if possible. Without excuses, without astonishment, without regret, without shame, without any system and order more elaborate than courtesy and love.

Tickets for this unique play may be reserved at the Bartlett Box Office or by calling 545-2579. Prices are $1.50 for UMass Students and $2.00 for all others.

William Saroyan author of THE CAVE DWELLERS has always been an enigma to American critics and intellectuals. In one breath they seem to damn him and praise him. Born in Fresno, California in 1908 of Armenian immigrants, Saroyan has taken the concepts of most of his work from those early days of childhood. At an early age he decided to become a writer and in 1926 moved to San Francisco. It wasn't until 1934 that he finally succeeded in having his work given a wide audience, but after "breaking the ice" his rise to fame was swift. This was so much so that by 1940 he had received The New York Drama Critics Award and the Pulitzer Prize for THE TIME OF YOUR LIFE. Since that time his plays and novels and short stories have been published and produced all over the world. The question is always asked why should such a popular dramatist (The Time of Your Life, My Hearts in the Highlands) and novelist (The Human Comedy, My Name is Aram) should receive such critical disapproval.

Possibly the answer lies in the people he writes about. Saroyan places his emphasis on the "good guys", or at least on the "happy guys", he has seemingly sinned against the seriousness and pessimism of our literature. Instead of a literature of anger or denial, his is one of affirmation: "In the time of our life, live." He has steadfastly refused to accept the prevailing ideals of composition and predominant pessimism of Naturalism. Because his treatment of serious themes has often appeared casual, deeper implications have sometimes been overlooked. On the whole, however, drama critics have been fairly generous with him. And rightly so, his plays have always been noted for a freshness of expression and sense of humanity that cannot be overlooked.

Critical Comments On Murray Lewis

"Sunday night at the Tyrone Gutherie Theatre the Louis Company put on a staggering display, getting a spontaneous standing ovation which was as richly deserved as it was rare. The work was a joy —skillful, witty, intricate, superbly logical and exhilarating. The company is great showing the vital, muscular discipline its reputation is based on. And Louis as a choreographer gives ground to no other in his sense of kinetic wit and as a dancer gives no grcund in his virtuoso display of muscle control."

—Mike Steele,
MINNEAPOLIS TRIBUNE
(1/20/70)

"Murray Louis is one of the great (some think the greatest) modern dance performers of our time. 'He does the impossible with ease.' At home in the air where he can make split-second changes of direction like a jaguar, he seems to touch down on the earth rather than to spring up from it, and he may cling there on one toe while assuming astonishing, moving bodily metamorphoses."

—Kathleen Cannell,
CHRISTIAN SCIENCE MONITOR (6/15,70)

"A dance concert by the Murray Louis Dance Company can generally be counted on for artistic interest, variety, entertainment and always leaves the audience laughing — and satisfied!"

—Joan B. Cass,
HERALD TRAVELLER, BOSTON (8/15/70)

"Mr. Louis is a marvelous dancer, one of our very best. His technical control is awesome, and his movement range extends from a delightfully humorous finger flick to beautiful bursts of aerial action. He reminds me of mercury...for he is truly all quicksilver: elusive, unexpected, mobile, but superbly self-contained."

—Walter Terry,
SATURDAY REVIEW (10/10/70)

"Mr. Louis has developed a dance language of the contemporary age, something that is new and relevant to modern life. This is dance of the teeming present, not the past."

HINDUSTAN STANDARD, CALCUTTA, INDIA (1/26/68)

What's Happened To The Big Three (continued)

Continued from page 5A

announcing that it would be engaging in censorship and that there were spoken and printed words which it considered "obscene." It is interesting that the word "balls" was among the first of the new obscenities. Since women do not have balls, the use of that word to indicate the possession of courage implied, in the opinion of the libbers, that women cannot be courageous. Why this implication must be drawn the women libbers have never stated, but believing it to be so they have used whatever power they have to make that use of the word an obscene and censorable offense.

While working at the New England Free Press in Boston last year I came across a copy of another radical newspaper from the San Francisco area that had had a similar problem. In the issue I read, the members of the newspaper, a collective of men and women, printed the discussion they had had with members of a women's group. The women's liberationists had wanted to meet only with the women of the newspaper collective but these had refused to meet with them unless the entire collective attended, male and female. When the women liberation group demanded the paper stop using words like "chick" and "balls" the women on the newspaper answered that they could no more see the reason for this than they could see no longer refering to men as "dudes" or blacks as "spades." Since they had neither been conceived as slurs nor used as slurs by them, there was no reason to now endow them with the power of obscenities. And as a radical newspaper they were against the idea of censoring articles or letters from their readers.

It seems "obscenity" will continue to be a problem for both the old and the new generations, and there is no reason not to believe that the new generation will someday work out a list of words and expressions it will not tolerate. It would be nice if a society could enforce its ban on what it considers obscene by means of social pressure rather than by legal statute. But that does not seem to be the case. No matter what segment of society we investigate, someone is laying down the law and making policy for us all. That is probably why societies usually reject extreme leadership and look for direction from the more moderate factions (if they get the choice).

And still that elusive balance in life will not be attained. Whatever they may be, there will be new obscenities to replace those that fall in each generation's rebellion. And yet, this may be the balance of life-- to be secure in the knowledge that in twenty years time on some type or another of television talk program the familiar "bleeps" will be heard. For different words, no doubt, and from another censor's hand, but those warm, comfortable "bleeps" nonetheless, rythmically flowing to assure us that someone somewhere has a firm view of what is "sin" and is protecting us from it.

PETER FONDA * DENNIS HOPPER
In
"THE TRIP"
(in color)
Music by the ELECTRIC FLAG
Screen play by Jack Nicholson
The Film before Easy Rider
FRIDAY EVENING - NOV. 12
MAHAR AUD. 7, 9, 11 p.m.

ACADEMY OF MUSIC
AT THE GATES OF SMITH COLLEGE
NOW...Ends TUES.
2 Encore Hits
NORTHAMPTON, MASS 584-8435 PARK MASONIC ST. LOT
LARRY KRAMER and MARTIN RUSIN present KEN RUSSELL'S
D. H. LAWRENCE'S "WOMEN IN LOVE"
COLOR by DeLuxe United Artists R
Show at 9:05
JEROME HELLMAN-JOHN SCHLESINGER PRODUCTION
"MIDNIGHT COWBOY"
R COLOR by DeLuxe United Artists
Shown at 7:00
Starts Wed. Nov. 17-Rohmer's "CLAIRE'S KNEE"
Starts Sun. Nov. 21-Truffaut's "BED & BOARD"

Weekend

By BOB NESTI

Music

Arthur "Big Boy" Crudup
Arthur "Big Boy" Crudup has had a long time coming. He lived in Mississippi before coming to Chicago during the Thirties. Despite some early recording and songwriting contracts, he was forced to work odd jobs to make a living. Since then he's appeared at many different locations, touring back-up and headlining throughout the country. He's at the Amherst Folklore Center tonight at 8:30. ($).

Seatrain
Capitol's popular group with their phenominal fiddle comes to Smith tonight at 8 in John M. Greene Hall. ($).

Theater

Antigone and In Splendid Error
Two contemporary dramas by Black playwrights as performed by the Black Repertory Theatre and directed by Esther Terry. Tonight and tomorrow evenings at 7:30 and Sunday afternoon at 3:30.($)

The Cave Dwellers
William Saroyan's tender comedy. For more details see page 11A. ($).

The Iceman Cometh
A fine production of Eugene O'Neill's difficult play as presented by the Amherst Masquers this weekend. Performances will take place evenings through Sunday at 7:30 at Kirby Theater, Amherst College. ($).

Films

The French Connection (Showcase Cinemas, West Springfield)
A fact-based account of how police trackdown a shipment of heroin in New York City which is a fast, flashy, and fascinating thriller. The grittiness and chaos of New York City is captured at breakneck speed and brutality by director William Friedkin who has fashioned perhaps the stylish and finest thriller in some time. Gene Hackman plays a boorish dectective who, as the antisocial, antihuman, boorish detective somewhere between Bullitt and Joe, is becoming the latest film cliche.

Gone With The Wind (Calvin Theater, Northampton)
An all-time Hollywood classic and a splendid example of classy Hollywood professionalism. Based upon the highly successful romantic novel by Margaret Mitchell about the Civil War, the film culminated and captured an entire generation's feelings as to what a romantic epic should be. Vivien Leigh played Scarlett O'Hara (and won her first Oscar) and Clark Gable as Rhett Butler. The film won Oscars in nearly all categories, including Best Picture and Director (although it had three during its lengthy filming); it also was the lengthiest film ever made and the first to have a four letter word as part of its script.

The Hunting Party (Jerry Lewis Cinemas, Northampton)
A kidnapping with a switch: a badman abducts the wife of a rich cattleowner and she finds herself liking the switch. The jealous husband doesn't particularly care for this idea and pursues the two with a high-powered rifle in a brutal, bloody hunt that concludes the film. It's hardly worth the bother, with Candice Bergen, Oliver Reed, and Gene Hackman.

Dinner At Eight (Friday, Merrill Science Center, Amherst College, 7 and 9)
A cynical comedy-drama from the early Thirties which was directed and adapted in a sophisticated Grand Hotel manner by George Cukor and written by Edna Ferber and George Kaufman. It featured a huge cast, led by the Barrymore brothers and the wonderful Jean Harlow.

Dr. Zhivago (Campus Cinemas, Hadley; Showcase Cinemas, West Springfield)
This lengthy and simplified adaptation of one of the more notorious cocktail party-and-coffee table novels of the past decade is quite ponderous and pretentious. The film concerns a man's wrestling with his political and social identity set against the chaotic Russian Revolution. Boris Pasternack's novel has been reduced to academic and romantic gloss which isn't helped at all by David Lean's heavy direction. Michael Jarre's music is pseudo-Russian, as is the production which bears more a resemblance to the Hollywood expensive epic.

"Wall Street, Wall Street, Wall Street for me!" sings Ann Miller as she plods her way through this production number from Dames at Sea which will be seen Sunday night on NBC.

Members of the Murray Lewis Dance Company.

Freaks (Friday, Merrill Science Center, Amherst College, 8 and 10)
Tod Browning's often brilliant and chilling fable about a group of sideshow freaks who react with a vergeance when they feel infringed upon. The film has had a notorious history being barred for some thirty years from this country for Browning, by using real freaks as his cast, gave his film an unexpected reality which jarred the audience. It is often difficult to interpret, whether or not Browning's naive liberalism was meant as a parody. The film's conclusion, though, has the effect of a nightmare.

Le Bonheur (Friday, SU Ballroom, 7 and 9)
The first feature-length film by the impressive young director Agnes Varda. It is a very pretty, often naively romantic story about a man who is happily married with wife and child and carries on an idyllic affair with a beautiful young women. It's almost too perfect, filled with lovely colors, beautiful images, and a near-Romantic Mozart woodwind chamber piece used as the film's theme music. It is a bit disturbing, though, for as it presents a vision of happiness it all too often obscures the difficulties which sometime exist within relationships and, when it does, it knocks the viewer for quite a loop. It's nearest equivalent is Elvira Madigan, yet with more movement and substance.

MASH (Thursday, SU Ballroom, 7 and 9:30; Campus Cinema, Hadley)
Robert Altman's bitter and hilarious look at three Army medics during the Korean conflict. It seems less like a war and more like a fraternity house, yet the situations, the characters, and the vignette-style plot is put together in a tremendously successful whiz-bang manner by the director and scriptwriter Ring Lardner Jr. The cast is superlative, led by Elliot Gould, Donald Sutherland, and Sally Kellerman, and the film has the best combination of biting wit and truth of any American comedy since Strangelove.

Midnight Cowboy (Academy of Music, Northampton)
John Schlesinger's cinematic version of James Leo Herlihy's gritty and compassionate novel about two of society's misfits who form a touching laison within the brutally cruel atmosphere of New York City. There are two positively dazzling performances by Dustin Hoffman and Jon Voight, the latter's being the finest film debut in recent memory. The story concerns a stupid lunk of a man who travels to New York to seek his fortune as a hustler for rich women. He quickly learns the streets aren't paved with gold and finds his only relationship is with a lonely, humpback named Rico. Schlesigner can be faulted only in the making of the film a bit too glossy and oversentimental, otherwise his handling of actors and situations makes for a compelling and moving film.

Mr. Roberts (Orchard Hill Film Series)
The film version of the Forties Broadway play about a man who wishes to see some war action and only languishes onboard a transport vessel. The situations are often funny and the relationships do have a warmth, especially when performed by a top-notch cast led by Henry Fonda in the Glenda Jackson, star of Women in Love, title role, James Cagney, and Jack Lemmon in his Oscar winning role.

Plaza Suite (Jerry Lewis Cinemas, Northampton)
Neil Simon, Broadway's most prolific wit, has adapted his own evening of three short plays all taking place in a suite at the luxurious Plaza Hotel to the screen. The results are mixed; his lines are often very funny, yet his characters and situations too come across a bit too sticky for comfort. Walter Mathau plays three roles; and he is a bit too bombastic for an entire film. The woman fare a bit better with the usually superlative Maureen Stapleton and the equally as competent Lee Grant in supporting roles.

Red Dust (Sunday, Merrill Science Center, Amherst College, 8 and 10)
An early thirties film which teamed the unbeatably camp combination of Clark Gable and Jean Harlow lost in the

Continued on page 10A

New England's Largest College Daily

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

Weather: They had high hopes for you, lad. But you let them down, every one.

VOLUME XCIX, ISSUE 47 UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS MONDAY, NOVEMBER 15, 1971

Over the bullrushes and through the swamp to Barbara's place we go. Just watch out for the mud, snakes, and barking dogs. And who would believe that UMie land is just a kiss away. (MDC Photo by Steve Schmidt)

Sixty Walk Ten Miles For Heart Fund

By ED SLOAN

More than 60 UMass students took part Saturday in a 10 mile walk from the UMass infirmary to Cooley Dickinson Hospital in Northampton as a means to earn money for the Heart Fund.

The walk was sponsored by the national service fraternity, APO, with the help of its sister sorority, GSS. A number of walkers, not of APO or GSS, also registered and joined in the activity, voluntarily collecting their own pledges for each mile walked.

The route walked included the length of University Drive, the sidewalks of Route 9 into Northampton Center, and beyond to the Cooley Dickinson Hospital. Walkers were instructed to stop at checkpoints along the way to certify their adherence to the route as well as to receive coffee and sandwiches.

At 1 P.M., two hours after the walk started, APO's Vernie Hatch (also a member of the UMass cross-country track team) came running into the Cooley Dickinson lobby in a gym sweat suit to become the first to finish. "I don't even feel tired," Vernie said as he listed his name at the last checkpoint, although he admitted being a bit cold from his wet clothes after having run the full distance.

Young, pretty nurses quickly busied themselves to prepare a room for the unexpected quick arrival of the other walkers so that they could rest up, eating donuts, drinking coffee, and watching TV. All walkers finished the walk and with the exception of one girl who twisted her knee, none seemed to be too tired.

One APO brother said of the walk after he finished, "That wasn't bad at all."

But in the car ride back to the University, one co-ed from Van Meter asked, "Did we really walk all this? I didn't realize how long it was."

However, a group of energetic and lively girls from Johnson House who walked together said they sang songs along the entire route and didn't mind the walk at all.

"Will you do it again?" this reporter asked the girls.

"When? Next week? Next month? You bet. It was lots of fun," the contingent from Johnson House concurred.

Mike Roberts, chairman of the project was most gratified by the success of the Heart Fund walk and all the money to be taken in from pledges for each walker. He hopes that the Heart Fund walk can become an annual APO service project

A table will be set up in the Campus Center Tuesday through Friday of this week to receive all Heart Fund pledges.

On The Inside:

- Fac-Sen Analysis See page two
- Athletic Fund See page three
- Coal And Dock Strikes See page four
- Women's Caucus Formed See page ten

Analysis

Understanding The Faculty Senate

By JERRY LAZAR

To understand the way the U.S. government operates and why people within the system do the things they do, it is often helpful to examine an important document which helps explain all these things--the Constitution of the U.S.A.

By the same token, to understand the way the UMass Faculty Senate operates, and why people on the Senate do the things they do it is helpful to resort to the Constitution of the Faculty Senate.

It seems that many students at UMass--freshman and seniors alike--have little or no concept as to what the Faculty Senate is, why it exists, how it operates, what powers it has, or what role it plays in the policy-making of UMass campus. PURPOSE: The purpose of the Faculty Senate as stated in its Constitution is "to discuss and recommend policies affecting the University." Another reason for the Faculty Senate's existance is to "promote faculty participation in developing policies and procedures within the various colleges, schools, divisions, and departments of the University."

A recent policy (effective for the first time this semester) which has been the result of Faculty Senate promotion is the new grading system, in which grades of AB, BC, CD, can be recorded in addition to the former and traditional A, B, C, D, and F.

The powers of the Faculty Senate are only those delegated to it by the Board of Trustees, plus the power to determine how it will internally function. Outside of that, the Faculty Senate has no independent powers of its own. In effect, the Board of Trustees is the final authority on all policies, and nearly everything the Faculty Senate does has to be approved by the Board of Trustees. Before any action goes to the Board for approval it must first go to the President or Chancellor for his comments. The Chancellor may ask the Senate to reconsider its action.

The Board of Trustees in its By-Laws directs the faculty to "organize and suggests areas for consideration by the Faculty...all important matters to the University its research, instruction, and welfare and discipline of the students." The Constitution further states that the Senate shall be consulted on matters pertaining to educational policy."

MEMBERSHIP: There are two kinds of members in the Faculty Senate--elected members and ex-officio members. Ex-officio members include University officials ranging from the Chancellor and the deans of all the various schools within the University, to the Director of Libraries. There are over a dozen of these ex-officio members, and all of them (except the Dean of men and the Dean of women), have the right to vote. But to insure against Administration dominance, the Faculty Senate Constitution designates that "the ratio of elected members to ex-officio members shall equal or exceed the ratio of 4 to 1.

Elected members of the Faculty Senate serve for three years. After this three year term of membership, a senator has to wait for a year before he is again eligible to run for election. Any fulltime faculty member can vote in the elections, provided he is not on leave of absence or in his first semester at the University. Membership is determined by the composition of districts. The number of representatives elected from the districts (School of Education, School of Agriculture, etc.) is determined by the size of the faculty and the number of students represented by the faculty.

The Faculty Senate normally meets every other week during the academic year. Officially, the Chancellor of the University is the President of the Senate, but by tradition a Chairman pro-tempore does little more than run the meetings. The real administrative officer of the Faculty Senate is the Secretary. His duty, as described by the Constitution, is to "coordinate activities of the Senate and its committees, to oversee the implementation of Senate enactments, and to serve as official spokesman of the Senate."

Besides the regular meetings, special meetings may be called by the President, Chancellor, 20% of the Senate, or 10% of the faculty. These meetings have been called in times of crisis, when there is a heavy work load (usually in the spring), and when a committee report of special importance comes up.

COMMITTEES: The real nitty gritty work of the Faculty Senate is accomplished in committees and to fully understand the actions taken by the Faculty Senate, one has to look into the committee from which the decision originated.

Membership on committee can include nearly anybody associated with the University--faculty, administration, alumni, and students, but there must be at least one elected senator on each committee.

There are two types of committees--standing committees and ad hoc committees. Ad hoc committees may be formed when particular situations or matters arise. The Constitution specifically provides for two committees and three councils. There is little difference between a council and a committee.

The most influential committee is the Committee on Committees. This committee is responsible for studying and reporting on the committee structure of the Senate "with a view to its revision in the light of changing needs." The Committee on Committees also has the power to appoint all appointed members of all other Senate Committees.

The Tenure and Grievance Committee hears cases involving faculty tenure and dismissal, and grievances in general. It also formulates and studies personnel policies and procedures.

The three councils specified in the Constitution are the Athletic Council, Health Council, and Research Council.

AMENDMENTS: Like any good democratic Constitution, the Faculty Senate Constitution provides for amendments. An amendment may be proposed by a minimum of 50 faculty members, and ratified by a majority of those present at the following General Faculty meeting.

Viet Cong Study Supressed

HAMBURG, Germany (AP) - A Rand Corp. study on the indoctrination and tactics of the Viet Cong commissioned by the Pentagon has been surpressed because the findings clashed with official U.S. Government thinking, the news magazine Der Spiegel reported Sunday.

The 281-page study, based on interviews with Viet Cong deserters, concluded that the battlefield success of the movement resulted from the high ideological motivation of the guerrilla fighters, Spiegel claimed.

The study also implied that the policy of "Vietnamizing" the war effort was futile, the magazine said.

It said these findings contradicted the U.S. government-favored thesis expressed in researcher Douglas Pike's study, "The Viet Cong Strategy of Terror." This study maintained that terror tactics were responsible for Viet Cong successes and proposed a strategy of counter-terror to defeat the guerrillas.

In Washington, the Defense Department declined to comment on the Spiegel report.

Spiegel said the Rand study was carried out under the supervision of a psychologist it identified as Lawrence Albert Newberry, 35. The magazine said Newberry arrived in Vietnam in 1967 and left there in August 1971. The exact dates for the compilation of the study and its alleged suppression were not given.

"Most likely this report will be suppressed or, supplied with a secret stamp.

Nevertheless it was necessary to clearly see and say these things once," Spiegel quoted Newberry as saying.

The magazine also claimed that Newberry's supporters at Rand had praised the research as "the best Viet Cong study so far."

The Rand Corp. is the California-based "think tank" which figured prominently in the recent Pentagon Papers affair. The firm possessed one of the authorized copies of the secret report during the time Dr. Daniel Ellsberg worked there. Ellsberg has said he was the man who leaked the Pentagon Papers to newspapers.

In Santa Monica, Calif., a spokesman for Rand said he could not recollect the report referred to by Spiegel or find it in the company's index.

He said Newberry had never been an employee of Rand. But the spokesman said the company knew of Newberry and that he had been employed in Saigon by the Advanced Research Projects Agency of the Defense Department.

Gunmen Hold Children Hostage

MANIAL (AP) - Two Maoist-sympathizing gunmen killed a policeman and escaped after holding a house full of children hostage all day yesterday and passing through a police ring with the crying children at gunpoint.

They released six of the eight children with police looking on, but ordered two of them, along with their mother and father, into a radio news car and sped away with two reporters also held hostage.

One gunman ordered police to stay clear or "we'll kill all these people."

They drove to a Manila suburb, took about 35 cents from each of the radio newsmen, got out of the car and disappeared alone in a three-wheeled taxi scooter. None of the hostages was harmed.

One of the children's fathers, Marciano Baltazar, said the gunmen had come to his house previously and left leaflets supporting communism and the New People's Army, a Maoist guerrilla organization. The men were in their 20s and called themselves Freddie and Joel.

A colleague of the slain policeman said the gunmen claimed to be members of the guerrilla group when they fired at a police outpost at Taytay, a town outside Manila, at about 3 a.m.

A policeman chased the assailants into the Baltazar house.

Baltazar, 34, gave this account:

Two men with pistols appeared and told him they had shot a policeman and wanted to hide in his house. Within minutes police had surrounded the house. With the gunmen inside were Baltazar, his wife and their six children and Baltazar's sister-in-law and her two children.

Until shortly after 6 p.m., the gunmen negotiated through the walls of the house with police, the town mayor and Baltazar, who had been sent outside to warn police away.

The gunmen emerged at 6:30 p.m. with blankets covering all but their faces and hands, which held pistols, and got into and ABS—CBN Broadcasting Network car with two newsmen, Baltazar, his wife and two of their children as hostages.

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

Office of the DAILY COLLEGIAN are on the second floor of the Student Union on the University campus, zip code 01002. Phones are 545-2550 (news), 545-0344 (sports), and 549-1311 (editor).

Second class postage paid at Amherst, the DAILY COLLEGIAN publishes five times weekly Monday through Friday during the academic year except during vacation and exam periods, three or four times a week following a vacation or exam period or when a holiday falls within a week. Accepted for mailing under the authority of the act of March 8, 1879 as amended by the act of June 11, 1943. Subscription rates are $6.00 per semester, $10.00 per year.

TUESDAY NIGHT

CLEAN LIVING

WEDNESDAY NIGHT

FLIGHT

at

The English Pub

DANCING

9:30 til close only 25¢

COMMUTER ASSEMBLY ELECTIONS

(in front of the University Store)

9 a.m. - 5 p.m.,

Thurs., Nov. 18

ID's Required for Voting

Athletic Fund And Vending

By HUGH OWEN

UMass annually receives approximately $100,000 from the vending machines dispersed around the campus. These funds amount to about 50% of the income taken in by the machines.

The funds are distributed according to the Board of Trustee's ruling. First priority is the money allotted to salaries for the personnel assigned to the paperwork involved in controlling the money. These funds are now under the jurisdiction of Mike Egna, director of the Campus Center Food Center. The sum of this money has been arbitrarily established as 25% of the account. Of that amount, Egan uses about $7,000 for administration purposes in controlling the money. The remaining money, about $18,000, returns to supporting the Campus Center, thereby reducing the cost of the Campus Center Fee.

Second priority is the annual transfer to the Athletic Trust Fund for scholarships. These scholarships are to be granted to needy and worthy students. This sum amounts to $50,000 and is given to the athletic department yearly. The reason the athletic department receives $50,000 is because they were the first department to have vending machines on the campus. When vending machines were installed in the rest of the campus, it was agreed that the athletic department would be guaranteed $50,000 a year.

Residence halls and cultural enrichment programs receive the remainder of the income from vending machines. This money comes to about $25,000.

What the Student Senate would now like to do is to revise use of the money which allotted to the Athletic Department, for different purposes. Some possibilities are to provide for long or short term loans to the general student body, to increase the money going to the residence halls, or just in general, to return that money to the university at large.

Elliot Sherman, who is investigating the vending machine income, said, "We (the Student Senate) feel that since monies for this fund are in a good part derived from the UMass community and in particular the residence halls, then such funds should naturally be returned to the source of the income in some manner." It is the Student Senate feeling, he said, that the $50,000 allotment to the Athletic Scholarship does not fulfill the desire to return it to the University community.

This is the Mt. Holyoke outdoor theater. It was one of the sights during Five College bus tour offered Saturday. It was enjoyed by all. (MDC photo by Bob Callahan)

Chinese Delegates Visit UThant

UNITED NATIONS (N.Y.) (AP)-Communist China's top U.N. delegates had their first conference with Secretary-General U Thant Sunday in a New York hospital where he is being treated for a duodenal ulcer.

Deputy Foreign Minister Chiao Kuan-hua and Ambassador Huang Hua made the 50-minute visit in Thant's room in the private Leroy Hospital to present credentials and discuss questions before the U.N. General Assembly.

"It was just a courtesy visit," Chiao commented to newsmen at the hospital.

The meeting took place 20 days after the People's Republic of China was voted into the U.N., three days after the main Chinese delegates arrived in New York and a day before they were to take their seats in the 131-nation General Assembly.

One of their two sets of credentials was for China's 10-member delegation to the assembly's 26th session, with Chiao as chairman and Huang as vice chairman. The other was Huang's credentials as head of China's permanent U.N. mission in New York.

All the credentials were in Chinese, a U.N. spokesman said and the visitors explained them to Thant, a Burmese who does not know Chinese.

Thant will keep the permanent representative's credentials. He will send the others to the assembly's Credentials Committee, which will consider credentials from all delegations before the assembly adjourns around Dec. 21.

The Chinese had brought their own girl interpreter. Though both know English, they spoke Chinese while Thant spoke English.

"The discussion," the spokesman said, "was a general exchange of views on the agenda of the present session of the General Assembly."

"Let My People Go"

The Student Struggle for Soviet Jewry of Western Massachusetts showed the documentary film "Let My People Go", yesterday. The film depicts the oppression that Soviet Jews face daily. Parts of the film were produced secretly by Jewish freedom fighters in the U.S.S.R.

Plans are now being formulated for a protest at the U.N. on Monday, November 22. There will be a meeting on Thursday evening at Smith College, Davis Center, to organize December protest activities for the five college area. All interested in going to New York or attending Thursday's meeting can sign up at the SSSJ table in the Campus Center or can call 5-0968 after 6:30 p.m.

Search Committee Meets Wednesday

The Search Committee for a Chancellor, UMass/Amherst will hold an open meeting on Wednesday November 17 at 4:00 p.m. in the Board Room (374) of Whitmore Hall. The subject of the meeting will be the procedures to be followed in the search for a new Chancellor.

A second open meeting will be held on Tuesday, November 23 at 4:00 p.m., also in the Board Room. The subject of this meeting will be the role and the responsibilities of the Chancellor. Interested observers are respectfully invited to attend.

The Search Committee is also interested in soliciting the views of members of the various university constituencies-students, faculty, staff, alumni, trustees, and others. Interested parties are urged to communicate their views on both search procedure and the role of the Chancellor by writing to the Chairman of the Committee, Dr. Glen Gordon, Department of Political Science, Thompson Hall.

For those who would prefer to communicate directly, contact any member of the committee, no later than Monday, November 22, so that the full committee may have the benefits of the views prior to our formal discussions on November 23.

The committee understands that the Student Senate, the Graduate Senate, and the Faculty Senate may choose to consider these questions at meetings scheduled and announced in the near future. The SWAP conference, to be held November 19-21, will also devote major attention to the Chancellorship. The committee is convinced that the quality of their decision will be enriched by opinions representing the diversity of UMass/Amherst.

The members of the committee are as follows:

—Trustees: John W. Haigis, 22 High St., Greenfield, Ma., Mrs. Carolyn Rowland, 282 Beacon St., Boston, Ma.

—Deans' Council: Wendell R. Smith, School of Bus. Adm., 545-2484.

—Faculty Senate: Terence Burke, Geography, Morrill Cntr., 545-2794, Micheline Dufau, Romance Lang., Herter Hall, 545-2600, Glen Gordon, Pol. Sci. Thompson Hall, 545-0404, Warren Litsky, Environ. Science, Marshall Hall, 545-2288.

—Grad. Student Senate: Leland Roblee, Chem. Eng., Goessman Lab., 545-0245, Donald St. Mary, Math., Arnold House, 545-0085, Mark Cheren, Box 142, Greenfield Rd., Montague, Ma., David Hoffman, Project 10, Master's Of., Coolidge Tower, 545-0472.

—Student Senate: Patty Asack, 30 Puffton Village, 549-6235, Jackie Berryman, 50 Meadow St., Apt. 67, 549-1377, David Duncan, Pierpont House, 546-4507, Robert J. Padgett, 405 Webster House, 546-1725, Phoebe Pepper, 204 Dickinson House, 546-6556, Robert Sprague, 27 Colonial Village, 253-9367.

—Associate Alumni-Carroll Robbins, 163 Bowdoin St., Springfield, Ma.

Political Science Meeting

The second in a series of meetings for Political Science majors will be held tonight at 7:00 p.m. in Thompson 102.

The purpose of the meeting is to review departmental requirements, to explain procedures for Counselling Week (November 29-December 3), to announce course offerings for the spring semester, and to discuss various training and exchange programs available to majors.

Undergraduate advisors will be available to answer specific questions and to assist students in preparing their spring semester schedules. There will also be an opportunity to discuss some long-range plans of the Political Science Department, including the Senior Honors Program, independent study projects, and a program of undergraduate tutorials.

All majors and prospective majors are urged to attend.

MDC Classifieds

Could B.C. Lose?

Buy around trip bus ticket to B.C. Game & see!

NOV. 20

Departure 10:30 a.m.

C.C. BUS CIRCLE

BUY NOW $6 RSO OFFICE or call Student Senate Bus Service

AMOROSO

The very name means love— where else should you buy your

DIAMOND

LOWEST PRICES ANYWHERE

certified appraisals

Call RICHARD AMOROSO 546-4300 anytime.

In Boston Call 542-2226

Buy YOURSELF a Christmas Present!

CHRISTMAS EQUIPMENT SPECIALS

AM/FM Stereo Amplifier & BSR T-Table $99.95

w/base, cover, & cartridge plus pair speakers Free Headphones

ALSO:	List	OUR	Savings
BSR 610X T-Table w/base & cover	$162.00	$110.00	$52
SHURE M91E MAGNETIC CARTRIDGE	$ 50.00	$ 17.00	$33
PACKAGE.....	$212.00	$127.00	$85
SCOTT SPEAKERS - pair of S-15 or S-11	$200.00	$145.00	$55
HEADPHONES (as low as $9.95)	$ 50.00	$ 29.95	$20
8 TRACK & CASSETTE STEREO TAPES	$ 6.98	$ 2.99	$ 4

PLUS: Sansui, Sony, Teac, Sherwood, Marantz, Koss, Fischer, Garrard, Rectilinear, KLH, Wharfdale and more!

"Baker Stereo Discount"

(The ON Campus Stereo Shop)

#223 Baker Dorm call 546-6063 Barry or Dave 4-5:30 Mon.-Thurs.

In The Nation And The World

Coal Strike Ends; Dock Strike Worsens

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS — A strike-ending soft coal contract with pay boosts far exceeding the Phase 2 guideline highlighted a series of labor developments Sunday.

The East and Gulf coast dock strike grew worse, as longshoremen in West Gulf ports from Lake Charles, La., to Brownsville, Tex., threatened to join the walkout for the first time.

A strike by 10,000 employees of the Greyhound Bus Co., which had been set for noon Sunday, was postponed until Friday. It threatened to shut down all service east of the Rockies and curtail operations in the far West.

In Florida, some 7,000 employees of the General Telephone co. of Florida won pay boosts which, like the coal settlement, were entire than double the Phase 2 guideline of 5.5 percent a year.

The coal agreement between the United Mine Workers and the Bituminous Coal Operators Association ended a 44-day strike which had idled 100,000 miners in 25 states, and resulted in layoffs in other industries, including more than 20,000 railroadmen. Miners were being asked to return to their jobs starting at midnight Sunday.

The new three-year contract would boost the top daily pay to $50 from $37, and double the 40-cent-per-ton royalty to the union's welfare fund.

The industry estimated the average increase as 39 percent over the three years. The union said it was 30 percent, which is what the steel workers won in August.

Republican Gov. Arch A. Moore, Jr., of West Virginia, who took part in the negotiations, promised to help get Pay Board approval.

Both sides claimed it was justified because negotiations started before the 90-day wage freeze, and because of greatly increased productivity.

The dock strike threatened to spread to all 45,000 members of the AFL-CIO International Longshoremen's Association in ports from Maine to Texas.

The ILA called such a strike Oct. 1, but longshoremen in West Gulf ports refused to join. They said the dispute then affected only 18,000 men in New York, who were demanding continuation of a guarantee of 2,080 hours pay annually.

The National Labor Relations Board, using the secondary boycott argument, got back-to-work court orders in Philadelphia, Baltimore, New Orleans, Mobile, Ala., and Tampa, Fla., and longshoremen reluctantly returned to work in most ports from Philadelphia south.

However, with the expiration of President Nixon's 90-day wage freeze at Saturday midnight, the ILA claimed the secondary boycott argument was ended and all ports were free to strike over local issues.

ILA leaders in Galveston, Tex., rejected a new management offer Saturday night and voted to strike all ports from Lake Charles, La., to Brownsville, Tex.

The issue was put to a membership vote Sunday.

Negotiations in New York ended Friday with no progress . They were to resume Wednesday in Miami Beach, Fla., widened to include Boston, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Hampton Roads, Va., and ports in Rhode Island.

In another labor development during the weekend, an agreement was reached covering 900 editorial and advertising employees of the Philadelphia Enquirer and Daily News, providing pay increases of 41.5 percent over three years. A spokesman for the Newspaper Guild of Greater Philadelphia said the newspapers had agreed not to appeal Saturday's settlement to the Pay Board, despite the board's 5.5 percent guideline.

Dust Storms Mar Space Probe

PASADENA, Calif (AP) — Mariner 9, steadily orbiting Mars twice a day, sent back the first closeup television pictures of the Red Planet Sunday, but a thick global haze robbed scientists of a detailed view.

The first 10 pictures beamed 76 million miles back to earth appeared uniformly gray on television monitors at California Institute of Technology's Jet Propulsion Laboratory here.

Scientists focused on a photograph taken early Saturday, while Mariner was 70,000 miles from Mars on its approach to orbit, showing a crater "as big across as the State of Indiana."

The photograph, "enhanced" by computer processing of the television signal, showed an area south of the Martian equator in the Western Hemisphere. There was no initial speculation on its significance.

The haze that obscured initial closeup photos is believed to be dusk kicked up by winds that began raging across Mars in late September.

Geologists who had hoped for an immediate closeup look at Martian features were disappointed, but other scientists here said the dust storm is a scientific blessing in disguise.

Dr. Carl Fagan of Cornell University called the storm an extraordinary event that might not occur in another 30 years, and only by chance did Mariner 9 arrive as the storm began to subside.

Dr. William Pickering, JPL director, said studying the dust storm might offer clues about the earth's weather.

"Perhaps by studying the meteorology of Mars, we will learn more about the meteorology of the earth," he said.

Detailed mapping and studying of the planet's surface with the two TV cameras may be delayed one or two weeks, scientists said, but an ultraviolet spectrometer and two infrared sensing instruments are studying the atmosphere as well as that part of the surface that can be observed through the haze.

Project officials announced they would fire Mariner 9's engine several seconds at 9:45 p.m. EST Monday to make a slight change in the orbit of the windmill-shaped craft. The change, they said, is designed to move Mariner five miles closer to Mars at the low point of the orbit to allow full use of a 210-foot dish antenna at Goldstone, Calif.

The mission of two Soviet space probes en route to Mars also continued to occupy scientists' attention here. Speculation is that the Russians will attempt an unmanned landing with their craft, Mars 2 and 3.

Dr. James Fletcher, director of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, said a Russian landing on Mars wouldn't necessarily mean a defeat for U.S. space exploration.

"I think it's too much of an assumption they will do the same thing now that we intend to do five years from now if they land," Fletcher said.

The U.S. Viking project calls for an unmanned Martian landing in 1976. Its spacecraft will be equipped but is capable of pinpointing areas that might be suitable to life.

Dr. Bruce Murray, a Caltech scientist, also said on ABC's Issues and Answers television program he thinks the Russians will land on Mars but only take pictures and study the atmosphere. He said neither country has yet developed equipment sophisticated enough to detect life.

Between 9:57 a.m. and 7:41 p.m. EST, Mariner sent back 33 closeup pictures taken during a half-hour period Sunday morning. The photos were stored in an on-board tape recorder and played back.

News In Brief

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. airpower during the next six months will be concentrated in Laos and Cambodia in a campaign to strangle North Vietnamese supply routes, informed sources said Sunday.

With only three U.S. jet fighter-bomber squadrons left in South Vietnam, primarily for air defense, the campaign will be carried out from five American bases in Thailand and one of two 7th Fleet carriers in the Tonkin Gulf.

QUITO, Ecuador (AP) — White House counselor Robert H. Finch and a high-level U.S. fact-finding delegation arrived in this Eduadorian capital Sunday-just in time for the latest round of the Great Tuna War.

The American Tuna Boat Association reported Saturday in San Diego, Calif., that Ecuador had seized four more U.S. tuna boats and a Canadian ship, bringing to 13 the number of U.S. Vessels seized in the past week.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Earl L. Butz, nominated by President Nixon to be secretary of agriculture, said Sunday night he has notified four corporations he is resigning from their board of directors.

Butz' connection with large companies dealing with agriculture has been attacked by senators as possible conflict of interest. Butz said he is quitting the boards to avoid any conflict.

TOKYO (AP) — Radical students went on a fiery rampage in Tokyo Sunday in a day of protest against plans for a continued U.S. military presence on Okinawa after the island's return from U.S. to Japanese rule next year.

Police reported 317 persons were arrested nationwide, 309 of them in Tokyo. They said at least 50 persons were injured.

FACES OF EARTH
159 North Pleasant St.
Amherst, Mass.
Winter Coats
$7.50 to $25.95
Parkas
$24.95 to $49.95
Open to 10: 00 p.m.

AUTO INSURANCE
ALL CARS — ALL DRIVERS
BUDGET PAYMENTS
CYCLES — SCOOTERS
Tekoa Insurance Agency
160 Pleasant St. Northampton 586-2742
10 Broad St. Westfield 562-3604

ACCOUNTING MAJORS
Our Successful Students Represent
1/5 of CPA's in USA
Becker CPA Review Course
Boston 617-536-1440

HOW TO GET ALONG WITH BLACK PEOPLE

*AND SOME BLACK FOLKS TOO!
by Chris Clark and Sheila Rush Foreword by Bill Cosby
From what to call whom—colored, Negro, Afro-American, or black—to how and why to avoid white liberalisms ("we only want to help," "it's not because you're black"), here is a guide that reveals not only the right way to handle everyday professional and social situations, but why the way it's often done is wrong. Lively and enlightening.
THE THIRD PRESS 444 Central Park West, New York 10025 $5.95

Used Refrigerators
Due to increased demand we have purchased 50 more used refrigerators. They are clean, working and delivered
for $35.00
10 Cubic Feet Apartment Size.
This is our last shipment.
Discount Sales
549-3930
6:30 to Midnight.

...AND AS THE STARKNESS OF WINTER DESCENDS, MAN RETREATS, THE FALLEN SPRING A FADING MEMORY AND A DISTANT HOPE. (MDC photo by Alan Chapman)

Change In Draft Laws Concerning Deferments

WASHINGTON (AP) — Draft Director Curtis W. Tarr has told draft boards nationwide to allow men who have been deferred from selective service to drop their deferments if they choose to do so by Dec. 31.

Such an action by eligible young men with numbers of 126 or higher would give them brief exposure to the risk of being drafted, and they would slip into a lower category Jan. 1, if they escape the draft until then.

The rule applies only to men born in 1951 or earlier--not to those turning 19 this year who received numbers last July.

Tarr said "our purpose is to achieve fairness to all registrants determining their priority status on Jan. 1...and to limit the uncertainty that young men with high random-sequence numbers face. Registrants with student, occupational, paternity, agriculture and hardship deferments will be eligible to take advantage of this policy."

Men with numbers 125 or lower who are not drafted by Jan. 1 will have their prime liability for induction extended to March 31. Most are expected to be drafted because the new national uniform called brings in men nationwide by the same numbers.

Last year there were state quotas and many draft boards did not reach the cutoff number. But men who regained their deferments before the March 1 end of the extension last year may not again drop their deferments this year.

Tarr also said men can't get new lottery numbers if they gave their draft boards the wrong birthdates, then ended up with lower number than they would have with the correct dates.

But Daniel J. Cronin, assistant deputy for operations, said "where the error is ours we'll admit it" and give the man a new number or if he had been drafted get him out of the Army.

UM Drug Case Continued

Two former University of Massachusetts students accused of a number of heroin, forgery and larceny violations appeared in Hampshire County District Court Wednesday for hearing.

The cases of Charles Cross, 21, and Donald R. Willis, 19, both of Springfield were continued to Nov. 16, however, when their attorney failed to show.

Special Justice Raymond R. Cross told the pair that yesterday's continuance would be the last. He set bail at $2,000 for Cross, who has been in Hampshire County Jail since his arrest Oct. 18.

Cross and Willis were students at the University last year, but were reportedly ineligible to register this semester.

THE TALKIE CINEMA
Intersection of Rts. 5 and Rte. 9
NORTHAMPTON CENTER
584-6909
LUCHINO VISCONTI'S
Death in Venice
Lives
at the Talkie
Held Over
7:00 and 9:30

Attention
All Divers!

An advanced diver course for experienced divers will be given starting at the end of Nov.

The course will include diving physics and physiology, diving equipment, first aid and life saving, underwater search and recovery, limited visibility diving, underwater navigation, light salvage, deep diving, decompression, repetetive and altitude diving and marine biology. The fee for the course will be $100.

Anyone interested in further information call 549-1155.

Helping At Belchertown

Mental retardation is not the only reason some residents of Belchertown State School do not talk better. Or talk at all.

A survey by a UMass assistant professor of speech and four of his students recommends several ways to improve the communication ability of the residents--like renovating buildings with acoustics in mind, hiring more communications personnel, and providing residents with more complete physical examinations.

Last summer, Asst. Prof. Henry B. Peirce, Jr., of the communication disorders area of the UMass speech department, supervised four UMass graduate students who gathered material for a report on the incidence of speech, hearing, and language disorders among the Belchertown School's 1,098 residents.

Dr. Peirce, a speech pathology consultant at Belchertown for three years, was concerned that no figures existed on the incidence of speech, hearing, and language problems among residents and that "no staff personnel were available in the area of communication habilitation."

Dr. Peirce discussed the situation with Mr. Robert Donovan, director of the School's Hospital Improvement Program, and the four UMass graduate students were hired as paraprofessionals to conduct the survey.

Howard Shane, Amy Moran, Kathleen Viamari, and Deborah Bartimo, who are earning graduate degrees in communications disorders, conduced the survey.

Their survey discovered that 1,005, or 92%, of the 1,098 residents had speech, hearing, and language problems which interfered with communication. Without regard to level of retardation, the most frequent problem was "delayed speech and language," the next more frequent was "no speech," the next was "articulation," and the fourth was a special communication problem of the cerebral palsied.

"Some days it was really discouraging," says Kathleen. Days, for example, when many of the patients whose speech she tried to categorize couldn't, or wouldn't, talk. Some of the more severely handicapped patients had no speech. Some were perhaps frightened by this new situation in which an unfamiliar person talked to them.

One resident chatted away with attendants in the corridor but once in the room, where Kathleen waited with the test, the resident uttered no sound. Kathleen had to evaluate the corridor speech she had overheard.

Howard found that some residents seemed to associate the testing situation with pain, perhaps from previous medical experiences, so were unresponsive to his questions and conversation.

To get residents to make certain sounds, the students showed pictures of objects familiar to most Americans. But, says Howard, the tests are designed for the "normal population," and often the residents had never seen the object pictured--like a vacuum cleaner--so didn't know what it was.

The student-conducted survey was done with the help of attendants and other Belchertown personnel. It's a factual record of speech, hearing, and language problems of the entire resident population, a record Dr. Peirce believes is the only such record available for a state institution for the mentally retarded in Massachusetts.

The record shows:

Only eight percent of the School's 1,098 residents have what is considered "normal" speech.

Only 18 of those 1,098 residents had been professionally diagnosed as having hearing losses, though the survey turned up about 200 residents suspected of having hearing losses.

While compiling the speech and hearing data, the four students found 172 residents with known or suspected vision problems. Forty-five of these residents were known blind.

From these and other statistical data, Dr. Peirce's report makes several recommendations. And some things are being done to improve the communications of residents at Belchertown State School.

The UMass-directed survey makes five recommendations:

--"A substantial increase in qualified personnel in speech, hearing, and language pathology is obvious." During the past three years UMass speech students have done some speech therapy at Belchertown. There has been some progress, but "only a relatively few residents have had the opportunity to participate."

--"It is extremely important that any pathology of the oral cavity or ears be treated before speech therapy is conducted."

--"The known blind population, who have not had any rehabilitation services, need to have a coordinator for a blind program appointed immediately."

--Renovation of the buildings with attention paid to acoustical treatment would be highly desirable for both the resident and the attendant staff. Dr. Peirce emphasizes that "This constant noisy environment would contribute, it seems, to difficulty in hearing, perception, and development of spoken language, not to mention fatigue and resulting irritability on the part of the staff and residents." As one of the UMass students put it, "The sounds just seem to bounce off the walls."

Fall is coming and winter nears. It's getting cold and dark outside. Find a fire and keep warm. (MDC photo by Barbara Brecher)

Campus II
PAUL NEWMAN IS BUTCH CASSIDY AND THE SUNDANCE KID IS ROBERT REDFORD.
at 9:00
I And
at 7:00
MASH
Campus Cinemas
256-6411
AMHERST-HADLEY LINE
In the Zayre's Shopping Center - Route 9
Monday Nights!
Ladies $1.00
Campus I
Daily 7 & 9
Fri. & Sat.
7:00, 8:30, 10:00
FIND OUT YOURSELF WHY EVERYONE'S TALKING ABOUT - Rated X
Together
Campus III
at 7:15 & 9:15 (R)
Ingmar Bergman's first English language motion picture starring
Elliott Gould
The Touch

Spring Student Teaching

All students, secondary and elementary, wishing to student teach (intern) in the Spring, 1972, must apply to and be accepted by one of the School of Education's teacher training programs. Regardless of department, all prospective student teachers must enroll directly in a teacher training program. If you have not already been accepted by a teacher training program in the School of Education, you must apply to one of the following programs in order to student teach in the Spring.

PROGRAM	INTERVIEW TIMES FOR WEEK NOV. 15-19 (School of Education unless otherwise indicated.)
Alternative Schools (TASP) Open to Juniors	Tues. 1-3 Rm 212 Wednes. 10-1, 1-3:30 Rm 212
International Education Open to Sophomores and Juniors	Mon. 9-3 Montague House Wednes. 9-3 Montague House
Mark's Meadow (TEPAM) Open to Sophomores	Go to Mark's Meadow Office to sign up for specific appointment time.
Martha's Vineyard Open to Juniors, Seniors	Contact Mrs. Harmon, Rm 121 for appointment (545-155)
Model Elementary Teacher Education Program (METEP) Open to Juniors	Tues. 8:30-1, 2:30-5 Rm. 210 Wednes. 8:30-12:00 Rm 210 or by individual appointment call 545-1578
Off-Campus Open to Sophomores, Juniors	Mon. 8-12, 1-5 Rm. 128 Tues. 8-12, 1-5 Dwight Dorm
Sociological-Historical-Philosophical (S.H.P.) Open to Juniors	Contact Mrs. Harmon, Rm 121 for appointment (545-1555)
Distributive Ed. Open to Fresh, Soph, Junior, Senior	Mon. 9-4 Rm 2-A or by individual appointment call 545-1527
Urban Ed.	Mon.-Fri. 9-12:00 Rm. 225

Any questions about the teacher training programs or about student teaching should be addressed to the Teacher Preparation Program Council Office, Room 121 School of Education, 545-1555. The Office is open Monday-Friday, 8 AM-5PM.

Power To The Undergrad

Ed School Opens Committees

By DON GLICKSTEIN

In an effort to eliminate some of the anarchy, misinformation and poor counseling that has confronted undergraduates, the School of Education has opened up many of its working committees to students desiring certification on the secondary school level as well as non-teaching elementary education majors.

Many of the committees will give undergraduates full and equal voting privileges along with faculty and graduate students. Academic credit for work on the committees can be negotiated.

All programs in the School of Education fall under the jurisdiction of the School Council. The Council consists of thirty faculty members, graduate and undergraduate students. Members of the Council vote on personnel, budget, planning, and academic policy for the School. All committees report back to the School Council, which, along with the Dean, is ultimately responsible for the School to its students.

The following groups are looking for undergraduate members:

Teacher Preparation Program Council. One undergraduate vacancy. Formulates policy and administers all elementary and secondary teacher training programs. Contact the Chairman of the TPPC, Dr. Richard Clark, 121 School of Education, 5-1555.

Completely Modular Curriculum. Undergraduate input needed to plan the ending of all School of Ed courses next fall in favor of a completely modular curriculum. Contact the Director, Phil Christenson, 227 School of Ed, 5-0944.

Education Dean Dwight Allen at last week's Modular Credit Marathon. (MDC Photo by Gib Fullerton)

Spring Modular Credit Marathon. Undergrads needed to plan and publicize the Spring Marathon to be held next April. Contact Tom Paquin, 222B School of Ed, 5-1585.

CADRE. Students want to advise and participate in CADRE, a program of self-directed learning. Contact Linda Riser, Anne Bryant, or Mike Schwartz, 230 School of Ed, 5-0914.

Student Affairs Committee. Recommends to School Council on matters of student experience in the School, advising and orientation, placement, scholarships, etc. Contact School Council Secretary, Kathy Girard, 111 School of Ed., 5-1547.

Academic Matters Committee. Concerned with undergraduate curriculum and academic affairs. Contact Kathy Girard, Rm 111, 5-1547.

Library, Information Retrieval and Communications Committee. Concerned with the Education Library and communications to all parts of the University. Contact Kathy Girard, 5-1547.

Long Range Planning Committee. Reviews the directions and goals of the School, and recommends for the future. Contact Kathy Girard, 5-1547.

Personnel Committee. Recommends new appointments, merit salary increases and reappointments. Contact Kathy Girad, 5-1547.

Budget and Resource Allocation Committee. With the Dean, reviews all requests for allocation of resources.

General Consultation. Undergrads are wanted for general consultation and advice for the planning and implementation of School programs. Leavenamewith Kathy Girard, 111 School of Education, 5-1547.

Modular Credit Marathon Wrap-Up

By EDWARD BURK

The combatting of institutionalized racism was the theme which characterized last week's Modular Credit Marathon. But as Tom Paquin and Bill Heward have pointed out, the deep-rooted problem of racism is one that cannot be erased in five short days.

"Racism is a problem which cannot be combatted in a week or a month or a semester," stated Paquin, the co-ordinator of this years Marathon.

"The purpose of the program was to make people aware of the problems," he continued. "People generally think of racism in terms of Blacks. We have tried to deal with the problem on a level of caucasion versus all other minority groups which have been oppressed as well."

Bill Heward, who worked with Paquin throughout the Marathon, noted that the main objective of the program was to both define the problem and to direct the steps which must be taken to combat it.

"Racism is probably the biggest pathology in society today," said Heward. "It's not just hurting those involved. It's hurting all of us in a lot of repercussioning ways."

Both men emphasized the fact that even those events which were seemingly unrelated to the theme of racism, actually focused upon the problem in an indirect way.

"Racism must be combatted through human relations," said Paquin. "And the Marathon is a Mecca for humanistic thought. It provides a platform for expressing these new ideas."

Paquin and Heward noted that the public response to the program was quite favorable and they estimated that some 7000-10,000 persons participated.

Paquin praised the efforts of Dwight Allen, Dean of the School of Education, for his part in the program.

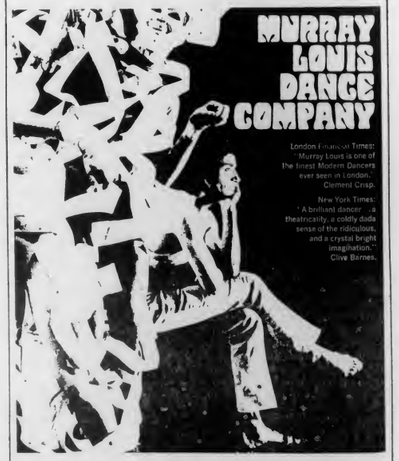
He noted, however, that the overall success of the program due to the efforts of those who conducted the various events.

"They are the ones that deserve all the credit," said Paquin. "Without them, there would have been no Marathon."

RING DAYS

Class of '72 and '73

University Store



Mon. and Tues., Nov. 15 and 16

Josten's Factory Representatives

Pre-Christmas Delivery

$10 Deposit

UMass Fine Arts Council Presents

BOWKER AUDITORIUM--UNIVERSITY OF MASS.

WED., NOV. 17 & THURS., NOV.18, 1971—8 P.M.

RESERVED TICKETS: UMass undergraduates $1.50; other—full-time students $2.50; UMass faculty/staff $3; general public $3.50

FINE ARTS COUNCIL BOX OFFICE, 125 Herter Hall, Tel. 545-0202

UMass Fine Arts Council presents

SWINGEL SINGERS OF PARIS

Monday, Nov. 22 - 8 p.m.

Bowker Auditorium

Tickets: 125 Herter Hall - 545-0202

JAZZSebastienBachHaendelVivaldiTelemannMozartBeethovenGershwinRavelAlbenizRodrigoGranadosDeFalla

Student Senate Committee Calendar

Committee & Chairman	Meeting Time and Place	Main Topic of Discussion
Services Brenda Rau	Mon., Nov. 15, 7:30 Room 178, CC	Financial aid as a service Senate income proposals
Academic Affairs Nick Apostole Kenis and Fees Robert Chiller	Tues., Nov. 16, 6:15 Room 811 815, CC Tues., Nov. 16, 6:15 Room 165, CC	Freshman year Campus Center Garage Fee Parking costs
Budgets John Stevens	Tues., Nov. 16, 7:30 Room 801, CC	Discussion concerning in what order RSO Groups should appear before the committee and the full Senate.
Women's Committee Lisa Mandell	Tues., Nov. 16, 5:00 Room 802, CC	Members are asked to bring their dinner with them discussion on discrimination in athletics, financial aid, Women's Medical Emergency Loan Fund
Social Action Maggie Houghton	Wed., Nov. 17, 6:15 Room 178, CC	Discussion of Sassi Prep Emergency Defense Fund and other social groups
Financial Affairs Skip Olmstead	Thurs. Nov. 18, 8 p.m. Room 177, CC	Financial appropriations
Student Matters Bruce Bernstein	Thurs. Nov. 18, 8 p.m. Room 175, CC	Athletic Council revision and fee discussion Concerts, vending machines, and Student Code of Conduct
Public Affairs Denise Magnell	No meeting due to PR system revision
Governmental Affairs Bill Spinn	Sun. Nov. 21, 6:00 Room 801, CC	General Laws and Constitution

Mechanical Heart Lasts 3 Months

DETROIT (AP)-Plant security guard Haskell Shanks, who received a partial mechanical heart in an Aug. 11 operation, died Sunday at Sinai Hospital of what doctors called "kidney failure and problems related to it."

The 63-year-old Shanks had been released from the hospital Sept. 18 and had been able to resume some of his normal routine such as short walks and visits with friends. He returned to the hospital Oct. 4.

Sinai Hospital spokesmen said death came to the suburban Warren man three months and three days after the operation. They said the mechanical heart "continued to perform normally right up until the very end."

Tensions Increase In India

NEW DELHI (AP)-Three Pakistani jet fighters violated Indian air space Sunday over the northern state of Kashmir, United News of India reported.

The alleged air intrusion is the second to be reported in the past four days in the Indian and Pakistani governments' continued exchange of charges of military provocation.

One of the French-built Mirage jets in Sunday's incident was chased back to Pakistan by Indian air force planes, the news agency reported. The others were fired on and missed by antiaircraft batteries, according to the agency.

A government spokesman charged Thursday that Pakistani warplanes violated Indian airspace in the eastern border area and strafed civilian population centers.

In a related development, Prime Minister Indira Gandhi met with the Political Affairs Committee of her cabinet, presumably to discuss the persistent tension between India and Pakistan and the results of her state tour.

The prime minister returned Saturday from a three-week visit to six Western nations.

It was reported that Mrs. Gandhi told the committee members the major world powers, including the United States, have agreed to persuade Pakistani President Agha Mohammed Yahya Khan to change his "suicidal policy" in East Pakistan.

Sources said Mrs. Gandhi implied that if international pressure did not help resolve the turmoil in East Pakistan, India would be justified in taking any steps necessary to solve the problem.

She also is believed to have said that declaration of a national emergency and the recognition of the East Pakistan rebel government-both matters of speculation here-are not imminent.

Her meeting with the committee came on the eve of Parliament's winter session, which is expected to be stormy. Leaders of the right-wing Freedom party and the Socialist party already have submitted no confidence resolutions against Mrs. Gandhi's government.

The resolutions are based on what party leaders termed Mrs. Gandhi's inability to resolve the crisis with Pakistan or stem the flow of Bengali refugees from East Pakistan, and on the economic strain growing from the confrontation.

PRINT SALE

Original prints ONLY (woodcuts, lithographs, silk screens, etchings) may be sold by grad students and undergraduates

Please have prints in the Art Office by noon, December 13.

Sale to be held Dec. 15 - 17

Cape Cod Lounge

9:30 - 5:30 (Wed. & Fri.)
9:30 - 8:00 (Thurs.)

For further information, contact the Program Council Office.

TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 16
CAMPUS CENTER PROGRAM COUNCIL IN CONJUNCTION WITH BLUEWALL COUNTRY NIGHT PRESENTS:

THE SORRY MUTHAS

IN CONCERT

WITH 4 ALBUMS UNDER THEIR BELTS, THE "SORRY MUTHAS" FROM MINNEAPOLIS BRING THEIR COUNTRY BLUES AND BLUEGRASS MUSIC TO UMASS TUESDAY NIGHT. THE GROUP COMBINES A CURIOUS ASSORTMENT OF OVER 30 UNUSUAL INSTRUMENTS SUCH AS ELECTRIC WASHTUB BASS, SPOONS, FIDDLE, DOBRO, AND HARP WITH SIX AND TWELVE STRING GUITARS AND LOTS OF SINGING TO PRODUCE "MUTHAMUSIC", A REAL GOOD TIME THING. THE MUTHAS CAN PLAY VERY RAW AND HUMAN FOLK MUSIC, BUT THEY STICK MOSTLY TO REVITALIZING FORGOTTEN DOWN HOME SONGS WITH A LOT OF LAUGH APPEAL. THEY PUT ON A TOTALLY UNREFINED AND SPONTANEOUS SHOW, A SHOW WELL WORTH SEEING. ALONG WITH THE SORRY MUTHAS WILL BE THE LOCAL BAND, "CLEAR SKY."

WITH

Clear Sky

ADMISSION .50

reg. Wed. night bar prices

Bluewall Cafeteria 8:30-1:00

The Massachusetts
Daily Collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

BOARD OF EDITORS

EDITOR IN CHIEF — Richard C. Hanson
MANAGING EDITOR — Nathan Gorenstein
BUSINESS MANAGER — James Gold
EXECUTIVE EDITOR — Barry J. Rubenstein
NEWS EDITOR — Anne C. Stadnicki
SPORTS EDITOR — Earle T. Barroll

PHOTO EDITOR — Gib Fullerton
FINE ARTS EDITOR — Robert Nesti

TODAY'S STAFF

ISSUE EDITOR — Jerry Lazar
NEWS STAFF — Janet Hughes, Charly Berkow, Jeannette Martineau, Dan Kamal, Earle Barroll
SPORTS — Gib Fullerton, Steve Schmidt, Barbara Brecher
DARKROOM — Terry Wonczyk
AD LAYOUT — Don Glickstein
EDITORIAL

Undergraduate newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The Staff is responsible for its content and no faculty members or administration read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.
Unsigned editorials represent the views of this paper. They do not necessarily reflect the views of the faculty, administration, or student body as a whole. Signed editorials, columns, reviews, and letters represent the personal views of the writers.

It Happened

If you noticed the page 4a article in Poor Richard's last Friday entitled "It Can Happen To You" and bothered to read it, you might have been a little frightened.

Because, you see, all the incidents in it are true. The names and places have been changed, but the facts were not.

You don't have to be left-wing or right-wing to be straight or not to be scared. The point is the Campus Police, a head of residence and who knows who else, all conspired to, and did, obstruct the civil rights of a student. A tracer on a phone, an obviously forged and illegal search warrant, all add up to something quite like what is termed a police state.

So, you see, it can happen here and did. The people involved have tried to have the incident investigated, but have been promised answers they have yet to receive. They have been waiting over three weeks.

There is not much more you can say about something like this. It's unlikely this would happen to you, but don't eliminate the possibility. It's not a matter of liking or disliking a particular person, everyone is involved in a case such as this. We should make an effort to eliminate the possibility of events like this occurring. If you know of something similar happening, see the student lawyer, Richard Howland, Dean of Student Affairs Field, the Chancellor. Let us know, and we will let others know.

It's yourself you are protecting.

"It Just Needs A Few Extra Ingredients"

Don Glickstein

Revolution With A Twinkle

I've been promising this to a lot of fine people, and I'm writing this in a second floor office, using the typewriter of one of them who says,

"Beware of the revolutionary without a twinkle in his eye."

*****

It was the May during the Strike--May, 1970--when Charles Adams, from the English Department, walked into the lounge of Pierpont House and was introduced to a dwindled number of residents as the new Director of Project 10.

The advantages of the freshman-sophomore living-learning experiments first year, 1968-69, its small classes in the dorm, its togetherness as a community, seemed to have dissipated by the time Adams entered the lounge. Other dorms on campus had classes and community. Greenough had already gone coed, and with no special leadership (there had been no director for the entire second year, the Project being run ambiguously from the Southwest Master's Office), the people in Project 10 were frustrated, pessimistic and often confusing with their collective philosophy of Summerhillian-type ideals.

But the dream was still alive, and by the time Adams had concluded the meeting, students were saying that he was just what was needed.

Over the summer, nothing happened. The dorm went coed-semi-officially because freshmen were not allowed at that time to live in coed dorms. Manny White, a founder of the Project, was forced to resign his new position as head of residence one week before school began because of personal reasons. The freshmen came a couple of days early for orientation, and nothing happened. Let the freshmen be free, let them make their own orientation, let nothing be imposed on anyone.

And nothing was imposed on anyone. Not books. Not quiet. Not structure. Not security. Not life.

Adams' original dreams for a community of scholars became a real nightmare of every day crises. Let the dealers deal. They're only doing their thing. Let the outside community crash in the dorm. Don't let the University power structure come down on the people. Don't stop the junkies and speed-freaks from shooting up and taking tabs. What right do we have to protect a person from himself? What right does Adams have to impose a structure, be it academic or social, on the "community"? If you're part of the community, you're not part of the solution.

Pierpont experienced almost a seventy-five percent turn-over in population by the end of May, 1971. With the start of the summer, the Project had to change or, administration officials warned at almost every level, there would be no Project in the fall.

A core of die-hard dreamers, given a legitimacy by Adams that the "community" didn't care enough to think about, took it upon themselves to plan for the fall.

Every resident of Pierpont would have to submit an application to live in the dorm. The housing lists would be rigidly controlled. The big dealers were not welcome. Semi-paid summer workers would orient freshmen and work with two regular summer counselors who were members of the Project. Damn the freedom, emphasize the responsibility. Get a public relations machine going that will not only attract a varied faculty (not only the radicals), but will change Project 10 through a sort of wishful, self-fulfilling, self-prophesizing philosophy. Plan for a fall orientation. Gather together an elaborate staff that will outvote and out-shout, yet still tolerate any leftover Summerhillian non-structuralists. Amass some money for a budget.

By September, Project 10 was no longer Project 10. The staff consisted not only of the undergraduate counselors (which the old Project had never had to any extent), but a bevy of resource people and heads of residences: two for administration, one for psychological counseling, one for community development, one to develop organizational structures, another to organize an empiric evaluation of Project freshmen, and more to come along as the opportunity arose. And they were serious.

Five days before Registration, about 200 sleepy residents of Pierpont forced themselves out of bed at the unheard of hour of 8 o'clock in the morning (the hour when Pierpont used to go to bed) in order to participate in a simulation game at the Campus Center. The day before, casual observors had been shocked to find what were formerly Project 10 hippi-freak-dope-fiends with their hair shorn and wearing neckties to greet the freshmen and their parents. What Adams had called "The New Seriousness" had arrived.

There's a lot going on now in that corner of campus which deans and professors and masters and students had once preferred not to think about. The freshmen are enrolled in special seminars that combine a getting-to- know-each-other unit with an academic-oriented study topic. "The Coming of Age in America". The faculty, teaching courses and sections of courses in the dorm, come from home economics, agriculture and physics, as well as the more humanistically-geared departments that have traditionally contributed Project faculty. There's a semblance of a kitchenette, now, something that hasn't been since the stove blew up two years ago. Not only has the new television not been ripped off yet, but the student security in Pierpont has kept dorm damages lower than most in Southwest.

No one talks about community much any more in Pierpont, people are too busy studying and talking and planning for the talent show, going to the Sunday brunch or playing "Risk" in the lobby.

Charles Adams is in the process of submitting a proposal to the Administration that would give Project 10 autonomy, and thus, let it become the first real residential college at UMass that the dreamers had been talking about since the early Sixties.

*****

Students will still leave the dorm in January, disgusted over the blaring stereos that still echo off of the Pierpont courtyard, nauseous from walking down the sometimes smoke-filled corridors to the crudded Sunday evening bathrooms. A few of the upper-classmen (the Project has expanded to a four-year program) are doing things differently now, and can't live with where the freshmen are sometimes at. The pathological dislike for all structures not labelled with a Project 10 name, although abating with the influx of diverse faculty, staff, and students, still exists; it manifests itself now, not by open spurning, but by a subconscious neglect of and non-responsibility to the University community.

But dope, decibels, and centrism is more a product of our age, than of a Project 10 tradition. And until the ethos of our times change, the Project might have a couple of traditions to carry us over.

The kids who are the Project have found it somewhere in their violent experiences of growing up in the Sixties and Seventies. They are jocks and veterans, liberals and radicals, presidents of student senates and one- liners in the yearbook; they are all these different people, constantly questioning, perhaps naively, but being constantly tolerant of diversity, perhaps too much.

"THE THREE STOOGES?"

Editorial Points

If you're allergic, getting an adrenalin shot after being stung by a bee is like scratching your foot after its been itching under your shoe all day long.

*****

If the Faculty Senate wants accurate press coverage, maybe they should let the press sit closer to the podium, instead of delegating them to the last two rows.

*****

The nice way people treat you when you give blood makes it all worthwhile.

*****

DINING COMMONS MEAL OF THE WEEK: Last Thursday lunch at Hampden Commons. Cold, leftover chili, and it wasn't even hot.

*****

"The modern contributions of political science are well-known in Viet Nam."--DF.

*****

Sociology is codified common sense according to a well-known detractor.

*****

We're not sure we completely understand, but someone said that the reason why they shut down the pinball machines every night is because of the Blue Laws. Gee, do Blue Laws apply to UMass?

*****

Remember the pond! Tippo's canoe and library, too.

*****

No use having good mental health if you don't have physical health. Stop smoking.

On The Poverty Of Student Life

(Editor's Note: The following is part 1 of an essay from "On the Poverty of Student Life" by the Situationist Internationale, adapted by the Organization for Revolutionary Action.)

1. To make shame more shameful still by making it public

We might very well say, and no one would disagree with us, that the student is the most universally despised creature in the U.S., apart from the policeman. Naturally, he is usually attacked from the wrong point of view, with specious reasons derived from the ruling ideology. Up to now studies of student life have ignored the essential issue. The surveys and analyses have all been psychological or sociological or economic: in other words, academic exercises, content with the false categories of one specialization or another. None of them can achieve what is most needed--a view of modern society as a whole. Everything is said about our society except what it is, and the nature of its two basic principles--the commodity and the spectacle. The fetichism of facts masks the essential category, and the details consign the totality to oblivion.

Modern society and its spectacle allot everyone a specific role in a general passivity. The student is no exception to the rule. He has a provisional part to play, a rehearsal for his final role as an element in market society as conservative as the rest. Being a student is a form of initiation. An initiation which echoes the rites of more primitive societies with bizarre precision. It goes on outside of history, cut off from social reality. The student leads a double life, poised between his present status and his future role. The two are absolutely separate, and the journey from one to the other is a mechanical event in the future. Meanwhile, he basks in a schizophrenic consciousness, withdrawing into his initiation group to hide from that future. Protected from history, the present is a mystic trance.

At least in consciousness, the student can exist apart from the official truths of "economic life". But for very simple reasons: looked at economically student life is a hard one. In our "society of abundance" he is still a pauper. 80% of students come from income groups well above the working class, yet 90% have less money than the meanest laborer. Student poverty is an anachronism, a throw-back from an earlier age of capitalism; it does not share in the new poverties of the spectacular societies; it has yet to attain the new poverty of the new proletariat. Nowadays the teenager shuffles off the moral prejudices and authority of the family to become part of the market before he is an adolescent: at fifteen he has all the delights of being directly exploited. In contrast the student covets his protracted infancy as an irresponsible and docile paradise. Adolescence and its crises may bring occasional brushes with his family, but in essence he is not troublesome: he agrees to be treated as a baby by the institutions which provide his education. There is no "student problem". Student passivity is only the most obvious symptom of a general state of affairs, for each sector of social life has been subdued by a similar imperialism.

What is unforgivable is not so much his actual misery but his complaisance in the face of the misery of others. For him there is only one real alienation--his own. He is a full-time and happy consumer of that commodity, hoping at least to arouse our pity since he cannot claim our interest. By the logic of modern capitalism, most students can only become mere "technicians" (with the same function in neo-capitalism that the skilled worker had in the 19th century economy). The student really knows how miserable will be that golden future which is supposed to make up for the shameful present. In the face of that knowledge, he prefers to dote on the present and invent an imaginary prestige for himself.

Once upon a time the universities were respected; the student persists in the belief that he is lucky to be there. He celebrates all the values and mystifications of the system, devouring them with all the anxiety of the infant at the breast. Once the old illusions had to be imposed on an aristocracy of labor; the technicians-to-be ingest them willingly under the guise of culture. But he arrived too late; the bygone excellence of bourgeois culture has vanished. A mechanically produced specialist is now the goal of the "educational" system. A modern economic system demands mass production of students who are not educated and have been rendered incapable of thinking. The university has become a society for the propagation of ignorance; "high culture" has taken on the rhythm of the production line.

The university is blind to the obvious--that even its closed world is changing. The "crisis of the universities"-- that detail of a more general crisis of modern capitalism--is the latest fodder for the deaf-mute dialogue of the specialists. This "crisis" is simple to understand: the difficulties of a specialized sector which is adjusting (too late) to a general change in the relations of production. There was once a vision, even if an ideological one, of a liberal bourgeois university. But as its social base disappeared, the vision became banality. But the bitterness of the academic purists crying for a return to academic isolation and insulation is understandable: better, after all, to be the bloodhound of the haute bourgeoisie than sheepdog to the world's white collar workers. Better to stand guard on privilege than to harry the flock into their alloted factories and offices. The university is becoming, fairly smoothly, the honest broker of technocracy and its spectacle. In the process, the academic purists become a pitiful sideshow, purveying their "universal" cultural goods to a bewildered audience of specialists.

More serious and thus more dangerous, are the modernists of the left and of the multiversity, with their talk of a "restructuring of the university" and a "reinsertion of the university into social and economic life", i.e., its adaptation on to the needs of modern capitalism. The one-time guarding their old prestige, must be converted into the forcing-house of a new labor aristocracy. Far from contesting the historical process which subordinates one of the last relatively autonomous social groups to the demands of the market, the progressives complain of delays and inefficiency in its completion. They are the standard bearers of the rapidly approaching cybernetic university (which has already reared its ugly head at UMASS). And they are the enemy: the fight against the market, which is starting again in earnest, means the fight against its latest lackeys.

As for the student, the struggle is fought out entirely over his head, somewhere in the heavenly realm of his masters. The whole of his life is beyond his control, and for all he sees of the world he might as well be on another planet. His acute economic poverty condemns him to a paltry form of survival. But, being a complacent creature, he parades his very ordinary indigence as if it were an original life-style: self-indulgently he affects to be a Bohemian. The Bohemian solution is hardly viable at the best of times, and the notion that it could be achieved without a complete and final break with the university milieu is quite ludicrous. But the student Bohemian (and every student likes to pretend that he is a Bohemian at heart) clings to his false and degraded version of individual revolt. He is so "eccentric" that he continues--thirty years after Reich's excellent lessons--to entertain the most traditional forms of erotic behavior, reproducing at this level the general relations of class society. Where sex is concerned, we have learned better tricks from elderly provincial ladies. His rent-a-crowd militancy for the latest good cause is an aspect of his real impotence.

The students special situation, however, does put him at a potential advantage--if only he could see it. He does have marginal freedoms, a small area of liberty which as yet escapes the totalitarian control of the Spectacle. His flexible working hours permit him adventure and experiment. But he is sucker for punishment, and freedom scares him to death: he feels safer in straightjacketed space-time of lecture hall and weekly "paper". He is quite happy with this open prison organized for his "benefit", and, though not constrained, as are most people, to separate work and leisure, he does so of his own accord--hypocritically proclaiming all the while his contempt for assiduity and corporate men. He embraces every available contradiction and then mutters darkly about the "difficulties of communication" from the uterine warmth of his religious, artistic, or political clique.

Driven by his freely chosen depression, He submits himself to the subsidiary police force of psychiatrists set up by the avant-garde of repression. Those who run the university mental health clinics see this institution as a grand victory for student reform and social progress. Like the Aztecs who ran to greet Cortez's sharp- shooters, and then wondered what made the thunder and what made men fall down, the students flock to the psycho- police stations with their "problems".

The real poverty of his everyday life finds its immediate, fantastic compensation in the opium of cultural commodities. In the Cultural Spectacle he is allotted his habitual role of the dutiful disciple. Although he is close to the production point, access to the Sanctuary of Thought is forbidden, and he is obliged to discover "modern culture" as an admiring spectator. Art is dead, but the student is a necrophiliac. He peeks at the corpse in film clubs and theaters, buys its fish-fingers from the cultural supermarkets. Consuming unreservedly, he is in his element: he is the living proof of all the platitudes of market research: a conspicuous consumer, complete with induced irrational preference for Brand X (George Harrison, for example), and irrational prejudice against Brand Y (John Lennon, perhaps).

He thinks he is avant-garde if he has seen the latest Goddard or "participated" in the latest happening. He discovers "modernity" as fast as the market can produce its ersatz version of long outmoded (though once important) ideas; for him, every rehash is a cultural revolution. His principal concern is status, and he eagerly snaps up all the paperback editions of important and "difficult" texts with which mass culture has filled the bookstores. Unfortunately, he cannot read, so he devours them with his gaze, and enjoys them vicariously through the gaze of his friends. He is an other-directed voyeur.

His favorite reading matter is the kitchen press, whose task is to orchestrate the consumption of cultural nothing-boxes. Docile as ever, the student accepts its commercialized hipness and makes them the only measuring- rod of his tastes. Typically, he is a compulsive reader of weeklies like Newsweek and Rolling Stone. He generally feels that the New York Times--whose style he finds somewhat difficult--is a truly objective newspaper. And it is with such guides that he hopes to gain an understanding of the modern world and become a political initiate!

The student prides himself on his opposition to the Nixon regime. Yet, the student is content to be passively politicized. In this sphere too, he readily accepts the same alienated, spectacular participation. Seizing upon all the tattered remnants of a Left which was annihilated more than forty years ago by "socialist" reformism and Stalinist counter-revolution, he is once more guilty of an amazing ignorance. The Right is well aware of the defeat of the workers' movement, and so are the workers themselves, although more confusedly. But the students continue blithely to organize demonstrations which mobilize students and students only. This is political false consciousness in its virgin state. Occasionally there are deviational tendencies and cries of "Strike!" but after a period of token resistance the dissidents are reincorporated into a status quo which they have never really radically opposed.

But the student, sad to say, is not deterred by this. He feels obliged to have general ideas on everything, to unearth a current world-view capable of lending meaning for his need for activism and asexual promiscuity. As a result, he falls prey to the last doddering missionary efforts of the churches. He rushes with atavistic ardour to adore the putrescent carcass of God, and cherishes all the stinking detritus of prehistoric religions in the tender belief that they enrich him and his time. Along with their sexual rivals, those elderly provincial ladies, the students form the social category with the highest percentage of admitted adherents to these archaic cults. Everywhere else, the priests have been either beaten off or devoured, but the university cleric shamelessly continue to bugger thousands of students in their spiritual shithouses.

We must add in all fairness that there do exist students of a tolerable intellectual level, who without difficulty dominate the controls designated to check the mediocre capacity demanded from others. They do so for the simple reason that they have understood the system, and so despise it and know themselves to be its enemies. They are in the system for what they can get out of it--particularly grants. Exploiting the contradiction which, for the moment at least, ensures the maintainence of a small sector--"research"--still governed by a liberal-academic rather than a technocratic rationality, they calmly carry the germs of sedition to the highest level: their open contempt for the organization is the counterpart of a lucidity which enables them to outdo the system's lackeys, intellectually and otherwise. Such students cannot fail to become theorists of the coming revolutionary movement. For the moment, they make no secret of the fact that what they take so easily from the system shall be used for its overthrow.

The student, if he rebels at all, must first rebel against his studies, though the necessity of this initial move is felt less spontaneously by him than by the worker, who intuitively identifies his work with his total condition. At the same time, since the student is a product of modern society just like Goddard or Coca-Cola, his extreme alienation can only be fought through the struggle against this whole society. It is clear that the university can in no circumstances become a battlefield; the student, insofar as he defines himself as such, manufactures a pseudo-value which must become an obstacle to any clear consciousness of the reality of the dispossession. The best criticism of student life is the behavior of the rest of youth, who have already begun to revolt (the Young Lords, the Black Panthers, young Auto Workers for example). Their rebellion has become one of the signs of a fresh struggle against modern society.

National Women's Political Caucus

"Women Must Unite"

By ZOE BEST

In the past year, women's groups have moved toward the realization that to achieve their particular ends, they have to use political means.

Southern and big city minorities have become strong through voter registration campaigns, block voting, amassing support for a slate of candidates for all levels of government and initiating re-education through discussion of issues. For women, those issues are abortion reform, employment and hiring practices, admittance into previously all or mostly male institutions, welfare rights, children's rights, educational reform and consumer protection and recognition of change regarding society's deprivation imposed on minority women and their communities.

Initiation of political moves by women is exemplified by the National Women's Political Caucus, that met July 9-11 in Washington, D.C. The ultimate goal of the Caucus would be to win at least half of all elective and appointive positions in government.

Fannie Lou Hamer, leader of the Mississippi Democratic Freedom Party who plans to run for the U.S. Senate seat now held by Senator James O. Eastland told the women, "I'm not fighting to liberate myself from the Black man in the South." She called for unity among Blacks, youth and women. "Hook up these minorities and we'd become one hell of a majority."

Rep. Bella Abzug (D-N.Y.) criticized the dominance of "a white, male elite." She said a profound change must be achieved, but not by substituting a woman's elite. "The hope of an effective women's political movement is in reaching out to include those who have been doubly and triply disenfranchised--working women, women on welfare, Black women, young women." "Does anyone think (these women) would have allowed the War in Vietnam to go on for so many years:" She told the women in the conference that had women been in power, they would not have tolerated the disgraceful fact that the U.S. ranks 14th in the world in infant mortality and has no universal health care system.

The National Women's Political Caucus announced its political goals:

—Work for the election of women--and men--in 1972, regardless of party, "who declare themselves ready to fight for the needs and rights of women and all under-represented groups." One rigid restriction of an individual candidate would be to withhold support from any man or woman "who held or advocated racist views!"

—The 21 member policy council including women under 30, Native American, Black and Hispanic women, would assist Caucus participation in the coming presidential conventions and federal, state and local elections.

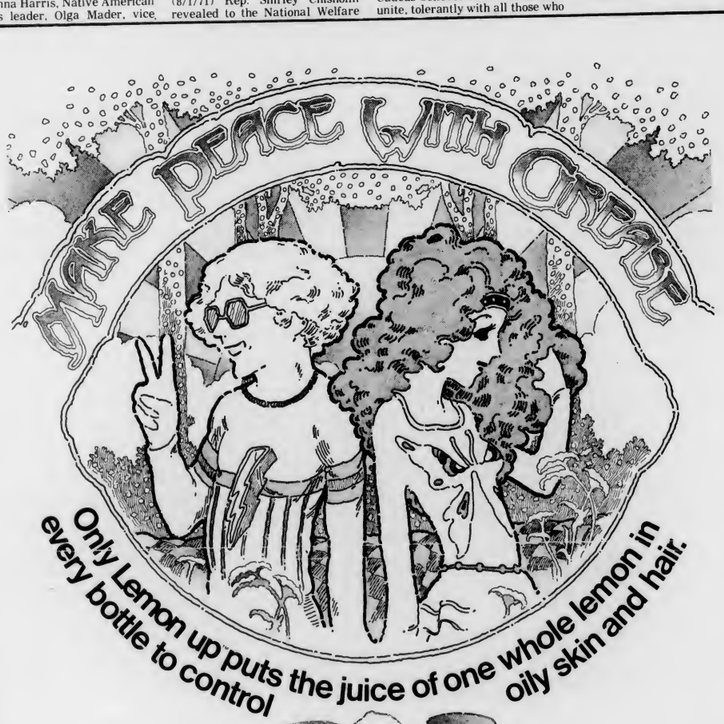
—National Women's Political Convention will be held in early 1972.

—The Caucus's program calls for the immediate withdrawal of U.S. troops from Vietnam. They would press for the establishment of national guidelines calling for the elimination of sexism, racism, violence, and poverty. They would demand the provision of adequate housing and medical care for all citizens and the ending of repressive measures against all individuals who advocate social change. The Caucus would work for a more equitable taxation system, for the expansion of federal anti-discrimination laws and of the federal Equal Employment Opportunities Commission.

Among the women attending the first National Women's Political Caucus were Rep. Shirley Chisholm (D-Brooklyn), Mrs. Medgar Evers, Virginia Allen, Chairman of the President's Task Force on Women's Rights, Beulah Sanders of the National Welfare Rights Organization, Elinor Guggenheimer of the NYC Democratic Advisory Council, LaDonna Harris, Native American Rights leader, Olga Mader, vice president of the United Automobile Workers and Dorothy Height, president of the National Council of Negro Women and Gloria Steinem.

On July 21, Bella Abzug in addressing the formerly all-male National Press Club, said that compelling Congress to become a representative body was the most urgent reform needed in the U.S. government. She warned Nixon that women would become the "balance of power" and will reorder priorities to pay for life instead of death.

Noting that an overwhelming majority of people are opposed to the War and support any Congressional action to end it--she said, "What is needed...is women instead of numbering only 12 in the Congress, would occupy at least half the seats and would be included in the Cabinet and Executive Department, in the courts, and at all levels of government."



According to Thomas Johnson writing for the New York Times (8/1/71) Rep. Shirley Chisholm revealed to the National Welfare Rights Organization convention that she was being encouraged to run for the Presidency "by quite a number of persons, both Black and white." She said her campaign would be "dependent upon what happens with the coalition we are making in an effort to change the Democratic Party. We may well have a good choice for President within the Democratic Party." If a widely based proposed coaltion of poor, young people, minorities, antiwar groups, women and trade unions fails to persuade the Democratic Convention in 1972 of the need for an acceptable candidate, she will consider running as a third-party candidate.

Rep. Chisholm noted that the 14-member Black congressional Caucus were meeting with Black leaders across the country in an attempt to have them "make no commitments to political parties at this time" so that "no political party will take Blacks for granted."

The National Political Women's Caucus believes that women must unite, tolerantly with all those who may coalesce around common issues, to amass the electoral constituency that could as soon as 1972 bring about a positive drastic turn about in the national domestic and international policies of the U.S. government. Emancipation from racist and sexist policies, from poverty, compulsory military service, and war may result only after an upsurgence of politically motivated coalitions, they say.

In Rep. Chisholm's words: "Do you know that a coaltion of national Welfare Rights Organizations, the National Women's Political Caucus, students organizations, Indians, Chicanos, Blacks, Puerto Ricans and the poor-do you know that if we can get this kind of coaltion together in 1972 we can get the kind of President we should have?"

The Mass. Women's Political Caucus will be meeting Nov. 19 and 20 at Lyons Hall, Boston College, Commonwealth Ave., Boston. Call the Valley Womens Center at 586-2011 for rides or further information.

That's the difference between just a little lemon fragrance or extract. That's why Lemon Up Shampoo makes hair shiny clean. That's why Lemon Up Facial Cleanser is far better than soap. And that's why Lemon Up Anti-Blemish Lotion with hexachlorophene is your best defense against oil-troubled skin.

MERCURY BOOKSTORE

Astrology and Occult Sciences

549-0910

9 EAST PLEASANT STREET

AMHERST,

A UMass senior from Worcester, Robert F. Johnson, left, has received the first New England Outdoor Writer's Association Scholarship Award. Congratulating him is his advisor, Prof. Frederick Greeley of the UMass forestry and wildlife management faculty.

Senior Receives Writing Award

A UMass senior from Worcester has been awarded the first $250 New England Outdoor Writer's Association Scholarship Award.

He is Robert F. Johnson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert F. Johnson of 7 Rosemont Rd., Worcester, who ranks third in his class among wildlife students and 16th out of 122 wildlife students in the department. He is taking the wildlife techniques course and at the present time is studying the supply of deer browse on some experimental plots in the Quabbin reservation.

The UMass senior is a National Rifle Association (NRA) member and an active sportsman interested in legislation affecting hunting in the New England states. He plans a career in forest game and hunter education.

The scholarship is to be an annual one, to be awarded at institutions throughout the New England States. To be eligible, students must be pursuing a career in the outdoor field at the graduate level, of acceptable scholarship standing, and in need of financial assistance.

The outdoor writers group contributed $200 of this year's award; the other $50 comes from the Mark Maine Committee, a state of Maine development group.

Debate Team Records Impressive

By JUDY BENNETT

The UMass debate team had impressive records at Brandeis, Dartmouth, Geneseo, and Westpoint recently, debating the topic: resolved that greater controls should be imposed on the gathering and utilization of information about U.S. citizens by government agencies.

At the Brandeis tournament, the team of juniors Bruce Murphy, from Abbington and Dave McCaffrey, from Leominister qualified for the octo-final elimination round against Harvard, with a superb 5-3 record. The team of junior John Day, from South Hamilton and sophomore Jim Lane, of Greenfield were impressive with a 4-4 record as were the team of sophomore Terry Hofmann of Rochester, N.Y. and freshman Celia Hooper of Ann Arbor, Michigan.

The novice debate squad began their season at the Dartmouth tournament. Encouraging results were received here from freshmen Rosemary Connors, of Leominster and Gary Jakacky, of Pittsfield, debating on the affirmative and freshman Mark Dunn, of East Longmeadow and Karin Kramer, a Smith College sophomore from Levittown, Pa. debating on the negative. These four combined for a third place finish at the tournament. Kramer and Dunn also were top two negative speakers at the tournament, while going undefeated.

At the Geneseo tournament in New York, Sophomore Terry Jofmann of Rochester, N.Y. and Junior Roger Legendre of Leominster compiled a fine 6-2 record which qualified them for the octa-final elimination round against Tufts and the team of junior John Day and sophomore Jim Lane finished with a strong 5-3 record. A solid 4-4 record was gained by the team of Bruce Murphy and Celia Hooper, while the freshman team of John Hermanson, of Quincy, and Richard LeBlanc, of Pittsfield, finished with an encouraging 2-6 record in their first intercollegiate competition. In addition, Hofmann and Lane received 10th and 11th place speaker awards at the tournament.

Finally, at the U.S. Military Academy at West Point, the team of senior Paul Lamarche and junior Dave McCaffrey won the first-place award. Lamarche and McCaffrey compiled a sparkling 5-1 record in preliminary competition, defeating teams from B.C. Harvard, Scranton, St. Anselm's and Navy. This qualified them for the semi-final round against Columbia, which they skillfully won and placed them in the final championship round against a strong team from St. Anselm's. Again Lamarche and McCaffrey were victorious. In addition to their excellent team showing, McCaffrey received an award as the fifth place speaker at the tournament.

For STATIONERY by Eaton & Hallmark at

A. J. Hastings

Newsdealer & Stationer

54 So. Pleasant St., Amherst

NOW...YOUR CHOICE OF 5!

Showcase

Rt. 5-W. Spfld.

Cinema 1-2-3-4-5

733-5131

MORE NEW SHOWS!

MORE NEW LOUNGER SEATS!

MORE NEW PARKING!

MATINEES DAILY...POPULAR PRICES

Adults $1.50 Mon thru Fri Mats

1 Ryan's Daughter GP

2 Together X

3 2001 Space Odyssey G

4 Desparate Characters R

5 French Connection R

ACRES FREE PARKING

ROCKER LOUNGERS

A LITTLE BIT OF PURPLE PROSE ABOUT LEARNING TO SKI.

A lot of people will give you this thing about the courage of the first man who ate an oyster.

We would respectfully suggest that he had nothing on the first guy who strapped himself to a pair of oak staves and headed for the nearest mountain.

Whoever he was, wherever he roamed, anyone who's learned that same old way will tell you that if the first skier had nothing else, he had guts.

In fact, until quite recently, guts was the most important single ingredient in learning to ski.

A dramatic development.

Recently, within the last 9 years, a new method of ski instruction has been developed and perfected at Killington.

It is called the Accelerated Ski Method™ (formerly known as GLM). If you have even a shred of desire, plus enough coordination to have picked up this newspaper, you can learn to ski the Accelerated way.

Guts is no longer the pivotal requirement.

A great idea.

Instead of strapping you onto a pair of 6 or 7 foot skis and sending you onto the hill, the Accelerated Ski Method works you up to full-size gradually.

Your first lesson is on 39 inch instruction skis. If you can walk you can get around on these.

Once you've mastered the rhythm and gained confidence you move up to 60 inch, mid-length, training skis. When you have them conquered, you move on to skis which are standard for your weight and height.

Instead of struggling for days with "herringbones" and "sidestepping" you will be skiing, unassisted, in your very first hour. You will amaze yourself.

Some fabulous plans.

Learning to ski is not impossible.

It's also not as expensive as everyone's told you.

At Killington we've put together amazingly inexpensive learn-to-ski vacations, which include everything but your "long-johns." The finest metal skis, mounted with the most advanced release bindings. Top quality buckle-boots and poles. Hundreds of dollars worth of equipment better than most beginners buy for themselves.

All this, plus lifts, plus lessons costs $40 for a 2-day introductory weekend.

For 5 days mid-week, we throw in a few extras and charge $70.

Don't expect any miracles with the weekend plan unless you can put together three or four weekends back-to-back. But if, at the end of a 5-day mid-week vacation, you're not a proficient skier, then you are very probably unteachable.

Some terrific skiing.

Once you learn, you'll find that Killington won't bore you. There are four mountains to ski. Among the more than four dozen trails, you'll find the longest one east of the Rocky Mts.

Of our eleven lifts, one, the new Killington gondola, is the longest ski lift in the world! And, as you might expect, there are a great many places to rest your bones and pick up your spirits when the lifts have closed.

Foster (he's our marketing director) Chandler will send you the facts.
Foster Chandler
540 Killington Road
Killington, Vermont 05751

If we know old Foster he'll absolutely bombard you with brochures, pamphlets and all that.

NAME

ADDRESS

CITY STATE ZIP

KILLINGTON, Vt.

World's capital of learning to ski.

McDonald's® in Hadley

GRAND OPENING TUESDAY

BRING THE FAMILY TO THE GRAND OPENING OF HADLEY'S McDONALD'S. SEE THE BEAUTIFUL NEW LOOK. INSIDE SEATING. LOW PRICES. FAST, COURTEOUS SERVICE AND ALL THE OTHER THINGS McDONALD'S IS FAMOUS FOR. 100% PURE BEEF HAMBURGERS. CRISP, GOLDEN FRENCH FRIES. TRIPLE-THICK SHAKES. AND BIG MAC, THE MEAL DISGUISED AS A SANDWICH.

★ FREE GIFTS ★ FUN FOR EVERYONE!

377 RUSSELL STREET
HADLEY

McDonald's®

WMUA

TONIGHT ON 91.1FM:
7:00pm NEWS - a half hour of news and information.
7:30pm CAMPUS WEEK IN REVIEW - a magazine of the past week's campus news and happening put together by WMUA News.
8:00pm UJAMMA DRUM - black programming with jazz, soul, black commentary and information and news compiled by the news staff of Ujamaa Drum. (three hours)
11:00pm LATE NIGHTNEWSREPORT - a 30 minute newscast with feeds from two wire services, a world audio network and original reports by WMUA News.
11:30pm - 3:00am R.J. HANSON SHOW - rock, progressive rock and other good sounds.

UMass Faculty To Attend White House Conference

Two faculty members from UMass have been selected to participate in the second White House Conference on the Aging beginning Nov. 28 in Washington where 3,500 delegates will meet to develop a national action program on problems of the aging.

Professor Harvey Friedman, director of the Labor Relations and Research Center, has been chosen to be a delegate from Massachusetts. He will concentrate his participation in the section on training with emphasis on preretirement training. Prof. Friedman was principal investigator of a major preretirement research and demonstration project and co-authored with Prof. John O'Rourke the final report. He has also served on the task force on training in preparation for the aging conference and conducted sessions at state conferences having to do with aging.

Professor Solomon Barkin of the economics department, who is also a research associate of the Labor Relations and Research Center, was designated to be consultant to the section on income at the conference; he is also to be chairman of a subsection of the section on income. Prof. Barkin served in a similar capacity at the 1961 White House Conference on Aging. He is the author of a number of books, including "Old Age Security," "Old Worker in Industry" and co-author of "Flexibility of Retirement Age." plus many articles in the field. He pioneered in the field of legislation for old age security and retirement systems and the development of techniques for advancing the employment opportunities for the skills of older workers. He is a Fellow of the Gerontological Society.

Notices

ANIMAL SCIENCE CLUB
Meeting tonight at 7:30 CC rm. 804. Dr. Anthony Borton is guest speaker. Topic: "What we don't know about horses."

APPLE CORPS
Bazzar-Orchard Hill–Dec. 12. Anyone interested in setting up a booth to sell anything (crafts, silver, leather) call Howy, 66909 after 11pm.

BEWARE THE STARE
Earth held in terror by children from Beyond, CHILDREN OF THE DAMNED, Monday, Mahar at 7:30 & 9:30. Beware the eyes that paralyze!

BHAKTI YOGA CLASS
Gita Reading. In Cance Lounge on Monday at 6pm.

CAMPUS CENTER PROGRAM COUNCIL
Emergency meeting for all mambers, Monday. For room # check at the PC office in CC Student Activities, rm 101 or call 50194 or 50198.

CLASSICAL GUITARISTS
Intermediate or advanced interested in swapping, sharing music, technique, ideas, etc. call Gary Morris 5469818.

CEQ
Steering committee meets tomorrow at 6:30 pm in Student Activities Area. Out-of-Basin Water Division Policy to be discussed again, Campus Alert project will be looking for members, & anyone interested in the environment is welcome to attend.

READING/STUDY SKILLS
Workshops Monday: Controlled Reading, Tuesday: Skimming, both at 7:30pm. Basement, Johnson House. Call 5849453 for info.

RECREATION SOCIETY
SPREE committee meeting 6:30 in CC Coffee Shop. Wednesday Nov. 17th. An important meeting! Be prompt.

STUDENT ART ASSOCIATION
Will be holding elections, tonight, 6:30 in Rm 805-809 CC. All members and anyone interested in becoming a member are invited.

LOST
At Mary Lyons Modular experience--an Armish ring with a design of a bird upon it. Sentimental value. Call Robyn at 66524.

Gold wedding band with initials KMW to JSE 6/7/71. If found please call Jake 5493916. Thanks.

3 years old male orange cat. Answers to "Tramp." Looks like Morris. Missing from 337 Puffton. Please call anytime. 549-6786.

1 year old male sealpoint siamese. Answers to "Snowy." Old brown collar. Missing from 337 Puffton. Call 5496786 anytime.

Would whoever picked up my notebook by mistake at the CC pinball machines around 1:30 Thurs. morning please return it to 718 J. Adams.

In or outside Hatch or CC, spiral notebook w/clipboard. Keep clipboard but please return notes--call Bonnie 52412 or 52413

On Wednesday at Chequers a rare and expensive leather Mexican Pardre hat, with leather strips hanging from side. Please return to Joe Sam. School of Ed or Mills House, Bill Hasson.

FOUND
Camera & accessory. I will return them to owner when he supplies a detailed description of the items. Tom Gustavson, Morrill Sci. Ctr. rm 249 B.

In field behind F-lot–key ring with 3 keys/contact CC lost & found.

Macrobiotic Food in the
HATCH
11:30-2 weekdays

The Original American Touring Company
of
J.C. SUPERSTAR
Live — In Person
at American International College
(A.I.C.)
Roosevelt Avenue, Spfld., Mass.
Tues., Nov. 16th
at 7:00 p.m.
Tickets Available at:
R.S.O. Office
Lower Level, Student Union, U. Mass.
ADVANCED SALES ONLY . . . LIMITED NUMBER AVAILABLE

MDC CLASSIFIED

AUTOS FOR SALE

1966 Red Porsche 912. new tires. battery. Good mechanical condition. Best offer. 253-9680, or 545-2330. tf11-17

1965 GTO std., 4 sp., h.t., 2 dr., blue, like new, asking $750. Call after 6 p.m. Tel. 256-8063. My loss is your gain. tf11-16

'67 Chevelle Malibu, 2-door hardtop, vinyl roof, radio, V-8, A.T., P.S., excellent condition, $995. Call 253-3067. tf11-19

66 Rambler, good engine, no trans., extra wheels and tires. Will sell in part or whole. Best offer. Call Zig at 256-6630. After 6. tf-11-17

63 Ply. Fury, gd. eng. & trs., needs new minor reps. Only 68000 mi. Call Stan 549-6344, cheap. tf11-17

1971 blue Chevy Vega hatchback coupe auto. trans., 7 good tires incl. snow tires, excellent cond. Call 549-6730 after 5 p.m. tf11-16

Mustang '65, worth more than $1000 must sell, will take best and fastest offer. Call 1-533-3470 after 5 p.m. tf11-16

1966 red Porsche 912, new tires, new battery, good mechanical condition. Best offer. tf11-17

MOTORCYCLES FOR SALE

Honda 350 cl, 1970, ex. cond. Call 253-3088 after 5 p.m. tf11-17

FOR SALE

Rickenbacker 12 string semi-accoustical electric guitar with case, excellent condition, best offer. Call Ed 253-9957. 11-18

Fischer wood Skis, Cubco bindings, size 9, Rieker lace boots, poles, boot tree, $40. Complete. Call Bob 546-6539. tf11-16

Air Force type parkas, brand new, $30. Call 546-6539. tf11-16

Discount Stereo Components, compacts, T.V.'s, 20-40%off list price. Most major brands available. Jim Jensen 586-1565. tf11-16

AKC Pemgroke Welsh Corgi male, 6 wks, red & white, great disposition, $100.00 Call 498-5419. tf11-16

Records! New albums in stock, tape & stereo equipment by order, discount prices, come to 242, Gorman or call John at 546-6470. tf11-16

Available Dec. 1 - bedroom, town house, Putton Village, near U-Mass, all conveniences. Call 549-0177. tf11-17

Telescope edmonton 6" reflector orig. $280 asking $200 and realistic tape deck sound on sound asking $100. 545-2416 Bill rm. 128. tf11-16

Head masters 205cm marker bindings: originally $210 now $140. Call Peter Zandan in 417 Greenough 545-2630. tf11-17

Portable stereo record player, good condition $15. Call Judy 546-5128. tf11-15

Guitars Amps, drums, acc. at reasonable prices. The Guitar Workshop, 98 Main St. North. 586-1709. tf11-20

WANTED

Female desires traveling companion to West Coast, leaving around Dec. 1. Call Joan Gipson, 538-2203. tf11-19

Photographer wants open-minded female models. Good pay. No exp. required. Write: Rob, PO Box 272, Chicopee, Mass. 01014. tf11-18

Amplifier preferably small fender (prechs) can't go over $250. Call Larry, 546-7228, 720 Webster. tf11-16

TRAVEL

Crimson Travel offers low cost spring vacation trips to Bermuda and Nassau. For more info call Rich Margiff412 Dwight 545-0790. tf11-19

FOR RENT

Presidential apartment-oublet available Nov. 15, $185, including utilities. Call 253-2515. Kamins Real Estate. tf11-19

Furnished room, ½ 1/2 mi. UMass. Kitchen priv. available immediately. Call 586-0030. tf11-16

For rent 3room apt. close to school, good for couple, $135/mo., hetu, heat, hot water. Call Nancy Thomas evenings 665-3236 avail. now. tf11-15

PERSONAL

Dear S.K.- It has been a great year. Looking forward to many more. I love you, honey and so does the GT350. 11-15

Leo-Flutter, Flutter! 11-15

Snow Queen, a beautiful color animated fable, Tuesday night, Nov. 16, 7:00, 8:30, 10:00, 50c, Student Union Ballroom. Free popcorn! tf11-16

Red Headband-sorry I'm late-yet feel doubtful as to whether you're still interested. Need positive encouragement-locate youself on 11/17 CC Coffee Shop, sometime between 2:30-3:30. I'll be watching. Field. 11-15

To my GDI-you make me feel just like a natural woman. I'll love you forever and ever! Much love from your single-roommate-wife. 11-15

Very real woman would like to meet single man (30-40) who desires mature human contact. Write PO Box 198, Amherst. tf11-17

You're warm, warmer, now you're hot in an authentic air force parka: Mens $37.50, boys & girls $34.50 Call Al at 549-6814-275 Puffton VIII. tf11-19

SERVICES

Advanced music student will give piano lessons in your home dorm or wherever. Call 323-7273. $3.00/ 3/4 hour. tf11-17

I'll fix your smokey car, brakes etc. Remember winter is coming. Call Wendell, 256-8838. 11-2-8-15

ROOMMATES WANTED

To share large 2 bedroom apt. in Northampton, avail. immediately, approx. $70 inc. util. Male grad., pref., but not necessary. 586-3650 aft. 5. tf11-15

LOST

Diamond engagement ring, gold setting. Sat. at the stadium. If found call Sheila 256-6844. Reward. tf11-15

RIDE WANTED

Ride to No. Carolina prefer Chapel Hill and/or return during Thanksgiving period. Can pay expenses. Call Joan 253-3063. tf11-17

Help! Stranded commuter needs ride Spfld., UMass. for 4 a.m., class Tuth. Also UM-Spfld., Tu. 5:30 p.m., can help expenses! 734-2215 after 4 p.m. tf11-16

ENTERTAINMENT

Rock group Phoenix for your party or dance, old standard music at reasonable rates, make res. for Xmas parties now. Call Pete 549-6028. tf11-17

STUDENTS BOOK MATCHING

Register your book in S.U. Rm. 316. Every student with your course next semester will need your books save $ money, sell direct. tf-sem

TYPING

Typing--theses, dissertations, etc. Fast, accurate, experienced. Have Math and Chem. symbols. Call 253-3801. tf12-21

FREE

Unclaimed stray dog, 1 yr. old male terrier, housebroken. 253-5767. tf11-16

LOST—REWARD

Wedding ring lost somewhere in the Amherst area. Wide gold band with initials KME to JSE 6/7/70. Please call 549-3016 or 549-1311. tf11-15

1700 Veterans At UMass

By SHELLEY LAUZON

One of every 13 students at UMass has filled out all the mountains of paperwork that everyone gets-and then more. A total of 1,700 students are enrolled here as military veterans, and this means an involved admissions procedure.

A study conducted by the Admissions Office of 160 veterans of the Class of 1971 seemed to substantiate the belief that veterans can compete successfully with students directly from high school.

The average cum was 2.86 and 34% graduated with honors, according to Assistant Director of Admission David Lawrence.

A Massachusetts veteran who receives an honorable discharge, completes a University application for admission, and receives scores of approximately 450 or higher on each section of the Scholastic Aptitude Tests (SAT) has a good chance of admission to the University, according to the Veteran's Office in Whitmore.

The term "veteran" is applied to those who have completed at least 181 days continuous active military duty, any part of which occurred after January 31, 1955. Also included are those released from active duty after that date for a service-connected disability.

The General Educational Diploma (GED) or High School Equivalency Diploma is recognized by UMass only if granted by the Massachusetts Department of Education in Boston, Mass. Veterans receiving the GED while in the Armed Service must transfer it to the State Department Equivalency diploma.

To be accepted to the University, applications must be submitted by veterans prior to April 1 for the fall semester and November 1 for the spring semester. If an institution of higher learning has been attended full-time, a transfer application must be submitted. In cases where the veteran has never enrolled as a full-time student beyond high school, a freshman application must then be submitted.

The Scholastic Aptitude Tests (SAT) of the College Entrance Examination Board must be taken within 2 years before the proposed enrollment date. Because of a veterans experience and maturity, the Admissions Office has decided that SAT scores for vets do not have to equal those of students applying directly from high school. The average scores on the exams is 550 for high school graduates, but UMass believes that a veteran who receives a score no lower than 100 points below the high school graduate can successfully compete with him.

Transfer from a Massachusetts Junior or Community College with a completed 2-year Liberal Arts Program and a recommendation by college personnel will give a vet full transfer credit and Junior Class status. However, he will be considered a transfer student if he has enrolled in a 2 or 4 year college directly after discharge.

The University will accept credit for USAFI courses, which are comparable to those here, provided a grade of "C" or better had been obtained. Credit is also accepted on test scores above the 50 percentile on the College Level Examination Program (CLEP). Contrary to rumor, a veteran does not receive credit simply for being a veteran. All credit granted is considered only after documentation of service schooling. A copy of separation papers and a certificate of course completion must be evaluated by the University.

Financial aid is granted through the Veteran's Administration Office after acceptance to UMass. Tuition waivers for four academic years are granted at any Massachusetts supported institution of higher learning for a vet whose home was in the state upon entrance to the Service and who served at least 180 days subsequent to January 31, 1955.

Admissions for all non-residents to UMass cannot exceed 5% of the total enrollment. Non-resident veterans are therefore discouraged from applying due to the high competition unless they are superior in academic background and test scores and can meet regular admission requirements.

Mobe Plans For Spring

The Student Mobilization Committee held a brief meeting Thursday, Nov. 11, in which the effects of the November 6 demonstration were reviewed along with plans for continuing antiwar actions. The Mobe incurred a debt on bus transportation, and to resolve financial problems the members voted to run the film "1984", based on the novel by George Orwell, as well as W.C. Fields in "The Pharmacist". The time and place for the films will be announced.

Also discussed at the meeting were plans to attend the National Peace Action Coalition conference the weekend of December 3-5 in Cleveland, Ohio. All those who wish to take part in the planning of the spring antiwar offensive are asked to attend the conference. The next scheduled meeting of the UMass SMC will be on the Monday after Thanksgiving.

Chess Team Wins, 6-4

Last week, the UMass chess team traveled to Fitchburg for a match with the Wachusett Chess Club. UMass won the 10-board match, 6-4. Winning for the visitors were George Kosinski, Alan Searleman, James Shepard, James Lane, and Martin Laine. Draws, adding half a point to each team's score, were contributed by Robert Corwin and Alan Palmer. Barry Corwin, Mike Stankiewicz, and Ron Charbonneay lost their games.

The UMass Chess Club meets every Wednesday evening from 7 to 11 in the back of the Hatch.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

By SYDNEY OMARR

Scorpio persons can be lucky in money for those born under Libra. Sagittarians are good financially for Scorpio. Aquarians are good, in a financial sense, for Capricorn. If born under Gemini, look to Cancer for financial good fortune. Pisces should choose Aries for moneymaking propositions.

*****

ARIES (March 21-April 19): What was lost is located. Be sure where accusations are concerned. Maintain emotional balance. Member of opposite sex plays prominent role. Check assets, take inventory. Dig for information.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Lie low, permit others to set pace. Get your bearings. Be especially aware of public relations. Protect reputation, image. Consult expert in legal area. Be wary about affixing signature to documents.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Hunch could pay dividends. Trust intuition. Inner feelings contain legitimate message. Keep resolutions concerned with health, work, associations with neighbors, relatives. Study Taurus message.

CANCER (June 22-July 22): Good lunar aspect now coincides with love, expressions of feelings, creative endeavors. Children could figure prominently. Key is versatility. Try things, experiment and be stimulated.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Stress the practical. Leave pipe dreams to others. Get busy with home repairs. Check roofing, electrical outlets. Be thorough. Protect security. One who advocates otherwise is misinformed.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Accent on calls, messages, short journeys. You are active and key is to establish better line of communication. Gemini individual figures prominently. Find out where you want to go, and why.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Money is stressed. Scorpio can aid in this area. Pay, collect debts. You get what you want through cooperation of family. Don't attempt to go it alone. Seek harmony. Make conciliatory gesture.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Lunar cycle encourages taking a chance on ideas, personal abilities. Perceive subtle nuances. Someone is trying to tell you something. Don't fear new contacts, instead, encourage them.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Heavy handed methods may be applied, aimed at bringing you into line. Maintain position. One in authority will back your position. Know this be confident, not frightened. Look behind scenes.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Accent on desires, income from professional activity. You gain by putting finishing touches on project. A special relationship causes concern. Refuse to let emotions run out of control.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Obtain valid hint from Capricorn message. Stress ambition, ability to surpass opposition. Key is confidence. Know that your methods are correct. One who criticizes may merely be envious.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Philosophical concepts may be put to test. Share knowledge. Break hermetic seal. Means be open, express yourself. Correspond broaden lines of communication. Unorthodox approach succeeds.

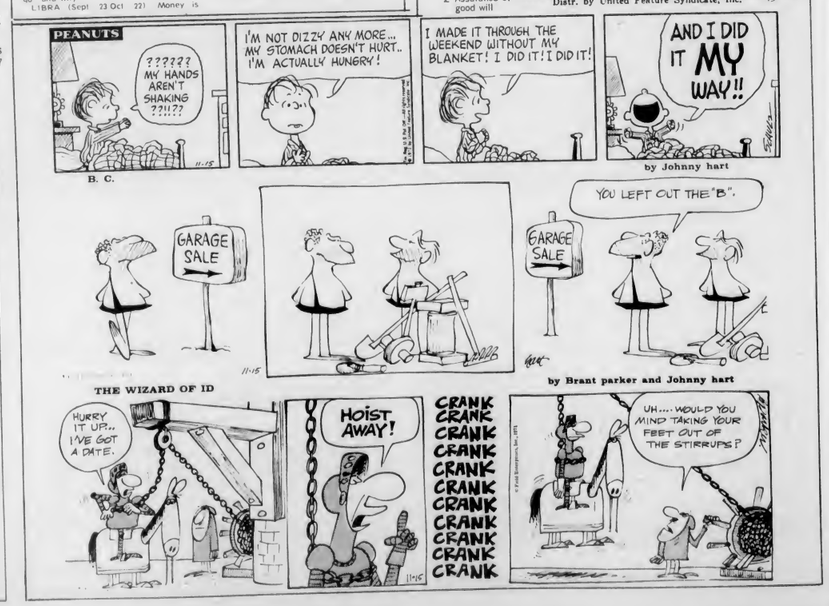
IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you have natural sense of harmony. Voice is unusual, containing dramatic, vibrant quality. You have three emotional months taken on added responsibility. You are due to gain more recognition. Some who previously were lukewarm will intensify their feelings toward you.

Copyright 1971, Gen. Fea. Corp.

Crossword Puzzle

Answer to Saturday's Puzzle

ACROSS



1 Simian
4 Bone
6 Constellation
11 Utterance of grief
13 Roams
15 Symbol for tellurium
16 Trading
18 Saint (abbr.)
19 Prefix: down
21 Pintail duck
22 Poker stake
24 Site of Taj Mahal
26 Metal fasteners
28 Guido's high note
29 Repairs
31 Heavenly body
33 Printer's measure
34 French for "without"
36 Petitions
38 Versus (abbr.)
40 Inclined roadway
42 Anon
45 Exclamation
47 Fuel
49 Peel
50 Strokes
52 Region
54 A state (abbr.)
55 Conjunction
56 Existing
59 Conjunction
61 Renown
63 Sounded a horn
65 Took one's part
66 Exclamation
67 Exist

DOWN

1 Likely
2 Assurance of good will
3 Babylonian deity
4 Units
5 Brand
6 Puts oneself into correct position
7 Hurried
8 Girl's name
9 King of Bashan
10 Cuddle up
12 Cyprinoid fish
14 Vapor
17 Hawaiian wreaths
20 Sea eagles
23 Compass point
24 Part of "to be"
25 Hebrew month
27 Man's name
30 Break suddenly
32 Harvest
35 Besmirched
37 Antlered animal
38 Steam
39 Portions
41 Young salmon
43 Rubber on pencil
44 Note of scale
46 Near
48 Molars
51 Run swiftly
53 Ox of Celebes
57 Southwestern Indian
58 Preposition
60 Poem
62 Greek letter
64 Symbol for tantalum

Distr. by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.

PROTEST
HIGH HOTEL RATES IN NEW YORK CITY
Stay at the world famous Hotel Roosevelt for just $10 A DAY SINGLE
$15.00 Double
$ 3.00 for 3rd person in room
Thanksgiving Day - Reserve now for an exciting holiday in New York.
Get into it on the East Side, the best location in the city. You're within walking distance of famous shops, boutiques, popular East Side pubs, the U.N., the Main Library, Museums and those great little restaurants from every country in the world.
The Roosevelt HOTEL
For reservations call FREE
800-522-6449 New York State
800-221-2690 All other States
Madison Avenue & 45th Street
New York, N.Y. 10017
A REALTY HOTEL

DiNardo Career A Series of Injuries

By MARK VOGLER

Senior Angelo DiNardo's sparing usage over the course of his varsity career could have qualified him for the dubious distinction of bench jockey. Except in DiNardo's case, his confinement to the sidelines was dictated for health and not ability purposes.

Having come off a fine year with an undefeated freshman team at flankerback, speculation had it that DiNardo was tabbed as future starting potential by Coach Vic Fusia. But fate stepped in during his sophomore year with an injury establishing residence for the hard luck ahead.

His troubles began on a cold afternoon against Vermont, the seventh game of the 1969 season. It was in that game that DiNardo sustained a severe groin tear--claimed by trainer Vic Keedy at the time as one of the worst he's seen. Incapacitated by the injury, he spent the remainder of the campaign on crutches.

Coach Fusia realized the extent of the injury and recommended DiNardo to by-pass spring ball. His junior year came and troubles started right away. Both legs seemed to bother him and a pulled hamstring muscle didn't help matters any. Speed was his big asset and he was obviously hindered without it.

DiNardo didn't need a tour of active duty in the armed forces to earn his purple heart. Plagued by a wide assortment of ailments and injuries, he put in overtime on the trainer's table. He clearly saw less action as a junior.

With just a year of playing eligibility left, nothing accomplished and little to prove, most men wouldn't be too eager to continue. DiNardo said he felt like throwing in the towel many times, but as he put it: "I just didn't have it in me. I had started something and I intended to stick it out despite the adversity."

"Every time I got hurt, I didn't anticipate that I would get hurt again. I felt that my luck would change and things would be running smoothly for me again. You can't predict injuries in this game, let me tell you, you can't.

"I think it's the gretest game, but sometimes the ability and the knowledge is not the only means of playing football. I think everybody leaves a big important factor out of the game, and that's luck. And I guess I didn't luck out."

DiNardo kept plugging, and as a result of his desire and determination, the senior veteran was the most impressive running back in spring drills. He was destined to start. But wouldn't you know it, his fortunes were a video replay of the past--with a fractured elbow spring was soon over.

Then came pre-season, and with it an aggravated leg muscle. What else is new? Possibly a shoulder separation early in the year, not to mention the minor bumps and bruises that all add up. With the injury bug having become second nature by now, DiNardo took the matter in a different light.

"Psychologically at the beginning it used to be a big blow," he said. "But as the injuries continued and continued I thought this was another phase of life--and this was the way that faith wanted me to take my tolls.

"But I'm sure football's gonna leave a lot of memories for me, plus the people and friends I met playing ball will be remembered. And I'm sure that faith will revert itself someday and offer me an opportunity in another phase of life."

Head Coach Dick MacPherson admits that DiNardo has not done much in terms of playing but he insists that the player has contributed to the team in his own right.

"It's really been a perplexing career for Angie," sympathized the coach. "It's unfortunate that a young man with such a tremendous amount of talent has been riddled by so much injury throughout his college days."

"We're sure that he's disappointed with his performance, and we just hope that for the rest of the season we can get him in as much as possible so that he can wind up with pleasant memories, instead of the disappointment he's been exposed to during the bulk of his three years on the varsity."

"He's been 100% behind the program. Despite the rash of injuries he's been subjected to, he's worked all the more harder. I'm quite pleased about what he has done for us in this respect, by the example he has set in coping with the whole thing. Despite the unbearable circumstances, he didn't quit. He could've gone the other way, but Angie has too much character for that."

A four-sports standout from Somerville High, DiNardo expressed his sentiments on the upcoming B.C. contest which will be a collegiate finale for him and 17 other seniors:

"B.C. is not too far from my hometown, and that's the place where my football career began--in the Boston area. And I can't think of any better place to end it."

"A victory over B.C. is the most important thing in my life at this moment. Termed as the mismatch of the 21st century, Boston College is heavily favored. We have one big advantage, and that's their cockiness against us. A victory over B.C. is just as good as a 9-0 season. That's how I feel about it."

Reflections of a Night in Long Island--Tomorrow

Termpapers Unlimited

"WE GIVE RESULTS"
297 Huntington Ave.
Boston, Mass. 02115
(617) 267-3000

NFL Scores

New England	38
Buffalo
Minnesota	3
Green Bay	0
Baltimore	14
NY Jets	13
NY Giants	21
Atlanta	17
LA Rams	21
Detroit	13
Miami	24
Pittsburgh	21
Dallas	20
Philadelphia	7
KC Chiefs	13
Cleveland	7
Chicago Bears	16
Washington	15
New Orleans	26
San Francisco	20
Oakland	41
Houston	21
Cincinnati	24
Denver	10

Frosh Finish With Win

By BILL BALLOU

The Christians stood a better chance against the lions. At least that's what most of the fans that attended Friday's freshman game at Alumni Stadium must have thought while they were heading home after watching the UMass frosh demolish the Wildcats from New Hampshire in easy fashion by a score of 38-14.

Those brave few that could stand the cold weather and gray skies were fortunate to see some spectacular football, featuring an 83 yard run by Rich Hermann, some great passing by Fred Kelliher who at one point hit on six consecutive passes, and a couple of astounding grabs by flanker John Healy.

New Hampshire, on the other hand, had little to cheer about all day long as they permitted the Redmen to jump out to a ten point bulge before they could cut the gap to 10-7 and then allowed UMass three unanswered TD's before getting on the board again late in the game.

The first part of the game belonged to Redmen linebacker Tom Bradshaw. The Taunton native was all over the field making tackles and breaking up plays, becoming about as popular as the plague to New Hampshire backs. After John Ames had banged home a field goal from the 22, Bradshaw picked off a Kevin Bacher pass at the NH 45 and scooted down the sideline into the end zone for a touchdown. When Ames converted, UNH found themselves in a 10 point hole that they were unable to get out of.

The Wildcats went to work after that and picked up their first touchdown as John Schurman recovered a UMass fumble at the Redmen 18. Fullback John Sexton went in from there and local boy Rich Garber converted to make it 10-7.

That was as close as New Hampshire was to come. From this point to the end of the half, Fred Kelliher took over and picked apart the Wildcat secondary, at one point firing six straight completions, working mainly to his ends Gary Mika and Bill Wolfe.

His first TD pass was to John Healy, a 40 yarder on which Healy made a great catch. The conversion made it 17-7. Just before the end of the half Healy made another super catch and took the ball down to the one yard line. Rich Hermann scored from about 2 millimeters and with Ames' conversion the half ended 24-7.

Action in the second half slowed down considerably, and most of the fans headed up into the press box. Those that remained cleverly disguised themselves as empty seats, giving the impression of a near empty stadium. The Redmen managed two scores, one from Tom Szematowicz and the other from Rich Hermann. Hermann's TD ranks as the play of the season for UMass, as he took it in from his own 17 yard line behind great blocking and his own fine cutback to midfield. It was one of those rare "picture plays".

The Wildcats only score in the half came on a penalty-aided drive of 91 yards that resulted in Doug Creighton going in off-tackle for six points.

The win gave the Redmen a season's log of four wins and one loss, a record that not only indicates just how talented and well-coached they were, but augers well for future varsity squads. New Hampshire dropped to 2-4, but several of their players exhibited good potential.

UMass played its typical ball game in winning this one, relying on strong defense and a balanced attack to dominate the action from start to finish. All of their four victories have been this type of ball game, and all of their four victories had them in the lead from start to finish. Their one defeat came on a Sunday against Boston College in weather so wet that Noah couldn't have hacked it. What would have happened on a good day no one knows, but chances are it would have been one heck of a game. In any case, the Redmen frosh, their coach Bill Maxwell, and his assistants Don Johnson, Ernie Smith, Tom Cataldo, Mike McArdle and Joe Lang all should be proud of a fine season.

Plunkett Hurls Four TD's; Pats Hold Off Bills For Win

FOXBORO, (AP) — Rookie Jim Plunkett threw four touchdown passes as the New England Patriots built a commanding lead and then hung in an error-plagued second half Sunday for a 38-33 National Football League victory over Buffalo's winless Bills.

Plunkett, the Heisman Trophy winner from Stanford, connected on scoring shots to Randy Vataha for 16 yards, Tom Beer for 13, Carl Garrett for 80 and Eric Crabtree for 31.

The touchdown pass to Crabtree after a fumble recovery by Beer early in the third period gave New England a 35-20 lead. Then the Patriots went into a deep slump, committing a flock of errors which enabled Buffalo to close within two points.

Unable to fashion a first down after the touchdown pass to Crabtree until midway through the fourth period, the Patriots finally got rolling again and set up Charlie Gogolak for an insurance field goal from 37 yards out with 4:39 remaining.

John Leypoldt booted four field goals for the Bills. The Bills, who have lost nine in a row with the most porous defense in the NF, scored 13 points within a span of 3:14 late in the third period and early in the finale.

Leypoldt ignited the outburst with a 17-yard field goal at 11:54 of the third quarter. Then 46 seconds later Garrett fumbled as he was hit and Bob James recovered in the end zone for a Buffalo touchdown.

After the ensuing kickoff, Plunkett fumbled as he was hit while trying to pass and Al Cowlings recovered at the Boston 10. On the fourth play Leypoldt booted a 12-yard field goal.

Buffalo jolted the Patriots by jumping to a first period lead as Ike Hill took a punt and raced 68 yards for a touchdown.

New England bounced right back and went 87 yards in six plays to tie the score, Plunkett hitting Vataha in the end zone in the final play of the quarter.

The two teams exchanged touchdowns in the second period, Plunkett passing to Beer in the end zone and Buffalo's Jim Harris tossing 15 yards to Marlin Briscoe.

The Bills went in front on a 17-yard field goal by Leypoldt before Garrett made an over-the-shoulder catch of a Plunkett pass and took off on his long touchdown run.

The Patriots added another quick score as Roland Moss, a reserve tight end, blocked a punt, picked up the loose ball and ran in from 10 yards out.

Buffalo narrowed the count to 28-20 on a 48-yard field goal by Leypoldt with five seconds left in the half.

Plunkett failed in his first three passes, but then connected for eight in a row before going into the second half slump.

The victory was the fourth in nine games for the Patriots who had a 2-12 record, the poorest in the League last season.

JUST IN TIME--UNH quarterback Bob Hopkins (15) just gets the ball away before getting smeared by UMass tackle Steve Greaney (78) and defensive end Curt Bristol (82). Hopkins completed 16 of 30 passes on the afternoon. (Photo by Bob Medeiros)

RENT A BUS
Is your group or club going somewhere? Rent a comfortable Peter Pan bus to take you there! Rent a luxury bus without a luxury cost.
Peter Pan
Amherst Center
Tel. 253-5286

Redmen Earn "Half" YanCon Title

By EARLE BARROLL

DURHAM-Four games ago the cry was "pack it in", three games ago it was "well, maybe not", two games ago it changed to "there's still a chance on the 13th", and as of one game ago it was "maybe they are for real".

Well, the 13th has passed and they are for real...And as a result of Saturday's pasting of New Hampshire, 38-20, the UMass football team shares the Yankee Conference championship...and this is for real. Just asked UNH.

UConn grabbed its share of the title by defeating Rhode Island, 10-6.

New Hampshire was the league leader going into this game and needed a victory to take it all, but any chances of a title were fumbled away literally in a first half exhibition that was a picture of ineptitude when it came down to the nitty gritty.

The Wildcats fumbled three times in the half, two that changed the course of the entire game.

After the Redmen powered down the field on their first drive for a concluding Paul Metallo 11 yard burst to paydirt, UNH took the ensuing kickoff and moved to the UMass one where they fumbled the ball away..that's one.

Four downs later, Jack O'Neil punted from his endzone and got off a wobbly one that went but 17 yards. Two plays later the Wildcats fumbled again on the UMass 23, the Redmen took the ball and moved down the field for their second score just minutes into the second quarter on a one yard plunge by Tim Berra and for all intents and purposes the Bean Pot was on its way home to Amherst...that's two.

Meanwhile Metallo and quarterback Piel Pennington put on another of their multi-offensive displays that led the Redmen to a 28-7 halftime lead that wrapped things up.

Metallo ran for 118 yards in the first half and his game total of 168 bypassed the former UMass record of 728 set by Greg Landry back in 1967. Metallo's total stands at 765, not bad for having only one net yard after three games.

His slashing gallops up the middle and around the end opened up the airways for Pennington and like all good quarterbacks, he took advantage of this opportunity.

Piel was practically flawless in the first half hitting on 10 of 11 including eight in a row to open the game. On the afternoon he connected on 16 of 23 for 198 yards and was extremely sharp on third down situations where he completed nine aerials to keep Redmen drives alive, including three TD's.

After the game, a happy coach, Dick MacPherson, said, "Paul's running makes Pennington go. He was the one major factor in turning us around. Without the big back we needed speed, and Metallo represented this."

Wildcat quarterback Bob Hopkins also put on quite an air display for himself, riddling the injured UMass secondary for 16 completions, 11 coming in the second half when he routed the defensive secondary for two touchdowns through the air.

"Mac" has a lot of praise for Hopkins. "Give Hopkins credit, he got time to throw and used it well. We didn't have a good pass rush and this hurt our defensive secondary."

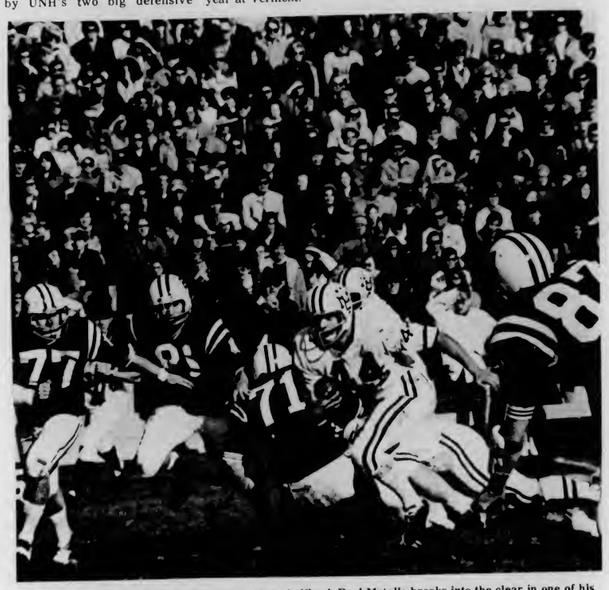
To complete the O'Neil brother duo, younger brother Bob from UNH had a big day with seven receptions for 111 yards. After the game, Jack was quick to say, "he stayed to the outside and didn't come down the middle where I was."

Behind 14-0, UNH came back on a power slant up the middle by Dennis Coady good for 23 yards and their first score. They were back in the game...all of four minutes worth.

On the next kickoff, Pennington drove his team right down the field on eight plays and a concluding two yard shot to tight end Jon Hulecki who had his finest reception day of the season with six.

UNH was stopped on the next series and Pennington, Metallo, Rich Cronin and Steve Schubert did their thing for 69 yards right to the goal line and a 28-7 halftime lead.

In the second half the Redmen were guilty of uncrisp blocking that resulted in overpowering play by UNH's two big defensive tackles...But in the end when it counted "we pressured them when we needed to", said MacPherson.



The Wildcats came within a touchdown midway in the third quarter on a Hopkins to O'Neil hookup...the crowd sensed a comeback, but they didn't sense a record 52 yard field goal by Dennis Gagnon that put the Redmen three scores ahead.

With the wind behind, Gagnon let go a powerful kick that travelled some ten yards beyond the goal posts... his 52 yard effort breaking his old record of 45 yards he set last year at Vermont.

"Gagnon was there waiting, but we deliberated whether to punt or try the field goal," MacPherson recollected. "It sure was a big three points."

And for that matter it was a big win. After the game the "coke bottles" were opened in the lockerroom celebration...It was just enough time to rest and appreciate the victory before getting down to serious business.

Next Saturday is Boston College...and that's big business.

FROM FIRST GEAR TO SECOND-UMass halfback Paul Metallo breaks into the clear in one of his record setting jaunts in Saturday's title win over New Hampshire. (MDC Photo by Bob Medeiros)

It's Time To Act: Keep Bresciani At UMass

By EARLE BARROLL

On August 1st of this summer, assistant sports information director Dick Bresciani received a letter from the Athletic Department that stated in brief that his position would be eliminated as of January 31, 1972 for budgetary reasons.

Since this decision was made the feedback to it has been adverse to the point of hostility and the man who made it, Warren McGuirk, Athletic Director and Head of the School of Physical Education has been unwilling to change his position in this matter.

In single sessions he has given out three different versions of the reason behind his decision ranging from economics to incompetence and leaves for inconsistency on his part.

I feel that a committee should be formed to meet with McGuirk in order to place the cards on the table and put an end to this mishandling of the matter...And I call for this within the next couple of days

When he talks of economics, he's putting Bresciani at the bottom of the pole and this is absurd. For those who know Bresciani and have seen his work and dedication, they can agree that to put him at the bottom of the pole is without a doubt incredibly nearsighted.

He is an intricate part of the Boyden Sports scene. If you're talking of economics get rid of a secretary or two or cut down in referees and officials at intramural games. These people won't dent the Boyden armor. Bresciani will crush it if he leaves.

When he talks of incompetence he's talking about the wrong person. McGuirk told me that originally Bresciani's position was defined to give information to hometown newspapers across the Commonwealth to foster interest in UMass. McGuirk says he didn't.

But check this out. In the 1950's, before Bresciani, UMass did nothing in athletics. But in the 1960's and early 1970's, UMass has risen to a New England power with such honors as a Tangerine Bowl for the football team, a trip to Omaha for the baseball team, two N.I.T. bids for the basketball team and a Division Two Hockey bid.

Bresciani must have done something right and he himself has scrapbooks to show the work he has done in this field. The coaches who were the major reasons for the rise have taken over all responsibilities of selling the school and I find Bresciani to be clear of this charge.

And when he also talks about incompetence, check out these names of concerned people. They are just a few of the many, many who have sent letters to President Wood and Chancellor Bromery: Jim Reagan from the Springfield Daily News, Bob Monahan from the Boston Globe, Dave McGowan from the New York Times, Fred Cusick from Channel 38, Jim Gallagher who is the assistant to baseball commissioner Bowie Kuhn in charge of Amateur baseball, John Stokoe, New England scout from the Baltimore Orioles, Len Merullo, New England scout for the Chicago Cubs and Johnny Orr, head basketball coach from Michigan and former mentor here at UMass...is this enough?

Jim Mulcahy, the President of the Varsity M Club is one of those concerned. Mulcahy told McGuirk that he felt the Varsity M Club could supply the funds to pay Bresciani all the funds to retain his position and McGuirk said no, he was not going to change because it would be too difficult to transfer the funds.

Another version has it that Bresciani's position was getting too much money and that Bresciani was not hired for lifetime. He said they can get some young guy for 6,000 dollars a year and change him every three years, thus keep from spending big money. Bresciani makes $9,200 for nine months!!

This would be impossible. There is no one, absolutely no one who could step in and do the job that Bresciani has done. He has made an art of his job and has added a dimension to the Boyden Building that could not be matched by anybody and that includes the United States...this is how good he is.

His 14 years of experience at UMass are just too much to contend with when this is the reason.

To the Varsity M Club, he is indispensable. Mulcahy pointed out that six years ago Vic Fusia started the Varsity M Club. One year later Bresciani got into it and has been the driving force ever since that and has seen the Club grow to a membership of 600 members.

Without Bresciani Mulcahy says there can be no Club.

I personally have been in need of Bresciani in terms of knowledge and stats and brochures and releases and other sports editors and writers before me can say the same.

I have seen this man work many a time and have talked with him on UMass sports and I can't see anybody nearing him in what he knows.

When Sports Illustrated needs information about not only UMass but other schools in New England and the East, the first one they call is Bresciani.

He also compiles the complete stats in the major sports at UMass and there has been nothing short of praise and admiration from the coaches for the job he has done.

This could go on and on and never stop in praising the work that this man has done for this University.

I think everyone concerned with the well being of the sports department should join in seeing that Bresciani be kept at this University.

It is time to act and act fast. Presently there is a committee searching for a new Athletic Director and the search has been long...a search for a replacement for Bresciani is endless.

Harriers Run At IC4A's

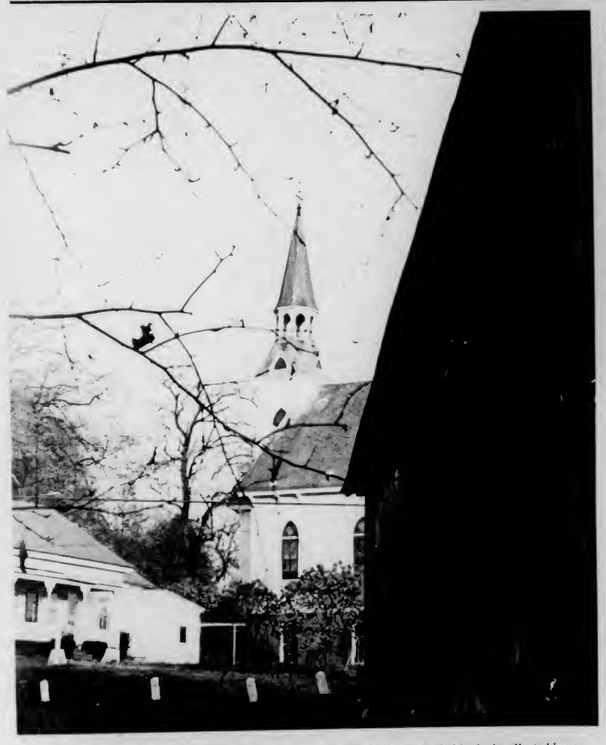
By JAY NESTOR

The UMass harriers collected a strong psychological victory against a worked up and ready UNH team, Thursday and they should have a confident race in New York at the IC4A meet today.

Thursday, on a snow covered field in Durham, New Hampshire, the Redmen trounced on the Wildcat team, 21-40. Randy Thomas proved that his New England performance was no fluke as he broke the UNH course record by fifteen seconds. Wildcat Dan Forbush was right on his heels, finishing seven seconds behind.

This meet proved significant to UMass because mostly everyone ran a fine race despite the fact that they were not mentally up for running. After the New Englands, UNH seemed highly anti-climatic.

The UNH meet served the purpose of getting the team up for the IC4A's, which will be held in Van Cortland Park today. This meet is open to all teams north of Virginia and east of the Mississippi River. Last year UMass finished a respectable tenth and they are estimated to finish in the top twelve this year.



The UMass team is young with a bright future. There is a good chance that the Redmen will make their mark in the IC4A's within the next year or so. The experience obtained today could very well pay off for the future.

New England's Largest College Daily

The Massachusetts
Daily Collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

Weather:
"...outside it's sunny, but it's rainin' in my heart."

VOLUME XCIX, ISSUE 48 UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 16, 1971

A stone's throw from the red tavern is this church in Ashfield which has probably the loveliest chimes in this valley. (Photos by Alan Chapman)

Little boys are made of something, but probably not puppy dog's tails, as evidenced by this little tyke at play on an autumn afternoon.

Ah, conjugal bliss. How touching it is. Young love here at Boston Public Gardens for all the world to gawk at and for our gangly, young photographer to capture for posterity. (Look at his left hand.)

Court To Decide Collection Of Fines

By ROBERT MEDEIROS

Students who had no intention of paying for parking tickets received at the University may be in for a big Surprise.

A suit has been brought before the General Court that would force the Student Attorney General to initiate action in the recovery of all parking fines.

The problem stems from the fact that all money received from parking fines goes back into a student scholarship fund. There is presently $135,000 owed in parking fines to the University. Of this sum $31,000 is owed directly by UMass students while $4,000 is owed by faculty members.

The other $99,000 belongs to individuals whose automobiles were not registered at the University. It is common knowledge that many of the autos that are not registered in the University also belong to UMass students.

About three weeks ago a petition was presented to the General Court which said, "As a student I feel that I am being deprived of a source of financial assistance. There are parking fines owed to outside courts, for violations of University parking regulations, in excess of $100,000. All of this money is returned to the University by the courts for use as a scholarship fund. In this light, I ask that the General Court of Justice issue a Writ of Mandamus to the Attorney General to initiate action which will result in the collection of these fines from students, faculty and staff."

John McEleney was the student who sent the petition to the Court. He said the reason he presented the petition was because he felt that he was denied money that should have belonged to him. McEleney said that he applied for a scholarship from the University and did not receive it even though he had the grades and the need for financial assistance.

"I did not receive any money because there is just not enough scholarship money to go around," said McEleney.

The Court acted on McEleney's petition and ruled in his favor, but Lee Sandwen, President of the Student Senate, was able to have the case reopened.

The Student Senate has two main arguments that it will use in overturning the previous Court decision. The first argument is that it is outside the jurisdiction of the Court to force the Attorney General to assist in the collection of parking fines.

The second argument is that the unequal protection of parking regulations on campus has negated the issuance of parking violations if a person's rights under the fourteenth amendment are to be recognized.

This means that the parking system discriminates against students. The students, because of the way the parking system operates on this University, is the individual who will usually receive a parking ticket.

Sandwen said that this is an irrational method of redistribution of money among students. He said that the student is forced to pay traffic tickets and give the money into a student fund that is suppose to benefit the student.

Another aspect of this General Court situation has been the role of the Student Attorney General. Henry Bouffard is the Attorney General and has on occasion represented both sides of the issue. Bouffard assisted McEleney in the writing of his petition. It was also Bouffard who wrote up the arguments that the Student Senate will use in attempting to overturn the Court's previous decision.

The only thing that will be settled in Court is if the Attorney General has the right to assist in the collection of student traffic fines which amount to $31,000. Therefore Bouffard has taken it upon himself as a private citizen to bring to court the faculty traffic fines and the fines that belong to autos not registered in the University.

Bouffard will coordinate a staff of three that will assist the Northampton Clerk of Courts in the collection of the faculty traffic fines and also the $99,000 of fines. Bouffard said that his actions in this area have no bearing on his functions as Attorney General.

"As a private citizen I feel my rights are being violated and so I feel the right and obligation to correct the wrong," said Bouffard.

The General Court will have an open hearing tonight at 7:30 to hear the Senate's arguments against the McEleney motion. The hearing will be in the Council Chambers in the Student Union.

On The Inside:

- Sylvan Close-Up See page two
- New Grades See page three
- Hamlin Hotel See page three

A Look At Sylvan Area-Part One

By MICHAEL McWILLIAMS

Finding the difference between life in a "Sylvan Suite" and a traditional dormitory is the basic problem faced by the staff of the Human Relations Center recently established and working out of the basement floor of McNamara House. The center is prepared to offer a number of personal services ranging from counseling to human relations workshops for the residents of the Sylvan area. Being a new operation, the Human Relations Center is faced with the problem of determining just what exactly are the special needs of the people living in the suites. The Center goes about this from a variety of angles.

The staff is a diversified group of people who have different backgrounds, skills and experiences. Peter Sherrard, the director worked with students in Berkeley, California for three years and then attended Princeton Seminary for three years. For the past four years, Peter has worked as a Presbyterian minister in Marchmont, N.Y. and Madison, New Jersey. At present he is a doctoral candidate in the School of Education Human Relations Center and is also working as a laboratory trainer and as a family counselor. Peter is available for individual counseling and for group work.

Ron Platt is a former resident and counselor at the Spectrum House (formerly Challenge House) in Shirley, Mass. and taught for two years in the Lowell Public Schools. He was a counselor and business manager with the SHARE Regional Drug Program in Lowell and he taught with Model Cities teaching component also in Lowell.

Mary LaSota for the past five years has been affiliated with the University as a staff member in the Student Affairs Office at Whitmore Administration Building. She is at present working toward her Bachelors degree in psychology at American International College in Springfield. Mary is working as an administrative assistant in the Center.

A senior at the University majoring in Public Health, Karen Beavais is a member of the Health Education section of the Human Relations Center. She is teaching a course in "Human Sexuality" on Tuesday evenings at Brown and is available for individual counseling by appointment.

Rob Sprague is a former captain in the U.S. Army and has served as a counselor in Military Prisons. A Junior, majoring in English, he is also a Student Senator, a member of the Student Senate Academic Affairs Committee and a member of the Five College Co-Ordinating Counsel. Rob is available for academic and draft counseling by appointment.

Sue Tracy graduated from the University in 1969 and has her B.A. in English. For the past two years she has worked as a counselor-teacher at the Drug Addiction Rehabilitation Center at Boston State Hospital where she began and directed the school program. She is now an M.A. candidate in History. Sue is available for both individual counseling and group work.

In describing the Human Relations Center, Sue stated that "our generalized goal is to help people affect individual growth."

The setup of the suites is such that new and different problems come up which require special methods and solutions. A good example of such a problem is that of an individual who doesn't get along with the others in the suite. Traditionally such problems have been solved "administratively". This would entail people not involved in the problem coming into it and acting directly upon it, in the case of the uncooperative individual moving him out of the suite. The staff of the Center tries to avoid such action if at all possible. Instead they take what they consider a "Humanistic" approach. "We see ourselves mainly as mediators" in dealing with such a problem. It is because of this approach that many students are reluctant to come to the Center for aid in a situation such as this." Students find it much easier to go to administrative agencies and look for action than to confront the individual involved with the problem. People will always look for the easy way out, according to Miss Tracy and the rest of the staff's experiences.

So far, the student response to the Human Relations Center has been small. Part of the problem has been to establish a reputation of some kind. For the most part, the only individuals who have come to the Center have been those who have been referred by their respective heads of residence. As of now, the staff members are going out and contacting student groups within the complex with the hopes of making the Human Relations Center's presence known to the extent that people will feel free to come in and go over any problem they may have. The staff is conducting academic counseling in each of the dorms during counseling week and through this hope to acquaint themselves with many students.

The Sylvan dorms have no counselors. The Center is in the opinion of the staff, a better way to deal with problems which might arise. In the words of Phil LeComb, undergraduate intern for the Sylvan area, "We didn't see how a traditional counselor could work in this dormitory setup. Besides, traditional counselors seem at times unprofessional in dealing with problems which could be rather grave."

A major problem which has developed in the Sylvan area is that of a low ratio of females to males residing in the dorms. This semester the three Sylvan dorms, McNamara, Brown and Cashin, combined are inhabited by only 19.8% girls. To deal with this a Co-Ed Committee has been set up which will attempt to come up with a co-educational system that could attract more girls.

When the dorms opened there was a general fear that most of the residents would find that there was not enough space for the number of occupants put in a suite and that the atmosphere would be generally uncomfortable. According to Sue Tracy, "When we first came in we got the impressions that nobody liked it. But now that we've been around and talked to different students, it seems a lot of people like it like this. They are of the most part happy with the suite arrangement."

As far as the future is concerned, the Human Relations Center is planning the introduction of academic courses to be taught in the dorms and the development of a "learning center which will encompass many fields. Also contracts with certain agencies are being developed to offer specialized services to the area residents.

The Human Relations Center is in the basement floor of McNamara and is open 1-5 Monday through Friday and Monday, Wednesday and Friday evenings.

Sylvan area, the newest dormitory housing project, here seen on a more tranquil moment this fall. (Photo credit by Jim Lavrakas.)

Peer Sex Groups

Students Helping Students

By TERRY DOYLE

"The Peer Sex Education Program in Southwest, grew out of the premise that students can be most effective in working with other students."

This is the opinion of Mrs. Jane Zapka, director of the program; Maureen Dion, counselor for John Quincy Adams lower; and Patricia Szretter, counselor for Coolidge upper. Counselors work not only as well-informed advisers on any sex issue, but also as organizers of colloquiums, movies, and bring in speakers that are experts on various subjects.

There are twenty-one counselors divided among the southwest area. Eleven female and ten males. Each of these counselors filed applications, were interviewed and passed a three-credit course taught by the Health Education Department.

At the beginning of each semester, each of the counselors signs up between 20 and 25 students for the eight week colloquium course. Students meet once a week to discuss issues that they decide upon at the beginning of the semester. A few of the topics covered are contraception, venereal disease, and abortion. One credit is given for the colloquium course.

The Peer Sex Education Program even in its earliest stages is viewed as a success by the director Mrs. Zapka, and also Miss Maureen Dion and Pat Szretter, two of its counselors. None of the counselors claim to be experts, but the important point is that when they can't be of help they know where to send the student.

Funds for the program were allotted by two sources. Southwest Assembly appropriated $995. to buy pamphlets, rent films and pay speakers. The Program Coordinators of Southwest allot $25. per month per counselor.

On each Wednesday a master colloquium usually consists of a movie or speakers that are experts in their field.

WEDNESDAY
ITALIAN FESTIVAL
SPAGHETTI meat balls - meat sauce
veal cutlet - sausage
SALAD BREAD
$ CHEAP $
at
The English Pub

COLLEGIAN STAFFERS
There will be a
Constitutional Convention
On Thursday Evening
ATTENDANCE REQUIRED

Ivory Billiard Room
23 Pleasant St.
Northampton
11 - 4½x9 TABLES
Est. 50 years
2nd floor
over
Fabric World

Boots & Shoes for men & women
"in the Alley"
THE SHOE-BIN
our BOOTS are Grrrrrrrrreat!!
AND SO ARE OUR PRICES
Fri. til 9
Friday fling

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

Office of the DAILY COLLEGIAN are on the second floor of the Student Union on the University campus, zip code 01002. Phones are 545-2550 (news), 545-0344 (sports), and 549-1311 (editor).

Second-class postage paid at Amherst, the DAILY COLLEGIAN publishes five times weekly Monday through Friday during the academic year except during vacation and exam periods; three or four times a week following a vacation or exam period or when a holiday falls within a week. Accepted for mailing under the authority of the act of March 8, 1879 as amended by the act of June 11, 1943. Subscription rates are $6.00 per semester, $10.00 per year.

Hamlin House Is Now A Student Hotel

"It ain't the Ritz, it isn't even the Sheraton, but what do ya want for $3.50 a throw--room service?" so speaks the luscious buxom blonde desk clerk at Hamlin House, a place where you can check your wings and halos at the desk.

By BARBARA SPENCER

The hotel which opened this fall at Hamlin House in the Quad will cease operation at the end of this semester.

The idea for the hotel was formulated this year by those who thought there was a need for low cost housing on campus. Hamlin House was made available for this project. The hotel is run through the Campus Center.

At the beginning of the school year, it was used to handle the overflow of students from the dorms. Now it is used by visitors of students, families of students, and conventions. Off-campus students who wish to stay on campus overnight often stay at Hamlin.

The charge is $3.00 per person per day for a double or $3.50 per person per day for a single. Linen service is extra.

Hamlin House has accommodations for up to 175 guests. It is estimated that it now houses about 20 people on a weekday night. On weekends the nightly total is usually 30-40. Probably the reason the hotel has not been financially successful is the large amount of vacancies in the dorms.

Hamlin House was used last week during the bomb scare by guests who were staying at the Campus Center. It is also used during school vacations by students who wish to remain on campus. During Thanksgiving vacation it will be filled by these students and a conference.

According to Dick McCamey of the Hamlin House staff there is still a need for low cost housing on campus for those not able to afford Howard Johnson or Campus Center prices. In the future maybe one floor of a dorm will be made available for this service.

Next semester Hamlin House will be used to house students displaced by the renovation of one of the dorms in Central.

New Grading Policy Goes Into Effect

By SHARON McGOURTY

A new grading system is now in effect at UMass. On November 3, the Undergraduate Academic Affairs Committee, the Faculty Senate Committee on Academic Matters, and the Provost Office finalized this new grading program.

Under this new program the former A, B, C, D, F grade system has been changed to A, AB, B, BC, C, CD, D and F. The grades W (withdrawal) and Inc (incompiete) will still be used. A will be equal to 4.0; AB, 3.5; B, 3.0; BC, 2.5; C, 2.0; CD, 1.5; and D, 1.0.

Dean Bischoff of the Provost Office feels that one of the major assets of the new program is the fact that though an F will be recorded, it will no longer be averaged into the total cumulative average.

New regulations have also been set up regarding the pass/fail program. A student can now take up to and including five University core requirement courses pass/fail. Previously it was not possible to take core courses pass/fail.

Each school or division with the University is allowed to regulate and implement its own pass/fail requirements. Under this regulation a student can take up to fifteen credits pass/fail during the course of his undergraduate studies.

According to Dean Bischoff, this new program is much in the interest of the student and will definitely allow for greater diversification in course choices. He also feels that because an F will no longer be averaged in, the probability of students getting better averages will be heightened.

This program also clarifies the five categories of academic standing. These categories include:

1. Academic Good Standing--the student is making satisfactory progress towards graduation.

2. Academic Warning--a student in this category is not making satisfactory progress towards graduation. A student in this standing must have his schedule for the following semester reviewed by his Academic Dean before he can register for the next semester. The Dean can change this status upon recommendation of the proper agency.

3. Academic Probation--if a student in this category continues at the indicated rate, he will not graduate within ten semesters. A student in this category should confer with his Academic Dean regarding his status.

4. Academic Suspension--a student in this category may not enroll for the semester immediately following suspension. If a student who has been suspended wishes to return, he must have his courses reviewed by an academic dean.

5. Academic Dismissal--means that a student has been permanently expelled from the University.

Dean Bischoff feels that these clarifications will enable students to see more clearly where they stand, and thus be able to take corrective action if necessary.

School Of Ed Offers Alternative Programs

All education majors must belong to one of the 16 alternative Teacher Education Programs. The Individualized Programs (former traditional program) is being dropped effective September, 1972. The following have openings and will be available to answer questions and to interview candidates as indicated:

PROGRAM	INTERVIEW TIMES FOR WEEK NOV. 15-19 (School of Education unless otherwise indicated)
Alternative Schools (TASP) Open to Juniors	Tues. 1-3 Room 212 Wednes. 10-1, 1-3:30 Room 212
International Education Open to Sophomores and Juniors	Mon. 9-3 Montague House Wednes. 9-3 Montague House
Mark's Meadow (TEPAM) Open to Sophomores	Go to Mark's Meadow Office to sign up for specific appointment time
Martha's Vineyard Open to Juniors, Seniors	Contact Mrs. Harmon, Rm 121 for appointment (545-1555)
Model Elementary Teacher Education Program (METEP) Open to Sophomores and Juniors.	Tues. 8:30-1, 2:30-5 Rm 210 Wednes. 8:30-12:00 Rm 210 or by individual appointment call 545-1578
Off-Campus Open to Sophomores, Juniors	Mon. 8-12, 1-5 Rm 128 Tues. 8-12, 1-5 Dwight Dorm.
Sociological-Historical-Philosophical (S.H.P.) Open to Juniors	Contact Mrs. Harmon, Rm 121 for appointment (545-1555)
Distributive Ed. Open to Fresh. Soph. Junior, Senior	Mon. 9-4 Rm 2-A or by individual appointment call 545-1527
Urban Ed.	Mon. Fri. 9-12, Rm 225

Teacher Education questions will also be answered between 8:00 a.m. and 5:00 p.m., Monday-Friday, Room 121, School of Education of call 545-1555.

There are at least 500 openings.

Collegian People Take Note

All Collegian Staffers must attend the Constitutional Convention this Thursday at 7:30 in the Colonial Lounge to ratify said document. Attendance will be taken. You are off the staff if you do not come. Refreshments will be served after this exhausting session.

Nothing to do this weekend? See WOODY ALLEN in "Take The Money And Run"
(1969 - in color)
SAT. - Nov. 20 - MAHAR
7-9-11 p.m.

NOW..YOUR CHOICE OF 5!
Showcase
Rt. 5-W.-Sprfld.
733-5131
MORE NEW SHOWS!
MORE NEW LOUNGER SEATS!
MORE NEW PARKING!
MATINEES DAILY...POPULAR PRICES
Adults $1.50 Mon-Thru Fri Nites
1 Ryan's Daughter GP
2 Together X
3 2001 Space Odyssey G
4 Desparate Characters R
5 French Connection R
ACRES FREE PARKING
ROCKER LOUNGERS
HARGE YOUR TICKETS

HART SKI DEMONSTRATION
WITH
Suzy Chaffee and Ruedi Wyrsch
Movie, Fashion Show, T-Shirt Contest
7:30 TONIGHT at C.C. Auditorium

Urban Education Internships
Available For January
There are
Student Teaching Positions
still open in:
Pasadena, Calf.
Washington, D.C.
Paterson, N.J.
Brooklyn, N.Y.
Louisville, Ky.
Worcester, Mass.
For info. call:
545-1560
or 545-1582
Between 9-5
AS SOON AS POSSIBLE
Ask for:
Barbara Love
Dick Schaye
Dennis Tyler
Pat Proctor

In The Nation And The World

Communist China Enters U.N.

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Red China was welcomed into the United Nations Monday in an all-day ceremony in which the United States joined. Ambassador George Bush was one of about 40 diplomats who spoke in the blue and gold chamber of the U.N. General Assembly after the Peking delegation took its seat for the first time.

The United States, which suffered a severe jolt in the expulsion of Nationalist China on Oct. 25, still had not made up its mind Sunday night whether it would take part in the speech-making ceremony.

In addressing the 131-nation assembly as the representative of the host country, Bush referred to the issues of principle that divided the assembly during last month's debate, but said: "These differences should not obscure the proposition on which nearly all of us, including the United States, agreed: that the moment in history has arrived for the People's Republic of China to be in the United Nations."

Bush declared that their presence "makes the United Nations more reflective of the world as it now exists and we hope that it will contribute to the organization's potential for harmonizing the actions of nations."

Assembly President Adam Malik, foreign minister of Indonesia, opened the session with a formal welcome in which he declared this was an historic occasion and expressed the belief that the world organization would be strengthened by the participation of the Peking delegation.

The five-man delegation was headed by Deputy Foreign Minister Chiao Kuan-hua. It included Ambassador Huang Hua, Fu Hao, Hsuing Hsiang-hui and Chen Yu. They were accompanied by a woman interpreter.

The Chinese delegates, all wearing dark Mao jackets, listened attentively to the procession of speakers.

As the ceremonial session began, many seats were vacant, but the chamber filled.

Most of the delegates who addressed the assembly stressed the view that Peking's presence would strengthen the world organization, but a few recalled the controversy over the expulsion of Nationalist China and the resultant victory of the pro-Peking group.

Cuban Ambassador Ricardo Alarcon Quesada, for example, said Red China's seating was not only a great triumph for the Chinese people "but also a very important victory for the revolutionary movement." He said it showed that the U.S. "imperialists" were no longer in a position to extend their influence throughout the world.

Vernon Johnson Mwaanga, representative of Zambia, referred indirectly to the recent White House statement that President Nixon was shocked by what he interpreted as the anti-American feeling displayed by some delegates after the Peking victory.

Mwaanga said his delegation never regarded the vote in terms of victor and vanquished, but rejoiced because an injustice had been corrected.

"No one has the right to tell us when to rejoice and when not to rejoice," he said. "No one has the right to tell us how to rejoice and how not to rejoice."

Ambassador Salim A. Salim of Tanzania denied there was any dancing in the aisles and said these reports "should be treated with the contempt that they deserve."

"My delegation does not accept the right of anyone to give us lessons in etiquette or behavior," Salim said. "Nor should we allow anyone to minimize victory on that occasion, for the victory was long overdue."

Just before the session, Bush was introduced to Chiao by protocol chief Sinan Korle. He said this was his first meeting with the Chinese leader and "I was pleased to make his acquaintance. It was not a weighty occasion. He said hello and I said hello."

Soviet Ambassador Jacob A. Malik was among the others greeting Chiao personally. Later he told a reporter: "I just congratulated my old friend, whom I met 20 years ago."

Asked if he had enjoyed his first U.N. session, Chiao replied in English: "Yes, very much."

In Brief...

FT. MEADE, Md. (AP) — Former Capt. Ernest L. Medina testified Monday that he lied to Col. Oran K. Henderson about the nature and extent of civilians killed when his Charlie Company soldiers swept through the Vietnamese hamlet of My Lai.

"I was not perfectly candid with Col. Henderson, I withheld information from him," Medina told the seven-officer jury at the My Lai coverup trial of his former commander in the 11th Brigade of the American Division.

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP) — Some of the nation's 100,000 coal miners began returning to work Monday but the majority remained off the job, awaiting the traditional first-hand report on a new contract that raises their daily pay from $37 to $50.

Officials of the United Mine Workers said, however, that they expected most of the nation's miners would go back to work by Tuesday after getting details of the three-year contract from local leaders.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Anti-war congressmen are telling their colleagues that a vote for the military appropriations bill Tuesday without some reservations attached will amount to a declaration of war.

Rep. Michael Harrington, D-Mass., sent a letter to House members Monday saying that in view of recent court decisions it no longer is possible to separate appropriations from the question of authorization for the Vietnam war.

OTTAWA (AP) — Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau said Sunday the U.S. 10 percent surcharge on imports was part of a "complex set of measures" to set the American economy right, not a political retaliation against Canada.

He also called untrue a suggestion by some Canadians that recent approaches to Communist countries by Canada would harm this country's "special relations" with the United States.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's balance-of-payments deficit surged to its highest level in history in the July-September quarter.

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. troops in Vietnam now number little more than a third of peak American strength in the war, as the pace of withdrawal nearly matches that of the buildup six years ago.

World Economics Still Shaky

BRUSSELS (AP) — Three months after President Nixon staggered America's trading partners with his new economic policy, they are still groping for a common stand on meeting it.

The world's major currencies, except for the French franc, were all floating upward against the U.S. dollar.

A West German mark now costs 30 cents instead of 28 cents, the old par value. A dollar will only bring 327 Japanese yen, not 360.

The differences vary from currency to currency. Most of the change in the mark's value came before Aug. 15. The British pound, worth $2.40 then, is up to $2.50 now. In Italy the change has amounted to only 2 percent, but it has been 7.6 percent in Belgium and 9.6 percent in Japan and West Germany.

The changes mean that U.S. goods are cheaper and more attractive to foreign customers. Foreign goods have become dearer and less salable in the United States. If other countries buy enough, and Americans sell enough, the result would be a turnaround in the international trade deficit that the United States will be running this year for the first time since 1893.

John B. Connolly, the U.S. Secretary of the Treasury, likes the present situation in the currency market. He thinks it could last almost indefinitely. British financial circles think it will be at least a couple more months.

European governments and businessmen are unhappy. They would like to see more stable rates but they can't agree how to get them. The one thing they would virtually all like--a devaluation of the dollar in terms of gold-- is something that President Nixon's administration has strongly resisted.

Sir Frederic Seebohm, deputy chairman of Barclay's Bank, recently told the American Chamber of Commerce in London: "One of the things which terrifies international bankers is a collapse of international confidence or a heavy reduction of international trade. This is happening now."

London commodity dealers are hesitating about future contracts. Whether they make a profit may depend on what a pound will be worth three months from now, and they have no way of knowing that.

France and West Germany still are at odds over the extent to which currencies should be allowed to float against the dollar, and the United States seems unready to devalue it by raising the price of gold. The French feel the United States has a responsibility to devalue, especially since it started most of the world's currencies floating by refusing to pay out any more gold for dollars.

Other countries' sales to the United States have also been hit by two other measures: the 10 percent surcharge on imports and the proposal to give U.S. firms a tax break on capital goods they buy at home instead of abroad.

The six Common Market countries have predicted that $5.7 billion worth of their annual exports to the United States would be hit by the surcharge. About a billion dollars worth of machinery and equipment sales, they think, would be virtually eliminated.

PILGRIM AIRPORT

is open again

GLIDING is back!

flight instruction:
sailplane
or airplane

VA and FAA approved

interstate aviation inc.

River Rd., Hatfield Call 665-4072

Could B.C. Lose?

Buy around trip bus ticket to B.C. Game & see!

NOV. 20

Departure 10:30 a.m.

C.C. BUS CIRCLE

BUY NOW $6
RSO OFFICE
or call
Student Senate
Bus Service

Register to Vote

November 18

Campus Center

TONIGHT

COMPARATIVE LITERATURE FILMS
Presents
PIER PASOLINI'S
THE HAWKS AND THE SPARROWS
SAINT FRANCIS
TAKES ON MARXISM

Shows at 8 and 10 in Thompson 104 Street Entrance

Season tickets, $3.00 for six films, and single tickets, $.75, on sale at door.

Everything you need to know about Venereal Disease.
How to avoid getting it.
What to do if you think you have it.
Sound advice for a worried friend.

VD, THE ABC'S

by John Grover, M.D. with Dick Grace

At your bookseller or, to order by mail send $4.95 (cloth) or $2.95 (paper) plus sales tax and postage with your name and address to:

PRENTICE-HALL
Englewood Cliffs, N. J. 07632

One if by land and two if by sea--Is that the signal from this steeple in Ashfield? (MDC photo by Alan Chapman)

Shake-Up In Peking Likely

TOKYO (AP) - Unexplained developments in China increasingly suggest that Peking's Communist leadership is caught up in a power struggle revolving around Mao Tse-tung's designated heir-Lin Piao.

Lin, the 64-year-old defense minister, has been absent from public functions since June. His disappearance has been accompanied by hints in the government and party press that he may have fallen from grace or been elbowed aside by Premier Chou-En-lai.

Western experts have speculated that Lin failed in a power play against Mao and Chou and died in a plane crash in Mongolia on Sept. 13. Both the Russians and the Chinese reported the crash but gave no information on its causes or victims.

Time magazine reported that Western experts "from Hong Kong to Washington" believe Lin was aboard the craft along with others implicated in a frustrated assassination plot against Mao. They were trying to flee the country but were denounced by Lin's own daughter, the magazine said.

According to Time's explanation, Lin tried three times to kill Mao but was exposed in September and tried the escape with his wife and Chen Po-ta, Mao's fallen chief ideologue and secretary, and air force chief Wu Fa-hsien.

"Wherever they were headed, they never made it," Time said. "Lin's own daughter, Lin Tou-tou, betrayed the escape attempt and the Trident was somehow shot down."

Buttressing their theory that Lin has dropped from power, China watchers note that the press has stopped its ritual salute of Lin as Mao's "closest comrade in arms" and deputy leader of the Chinese Communist party. Instead, it is building up a campaign against an unidentified "bourgeois ambitionist" whose crimes could be traced to Lin.

Like Lin, the target of the attacks was considered a "prophet theorist" who publicized and interpreted Mao's teachings. Since 1966, when he succeeded the disgraced President Liu Shao-chi as Mao's heir, Lin was considered the official interpreter of Mao's dogma.

Earlier speculation said the attacks may have been directed at Chen, for years Mao's right hand man who now is assailed as "a political swindler of Liu Shao-chi's ilk."

While the attacks on Chen continue, the tone of the new denunciations indicate the principal target is a man of higher rank who used Mao's name as a tool to gain power.

"Have not those overloards who have donned the crown of 'prophet' fallen one by one from their throne of jade?" asked the People's Daily, a party newspaper.

"This will make people see more clearly that the 'genius' and 'great man' of the ilk of Liu Shao-chi posturing behind the 'prophet's radiance' are nothing more than bourgeois ambitionists going against the current.

Red Chinese Enter U.S.A.

WASHINGTON (AP) - As many as 4,200 aliens from Communist China sneak into the United States every year, according to secret Justice Department intelligence reports which say some of the aliens are on espionage missions, and others are involved in narcotics traffic.

Only one in 10 of these illegal aliens is caught and deported, the reports say. Among those identified by the government, many have been traced to the Hong Kong Seamans Union, an organization said by the FBI to be engaged in espionage. Other Chinese aliens taken into custody have been carrying narcotics shipments destined for U.S. contacts.

According to a source in the Immigration and Naturalization Service, the Justice Department section responsible for capturing illegal aliens, the mainland Chinese have been coming for about five years, entering this country by jumping ship in U.S. ports or by way of smuggling operations in the United States and Canada.

Just last week, according to the confidential reports, INS smashed a ring engaged in smuggling Chinese sailors from Vancouver, British Columbia, into the United States at Bellingham and Blaine, Wash., at $1,000 a head.

The operation was broken up after the U.S. Border Patrol caught one group of the aliens as they crossed the border on foot a mile east of Blaine. A second group made it to the New York metropolitan area. Three of them were arrested last Wednesday in Newark, N.J., and told authorities they made their first contact with the smugglers in Hong Kong.

According to INS sources, as many as 2,500 mainland Chinese are smuggled into the United States each year. Another 1,700 jump foreign-flag vessels in U.S. ports. The intelligence reports said 5,640 entered that way between 1965 and 1970.

Chinese seamen among the flood of illegal aliens have been traced by the FBI to the Hong Kong Seamans Union.

An FBI intelligence report described the union this way:

"HKSU has voiced vehement opposition to United States military action in Vietnam and dissuades seamen from serving aboard ships carrying strategic materials to Vietnam. Conversely, the HKSU encourages seamen to sail on ships bound for North Vietnam. HKSU has approved a policy of placing Communist seamen on Western ships for the purpose of sabotage or capture in the event of future hostilities.

"Chinese seamen recruited in Hong Kong serve on ships calling at major world ports, thus providing an opportunity for courier service and intelligence collection."

The FBI report said that Chinese shipjumpers in the United States had arrived in vessels flying Liberian, Norwegian, British, Panamanian, Dutch, Israeli, Swedish and Danish flags.

Smugglers bringing aliens into the country charge from $100 to $1,000 per person, authorities say.

Attention
All Divers!

An advanced diver course for experienced divers will be given starting at the end of Nov.

The course will include diving physics and physiology, diving equipment, first aid and life saving, underwater search and recovery, limited visibility diving, underwater navigation, light salvage, deep diving, decompression, repetetive and altitude diving and marine biology. The fee for the course will be $100.

Anyone interested in further information call 549-1155.

THE TALKIE CINEMA
Intersection of Rte. 5 and Rte. 9
NORTHAMPTON CENTER
584-6909

LUCHINO VISCONTI'S
Death in Venice
Lives

at the Talkie
Held Over

7:00 and 9:30

RING DAYS

Class of '72 and '73

University Store

Mon. and Tues., Nov. 15 and 16

Josten's Factory Representatives

Pre-Christmas Delivery

$10 Deposit

IF ALL THREE COMPONENT DEALERS
SELL SONY TAPE RECORDERS
WHY BUY ONE FROM US?

..... we smile

Amherst Audio

The Massachusetts
Daily Collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

BOARD OF EDITORS

EDITOR IN CHIEF — Richard C. Hanson
MANAGING EDITOR — Nathan Gorenstein
BUSINESS MANAGER — James Gold
EXECUTIVE EDITOR — Barry J. Rubenstein
NEWS EDITOR — Anne C. Stadnicki
SPORTS EDITOR — Earle T. Barroll

PHOTO EDITOR — Gib Fullerton
FINE ARTS EDITOR — Robert Nesti

TODAY'S STAFF

ISSUE EDITOR — Bob Nesti
NEWS STAFF — Charley Bradshaw, Jeannette Martineau, Nathan Gorenstein
SPORTS — Dan Kamal
EDITORIAL — Anne Gurnett
DARKROOM — Alan Chapman
AD LAYOUT — Jerry Lazar

Undergraduate newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The Staff is responsible for its content and no faculty members or administration read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.
Unsigned editorials represent the views of this paper. They do not necessarily reflect the views of the faculty, administration, or student body as a whole. Signed editorials, columns, reviews, and letters represent the personal views of the writers.

Art Buchwald

He Will Not Run

WASHINGTON--If the American people are suspicious of Sen. Edward Kennedy's political intentions, they certainly cannot be blamed. Every time you pick up the newspaper there is another story about Teddy Kennedy confirming he is not a presidential candidate in 1972. It isn't the denial that has people confused as much as where Sen. Kennedy denies it.

As the campaign heats up we can expect more and more news stories on the subject. They might look like this:

WINDY FALLS, Iowa--Sen. Edward M. Kennedy told a cheering throng of 10,000 persons at the Windy Falls County Fair that he would not accept the presidential nomination under any circumstances in 1972.

The senator from Massachusetts said that the people must defeat Nixon or the country would be faced with inflation, unemployment, drought and financial ruin. He called on the citizens of Iowa to turn out the Republicans in 1972 and elect a Democratic President from the fine list of candidates who were now running, of which he was not one.

After his speech Sen. Kennedy visited an Indian reservation, a Mexican-American migrant labor camp, a United Auto Workers communion breakfast, a chamber of commerce awards banquet and made a short speech during half-time ceremonies at the Iowa State-Nebraska Tech homecoming game, reiterating his determination not to run for the highest office in the land.

NEW YORK--Sen. Edward Kennedy spent 14 hours in New York City yesterday in a whirlwind tour. A Kennedy aide said that the senator from Massachusetts wanted to take his message that he was not a presidential candidate personally to all the five boroughs.

The senator unequivocally denied any higher political ambitions at a rally in Harlem, a Jewish temple in Queens, the Sons of St. Patrick in Staten Island, the Brothers of Italy in Brooklyn and the Save Yankee Stadium Citizens League in the Bronx.

Sen. Kennedy also met with Democratic Party leaders of New York State in his brother-in-law Steve Smith's Fifth Avenue apartment, to discuss ways of keeping his name off the ballot.

He then talked for an hour with Mayor John Lindsay in an effort to persuade Lindsay not to start a grass-roots Kennedy presidential campaign.

Before leaving New York, Kennedy rode up Fifth Avenue in an open convertible with his wife, Joan, hoping to discourage New Yorkers from considering him as a Democratic hopeful.

After the ride Kennedy appeared on the Johnny Carson Show, the Dick Cavett Show, the David Frost Show and the Late-Night Movie, stating he would not even accept a draft at the convention in Miami.

Before leaving the city Kennedy visited a children's hospital, the women's house of detention and made a surprise visit backstage to shake hands with the cast of "Jesus Christ Superstar."

WASHINGTON--A spokesman for Sen. Edward Kennedy said today that while the senator was flattered that he was leading Muskie in both the Harris and Gallup polls and was half a point behind President Nixon, he still would not consider under any circumstances the race for President of the United States.

Sen. Kennedy was unavailable for comment as he was en route to Ireland, Italy and Israel where he hoped to explain to those countries' leaders why he would not run in 1972.

Copyright 1971, Los Angeles Times.

Part II, Student Poverty

Practice Must Seek Its Theory

IT IS NOT ENOUGH FOR THOUGHT TO SEEK ITS REALIZATION IN PRACTICE. PRACTICE MUST SEEK ITS THEORY

After years of slumber and permanent counter-revolution, there are signs of a new period of struggle, with youth as the new carriers of revolutionary infection. But the society of the spectacle paints its own picture of itself and its enemies, imposes its own ideological categories on the world and its history. Fear is the very last response. For everything that happens is reassuringly part of the natural order of things. Real historical changes, which show that this society can be superceded, are reduced to the status of novelties, processed for mere consumption. The revolt of youth against an imposed and "given" way of life is the first sign of a total subversion. It is the prelude to a period of revolt-the revolt of those who can no longer live in our society. Faced with a danger, ideology and its daily machine perform the usual inversion of reality. An historical process becomes a pseudo-category of some socio-natural science: the Idea of Youth. Youth is in revolt, but this is only the eternal revolt of youth; every generation espouses "good causes", only to forget them when "the young man begins the serious business of production and is given concrete and social aims". After the social scientists come the journalists with their verbal inflation. The revolt is contained by over-exposure: we are given it to contemplate so that we shall forget to participate. In the spectacle, a revolution becomes a social aberration-in other words a social safety valve-which has its part to play in the smooth working of the system. It reassures because it remains a marginal phenomenon, in the apartheid of the temporary problems of a healthy pluralism (compare and contrast "women's liberation" and "black liberation"). In reality, if there is a problem of youth in modern capitalism it is part of the total crisis of that society.

Youth and its mock freedoms are the purest products of modern society. Their modernity consists in the choice they are offered and are readily making: total integration to neo-capitalism, or the most radical refusal. What is surprising is not that youth is in revolt but that its elders are so soporific. But the reason is history, not biology-the previous generation lived through the defeats and were sold the lies of the long, shameful disintegration of the revolutionary movement.

In itself Youth is a publicity myth, and as part of the new "social dynamism" it is the potential ally of the capitalist mode of production. The illusory primacy of youth began with the economic recovery after the second world war. Capital was able to strike a new bargain with labor: in return for the mass production of a new class of manipulable consumers, the worker was offered a role which gave him full membership of the spectacular society. This at least was the ideal social model, though as usual it bore little relation to socio-economic reality (which lagged behind the consumer ideology). The revolt of youth was the first burst of anger at the persistent realities of the new world-the boredom of everyday existence, the dead life which is still the essential product of modern capitalism, in spite of all its modernizations. A small section of youth is able to refuse that society and its products, but without any idea that this society can be superceded. They opt for a nihilist present. Yet the destruction of capitalism is once again a real issue, an event in history, a process which has already begun. Dissident youth must achieve the coherence of a critical theory, and the practical organization of that coherence.

The "counter-culture" youth despises work but accepts the goods. He wants what the spectacle offers him-but now, with no down payment. This is the essential contradiction of his existence. He may try for a real freedom in the use of his time, in an individual assertiveness, even in the construction of a kind of community. But the contradiction remains and kills. Either the lure of the product world proves too strong, and the hippie decides to do his honest day's work: to this end a whole sector of production is devoted specifically to his recuperation. Clothes, albums, guitars, motor cycles, stereo systems beckon him to the land of the consumer. Or else he is forced to attack the laws of the market itself-either in the primary sense, by stealing, or by a move towards a conscious revolutionary critique of commodity society. For him only two futures are possible: revolutionary consciousness, or blind obedience on the shop floor.

Idle reader, your cry of "What about the Strike?" escapes us not. True, American society needs its students; and by revolting against their studies they have automatically called that society into question. From the start, some students have seen their revolt against the university hierarchy as a revolt against the whole hierarchical system, the dictatorship of the economy and the state. Their refusal to become an integrated part of the commodity economy, to put their specialized studies to their obvious and inevitable use, is a revolutionary gesture. It puts in doubt that whole system of production which alienates activity and its products from their creators. For all its confusion and hesitancy, the student movement has discovered one truth in this refusal: that a coherent revolutionary alternative can and must be found from within the "affluent society."

At the same time, these organizations, with their blend of libertarian, political, and religious tendencies, are always liable to the obsession with "group dynamics" and "inter-personal relations" which leads to the closed world of the sect. The mass consumption of drugs is the expression of a real poverty and a protest against it; but it remains a false search for freedom within a world dedicated to repression, a religious critique of a world that has no need for religion, least of all a new one. The hippies-the right wing of the youth revolt-are the main purveyors of an ideolgocial "refusal" combination with an acceptance of the most fantastic superstitions (Zen, spiritualism, B'hai, Transcendental Meditation, mysticism, and the stale porridge of Ghandi-ism.) And here, what began as revolt, ends as a simple attempt to escape.

But the real revolution begins at home: in the desperation of consumer production, in the continuing struggle of the unofficial working classes. The only real change is in a new consciousness and a new alliance-the location of the struggle in the banalities of everyday life, in the supermarket and in the factories.

TO CREATE AT LONG LAST A SITUATION WHICH GOES BEYOND THE POINT OF NO RETURN

A radical critique of the modern world must have the totality as its object and objective. Opposition to this world offered from within it-and in its own terms-can only be spurious. (For example, the pseudo-opposition of Kennedy, McGovern, Muskie) Such opposition, depending on the worst mystifications, helps consolidate the existing social order. Trade unions and political parties created by the working class as tools for its emancipation are now no more than "checks and balances" of the system. Their leaders have made these organizations their private property; their stepping stone to a role within the ruling class. The party program or union platform may contain vestiges of revolutionary phraseology, but their practice is everywhere reactionary-doubly so now that official capitalist ideology mouths the same reformist slogans. These organizations have become the best guarantee of repression-without this "opposition" the humanist democratic facade of the system would collapse and its essential violence would be laid bare. (After being assured that they would also share in the spoils, Meany and his henchmen quickly ended their phony opposition to Nixon's plan to save big business.) As for the student movement, it is a travesty of a travesty, the useless burlesque of a trade unionism itself long degenerate.

The predominant social system, which flatters itself on its modernization and its permanence, must now be confronted with a worthy enemy: the equally modern negative forces which it produces. Let the dead bury their dead. The revolution of everyday life must come face to face with the enormity of the task which it faces, and the revolutionary project must be reinvented, as much as the life it announces. If the project is still essentially the abolition of class society, it is because the material conditions upon which revolution is based are still with us. But revolution must be conceived with a new coherence and a new radicalism, starting with a clear grasp of the failure of those who first began it. Otherwise, its fragmentary realization will bring about only a new division of society.

What is the revolutionary project? The conscious domination of history (of everyday life) by those who make it and live it. Modern history, like all past history, is the product of social praxis, the unconscious result of human action. In the epoch of totalitarian control, capitalism has produced its own religion: the Spectacle, where the false "participation" of McLuhan and other technocratic lackeys replaces all real participation in the process of our own lives.

And so the problem of revolution is once again a concrete issue. On the one side the grandiose structures of technology and material production: on the other a dissatisfaction which can only grow more profound. The bourgeoisie and its Eastern heirs, the beaurocracy, cannot devise the means to use their own overdevelopment, which will be the basis of the poetry of the future, simply because they both depend on the preservation of the old order. At most they harness overdevelopment to invent new repressions. For they know only one trick, the accumulation of capital and hence of the proletariat-a proletarian being a man with no power over the use of his life, and who knows it. The new proletarial inherits the riches of the bourgeois world and this gives it its historical chance. The new proletariat's task is to transform and destroy these riches: to constitute them as part of a new human project-the total liberation of man.

'THAT'S WHAT WE NEED — A GOOD WAR TO KEEP OUR MINDS OFF OUR TROUBLES!'

Letters To The Editor

To The Almighty Professors

To the Editor:

I would like to convey to whoever may read this article done of my dissatisfactions with our educational system today.

First of all, I strongly feel that since we are college students we don't have to be lead on a leash like a bunch of dogs by professors who fail to realize that exams don't make a person or his or her life, but they tend to ruin and disassociate one's true sense of reality. Therefore, I definitely feel that we don't need a professor to lead us to self destruction by giving an exam, but to hopefully realize that students can't and won't perform successfully in the working world on the basis of an exam. It is a perogative that exams be dropped and the educational system realigned because as it stands right now college graduates come from this exam laden school and don't perform nearly as well as many high school students or other people who lack this so called four years of extensive knowledge.

My suggestion is that we have more students participate actively in their chosen careers and do what they deem necessary to their advantage and go into the world not exam prone or defeated because of the almighty professors inability to recognize the true qualities of many students.

Therefore in a large institution such as this the students are the majority and should have their say in whatever they feel necessary not only to improve theirselves but to stimulate others with the assertion that knowledge is not only learned in the classroom or lecture hall but in actual experience. Hence I urge students to think about the significance of taking an exam and the results in relation to one's future intentions.

If you wish to play follow the leader continually, our nation and its people won't benefit from one's true qualities but rather from a professor's exam in a patterned educational system.

Finally, if the University continues to expand at its present rate our thought processes will be underdeveloped by an educational system which has already created many malfunctions in our society, simply because we fail to understand that the exam and Mr. Professor are restricting our natural abilities in performing in the working world.

Venerdi Grumoli

Good (?) Intentions

To the Editor:

The following is a quote from the instructions posted in Kennedy Tower, regarding the vacating of rooms for the Thanksgiving recess: "In past years hot plates have been found PLUGGED IN AND TURNED ON over vacations." While I wholeheartedly support University policy regarding hot plates, which have been demonstrated time and again to be a fire and safety hazard if improperly used, it would seem that there is a much larger and more serious issue involved, namely, that of possible actions by the University which, in my opinion, impinge upon the rights of students residing in dormitories. How could hot plates have been found plugged in during holiday periods without someone (I.E., University employees) entering students' rooms? Last semester, during spring vacation, my room was entered, and the closets opened. (I know this from purposely leaving simple but effective detection devices.) In view of the fact that the dorms are supposedly closed during the holidays, and the main entrances locked, I assume that the room was entered with a master key. I can only speculate as to what anyone expected to find in my closet.

In this same notice regarding the upcoming holiday, the last line reads "Rooms will not be cleaned by the janitorial staff over this holiday." If the purpose of entering student rooms over some holidays is for cleaning, I respectfully submit that I do not wish this favor bestowed upon me, no matter how well-intentioned UMass might be in attempting to do so. As far as I can see, such actions as I have described constitute illegal entry and a violation of my right to be secure in my property. It might be of value if Mr. Howland, the legal counsel for the Student Senate, were to offer his views on this matter. Also, I will seek my own attorney's opinion on the subject.

John P. Hanington

Wednesdays To Come

To the Editor:

I want to thank all the students, staff, and faculty who contributed to the WEDNESDAY'S PEOPLE (East Pakistani and Indian refugees) last Wednesday, November 10th. It was good to talk with one another and to think deeply about the meaning of poverty. People were very generous, not only with their time and spirits, but they gave up their lunch money, or cigarettes, or something they wanted. More than a few fasted for the day. Many students came up with good ideas to support the WEDNESDAY'S PEOPLE and with offers to help. Religious organizations along with the SOCIAL SERVICES COMMITTEE of the STUDENT SENATE expressed an eagerness to be of service. The Daily Collegian and its staff have treated us well.

Where do we go from here? Many students came up with excellent suggestions which deserve broad support: a rock concert, poetry readings, programs and advertisements on radio and TV, fund drives in the dormitories and the Town of Amherst, help through the local Jewish and Christian communities. Each of these ideas is a good one. Please do what you can to help implement these suggestions.

We can be certain about one thing: however good our efforts were on a single Wednesday, WEDNESDAY'S PEOPLE are still with us. The consensus of student opinion last Wednesday was that for the foreseeable future we ought to set up a table for the WEDNESDAY'S PEOPLE each Wednesday in the Campus Center to seek donations and to encourage prayer and fasting. So please make it a habit to drop by the Campus Center on Wednesdays and give us your support. Please do keep in mind that this is an international effort--we ask you to help wherever you are from. (If you want to help man the table for an hour or so, please call Mrs. Nancy Gardner, Secretary, Comparative Literature, 5-0920.

One last point: I was mis-quoted in the Daily Collegian as saying that there are 250,000 East Pakistoni refugees in India. In fact, 250,000 have died in the civil strife in East Pakistan. 10 million refugees have streamed into India.

Lucien Miller
Comparative Literature

Who Deserves What?

To the Editor:

We were quite pleased to hear that the Southwest Assembly has decided to keep in step with the Orchard Hill Government concerning minority group representation. This esteemed body has moved to give the Blacks eight extra voting representatives elected at large exclusively by Black students. The Assembly, rather than stopping here, should have extended this policy to all minority groups. Even the Student Senate has recognized the Student Homophile League as a worthy cause by granting them funds for their social activities. Other worthy minorities to be considered under the new representation policy might be Catholics, Jews, and Dwarfs. Then any 3'2" homosexual Black Catholic, with a Jewish mother could get the forty-one votes he deserves.

Bob Garber
Bob Webman

Editorial Points

Who was the sage that said it was amusing to write editorial points? (Not to mention having to read them.)

***

Is there any truth to the rumor that the sixty students who walked ten miles for the Heart Fund collapsed of coronaries half an hour later? Just goes to show you that they didn't live on the Hill.

***

Rumors are flying hot and fast that students who have neglected to pay parking fines will be brought to court in Northampton before being prosecuted by the University. Whatever way you look at it, someone's going to pay.

***

Mr. Popper's penguins are alive and well, or so poor Richard would have one believe.

***

If it doesn't stop raining the campus will be inundated by worms the way it was last spring. That's even a fate worse than snow.

Self-Acceptance Paramount

To the Editor:

In Friday's Collegian, the article by Miss Lettis, "Hell to be Female", considered some very valid arguments concerning the present state of affairs of the female sex. Certain points were not stated in the article, however, which can be considered vital to understanding the present problem "on being female". First, the female must begin to assert her individuality and to feel confident in the realization that she is a female. Only after her initial acceptance of her own body image and concommitant evaluation of her self-respect and self-esteem can she ever hope to be accepted for the unique person she truly is. If a female does not respect herself then who will?

Two wrongs never make a right. It is true that some men will take for granted the female but there are other men who respect and accept people for what they are (even females) and not for what they can get from them. Therefore, this does not mean that all females should take on the crude behavior that some men exhibit toward the opposite sex in order to "justify" their feelings of mistreatment.

It seems as if the attitudes toward the whole female sex is changing - albeit slowly - but changing nonetheless. Women must first accept their role as female and first respect themselves and their own uniqueness before we can expect the opposite sex to treat us with equal respect.

Lillian C. Montalbano

Who's Being Hostile?

To the Editor:

In an article entitled "Athletic Council Hostile to Student Participation" (Collegian, Nov. 11, 1971), Mr. Lee Sandwen, President of the Student Senate (undergraduate) is quoted, perhaps and hopefully incorrectly, as having said that the Council members, at the Nov. 10 meeting, were adamant in their criticism of any changes in the Council's composition which would allow for student representation. As a member of the Council who was in attendance at this meeting, I wish to disagree strongly with this interpretation of the views expressed by the Council members. The Council took no official stand on this issue at the meeting. It was clear, however, that the Council was not receptive to the dissolution of the Council as a committee of the Faculty Senate and its reconstitution as a committee of the Student Senate. However, to say that the Council members felt students had no business on the Council is grossly inaccurate. Indeed, there is presently a student on the Council (Mr. Sandwen) and it is my personal opinion that the Council would be receptive to a proposal to increase student membership.

Arthur C. Gentile
Associate Graduate Dean

"See What You Can Get On This TV Guy — Yeah, We're Considering Him For A High Position"

Smith-Amherst Orchestra To Play Beethoven

William Wittig leads a rehearsal of the Smith-Amherst Orchestra whose two concerts this week will feature performances of Beethoven's Seventh and Moussorgsky's PICTURES AT AN EXHIBITION.

On Wednesday, November 17 and Thursday, November 18, at 8 p.m., William Wittig, Associate Professor of Music at Smith College, will conduct the Smith-Amherst Orchestra in two performances of Beethoven's Symphony number 7 in A Major, and "Pictures at an Exhibition," by Modeste Moussorgsky and Maurice Ravel. The Concert on Wednesday will be held in John M. Greene Hall at Smith, and that on Thursday will be presented in Buckley Recital Hall at Amherst.

Beethoven completed his Seventh Symphony in 1812. It was first performed in 1813 at an elaborate affair given for the Austrian and Bavarian soldiers wounded in the war against Napoleon, and was considered successful at the time, although there were some negative comments on Beethoven's conducting.

"Pictures at an Exhibition" was composed by Moussorgsky in 1873 as a tribute to his friend, the Russian painter Victor Hartmann, who died in that year. The piece, originally scored for solo piano, was written to be played at a commemorative exhibit of Hartmann's work. In 1923, at the request of Serge Koussevitsky, Maurice Ravel transcribed the work for orchestra. The transcription, which soon became a favorite, shows both Ravel's skill at orchestration and his respect for the composer's design.

The concerts will be open to the public free of charge.

Key Punch Operators
Stenos-Typists
Calculators &
Adding Machines Operators
Join American girls and see what fun a temporary job can be. We offer highest pay and never a fee. Call:
American Girl
associated with
Sandy's Secretarial Service
312 King St. Northampton
584-1000

Exchange Applications Now

Applications will be available from December 1, 1971 to February 10, 1972 in the Admissions Office, Whitmore Hall, for Undergraduate Students interested in going on exchange either semester of next year. The participating institutions for 1972-73 are:

Illinois State University, Montana State University, William Paterson College of New Jersey, Portland State University, University of Alabama, University of Hawaii, University of Idaho, University of Massachusetts, University of Montana, University of Nevada-Reno, University of Oregon, University of Wisconsin-Green Bay.

The student applying for an exchange should be a sophomore. The exchange would be for his junior year. The student must have at least a 2.5 cumulative grade point average. Students who are interested in participating in the program for next year must complete an application and return it to Mr. Loder, Office of the Registrar, no later than the deadline of February 15, 1972. Final selections, including a list of alternates, are expected to be completed by March 31, 1972.

Good-Bye White Light Laughing Gravy SALE
Books 25% off RETAIL
Food & Herbs 10% above wholesale
Nov. 15 - 24

TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 16
CAMPUS CENTER PROGRAM COUNCIL IN CONJUNCTION WITH BLUEWALL COUNTRY NIGHT PRESENTS:

THE SORRY MUTHAS

IN CONCERT

WITH 4 ALBUMS UNDER THEIR BELTS, THE "SORRY MUTHAS" FROM MINNEAPOLIS BRING THEIR COUNTRY BLUES AND BLUEGRASS MUSIC TO UMASS TUESDAY NIGHT. THE GROUP COMBINES A CURIOUS ASSORTMENT OF OVER 30 UNUSUAL INSTRUMENTS SUCH AS ELECTRIC WASHTUB BASS, SPOONS, FIDDLE, DOBRO, AND HARP WITH SIX AND TWELVE STRING GUITARS AND LOTS OF SINGING TO PRODUCE "MUTHAMUSIC". A REAL GOOD TIME THING. THE MUTHAS CAN PLAY VERY RAW AND HUMAN FOLK MUSIC, BUT THEY STICK MOSTLY TO REVITALIZING FORGOTTEN DOWN HOME SONGS WITH A LOT OF LAUGH APPEAL. THEY PUT ON A TOTALLY UNREFINED AND SPONTANEOUS SHOW, A SHOW WELL WORTH SEEING. ALONG WITH THE SORRY MUTHAS WILL BE THE LOCAL BAND, "CLEAR SKY.".

WITH Clear Sky

ADMISSION .50

reg. Wed. night bar prices

Bluewall Cafeteria 8:30-1:00

Draft Counselor's Corner

The New Draft - Part III

By GILBERT J. SALK

Well, brothers, would you believe that today's Thursday? Neither would I, but this is the column I promised for last Thursday. Please excuse the delay.

The final important aspect of the new draft regulations concerns medical deferments. Don't panic, but the I-Y classification has been abolished. This does not mean that there will be no more medical deferments, nor does it mean that there is a whole new set of medical regulations. The only thing to be changed is classification designations.

Instead of I-Ys, boards will categorize those not medically fit as either IV-F, IA-RR1, or IA-AO. There is still a lack of clarity concerning exactly how each of these categories is to be used, but let's talk about what seems to be true.

All those with "permanent" physical disabilities (i.e., a medical problem which will not heal in the foreseeable future) will be given a IV-F classification. This will be a fairly permanent designation. Those medical problems which previously earned you a "permanent" I-Y will now get you a IV-F, and if you've already had a physical, you can expect to get reclassified sometime within the next six months or so. You will not have to take a new physical unless you had a temporary I-Y to begin with.

The conditions for the other two classifications are less clear. It appears, though, that temporary problems such as a broken leg or high blood pressure will get you the IA-AO. This classification will replace the old temporary I-Y. If you receive a IA-AO, you can probably expect to be recalled for a new physical in six moths or a year.

If the examining station feels that it needs more information, and schedules you for an appointment with a specialist, or if you appeal the findings of your physical and are waiting for ajudication, it seems that you will be classified IA-RR1. Apparently, this is a holding classification, and is only meant to be temporary.

The actual practice on these new categories may reveal that they mean something entirely different from what is described here. As more accurate information becomes available, I will pass it on. For the time being, take the above as guidelines, not as gospel. If you receive a classification which you don't understand, see a draft counselor immediately. This is particularly important as the new regulations only allow you 15 days in which to file an appeal.

It is not clear whether the IA-AO or the IA-RR1 are considered to be "eligible" classifications, and whether you will be included in the year's priority pool if you hold one of these classifications.

Well, folks, that's the new draft. It's less complicated than the old regulations, believe it or not, but it's going to make life more difficult for students. Even if you're safe, the war machine will still be gobbling up your brothers, no matter how many men Nixon pulls out of Vietnam. Fight the draft. Learn draft counseling. Encourage your brothers to get help. Vote NO! for President in '72. (It's a democracy, isn't it? Can't we say that none of the candidates are satisfactory, that we don't want any of them, that we want the bosses to go back and pick some real choices for us? No? Oh, well, it was a thought.)

PEACE.

Free draft counseling is available at Draft Counseling Services in 923 Campus Center.

Room To Move
Drop-In Center
5-0400, 5-0401

Linsky To Speak On Sex And Law

The Peer Sex Education program will sponsor a program "A Legislator Looks at Sex and the Law". Attorney Martin Linsky, representative of the thirteenth Norfolk District to the Massachusetts State Legislature will speak Monday, November 17 at 7:30 p.m. in the Berkshire Clubroom in the Southwest area.

A graduate of Williams College, Representative Linsky received his law degree from Harvard in 1964 and served in 1965 and 1966 as Legislative and Research Assistant to the Lt. Governor, and in 1967 as the Assistant Attorney General. Presently, he is Assistant Minority Leader in the House and a member of the Special Committee to Study Health Care and Hospital Costs as well as the Congressional Redistricting Committee. He serves as Consultant to the Secretary of HEW.

This semester, he is Fellow-in-Residence for the Five College Area, and has previously taught courses in Federal-State Relations at Northeastern. In 1968 and 1969, it was Rep. Linsky who filed the bill to have the unmarried restriction removed from the Massachusetts Birth Control statute.

Flying Club To Meet

On Wednesday, November 17, 1971, there will be a meeting for all club members at 7:00 p.m. in Room 162, Campus Center. This meeting will pertain to the forthcoming NIFA flying meet which our club will be hosting at Turners Falls Airport on December 4, 1971.

Time is short--we need people to help--the situation is critical--WE NEED YOU.

Please attend, as this is our chance to put the Collegiate Flying Club "on the map."

The Wednesday night ground school will meet, as usual, following this special Club meeting.

THE BROTHERHOOD OF ΣAM
cordially invites all University Men and Women to attend RUSH
on Tues., Nov. 16 and Thur., Nov. 18
at 8 p.m. 387 N. Pleasant St.
call for rides 545-0845 or 253-9957

SAVE ★ ★ SAVE ★ ★ SAVE ★ ★ SAVE ★ ★ SAVE
Redeem Coupons at the
STUDENT UNION HATCH
between 5 p.m. - 9 p.m.
Tues., Nov. 16-Sat., Nov. 20
One Coupon Per Order

With This Coupon
2 Hamburgers
French Fries
8 oz. Soft Drink
for
Only 75¢
($1.00 value)
from 5 p.m.-9 p.m. Tues.-Sat. Nov. 16-Nov. 20
at STUDENT UNION HATCH

Ice Cream Sundae
of your choice
10¢ Off
With This Coupon
Tues.-Sat., Nov. 16-Nov. 20
5 p.m.-9 p.m.
at STUDENT UNION ICE CREAM BAR

SIZZLING STEAK SANDWICH PLATTER only 89¢
DAILY 3 P.M.-10 P.M.

MDC CLASSIFIED

AUTOS FOR SALE

1966 Red Porsche 912. new tires. battery Good mechanical condition. Best offer. 253-9608, or 545-2330. tf11-17

1965 G.,O sid., 4 sp., h.t., 2 dr., blue, like new, asking $750. Call after 6 p.m. Tel. 256-8643. My lose is your gain. tf11-16

'67 Chevelle Malibu, 2-door hardtop, vinyl roof, radio, V-8, A.T., P.S., excellent condition, $995. Call 253-3047. tf11-19

60 Rambler, good engine, no trans., extra wheels and tires. Will sell in part or whole. Best offer. Call Zig at 254-6650. After 6. tf-11-17

63 Ply. Fury, gd. eng. & trs., needs new minor reps. Only 58000 mi. Call Stan 549-6344, cheap. tf11-17

1971 blue Chevy Vega hatchback coupe auto. trans., 7 good tires incl. snow tires, excellent cond. Call 549-6730 after 5 p.m. tf11-16

Mustang '65, worth more than $800 must sell, will take best and fastest offer. Call 1-533-3479 after 5 p.m. tf11-16

1966 red Porsche 912, new tires, new battery, good mechanical condition. Best offer. tf11-17

MOTORCYCLES FOR SALE

Honda 250 cl, 1970, ex. cond. Call 253-5068 after 5 p.m. tf11-17

FOR SALE

Rickenbacker 12 string semi-accoustical electric guitar with case, excellent condition, best offer. Call Ed 253-9957. 11-18

Lounge comps. with spoiler. Used one season. Call after 5:30, 323-4084. tf11-17

Sony portable tape recorder $45. Knight short wave radio receiver $30.,or best offers. Call Dave at 6-5657 anytime and haggle. tf11-17

Used Rock records for sale in exc. cond. incl. English and Bootlegs $1.25/rec. Call 253-5945. tf11-19

Fischer wood Skis, Cubco bindings, size 9, Rieker lace boots, poles, boot tree, $40. Complete. Call Bob 546-6539. tf11-16

Air Force type parkas, brand new, $30. Call 546-6539. tf11-16

Discount Stereo Components, compacts, T.V.'s. 20-40%off list price. Most major brands available. Jim Jensen 586-1305. tf11-16

AKC Pemgroke Welsh Corgi male, 8 wks, red & white, great disposition, $100.00 Call 498-5819. tf11-18

Records! New albums in stock, tape & stereo equipment by order, discount prices, come to 242 Gorman or call John at 546-6479. tf11-18

Telescope edmontan 6" reflector orig. $200 asking $200 and realistic tape deck sound on sound asking $100. 545-2418 Bill rm. 128. tf11-16

Head masters 205cm marker bindings originally $210 now $140, Call Peter Zandan in 417 Greenough 545-2630. tf11-17

Guitara Amps, drums, acc. at reasonable prices. The Guitar Workshop. 98 Main St. North. 586-1706. tf11-20

WANTED

Daily Hampshire Gazette is interviewing students & others for working as stringers. If interested call Editor at Gazet. 584-5000. tf11-22

Female desires traveling companion to West Coast, leaving around Dec. 1. Call Joan Gipson, 538-2203. tf11-18

Photographer wants open-minded female models. Good pay. No exp. required. Write: Rob, PO Box 272, Chicopee, Mass. 01014. tf11-18

Amplifier preferably small fender (prechs) can't go over $250. Call Larry, 546-7226, 720 Webster. tf11-16

TRAVEL

Crimson Travel offers low cost spring vacation trips to Bermuda and Nassau. For more info call Rich Margil 412 Dwight 545-0790. tf11-19

FOR RENT

Presidential apartment-sublet available Nov. 15, $185, including utilities. Call 253-2515. Kamins Real Estate. tf11-19

Furnished room, 5 1/2 mi. UMass. Kitchen priv. available immediately. Call 586-0030. tf11-16

PERSONAL

4 long challanges shmoogle doogle to a drinking contest, Sat., Nov. 20 byob and forget the fire extinguishers! 11-16

I WANT TO SHARE IN AN OCCULT EXPERIENCE. SEANCE PREFERRED - OR OTHER. PLEASE CALL DEBBIE 546-6468. tf11-18

Snow Queen, a beautiful color animated fable, Tuesday night, Nov. 16, 7:00, 8:30, 10:00, 50¢, Student Union Ballroom. Free popcorn! tf11-16

Very real woman would like to meet single man (30-40) who desires mature human contact. Write PO Box 190, Amherst. tf11-17

You're warm, warmer, now you're hot in an authentic air force parka: Mens $37.50, boys & girls $34.50 Call Al at 549-0814-275 Puffton VIII. tf11-19

SERVICES

Advanced music student will give piano lessons in your home dorm or wherever. Call 323-7273. $3.00/ 3/4 hour. tf11-17

RIDE WANTED

Ride to No. Carolina prefer Chapel Hill and or return during Thanksgiving period. Can pay expenses. Call Joan 253-3002. tf11-17

Help! Stranded commuter needs ride 8a/fd., UMass, for 8 a.m., class Tu/th. Also UM-8p/fd., Tu. 5:30 p.m., can help expenses! 734-2215 after 6 p.m. tf11-16

ENTERTAINMENT

Rock group Phoenix for your party or dance, old standard music at reasonable rates, make res. for Xmas parties now. Call Pete 549-4028. tf11-17

STUDENTS BOOK MATCHING

Register your book in S.U. Rm. 310. Every student with your course next semester will need your books save $ money, sell direct. tf-sem.

FREE

Unclaimed stray dog, 1 yr old male terrier, housebroken, 253-5767. tf11-16

TYPING

Typing-theses, dissertations, etc. Fast, accurate, experienced. Have Math and Chem. symbols. Call 253-3601. tf12-21

MOVIE

WOODY ALLEN IS HILARIOUS IN "TAKE THE MONEY AND RUN" IN COLOR, SAT., NOV. 20, MAHAR AUD., 7, 9, 11 P.M. tf11-19

HELP WANTED

Ski instructors wanted at Berkshire East. M or F, experienced part or full time. Send resume to Director, 21 North St., Windsorlocks, Conn. tf11-19

JOBS

Overseas jobs for students. Australia, Europe, S. America, Africa, etc. All professions & occupations, $700 to $3000 monthly, expenses paid, overtime, sightseeing. Free information-write Jobs Overseas, Dept. 8B, Box 15071, San Diego, Calif. 92115. tf11-22

WANTED TO RENT

2-4 bedroom apartment or house for January or February 1. Call 546-6515 or 546-6500. tf11-19

Wanted for Jan. 1, one bedroom apt., pet must be allowed. Rent between $130 and $160. Call 665-4085 after 6, Mo. & Wed. night. tf11-19

REWARD

For info. leading to recovery of male dog part gold Retriever & Setter. Short ft. tan hair, 6 months old. Lost 11-1-71, 584-0079 after 4. tf11-19

Notices

ASTROLOGY CLUB
Astrology club now forming. Call 253-7479.

BHAKTI YOGA CLASS
Wednesday, 7 p.m. in Grayson 331, Orchard Hill.

CAMPUS SCOUTS
All scouts or anyone interested in a campus scouting group. Meeting tonight in CC 804-808 at 7 p.m. If you can't attend call 6-7504.

CANCE COFFEE HOUSE
Interested performers call Eli eves. 546-5015--Persist.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE ORGANIZATION
Testimony-reading meeting. Students testify to Truth working in their lives. Inspiring citations from the Bible and Science & Health. All welcome. 6:45 p.m. CC803.

COMMUTER ASSEMBLY
Elections will be held on Thurs. Nov. 18 in front of the University store from 9 a.m.-5 p.m. ID's required for voting.

ECONOMICS MAJORS
There will be a meeting of the undergraduate Economics liason committee Tuesday at 6 p.m.--all welcome.

ENTOMOLOGY SEMINAR
Wednesday at 3:30 p.m. in Fernald Hall. Speaker: Mr. Frank Pears, graduate student. Topic: Sampling methods for aquatic insects.

FENCING CLUB
The Fencing Club will meet Tuesday and Thursday from 7-9 p.m. in rm 8 WoPE. Everyone is welcome to attend.

GAMMA SIGMA SIGMA
Meeting 6:30 p.m. CC rm 805-809.

GEOLOGY MAJORS
Faculty presents an orientation meeting about jobs, Grad. schools & summer field camps-Tues. at 8 p.m. in Rm. 161 Mor.

GOD, JESUS & YOU
Christian Science organization meeting tells about the relationship of God, Jesus and you. Questions welcome. Tonight at 6:45 p.m. in CC rm. 803.

HEYMAKERS SQUARE DANCE CLUB
The regular square dance will be held tonight at the SU-Bristol-Essex Dining rooms. Lessons from 7:30-9:30 and club level dancing from 9:30-10:30.

HILLEL
Israeli dancing tonight at 7 p.m. in the Hillel office. Free instructions given.

LECTURE
Pat Matlick will speak on: Marxist theory of Economics and Labor theory of values at 8 p.m. tonight in the Red room of Amherst College.

MIRKWOOD
Last chance. If you want to play Saturday night contact Jim at 6-6577 or Joey 6-6681. We have the determination, do you?

MUSIC THEATRE
The UMass Music Theatre is now accepting proposals from individuals interested in directing the organization's spring semester production. There are no prerequisites. Those interested should contact Bill Menezes, Janis Cheney or Steve Driscoll c/o 4th floor Machmer for further info. Deadline Dec. 2.

SPANISH CLUB
The Spanish Club will hold a meeting Tuesday at 7:30 p.m., Herter Hall, 4th floor lounge. All present members and those interested in joining are asked to attend.

SWEET CORN THEATRE WORKSHOP
Free-open to everyone--tonight at 6 p.m. at the Amherst College wrestling room.

UMASS SKI PATROL
There will be a course on Cardio-Pulmonary Resuscitation in rm 170 CC at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday night, for all Ski Patrol members and first aid students.

WOMEN'S LIBERATION
Meeting tonight at 7:30 in rm 911-915 CC. All women welcome to an informal discussion of alternatives to marriage.

Handel Program Set

On Wednesday, November 17, at 12:10 at Grace Episcopal Church on the Common in Amherst, Lucille Jonason, soprano, will perform an all Handel program, which will include arias from Messiah and other oratorios. Miss Jonason has studied and sung in England and in Colorado. She is currently studying with Oren Brown of Amherst and New York City. She will be assisted by Gorden Dean, organist, and Walter Chesnut, trumpeter.

This is another in the weekly series of short programs of music, called "Wednesdays at Noon". There is no charge. The public is cordially invited.

On the following Wednesday, the artist will be Gordon J. Dean, organist.

WMUA

TONIGHT ON 91.1 FM:
7:00 p.m. NEWS-a full half hour report from WMUA NEWS.
7:30 p.m. THE BEST OF SHERLOCK HOLMES-another episode of the outstanding oldtime radio series from England. (30 minutes)
8:00 p.m. LIVE MUSIC FESTIVAL-live locally recorded music for an hour. Local groups perform from the WMUA Studios. If you have a group and are interested in this series, call or write WMUA.
9:00 p.m. FIRESIGN THEATRE (one hour)
10:00 p.m. FOCUS-Tonight commentator Ken Mosakowski will look at the changing nature of U.S. involvement in Indochina, where sophisticated gadgetry and means of electronic warfare are replacing the conventional combat troop role. Also on tonight's Focus program, a look at the "Death Toll Project", a form of anti-war protest. (one hour)
11:00 p.m. NEWS-another half hour report centering attention on original reporting of area news.
11:30 p.m. THE WES CANNELL SHOW-Rock and other good music til 3:00 a.m.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

by SYDNEY OMARR

Astrology columns have nothing to do with computers, crystal balls or psychics. This column is based on the relationships of individual zodiacal signs to the current positions of the sun, moon and planets. The advice offered is based on a knowledge of cycles and, if my mail is to be held as a gauge, is often entertaining and accurate.

*****

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Concern with the occult or hidden is emphasized. Get new viewpoint. See beyond the obvious. Refuse to be brainwashed. Your own concepts, ideas should be aired. Exercise innate sense of independence.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Ability to learn, absorb knowledge is accented. Avoid brooding. See potential. Welcome one who offers to teach. Concern with language should be encouraged. Articulate needs, desires. Be specific.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): You find new, more exciting ways of completing chores. What was work can become fun. There is no need to feel guilty. Expand horizons. Get rid of outmoded concept. You need not hang on to past mistake.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Accent on how you express feelings. If you hold back, defeat and frustration enter. If you give, satisfaction and accomplishment present themselves. It is up to you. Accept happiness; reject despair.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Practical forms of achieving are emphasized. You have to ask, write, call, send messages. Nothing will be handed you on proberbial silver platter. Take initiative in removing obstacle. You can do it.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Cycle high; take initiative. New forms, contacts, challenges and chances are featured. Circumstances turn in your favor. Your judgment is vindicated. You receive meaningful accolade. Congratulations due.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Money position is more secure. Longstanding debt could be repaid. Oil proposition may be in picture. Do some double checking. Separate fact from fancy. A secret is confided. Be discreet.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Study Virgo message. Welcome change, new opportunities. Be aggressive without being arrogant. Don't wail or follow crowd. Instead, take lead. Others now look to you as example. Live up to potential.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Some benefits which accrue may be along a subtle vein. Key is to discern potential. Avoid rushing, accusing or jumping to conclusions. Aries associate could be impatient. Heed your own counsel.

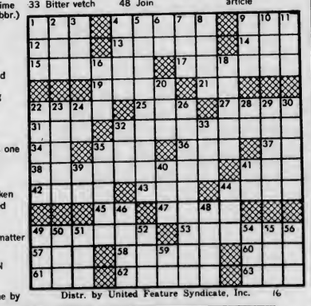
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Accent on fulfillment of specific desires. Plans made in recent past come close to fruition. A new person could enter your life and play important role. Keep open mind. Be warm.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Co-operate in civic projects. What you do now will pay dividends in not too distant future. Act accordingly. There is room for you higher on ladder. Follow through on hunch. It is valid.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Ideas which have been held back now come forward; your theories are put to work. Success is indicated. Know this-act like you know it. Hesitancy now could cause others to lose confidence.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you tend to be introspective. You are sensitive, artistic and creative. However, you often take easy way and this does not utilize fine potential. A new direction in your life is upcoming-all to the good.

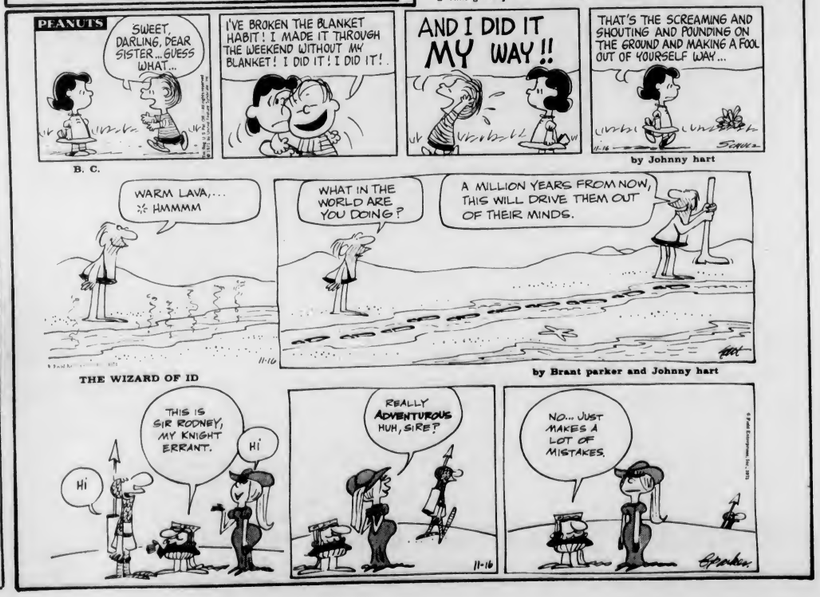
Copyright 1971, Gen. Fea. Corp.



Crossword Puzzle

ACROSS
1 Flying mammal
4 Freshet
9 Reverence
12 The self
13 Jargon
14 Period of time
15 Upset
17 Repeat performance
19 Bacteriologist's wire
21 Cooled lava
22 Landed
25 Guido's high note
27 Animation
31 Permit
32 Fretted in complaining way
34 Hindu ejaculation
35 Decay
36 Period of time
37 A state (abbr.)
38 British regiment
41 Female (colloq.)
42 Journey
43 Underworld god
44 Burrowing animal
45 Printer's measure
47 Prevalent
49 Victorious one
53 Exit
57 Before
58 Inclines
60 Be mistaken
61 Condensed moisture
62 Thick
63 One, no matter which

DOWN
1 Wager
2 Time gone by
3 Uppermost part
4 Transaction
5 Gave
6 Symbol for silver
7 Pedal digit
8 Sicilian volcano
9 Fuss
10 Armed conflict
11 Organ of sight
16 Vessel
18 Kind of lily
20 Man's name
22 On high
23 Nocturnal mammal
24 Pronoun
26 Dislike (pl.)
28 Prefix: not
29 Wild
30 Roman official
32 The sun
33 Bitter vetch
35 Mature
39 Spanish for "yes"
40 Goddess of healing
41 Proceed
44 Encountered
46 Pinochle term
48 Join
49 Marry
50 Anger
51 Recent
52 Female ruff
54 Meadow
55 Sea eagle
56 Attempt
59 Indefinite article



Answer to Yesterday's Puzzle

A	P	E		O	S		O	R	I	O	N
P	L	A	I	N	T		R	A	N	G	E	S
T	E		D	E	A	L	I	N	G		S	T
	A	D	E		S	M	E	E		A	N	T
A	G	R	A		P	I	N	S		E	L	A
M	E	N	D	S		S	T	A	R		E	M
			S	A	N	S		S	U	E	S
V	S		R	A	M	P		L	A	T	E	R
A	H	A		P	E	A	T		P	A	R	E
P	A	T	S		A	R	E	A		G	A
O	R		C	U	R	R	E	N	T	S	O
R	E	P	U	T	E		T	O	O	T	E	D
	S	I	D	E	D		H	A		A	R	E

Distr. by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.

"COME TO WHERE THE ACTION IS"
DIALTONE
Route 5 West Hatfield
Featuring the famous Recording Group
The Vandell's
Every nite
9 p.m.-1 a.m.
Ladies' Nite
Sun.-Thurs.
Drinks 1/2 Price

"In Their 80's"...For Their Last Game

By MARK VOGLER

They're in their 80's and are still going strong. And what's more, they'll be suiting up for their final time this Saturday afternoon against the Boston College Eagles.

They are seniors Bob Cabrelli(86) and Walter O'Malley (88), the pair that has so adequately handled the flankerback position for the Redmen throughout the season. Ageless wonders you ask? Well, no. Actually they're in their early 20's; 86 and 88 refer to the numbers inscribed on their jerseys.

Head Coach Dick MacPherson needs no reminder of how valuable both Cabrelli and O'Malley have been to the squad. One quick glance at the statistical chart clears that up. Prior to the UNH tiff, Cabrelli had caught 18 passes for 268 yards and two touchdowns. O'Malley had hauled in four receptions for 56 yards and one score. Total it up and you have a pretty solid effort for this one position.

"Coupled with our strong running attack, I think this (flanker spot) has been a sound position for us all year," declares MacPherson. "I think they've done the job for us, no question about it. Both have been great receivers, and I mean at catching the ball.

"These receivers are probably two of the best physically conditioned players on the squad because of the amount of running they do. The other night the rest of the squad was huffing and puffing after an extensive workout, but Bob and Walt just coasted through the running drills.

"Flanker has been a highly competitive position all year. Cabrelli seems to have gotten the upper hand at the spot. An injury has limited O'Malley somewhat. But nevertheless, he's come on and done a fine job alternating with Bob."

Cabrelli, an ex-athlete from Philadelphia's Haverford High, captained his school's basketball and football teams. He played against Marty Evans' team in his sophomore year. Evans, the Redman back-up quarterback behind Piel Pennington, quarterbacked for Bordentown Military Institute with Cabrelli on the same team a year before their enrollment at UMass. Cabrelli, by the way, was the prime target on aerial strikes--Evans hit him for four touchdowns.

Intent upon going to Syracuse for his college education, Cabrelli credits Coach Bob Graham with the recruitment aspect of his coming to UMass.

"I just sort of fell in love with the place," recalls Cabrelli. "At first I turned it down. But when I got my first look at the University, I really took a liking to the place and its surroundings. The facilities at first site impressed me."

When Cabrelli commenced his collegiate football career with UMass, he was under the impression that he would be broken in as a pass receiver. Such was not the case. After promotion to the varsity level, he was honored All Yankee Conference Defensive Halfback as a sophomore. But he received a shoulder injury toward the end of that year and underwent an operation over the winter.

The coaching staff was in the opinion that by switching Bob to flanker the pressure of the injury would be lessened. It helped. A year ago he was the team's third leading receiver.

"I feel that I'm a much better defensive player," says Cabrelli. "But I enjoy playing offense much more."

Cabrelli's dad was a great lover of football. And it doesn't seem likely that he will surpass Mr. Cabrelli's accomplishments. Starting all of his eight years in the pros, All-Pro receiver Larry Cabrelli was a member of the Philadelphia Eagle championship teams of 47-48-49.

Now 21, Cabrelli is married to the former Peggy Bolton and has one month-old daughter, Kimberly Anne. Upon graduation in the spring, he eyes a possible coaching position at Tilton Academy in New Hampshire. He has an inside connection in Jay Louise, the man who coached him at Bordentown.

O'Malley established quite a name for himself while playing for St. Johns High in Shrewsbury. He scored over 100 points as a running back. He claims he set a scoring record at Bridgeton Academy (N. Bridgeton, Maine), the undefeated New England champion against all college freshman teams in 1967.

He, too, was under the impression that he would play for UMass at a position he was familiar with. Like Cabrelli, he guessed wrong. He made a transition the first day of practice, switching from a running back to a wide receiver.

O'Malley remarked that he didn't see much action during his first two years of varsity ball. "Maine thought I was dynamite though, everytime I played against them," he joked. In my first two years I only caught two passes and both were against the Black Bears."

He got fairly decent yardage on the receptions, too, 22 and 25 yards respectively. He continued his mastery this year with one more reception.

O'Malley, discouraged by the small amount of action he saw in two previous seasons, told how things changed for him this year:

"I think in my opinion, years from now when I look over my experiences of football, I've had happy ones and unhappy ones. Without a doubt, probably one of my fondest experiences has been playing for Coach MacPherson. He treats us all like men and not boys.

"I never thought as though I was given a fair chance at all. So after two years, I started thinking that maybe I was wasting my time playing. When spring ball came this year, I went and had a talk with Coach MacPherson and explained the way I saw things. He told me that he would give everybody on the squad an equal opportunity to prove themselves.

"And that's exactly what I had waited for. When I came back from pre-season, I was in the best physical shape I've ever been in. I feel good because I'm now able to contribute. All along I wanted to do so, but I couldn't because I wasn't playing."

O'Malley is not alone in his family as far as playing football is concerned. Cousin Peter Manning played four years for the Chicago Bears before being dealt to a Canadian club. A former product of Wake Forest, coached by Norm Snead, he led the Atlantic Coast Conference in pass receiving. Manning is now a backfield coach at the University of Texas.

Saturday afternoon when they take the field against B.C. the flankerback combo will fasten the chinstraps to their UMass helmets for the final time and will say farewell to collegiate football. How much does this game mean to them? Only they can say for sure.

Cabrelli: "We're going into this game a definite underdog. It's gonna take an extreme effort to win, that's about the size of it.

"There's a good possibility that B.C. having such a fine year and winning practically everything, will take us lightly as they damn near did last year. This will fall in our favor.

"I'm not happy that it's ending, everyone wishes that he had a shot to go on to play pro ball. So I want to make my last game something I can remember with pride in the future."

Butkus Turns Receiver

CHICAGO (AP) — It was what Dick Butkus called one of pro football's "screwier" plays but suddenly the Chicago Bears are talking about going all the way.

The "bad snap" play Sunday gave the Bears a 16-15 victory over the Washington Redskins and on Monday Coach Jim Dooley said "with five games to play we have as good a chance as anyone."

"We could do it, we could go all the way," said fullback Jim Grabowski who sports a championship ring from former Green Bay Packer days.

"I'm optimistic despite the toughest schedule in the league," said vicious George Seals.

"I wasn't impressed with the Bears when I first got here," said Steve Wright, acquired earlier this season from Washington, "But things have changed one hundred percent. There's a winning attitude now."

The Bears have had their share of pulsating victories in posting a 6-3 record to trail Minnesota by one game in the Central Division of the National Football Conference.

But none could compare with the conversion which gave them a victory over Washington.

"Imagine losing a game on a bad snap from center," said Washington Coach George Allen.

The Redskins had taken a 15-3 lead in the second half on Curt Knight's fifth field goal. Mac Percival, who had booted a Bear field goal in the first half, added field goals in the third quarter and early in the final period to put the Bears within striking distance.

With a little more than 11 minutes to play Cyril Pinder popped out of the backfield and raced 40 yards for a touchdown to tie the game and Bear fans sat back waiting for Percival to boot the "automatic" extra point and give the Bears the lead.

But Gene Hamlin's snap from center sailed over Bobby Douglass waiting hands and the crowd gasped. Douglass went sailing after the ball, scooped it up, dodged several Washington pursuers and threw it into the hands of Butkus in the endzone for the winning extra point.

"I was just looking for anybody and I saw Dick so I just floated the pass to him," Douglass said.

Douglass also did a lot of work aside from the "bad snap" play. He completed 15 of 33 passes for 214 yards and carried 10 times for 88 yards.

The Bears next face the Detroit Lions who they lead by one-half game in their division. A victory over the Lions would go a long way towards qualifying for the playoffs as a "wild card" team even if they fail to catch the Vikings.

Villanova Retains Title

NEW YORK (AP) —Villanova retained the team title for the sixth straight year in the IC4A cross-county championship Monday, but Bob Wheeler, a Duke sophomore, surprised the field with a winning individual time of 24 minutes, 27 seconds.

The 6-foot, 157-pounder from Baltimore finished 20 yards in front of Dave Wright of Villanova who was clocked in 24:29. Marty Liquori, also of Villanova, was third in 24:30 and the defending individual titlist, Donald Walsh of Villanova, wound up eighth in 24:58 in the 63rd annual meet run in a cold rain.

Lehigh, with 91 points, won the college division championship for the third straight year while Tufts runners were first and second in the individual competition.

Dan Moynihan was clocked in a winning time of 25:03.7

Revamped Vamps Crush Hookers

The Crabtree Crabapple Corps upped its winning record to 2-0 with a fine balanced attack against Van Meter. Led by twin guards Betsy and Wendy Gammons, and high rebounder Toni Robblee the Apple Corps never trailed in this contest as they outlasted the tough Van Meter attach 10-7.

Defensive specialists Sandy Thomaier and Kathy Meixner shut out their taller opponents underneath the boards. Adding to the attack for the "trees" were Brew Beers, Sandy Nolan and co-high scorer, Sue Beede.

The Vamps led by Lisa Ellstrom's superb effort of four points and seven big rebounds crushed the Hookers, 12-4, at Wope. Roberta Brewer got the Vamps rolling with an underhand free throw that ignited a five point burst late in the first half that opened the game up.

From there Miss Ellstrom, Maureen Hanifan and Roz Moreau took over to ice the victory. Other outstanding performances were turned in by Colleen McGrath, Jean Alekna, and Chris Fiorenzo. Nancy Young scored all four points for the Hookers.

The Field Goals outlasted the Gorman Alkies by the score 9-5. Gorman started off with a quick 3-0 lead, and with their constant harassment of the Goal guards, who were bringing the ball up-court, it seemed as though Gorman might win.

But halfway through the first half the Goals defense started to click and their offense soon followed. The offense consisted of a basket apiece from Paula Cunningham, Donna Bell and Ronda Factor.

The rest of the points were the results of free throws. The defense which stalled Gorman consisted of Tina Jones and Betse Curtis at guard; Debbie Kirchmer who hauled down 10 rebounds,at center; Donna Bell who had 6 rebounds and Paula Cunningham who had 4 rebounds, at forwards.

The girls, who are coached by Arnold Greenhut, are looking forward to a promising season.

THURSDAY NIGHT

The Mushrooms, overcoming a slow start and some erratic first half play, edged out the Space Cadets 19-6. Putting the points on the board for the big green were Lindberg with 8, Knappe with 4 and McCarthy, Morin and Nealong each contributing two.

Gamma Sigma Sigma opened its basketball season with an exciting 12-10 victory over Kappa Alpha Theta. The game was highlighted by its tight defense and some sloppy shooting by both sides.

Both teams had many chances on fast breaks but failed to take advantage. At the end of regulation play the score was tied at 10-10. Scorers for Gamma Sigma Sigma at this point were Diane Janvier with 4, Marcia Parks - 2, Mary Malaspina - 2, and Judy Beecy - 2.

This sent the game into a three minute overtime. Tight defense prevailed again as both teams were unable to score. The game thus ended with the first team gaining a two point margin the victor.

Then came some Gamma Sig heroics. Diane Janvier stole the ball from a Theta and dribbled down to the basket. She encountered three Thetas and quickly turned around and passed the ball to Marcia Parks who put in a ten yard shot. Thus, Gamma Sig came out on top 12-10.

TONIGHT
CLEAN LIVING
AT
The English Pub
9:30 til close Dancing Only 25¢

ISRAELI DANCING -
Tonight and every Tuesday night, 7:00 p.m.
Hillel Office, Rm. 420 SU
Free instructions

LUNCH
TOP OF THE CAMPUS
ALL YOU CAN EAT
From our salad bar and bread board, Along with SMOOTH SAILING
Grilled Pastrami with melted Swiss Cheese, Bermuda Onion & sliced tomato on a fresh onion roll. Only 1.75
11:45 to 1:45
WEEKDAYS

Every Wednesday is STAMPEDE NIGHT
A little bit of the Far West in New England.
Our cowgirls, in Western garb will serve you Western Steer Beef by the ounce — 45¢ per ounce for Prime Sirloin, 70¢ per ounce for Filet Mignon, and 35¢ per ounce for a Rib of Broiled Beef. Just tell the chef how thick of a slice you want, and how you like it done.
Keep our Friday Night Buffet in mind 6:30 to 9:00 p.m. $5.50 per person.
The Lord Jeffery
38 Boltwood Ave. AMHERST, MASS. 253-2576
RAOUL DIETRICH, INNKEEPER

It Felt Like The Cage...

Erving Sparkles In N.Y. Debut

By DAN KAMAL

Long Island, N.Y.–It looked like Curry Hicks Cage. Not only did it look like the Cage, but a ballplayer named Julius Erving scored 29 points and pulled down a game-leading (sound familiar?) 17 rebounds. It felt like the Cage.

It was, however, the Island Arena, home of the New York Nets, who were playing host to Mr. Erving and the Virginia Squires. UMass–er–the Squires won the game in overtime, 127-123. Coach Ja–Al Bianchi of the visiting Virginia club credited Erving with the key play of the game.

"Julie's rebound with about 40 seconds left in overtime enabled us to run out enough of the clock to insure the win."

Remember the recording of the National Anthem that used to be played before home games at the Cage? Well, I think someone sold it to the Island Arena. That's right, not even a John Kiley at the organ.

A "record" crowd of 6,602 gave the local hero from Roosevelt, NY the kind of reception he used to get back on the UMass campus. However, it was not entirely a "similar-to-the Cage-type-game." Erving only played 37 out of a possible 53 minutes.

Although this fact makes Erving's statistics all the more impressive, there were reasons he didn't see more action.

First of all, he was called on a couple of quick fouls. Also, according to Bianchi, "He still has a lot to learn on defense and he wasn't getting open as well as he should."

Julius kept his team in the game in the first quarter as he pumped in 11 points to counter

Daily Collegian

SPORTS

the 14 points scored by the incomparable Rick Barry as the Nets held a first quarter lead of 29-27.

The former UMass great (just had to say it) played only about 7 minutes in the second frame, but the "other" star of the Squires, Charlie Scott got a bit hotter offensively and the two teams were deadlocked at the half, 54-54.

Erving was back in the line-up as the second half got underway. Then–at 5:38 of the third quarter (remember that)---the 6'6 forward scored his 15th and 16th points on a STUFF SHOT.

The game remained real close the rest of the way, with neither team opening up more than a six-point lead.

Then with less than a minute left in regulation time, Erving took over. He came down with a key rebound that led to a Charlie Scott jumper tying the game. A missed shot by Barry and a scramble on the throw-in by Virginia after a time out put the game into overtime.

Scott scored the first two Squire points in the extra stanza on a good feed from Erving. Then, after Virginia had pulled into a four-point lead with time running out, Julius grabbed the rebound of a Scott jumper and the Squires were home free.

JULIUS JARGON--The prinicpal of Roosevelt High and Erving's grammar school coach were there to give awards to Julius and former Roosevelt coach Ray Wilson (now a UMass assistant coach)...also there were cheerleaders from Roosevelt High...Erving was third high scorer in the game behind Barry (38) and Scott(42)... Bianchi had a lot of praise for his prize rookie after the game, "He jumps like he's 6'9, he runs like he's 6'4, and he handles the ball like he's 5'9. He's done a helluva job for us"....

Do you have to rub it in, Al?

Pennington Heads YanCon Weekly Picks

UMass quarterback Piel Pennington, UConn end Al Akowitz and Holy Cross defensive tackle Jim Griffin have been chosen as the top offensive, defensive and sophomore players in the Yankee Conference for their performances last Saturday.

Pennington, a 6'5 190-lb. sophomore hit 16 of 23 passes for 198 yards and three touchdowns to spark UMass to a 38-20 win at New Hampshire that brought a share of the YanCon championship. Pennington completed his first 8 passes and 10 of 11 in the first half to put UMass ahead 28-7.

Akowitz, a 6'1 193-lb. senior, was a defensive star in the 10-6 UConn win at Rhode Island that brought a share of the title. He tackled the quarterback 3 times and his pressure tactics were the key reason that URI completed just 10 of 27 passes for 89 yards.

Griffin, a 6'1 240-lb. sophomore, made 13 tackles, including 5 open-field efforts to stop quarterback rollout plays in the 14-13 Holy Cross loss at Rutgers. It was the best game all year for a Crusader lineman.

Other nominations were: Offense-FB Don Zweig (UConn), QB Bob Hopkins (New Hampshire) & FB Joe Wilson (Holy Cross); Defense-T Nelson Cassavaugh (New Hampshire), LB Fran Prondecki (Vermont), LB Dan Harper (Holy Cross) & T Bill DeFlavio (UMass); Sophomores - DE Bill Cooke (UConn) & DE Tim Coltin (New Hampshire).

Tomorrow:

Sports Special

A Trip To N.Y.

An Interview With Julius

THE PERFECT STRIKE-Steve Schubert readies to catch perfectly thrown td pass from Piel Pennington in Saturday's win over New Hampshire. Schubert had a big day including one more td grab.

Ruggers Winded By Jumbos

By BILL GORCZYCA

The UMass Rugby Club lost to Tufts RC in a hard fought contest on the Boyden Athletic Fields last Saturday.

The deciding factors in the 7-4 defeat were two early injuries to Redmen Jack Hamilton and Mike Renee which forced them to leave the game. Due to these injuries the UMass Ruggers played most of the game at a distinct disadvantage since the rules of Rugby do not allow substitution for injured players.

Tufts scored all their points in the first half with a strong wind blowing at their backs. This same wind hampered the UMass kicking game and the Redmen were unable to mount any sort of offense. Strong Defensive performances by Asa Glaser and Toby Lyons, however, kept the Jumbos on their backs for a good deal of time and prevented them from scoring more than seven points in the first half.

The UMass offense came alive in the second half, however, for the wind was now blowing in their favor. Consistently long punts by Mike Reynolds and Pete Herrman spiced with the daring running of Glaser put Tufts on the defensive for the remainder of the game. Two long runs by Herrman led to the only UMass score-a fifteen yard jaunt by scrum-half Reynolds. Reynolds' conversion attempt after the try, however, sailed wide of the goalposts.

The UMass Ruggers continued to apply pressure after their score, but were unable to push the ball across the goal line for the winning points. Considering the two injuries early in the game, however, the Redmen turned in a strong performance against a well conditioned Tufts squad.

In other action Saturday the UMass B squad was tied by the Tufts seconds 9-9.

UMass opened the scoring in this contest with a 25 yard penalty kick by "Doc" Laurence which was good for three points. Credit for this score must also be given to UMass defensive standouts Ken Unkeles and "Mad Dog" Mike Mancuso whose vicious tackling forced Tufts to commit numerous mistakes throughout the game.

UMass' final score in the first half was set up by a spectacular 50 yard gallop by Art Shelley. As he was being tackled, Shelley passed the ball to teammate Greg Toudrin who carried it 25 yards more for the score. The educated toe of Laurence put the ball through the uprights on the conversion attempt and the UMass Ruggers left the field with a 9-0 halftime lead.

This lead was short-lived, however, as the second half opened with the Tufts squad scoring on a 30 yard penalty kick that was good for 3 points. Numerous penalties hampered the Redmen Ruggers and they had trouble in crossing midfield for most of the half. Poor passing then contributed to a breakdown in the UMass backfield which led to a Tufts try. The conversion attempt was good and the score was knotted 9-9.

Not content with a tie, the Redmen Ruggers stormed back to gain control of the game. In the last minutes of the contest they were inside the Tufts 10 yard line but unable to penetrate a solid opposing line.

New England's Largest College Daily

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

Weather: Changes, Changes. Welcome to the tea party.

VOLUME XCIX, ISSUE 49 UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 17, 1971

The UMass General Court in session over the issue of traffic fines last night. Top left are the Student Senate representatives; top right John McEleney who brought the petition before the court; and the General Court itself. See story page three. (MDC photos by Gary Alpaugh)

Fees To Go Through Student Committee

Vice Chancellor for Administrative Services Thomas Campion was in attendance at last night's meeting of the Student Senate committee on Rents and Fees where he answered questions on a number of issues placed before him by members of the committee. The major topics of concern were many, but all were covered in a rather hectic two hours.

Committee chairman Bob Chiller was most concerned with the question of departments which levy fees on students and whether or not their power to do so was regulated by the committee. Vice Chancellor Campion was quick to assure him that if he had anything to say about it all fees will have to go through the committee before a department can levy them.

Pam Pepper of the Rents and Fees committee then asked Campion if, since the Campus Center fee goes through the Student Union Governing Board, was the Board trying to raise it. At this point, committeeman Elliot Sherman said that the S.U.G. Board is trying to raise more revenue from other areas. Miss Pepper then asked why it was necessary to raise the fee if new revenues were coming in from other areas. Vice Chancellor Campion responded that as it was all new sources of revenue were needed just to keep the fee at its present level of $15.

This line of conversation then led to the proposed issue of raising the garage rates to help defray the Campus Center fee. Chairman Chiller informed the committee of the plan, which entails raising the rates for the first two hours to fifteen cents an hour, and leaving it at the usual ten cents an hour thereafter, based on the fact that the average car is parked in the garage 2.7 hours. Vice Chancellor Campion replied that the S.U.G. Board is considering different rates and that even though the garage was running at a deficit, no student fees whatsoever are being used to meet this cost.

The next order of business concerned the alleged raise in price at the Hamlin hotel. Committeewoman Pepper raised this question early in the meeting (before the arrival of Vice Chancellor Campion) and pointed out that no one had the right to increase a Board of Trustees rate without first going to the Trustees. After the arrival of the Vice Chancellor the question was again raised, and Mr. Campion announced that he wasn't sure of the verity of the story concerning the rates, which first appeared in yesterday's Collegian.

At this point one of the members of the committee pointed out to Campion that she had a few friends, undergraduates at the University, who lived in Hamlin and were paying the rate quoted in the Collegian. The issue was then concluded, with a promise to check it out with the people involved.

The last major order of business discussed was the possibility of changing the rules and regulations of the University concerning living in dormitories. Vice Chancellor Campion stated that it may be possible to change the rules so that more people would qualify for off-campus living, but this led to discussion on the topic of lack of people in the resident halls.

The chief concern in this area was the lack of people in the Sylvan area, which is only 80% full and suffers from a poor ratio of males to females in its co-ed arrangement, with girls comprising only 19% of the population. Vice Chancellor Campion revealed that the University was considering a plan that would enable students living in Sylvan to bypass the meal ticket requirement as a means of attracting people to the area.

In other developments committeeman Elliot Sherman revealed that his section had procured Alumni Stadium for a possible spring concert. It was announced that there would be a joint meeting of the Rents and Fees Committee and the Services Committee on November 30th. After all discussion had closed, the meeting adjourned.

On The Inside:

- D.A. On Drugs See page three
- Tickets See page three
- Sports Special See page eight

Alumni May Lose Council Vote

By ROBERT MEDEIROS

Should alumni have voting privileges on the Athletic Council?

No, according to a Student Senate official.

Yes, according to an executive of the alumni organization.

The Student Senate will soon have before it a proposal to restructure the Athletic Council. This plan would drop the voting membership to exclude Alumni. At stake, the Senate believes, is control of more than $500,000 in student fees. The Athletic Council is and has been for years a faculty committee.

Larry Ladd, administrative vice-president for the Student Senate, in an earlier MDC interview explained why he believes that alumni should not be granted the right to vote on the Athletic Council.

"The alumni have a right to be consulted. They do not have a right to say how student money should be spent. Athletics do not financially affect the alumni as they do the student in that the student must carry the major financial burden of the athletic program," said Ladd.

Evan Johnston, executive vice-president for the Associated alumni, said, "We feel strongly that we have individuals who have demonstrated through loyalty and ability that they can make a real contribution in helping to guide such a (athletic) program by a voting membership on the Athletic Council."

Johnston said that the alumni would be upset "and rightfully so" if the alumni were denied voting privileges.

Johnston said, "The biggest turnout that we have for alumni is in athletic-oriented events." He said that an alumnus will go to an athletic event at the University and walk around afterwards. It is usually at this time that an alumnus will become involved in some other University event or organization.

"It is a fact of life in this business that athletics provide a rallying point for a lot of alumni," said Johnston.

Alumni who are selected to serve on the various boards are expected to serve as individuals, he said. "Never has the Alumni Board or this official told, or even asked, any members of the Athletic Council how to vote on any particular issue," said Johnston.

The alumni, have not been noted for their financial support of the University he said that this is because it is a fairly young alumni group. About 67% of the alumni have graduated since 1960, according to his figures.

"I am sure that we will see significant improvement in our annual contributions with the advent of a Development Office and a good development program which should become reality in the near future," said Johnston.

Budget Discussion Deferred

Selectmen Hear Torrey Report

By CHARLES BERKOW

In their weekly meeting yesterday morning, the Board of Selectmen deferred discussion of the Capital Budget, heard a report from Town Manager Allen Torrey that he had signed the "Police Compact' and authorized two letters to be written. Board Chairman Merle Howes was out of town, and unable to attend the relatively short meeting.

The Selectmen were to discuss the Capital budget at yesterday's meeting, but due to the absence of Howes and an apparent unwillingness on the part of the other Selectmen to discuss it at that time, it was postponed and scheduled for the meeting next Monday night.

Torrey said that he had signed the Western Mass. Interagency Mutual Aid/Assistance Agreement for Amherst Monday, and Deputy Chief Maia signed for the Police. The agreement provides for regional cooperation among police in about 40 communities in Western Mass. Amherst declined to join the "Tactical Squad" at this time but reserved the right to join it and any other groups in the "Police Compact."

The Board will send an affadavit to the Interstate Commerce Commission in support of Western Mass. Bus Lines' request for a permit to charter busses for interstate trips. UMass, Amherst and the surrounding communities will benefit from the service Selectman Michael P. Sullivan, Jr. was authorized to draft a letter thanking Congressman Silvio Conte for his help in getting the FCC F.C.C. to approve a new CATV channel for the Amherst area. Channel 38 is expected to begin serving the area in February.

Selectman H Hills Skillings will meet with a representative of the Sunderland Selectmen for the perambulation of town lines. Town Manager Torrey was asked to be sure that a brush and a can of paint are there for the perambulation.

The Board decided to hold the TOPICS Areawide Report, which concerns traffic and road problems, for two weeks. This will allow the Board and the Traffic and Circulation Committee to study it. The Board also approved and accepted a calendar setting the dates and deadlines pertaining to the Town elections to be held in February, approved a change in management in Mike's Westview Club, and approved the relocation of a telephone pole.

Reporter Lecturing

A newspaperman whose beat is the Massachusetts legislature will give a public lecture at UMass this evening.

Neil Giroux, State House reporter for the Springfield Daily News, will speak at 7 p.m. at Campus Center 804-808, sponsored by Alpha Phi Gamma.

His topic is, "An Appraisal of Politics and the Press in Massachusetts"

Giroux, a 1968 UMass graduate, has served a Berkshire County radio station, two community newspapers and The Associated Press as a reporter. He writes a daily column for the Springfield paper. In addition, he is a law student at Suffolk University in Boston.

The lecture is open to the entire campus. APG, the honorary journalism society, especially encourages journalism and government students to attend the lecture and question period, according to APG Pres. Linda Balicki.

Prints Exhibited

An exhibit of silkscreen prints by major contemporary American artists is being held at Amherst College until Sunday, Nov. 21.

The prints are being shown in the Ninevah Room, Mead Art Building, on the Amherst campus and may be viewed from 9 a.m. - 5 p.m., Monday - Saturday, and 11:30 a.m. - 5 p.m., Sunday.

Commissioned by Multiples, Inc. of New York City, the artists include Anskiewicz, Dine, Indiana, Lindner, Warhol and Wesselman. Among other things these works reveal the artists exploring optical effects of color juxtaposition.

Board Holds Hearings

The Search Committee to nominate candidates for the permanent Chancellor at UMass-Amherst will hold an open hearing at 4:00 pm today in the Board Room (374) of Whitmore Administration Building. The subject of the meeting will be the procedures to be followed in the search for a new Chancellor.

All interested members of the various university constituencies (students, faculty, staff, alumni, trustees and others) are urged to communicate their views on search procedure and the role of the Chancellor at this time. They can also do so by writing to the Chairman of the committee Dr. Glen Gordon, Department of Political Science, Thompson Hall.

A second meeting will be held on Tuesday, November 23, at 4:00 pm also in the Board Room on the role and the responsibilities of the Chancellor.

UMass Fine Arts Council Presents

BOWKER AUDITORIUM--UNIVERSITY OF MASS.

WED., NOV. 17 & THURS., NOV.18, 1971—8 P.M.

RESERVED TICKETS: UMass undergraduates $1.50; other—full-time students $2.50; UMass faculty/staff $3; general public $3.50

FINE ARTS COUNCIL BOX OFFICE, 125 Herter Hall, Tel. 545-0202

ROOM TO MOVE
Campus Drug Drop-In Center
CALL 5-0400
24 HOURS A DAY
7 DAYS A WEEK

BOSTON in less than ... 2 hrs.
Special weekend buses direct to and from the campus and Boston take only 1 hr. & 55 mins. That's convenience.
Peter Pan
Student Union Tel. 545-2006

PRINT SALE
Original prints ONLY (woodcuts, lithographs, silk screens, etchings) may be sold by grad students and undergraduates
Please have prints in the Art Office by noon, December 13.
Sale to be held Dec. 15 - 17
Cape Cod Lounge
9:30 - 5:30 (Wed. & Fri.)
9:30 - 8:00 (Thurs.)
For further information, contact the Program Council Office.

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

Office of the DAILY COLLEGIAN are on the second floor of the Student Union on the University campus, zip code 01002. Phones are 545-2550 (news), 545-0344 (sports), and 549-1311 (editor).

Second class postage paid at Amherst, the DAILY COLLEGIAN publishes five times weekly Monday through Friday during the academic year except during vacation and exam periods; three or four times a week following a vacation or exam period or when a holiday falls within a week. Accepted for mailing under the authority of the act of March 8, 1879 as amended by the act of June 11, 1943. Subscription rates are $6.00 per semester, $10.00 per year.

District Attorney Callahan speaking at the Congregational Church in Amherst last night. His topic was drugs. (MDC photo by Alan Chapman)

D.A. Callahan On Drug Abuse

By JEANNETTE MARTINEAU

District Attorney John Callahan stressed "citizen participation in local programs designed to combat drug abuse to a meeting of the American Association of University Women last night at the First Congregational Church in Amherst.

Callahan stated that the number of criminal cases of drug abuse in the Hampshire and Franklin counties has more than doubled in the past few years. "But the fact of the arrest does not indicate the problem," he explained, "the real problem, the drug abuse, is done secretively."

"Kids in junior high have access to drugs, and drug traffic is diffuse. There is no one big guy, the pushers in junior high schools are 'little guys'."

"Pills are cheap," Callahan continued, "a seventh grader can get speed within an hour in Northampton. It's as freely available as sex-education among seventh-graders. And the peer group is more influential in the teen years than the family."

"Long-range planning", Callahan stressed was a possible remedy. "Drug education is necessary, education about the physiology of drugs, and from about the fifth grade."

Callahan explained that he had sent a questionnaire to area school superintendents about their drug education programs, but had received little response.

"Drug education should be part of the health program," he insisted, charging that School Boards were "ducking it...because it gets into sex education," and terming it "political...The Boards are afraid of losing community support." Because of the nature of what kids are exposed to, we have an obligation to educate them."

"Kids don't have a cause," Callahan cited as a cause of the drug problem. "A few years ago there was the Civil Rights movement, and then the anti-war movement, but now they have no obvious cause."

Callahan elaborated on this "anti-establishment" syndrome, and "disillusion(ment) with the system" by citing a recent Collegian editorial "supporting the legalization of LSD". According to Callahan, the "empassioned" editor asked the readers to write to him (Callahan) to express their views. Callahan said that he was disappointed in the complete lack of response.

"Marijuana is a different story," he explained, "I would put marijuana in the same category as cigarettes and alcohol. But I have a few doubts about legalizing it. I don't know yet," because "the literature is light on the effects of marijuana. No one has yet documented any harm from marijuana." He then indicated its "residual effects,", "the more you smoke, the quicker you get high."

"There is beginning to be," Callahan continued, "reputable studies on its effects. Marijuana wasn't illegal until 1937...due to misrepresentation of the facts."

When asked why the government does not control the manufacture of amphetamines by pharmaceutical companies, Callahan answered that the "Feds were trying to limit the production", but the "pharmaceutical companies have big lobbies," and urged that voters "force the State to license and police pharmaceutical companies."

"There is no penalty to company for losing its inventory," and cited "employees stealing and shipments get(ting) highjacked" as sources for "black-market" drugs.

As for symptoms of drug addiction, he warned the mothers present mostly of a personality change, i.e. "lathargic", and recommended the drug education course at Greenfield Community College.

No Ticket Decision Til Mid-December

By ROBERT MEDEIROS

The UMass General Court, after hearing arguments concerning the collection of traffic tickets, announced that a decision will not be made on the matter until at least mid-December.

Jerry Moriarty, Chief Justice of the General Court, said that the reason for the delay was because of the intricate and complex points that were raised by both sides in the hearing. He said that it will take time before all of these points can be fully discussed.

Henry Bouffard, Student Attorney General said that he still intends to assist in the collection of $99,000 worth of traffic fines which is owed by individuals whose autos were not registered at the University.

Bouffard said that he will act as a private citizen in the collection of this $99,000 sum. He said that he will begin action in this area as soon as he receives the necessary permission which could be within a week. He said that the receiving of this permission is only a question of filling out the necessary forms.

Bouffard will coordinate a staff of three which will assist the Northampton Clerk of Courts in bringing all parking violators who did not register their autos in the University to justice. He will not initiate any action in the collection of faculty parking fines until the Court makes its ruling concerning student traffic violators.

Whether the Court should issue a Writ of Mandamus was the major issue that was discussed last night. A Writ of Mandamus would require the Student Attorney General to assist in the collection of student parking fines.

The Senate's basic argument was that the parking regulations on this campus are inequitable in that the present regulations discriminate against the student. The main argument of John McEleney who petitioned for the Writ of Mandamus was that there is over $135,000 worth of parking fines which under the present law should be collected for a student scholarship fund.

Moriarty said that if the Court does find the parking regulations inequitable, the Court will recommend that the regulations be changed. He said that if the Court rules in favor of McEleney a Writ of Mandamus will be issued.

Registrars On Campus Thursday

On Thursday, the Amherst registrars will return to UMass to register more young voters in the town of Amherst. From 1:00 until 6:00 P.M., they will be located at a table in the Campus Center Concourse.

Hopefully, the turnout tomorrow will excede that of October 15, said John Stevens, chairman of the Amherst Voter Registration Coalition. On their last visit to campus, the registrars added 616 names to the lists, he said. It is hoped that all those who were unable to register then will do so on Thursday.

The number of voters from Umass now stands at about 1000. In all of Amherst, only 6000 adults are registered. Since voter turnout is usually only 50%, 3000 students voting could carry an election.

The criteria for eligibility are few. The student must be at least eighteen years old and must have lived in the town at least six months. A driver's license or student I.D. is considered legal proof of age. The Housing Office will be present to offer proof of residency.

The residency requirement precludes freshmen from registering at this time. This class is expected to have the most applicants, since they will be living in the town four years. The registrars will return again in February if the response tomorrow is high.

According to estimates by student leaders, there are 3000 students who wish to register in town, but have not yet done so. The town election is scheduled for February 22, and the deadline for registration is February 2. Several students are expected to run for town office.

Amherst has been named a testing site of youth power in the local and national press. If the total student population were to vote, the townspeople would be easily outnumbered. A high percentage of registration on campus would create a forum of student opinion. For this reason it is hoped by some that students would register here rather than in their home towns.

For students who have already registered somewhere else and now wish to be listed here, there will be a solution. They can also go to the registration table Thursday. There they merely fill out a form. The registrar will notify the former place if registration, and the student will be formally registered in Amherst.

For those who cannot make it to the Campus Center tomorrow, the registrars are available at the Town Hall Monday through Friday, from 8:30 A.M. until 4:00 P.M.

Earthquake Film

The BBC film "San Francisco-The City That Wants to Die", will be presented tonight at 8:15 in Mahar Auditorium. The film vividly describes the fate of San Francisco as a result of an impending earthquake.

Designed for the layman, the film describes earthquakes, by using some footage taken during the 1906 San Francisco earthquake, the Alaskan-1964-Good Friday earthquake, and numerous continuing earthquakes in the Japanese Islands.

MDC Classifieds Pay

FRANCONIA
FRANCONIA COLLEGE
FRANCONIA, N.H. 03580
Become the architect of your own education. Conceive it, describe it, construct it, and then achieve it.
Franconia is seeking qualified transfer students for Spring (Feb. 15) and Fall 1972 admission. Students who are ready to play an active role in planning their education are invited to apply.
For application, catalog or interview appointment contact Admissions, Box R.S.

TONIGHT
FLIGHT
at
The English Pub
Dancing
9-30 til close only 25c

FOR YOUR TRAVEL RESERVATIONS
Call Peter Pan Travel — Complete Travel Arrangements — Transportation — Accommodations — Tours
Peter Pan
Amherst Center Tel. 256-6704

UMass Fine Arts Council presents
Monday, Nov. 22 - 8 p.m.
SWINGLE SINGERS OF PARIS
Bowker Auditorium
Tickets: 125 Herter Hall - 545-0202
JAZZ/SebastienBachHaendelVivaldiTelemannMozartBeethovenGershwinRavelAlbenizRodrigoGranadosDeFalla

In The Nation And The World

Signalmen May Strain Phase II

WASHINGTON (AP) — The railroad signalmen's union Tuesday announced a tentative new 42-month labor agreement that may strain the Pay Board's three-day-old wage guidelines.

Meanwhile the board met for the first time since the wage-price freeze ended Sunday. Reported under consideration was the question of whether contract wage increases for teachers and others should be paid retroactively to cover the period of the 90-day wage-price freeze which ended Sunday.

Terms of the rail agreement were kept secret pending a ratification meeting next Saturday in Chicago. However, the pattern for previous settlements by other rail unions has been 42-month contracts with 42 percent wage increases.

This is 12 percent a year, more than double the 5.5 percent standard set by President Nixon's Pay Board. But the board has left itself leeway to approve higher increases after considering "ongoing collective bargaining and pay practices, and the equitable position of the employes involved..."

Charles J. Chamberlain, president of the AFL-CIO Brotherhood of Railroad Signalmen, said he intends to consult with the Pay Board about the contract. Pay Board Chairman George Boldt refused to comment on the agreement:

In other developments:

—The Federal Reserve Board reported that the output of the nation's factories increased only 0.2 percent last month, showing continuing softness in the economy despite President Nixon's prediction of a strong final quarter this year.

—The Senate Banking Committee, considering the administration's request to extend Nixon's authority to control the economy past next April 30, approved a provision exempting all persons at or below the poverty level from wage controls. That would apply to all families of four with incomes in the $3,900 range. The Cost of Living Council already has exempted those persons earning less than the federal minimum wage of $1.60 an hour.

The Banking Committee rejected a proposed amendment to exempt all news media from wage and price controls, and put off any decisions on extending Nixon's authority or requiring retroactive payment of pay raises lost during the freeze.

Boldt answered a few questions from newsmen during the Pay Board's lunch break.

He said the board had not considered an agreement reached late Saturday in the soft-coal industry. Some miners have refused to return to work until the board approves the agreement.

The three-year agreement calls for pay raises of up to 35 percent and a 100 percent increase in management's contribution to the union pension fund.

These are in excess of the board's general guidelines for contracts going into effect at 12:01 a.m. last Sunday and after. However, the union says the contract was ratified half an hour before the deadline, thereby falling under a Pay Board rule that will allow it to go into effect automatically, subject to being challenged and rolled back.

A challenge could be filed either by management or by five Pay Board members. The raises could be rolled back if the full board decides they are "unreasonably inconsistent" with the 5.5 percent rule for new contracts.

The signalmen's agreement falls directly under the rules for new agreements.

In Brief...

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate voted 53 to 29 Tuesday to grant President Nixon authority to impose a 15 percent surcharge on imports into the United States, in place of the present 10 percent levy.

It voted in the same action to grant Nixon authority to impose quotas on any products coming into this country.

It did this by defeating an amendment of Sens. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., and Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., to strike from the $23.9-billion tax-reduction bill a Finance Committee provision granting the new powers.

Sen. Wallace F. Bennett, R-Utah, said the administration had not sought the provision and had no present intention of using it but wanted it retained in the bill.

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — U.S. helicopter gunships from South Vietnam strafed and rocketed North Vietnamese positions less than 10 miles southwest of the Cambodian capital Tuesday in a vain bid to break the enemy grip on an outpost town, informants reported.

Persons returning from close to the battlefront said troops of the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong 1st Division seized the village of Tuol Leap.

(AP) — The White House is considering a proposed revision in the Social Security accounting system which could bring an election-year bonanza to taxpayers as well as pensioners.

This was disclosed Tuesday by Elliot Richardson, secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, who told newsmen at the White House: "We think the recommendation is sound and does make sense."

WASHINGTON (AP) — Industrial production showed only a slight gain in October, reflecting continuing softness in the nation's economy, the Federal Reserve Board reported Tuesday.

The board said output of the nation's factories, mines and utilities climbed by two-tenths of one percent in October, down from the September gain of eight-tenths of one percent.

President Nixon has said that the last three months of 1971 will show a strong gain in the economy.

British Reviewing N. Ireland Police And Troops Practices

LONDON (AP) — The British government has ordered a review of the way suspected Irish terrorists are detained and questioned after an inquiry commission found some evidence of physical ill treatment in Northern Ireland.

The commission, in a 72-page report to Parliament Tuesday, cleared British troops and security police in Northern Ireland of charges that they had tortured and brainwashed captured gunmen from the outlawed Irish Republican Army.

But it upheld charges from released prisoners that during interrogations they were forced to stand spread-eagled against walls for four to six hours at a time, that their heads had been covered with black hoods, that they had been subjected to loud hissing noises, denied sleep and put on bread-and-water diets.

The commission described these measures as "ill treatment or hardship," but said they fell short of "physical brutality."

Spokesmen for the IRA in Dublin and civil rights groups in the Northern Ireland capital of Belfast denounced the commission's findings as a whitewash.

Home Secretary Reginald Maudling, the British Cabinet minister responsible for Northern Ireland, announced that the government would review interrogation methods, implying that the ground rules could be changed.

An emergency debate on the subject was scheduled for Wednesday.

The commission, headed by Sir Edmund Compton, the ombudsman named to investigate charges of maladministration in Northern Ireland, looked into the treatment of 40 of the 342 suspected Irish terrorists arrested by the British army Aug. 9 and held without trial.

Since then the total of suspected IRA terrorists arrested has risen to about 900, and charges in the press of brutal detention methods have swelled demands for a fuller government review.

It is a ticklish problem for the British government. The IRA is committed to driving the British out of Northern Ireland. Its two-year campaign of shootings, bombings and arson have taken 158 lives.

British security forces defend tough interrogation methods on grounds that they are seeking information that will save the lives of civilians and troops.

"Very difficult issues are involved in judging what methods of interrogation are permissible in the protection of the lives of the civilian population and the security forces against a ruthless and deliberate campaign of terror and murder," Maudling told the House of Commons.

"When combatting a terrorist campaign, time is of the essence. Information must be sought while it is still fresh so that it may be used as quickly as possible to effect the capture of persons, arms and explosives, and thereby save the lives of members of the security forces and of the civil population."

Henderson Said To Have Held Investigation

FT. MEADE, Md. (AP) — Shortly after the My Lai massacre the top aide to Col. Oran K. Henderson changed his work habits, became secretive and appeared to be conducting an investigation, a former Army helicopter pilot testified Tuesday.

Jeffrey C. Howard, now a real estate salesman in Athens, Ga., told Henderson's My Lai coverup trial that he flew the aide, the late Lt. Col. Frank Barker, on about 15 trips to various field locations in Vietnam. Barker had been commander of the assault force at My Lai.

Howard said that while Barker previously had left arrangements for such visits to his pilots, after the My Lai operation he conduced all necessary radio traffic, kept destinations secret until the last moment and rarely discussed business with aviation personnel.

"It was definite he was searching out individuals in the field," the former captain said. "I had an opinion he was conducting an investigation."

Pizza Party

ALL YOU CAN EAT $1.25

EVERY WEDNESDAY NIGHT

BRUNI'S PIZZA

Main & Triangle 256-6676

How To Move Off-Campus

If You:

1. are a Senior
2. will be 21 years of age during the academic year
3. are married
4. will be commuting from home

Then, notify - the Housing Office before room-choosing (December 6-10) that you intend to exercise any of the above options.

You're Not Covered By The Above Categories?

If you are not covered by any of the above categories then you are required by Board of Trustee regulation to live on-campus. However, you may apply for an exemption to the regulation through your Area Director.

Security Deposit:

If you plan to move off-campus you must notify the Housing Office before December 10, 1971, in order that you may get your deposit back. Students who fail to make such notification by December 10 and who fail to occupy a room in the Spring Semester will, unfortunately, forfeit their deposit. Make your plans early.

Swindler Denies Charges

BOSTON (AP)-Convicted swindler Michael J. Raymond Tuesday denied that he was trying to extricate himself from trouble with the law when he implicated two Massachusetts Superior Court judges as recipients of bribes in a 1962 stock fraud case.

The denial, made on the second day of a Supreme Court inquiry into the bribery allegations, came as the judges' attorneys tried to show that Raymond had lied on earlier occasions to get out of difficult situations.

Raymond, 42, a portly bespectacled New Yorker with admitted ties to the underworld and a long record of convictions, including perjury, claimed this wasn't the case when he first brought the alleged pay-off to the attention of federal authorities in 1964.

He wasn't "consciously" trying to get out of anything, he said.

The allegations against the judges were of "no special significance" to him, Raymond said, but were made before federal agents-and later expanded upon before a U.S. Senate subcommittee-in response to a wider federal probe of stock theft operations.

Raymond told the subcomittee last summer, and repeated before the full five-member Supreme Court bench Monday, that he paid $35,000 to avoid going to jail in the fraud case against him in Middlesex Superior Court.

FBI Arrests Suspects

NEW YORK (AP)-Two Massachusetts men and three New Yorkers were charged by the FBI on Tuesday with involvement in a conspiracy to sell some $6 million worth of stolen securities.

Three of the suspects were arrested Monday, the FBI said, as one of them displayed some of the allegedly stoen stock certificates in a bank in the Wall Street area.

Another man, the FBI said, flourished $50,000 in cash just as the agents observing the rendezvous moved in.

Two other men were arrested Tuesday, one in Manhattan and the other in Brooklyn.

Those arrested in the bank were Anthony Palgiarulo, 59, of Saugus, Mass.; Edward V. diPietro, 29, of Malden, Mass., and Louis Vitta, 35, of Brooklyn.

They were arraigned before a U.S. magistrate Tuesday on charges of conspiring to transport stolen securities and held for a hearing Nov. 26. Bail was set at $15,000 for Pagliarulo; $7,500 for diPietro, and $3,500 for Vitta.

Arrested Tuesday with possession of and conspiracy to possess stolen securities were Frank Cangiano, 43, of Brooklyn, and David Gibb, 49, of Staten Island.

However, William Aronwald, a lawyer with the Joint Strike Force Against Organized Crime, said some of the alleged schemers had told an unidentified man that they had $6 million worth of the stock certificates and asked him to help peddle $1.5 million worth.

Report Claims Nixon Lacks Minority Interest

WASHINGTON (AP)-The Nixon administration has failed to take a firm and continuing interest in the enforcement of civil rights laws, the Civil Rights Commission said in a report released Tuesday.

In addition, the commission said, only a few federal agencies have made any real effort to upgrade the hiring or promotion of blacks, Indians, orientals of Spanish-speaking Americans.

A bulky 217-page report entitled, "The Federal Civil Rights Enforcement Effort: One Year Later" concluded:

"Unless the bureaucracy is given to understand that civil rights is a matter of personal concern to the President, it is unlikely to alter the status quo."

The commission cited remarks on various civil rights issues by President Nixon over the past several months as doing little to provide optimism for minorities. The President has opposed enforced busing to achieve integration and has said he is against an active federal role in the courts to integrate the suburbs.

"The net effect of the President's statements has not been to provide a clear policy direction necessary to encourage the federal bureaucracy to step up its efforts to enforce civil rights laws," the report said.

"Chief among the inadequacies is the failure to develop and to communicate to the public a sense of urgency over the need to end discrimination.

"The President's posture, as gleaned from his statements and other actions over the last six months has not been such as to provide the clear affirmative policy direction necessary to assure that the full weight of the federal government will be behind the fight to secure equal rights for all minorities."

While acknowledging that a presidential statement on housing emphasized the need to correct past patterns of discrimination, the commission criticized a distinction Nixon made between segregation resulting from income and segregation resulting from deliberate discrimination.

The net effect may "serve to reinforce the racially exclusionary policies and practices of many suburban communities," the report added.

Much of the report is devoted to an evaluation of how well the government is carrying out Title VI of the 1964 Civil Rights Act which outlaws discrimination in any federally funded project whether the money is spent by private or public agancies.

Register To VOTE November 18

Nothing to do this weekend? See WOODY ALLEN in "Take The Money And Run"

(1969 - in color)
SAT. - Nov. 20 - MAHAR
7-9-11 p.m.

COMMUTER ASSEMBLY ELECTIONS
(in Cape Cod Lounge, S.U.)
9 a.m. - 5 p.m.,
Thurs., Nov. 18
ID's Required for Voting

Learn to Drive
AMHERST AUTO SCHOOL
34 Main Street
256-6066

All Collegian Staffers

Constitutional Convention

Thurs. 7:30 p.m.

In The Colonial Lounge To Ratify Constitution.

ATTENDANCE MANDATORY

(you must come)

Analysis

Phase II, National And Worldwide

By MICHAEL BEST

Last Saturday the wage price freeze was replaced by an "income policy" biased against labor in general-but especially against people unrepresented by either corporations or organized labor.

Much of the confusion surrounding both phase I and phase II is the result of a deliberate attempt by the government to whitewash some controversial issues.

The United States is nearly the last industrialized nation to explicitly introduce an income's policy, the purpose of which is to permit gradual, but controlled increases in wages and prices.

Under such policies, a periodical decision is made by the government, regarding acceptable rates of price and wage increases which in turn affects employment opportunities and the distribution of national income. Nixon's income policy is designed to increase corporate profits at the expense of worker's wages.

Labor leaders have estimated that Nixon's tax breaks to corporations (adding together the accelerated depreciation allowance and the proposed investment tax credit) will redistribute $72.5 billion from the government to the corporations by 1980. But, this total may be considerably less than the benefits corporations could receive under the proposed wage price guidelines for phase II.

Any productivity increases greater than 2 1/2 to 3 1/2 per cent will result in windfall profits. For example if next year productivity increases by 6 per cent while wage increases are limited to 5 1/2 per cent and prices to 3 per cent, then profits would gain by 20 to 30 per cent (since profits usually are about 10 to 15 per cent of sales).

Phase II does not include controls on profits. Underlying Nixon's program is an assumption that since capitalism is based on production for profit, corporate profits must therefore be expanded if the economy is to grow. It is not clear, however, that attempts to increase corporate profits will lead to increased production opportunities.

Divident Controls

A four per cent limit was intended to appease the blatant anti-labor bias of Nixon's program. However, this move was definitely pro-business also. Given the corporate tax breaks this year and the lack of controls on profits, corporations and most stockholders would prefer to keep the profits in the corporation instead of paying them out in dividend payments where they would be subject to personal income taxation.

Regarding prices, the Price Board has a mini-scale staff totally incapable of enforcing any stringent requirement it might propose on the 4 million business units and 22 rental units under its jurisdiction.

Mike Best

Who is on the Pay Board? Why are large corporations entitled to five members when they repsesent only a small albeit rich, minority of the population? Although they are very wealthy no more than a very small percentage of the population directly receives a majority of their income from corporate profits. Except for organized labor which represents less than 25 per cent of the labor force, no other minority groups are represented on the pay board.

Unemployed, non-unionized employes, aged, women, and non-white minorities all represent larger proportions of the population than capitalists but are unrepresented on Nixon's pay board.

Employment Outlook

No one is predicting any improvement in the unemployment situation for at least the rest of this year. Since Nixon entered office unemployment has increased by well over two million workers from 3.5 per cent of the labor force to approximately 6 per cent.

Nixon named his corporation tax cut a "job Development Act." The tax break may improve the monetary crisis faced by many U.S. corporations but it will not lead to increased employment. The nation is now faced with 27 per cent of its production capacity lying idle. Before the investment tax credit will induce any substantial increased capacity, a tremendous upsurge in consumer demand will -but such an upsurge is impossible without a sizable personal income tax cut or a jobs creation program by the government. Nixon assumes that increased profits will trickle down to the workers of the nation in increased employment.

This assumption is highly suspect and given the degree of excess capacity in the country, it has no firm economic logic. The program may only increase unemployment if businesses use the tax credit to invest in automation and forms of machinery that reduce the needs for labor. Given that employment of graduating seniors from college was off 26 per cent last year, the job market for less educated job seekers was probably worse, and conditions are not improving.

The Labor Minister of Italy has estimated that Nixon's surcharge on imports will reduce Italian exports by $400 million which he predicts will add 150,000 to 170,000 to Italy's unemployment, which is the highest since World War II. That Canadian government has estimated that the surcharge will cost Canada $3 billion in a year and will boost an unemployment total that is the highest in over 10 years.

Most underdeveloped countries face perpetual recession unless they are permitted to sell industrial products in the world markets-which to date have been monopolized by the rich countries.

Foreign Retaliation

Many people argue that foreign governments will not retaliate with increased tariffs of their own and thus reduce U.S. exports and increase unemployment in U.S. exporting businesses, but it is a possibility. The winds of protectionism can be too powerful for government leaders to ignore if they want to stay in office. A growth in protectionism reduces the efficiency of world production, increases unemployment, also trade wars in the past have led to fighting wars.

So a world recession is not beyond the realm of the possibilities. In fact, it may get out of the hands of government leaders faced with increasing unemployment. Traditional monetary and fiscal tools may be longer be adequate (if they ever were) to achieve a fully employed-stable price economy. A number of structural changes in modern capitalist economies have made old remedies incapable of dealing with modern problems. But this is beyond the scope of this article.

Public Sector

Must we always have unemployment? Emphatically NO! But new jobs will have to be forthcoming in the public sector for such projects as hospitals, education, mass transit, conservation and public housing. This can easily be financed by reducing expenditures in wasteful production, especially military production and private goods with built in obsolescence. We need a basic reordering of priorities which extends beyond merely government priorities and which would result in more jobs with less hours worked, in a more humane setting.

Nixon's new economic program is based on three assumtions: First that an increase in profits will increase jobs; second, that foreign countries will accept a reduction in sales and an increase in purchases from the U.S., both of which increase their unemployment; and third, that guideposts can be worked out by his Pay Board. If these assumptions are incorrect the program is doomed to inevitable failure.

(Michael Best is an assistant professor of economics)

(From Hampshire Gazette, 11/12/71)

Register To Vote

November 18

Campus Center

THE FINEST THANKS-GIVING CARDS

American Greetings
The Fresh Idea Company . . .

UNIVERSITY STORE

"Miss Davis argues with passion and brilliance . . . Search-and-compulsory reading."
—Publishers' Weekly

IF THEY COME IN THE MORNING
by Angela Y. Davis and other political prisoners
Foreword by Julian Bond
$6.95

A Joseph Okpaku Book
THE THIRD PRESS
Joseph Okpaku Publishing Co., Inc.
444 Central Park West
New York, N.Y. 10025

Handicapped Vehicle Designed Here

Amherst, Mass.--A Honda front suspension, Volkswagen brakes and a great deal of time and effort by many people at the University of Massachusetts are some of the components of a new handicapped persons' cart designed and built at the Amherst campus.

The prime mover in the project is Marie Desmond, graduate student and English department librarian. A cerebral palsy victim whose mobility is severely handicapped. Miss Desmond collaborated on the cart project with Jay Stryker of the UMass public health department.

Robert Glorioso of the electrical engineering faculty and his technical assistant Dan Blanchard did the electrical components. A great many others--faculty, staff and students from a number of departments--had a hand in the project. Support came from a faculty research grant to Stryker from the Graduate School.

The cart is designed as a prototype. The UMass group hopes it will serve as a model for the manufacture of a safe, efficient vehicle for the handicapped. A prime feature is its power plant. The batteries for its electric engine can be recharged anytime and anywhere by a built-in gas-powered generator.

"It's also narrow enough to go through almost any door on campus, has ground clearance enough to get over low steps, has good visibility, handles well in snow and has improved signals, lights and other safety features," Marie said.

"It has standard and easily available parts so that repair or replacement is simple," Stryker said. These include the Honda front end and other parts, Volkswagen rear brakes, and batteries from a mail-order firm.

It also has a space back of the driver's seat where Marie's dog Lady rides. Lady does more than go along for the ride. When parked outside a building, Marie's cart has a fascination for the idly curious. She leaves Lady tied to the vehicle so that her barking will discourage meddlers.

At the present time the prototype cart is still in the testing stage but Marie is already looking ahead. "The main objective is to raise about $10,000 so we can build two more prototypes of slightly different design," she said. She is seeking funds from veterans organizations and other sources.

The cart project is part of a continuing drove by Marie to help those with mobility handicaps overcome physical barriers to education. Earlier this year her 30-page "Handicapped Person's Campus Accessibility" was published. It is a guide to ramps, elevators, entrances and other aids and barriers to the mobility handicapped on the UMass Amherst campus. She is now speaking on the same subject with a 45-minute slide show to groups in Western Massachusetts.

The people who directed the design and building of the new prototype electric cart for handicapped persons at the University of Massachusetts, from left: Dan Blanchard, technical assistant; Jay Stryker of the department of public health; and Marie Desmond, graduate student and part-time librarian in the English department.

Amherst Initiating Drug Program

Amherst college students are going to see if one way into the "underground" drug culture is to be trained to work with addicts and other drug abuse victims.

With a recent $10,000 Arthur Vining Davis Foundation grant, Amherst College students and professional educators will work together to develop a comprehensive program for medical and psychological assistance to drug users.

Amherst College's Field Study Program, under which students can take time off from academic work to engage in off-campus activity for a semester, will supervise the distribution of the Davis funds to the 10 students. Each student will receive $600 and will spend at least six weeks participating full-time in a drug-related projected.

Typical of a student's work might be residence in a Synanon or Daytop Village rehabilitation community, work with drug rehabilitation units in local hospitals, psychiatric wards, or high school drug education programs, or attendance at workshops oriented toward drug education.

The scholarships are primarily for work during an academic semester or summer. However, Amherst's new January Interterm - a period of five weeks in which students are free to pursue their academic interests on or off campus - will include a research and orientation seminar in drug culture, abuse, and alternatives to drug- induced states.

Students selected for the program will participate in an Interterm seminar which will make use of films, special lectures, and discussions with outside drug educators and representatives of rehabilitation and development centers. The seminar will also be open to other students interested in drug education.

The Davis grant specifies that students with a realistic and disciplined approach to drug use, based upon practical experience in related fields, should be selected for the project.

Professor of Psychology Haskell R. Coplin of Amherst College is heading the program. He hopes to develop within the Amherst student population "a cadre of informed students who have been involved for some time in a variety of community projects designed to rehabilitate drug addicts and provide ongoing drug education and alternatives to drug use."

Professor Coplin adds that the project aims at offering experience to students interested in the implications of drugs in the lives of individuals. He hopes it will encourage students to become key resource persons within their own peer culture. "An additional spin-off from the program," notes Professor Coplin, "will be the vocational enrichment of some students who might choose to enter the helping professions."

The program will neither attempt to enforce current narcotics laws through legalistic or repressive intervention not will it attempt to agitate to change existing laws.

CLIP & SAVE CLIP & SAVE

RESEARCH (TERM) PAPERS

We cover virtually every topic-All writers are college grads specializing in your topic. Original Papers: $3.50/page File Copies: $2.00/page Send topic description & Money Order TO:

PAPERS AND INC.

P.O. Box 337
Middletown, Conn. 06457 TEL: 203-346-2018

AUTO INSURANCE

ALL CARS — ALL DRIVERS
BUDGET PAYMENTS
CYCLES — SCOOTERS

Tekoa Insurance Agency

160 Pleasant St.
Northampton
586-2742

10 Broad St.
Westfield
562-3604

Fabricworld

pre-holiday Sale

FASHION FABRICS for Sew 'n Save LOUNGEWEAR

WASHABLE NYLON FLEECE
REG. 1.99 YARD 1.29
• POPULAR FASHION COLORS • PERFECTLY HAND WASHABLE • IDEAL FOR ROBES

AMERITEX DAILY PRINTED NYLON QUILTS
VAL. TO 2.99 1.99
• HOME FASHION COLOR • MACHINE WASHABLE • 36-INCH WIDE

"PENNY PER INCH" 100% COTTON FLANNELETTE
36c YARD
WHILE OUR STOCK LASTS!
PRINTS • SOLIDS
36-INCHES WIDE

CROMPTON 100% COTTON VELVETEEN
REG. 4.49 YARD 2.99
• FOR HOLIDAY DRESS UPS For Evening Wear
45-INCH WIDE

PRETTILY PRINTED BRUSHED BLEND NYLON FLEECE
REG. 1.79 YARD 1.29
• MACHINE WASHABLE • 80% ACETATE/20% NYLON • 54-INCHES WIDE

AMHERST 1 Pray St.
NORTHAMPTON 21 Pleasant St.

The Massachusetts
Daily Collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

BOARD OF EDITORS

EDITOR IN CHIEF — Richard C. Hanson
MANAGING EDITOR — Nathan Gorenstein
BUSINESS MANAGER — James Gold
EXECUTIVE EDITOR — Barry J. Rubenstein
NEWS EDITOR — Anne C. Stadnicki
SPORTS EDITOR — Earle T. Barroll

PHOTO EDITOR — Gib Fullerton
FINE ARTS EDITOR — Robert Nesti

TODAY'S STAFF

NEWS STAFF — Steve Fine
EDITORIAL — Barry Rubenstein
SPORTS — Dan Kamal, Earle Barroll, Bill Ballou, Bob Medeiros
DARK ROOM — Gary Alpaugh
AD LAYOUT — Bill Manburg

Undergraduate newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The Staff is responsible for its content and no faculty members or administration read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.
Unsigned editorials represent the views of this paper. They do not necessarily reflect the views of the faculty, administration, or student body as a whole. Signed editorials, columns, reviews, and letters represent the personal views of the writers.

"Maybe We Really Ought To Get A New Model"

Point Blank

Grand Jurors Do FBI's Work

By JIM REIF

You're at home with friends one night, and there is a knock at the door. It's two FBI agents. Would you mind, they say, if we asked you a few questions?

Do you know John Doe, they ask. Did you meet with him on the 19th of last month? Who else was there? What was discussed and who said what? The agents are only a few questions into their thing, but you've already gotten the scene.

You are sorry, you say, but you don't think you want to answer any questions. OK, they counter, but if you don't tell us what we want to know, you'll get a subpoena to appear before a grand jury. Good night, you reply.

About a week later, there is another knock at your door. It's the FBI again. This time they have a subpoena.

Under compulsion you appear before the grand jury. After swearing in the United States attorney begins the inquisition: do you know John Doe? did you meet with him on the 19th of last month? who else was there? what was discussed and who said what? After the first few questions, you anticipate the rest--you've heard them before.

With slight variations this scenario has been repeated over and over in the last year throughout the country, wherever political dissidents are thought to be: in Tuscon, Harrisburg, Seattle, Boston, Brooklyn, Detroit, and Washington--federal grand juries have been convened in order to interrogate dissenters.

In a number of cases, United States prosecutors have asked long series of questions without the faintest idea of what the answers may be. These "fishing expeditions" are an improper use of the grand jury. Rather than present the grand jury with evidence already collected, prosecutors seek to discover evidence for the first time. Discovery, however, is not the legitimate role of the grand jury; under our system that role belongs to the law enforcement agencies of the executive branch--in particular, the FBI.

But the FBI has been singularly unsuccessful in investigating alleged criminal activity. The "Ten Most Wanted" has grown to the "Sixteen Most Wanted," and the Capitol bombing as well as the Media, Pennsylvania ripoff remain unsolved.

Therefore, the executive branch--which has never been allowed subpoena power to fulfill its law enforcement responsibilities--seeks to circumvent Congressional denial of the subpoena power by adopting as its own the compulsory process of the grand jury: refuse to talk to an FBI man, and you are shortly subpoenaed before a grand jury and asked the same questions; it is apparent that the list of questions asked by the United States attorney has been written by the FBI.

It comes as a surprise, then, to recognize that under our legal system the grand jury is actually supposed to protect the citizen and to be skeptical, if not downright distrustful, of allegations by the government of criminal activity. Historically, the grand jury was intended to act as an independent buffer, standing between the citizen and the government. Instead of letting the executive branch commence a criminal prosecution on its own, it was the intention of the Founding Fathers to interpose a body of citizens to determine, in the words of the Supreme Court, "whether a charge is founded upon reason or was dictated by an intimidating power or by malice and personal ill will." If the executive has insufficient evidence, the grand jury is supposed to refuse the indictment sought.

Disregarding this protective role, the Justice Department is using the grand jury as a prosecutorial tool. The current rash of inquisitions is not unrelated. Almost with exception they are conducted by personnel from the Justice Department, rather than local United States attorneys. Uniformly the investigations bear directly upon the First Amendment freedoms of expression and association.

Sometimes the Justice Department uses the grand jury as a surveillance device. Instead of widescale physical surveillance or the use of informers to learn about lawful activity with which it disagrees, the Justice Department simply subpoenas political activists before the grand jury and "asks" them to divulge details under threat of contempt and possible imprisonment.

This technique often intimidates witnesses and their supporters from exercising their constitutional right to associate with each other and further political ideas.

The unnecessarily broad cloak of secrecy surrounding grand jury inquiries enables the Justice Department to abuse its power without accounting to an uninformed public. The case of Anthony Russo is instructive. Russo, a close friend of Daniel Ellsberg, refused to testify before a Los Angeles grand jury investigating the Pentagon Papers and was held in civil contempt. Later he told the court he would answer questions as long as the government made available to him a transcript of his testimony.

The judge agreed, but the Justice Department has refused to let Russo testify on that condition. The simple explanation for the government's position is that it does not want its shennanigans exposed. It seeks to hide its misuse of the grand jury as an intimidating tool, which now performs the investigative function that the FBI is unable to fulfill.

Jim Reif, author of the contempt brief in the "Chicago 7" conspiracy trial, is an attorney with the Center for Constitutional Rights.

China: The American Problem Of Image And Policy

By FRED W. DRAKE

It is very likely that a word association test given to Comrade Chang Tou (John Doe), man on the street in Peking, with "America" as the impulse word, would produce either "imperialist" or "aggressor". Americans tend to be baffled by this, but at the same time most Americans carry in their own minds equally simple, less accurate, and often unpleasant stereotypes of China and the Chinese.

The attitudes of many Americans toward Chinese are characterized by a strange ambivalence. They recall "old China:" an idealized land inhabited by hard-working peasants--honest, submissive, happy simply to be alive; a land of scholars, men who governed and at the same time were caretakers of an admired culture--with paintings of subtle beauty, a cuisine better than that of the French, fine teas, silks, and tinkling bells. They secretly yearn to find in modern Chinese the charming virtues of a Confucian gentleman. But at the same time when some Americans think of Chinese they see little else but masses of black-haired, mindless people trailing behind a dough-faced Mao. Lurid versions of "Oriental cruelty" still lurk in the minds of Americans, even after Mylai. Television late shows have recently catered to such contradictory images. Out of mothballs have come both the honorable Confucian detective, Charlie Chan, as well as that most insidious and subversive of Oriental villains, Dr. Fu Manchu. As suggested by Harold Isaacs' Scratches on Our Minds, the American public has been programmed to accept whatever China policy the United States government chooses to adopt.

Such simple if convenient images, which can be found even in the minds of some of the men responsible for America's China policy, can no longer be tolerated in an era when mutual understanding and respect between Americans and Chinese is fundamental to international order and peace. Indeed, the Chou-Kissinger-Nixon diplomacy and more recently the admission of Peking to the United Nations, with the concomitant expulsion of Taiwan, have caused Americans to begin to look anew at China. China once again has awakened public interest. We are fascinated to learn that the advance party sent by Peking to New York eats omelettes for breakfast, pays with $100 bills, and leaves generous tips. But even as Ch'iao Kuan-hua, Huang Hua, and other members of the new Chinese delegation to the United Nations settle themselves in New York's Roosevelt Hotel, Americans appear bewildered by the events which suddenly made this possible.

Just a century ago it was an American, Anson Burlingame, who served as China's first diplomat to Western nations with the mission to bring China from her "isolation" into the "family of nations." It is ironic that for more than two decades it has been an American goal to keep China out of the main body of the international community. This policy ultimately failed in 1971. The People's Republic of China has not been admitted to the United Nations because of Peking's realistic diplomacy.

The roots of this failure of United States policy were clearly visible when the Peking government consolidated its rule over China's mainland. Nevertheless the United States government until recently consistently avoided taking the obvious steps toward normalization of diplomatic relations. Refusal to recognize a nation of nearly 800 million people, roughly one-fourth of the earth's population, can hardly be based on a realistic appraisal of China's position in the world. Clearly, ideological concerns have outweighed practical considerations in the formation of United States policy toward China. It is tragic that a general lack of knowledge of China and the history of the Chinese people among the American public, along with the retention of absurd myths and stereotypes, has given the utmost license to shortsighted makers of policy. For the United States to attempt to keep the People's Republic of China out of the United Nations (until it became clear it was no longer possible) was as futile a program in foreign relations in its own way as that of China's nineteenth-century Manchu rulers, who attempted to isolate China and its tributary states from Western contacts.

Such apparent failure in foreign policy must ultimately cause Americans to ask basic questions about themselves and their system. It is necessary to explain to ourselves why America has sought to encircle and "contain" China; why America along China's borders has supported corrupt regimes which lacked indigenous support, even if this required American soldiers to fight wars which could not be won. Have we not needlessly tread on the tiger's tail?

The historic occasion of the People's Republic of China's entrance into the United Nations has ended China's "isolation." It now remains to be seen to what extent the major review of our foreign policy currently underway will end America's unfortunate and unwise isolation from the realities of the modern world of East Asia.

Professor Drake is a member of the UMass history department.

The Owl

A blinking. An evening shadow
A feigning of night's wisdom.
But not at all among the wise.
A slanting of allegorical truth.
Veritable yellow eyes.

A Cheshire without stripes.
With wings, and not a smile.
A sharpened beak bespeaking empty guile.
Addicted to the moon, and
To its enlightenment.
Most wise at nether noon.

In swiftness, swooping.
In deadly silence groping.
A futile grasping of life. A gasping of death.
A moment of frantic struggle, and a shattering scream.
A one, and at peace at the end of a dream.
Away, and up, and gone. And a whoosh! And eyes' gleam.

Veritable yellow eyes.
An evening shadow.
A blinking.
The wisdom of the living.

T. David Barrett

Letters To The Editor

Institutional Racism

To the Editor:

As it stands now, there has not been adequate coverage on the issue of Black representation on the Orchard Hill Area Government and as a result of this I feel that the entire University should be informed.

Some weeks ago I presented an amendment to the Orchard Hill Area Government stating that there should be eight Black representatives selected to the Area Government. Before this amendment, there had been another amendment calling for one Black representative to be elected from all of the Blacks on the Hill. It was later to learn that there are 96 Black students on the Hill). Black students thought this was very unfair and brought this to the attention of the Area Government. As a group, Black students formulated their own amendment to the effect that they wanted eight Black representatives, two to be selected from each dorm, by the Black dorm counselors and by some of the Black upperclassmen. Of course it was understood that these eight Black representatives would have voting privileges and would be interested in serving the best interest of all the students on the Hill. Because of the time element, it was thought that this would be the fastest procedure for election. The number eight was used not for permanency, but for the present wherein two Blacks would be represented from each dorm as opposed to each floor as the Area Government selects its members. Of course, Area Government can select its members thusly but one must realize that there is not a Black person on every floor of the dorms.

These eight representatives would serve not only to make the Hill more responsive to minorities but also to bring some understanding between the white and Black community.

In order to get the amendment passed, it was brought up on the floor during an Area Government meeting wherein the amendment was approved by a majority vote that in spite of its passing the amendment would have to go up before the entire Hill community in the form of a referendum. It was noted in the constitution that 2/3 of 40% of the enrollment of the Hill is required to pass the amendment. The referendum was held and the needed number of votes were gotten. This was the beginning of a number of hassles. Although a number of the residents on the Hill thought that the amendment should be passed, there were some reactionary students who felt that the Hill should not act independently of the Student Senate. As a result of this, the Student Senate was brought into the picture. During one of our Area Government meetings the Black students stated that they were under the impression that the Student Senate wanted Area Governments to become more autonomous so why would the issue have to be brought up before the Student Senate. We (the Black students and most of the white students) agreed that if indeed we need to be sanctioned by the Student Senate that we would allow the issue to go before the Senate. Of course we discussed what if the Student Senate defeated the amendment and decided to just wait and see. What was being attacked is not so much the amendment but the fact that should the Blacks have voting powers.

On Sunday, November 14, 1971, the amendment went up before the "Student Governance Committee". According to those present at that meeting the impression was that there was a "Go Ahead" but what these people later realized was that Henry Bouffard, the Attorney General of the Student Senate came to anther one of our Area Hill meetings and stated quite stoically that the amendment was unconstitutional and even went so far as to violate the 14th amendment to the United States Constitution. Some discussion ensued after his statements and one student brought to his attention that Black people could use the constitution as far as the unfair housing laws, as well as some other unfair practices affecting Black people. The attorney seemed to be quite pompous and as a result of this one of our faculty advisors rebutted him. It is amazing what happens to some people when power is placed in their hands.

As a result of this whole affair, it was decided in Monday night's meeting that the issue would be taken to the entire Student Senate on Wednesday, November 17, 1971.

What we thought was an innocuous amendment has become a political trip for some people. We stated that by having eight Black representatives we would not polarize or sectionalize the Hill but have a more representative form of government. A number of both Black and white students are becoming distraught over this whole affair.

If indeed this is another example of "INSTITUTIONAL RACISM," it will be very interesting to see what the Student Senate will do.

It must be reiterated that the majority of the students on the Hill approved the amendment as written.

Robert J. Padgett

Another Demension

To the Editor:

I cannot let the editorial by Charlotte Lettis in Friday's Collegian (Nov. 12) go unchallenged. It is NOT hell to be female. I for one have never felt imprisoned "politically, economically, creatively...on and on" by being female. On the contrary, I am free to choose whatever role I prefer. Freedom of choice is probably the greatest benefit there is to being female.

A woman does not have to worry about being drafted, but if she so chooses she can enlist. A woman is free to pursue a career or to marry and become a homemaker, or she can do BOTH. Consider how many men have the freedom to make that choice. Then there is something no man can do...a woman can choose to be a mother. She can produce from her own body another human life. She can nurture that being from her own body. She can mold that being into the kind of person she wants in society. And in return she receives the greatest gift of all-the uncritical love of a child for its mother.

Rather than look at pregnancy as a "burden, another imprisonment that keeps women from becoming potentially what they could be," a real woman views it as the true fulfillment of her sexuality. Being a mother does not have to preclude being a successful person, rather it adds another dimension to those willing to meet the challenge.

Carole A. Law

No Connection

To the Editor:

Re: The Moore House Incident Revisited, MDC, November 11, 1971.

Mssrs Wentworth, Boudreau, and Heller are no longer a part of the Moore House Tenants Association. We hope that no connection will be made with their actions and the sentiments of our group as a whole.

Moore House Tenants Association

To The President

Dear President Sandwen,

The issue of student participation in any and all matters that affect their lives is one close to the heart and spirit of the Northern Educational Service, University of Massachusetts. It is a fact that N.E.S. is student participation at its highest level. Over three hundred students are working for N.E.S. in Springfield as tutors and coordinators of a variety of activities. The N.E.S. Coordinating Committee considers this our most active year in both the quantity and quality of student involvement. Since N.E.S. in Springfield at this point in time is volunteer tutoring done mostly by college students and receives federal tax dollars for this volunteer type of program students therefore can not be considered anything but responsible for their actions and productive members of society.

There will of course be a counter argument from those individuals in power saying--"but that is only 300 students from UMass., what about the rest? The curious point here is that those considered now irresponsible (by default) are those who do not participate now as students and will not participate as adults. This allows for the different types of minority governments or control groups that exist now and which the Faculty Senate Athletic Council may be considered a member.

Therefore the N.E.S. Coordinating Committee whole heartedly endorses not a substantial but a majority controlling vote on a newly created Student and Faculty Senate Athletic Council which would control the funds collected by the present Faculty Senate Athletic Council. The reasons are the following:

1. Students are qualified to make judgements concerning their own affairs including taxing themselves and reallocating this money.
2. With the above in mind anything else is "taxation without representation."
3. This would allow for the setting of priorities according to the desires and needs of students and changing programs to match these priorities.

On this last point we of N.E.S.-as probably other community service groups will testify-will take our chances in getting sorely needed funds to keep our organization functioning and growing. This matches our philosophy, that students who tutor for N.E.S. get support for their activity only when they participate-when they do things. They are never denied any form of participation in the program and program decision making.

We feel the N.E.S. door is always open. Therefore, it is our militant position (as it will be considered by some) that if the Faculty Senate Athletic Council does not open the door for the students who pay the athletic fee that door should be broken down or attacked in some legitimate fashion to either get control of the funds or to prove the university administration for what it is-control oriented when and where it matters to preserve the institution and not to enrich the lives of students.

Ernie Reis (for the) N.E.S. Coordinating Committee

"F" For Effort

To the Editor:

In the article in yesterday's Collegian titled "New Grading Policy Goes into Effect", it was stated that the Academic Affairs Committee went on record as favoring the new eight point grading system. In a report from the Academic Affairs Committee in 1969, the Committee recommended a two track grading system be adopted. One track would be the present eight point grading system without the "F" and the other would be an unlimited Pass/no record system. The Academic Matters Committee of the Faculty Senate and the Faculty Senate itself chose to ignore that proposal and instituted only one half of the proposed system, the one we have now, except the "F", although not counted in the cume, still appears on the transcript, it would not have under the Student Senate proposal. Therefore, I would suggest that you research more carefully before writing such articles; because we participated in the discussion does not mean that we support what came out of them.

Nick Apostola
Chairman,
Academic Affairs Committee

Correction

In yesterday's Letter to the Editor from Lucien Miller about Wednesday's People, the number should have been 5-0929.

"All Clear — You Can Come Out Now — I Said, All Clear — Say, Can You Fellows Hear Me?"

The Sylvan Life Style

By NANCY J. CLINE

An Alternate Life Style - Part II

The newest and most innovative residential area at UMass is now operating at full swing. It is the Sylvan Area, consisting of three coed dorms, capable of housing 1508 UMies at capacity, 470 per dorm.

Unlike the other residential areas on campus, the Sylvan Area dorms consist of suites of six, seven or eight occupants, with two singles in each suite.

The suites themselves are U-shaped, with two recessed corridor entrances. They have self-contained lavatories with two toilets, two sinks, and a shower. There is also a carpeted lounge within each suite, furnished in either traditional or modern style.

An area government has been developed by the students themselves with the aid of Tom Trotman, Area Director, Dick Polumba, the area's Graduate Assistant, and Phil Lacombe, the undergraduate Administrative Assistant.

"We want programs and major ideas to come from the students themselves. We will support and guide them, but they must do the actual work themselves," said Dick Polumba.

The possibility of paying student representatives is also under investigation.

"The idea here is to foster a sense of responsibility on the part of the representatives and to promote more careful selection of officers," said Polumba.

The government developed out of informal student-staff raps, with any interested residents participating, and branched out into various area committees such as Constitutional, Social, Cultural, and Area Improvement Committees.

The suites were theoretically to be coed room by room. However occupancy during the area's first semester is low--none of the three dorms is carrying a full house.

Consequently, one of the most important committees to be organized was the Coed Committee. Although Sylvan is designated as a coed area, only 19.8% of its 1120 residents are female.

Some floors have no females at all. So an all-out campus campaign is underway to attract girls to the area.

Skip Casper, freshman senator from Brown House, has introduced a bill to the Student Senate requesting the prohibition on any males entering the area, effective immediately.

"Instead of the imbalance we have now, we want to create a natural living situation in the area," he said.

The Area Improvement Committee is looking into the possibility of construction of an area mini-gym or perhaps area use of WoPE during the evening.

Sylvan Area courses in such subjects as watch-repair and auto mechanics for girls are also in the planning stage.

The area's Human Relations Center, headed by graduate student counselors, has been highly successful.

Plans are now underway for a Women's Center, an area newspaper with paid editors, and possibly a computer terminal, and a low-wattage radio station.

Mark Hallenback, graduate student and Dorm Council Moderator, is trying to organize a coordinating tutorial program between the many grad students and freshmen in the area. He is also concerned over the lack of basic services readily available to residents on weekends.

However, a group of enterpreneurs from Brown House have already set up a concession in their dorm's basement selling subs "made the way you like them."

"When the Area Constitution is passed, the area will begin dispensing funds directly to house governments for these and other projects as the individual houses see fit. We are eager to start spending on area improvements," said Phil Lacombe.

"I am very pleased with what has been accomplished in the area so far, and if the work continues, Sylvan could conceivably become one of the most desirable residential areas on campus," Dick Polumba added.

Sylvan life is improving all the time. Sylvan Area courses in such subjects as watch-repair and auto mechanics for girls are in the planning stages. The area's Human Relations Center has been highly successful. Some people think it's the most innovative residential area at UMass.

Dames Club Auction

The UMass Dames Club will hold its annual auction tonight at 8 p.m. at Farley 4-H House, behind the Southwest complex. Although the auction will be sponsored by the Dames, the merchandise to be auctioned will be articles from the local shops, dinner reservations from the restaurants, tickets from the local movie theaters, a wig, haircuts, and lots more.

Before the auction begins, there will be a short meeting to discuss the upcoming Christmas sleighride or hayride, depending on the weather, and the events for the following months.

Dames is an organization open to all wives of students, both graduate and undergraduate and to students themselves who are married. It is a great meeting place for girls with similar interests and situations to meet, relax and enjoy some new friends. Any student wife in town who is feeling a bit lonely should treat herself to a fun night out, enjoy some bidding on some fantastic merchandise, and make a new friend. Remember, Wednesday evening, November 17th, at 8 p.m. For further information call Joan Armstrong at 549-1145.

Back by Popular Demand

The Fabulous Brady's Bunch

Famous Irish Folk Singing Trio at The CHEQUERS

TONITE 9:30 til close

Used Refrigerators

Due to increased demand we have purchased 50 more used refrigerators. They are clean, working and delivered for $35.00

10 Cubic Feet Apartment Size.

This is our last shipment.

Discount Sales

549-3930

6:30 to Midnight.

Did You Say Boots?

Short Boots, Tall Boots, Warm Boots, and Cool Boots

The Sight & Scene for Boots

the "Boot Cellar"

BOLLES

Fri. til 9

The Brotherhood of Pi Lambda Phi extends

AN INVITATION TO ALL UNIVERSITY MEN

Like most present institutions, the Greek system at this campus is undergoing a drastic, yet called-for change. Do you care enough about your remaining years at UMass to come meet with Greek-area coordinator, Paul Stevens, and see just how little you know about fraternities? Especially the good ones? Come tonight.

Wednesday, Nov. 17 8:00 p.m.

14 Elm St.

Call for Rides 253-7625

Culturnatives

Some Thoughts About Life In The U.S.A.

By GILBERT J. SALK

I don't have a long rap for today, so I thought I'd just share some random thoughts. Do with them what you will, but if you think about them, they might open some new doors of perception. On the other hand, they might not go anywhere.

How many people would be in school if colleges stopped giving degrees? What would be different about the kind and direction of the education offered? What if the seating arrangements in all classes was circular, and the "professor" occupied one of the seats instead of standing in front of the class? What would that do to your perception of your role in the classroom? What would happen if there were no exams and no grades?

Why do we continue to allow cars and trucks in our cities, where they contribute a dangerous level of pollution? What would happen if we banned them from city limits, set up huge storage garages outside the cities, and used conveyor belts for in-city travel? Who would continue to own a car? What resources--gasoline, oil, metals, rubber, etc.--would be saved? What would the replacing of streets with grass and trees do to the psychological stresses of the inhabitants?

What if Uncle Sam stopped paying farmers to not grow food, instead bought up the surplus and distributed it free to the starving people in Appalachia, on Indian reservations, in the deep South, in the core city, and, if there's any left over, to the Pakistan, Vietnam, Cambodia, Biafra refugees and other hungry brothers throughout the world? What if we refused to pay taxes until our money was no longer being spent on death? What if we demanded that the Defense Dept. be replaced by a Peace Dept. which had a multibillion-dollar-per-year budget to find and implement alternatives to wars and armies and bombs and guns? What if the Peace Corps stopped doing our thing and started doing what the people of the host countries asked them to do?

What would happen if everyone refused to give up any power over their own lives? What if we refused to go to war unless we individually chose to do so? Or if we refused to accept that policemen have the right to kill our brothers? (by carrying guns, they are proclaiming that they have that right.) What if we individually and, later, collectively, simply refused to acknowledge or obey illegitimate authority? What if we told today's "revolutionaries" that our revolution involves a destruction of power, not a change of those sitting in the throne of power?

Why not declare that our lives are our own to use as we wish? That we have the right to grow as we wish, to die as we wish, and to live as we wish; that our only restraint would be our love for our brothers, and that we respect that mutual love enough to trust them to respect us? That if we want to smoke dope, it's our lives? That if we want to hall before we get married, or with someone of the same sex, it's our lives?

Why can't we vote NO in elections, if we have no other alternative than to choose the lesser of two evils? (remember nixon-humphrey?) Why can't we force the bosses to let us pick some real candidates who will confront us with real choices and make us think about real issues? Who says we have free elections when it takes millions of dollars to win the nomination of one of the major parties?

That should do it for the time being. Let me make one more point, though. I don't have any answers to any of the above questions. But I do think that there are possible answers which could be discussed and tried out. More important, the questioning itself can be a growth, as we try to break out of the comfortable box called the status quo.

A thought: there's a cartoon of a chicken breaking out of an egg, looking around, and retreating back into the egg.

NOTES:

We're going to try something new in the CULTURNATIVES Rap Session tomorrow. Each person is being asked to think about something about him- or herself that might need changing, and the group will try to devise some ways in which to create an environment which will be supportive of the change. This will not be a t-group, but a t-group type thing might come out of it. As usual, the time will be open to discuss today's column or other things of interest. Come and join us. It will be held in a new place, 909 Campus Center, on Thursday afternoon from 2:30 to about 4:30.

What are you going to read over Thanksgiving vacation? Don't say textbooks-we both know better: If you haven't discovered Mother Earth News Yet, check it out. I have new and back copies in the Draft Counseling office in 923 CC, or you can browse at the table in front of the bookstore on Friday morning.

PEACE.

Ex-Soviet Spy Dies In Brooklyn

MOSCOW (AP)-Col. Rudolf Abel, once the Kremlin's top U.S. spy who for nine years directed a network of Soviet agents from his artist's studio in Brooklyn, has died of lung cancer here, reliable sources reported Tuesday.

They said Abel died Monday after a six-month bout with the disease. He was 68.

Abel, probably the most important spy ever caught in the United States, operated from 1948 until 1957, when he was betrayed by an assistant, arrested and sentenced to 30 years in prison.

He had a mild manner, sharp nose and penetrating eyes. He arrived in the United States from Canada with false identity papers and quietly went about setting himself up as a photographer and artist in Brooklyn.

At the same time he was assembling a network of reliable agents to supply him with U.S. military secrets.

His studio was a cluttered $35-a-month room where neighbors knew him as an aspiring artist who earned his living taking pictures and dabbling in radio repair. Abel went by the name of Emil R. Goldfus.

Although he did turn out some oil paintings, his photographic equipment was used mainly to microfilm defense data. He used such objects as hollowed-out coins, pencils, nails and cufflinks in which to hide the film.

Located just across the street from the federal courthouse where he was tried in 1957, Abel received radioed messages from Moscow on his shortwave equipment and communicated with his subordinate agents through a complex system of codes, couriers and secret drops.

In 1962, when his 30-year prison term was still young, Abel was exchanged for Francis Gary Powers, the American pilot whose U2 spy plane was shot down by the Russians May 1, 1960 over Sverdlovsk in western Siberia.

The incident wrecked a 1960 Paris summit conference involving President Dwight D. Eisenhower, Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev of the Soviet Union, Prime Minister Harold Macmillan of Britain and President Charles de Gaulle of France.

Powers was convicted of espionage in Moscow and sentenced to 10 years in prison. The swap was negotiated and the men were exchanged Feb. 10, 1962 on a bridge between East and West Berlin.

Abel lived in obscurity after his return to Moscow and reportedly worked as a propagandist and recruiter for the Soviet secret police, with spare time for playing Bach on the lute and classical guitar.

In 1966, the retired master spy told his story to a Soviet magazine.

"Intelligence work is not a series of rip-roaring adventures, a string of tricks or an entertaining trip abroad," Abel wrote. "It is, above all, arduous, painstaking work which calls for an intense effort, perseverance, stamina, fortitude, will power, serious knowledge and great mastery."

New Penguins at your campus bookstore

ALCHEMY: Science of the Cosmos, Science of the Soul. Titus Burckhardt. A revealing book that aims to destroy modern misconceptions about alchemy, and to open vast and unexpected spiritual horizons. $1.45

ECOLOGY OF DEVASTATION: INDOCHINA. John Lewallen. A detailed account of how the war has affected the ecology of Indochina, particularly Vietnam. Plus a startling forecast of what will happen to the area's ecology if the war continues. $1.95

FOR THE LIBERATION OF BRAZIL. Carlos Marighela. Translated by John Butt and Rosemary Sheen. With an introduction by Richard Gott. A collection of writings — by a leading opponent of the repressive Brazilian regime — showing how the guerilla struggle has developed since the death of Che Guevara. $1.45

THE PENGUIN BOOK OF LATIN AMERICAN VERSE. Edited by Enrique Caraccioli-Trejo. With an introduction by Henry Gifford. A bilingual anthology of the best poetry from fourteen Central and South American nations. $2.95

MAGIC AND MYSTERY IN TIBET. Alexandra David-Neel. An objective account of supernatural experiences in a remote and mysterious land. $1.45

DICKENS: THE CHRISTMAS BOOKS. Edited by Michael Slater. All of Dickens' Christmas stories in two volumes, with the original illustrations. Volume 1: A Christmas Carol and The Chimes. Volume 2: The Cricket on the Hearth, The Battle of Life, and The Haunted Man. $2.95 each

THE PENGUIN BOOK OF COMICS (Revised Edition). George Perry and Alan Aldridge. Published in a big, 8½" x 11" format, with a colorful vinyl-coated cover, this richly illustrated book provides a delightful history of the comics since comics began . . . the artists who created the characters . . . and the characters who took charge of their creators. $4.95

PENGUIN BOOKS INC

7110 Ambassador Rd. Baltimore, Md 21207

Every Wednesday is STAMPEDE NIGHT

A little bit of the Far West in New England.

Our cowgirls, in Western garb will serve you Western Steer Beef by the ounce — 45c per ounce for Prime Sirloin, 70c per ounce for Filet Mignon, and 35c per ounce for a Rib of Broiled Beef. Just tell the chef how thick of a slice you want, and how you like it done.

Keep our Friday Night Buffet in mind 6:30 to 9:00 p.m. $5.50 per person.

The Lord Jeffery

30 Boltwood Ave. AMHERST, MASS. 253-2576

RAOUL DIETRICH, INNKEEPER

WIN A BUDDY!!

ARE YOU A TURKEY?

If so you probably need a friend. Here's your chance to win one. Register all this week at either store. The drawing will be held Saturday, November, 20th.

WEAR-HOUSE Friday's Fling

201 N. Pleasant St., Amh.

NAME

ADDRESS

This Coupon Good thru Sat., Nov. 20

Amherst Audio Friday's Fling

197 N. Pleasant St., Amh.

NAME

ADDRESS

This Coupon Good thru Sat., Nov. 20

Room To Move Drop-In Center 5-0400, 5-0401

Campus Cinemas

Information 256-6411

Route 9, Amherst, Hadley Line In Zayre's Shopping Center

Bonus Nights! Mon. & Tues. Everyone $1.00

Campus II Daily - 7:15 & 9:15

THAT "ODD COUPLE" IS AT IT AGAIN...

WALTER MATTHAU as "KOTCH"

HELD OVER!

MASH AND

PAUL NEWMAN IS BUTCH CASSIDY AND THE SUNDANCE KID IS ROBERT REDFORD

Shown at - 9:00

At - 7:00

Campus III

Campus I Daily - 7:15 & 9 Fri. & Sat. 7, 8:30, 10

TERRIFIC — THE IMPORTANCE OF FEELING! — TASTEFUL

SEE Together

It All Comes Back Home

Remember Spring of '70? Remember the Strike? Remember the Festival of Life by the pond with the boggie, the cheap wine and the dope? And most of all do you remember the "boat" races across the pond with Eric and the Flag of The Universal Life Church? If you remember all of this, do you know just what those little square boats were actually used for? Well, a year and a half later two of D. O'Connell's Sons finest working on the underside of the suspended 25th floor of the Library tower provide the answer (photo lower left). It seems that those "boats" are in reality, fiberglass forms used in making the waffle shaped concrete ceilings used in so much construction today. (MDC photos past and present by Steve Schmidt).

Register
To Vote
Thursday
November 18
Campus Center
Concourse
Level

GIVE THE NATION BACK TO ITS PEOPLE

John W. Gardner, Chairman
Common Cause
Former Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare

Who said citizen action is futile? Populism in the nineteenth century left an indelible mark on the nation. Citizen action won the vote for women in 1920 and brought the abolition of child labor. The labor movement, the civil rights movement, the peace movement, the conservation movement — all began with concerned citizens. If we had waited for the government or Congress or the parties to initiate any of them, we'd still be waiting. Try to think of a significant movement in our national life that was initiated by the bureaucracy. Or by Congress. Or by the parties.

For a while, we lost confidence in our capacity to act as citizens, but the citizen is getting back to his feet. And citizen action is taking on a tough minded professional edge it never had before. Never has our society needed more desperately the life-giving spark of citizen action. We must make our instruments of self-government work. We must halt the abuse of the public interest by self-seeking special interests.

The special interests buy favor through campaign gifts. What flows back is literally scores of billions of dollars in tax breaks, in lucrative defense contracts, in favored treatment of certain regulated industries, in tolerance of monopolistic practices. And the taxpayer foots the bill.

To combat such pervasive corruption, we must strike at the two instruments of corruption in public life — money and secrecy.

To combat the corrupting power of money, we must control campaign spending and lobbying, and require full disclosure of conflict of interest on the part of public officials.

To tear away the veil of secrecy, we must enact "freedom of information" or "right to know" statutes which require that the public business be done publicly. And that's only a beginning. We can regain command of our instruments of self-government.

To accomplish this, each citizen must become an activist, especially the college student with his newly acquired right to vote. He must make his voice heard. Common Cause, a national citizens' lobby, was created to accomplish just that. It hoped to enroll 100,000 members in its first year, and got that number in 23 weeks! On its first anniversary, it had 200,000 members.

- It was the chief citizens' group lobbying for the Constitutional Amendment on the 18-year old vote.
- It joined with environmental groups to defeat the SST.
- It brought the first real challenge in a generation to the tyrannical seniority system in Congress.
- It helped bring the House of Representatives to its first recorded vote on the Vietnam War.
- It has sued the major parties to enjoin them from violating the campaign spending laws.

There is much more to do. And the time to do it is now. The American people are tired of being bilked and manipulated. It's time to give this country back to its people. For additional information, write Common Cause, Box 220, Washington, D.C. 20044.

This space is contributed as a People Service by The Van Heusen Company

YOU HAVE YOUR CHOICE OF FIVE LOVELY THEATRES!

MATS. 2 P.M. DAILY
POPULAR PRICES
GROUP RATES 733-5121

"GONE WITH THE WIND" G
Daily 2 and 8
CHILD $1.00

SEE FOR YOURSELF...
MON FRI: 2 - 7:30, 9:35
SAT. SUN 5:30 7:40 9:50
"Together"
X No one under 18

Showcase Cinema 1-2-3-4-5
CHARGE TICKETS
RT. 5 RIVERDALE RD. WEST SPFLD

Joe Hill
Mon.-Fri. 2-7:30
Sat.-Sun. 5:30-10
GP

CO FEATURE
Friends
Mon.-Fri. 1-9:45
Sat.-Sun. 1-8:10

The French Connection
Mon.-Fri. 2-7:30 & 9:45
Sat.-Sun. 1:30-3:30 5:30-7:30, 9:45
R

"Sunday Bloody Sunday"
MON FRI 2:00 7:30 9:40
SAT. SUN 1:30 3:30 5:30 7:40 9:55
R 25- United Artists
Glenda Jackson
Peter Finch

ROCKER LOUNGER COMFORT-ACRES FREE PARKING

P.I.R.G.

Student Public Interest Encouraged

There are eight million students in over 2,000 colleges and universities in the United States. However, the extreme mobility of the campus population prevents the growth of lasting, potent student organizations. Too often vacations, exams, and the sheer burden of course work frustrate student campaigns. In an effort to surmount their difficulties and build bases of real student power, Ralph Nader's Public Interest Research Group (PIRG) has embarked on what may be the most ambitious project of student organization ever attempted in the United States. Its aim is to encourage students to form, finance, work with, and direct groups of full-time professionals to engage in research, citizen action and litigation on behalf of the public interest. Students, with the help of these student-funded professionals, would work on issues involving environmental preservation and consumer protection, racial and sexual discrimination, product safety and corporate responsibility. Neither Mr. Nader nor the Public Interest Research Group of Washington D.C. will have any control over a local group.

The students in two states, Oregon and Minnesota, have already mobilized the effort. In each state over 50% of the students signed a petition asking for a special, refundable tax of four dollars a year which would go towards the funding of the state PIRG.

Oregon has already completed its first major project. They received a report on a local complaint "hotline" of a terrific smell eminating from a river between the hours of two and five AM. The PIRG students discovered that a pulp mill just upstream was dumping the waste it collected during the day in the early morning hours. After 100 days of carefull documentation, Oregon PIRG sued the company under the 1899 Refuse Act. The fine was $50,000, half of which was given to PIRG by the court. Those funds are now being used to sue the governmental agency responsible for checking this company's polluting.

Minnesota has already won an important sexual discrimination case and set up bicycle paths on the U. of Minn. campus and surrounding area for its up to 40% commuter population.

Students interested in finding out more about PIRG's and the possible creation of one at UMass should come to one of the organizational meetings Wednesday nights, Room 811-815 Campus Center at 7 p.m.

MDC NEWS HOTLINE 5-2550

Al Minsk To Speak On College Life

Alan Minsk will be speaking at College Life tonight at 8:00 in the Colonial Lounge of the Student Union. As the director of Israel's Remnant in Boston, he will be speaking on the relationship between today's Jew and Jesus Christ. Also, he will relate his search for meaning in life.

Being Jewish, Alan Minsk wishes to speak to the Jewish community here at UMass. He invites all to come and listen, and to talk personally with him afterwards.

College Life is an informal meeting held every two weeks in the Colonial Lounge for the curious student interested in life.

From The People Who Bring You The Most Expensive Stereo Systems in New England.

$50.00 including speakers

For The Lowest Priced 4 Channel Adapter in Town.

Amherst Audio

197 No. Pleasant St.

MDC CLASSIFIED

AUTOS FOR SALE

Cheapest Mercedes, 1962, 220sb, runs ok but needs work. With book, spares. After 5 p.m. 863-1124. tf11-23

1966 Opel, good condition, ask $650. Call anytime. 253-9512. tf11-19

1960 Chevrolet Biscayne, running condition, fair sticker, 82000 miles. $45. Call Sumesh after 5 p.m. 549-1611. tf11-18

67 Corvair, excellent condit., automatic, air cond., snow tires, radio, 30,000 miles. $615, phone 253-9825. tf11-19

1967 GTX Plymouth conv., 4 speed, 140 cu. inch, rebuilt trans., and carb., new battery and radiator, excel., shape $400, or B.O., Call 584-8068. tf11-18

1968 VW conv., high mileage but many parts replaced, slight body damage primed $400.00. No bartering. Call Joseph 253-5190. 11-17

63 Ply. Fury, gd. eng. & trs., needs new minor reps. Only 58000 mi. Call Stan 549-6344, cheap. tf11-17

1966 Red Porsche 912 new tires, battery Good mechanical condition. Best offer. 253-9689, or 545-2330. tf11-17

'67 Chevelle Malibu, 2-door hardtop, vinyl roof, radio, V-8, A.T., P.S., excellent condition, $995. Call 253-3067. tf11-19

'60 Rambler, good engine, no trans., extra wheels and tires. Will sell in part or whole. Best offer. Call Zig at 256-6450. After 6. tf11-17

1966 red Porsche 912, new tires, new battery, good mechanical condition. Best offer. tf11-17

Honda 350 cl, 1970, ex. cond. Call 253-5098 after 5 p.m. tf11-17

Like new, $150 Columbia 10-speed bike $70. Also $150 Mono Elec tuner, very good cond., $15. Call Dave 527-6367. tf11-18

8-track tapes all on original label. Wide selection, only 2.50 each. Call 6-5638 on Campus or see Bruce in 706D Brown. tf11-18

Custom hard top for TR6 i.e. 4 bolts, best offer, over $35. Also 1 set of speakers for home use, must hear, 665-4781. tf11-18

61 Bonneville, rebuilt engine, rebuilt transmission, automatic, all power, $500. Must sell, Call 867-5163 after 6 leave phone & address. tf11-19

Benjamin compacts, EMI speakers, Lenco and Miracord turntables at low prices. Concord Equipment at Discount Prices. Call 546-6617. tf11-23

Two Mohawk 770 magnum tires, mounted on 11" mags. Will fit any GM car. Pretty new. I need $. Dave 546-8084. tf11-19

Natural hide bags, pillows, purses, steer, sheep, goat. Great Xmas gifts. Indian kid skin to 8 ft. Camp Center, Thur. 6-7338 225 James. tf11-18

Hickenbacker 12-string semi-accoustical electric guitar with case, excellent condition, best offer. Call Ed 253-9957. 11-18

Lange camps, with spoiler. Used one season. Call after 5:30, 323-4084. tf11-17

Sony portable tape recorder $45. Knight short wave radio receiver $30...or best offers. Call Dave at 6-5457 anytime and haggle. tf11-17

Used Rock records for sale in exc. cond. incl. English and Bootlegs $1.25/rec. Call 253-5015. tf11-19

Discount Stereo Components, compacts, T.V.'s, 20-40% off list price. Most major brands available. Jim Jensen 586-1365. tf11-18

AKC Pemgroke Welsh Corgi male, 8 wks, red & white, great disposition, $100.00 Call 896-5619. tf11-18

Records! New albums in stock, tape & stereo equipment by order, discount prices, come to 242, Gorman or call John at 546-6170. tf11-18

Head masters 205cm marker bindings originally $210 now $140. Call Peter Zandan in 417 Greenough 545-2639. tf11-17

Guitars, Amps, drums, acc. at reasonable prices. The Guitar Workshop, 96 Main St., North, 586-1706. tf11-30

MOTORCYCLES FOR SALE

FOR SALE

WANTED

Daily Hampshire Gazette is interviewing students & others for working as stringers. If interested call Editor at Gazet. 584-5000. tf11-22

Female desires traveling companion to West Coast, leaving around Dec. 1. Call Joan Gipson, 538-2303. tf11-19

Photographer wants open-minded female models. Good pay. No exp. required. Write: Itoh, PO Box 272, Chicopee, Mass. 01014. tf11-18

FOR RENT

Presidential apartment-sublet available Nov. 15, $165, including utilities. Call 253-2515, Kamins Real Estate. tf11-19

Giant size apt., Cliffside, one bedroom, all electric. Call 665-3031, available Jan. 1st. tf11-19

Available Dec. 1, 1-bdrm. apt. at Cliffside 135, all utilities. Call 665-2025. tf11-19

Available immediately, 1 bedroom, townhouse, Puffton Village, near UMass, all conviences. Call 549-0177. $156 9 mon. lease tf11-19

PERSONAL

Jethro please contact John immediately at 549-0307. 11-17

Dear Weird sisters: it would be beautiful if I could park my car in your garage. Jimmy P. 11-17

Happy Hour this Friday, Nov. 19 at Phi Sigma Delta from 7:30 - everyone invited. tf11-19

Happy 19th birthday Jeannine, love Roomie, Gail and Sue. 11-17

Joanne: I'd rather be sorry for things I've done than things I didn't do. Call me if you have a change of heart. Bill 11-17

I WANT TO SHARE IN AN OCCULT EXPERIENCE. SEANCE PREFERRED. OR OTHER. PLEASE CALL DEBBIE 546-6068. tf11-18

Very real woman would like to meet single man (30-40) who desires mature human contact. Write PO Box 190, Amherst. tf11-17

You're warm, warmer, now you're hot in an authentic air force parka: Mens $37.50, boys & girls $31.50 Call Al at 549-0814-275 Puffton Vill. tf11-19

SERVICES

Qualified guitar teacher looking for students, reasonable rates. Call Ed at 546-6106. tf11-18

Advanced music student will give piano lessons in your home dorm or wherever. Call 323-7272. $3.00/ 1/1 hour. tf11-17

REWARD

For info. leading to recovery of male dog part gold Retriever & Setter. Short ft. tan hair. 6 months old. Lost 11-1-71. 584-0079 after 1. tf11-19

Reward for return of lost wide gold wedding ring, initials KMW to JSF. 6/7/70 If found please call Jake 549-3916 or Kathy 549-1311. tf11-19

$15 REWARD

1 yr. old male Sealpoint Siamese, old brown collar, answers to "Snowy", missing from 337 Puffton since Oct. 9. Please call 549-0765. tf11-19

RIDE WANTED

Ride to No. Carolina prefer Chapel Hill and or return during Thanksgiving period. Can pay expenses. Call Joan 253-3063. tf11-17

WANTED TO RENT

2-4 bedroom apartment or house for January or February 1. Call 546-6515 or 546-6500. tf11-19

Wanted for Jan. 1, one bedroom apt., pet must be allowed. Rent between $120 and $160. Call 665-4085 after 6, Mo. & Wed. night. tf11-19

TRAVEL

Crimson Travel offers low cost spring vacation trips to Bermuda and Nassau. For more info call Rich Margil 112 Dwight 545-0790. tf11-19

LOST

To the girl who found $21, in front of the Student Union Lobby counter on Fri. Eve., please return it to me-Dan Itkin,- Govt. Dept. 10ff. tf11-18

WANTED TO BUY

Research paper on subject pertaining to environment. Price negotiable. Call 546-7028. 11-17

TYPING

Typing-theses, dissertations, etc. Fast, accurate, experienced. Have Math and Chem. symbols. Call 253-3601. tf12-21

ENTERTAINMENT

Rock group Phoenix for your party or dance, old standard music at reasonable rates, make res. for Xmas parties now. Call Pete 549-6028. tf11-17

STUDENTS BOOK MATCHING

Register your book in S.U. Rm. 310. Every student with your course next semester will need your books save $ money, sell direct. tf-sem.

FREE

Free kittens, 7 weeks old, 256-6155. tf11-19

MOVIE

WOODY ALLEN IS HILARIOUS IN "TAKE THE MONEY AND RUN" IN COLOR, SAT., NOV. 20, MAHAR AUD., 7, 9, 11 P.M. tf11-19

HELP WANTED

Ski instructors wanted at Berkshire East. M or F, experienced part or full time. Send resume to Director, 21 North St., Windsorlocks, Conn. tf11-19

JOBS

Overseas jobs for students. Australia, Europe, S. America, Africa, etc. All professions & occupations, $300 to $900 monthly, expenses paid, overtime, sightseeing. Free information-write Jobs Overseas, Dept. SB, Box 15071, San Diego, Calif. 92115. tf11-22

Educational Experiences Available For Teachers

Unique, educational field experiences are still available for Elementary and Secondary majors in such places as California, Colorado, New Mexico, Florida, Montreal, England, Germany, France, and Italy. These are open to sophomores and juniors. It will cost no more to travel to and live at these sites than the room and board at UMass.

Pre-requisites for this are a six credit course which the student will take this spring to prepare him for his internship in the fall. For more information, come to Room 100, School of Education, prior to November 24 and talk to either Bill Fanslow, Bill Byxbee, or Jeanne Kamansky.

WMUA

TONIGHT ON 91.1FM:

7:00 p.m. EVENING NEWS with Dick Brooks and Olaf Weeks. 30 minutes of news and sports.
7:30 p.m. VIEWPOINT - a 30 minute public affairs program dealing with diverse subjects from world politics to campus events.
8:00 p.m. UJAMAA DRUM - a three hour black program with jazz, soul, poetry, commentary and black news compiled and edited by members of the Black Mass Communications Project.
11:00 p.m. LATE NIGHT NEWS with Bob Keating and Bruce Marcus.
11:30 p.m. ERIC BENJAMIN SHOW - Amherst's answer to Jerry Garcia and Frank Zappa does it til 3:00 a.m.

Notices

ALPHA PHI GAMMA:
Lecture, "An Analysis of Politics and the Press in Massachusetts", by Neil Giroux, tonight at 7 p.m. in CC 804-808. Open to public, free; journalism and Poli Sci majors encouraged to attend and ask questions.

AMATEUR RADIO ASSOCIATION:
Meeting tonight in Rm. 169 CC at 7 p.m.

CHESS CLUB:
Meeting tonight in the New Hatch. The third round of the UMass tournament begins at 7:30.

CHRISTIANS:
Bring your friends and enemies to College Life tonight at 8 p.m. to hear Alan Minsk. Colonial Lounge. SU.

ASCE:
Meeting tonight at 7:30 in Rm. 132 Marston–Dr. Ruth Terzaghi will speak on-"Man: Fossil from the past and promise for the future."

DAMES CLUB:
Auction–Tonight at 8 p.m. at Farley 4-H House. Articles are from local shops, restaurants, movies, etc. All are welcome.

DISCUSSION:
"Strengthening your faith" Wednesday at Newman Ctr. at 7 p.m. in the Social Lounge.

ITALIAN CLUB:
Italian table, Blue Wall Cafe, CC at 5 p.m. today. All welcome.

NORTHAMPTON VOLUNTEERS:
Bus leaves tonight for the State Hospital. Hasbrouck Lab, 6:30, Patterson House, 6:35. Last trip before Thanksgiving, everyone welcome.

NURSING MAJORS:
2 nursing majors needed to serve on a Search committee for Dean of Nursing. Contact John Hogan (via mailbox or 5-0341) c/o Student Senate.

PI BETA PHI:
The sisters of Pi Beta Phi invite all University women to a "Fortune Telling Party" on Wed. from 7-8:30 at Beta Kappa Phi, 401 N. Pleasant St.

RECREATION SOCIETY MEETING:
Tomorrow, 6:30 in Rm. 811 CC. Come see what we're all about. Good chance to help your department.

SEX AND THE LAW:
Attorney Martin Linsky, rep. of the Mass. State Legislature, will speak tonight at 7:30 p.m. in the Berkshire Clubroom in the Southwest area. In 1968-69, it was Rep. Linsky who filed the bill to have the unmarried restriction removed from the Mass. Birth Control statute.

SPANISH CLUB:
Tertulia--Are you interested in talking in Spanish with some interesting people? Well, come to the tertulia. Weds. afternoon from 2:30-4, 4th floor lounge, Herter Hall, Coffee will be served.

SPECIAL EDUCATION:
We would like to know how many students are interested in majoring in Special education. If you are interested or would like more information, call Sue at 6-6675 or Jean at 6-6560.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

by SYDNEY OMARR

Taurus can be stubborn but also determined and loyal. Many born under this zodiacal sign have unusual speaking voices and a sense of the dramatic. Taurus, like most of us, appreciates money and, where finances are concerned, Taurus makes a good team with Gemini.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): New outlook concerns mate, partner, investment procedure. Emotions are intensified, nothing occurs halfway. Be receptive. You could receive offer which puts you on more solid emotional-financial ground.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Pace yourself. Don't insist, cajole or chide. Permit others to show their hands, have their say. Your role now should be that of careful observer. Emphasis is on marriage and public relations.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Be wary where apparent minor details are concerned. Take nothing for granted. Key is to be thorough. What appears simple is complicated if you are careless. Keep medical, dental appointments.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Be ready for change of scenery, variety of experiences, emotions. Opposite sex is involved. Creative juices flow. You overcome obstacles. Loved one pays meaningful compliment. Children bring joy.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Practical issues dominate. Accent on security in relation to home properly, domestic affairs. Strive to harmonize family situation. Make gesture of reconciliation. You'll be happier as a result.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): New moon position stresses short trips, dealings with relatives and neighbors. Pisces person figures prominently. Throw off secret fears, doubts. Express ideas, take notes. Plan for future.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): New financial arrangement works out in your favor. Insist on facts, inventory. Get what's due you. Some around you now are fast talkers. Realize you have authority on your side. Stand pat.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Welcome contacts, challenges, you are stimulated by one who expresses confidence. Accent original methods. Lead rather than follow. Lunar position coincides with success.

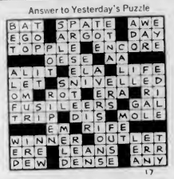
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): New light shed on mystery. Puzzle pieces can fall together. Work behind scenes. Cooperate in charitable project. Remember one who is temporarily confined to home, hospital. Be considerate.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Income from professional efforts could increase. New moon position coincides with greater pride, achievement. Cancer individual could play important role. Be aware, of security requirements.

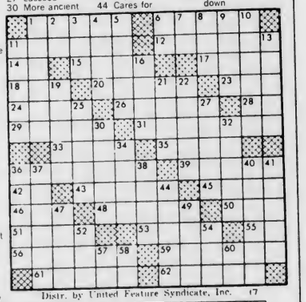
AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Utilize alternative methods. Analyze ambitions. You can go far. Versatile Sagittarian can help you solve dilemma. Don't be afraid to ask questions. Some surprising, helpful answers come forth.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Favorable now for publishing, submission of plans, formats. Plan ahead. Look to future instead of brooding about past. Barrier to progress is removed if you don't procrastinate. Act on beliefs.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are a powerful adversary and a loyal ally. You are not one for spoiling hairs. You insist on facts, not speculation or gossip. Some claim you lack sense of humor. But those who really know you disagree. If single, marriage is on horizon.

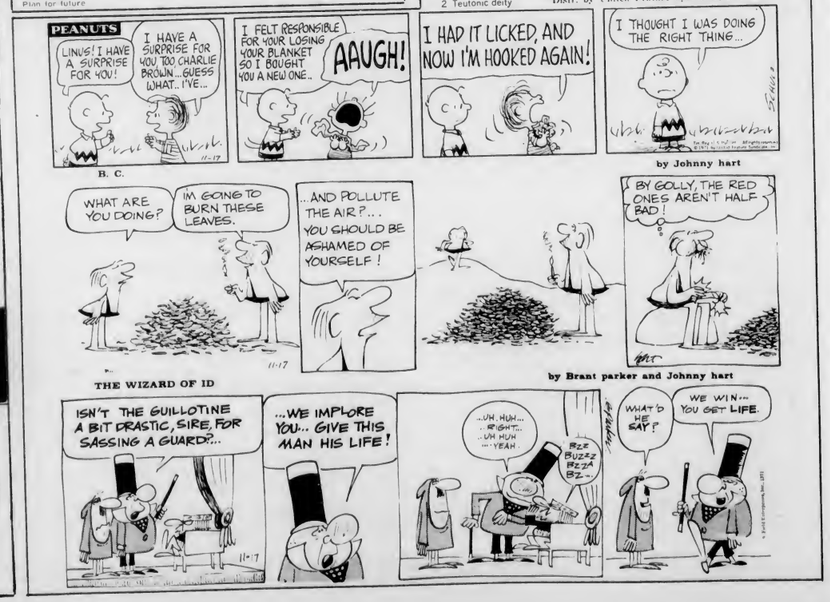


Copyright 1971, Gen. Fea. Corp.



Crossword Puzzle

ACROSS
1 Lawful
6 Brittle
11 Chastise
12 Swifter
14 Symbol for silver
15 Clan
17 Weight of India
18 Rodent
20 Sows
23 Moccasin
24 Pertaining to the ear
26 More unusual
28 Earth goddess
29 Native of Africa
31 Went by automobile
33 Lampreys
35 Head of Catholic Church
36 Commemorative marches
39 Birds' homes
42 Hebrew month
43 Earn
45 Food program
46 Decay
48 Renovate
50 Born
51 Sod
53 Break suddenly
55 Symbol for tantalum
56 Scoffs
59 Crown
61 Enter a charge against
62 Craftier



DOWN
1 Envoy
2 Teutonic deity
3 Aeriform fluid
4 The sweetsop
5 Sufferer from Hansen's disease
6 Baseball position (abbr.)
7 Sun god
8 Suffix: adherent of 9 Cease
10 Hair of animal
11 Nobleman
13 Sped
16 Athletic group
19 Striped wild cat
21 Let fall
22 Surgical thread
25 Choice part
27 Lassoed
30 More ancient
32 Turpentine ingredient
34 Withered
36 Separates
37 Teem
38 Transgresses
40 Seesaw
41 Vapor
44 Cares for
47 Woody plant
49 Loud lament
52 A month (abbr.)
54 Remuneration
57 A state (abbr.)
58 Saint (abbr.)
60 Prefix: down

Answer to Yesterday's Puzzle

Distr. by United Feature Syndicate, Inc. 17

Fine Jewelry
Rings-Barretts-Earrings
at MIZAUR'S Mercantile
Amherst Center

"COME TO WHERE THE ACTION IS"
DIALTONE
Route 5 West Hatfield
Featuring the famous Recording Group
The Vandell's
Every nite
9 p.m.-1 a.m.

Ladies' Nite
Sun.-Thurs.
Drinks 1/2 Price

Intra-Murals Spell End To Fall Season

By JOHN BOCK

The UMass Intramural office is busy putting the wraps on what assistant director Peter Graham terms "...a most successful season in terms of student participation." Results are still not available for some of the fall activities as playoffs are still in progress, but the majority of the sports are history.

In what seems to be the perennial favorite of participation and spectators alike, Touch Football saw its conclusion with the crowning of the champions. The honor of Campus Champions and Independent Champions went to Stu's Marauders, The Marauders are still practicing, though, as they will participate in the National Touch Football Championships at Long Branch, New Jersey on Thanksgiving Day. Residence Hall Champions are the Thatcher Redwoods while Fraternity honors go to Phi Sigma Delta and Grad Faculty Champs are Civil Engineering. Though no records were broken this year it must be remembered that the number of games played was down from 7 to 5. Be that as it may there were standouts in many respects. Leading Passer honors went to Cino from Tau Epsilon Phi as he completed 86 out of 181 for a 47.5% average. There was a tie for Leading Scorer as Adams of the Bucks and Carmody of Phi Sigma Kappa scored 70 points apiece. In the categories of Leading Receiver and Leading Pass Rusher it was Connery from the Rowdy Bunch going on record with 30 receptions and Connors of the Raccoons having 21 rushes. Leading Offense went to the Thatcher Redwoods with 188 points, while Leading Defense went to the Marauders, having only 8 points scored on them en route to the Campus Championship.

In girls' Powder-Puff football action the Mushrooms Independent team took the Campus and Independent Championships. Campus Runners-Up and Residence Hall Champs are the Melville Whalers, with Sorority Champions and Campus Third Alpha Chi Omega.

Tug-of-War results saw the Hamlin Pied Pipers defend their Campus and Residence Hall Championships while Pi Lamda Phi took honors as the Fraternity Champs. The Flying Duchmen were the Independent winners, as Civil Engineering remained consistent in IM performance and took the Grad-Faculty trophy.

Honors in the Metawampe "500" bicycle race are lied off by the Thatcher Redwoods as Campus and Residence Hall Champions, Fraternity and Campus Second were the guys from Sigma Phi Epsilon. The Playboys took Independent and Campus Third as a finish.

In Men's Cross-Country Prince House became campus and Independent Champs. The Nation took Runner-Up and the Chadbourne Maroons were Campus Third and Residence Hall Champions. Individual performances saw Mike Cowles of Beta Chi, up from last year's third place finish, win the race with a time of 8:34. Second place went to Larry Lacroix (who ran unattached) with Oriole Tauler of Prince House taking third. In Grad-Faculty the English Department edged out Civil Engineering for the Championship as Mechanical and Aeronautical Engineering copped third place. Rich Fahey of Civil Engineering won first place with an 8:16.5 finish. Runner-up was Robert French of English and third went to Charles Moran also of English. Fraternity Champions were last but not least Phi Mu Delta.

Congratulations to the Champions and to all those who represented their house, dorm, department or themselves in making the Fall IM Season a pleasant and often exciting event for the University. Thanks also go to Coaches Schmitt, Graham, Fiddler and their staff for carrying on the best Intramural program in New England.

Birds, Bucs Divvy Up Series Loot

NEW YORK (AP) — The Pittsburgh Pirates and Baltimore Orioles each voted 31 full individual shares from a combined World Series pot of more than $1 million, but Pirates hear Bruce Kison received only a partial share and the ground crew wasn't included at all.

Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn said Tuesday that the Pirates, who earned $627,237.11 for their World Series victory, voted full shares of $18,164.58 to 27 players, Manager Danny Murtaugh, five coaches, trainer Tony Bartirome and clubhouse manager John Hallahan.

Kison, who was credited with the victory that knotted the Series at 2-2, was voted three-quarters of a share, or $13,623.44, by his teammates who totally neglected the ground crew reportedly for supporting the umpires' strike during the 1970 playoffs. The men had split a share last year when the Pirates won the National League's East Division title.

An Orioles' full share from the $470,427.84 total was worth $13,906.45. One-tenth of a share, or $1,390, went to Jay Mazzone, their crippled 18-year-old bat-boy who retired at the end of the Series after four years' service.

Quicksilver
57 North Pleasant Street
LIVE MUSIC
Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday Nites
OLDIES NITE
Monday
STONES NITE
Wednesday
RESTAURANT
Open 24 Hours

Colts Linebacker Pick as NFL Defensive Player of the Week

NEW YORK (AP) — "He's got to the point now," Baltimore assistant coach Hank Bullough was saying about Ted Hendricks, "where he's a completely new dimension in linebackers."

Hendricks also got the point--or, more technically, prevented the one--that provided the Colts with their tense 14-13 victory Sunday over the New York Jets.

That, plus his timely tackles--he was in on 11 of them--and a key interception, earned Hendricks the selection Tuesday as The Associated Press Defensive Player of the Week in the National Football League.

The 6-foot-7, 215-pounder got the nod over Minnesota Vikings safeties Charlie West and Paul Krause.

The point that made the difference never came because of Hendricks' big fist. The Jets had just scored and soccer-style kicker Bobby Howfield came on for the conversion that would have tied the game.

"I tried to go inside on the first conversion" when New York had taken a 7-0 lead "but that didn't work," he recalled. "On this one, Dave Herman went over to try and help block Bubba Smith, figuring I'd go with him again.

"I didn't. I went outside instead of inside, and it worked." He charged through the gaping hole in the Jets' line, stuck out a fist "and the ball just hit it. I wasn't even stretched out or up in the air or anything."

The defending champion Colts still had the lead and never relinquished it, remaining in the battle with the Miami Dolphins for supremacy in the American Conference East.

Hendricks, whose fumble recovered and 31-yard gallop for a touchdown a week ago broke a 10-10 tie and put the Colts ahead to stay in their 24-17 Monday night victory over Los Angeles, also picked off a pass that put them back in the game against the Jets.

It was his fifth interception of the year, coming as New York drove into Baltimore territory. He nabbed the pass and returned it 10 yards to midfield, then turned the ball over to Johnny Unitas, who marched the Colts 50 yards to a touchdown and a 7-7 tie.

"The Stork," as the lean, long-legged linebacker is known, "poses an altogether different problem for quarterbacks because of his height and jumping ability," Bullough said. "I think he's playing as good as any outside linebacker in pro football."

West, starting for the first time in place of injured Karl Kassulke, intercepted a pair of Green Bay passes, one of them in his own end zone which he raced back to the 50-yard line, setting up a field goal.

And Krause crushed a pair of scoring threats, coming up with his 50th career interception on the Minnesota one. The defensive plays and the field goal were, as it turned out, the game as the Vikings beat the Packers 3-0.

Easy Pickings For Ali

HOUSTON (AP) — Buster Mathis, fighting for the first time in 2-1/2 years, takes his turn Wednesday night with Mohammad Ali, who has made up for his own exile from the ring with a flurry of activity during the past year.

They will meet in a scheduled 12-rounder in the Astrodome, scheduled to start at 10:50 EST.

For Mathis, who has won 29 pro fights against two losses, it will be the first fight since he lost a 12-round decision to Jerry Quarry in New York March 24, 1969.

Ali has fought four times and engaged in numerous exhibitions since he ended a 3-1/2-year boxing exile due to military draft troubles by stopping Quarry in three rounds in Atlanta Oct. 26, 1970.

Ali said after he lost to heavyweight champion Joe Frazier, in his only defeat in 33 pro fights, that he would keep busy until he won the title again and he is expected to sign soon for a planned Dec. 26 fight against German Jurgen Blin in Zurich, Switzerland.

The former heavyweight champion generally is expected to handle Mathis as easily as he did Jimmy Ellis, whom he stopped in 12 rounds in his first fight after losing to Frazier.

In fact, Ali is such a prohibitive favorite that no betting line has been established.

The fight will follow a scheduled 10-round heavyweight bout between George Chuvalo of Canada and Cleveland Williams of Houston, which also will be shown on closed circuit television over 106 locations in the United States and Canada.

Top Rank, Inc., and Astrodome Championship Enterprises Inc. are promoting the fight in the Dome, with Top Rank handling all ancillary rights.

The fight also will be beamed to 27 foreign countries.

A Top Rank spokesman estimates a crowd of more than 25,000 at the Dome and a live gate of more than $200,000.

In an effort to bolster ticket sales, some closed circuit television exhibitors are offering door prizes that range from record albums to a pound of pork sausage each month for a year.

Jerry Lewis Twin Cinema
Cinema 1 Cinema 2
586-3209
Hamp Shopping Plaza King St., Northampton

Everyone Wants CATLOW
GP METROCOLOR • PANAVISION
Shown At
7 & 9 7:15 & 9:15
Adults $1.50 Children 50¢

PARIS HELSINKI MOSCOW MONACO BRUSSELS BELGRADE GENEVA BUCHAREST
LONDON ROME MADRID LISBON VATICAN CITY MONACO
OSLO DUBLIN MONROVIA EDINBURGH ATHENS MADRID
FLY SUPERCHEAP

Nassau $149
DEC. 16-20 $149 includes round trip jet from Boston, all taxes & trips & 4 nights accommodations at the Montagu Beach Hotel*

Ski Europe $325
15 days/14 nights at Innsbruck, Kitzbuhel & St. Anton. Departures from JFK & Logan begin 12/18/71 and continue through 3/31/72. Includes air fare, meals, double occupancy hotel & all taxes.

Youth Fare
Guaranteed Round Trip reservations at no additional charge.

Pay with MASTERCHARGE

Nassau $179
Dec. 20-27 or Dec. 27-Jan 3. $179 includes round trip jet from Boston, all taxes & tips & accommodations at the Montagu Beach Hotel, Flagler Inn or Pilot House Hotel*

London $187
Dec. 17-Jan. 2 $187 includes round trip jet air fare from Boston* Dec.

American Student Travel
27 Massachusetts Ave., Boston 02115
For further information call Steve German 253-3359

*open only to 5 College students, faculty, staff & immediate family
SAN MARINO WARSAW PRAGUE LUXEMBOURG COPENHAGEN OUGADOUGOU

Grapplers Set To Defend Title

By JOHN BOCK

If there is any phrase that marks the University of Massachusetts wrestling team that phrase is "consistency in improvement" And that is just what the grapplers are out to do this year--improve on a 16-3-1 season that saw them oust Springfield College from its 20 year reign as New England Intercollegiate Wrestling Association Champion and establish themselves as the new wrestling power in New England.

To say that the improvement would begin with this year would be to tell a falsehood for the improvement began with the arrival of Homer Barr as Head Coach. He would be joined by Maurice Brosky who would be the Freshman mentor. Together these gentlemen have brought UMass wrestling from a point where losing seasons were a tradition to a third, second, and finally first place finish in the NEIWA.

How do coaches Barr, Brosky & company intend to accomplish such a feat? Again hard work, but the Redmen do have a few advantages in the process. Most notable on the plus side are returning NEIWA Champions Shelly Goldberg and Carl Dambman. Shelly reaches his senior year after two very successful seasons as NEIWA Champ at 134 pounds. He will push the team this year as captain and has his sights set on the NCAA Championship. Carl returns as a junior from a year that saw him become surprise Heavyweight NEIWA Champ. It is his intention to drop to 190 pounds this season in hopes of better defending his title. The squad finds on the mat leadership from these two men and they are ably assisted by veterans Clay Jester, Dave Reynolds, Barry Godowsky, Dave Amato, and Jim Godkin. Jester, Reynolds and Godkin are all seniors and all third place finishers in the New Englands at 142, 126, and 158 pounds respectively. Amato is a junior and returns as the NEIWA runner- up at 118 pounds. Another senior coming back from a year's absence is Bruce Buckbee, who as a sophomore took a third in the NEIWA's and looks like a sure bet to place high this year.

A team cannot rely on all veterans, though, and must have in reserve individuals that are capable of donning the Varsity uniform when called. Excellent freshman prospects that could fill the bill are Russ Chateaunef, John Connolly, Mike McLaughlin, and Chris Cadwallader. Chateauneuf comes to UMass with the Massachusetts State Schoolboy Championship under his belt as well as that of New England Schoolboy Champion. He is from Lowell, Mass. Connolly is also Massachusetts State Champ from Nabnasset and has many tournament championships to his credit. McLaughlin and Cadwallader arrive with traditionally tough Pennsylvania wrestling backgrounds.

A well-balanced team with sufficient depth is necessary for improvement, but other important factors to include are the team attitude, the success of preseason training, and the strength of your opponents. Coach Barr provides information on these topics as well as giving his opinion on the upcoming season. He indicated this is possibly the best team to step onto the mat at UMass as far as attitude and general condition are concerned. "They are the best working group I've had at the University and they've come a long way to becoming the team that holds the most promise if we can use the excellent preseason work as a gauge." On discussing this year's opponents, it seems that the Redmen had better be in shape as they face the toughest schedule ever wrestled by UMass. Gone are the weak spots like Tufts and Williams, to be replaced by teams like Lock Haven and Oswego State. Back again are tough arch rival Springfield plus Central Connecticut and Coast Guard. "We've been trying to break the 'Halo' effect that all New England colleges, except the Ivy Leagues and Springfield, face. This effect is to stay in New England and wrestle only New England teams and maintain an aloofness from the rest of the country. New England wrestling has never set the world on fire and this Halo has hindered the development of wrestling in high school and college. The only way to get better is to wrestle schools better than you are and this means going to Pennsylvania and New York. This has been one of the keys to Springfield's success, but now that we are venturing out into the rest of the wrestling world chances are that we'll improve immensely. But it's going to take another good year and another NEIWA title to convince the other schools in the East that we are worth their time.

The conversation drifted back, as it usually does when one talks to Coach Barr, to the New England Title the Redmen hold and the question, Can we do it again? "This will be a good year I can assure you," said Barr. "But whether we will repeat as Champions will depend a lot on the ability of this year's freshmen to wrestle Varsity competition and that's a lot to ask." Coach Barr reflected, "We have reached a point where we are thinking beyond the New Englands and for the first time we have the wrestlers with the desire and goal to compete on a national level." When the Redmen grapplers think of improvement the sky is the limit!

Harriers Dismal In IC4A Meet

By JAY NESTOR

It was the last meet of the season and a cold, damp, muddy day. The Redmen harriers finally ran out of steam with a dismal 23rd finish at the IC4A meet on a tough Van Cortland Park course in New York.

The first finisher from UMass was Bill Gillin in 89th place, so you can take it from there how the rest of the team finished. It is to the team's credit that they kept their momentum until this race, which was useful primarily for experience to them.

In the overall race, Villanova put three men in the top five to earn the team title. Sensational sophomore Bob Wheeler of Duke won the race by a convincing 15 yard margin over Steve Wright of Villanova. The celebrated miler, Marty Liquori grabbed third for Villanova.

In the college division, Dan Moynihan and Hamilton Amer, both of Tufts ran one-two in a fine performance for these New England runners.

For the Redmen, a highly successful season has ended with a ten and three dual meet record. It is always difficult to speculate on future team status, but it certainly does look bright for this talented young team. UMass ran poorly in New York, but this was a meet that the pressure was off. They ran well when it counted in the New Englands.

Der X-Country Can Be Mucky-Do Fun Time

By TOM DERDERIAN

Peter Crisci slipped in the slime, Mike McCusker fell in the muck' Bill Gillin slid down a hill on his heels, and Randy Thomas finished covered with ooze; Doc O'Connell finished, and Rick Barry got rained on and slithered around the hills of Van Cortland battleground. But Derderian wore spikes...didn't slide in the muck of the horse trails so doesn't have an excuse so he has to write this. In short the UMass cross-country team got mudded up and rained on during the IC4A race in New York, and went back to the motel and showered and drove home. But defeat is funny. We had a lot of fun...I mean.

Like Peter Crisci about three miles out started pretending he was on a trail bile and McCusker thought about yodeling. At one point I let out a war whoop, sprinted down a hill past a token slow runner from Villanova and careened off the slippery path into bushes and trees almost taking Bill Gillin with me.

There were millions of runners in the race, so many that we couldn't see the ground. Here's what would happen: A pack of runners in front of me would suddenly and with vicious premeditation open up, revealing a log or a rock which I couldn't avoid. I was thankful for Smokey the Bear; there it was raining and the sparks from my spikes on the rocks wouldn't start any forest fires.

About 40 runners cheated on the first turn. They had an excuse it was slippery and they missed it and it was crowded. After that they still cheated. May they choke on sweet grapes.

Right at the start, I saw Doug O'Connell sprint out with the leaders. Pure insanity. When I passed him, I could see him twisting and turning the HariKari sword in his stomach according to the perscribed ritual. He failed at that and tried to slash his wrists.

Old Doug, may he rest in peace, had the right idea...Kill. But, them not yourself. Usually before a race, we all get in a big circle and jump up and down and yell, "Kill. Kill blood guts and veins in your teeth and eat burnt dead bodies." But we didn't do that. You see the Villanova guys had already eaten all the burnt dead bodies.

All the big kids were there. Marty Liquori. (I remember two years ago, we were running in fortieth place and Liquori was right next to me, he had cancer or a broken leg so he was doing bad, and he was driving his elbow into my head.) I wanted to go over and kick him in the knee, but I couldn't get through the mob of photographers. That brings me to another excuse.

There was nobody taking any pictures of us. Charlotte usually does, but she's stuck up now that she's a star and that's why we didn't win the IC4A's--not because we are a bush league Yankee Conference team...it's because Charlotte didn't take pictures. It was she.

Besides, we don't run well when the sun isn't out and it's because of the licorice ice cream some guys had at the Baskin-Robbins place in Tarrytown before the race. The guys from PENN weren't in Tarrytown and they did okay. So dry your tears, Charlotte, it wasn't you. It was Baskin-Robbins!

But we had fun. Peter was hallucinating and Mike tried to tell some guy from Navy about John Shaft in the movie we saw the night before.

Heisman Time

NEW YORK (AP) - The winner of the Heisman Trophy, awarded annually to "the outstanding college football player" in the country, will be disclosed over ABC--TV during halftime of the Georgia-Georgia Tech game Thanksgiving night, the Downtown Athletic Club announced Tuesday.

In the past, the winner was announced at the Downtown A.C., which presents the trophy.

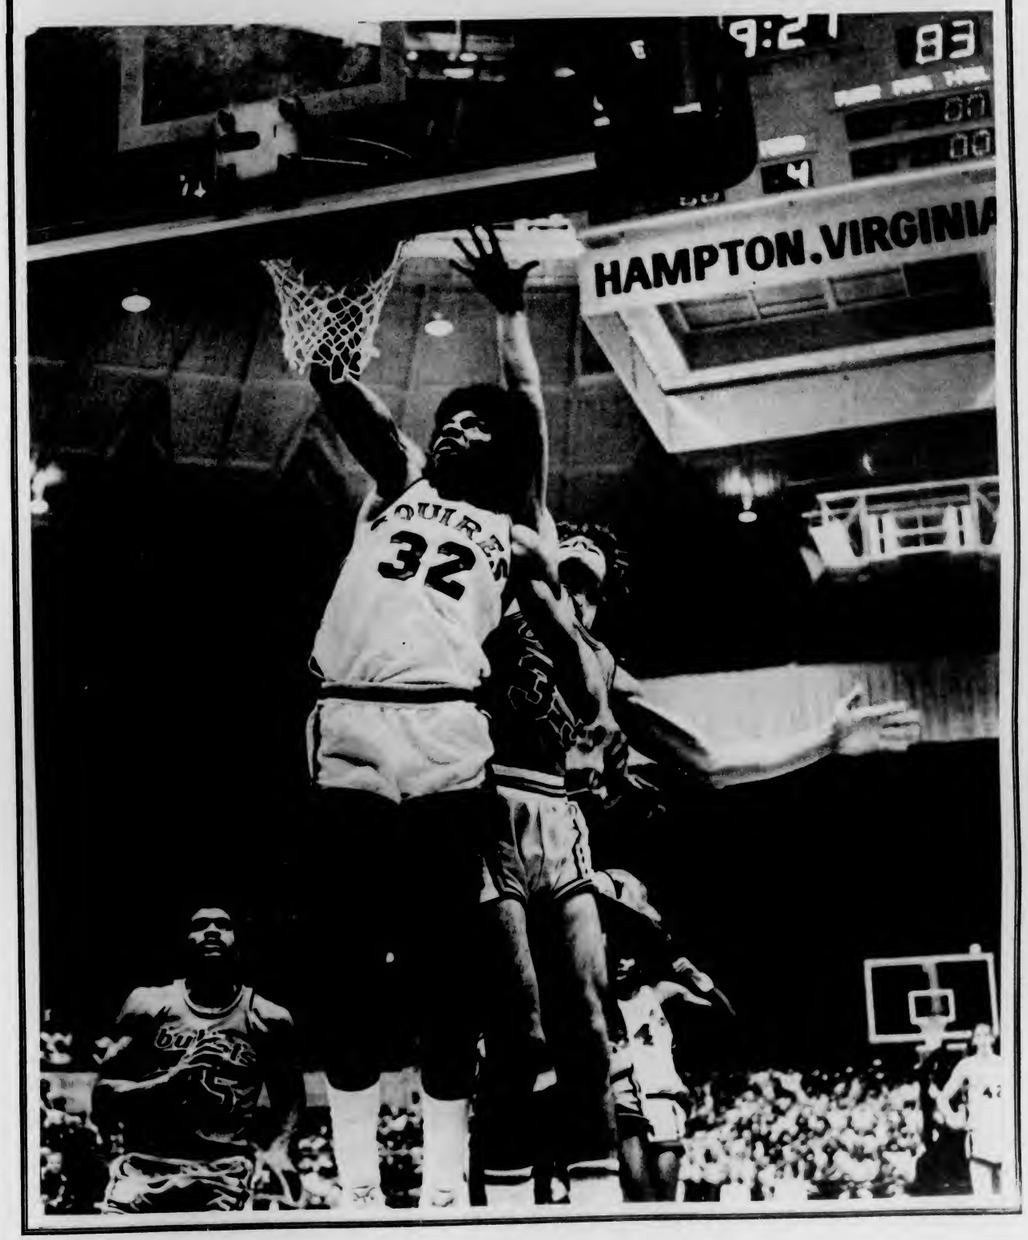
Soccer Sunday

The New England Intercollegiate Soccer League Annual All-Star game will be played at Springfield College on Sunday, November 21 at 12:30 p.m.

Representing UMass on the University Division squad will be Lindo Alves, Dave Ouillette, Augie Calheno, and Bob Grom. Irv Schmid of Springfield will coach the University team, and Alan King of WPI the College team.

Varsity M

The UMass Redmen Quarterback Luncheon will be at the Newman Center on Wednesday November 17 at 12:15 p.m. and will be getting out promptly at 1:15 p.m. The football staff, led by Head Coach Dick MacPherson, will present films on the New Hampshire game, a scouting report on Boston College; also, there will be a door prize and a raffle on two choice "Eagle" tickets, guest players and excellent. (Not necessarily in that order.) Price is $1.50. Everyone welcome.



REMEMBER-Yesterday we told you that Steve Schubert caught another touchdown pass. Well here it is! Schubert looks in ready anticipation for Piel Pennington's td pass. The Redmen will be hoping for another big day from the Pennington-Schubert combo Saturday.

Check Out "The Red Jock" MDC Sport Special - In Today's Issue

THE RED JOCK

A Friday Night On Long Island

On The Inside:

Steak And Brew And Julius Too

By EARLE BARROLL

Dan Kamal and I entered the dining room at the Roosevelt Motor Inn looking for Julius Erving last Friday afternoon. As we perused the scenery we spotted a monstrous hand jutting out from behind a corner at the back of the room mixing a drink...could this be the big guy?

We walked out into the middle of the floor and found him to be another big guy. As a matter of fact a little bit bigger than the guy we wanted.. He was like 6'8 and 225 pounds.

Just to stay on the safe side we ventured over to some executive looking men and asked for Julius. They said he wasn't around, but we could talk to his roommate, Willie Sojourner...the giant sitting in the corner.

Like two-well-to-do writers we surrounded Willie if you could call two guys both a foot shorter doing that. We introduced ourselves...he put out a big hand and said in a deep voice, "I'm Sojourner."...our knees shook.

This broke the ice though and we settled down to business. He was quite a character all right, a rookie just out of Weber State, way up in the mountains of Utah. He was so far out in the wilderness he gold us, he never heard of Julius Erving.. We told him not to feel alone, he wasn't the only one.

Willie was a big name in college ball and led his team to the Western Regionals of the NCAA tourney the past two seasons. But why did he go out to Weber State?

"I was a big name in Philadelphia," he said, "and I wanted to spread the Sojourner name out west and they were very good to me. If I had to do it all over again I'd still go to Weber State.

About this time he became a little suspicious of us and called out bluff. "You guys think you're the big time, but you're only in College."

Kamal pulled a great one here and replied, "you weren't big time either two years ago." We both ducked..we wanted to make it to the game.

But when it came to his roommate he was all compliments. "I'd pay money to see Julius if I wasn't a basketball player. The way he drives to the basket with finesse and the way he moves, he makes the game a classic."

He also said that Julie was the type of guy anyone could live with. But he also prefaced this with a big smile, "I'm also the toughest guy to get along with, that's why they must have put him with me."

One of the few negatives Erving has had this season has been his tendency to go unnoticed on the court. Willie was quick to comment, "He has a tendency to go unnoticed for a while, but then he flares up... there's nothing wrong with this. He's just waiting for everyone to do their thing and then he does his."

As for Willie himself, he's been an off and on player this season, having his best effort against Artis Gilmore and the Kentucky Colonels with 25 points.

What's the best part of his game? "Finesse, man, finesse, it's the greatest part of basketball."

He also called the Squires the fastest team in the league. "We have to keep up with Charlie Scott. He's got more moves than Carter has liver pills."

While all this was going on Sojourner was eating this big thick steak and mashed potatoes. And believe it or not that big hulk wasn't even touching his potatoes outside of mashing them up a little here or there.

That ride to New York was so long and tiring that all I wanted was a hit of potatoes. I think Kamal wanted a hit of his drink...but we didn't want a hit of hand so we departed on a quiet note and a handshake from Willie Sojourner... he was quite a guy.

*****

How we ended up at the Roosevelt Inn is another story in itself. Kamal and I started out Friday morning at 11 with a couple of his buddies, Al Garber and Ken Hamilton and the voice of UMass sports Ken Best, the old cowboy from Wyoming.

It took practically no time to make it to Long Island but finding the Island Gardens where the Squires and Nets were playing was something else.

On the way down the topics changed as fast as the mileage went by but it seemed that every third topic or so centered around the good old college past time, a sociable drink or two (or more) before the game.

To put it mildly, we were psyched.

Best was particularly looking forward to Long Island. Those western guys don't get to see the other side of life very often!!!

From 91 to 95 we headed towards New York with the radio blaring, Garber and Hamilton doing their impression of the Temptations dancing in the back seat, Best telling us about his trips around the country and Kamal and I just hoping to get there.

When we hit the Throgs Neck bridge, Best almost jumped overboard. He was astounded and if you ever heard him on WMUA you can just imagine what he said. "Good night now."

Over the bridge and we were on our way. At least that's what we thought. I blew it and forgot which exit to take and somehow we made it to somewhere near Hempstead where the Gardens is located.

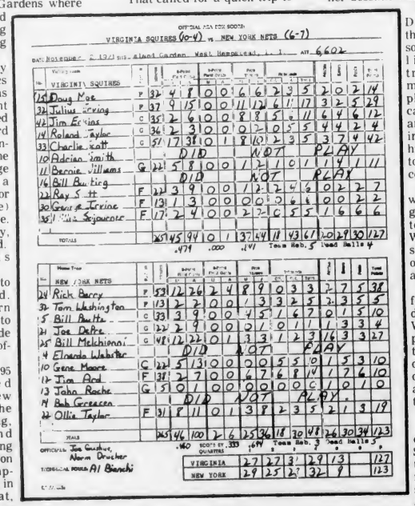
Mile after mile and road after road Kamal drove on. We hit every gas station in the area and still no Gardens.

Finally we picked up a hitchhiker and he just happened to be on his way to the Gardens or thereabouts...saved!!!

If there's anyone reading this from Hempstead we probably went past your house on the way. You wouldn't believe how many side streets this kid took us on. He called it a short cut. We had other words for it like */?$#...Get the message.

But where there's a will there's a way and somehow after losing all our will we still found the Gardens.

Best, Garber and Hamilton went in to buy their tickets while Kamal and I just walked around. A week earlier I called for two press passes. (If we only knew then what would happen when we got to the game at night we might have joined those three in the ticket line.)



Now it was find Julius time and we went to the Hempstead Inn where the Squires were scheduled to be.

The man at the desk had a bird when I asked for Julius. "That makes 200 people who have asked for the Squires and they aren't staying here. They screwed everything up."

We were ready to head for the hills (probably Wyoming if Best had his way) when he cooled down and told us the Squires were at the Roosevelt Inn.

But on the way out we saw the sign that did us in before the game. In big letters...STEAK AND BREW.

That called for a quick trip to

But good old Dan came through with the sob story of his life. "We travelled 400 miles to see Julius play and we called for tickets and even set up an interview with him and planned to talk with his coach."

At half time when they were giving out awards to Julius and Ray Wilson they should have given one to Dan...like an Emmy.

They fell at our feet and couldn't do enough for us. We got complimentary tickets and all the quarter by quarter stats and a snack at half time.

*****

After the game ended Charlie Scott was walking to the dressing room after scoring 42 points and was being chased by someone to be asked to be on the postgame radio show.

Julius was being chased down by his teammates. He had only 29 points, but had done the job the Squires needed from him to win and the players knew it.

His debut in New York was great, his fans were well rewarded by their hero and it was now time to get the interview with Julius.

*****

Dan was talking to Al Bianchi outside the lockerroom when I finally made my way over to see if I could get ahold of number 32.

The lockerroom said "ABA Personnel Only" so I was hesitant to enter. Along came Jim Mulcahy, the President of the Varsity M Club and if you know Jim the way I know Jim you'll know that no sign like that was going to keep him out...so we entered.

It just so happened that when we pushed the door open Julius was being interviewed in the corner next to the door and we pushed him and two sports writers behind the door...nice move.

When it was all straightened out we got to see the big guy...it was just like old times. Big Julie, the big hand ready for the handshake, the coolness and class that has made him the great person he is.

He was wearing an outfit that must have put a small dent in his salary.. which means it probably was in the vicinity of three figures.

What was it like for him to be home for the first time this season? "It's really good to get home and see everybody, I don't get home too often," he said.

"I checked everybody out before the game, during the game and after the game...I knew who was here."

To this Mulcahy told Julius proudly that 50 people came down on the Varsity M bus.

Julius hopped on this quickly. "Nice guy Jim. There are 20,000 people at UMass and that's all you could get is 50 people to come down to watch me play. Thanks a lot."

Mulcahy was in stitches !!(From laughing)

Julius said that the biggest adjustment he had to make was physically and that he still had a lot to learn..From seeing his performance he's not too far from learning it all.

Travelling has been no problem for him. "It's quite nice, I enjoy travelling. I just get on the plane and lean back and rest up for the next day."

I asked him if he still plays cards like he did when he was a Redman. He snickered, "Definitely and I take them all."

What was the ABA like? "It's real good ball," he said. So I told him that earlier in the day Sojourner said it wasn't that tough.

Willie was across the room and he couldn't evade this dart. "I saw him on the floor tonight so what is he talking about."

Earlier in the game Julius was taken out and he pointed out that this was to keep him from picking up his third foul early.

As for Rick Barry whom he guarded most of the game, "He's a hard person to stop. You know he's going to the basket and you still can't stop him."

And for all you basketball fans the word from Julius on this year's team at UMass is good. "The frosh coming up from last year should help. There are good returnees and they should be right up there."

Before he was ready to leave I picked up his uniform and told him I could get a mint for it back at UMass.

"And I'll get fined if I don't have it tomorrow for the Dallas game," he said.

We left the lockerroom and headed out for Julius to see his family and friends and coach Leaman and some of his former teammates.

It's great to be making $500,000...All you had to do is take one look at his black sealskin coat.

*****

The trip back was a quicky, everything was Julius, Julius, Julius.

But as we sped up 91, Kamal just sat back and blurted out, "It would have been great if we could have brought the STEAK AND BREW back with us."

We couldn't disagree. UMass plays Hofstra on December 21. It just so happens STEAK AND BREW is but five minutes from the Arena...

see Julius and then some dinner. We didn't find Julius, we found Willie at the Inn so Dan and I settled for seeing him after the game...it was now time for dinner...we had two hours before the game.

*****

It was getting dark as we got back to the Hempstead Inn and STEAK AND BREW...Being Jewish Garber just happened to read everything right to left...he was ready for a big evening.

This place was the real thing. Buy a steak from the $4.50 to $8.00 range and drink all the beer you want. If there was no game there would be no story today...we'd still be there!!!

After a few minutes we had the waiter pretty well trained. A snap of the fingers and he produced a pitcher of the "golden liquid" as he called it.

Special Report...

One Solution To The Reserve Clause

By STEVE GERSHMAN
COLLEGIAN SPORTS STAFF

According to Curt Flood, baseball's reserve clause and present draft is illegal and makes a player a slave to his team. On the other side, baseball claims that without the reserve clause the game couldn't exist as it does today. Both sides have their valid points and both are partly right. So, here are both sides and my compromise solution.

First, an explanation of the draft and the famed reserve clause and how they work. When a talented baseball player either graduates from high school or college he is usually drafted by a pro baseball team to play for them. Teams draft in reverse order of their standings the year before, thus giving the weak teams first choices. If a player is drafted he can only sign to play for that team unless the team trades him. The team will then offer the player a contract with their terms, including the reserve clause. He either signs the contract or just doesn't play baseball.

The reserve clause in the contract binds the player to that team for life unless he is either traded, cut, released, or waived. Even when the player retires he is still responsible to the team if he ever plays again. There is no way a player really has any choice in his destiny in baseball under present rules. A player can be traded or moved anywhere with no consent under this clause. This is where much of the controversy comes from.

Curt Flood is the main opponent of the present rules, as he has taken baseball to court over the clause. Here are some of the common arguments against the rules. By being drafted, a player has no say as to where he will play or how much he can get to play, for there can be no bidding for his services, and thus he loses out on a lot of money. He can be forced to play far away from home or in a place he doesn't want to be in.

While playing, the player is a slave to his team for as long as he plays. He is a pawn for the team and has to do whatever they wish. If he doesn't like the team, there is little to do except complain and maybe get traded to a worse town. A player can be sent anywhere anytime, regardless of his home and family. If a player has played in one place for a long time he is hurt by moving away.

Baseball, on the other hand, has its own defense and a valid one. Without a player draft, a bidding war would develope among teams for the players. A situation like the old football war or the current basketball battle would develope and players would be getting exorbitant salaries and bonuses. This would hurt the poorer teams and the weak teams. The purpose of the draft is to stop a bidding war and to help balance the league by helping the weak teams. Without the draft, most talented players would be attracted to the stronger teams.

Without the actual reserve clause, a player could leave his team after any year. A bidding war would then develope to retain his services or to contract the player to a new team. Once again, the weak teams would be hurt and cause an imbalance. Teams would have no control over players and it would ruin the game.

Both sides have very valid arguments and are partially right. The only fair, realistic way to settle this is to compromise. With the present rules, the federal anti-trust laws are being violated, even though the Supreme Court has continually voted in favor of baseball. So, here are my modifications in the draft and reserve clause.

First of all, the complicated draft must be changed to allow the player more choice as to where he will play. A player would be drafted by these teams in the draft, with at least one of them in his home part of the country. This will give a player some choice as to where he will play and a chance to play at least near his home. Also, there would be some bidding to give the player a chance for decent pay. A player would no longer have to go all across the country to play, which never really seemed fair. Any player not drafted by at least three teams would draw the remaining number by chance. The structure of lowest teams first would still go to help balance the teams.

There are several revisions in the trading rules I would like to see. A player could only be traded to a team in the same division in either league, without his consent. This would keep players from being shuffled all over the country, as the divisions are geographical. Next, no player should be traded if he has played for at least six years with one team unless he consents to do so. This would keep players who have settled in one area from having to be relocated later in their careers.

My final revision is to add the football option clause to the baseball contract. If a player wishes to leave a team he can play out his option. After his contract runs out, he can refuse to sign a new contract and play that year at a 10% cut in pay from the last year. Following that year, he is free to play somewhere else of his choosing. One addition to this, that football doesn't have is that a player can't play out his option until he has played two years with with the same team under the contract. This allows a player a chance to choose where he will go, but keeps him at his original team for three years at least.

It will be interesting to see how the Supreme Court rules on the case. If they don't change anything, or baseball does not, they are really doing the players an injustice. On the other side, the players should agree to retain some control, as I have specified, or the game will fall.

From The Editor

The RED JOCK is a new dimension in added sports coverage at the University of Massachusetts. It will come out every other week and those of you who have any interesting material and ideas please feel free to come to the sports office in the Student Union Building and talk it over with us. We would also appreciate any letters to the editor or any questions we can answer in subsequent issues.

Dan Kamal

Muhammad Ali is fighting Buster Mathis tonight. The sport MUST be dying.

*****

The Bruins have two players in the top ten NHL scorers, and they're seven points off the pace. What happened to the new style of play?

*****

Rumors have it that the Minnesota Vikings offense has been suspended without pay for accumulating less points than the defense.

*****

Jim Plunkett is questionable for next week's game. That brings up a question? Where's Taliaferro?

*****

UMass hockey starts in two weeks. For those of you who are wondering what happened to the proposed Bubble-- it burst.

*****

One has to admire that guy Randy Vataha. Someone forgot to tell him he's too small for the pros.

*****

Speaking of the Patriots, they've won twice as many games as last year already--it HAS to be Ricky Harris.

*****

What does half a Beanpot look like?

*****

If UMass wins Saturday, it will not only be back, it will be going the opposite way.

*****

When 6,602 is a record crowd for a team like the New York Nets, you know why the ABA wants to merge.

*****

Dicky Nixon called Georgie Allen Sunday after the Washington heroes had lost a "heartbreaker". Dicky said to Georgie, "All of Washington is behind you." Georgie replied, "Thank you, Dicky."

*****

The Celtics are back----in Boston after a road trip.

*****

Johnny Unitas, named the greatest quarterback in the 50-year history of pro football, has been relegated to the bench. Ain't nothin' sacred anymore?

*****

The "new" Buffalo Bills are strangely reminiscent of the "old" Boston Patriots.

*****

Carl Garrett was mighty mad that the fans at Schaeffer Sunday had the nerve to boo big Jim Nance. I can see Carl's point. After all, Nance DID roll up 26 yards on only eight carries.

*****

UMass-Boston College--quite an athletic rivalry. If only the athletic programs were a bit more on par.

*****

Metallo, Pennington, and Schubert are the greatest "unhealthy" offensive trio this school has ever seen.

*****

Why does everyone keep asking: "What's wrong with the Bruins?" Maybe they're only the third best team in the NHL East.

*****

Dave Cowens is the best forward paying center in the NBA.

*****

The Pittsburgh Pirates voted rookie reliever Bruce Kison, who won the crucial fourth game, only a partial share of their World Series money. That's bush.

*****

Remember Perry Pruitt? Well, he pulled a hamstring and is doubtful for this week's game.

*****

Erving looked pretty good at the Island Arena last Friday. There are some people, however, who think he would look even better at the Cage.

*****

Charlie Scott hit on 17 of 38 shots Friday. That's Superstardom?

*****

Earle Barroll just yelled out: "Hey, if Tom Beer played for the Los Angeles Kings, he'd be Beer of the Kings." Now you know why he's the Sports Editor.

*****

Dick Bresciani wasn't bad as a fill-in for Jim Mulcahy last week at the Varsity M. (Welcome back, Jim.)

*****

The UMass hockey team lost to the number one team in the country, Boston University, 6-2 last week. That's not bad when you stop to think about it.

*****

I wish the Red Sox were still playing. They're funny.

*****

The Braves are back in Boston. So where's Aaron?

*****

If the Patriots have a .500 season, they oughta make Plunkett mayor of Boston. Nah, what kind of reward is that?

*****

Predictions for Saturday? You bet! UMass 4, BC 2. As for the football game, that's Metawampe's business.

Now She Runs With The Best

By TOM DERERIAN

Four months ago Charlotte Lettis only ran when she had to. She used to run to class when she was late, sit down catch her breath and light up a cigarette. She didn't have bulging muscles then; she still doesn't but this Saturday she placed 3rd in the Region 1 women's cross country championships. (Equal in competition and prestige to the men's IC4A championships also held this weekend). She ran with the best in the east in famous Van Cortland Park in the Bronx, New York.

The race was to be 2.5 miles over flat playing fields and over some medium hills; the race went like this as I watched it and Charlotte later explained to me:

They started in the middle of a great flat plain of soccer and baseball fields. It was sunny and there were about 70 women in Charlotte's division. (There are several age group divisions). After a quarter mile they turned 90 degrees around a stripped pole and ran flat for a half mile. Liberty A.C.'s Francie Johnson, who was on the 1968 Olympic team was leading with a very fast pace and a bouncy half miler's stride and Charlotte ran easily in about fifth place. At the mile mark Charlotte took the lead and rushed up the only difficult hill of the race. She said, "When I charged up that hill I felt for the first time in a big race that I might win."

Charlotte and a pack of runners led the race at the crest of the hill. In this pack was Nina Kusick the eventual winner. Francie Johnson passed them all back on the hill down hill but was immediately over taken on the flat when she didn't maintain her down hill burst.

On the flat at the 1-1/2-3/4 mark Nina Kusick, a 32 year old mother of two, took the lead. Later Charlotte said, "Nina looked strong, she tore by everybody. She was smiling; she smiles alot." Nina Kusick built up a safe lead and finished a good margin ahead.

Charlotte and Kathy Androtti fought for second place over the last half mile and Charlotte lost. Francie Johnson finished 10 seconds behind Charlotte and Sara Mae Berman, also a mother of two, and former national women's marathon champion placed fifth. Charlotte's time was about 15 minutes. About the finish she said, "I was surprised, but I was in control."

Charlotte's next race will be the New England Championship this Saturday held in So. Natick Mass. About this race Charlotte explained, "Its over the same course as the Liberty Invitational a few weeks ago when Francie won. Its her kind of course, flat, and she will be confident and Janet Bristol from Vermont who wasn't at the Regions which she won last year, will be there. I hope I can improve my time."

"I'm really scared of the Nationals," Charlotte admitted about the national championships to be held in Cleveland Ohio over the Thanksgiving vacation. The top 25 women there will race again in the spring and the top five will go to Europe on Tour. Charlotte says this will help her because she will be in better shape in the Spring. She's only been running since late June.

Charlotte majors in Theater and plans to write and has written plays. She has written some already and has done some acting. She's a sophomore who came by way of UMASS BOSTON last January. Her family lives in Hingham Mass.

About her running she says, "I took up running to replace smoking...its just as addictive but it feels a hell of a lot better." She continues, "I used to smoke two packs of cigarettes and other things, a day, but that was crazy. It wasn't getting me anywhere as a woman or as a person. Running is an excellent way for me to be more than just a woman...a sex object. I see women and they don't do anything only men do things. This is the nature of the oppression of women in our society: men do and women just are. I'd rather be one who does...so I run."

AS EASY AS JUMPING over a log, Charlotte Lettis shows perfect steeple chasing form during the Liberty Invitational cross country race. No woman has ever run a full steeple chase and Charlotte wants to be first. (Photo by Tom Derderian)

Auburn QB Back Of The Week; Nebraska Still Tops

(AP) Vince Dooley has his comic strip character mixed up about as mixed up as Auburn's Pat Sullivan had Dooley's Georgia pass defenders Saturday.

Sullivan completed 14 of 24 passes for 248 yards and four touchdowns in leading the unbeaten Tigers to a 35-20 victory over the previously undefeated Bulldogs.

For that performance, the 6-foot, 190-pound senior quarterback from Birmingham, Ala., was named national college Back of the Week by The Associated Press.

"Well," mused Dooley, "if you're going to get beat by big plays, at least we got beat by the best big playmaker around. We tried to mix up the coverage. We double-covered some, but Sullivan is a heckuva scrambler. He just kept holding on back there and it's the longest our defensive backs have ever had to stay with receivers."

"It was Southern football in all of its glory in an Indian summer in all of its glory," he recited, adding, "I feel a little poetic.

"Sullivan is the greatest player I've ever been around. He has withstood the test of time. If he ever played a better game I don't remember it, and he's played lots of great ones. He seems to play his best in the biggest games."

Sullivan threw a 34-yard scoring pass to Beasley in the first period and a 15-yard to Dick Schmalz that put the Tigers ahead to stay 21-14 in the second quarter. After Georgia pulled to within 21-20 in the final period, Sullivan teamed up with Beasley on a 70-yard strike only 22 seconds later and iced it with a five yard flip to Schmaltz.

Sullivan had to be great to beat out Colorado running back Charlie Davis for Back of the Week honors. All Davis did was gain 342 yards, just eight short of the all-time record set two weeks ago by Michigan State's Eric Allen.

Nebraska Leads Top Twenty

AP Nebraska Coach Bob Devaney said Tuesday that his top-ranked Cornhuskers will play No. 2 Oklahoma Thanksgiving Day "with respect for a fine Oklahoma team but with the idea that we're going to stay No. 1."

The Cornhuskers remained atop the weekly Associated Press college football poll with 40 first-place votes and a season high 1,066 points from a panel of 55 sports writers and broadcasters. The Sooners held onto the second spot with eight first-place votes and 986 points.

Both teams remained undefeated last week. Nebraska crushing Kansas State 44-17 and Oklahoma humiliating Kansas 56-10.

Michigan remained third with four No. 1 ballots and 788 points while Alabama, Auburn and Penn State polled one first place vote each as a fourth, fifth and sixth-ranked teams.

The only other undefeated team in the top 20 is No. 13 Toledo, which like Nebraska, Michigan and Alabama is 10-0. Oklahoma, Auburn and Penn State are 9-0.

Rounding out the top 10 are Notre Dame, No. 7, followed by Georgia, Arizona State and Colorado. Idle Tennessee held onto the 11th spot followed by Texas, Toledo, Louisiana State, Southern California, Houston, Arkansas, Stanford, Michigan State and Mississippi.

Auburn and Alabama, along with Nebraska and Oklahoma, are idle this Saturday awaiting Thanksgiving weekend showdowns.

Auburn and Alabama put their undefeated records on the line Nov. 27, two days after the Sooners and the Cornhuskers clash in Norman, Okla.

The Top Twenty teams with the first-place votes in parentheses and total points. Points tabulated on basis of 20-18-16-14-12-10-9-8 etc.

1. Nebraska 40	1,066
2. Oklahoma 8	986
3. Michigan 4	788
4. Alabama 1	775
5. Auburn 1	686
6. Penn State 1	635
7. Notre Dame	446
8. Georgia	373
9. Arizona State	353
10. Colorado	313
11. Tennessee	250
12. Texas	234-1/2
13. Toledo	143
14. Louisiana State	95-1/2
15. Southern Cal.	79
16. Houston	78
17. Arkansas	51
18. Stanford	29
19. Michigan State	22
20. Mississippi	7

New England's Largest College Daily

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

Weather: German Shepard lost. "Padre." White underside. 5-0082.

VOLUME XCIX, ISSUE 50 UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 18, 1971

Some of the 50 demonstrators who interrupted the Senate meeting last night protesting the scarcity of girls in the Sylvan Area. (MDC photo by Bruce McConnell)

Sylvan Demonstrators Swamp Senate

(Bulletin: In a late development at last night's Student Senate meeting, funds for the Free University were withdrawn. The entire $15,100 budget was stricken. More tomorrow.)

By DON BISHOP

In a fast moving and eventful meeting last night, the Student Senate created a Senate standing Committee for Women, gave approval in principle to the Ad Hoc Committee on Teacher Evaluation, and adopted a resolution, which if passed by the Faculty Senate and the Trustees, would create a new Athletic Council. These three motions represented the major business of last night's meeting.

At 7:30 P.M., a contingent of around 50 Sylvan Area residents entered the Senate meeting room to give support to a measure on the agenda. This measure called for Senate admonishment of the Housing Office for having led these residents to believe that the composition of Sylvan would be of approximately equal proportions of males and females, and for having made the student population overwhelmingly freshmen.

The Senate quickly passed this motion, but Senate President Lee Sandwen pointed out that the Sylvan Area residents should take a contingent of students over to the Housing Office and demand action to remedy this situation over there.

At the beginning of the session, the Senate considered a motion of concern to the residents of Orchard Hill.

This measure dealt with an amendment to the Orchard Hill Constitution, allowing for the appointment of 8 black residents of Orchard Hill, to the area government. There has been some question as to whether the vote of the Orchard Hill residents, creating this amendment, was constitutional.

The Senate was asked by Governmental Affairs Chairman Bill Spinn, to refer this matter to the Student Judiciary. But after considerable debate, it was decided that any question of constitutionality could be referred to the Judiciary after initial approval was given to this amendment by the Senate.

The issue of creating a standing Committee for Women had been one of controversy among the Senate members for the last few weeks. The bill, as introduced by its chief proponent Senator Lisa Mandell, stated: "The Women's Committee shall investigate and seek to alleviate the special problems of women on this campus, open to both men and women."

Senator Mandell urged the creation of this Women's Committee because, in her estimation, of the overriding need for one.

Various Senators including Bernstein, Poisson, Waters, and Kulakowski, pointed out the present inadequacy of the Student Matters Committee and the Social Action Committee for the discussion and resolution of problems pertaining to women on this campus. Although a Women's Committee had existed up until 1968, when it was abolished for reasons of ineffectiveness, these Senators felt it should be given another try.

The limited male opposition to the proposal, centered around whether the Committee should be made a standing one. But the vast majority of Senators concurred that it should be, and the motion was passed.

The question of accepting the Report of the Ad Hoc Committee on Teacher Evaluation was one which brought considerable debate on the Senate floor. The Academic Affairs Committee, led by Senator Nick Apostala, wanted acceptance of the report in "principle" with further consideration being given to some of the specific points. Another group wanted the Senate to reject the Ad Hoc report and consider a Teacher evaluation report developed by the Mathematics Department.

It was pointed out that the Math Department could submit their proposal to the Provost for separate consideration. The eventual compromise motion reached by the Senate did grant approval in principle for the report, with further study to be made of each specific point especially point 8.

In the Athletic Council measure, the Senate called for the creation of a new Council giving much greater representation to students. For details see tomorrow's Collegian.

The Senate also passed a resolution urging the Faculty Senate to strike the present Athletic Council through an amendment to their Constitution. In future weeks the Senate will try to communicate with individual Faculty Senators trying to gather faculty support for the Student Senate's proposed Athletic Council. Petitions for student support will be circulated among the student body.

At the time of the Collegian deadline the Senate was in the process of viewing a film on earthquakes in California brought to campus by Acting Chancellor Bromery.

On The Inside:

- Search Committee — See page two
- Basic Foods — See page six
- Draft Counselor — See page ten

"The Cave Dwellers" will be presented Thursday, Friday, and Saturday in Bartlett Hall. Tickets may be obtained at the Box Office in Bartlett. (Photo by Barbara Brecher.)

Labor Stays On Board Despite Harassment

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Top AFL-CIO leaders decided privately Wednesday to stay on President Nixon's Pay Board despite what they called efforts by industry and public members to harass them into quitting and blame them for any failure of new wage controls, it was learned.

"There is no such thing as us walking off the board," said a source who took part in the closed meeting of the big labor federation's powerful executive council. That panel made the "consensus" decision to remain on the board and fight its rulings from within.

"It's better to participate on the Pay Board rather than be on the outside looking in," the source said about the decision that will be presented formally to the AFL-CIO convention Thursday.

The 15-man Pay Board has five members each from labor, industry and the public.

The source said that George Meany, president of the labor federation of nearly 14 million members in 117 unions, and others on the 35-man executive council, decided to remain on the board while launching a fight in the federal courts and Congress aimed at striking down Nixon's economic controls.

"We are going to go legal and legislative--that's the route we are going to take, but we won't get off the board," the source said.

The sources said Meany's chief economist, Nathaniel Goldfinger, reported "harassment" by public and industry members of the 15-man board at Tuesday's session in which labor's plea for full retroactive pay was left out of the minutes of the meeting.

"It is harassment and an attempt to discourage us and force us to walk out, but we won't," the source said.

Goldfinger sat in as Meany's alternate at Tuesday's Pay Board session in Washington and then flew here Tuesday night at Meany's orders because the labor meeting was "more important".

The five labor members were voted down 9 to 5 on their proposal that "existing contracts and policies previously set forth will be allowed to operate according to their terms," except for review in certain cases, sources said.

Goldfinger had confirmed this Tuesday night.

The rejected labor proposal, a copy of which was obtained by The Associated Press, also would have required that "this right of review shall not apply to any increase of 8 percent or less."

The board's industry and public members, with Chairman George Boldt abstaining, ruled to stick with the board's original decision against permitting most back pay for wage hikes blocked during Nixon's 90-day wage-price freeze. The freeze expired last Sunday night.

The Pay Board, in setting new federal wage controls, also outvoted labor members last week in generally limiting future wage hikes to 5.5 percent a year.

Giroux Discusses Press Politics

By STEVE TRIPOLI

Neil Giroux, State House reporter for the Springfield Daily News, said last night that corruption in government "inevitably exists in a state which has 66,000 state employees."

Speaking before the Alpha Phi Gamma journalism fraternity, he went on to assert that there are few corrupt legislators, but that there are instances of corruption stemming from the fact that a legislator's pay is "low" ($11,300) and that the "average legislator is barraged by lobbyists" in the course of his work.

He tied this all in with his main topic, the role of the journalist in covering politics, by stating that it is the reporter's job to write about these things. He maintained that this is done, but the public just doesn't read right.

Further on in his speech, entitled "An Appraisal of Politics and the Press in Massachusetts," Mr. Giroux said concerning lobbyists and their influence that it is common for a lobbyist to "Buy fifteen and twenty $50 tickets to a politician's banquet" obviously expecting a vote on an issue of interest from the legislator.

He stated that the journalist sees and writes about all of this collectively, but the public only sees bits and pieces of it in their haphazard reading of the newspapers. He closed with an appraisal of his job, expressing the opinion that as the burden of government increases the journalist will have more effect.

The question and answer period which followed found many students opening up and asking a wide range of questions. Answering a question concerning what he knew about the recent case concerning corrupt judges in Boston, Mr. Giroux stated that he felt that the judges ought to "go through the same rigorous examination to which they've subjected people in their years on the bench."

When asked what the most important role of the State House journalist was, Mr. Giroux replied that it was partly one of information, partly one of publicity for worthy causes--mostly the first. He also stated that a muckraker is not a bad thing, as someone has to "let the guy in the (voting) booth know what's going on."

Neil Giroux, State House reporter for the Springfield Daily News, states that as the burden of government increases, the journalist will be more effective. He spoke at Alpha Phi Gamma last night. (Photo by Gib Fullerton.)

Japan Hosts Students

From July 1 through August 25, 1972, approximately twenty students from the five college area will be able to participate in a summer seminar on Japanese studies using the facilities of Doshisha University in Kyoto.

Independent studies in various fields under the guidance of specialized persons will be the main purpose of this seminar.

A fee of $1,250, includes plane fare, round trip (Chicago-Tokyo-Chicago), room and board with breakfasts and dinners, a trip to Kyushu and other extensive excursions. The group's activities also will include Theater (Kabuki, Noh and Bunraku), Demonstrations of Tea, Flower Arrangement and Japanese Music.

For more details, please contact Yoshio Ozawa, Asian Studies Program, Thompson Tower, UMass, telephone 545-0778.

Vote Nov. 18

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

Office of the DAILY COLLEGIAN are on the second floor of the Student Union on the University campus, zip code 01002. Phones are 545-2550 (news), 545-0344 (sports), and 549-1311 (editor).

Second class postage paid at Amherst, the DAILY COLLEGIAN publishes five times weekly Monday through Friday during the academic year except during vacation and exam periods, three or four times a week following a vacation or exam period or when a holiday falls within a week. Accepted for mailing under the authority of the act of March 8, 1879 as amended by the act of June 11, 1943. Subscription rates are $6.00 per semester, $10.00 per year.

"COME TO WHERE THE ACTION IS"

DIALTONE

Route 5 West Hatfield

Featuring the famous Recording Group

The Vandell's

Every nite

9 p.m.-1 a.m.

Ladies' Nite
Sun.-Thurs.
Drinks 1/2 Price

Dr. Glenn Gorden, chairman of the Search Committee. (Photo by Carl Nash)

Procedure Proposed To Find New Chancellor

Committee Initiates Search Procedures

The Search Committee to nominate a permanent Chancellor for the UMass-Amherst campus has initiated the proposed procedure to be used in that search.

Noting that the first stage in the procedure is to generate suggestions for possible candidates, a subcommittee was formed at yesterday afternoon's meeting.

The purpose of this sub-committee is to draft a letter which will be sent to various university presidents in hopes of securing the names of qualified, possible candidates.

The committee noted that the purpose of this broad, nation-wide search is to bring into focus the best possible candidate for the position without limiting the selection.

It was also suggested that arrangements be made through Dan Melley of the Public Affairs Office to prepare a resume of the University itself, in order to make potential candidates more fully aware of the opportunities and academic conditions as they exist here at UMass.

The committee was hopeful that possible suggestions for the Chancellor's position could be generated through campus publications, through alumni and individuals on all three UMass campuses, and through the public at large.

The committee also noted the time element involved as a major factor.

As the list of the five final candidates must be presented to the Board of Trustees in February, it was noted that all letters of inquiry will be sent out by early December with preliminary evaluations of all candidates soon to follow.

According to this time schedule, interviews with the narrowed-down list of candidates are therefore scheduled to be held in January with the final list of five candidates to be then submitted to the Chairman of the Board of Trustees.

UMass Rackets Thrive

By CHARLES BERKOW

About 10,000 football betting cards are sold here on campus each week, according to Dennis Crowley, Deputy Director of Intelligence in the New England Crime Intelligence Section. Crowley made this estimate at the "Basic Drug Abuse Education School", which has been held in Amherst during the past two weeks.

The "school" is for policemen, probation officers, correction officers and others in Hampshire and Franklin counties professionally interested in the problem of drug abuse. Several members of the UMass Security force have been attending.

Crowley was speaking about the relation of organized crime in New England to drug abuse. He said that the betting cards, which sell for a dollar apiece, are controlled by organized crime.

The "school" is teaching police about drug abuse problems and enforcement problems and is helping them to understand drugs and why people use them. It is supposed to be straight-forward about drug abuse; a member of LODAC (Longmeadow Drug Action Commission, which counsels distraught parents of drug users) said that "none of the scare tactics of five years ago" are being used.

Robert P. Hanlon, Training Coordinator in the Drug Abuse Section, said that the "school" is presenting a "quite balanced approach to the problem." Speakers have ranged from Ron LaFrance of Room to Move, who talked about what the drop-in center is doing, to Francis Marshall, another Training Coordinator in the Drug Abuse Section, who spoke on "Informant Development and Undercover Activities."

LaFrance and other people from Room to Move began with a brief presentation on what they were trying to do at the drop-in center, and spent the rest of the three and a half hours they were there discussing the relationship between their role and the role of the police with the police.

Among other speakers, Assistant Attorney General David Vigoda gave a review of the law put into effect ten months ago that allows for the option of treatment, rather than jail, for drug offenders, and Alvin F. Oickle, the Managing Editor of the Greenfield Recorder-Gazette and advisor to UMass publications, talked about the relationship of the press with the police and how it might be improved.

The "school" which consists of talks and films, will end this afternoon. It is the fifteenth such school conducted by Attorney General Robert H. Quinn's office in communities across the state.

Commons Recruit Students

Sue Jankoski, a student member of the Food Service Committee, is working to recruit representatives from each of the dorms. The Food Service Committee is now in the process of being divided into smaller committees for specific purposes, such as surveys, food testing, and inspection.

"It takes from 8-11 minutes now for each student to go through the entire line and be seated at a table. The only way which the lines will be less time-consuming, and have less complaints, is for the students to get involved in making better changes now."

Budget Plans

The Budget Procedure for 1971-1972 will begin on Tuesday, November 23, 1971. The Budgets Committee asks that all groups present them with a written rationale, as indicated in the sample. This schedule was drawn up by the Budgets Committee and the Student Senate. Any group not presently funded and wishing to be, should see John Stevens in the Student Senate office by November 30.

Menus for next semester are being made up now to plan for the quantities of food that will be needed. For those students interested in making their stomachs happier, the Food Service Committee meets every other Tuesday afternoon at 4:30-6:30 in the back of Hampden Dining Commons. Dinner is included!

A "mod" look? Students try to liven up the Hatch by painting the poles in bright colors. (Photo by Steve Schmidt)

Vote

Nov.

18

Jerry Lewis Twin Cinema

Cinema 1 | Cinema 2

586-3209

Hamp Shopping Plaza King St., Northampton

SHAFT

SHAFT's his name. SHAFT's his game.

METROCOLOR

Everyone Wants CATLOW

GP METROCOLOR - PANAVISION

Shown At

7 & 9 7:15 & 9:15

Adults $1.50 Children 50¢

EUROPEAN CINEMA FESTIVAL '71 '72

adrift

A new film by JAN KADAR

THE TALKIE CINEMA

Intersection of Rte. 5 and Rte. 9

NORTHAMPTON CENTER

584-6909

ACADEMY OF MUSIC

AT THE GATES OF SMITH COLLEGE

Presenting "THE FRENCH FILM" Festival

NORTHAMPTON, MASS. 584-8435 - PARK MASONIC ST. LOT

Now-ENDS SATURDAY at 7:15 & 9:10

"Her knee was sharp, narrow, smooth, delicate... within reach of my hand."

BEST FRENCH PICTURE OF THE YEAR

SUPERLATIVE! VINCENT CANBY New York Times

JEAN-CLAUDE BRIALY
ERIC ROHMER
CLAIR'S KNEE

SUN. MON. TUE. only at 7:15 & 9:05

"★★★★! HIGHEST RATING!"

Bed & Board

In The Nation And The World

Nixon Signs Arms Bill, Disavows Withdrawal Clause

WASHINGTON (AP) — Accusing Congress of hindering his search for a negotiated settlement, President Nixon signed Wednesday a $21.3-billion military-procurement bill but brushed aside a provision calling for a deadline for U.S. withdrawal from Indochina.

His action was challenged quickly by anitwar senators who plan to seek a fund cutoff to force presidential acceptance of the amendment.

Even as Nixon declared he would not be bound by the procurement bill's withdrawal clause, the House headed for a vote on a move by Rep. Edward P. Boland, D-Mass., to cut off all U.S. war money next June 1.

Nixon strongly opposes the Boland amendment, just as he fought the amendment sponsored by Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana which was tacked on the procurement bill.

The Mansfield amendment "is without binding force or effect," Nixon said, "and it does not reflect my judgment about the way in which the war should be brought to a conclusion."

"My signing of the bill that contains this section will not change the policies I have pursued and that I shall continue to pursue toward this end."

The amendment Nixon said he would ignore was a weakened version of one passed earlier by the Senate calling for total withdawal within six months. After the House rejected that language, a compromise was passed which "urges and requests" Nixon to withdraw all troops "at a date certain" subject to release of U.S. war prisoners and an accounting for the missing in action.

Mansfield noted that the Senate has passed such an amendment, in one form or another, four times and said:

"It may be ignored but it will be in the back of his mind. They talk about a cat having nine lives. This bill will have more than nine lives if necessary."

Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, challenged Nixon's authority to ignore the amendment. He told a news conference:

"The Mansfield amendment is part of the law and as such is not subject to dismissal by the President.

"If he chooses to ignore it, then the Congress should enact enforcement provisions with the power of pursestrings which belongs to Congress alone."

Church said he and Sen. John Sherman Cooper, R-Ky., will offer an enforcement measure to limit spending in Southeast Asia to funds necessary to complete withdrawal of all U.S. forces from Indochina. He said it would be conditioned on release of all American prisoners.

The President restated his policy on withdrawal of U.S. forces and, although he used language somewhat different from that used before, presidential press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said that policy is unchanged.

"Our goal--and my hopes--is a negotiated settlement providing for the total withdrawal of all foreign forces, including our own; for the release of all prisoners, and for a cease-fire throughout Indochina," Nixon said.

He added:

"In the absence of such a settlement, or until such a settlement is reached, the rate of withdrawal of U.S. forces will be determined by three factors: by the level of enemy activity; by the progress of our program of Vietnamization; and by progress toward obtaining the release of all of our prisoners wherever they are in Southeast Asia, and toward obtaining a cease-fire for all of Southeast Asia."

The procurement bill authorizes $871.4 million less than sought by the Pentagon. Actual appropriations must be voted later.

Among its major provisions:

—A continuation of construction on the Safeguard antiballistic missile program at a level of $1.1 billion, about $160 million less than the administration requested. There is a ban on deployment of Safeguard at any new sites, but advance preparations are permitted at air bases in Wyoming and Missouri.

—An elimination of the President's authority to ban chrome-ore imports from Rhodesia. Ziegler said this provision does not go into effect until January, and that Nixon will take no action or have any comment while Britain is negotiating with the white-dominated breakaway African government.

—A $72-million reduction in the C5A aircraft procurement program and a $321.5-million ceiling on C5A spending this fiscal year. Another provision require the Defense secretary to report to Congress annually on major new weapon systems such as the C5A program which has been plagued with controversial cost overruns.

—A $350-million ceiling on fiscal year 1972 military and economic aid for Laos.

In Brief...

WASHINGTON (AP)-Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird denied Wednesday a report of restrictions based on race in assignment of military personnel at foreign bases.

At the same time the congressional Black Caucus continued its unofficial hearings on what it calls "Racism in the Military."

Rep. Parren J. Mitchell, D-Md., said blacks at Ft. Meade in Maryland live in a "climate of intimidation and fear that was almost impossible to gauge."

"The extent of racism in the military is so deep we cannot possibly cope with it," Mitchell said.

NEW YORK (AP)-Commerce Secretary Maurice H. Stans said Thursday the 10 per cent surcharge on foreign imports might be lifted in less then six months, but he did not see an end to government controls on the domestic economy before 1973. He added, "I'm not predicting that" in reference to the end of controls.

"Hopefully, the surcharge can be removed in a small number of months, less than six months and it could be considerably less," Stans told a news conference.

NEW DELHI (AP)-Prime Minister Indira Gandhi declared Tuesday that the East Pakistan crisis, which has brought India and Pakistan to the brink of war, would be solved within two months, a government spokesman reported.

She did not say whether the solution would come peacefully or militarily.

HONOLULU, Hawaii (AP)-Hawaiians are getting ready for a monumental trash hunt.

Some 236,000 of them, from Cub Scouts to corporation heads, have signed up for a nine-day litter cleanup campaign. It starts Friday.

"The way this thing has mushroomed is kind of frightening," says Eddie Anderson, who began organizing the "Hawaii is too small for litter" campaign two months ago.

Premier Assumes Absolute Control, Dissolves Parliament In Thailand

BANGKOK (AP)-Thailand's brief experiment with limited democracy ended Wednesday as Premier Thanom Kittikachorn dissolved Parliament, suspended the constitution and assumed absolute power.

Paratroopers moved into Bangkok to buttress regular police patrols, and tanks encircled the Parliament building. But despite imposition of martial law and police checkpoints in the streets, the capital appeared calm.

Regular announcements on Radio Thailand, interspersed with patriotic songs, said Thanom would head a Revolutionary Council with power to decide all civil and military matters. The Cabinet was disbanded.

The council pledged to continue Thailand's foreign policy, which has been strongly anti-Communist and pro-American during the Indochina war. There was no indication Thanom's assumption of absolute power would endanger the status of U.S. air bases in Thailand.

And announcement from Revolutionary Council headquarters said internal domestic strife and a threatening international situation had made the coup necessary.

The announcement, broadcast over national radio, said the internal troubles included obstruction by Parliament, insurrection in the north, student unrest, strikes and terrorism.

Constitutional procedures, it added, would have been too late.

Foreign Minister Thant Khoman, who lost his job, blamed Thanom's decision on "excessive behavior" of members of Parliament.

Men Deal In Children

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP)-A Boy Scoutmaster and a companion, charged with trying to sell an Oklahoma City woman's two small children for $7,000 and a used car, were held without bond Wednesday in the Duval County Jail.

The men were identified as William O'Hara, 37, also known as Milford Bennett, and Robert Westenhaver, 22. They were arrested after allegedly trying to make the deal with a police informer. The children Theresa Ann Cox, 3, and her brother Robert Donald Cox, 2, were in custody of a juvenile court after spending the night with the informer and his wife.

In Oklahoma City, authorities said Mrs. Cox reported that O'Hara and Westenhaver had planned a business trip to Tampa, Fla., and she told them, "I'm tired. Please take the children for a little change of scenery."

Police said Theresa first identified O'Hara as her father from a small, dim picture in a Jacksonville newspaper, but later in a police lineup could identify neither man as a relative.

The FBI said O'Hara and Westenhaver and their wives had been living with Mrs. Cox and her children and the full interrelationship of the group had not been established.

AUTO INSURANCE

ALL CARS — ALL DRIVERS
BUDGET PAYMENTS
CYCLES — SCOOTERS

Tekoa Insurance Agency

160 Pleasant St. Northampton 586-2742
10 Broad St. Westfield 562-3604

WIN A BUDDY!!
ARE YOU A TURKEY?

If so you probably need a friend. Here's your chance to win one. Register all this week at either store. The drawing will be held Saturday, November, 20th.

WEAR-HOUSE Friday's Fling
201 N. Pleasant St., Amh.
NAME:
ADDRESS:
This Coupon Good thru Sat., Nov. 20

Amherst Audio Friday's Fling
187 N. Pleasant St., Amh.
NAME:
ADDRESS:
This Coupon Good thru Sat., Nov. 20

UMass Fine Arts Council presents
Monday, Nov. 22 - 8 p.m.
SWINGLE SINGERS OF PARIS Bowker Auditorium
Tickets: 125 Herter Hall - 545-0202
JAZZSebastienBachHaendelVivaldiTelemannMozartBeethovenGershwinRavelAlbenizRodrigoGranadosDeFalla

Cambodians Strike Outside Phnom Penh

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP)-Cambodian troops struck the enemy defense line near the western outskirts of Phnom Penh Wednesday and fighting raged only 10 miles from the heart of the capital.

U.S. Cobra helicopter gunships also went into action on the front for the second day in a row, firing salves of rockets into the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong positions on a treeline north of Highway 4, the road to the sea.

"We need something heavier than rockets," a Cambodian officer declared. "The enemy is very well dug in underneath bamboo thickets and rockets are not big enough to get through to the bunkers."

The officer said his men, part of an operation involving well in excess of 5,000 soldiers, had lost four men killed and nine wounded in fighting and had pulled back about 500 yards for the night.

Some of the fighting in the treeline was at ranges of less than 100 yards, the officer said. The sound of firing and clouds of black smoke from air strikes marked the front line.

The new operation around Phnom Penh has been reinforced by M113 armored personnel carriers believed to have been withdrawn from the northeastern front, where Cambodian forces have been under heavy pressure from the enemy counteroffensive launched last month.

An offensive by Cambodian troops in the northeast began Wednesday with air strikes, shelling and infantry probes, a Cambodian high command spokesman reported.

The spokesman said he was forbidden to specify the exact location of the Cambodian thrust but that bombers had hit Chamvar Andong rubber plantation, about 50 miles northeast of the capital and around the town of Rumlong, 52 miles to northeast. The latter was taken by the North Vietnamese last week after an 18-day siege.

Most of the 20,000 troops in the northeast are cut off from overland supply routes and at least a four-mile stretch of Highway 6 between the troops and the rest of Cambodia is in enemy hands.

The high command claimed bombs blew up enemy ammunition and that about 200 North Vietnamese or Viet Cong were "put out of action" on the northeastern front. Two Cambodian soldiers were reported killed and 10 wounded.

Board Considers Requests On Auto Price Increases

WASHINGTON (AP)-The Price Commission Wednesday approved a 2.5 per cent price increase for 1972 American Motors cars but put off a decision on a Chrysler Corporation request for a 5.9 per cent increase.

It said also it is studying a Ford Motor Company request for an average 2 per cent increase. There was no immediate word from General Motors, which has said it also will ask permission to raise prices.

Meanwhile the Pay Board made its first challenge of a labor contract, the four-day-old agreement giving soft-coal miners pay raises of up to 35 per cent over three years and doubling management's contribution to the union pension fund.

These may be rolled back if the full Pay Board finds them "unreasonably inconsistent" with its general standard that new contracts may not contain increases in pay and fringe benefits of more than 5.5 per cent a year unless special circumstances warrant it. A hearing was scheduled for Thursday morning.

In other developments:

—Union sources in Miami Beach said the AFL-CIO Executive Committee decided in a private session to keep its labor representatives on the Pay Board.

—The Pay Board meanwhile met for a second day in Washington after reportedly refusing again to grant labor's demand for retroactive payment of wage increases lost during the freeze.

—It was learned that an arm of the Pay Board last Friday ordered, with no public announcement, that union workers in the construction industry may not get any pay raises until further notice. "Substantial clarification" of this situation is promised after a meeting next Saturday.

Chile Police Disperse Students

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP)-Riot police using tear gas dispersed 100 students Wednesday who had assembled in front of the presidential palace to protest the takeover of the University of Chile's headquarters building by leftist students.

In recent weeks groups of Marxist and anti-Marxist students have clashed repeatedly over the future of the university. Previously, it was the anti-Marxist factions who have occupied various campus buildings.

They claim that the Marxist majority on the university's governing board wants to bring the institution under political control of Chile's leftist government, which includes Communists and Socialists.

The anti-Marxists, who include the university rector, Edgardo Boeninger, want a campus plebiscite held to determine the true feelings of the 60,000-member student body on the matter of structural changes proposed by the governing board.

Russia Leads West In Space Age Weapons

LONDON (AP)-The Soviet Union now leads the West in the development of highly sophisticated Space Age weapons, an authoritative British reference yearbook said Thursday.

Moscow's advance was made possible to a great extent by costly duplication of effort by members of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, reported the editors of Jane's Weapons Systems 1971-72.

The 586-page volume, published in its third annual edition, is a companion reference work to Jane's Fighting Ships and Jane's All The World's Aircraft.

"Russia now has the initiative in weapons technology," the publishers said. "Whereas for a long time it was assumed--with considerable justification--that the NATO countries had a clear lead in the development of sophisticated weapons, it is now clear that the U.S.S.R. has extinguished that lead and is outstripping the West."

Recent advances in the Soviet early warning radar system, editors R.T. Pretty and D.H. R. Archer said, plus "the modern Soviet navy and the nature of its armament and equipment, and the existence of an operational antiballistic missile system around Moscow are evidence of the Soviet ability to take the initiative in weapons system development and deployment."

MDC Classifieds Pay

COLLEGIAN STAFFERS

TONIGHT

constitutuional convention for ratification

Colonial Lounge 7:30 p.m.

attendance will be taken

(only those whose names are included in the staff listing on page eight will be elegible to vote) refreshments will be provided

"India Nite" Held

The India Association of UMASS will present "INDIA NITE" ON November 20, at 8:00 p.m. at the Amherst Regional High School Auditorium-another of their efforts to bring the culture of India to the people around UMASS.

In a colorful array of bridal costumes, the "BRIDGES OF INDIA", one of the events, depicts the diversity of clothing within India-and at no time is this clothing more elaborate and colorful than at the wedding. Many of the dresses presented are the actual dresses that were worn by the models at their own wedding!

A vigorous and colorful "HARVEST DANCE" is put to music depicting sowing and harvesting; and then the "BHANGRA" - a celebration of the bumper crop-when the men sway wildly to the beat of the Dholak (an Indian Drum).

In contrast to the folk dances is a semi-classical duet where the accent is on graceful precision as opposed to energetic dynamics. Underlying all the dances is a panorama of color-an integral part of Indian landscape music and dance.

And then there is the "MATING GAME", where a U.S. returned Indian, armed with the skills of ABC's "Dating Game", is faced with the enigma of choosing from the intellectual, the modern and the homely female for a wife.

Join the UMASS India Association for this and more on "INDIA NITE", Saturday, November 20 at the Amherst Regional High School on Triangle Street.

The India Association will hold "India Nite" in an effort to bring the culture of India to the people around the University. The evening will be highlighted by dances, music and games.

WMUA

TONIGHT ON 91.1FM:

7:00 p.m. EVENING NEWS-a 30 minute report with world, national, and local news plus sports and a five minute recap of major stories at 7:25.

7:30 p.m. WARPATH (sports)

8:00 p.m. CYCLEBREAKER-Tonight a special behind the scenes look at the Vietnam Veterans Against the War. The program features portions of a recent meeting and interviews made by Cyclebreaker's Ed Roche. (one hour)

9:00 p.m. MARK'S BLUES-a two hour program with Mark Dashevsky featuring many blues artists.

11:00 p.m. LATE NIGHT NEWS-another 30 minute report from WMUA News.

11:30 p.m. THE RICK MORTON SHOW-Rocket Rick comes your way with music til 3:00 a.m.

Former UMass Students Receive Drug Sentences

Two former University of Massachusetts students from Springfield were sentenced yesterday in Hampshire County District Court to a year each in the House of Correction.

Charles Cross, 21, received one-year concurrent terms after he was found guilty by Judge Luke F. Ryan of two counts of forgery and uttering and a charge of receiving stolen property.

Cross was also charged with unlawful possession, possession with intent to sell and being knowingly present where heroin is kept, unlawful possession of a hypodermic needle and syringe, and larceny of less than and more than $100. These charges were filed by Judge Ryan with Cross' consent.

Judge Ryan sentenced Ronald R. Willis, 18, to three concurrent terms of a year for counts of forgery and uttering. Charges against Willis of larceny of less than $100 and receiving stolen property were placed on file.

Willis was also charged with unlawful possession, possession with intent to sell, and knowingly being present violations of the heroin laws. Judge Ryan continued Willis' cases on these counts to Nov. 13, 1973.

Cross and Willis were students at the unversity last year but were reportedly ineligible to register this year.

According to a spokesman from the office of the Dean of Students, Cross and Willis were ineligible to register this semester due to academic reasons.

Chief Escapes Car Injury

Amherst police investigated an accident involving a cruiser driven by the police chief this morning, just a block from the police station.

Police Chief Franics Hart, 62, of 232 Strong St., escaped injury, as did the driver of a second car, Jeanne Brownlow, 34, of South Hadley.

The cruiser sustained $200 damage, and the other car $100.

Deputy chief Donald Maia, when questioned about details, said Chief Hart was on duty at the time of the collision.

He was operating a town cruiser west on Main Street at 8:35 a.m. today, when the Brownlow vehicle entered the intersection in a north direction from Churchill St.

Both vehicles were driven away.

Maia indicated there would be no charges as the result of the collision.

When the Gazette contacted the Courthouse this morning seeking a comment from Hart, it was learned he was sequestered in a Probate Court hearing.

He is a deputy sheriff, serving during Superior Court sessions.

Grad Talk

Dr. Mortimer H. Appley, Dean of the University of Massachusetts Graduate School, will be the guest speaker at the Chapters' November luncheon meeting. It will be held at Newman Center Social Hall, tomorrow at 12:15 P.M.

Dean Appley will speak on the topic, "The Graduate School-Guest or Tenant on the Campus."

Lead Guitarist Needed

WELL ESTABLISHED ROCK GROUP

amiable and draft free

586-3587 584-1049

You'll Drop Your Pants!!

When you see the fantastic selection of CORDUROYS, DENIMS, and KNIT PANTS, Low Slung HIP HUGGERS for Girls, Regular Cut for Guys.

Also: FLANNEL SHIRTS OVERALLS PARKAS & COATS and a selection of KNIT TOPS, SWEATERS & JERSEYS

featuring MALE® Slacks & Jeans

The Biggest Little Store Around . . . .

WEARHOUSE (Wear-Else?)

Room To Move Drop-In Center 5-0400, 5-0401

COGITO ERGO SUM

The Thinker's Loft exists, too.

It is a bookshop crammed with books dealing with Philosophy, Theology, Biblical Studies, Ethics and Social Issues. There are also chairs and a lounge in which to read them all. Buyers are welcome, too. Open Daily at

25 N. Pleasant St.

Above Wellworth Drugs

In the Center of Amherst

Finally, a Low Priced System from Amherst Audio

Harman - Kardon 30 watt RMS AM-FM Receiver List $169.95

Garrard SL55B Automatic Turntable complete with base and dust cover.

a $25.00 Magnetic Cartridge (Grado FCR)

plus

Maximus - A coustic Suspensi Speakers

TOTAL LIST PRICE $295.40

Just $236.40

AMHERST AUDIO

197 No. Pleasant St.

Part I

Basic Food Is For Us All

(Editor's note: This is the first of three columns on food services, written on the basis of a survey taken by the Marketing Department.)

Basic Foods as they are offered in the Dining Commons can best be described as a style of eating which is primarily vegetarian, but with enough latitude to accommodate those vegetarians who feel that eggs, poultry and fish fit into their consumption patterns.

On October 5, The Food Service Department, Marketing Division, distributed a detailed questionnaire to students eating all boarding halls. The purposes of this questionnaire were to determine the acceptance of the Basic Foods program and the factors responsible for its popularity.

1357 completed questionnaires were received during the one hour the survey was taken. This rate of return was sufficient to provide information about the program and campus reaction to it.

Of those students who submitted completed questionnaires, a total of 47% indicated that they use Basic Foods at some time or another. When Hampden Commons (Basic Foods only) figures are deleted from the computations, the percentage of users drops only to 44%. This high usage rate in the general population may be caused by the sample itself, i.e. primarily those who are concerned with Basic Foods took the time to respond. Or, it could indicate that many students actually do use the Basic Foods service at least occasionally. The overall implication is that many more than 1000 students are taking advantage of the program.

In general, the survey revealed that about 65% of the students participating in the program are satisfied with it. At Basic Foods locations, dinner, which has a more extensive menu, is more satisfactory than lunch which is fairly non-selective as far as entrees are concerned. The majority (75%) feel that there is a sufficiently large number of choices of food items available to them. An overwhelming 86% also felt that the particular kinds of food offered were satisfactory.

Fatigued from long lines at din din? Try some oatmeal rolls, polenta, soybean casseroles, bulger, dal and chick pea broth to liven up your liver. 68% of the Student Body can't be wrong.

If such high percentages of students express satisfaction with the menu and variety, why do only 68% indicate satisfaction with the program? This initially appearing discrepancy may be accounted for by the many respondants who feel that Basic Foods is too crowded for them to participate. A large number of students who indicated that they never use Basic Foods gave that as their reason. About one-third of the participants feel that overcrowdedness is a problem and a surprising two-thirds feel that additional locations are necessary.

Why is Basic Foods so popular on campus? The survey results indicate that surprisingly few people are concerned with the philosophy of vegetarianism. Only 28% of the Basic Foods participants indicated that this was a very important factor in their choice. This is born out by the sales figures for chicken and fish items on the menu.

The most significant reasons for eating Basic Foods turned out to be atmosphere. In Southwest, 50% felt that this was important. Atmosphere is even more important in East Campus where there are few physical luxuries in the dining halls. The dining room used for Basic Foods is the most inviting dining room in the area.

Other factors found to be important in selecting Basic Foods include curiosity, concern with nutrition, and weight control.

Overall, this study of Basic Foods revealed that a large number of students use the service and an even larger number would like to use it.

A first step in increasing student satisfaction with Basic Foods has been taken. The menu has been revised to include a wider range of natural foods than previously offered. Items such as oatmeal rolls, polenta, soybean casseroles, bulger, dal and chick pea loaf have been added to the menus beginning this month.

In the near future, it can be anticipated that luncheon menus will become more substantial and pleasing to the participants. What will happen in terms of expansion of the service to larger dining halls or additional areas will depend on the students. If the numbers using Basic Foods remain as high as it is at the present time, serious consideration will be given to expansion for second semester. If, however, the program participation begins to drop--just might happen-- the space allotment will remain the same.

Vote

Carter Overalls Flannel Shirts Landlubber Jeans

WEARHOUSE

ONE NIGHT ONLY

Northfield Mount Hermon School Entertainment Series

presents

Leon Bibb "THE POETS SING"

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 20 8:30 P.M.

THE AUDITORIUM E. NORTHFIELD, MASS.

Tickets at the Box Office

$2.50 and $3.00

Students Pursuing Foreign Studies

Close to one hundred UMass students are pursuing study abroad during the current academic year. Many are in the programs of UMass--in Freiburg, Germany, in England, in France, and in Northern Ireland. Others have gone on their own with the advice of the International Programs Office, and are in such far flung places as Mexico, Spain, Poland, and Australia.

An additional two hundred students are expected to enroll in the University's summer programs at Oxford, Bologna, Freiburg, and Pau in southwest France.

Thursday night November 18 Gamma Sigma Sigma is sponsoring a program at which students interested in studying abroad can learn about procedures to follow and the many opportunities available. The program will be held at 7:00 p.m. in the third floor lounge at Herter Hall. Some students who studied abroad last year will talk about their experiences. The Director of International Programs, Mrs. Barbara Burn, will describe general procedures and requirements and answer questions students may have. She will also describe new arrangements under which students can study next year at the University of Keele in England, the University of Victoria in British Columbia, and possibly at Australian National University in Canberra, Australia.

PILGRIM AIRPORT

is open again

GLIDING is back!

flight instruction: sailplane or airplane

VA and FAA approved

interstate aviation inc.

River Rd., Hatfield Call 665-4072

Our Largest

RECORD SALE

Of The Year

Every Record in Stock Reduced for 3 Days

B $2.98 List 1.88 C 4.98 List 2.98

D 5.98 List 3.88 E 6.98 List 4.68

EQUIPMENT SPECIALS

Amplex Micro 9 Cassette Recorder Reg. 49.95 $39.88

KLH 20 FM Stereo System Reg. $399.95 $339.88

Many Floor Samples Reduced

THE LISTENING POST AUDIO CENTRE

25 So. Pleasant St., Amherst 186 Main St., Northampton

Sale thru Sat. Nov. 20

The Massachusetts
Daily Collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

BOARD OF EDITORS

EDITOR IN CHIEF — Richard C. Hanson
MANAGING EDITOR — Nathan Gorenstein
BUSINESS MANAGER — James Gold
EXECUTIVE EDITOR — Barry J. Rubenstein
NEWS EDITOR — Anne C. Sladnicki
SPORTS EDITOR — Earle T. Barroll

PHOTO EDITOR — Gib Fullerton
FINE ARTS EDITOR — Robert Nesti

TODAY'S STAFF

ISSUE EDITOR — Steve Fine
NEWS STAFF — Nathan Gorenstein
SPORTS — Dan Kamal, Bill Ballou, Earle Barroll
EDITORIAL — Ann Gurnett, David Williams
DARK ROOM — Rich Hinckley, Bruce MacConnell
AD LAYOUT — Elaine Stogel

Undergraduate newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The Staff is responsible for its content and no faculty members or administration read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.
Unsigned editorials represent the views of this paper. They do not necessarily reflect the views of the faculty, administration, or student body as a whole. Signed editorials, columns, reviews, and letters represent the personal views of the writers.

"This Here Boy Is A Strict Constructionist. He'll Uphold The Straight Old U.S. Constitution Without All Those Fan langled Amendments About Peop'le's Rights"

Art Buchwald

Whiter Than White

WASHINGTON--Thanks to the government, housewives are completely confused about the use of phosphate detergents.

First, they were warned that if they used these detergents they would pollute the waters of the land.

Then, after the women of America decided they would give up phosphates and use other kinds of soaps, they were told by the surgeon general to go back to using phosphate detergents.

Because of this confusion we have decided on a question-and-answer format to clear up this matter once and for all:

Q--Why does the government tell you one thing about phosphate detergents, and then a few months later tell you the opposite?

A--Because one department of the government never knows what the other department of the government is doing. The Environmental Protection Agency, which worries about clean water, is against phosphate detergents because they cause algae to grow in the water. The surgeon general is for phosphate detergents because they are safer for children to eat than caustic detergents without phosphates in them.

Q--Where do the soap companies stand?

A--They can go either way, at least in their advertising campaigns. When the first publicity about phosphate detergents made the headlines, all the soap companies announed they had new nonphosphate products that would save America. Now that phosphates have the surgeon general's approval, the soap companies are back to their old products and have decided their new detergents won't save the environment after all.

Q--What is the soap companies' solution to eutrophication, the process which clogs the water with algae?

A--The soap companies' solution is for each community to build new sewage-disposal plants to screen out the phosphates.

Q--Isn't that more complicated than screening out the phosphates before they go into the detergent boxes?

A--Yes, it is, but soap companies don't have to pay for the sewer plants.

Q--What is the surgeon general's argument for housewives going back to phosphate detergents?

A--His argument is that 85% of people using phosphate detergents are not contributing to water pollution. Only 15% of the population, mostly around the Great Lakes, are guilty of eutrophication. Ecology people opposed to phosphates say the surgeon general is all wet. Any time you discharge phosphates into water, they affect the quality of water hundreds of miles away. The lakes of 32 of the 50 shates show signs of dying from phosphate- fed algae.

Q--Who is the housewife to believe?

A--That's a good question. The housewife has to make a choice between clothes that are whiter than white or water that is cleaner than clean.

Q--Are you trying to say we must all choose between what we wear and what we drink?

A--Something like that. We have been brought up in this country to believe that clean laundry is next to godliness. But we now have scientific proof that people can live longer drinking clean water than they can wearing clean shirts.

Q--But won't a housewife be pilloried in her neighborhood if her husband's shirts aren't sparkling white?

A--That is the biggest myth of all. Nobody wears white shirts any more.

Q--If a housewife didn't want to use phosphate detergents and she was afraid of using nonphosphate detergents, could she use laundry soap?

A--What's laundry soap?

Copyright 1971, Los Angeles Times

Bill Gorczyca

Follow The Yellow Tile Floor

Now that some sections of the Graduate Research Center are open for business, the people occupying that building should band together in order to make some minor changes to correct its confusing aspects and make it more functional to the University community.

One of the main elements which leads to confusion is the lack of comprehensive directories at the main entrances of the building. The Graduate Research Center is a large building and many people waste a great deal of time wandering through a maze of corridors and climbing up and down stairs while trying to locate a specific office.

Then there is the matter of numerous unmarked corridors and doors. A visitor to the building has no knowledge of where he's going or where he's been. Finding the Graduate Registrar's Office is like falling onto your girl friend in a darkened room: you don't know where you are until you're there.

Finally the building itself is structurally confusing. Staircases lead to locked doors and many offices are clustered at the end of obscure, darkened corridors. Elevators are difficult to find which is a matter of great concern when one is confronted with the massive spiraling staircases in the building.

Although little can be done to correct this third situation short of dynamiting the structure and starting over again, a few minor corrections, such as providing a master directory at each main entrance and getting some intelligible markings on corridors and doors, would facilitate use of the Center. Some efforts have been made in these respects by individual departments, but they have not solved the problem. A unified administrative approach is needed.

A Cast of Thousands

Richard C. Hanson, Nathan Gorenstein, James Gold, Barry Rubenstein, Anne Sladnicki, Earle Barroll, Gib Fullerton, David Williams, Ann Gurnett, Stephen Schmidt, Barbara Brecher, Gary Alpaugh, Alan Chapman, Carl Nash, Bruce MacConnell, Jim Lavrakas, Jim Reardon, Rich Hinckley, Peggy Stecker, Peter Manera, Phil Sayre, William Mantzaris, Terry Wanczyk, John Fayad, John Mullen, Jeffrey Billig, Donald Motts, Christopher Conway, Linda Balick, Elaine Stogel, Dan Kamal, Robert Medeiros, Bill Ballou, Steve Forbes, Mark Vogler, Fred Rosenthal, John Bock, Jim Pinsky, Steve Gershman, Marty Kelley, Jerry Lazar, Steve Fine, Bob Callahan, Ernie Rotman, Don Bishop, Hugh Owens, George Wasserlit, Rob Brookes, Ethel Harris, Susan Sladnicki, Steve Sosnick, George Leary, Marilyn Martin, Diane Bissonette, Bill Rindlle, Francine Nicholson, Kerry Mello, Pete Forgel, Jeannette Mattheway, Jill Pelton, Emilie Sakpra, and her friend Kerry, Karl Genden, Jon Lyall, Charlie Berkow, Don St. Pierre, Judy Pittman, Karen Pearson, Brian Martin, Shirley Lanzon, Don Poulry, Susan Hubbard, Tim Larkin, David Green, Cynthia Hemmway, Diane Taylor, Joann Resleghem, Ed Burk, Bev Adamonis, Wmfred Bliss, Linda LaVine, David Sparling, Dennis Foley, Bob Kulesza, Bob McWilliams, Alan Wright, Bob Sprague, Mike McWilliams, Susan Cormier, Lloyd Adalist, Sharon McGorty, Ed Sloan, Nancy Cline, Susan Lobao, Barbara Spencer, Debra Marr, Mary Kurtz, Steve Tripoli, Don Glickstein, Steve Frid, Frank Baglione, Bob Nash, Kenneth Sulin, Mike McCormick, Frank Johnson, F. Jeffrey Trubisz, Don Murphy, Bill Gorczyca, Charlotte Lellis, Neil Coleman, Jim Moran, Tom Derderian, and His Nibs, Mr. Miceli.

If you have worked for the Daily Collegian some this semester and your name is not on this list, come to the meeting anyway.

MDC Staff

It's Hell To Be Male

By TOM DERDERIAN
EDITORIAL STAFF

It's gonna be hell to be male. To live in a constant quilt of helping with the housework, taking care of kids and doing shopping if these Women's Lib Chicks have their way. The shopping isn't going to be bad but cleaning toilets is definitely going to be a bummer. We men got to do something so we don't have to waste even part of our lives doing this kind of stuff. There's not too much we can do to totally stop the women's lib movement, after all we're only men, but we can use some tactics to keep women doing the dirty work for each of us. Women may very well deserve equal pay for equal work out in the open labor market, they should have outside interests and they should stop all institutionalized discrimination against all women, but here are some ploys men can use in their own individual castles to keep women scrubbing floors and washing toilets. (This is particularly for all you guys who came to college to find a wife to do all this stuff for you so you can advance in business or academia.)

Play dumb. Tell her that you'd like to help with the housework, but there's certain things that you're clumsy at like the routine stuff, cleaning toilets, floors and that you're really better at fixing pipes, cabinets or moving furniture (you know how women are always fixing pipes and cabinets) so you wait around for the pipes to break meanwhile puffing on your own (hash or tobacco)...pipe. Tell her about the experience she has and that it would be a shame to waste it. (Everybody knows that women and niggers are good at menial jobs.)

If this doesn't work you have to gear up to Phase II. You gotta get feline, coy and deceptive. Say to her, "I don't mind sharing the housework, but you'll have to show me how to do it." She'll agree right off to that one. Then you ask a zillion questions until she gets vomit sick and can't sit down to read or anything 'cause you annoy the hell out of her...right? We have our ways. So after she gets sick over the magazines and stuff, she'll decide its easier to do it herself.

If that doesn't work and you don't feel like sex starving her yet, then you try the old nostalgia trick. All you say is, "WE used to be so happy." You gotta emphasize the "WE" because what you really mean is "I"...used to be so blissful without housework. You gotta learn how to lie.

So you just sit back if she refuses to clean house. The place begins to look like a sty...you can stand it...you're tough...people come to visit. If you don't get sued because they get typhoid as soon as they get inside the door, they will put the screws to your wife or girlfriend if you're a liberal and never got a license. "She keeps a messy house." Then you let the years of guilt pile up on her and drive her into submission. and drive her into submission.

You can do passive resistance. Like I'll do my share and you do yours, but I'll do mine on my own schedule. So you get around to it about half past never to clean the toilets. Once a week is enough for the dishes and once a month for the laundry and once a century for changing diapers. If she doesn't like it, get nasty, tell her to do it herself. Plead with her. Tell her you hate it...tell her it is demeaning to your intelligence, but it is perfect for someone of her intelligence.

"I mean it is too trivial to talk about." Get her with that one, it'll make her feel like shit. Tell her it's not a man-woman problem but a problem of dominance...tell her your roommate back at UMass used to clean the room...see? Show that the one with the stronger personality had better be you!

It's not easy for us to keep our dominance as the American male but with these clever tricks the job should be easier for those who are already married or for those men who came to college to catch a woman. And one more thing, the last and most potent weapon...you can cut her off from sex.

PRISON REFORM

Letters To The Editor

A Rationale For Index

To the Editor:

Within the last few weeks there has been a growing discontent among the "minority" groups, as evidenced by various letters to the Editor column. Among these "minorities" are various members of the Athletic Department (allocation of scholarship funds), the flying club, which has sought funding, the Precisionettes, which have been completely cut off from the Student Activities Tax Fund, and the Index, which for the operating year 1971-1972, has been pared $31,969.

A few semesters ago a poll of students was taken and the results were published in The Collegian. One of the questions asked was to ascertain if the Index should be supported by the Student Activities Tax Fund. A majority of those replying indicated that they did want the Index so supported. Slowly, however, the Student Senate, undaunted by this rebuff of eliminating the Index as an R.S.O. group, has taken upon itself the task of squeezing the Index budget and in effect is forcing the Index to be "watered" into obscurity.

I feel that these "minorities" being pushed slowly out of focus in the University picture are more than just "minorities" and represent, in my opinion, a majority.

In a few years I want to be able to look back upon my four years at the University by thumbing through an Index which compares in quality with those Indexes of previous years, or for that matter outdoes them in outlay, color representation, and content. I don't feel that this can be accomplished under the present conditions. Furthermore, over a period of time, under these circumstances, I feel that the Student Senate is becoming divorced from the general will of the overall student body.

I am in the next few weeks going to attempt, through legislation, to have a review of the operations budget for the present year. The Student Activities Tax Fund contributes $562,300, which is an individual assessment of $17.75 per semester (Student Senate Document 71-S1, p. 4). Under this review I also hope to have re-allocated the $32,000 which was taken from the Index. Hopefully, in the future, the allocation of student funding of the R.S.O. groups will become more representative of the will of all the students, and not a minority, which in some cases takes an underload of courses, or the minimum required so that they can lobby for Student Senate salaries, take one course and be President of the Student Senate, or in other ways become lost in Robert's Rules of Order, while the overall feelings of the majority of students are forgotten, neglected or otherwise engineered subtley into the evergrowing maze of ad-hoc committees, subcommittees, or "temporary" Committees. As an individual, I relish the challenge of being an underdog in fighting the "system" and in this case it is the Student Senate system. I hope, in the next few months, to generate some of the "minorities" previously stated, and others on campus into expressing exactly how they feel. Furthermore, I hope to prove that these "minorities" are, in reality, groups which represent a majority of sentiment on campus, but in many cases have been more active in a formal, degree-oriented education, and have not been able to express themselves as a coherent, organized body, until now!

Walter E. Cronin

Are You Typed?

To the Editor:

I'm writing to re-emphasize the points made by Carole Law on Nov. 17. I can't see how anyone could ever have questioned the fact that women have as equal, if not better, opportunities as men. After all aren't there women doctors; just because a woman has to be twice as good to go half as far is no reason to think that she's being discriminated against. An even better example is the fact that women have the opportunity to apply for high executive positions in business; we shouldn't be discouraged if they ask us how fast we can type and take short-hand. And finally, not only can a woman "choose to be a mother", but society does its best to force the role upon her, for her own good of course, so that no woman will miss that beautiful experience. How does society do this? Well, first of all, there's the old-fashioned socialization method, which drums into your head (little head) from age one the virtues of motherhood; by age fifteen you just can't wait to get married and have children, so that you'll be fulfilled as a woman. Secondly, society labels any woman deviant who does not love children and wish to have several trailing on her skirts. After all, it isn't normal to stop and logically decide whether or not you want to be a mother--to weigh the pros and cons--people will wonder what's wrong with you! And on top of it all, motherhood makes it easier for women to have careers, because employers will think that they're more dependable; they know that our husbands will stay home with the kids if they get sick. Yes, Carol, today motherhood and tomorrow the White House--I hear Nixon needs a new maid.

Karen Jacobs

Juliusness

To the Editor:

Last weekend six of us, enticed by the prospect of watching our own Julius Erving in his home debut, journeyed to Long Island. As expected Julius was impressive. However, we came away from that gram more impressed by yet another man.

Although our phone request for reserve tickets had been denied, nevertheless we decided to chance not getting in and set out on our three and a half hour drive. Five frustrating hours later, after suffering though the nightmare of New York traffic, we managed to finally reach our destination. We were greeted not only by closed doors and a sellout crowd, but also by an excited mob outside anxiously seeking admission. Despairingly, we explained our plight to the sales manager of the "Long Island Garden," a Mr. Chuck Stewart. He answered us with his comment of, "Wait outside I'll see what I can do." Virtually giving up we decided to find a place to eat before drowning our sorrows in a few beers. Ten minutes later, halfway through our hamburgers, Mr. Stewart showed up. He had tracked us down from the "Garden" and very carefully, so as not to attract unwarranted attention, placed six tickets on our table- "compliments of the New York Nets."

Unlike Julie, Mr. Stewart had not fame, skill, or height but that night, in our eyes, he was a big man.

Rick Bower et al

Editorial Points

Tippoandhistomatoesusedtobe a standing campus joke. Mark Silverman never wasted an opportunity to get a laugh out of Tippo's passion for the rosey red ones. But with Dr. Bromery bringing an earthquake movie to the Student Senate last night it seems that a new has come to the fore: Rocks Randolph and his Swinging Seismometer.

***

It will probably turn out that no one is really responsible for the $99,000 in parking fees owed by unregistered vehicles; no one but the parking space thief who operates at night, rolling up parking spaces. He takes them home and stores them for a rainy day.

*****

Or the whole problem could have been started as a result of the Infinitely Expanding Volkswagen Thoery. The premise of this is that VW's are very insecure and therefore always tend to congregate. Think about it and you will realize that whenever you see a VW whiz by on the road, another is close behind it. VW's are always trying to catch up with each other. Well, as far as the campus is concerned this means that there will always be a certain number of transient VW's which are inexplicably attracted to the already large number of VW's owned by students. These VW's always pass on in search of other VW's because a by-law of the premise states that once in motion, a VW may not stop until the fourth degree of Life is reached. For a VW, this is approximately every 27 days or every third oil change, whichever comes first, the death of the driver or the opening of a can of rancid apricots in the back seat.

apricots

Technique Not Substance

By NATHAN GORENSTEIN
MDC Staff

I have an english class here. There are about 25 students in it, roughly one third english majors, the others taking the course out of interest, for a requirement, or simply to pick up three credits. There are smart people in the class and not so smart people. They are, to use a popular word, a microcosm of the university. It's too bad.

Because some of them, like so many others at this place seem to have picked up the notion that they are better than everyone else. That somehow they have more intelligence, that they are worth more as judged by some vague ethereal standard.

I realize how easy it is to acquire that sort of frame of reference. You go back home on a weekend or vacation and all the people you see on the streets seem so feelingless. Their faces are blank, they walk quickly by, not looking at who or what is around them, hurrying off to jobs or lunch. Maybe the kids you went to high school with talk about getting drunk Friday night and getting laid Saturday night and the car they just bought.

Fine, you don't like it. I'm not asking you to. But consider that maybe they don't like English classes, or long hair, or discussions on the theory behind a Joyce novel.

The instructor of my English class once accused us of being false liberals. We espouse the tenants of liberalism, but when it comes down to acting upon them, so many of us, consciously or unconsciously, back off.

How many of you reading this have ever done any thumbing in your lives? Guessing, I would suppose over 60%. Now, how many of you sixty percent when you are driving in your cars and see a hitchhiker, stop to pick him (or her) up. I would guess a smaller percentage. And I would guess an even smaller number (five, ten percent?) pick hitch-hikers up with any degree of regularity. Any one who has thumbed home from here can tell you the number of cars that go by with one or two students in them. The "straight" portion of people around here pick up more people than our freaks and liberals combined.

People, listen. None of us, whoever we are, are indispensable to anyone or anything on this planet. We are no better or no worse than anyone we meet in a day's events. The difference between us is one of technique, not substance.

If anything is ever going to change all of us are going to have to do alot more than express good intentions.

"Folks, This Is Your Captain Speaking — Let Me Say Again That Everything Looks Fine — "

New Education Programs Started

All students in the Classes of 74, 75 and 76 majoring in education and/or working toward certification (elementary or secondary) must join one of the alternative teacher preparation programs by the Fall of 1972.

The Individualized Program, which has been the traditional preparation program, is being phased out next Fall for all students except those in the Class of '73. They may complete their work in this program if they desire to do so.

Currently there are still nine of the fifteen alternative programs with openings: Alternative Schools, International Education, Mark's Meadow, Martha's Vineyard, Model Elementary Teacher Education Program, Off-Campus, Sociological-Historical Philosophical, Distributive Education, Urban Education. It is anticipated that an additional number of new programs, about six, will be announced this Spring. They will be both elementary and secondary oriented.

"Individuals in secondary preparation should particularly take note that they too must join one of the available programs," Phil Gates, Executive Secretary for Teacher Preparation Program Council, emphasized. "We expect anyone desiring to prepare for teaching to join one of the 15 to 20 units available."

"In fact," he added, "this will be the only way students will be able to arrange for their course work and field experiences with us after this year."

Students who have questions are urged to call the School of Education's TPPC office, 545-1543, 545-1544, or 545-1555.

"The sooner each student majoring in education or contemplating obtaining certification gets into one of the programs we are making available, the better it will be for him," Gates reiterated. "These programs are designed to provide each student with the advising he needs to complete requirements for teaching," he said.

ECO Lecture Given

Adrian Forestier is the first in the fall Distinguished Ecologist Lecture Series (D.E.L.S.) speakers sponsored by the Coalition for Environmental Quality at UMass-Amherst. Forestier will speak at 8 p.m. tomorrow in Room 20 of Hasbrouck Laboratory on the University campus. The public is invited free of charge.

Adrian Forestier is an engineering systems consultant to the University of Hartford Transportation Group. A current project under study is a proposed pilot transportation system for the greater Hartford area.

Forestier was born in China of English parents, and has travelled throughout the world in his engineering career. He is an advocate of deep-tube subway systems (as opposed to near surface types); the type generally being built around the world when new subway systems are contructed.

He will speak on the coordination of this system along with other urban transport system in his talk, "INTEGRATED METROPOLITAN TRANSPORTATION."

Campus Carousel

Superflush Is Contemplated

By TONY GRANITE

A SUPERFLASH SYSTEM for the modern-day toilets, which haven't seen many changes since they were invented in the 1700s, is being contemplated by an Urban Studies professor at Mankato (Minn) State College, according to the Daily Reporter there.

A recent story, headlined, "Crapper Invented It, Smith Plans Change," says that one Dr. H. Roger Smith is working on an idea that may revolutionize what happens when a toilet is flushed. What he is going to introduce is a system which would use water under extremely high pressure to reduce the amount used to a quart or less.

"Presently when you flush a john you use about five gallons of water to dispose of about a quart of waste, which is a tremendous waste of a resource. By using a system of high power jets and a small pump we can clean the same john by using less water, and clean it more efficiently," Smith is quoted as saying.

Besides saving water, Smith proposes recycling waste matter which, with water and methane gas removed, is rich in organic materials.

"After making it biologically inert, the sludge could be used as fertilizer."

The methane gas that can be refined from human material can be used in place of such natural organic fuels as coal.

Smith is awaiting the formation of a proposed Environmental Studies Institute to put his idea into practice. He says he can have a working system ready in two years.

"What better place than a campus, where you have all the human resource available, to develop such a system," he says.

****

MEANTIME, ON THE SUBJECT OF ECOLOGY, the Indiana Daily Student reports that "Recycling rates a blue ribbon for environmental effort, but often means red ink in a business ledger."

The Director of the local Environmental Systems Applications Center at IU, they said, lists the major problems as "the economics of recycling and the lack of an environmental ethic."

Twenty-four recycling plants have gone out of business nationwide since the first of the year, they said. Increased handling and transportation costs plus technical problems are responsible.

And the ESAC adds, "People say they are interested in the environment, but in fact they go out and buy the prettiest packages they can find. We need an environment ethic that is pervasive."

****

SPEAKING OF ETHICS, Termpapers Unlimited, Inc. of Boston has been denied advertising space by the UMass-Boston Mass Media. The editors took the view that commerical term papers are contrary to the principles of academic excellence and honesty," according to a story in the student newspaper.

Termpapers Unlimited reacted by charging the newspaper with a decision that is "arbitrary and unfair."

****

FINKING TO THE FUZZ-Twice as many informants on drug pushers are going to the Kent State campus police than last year, according to a report appearing in The University Daily of Texas Tech.

The KSU Director of Campus Security is quoted as saying that the possession and use of drugs does not disturb campus residents as much as pushing and dealing.

"People are apparently upset about someone who deals in drugs and does not personally use them. Profit and money have apparently made people unhappy. They resent profiteering."

****

WHAT'S IN A NAME department: Portland (Ore.) State U. calls him "Dean for Students", according to an item in a recent issue of Vanguard.

And the Dean, appropriately enough, reveals plans to create a student board to deal with policy decisions of departments under his jurisdiction.

****

HEADLINE in the USoFla Oracle, announcing a Theater USF production of Eugene O'Neil's famous play: " 'Long Day's Journey' Continues."

GM To Notify Corvair Owners

WASHINGTON (AP)-General Motors Corp. agreed Tuesday to notify some 760,000 owners of Corvair automobiles, from the 1961 through the 1969 year models of possible heater system defects.

The manufacturer will advise Corvair owners to have their cars inspected by a Chevrolet dealer and repaired, if necessary, to eliminate dangerous fumes.

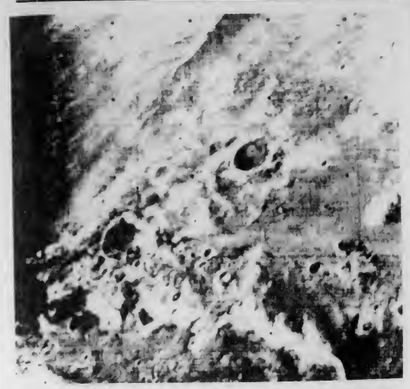
The inspections and repairs will be made at the expense of the owners unless warranty provisions are still in effect.

Secretary of Transportation John A. Volpe announced the agreement one day before a meeting at which General Motors was to have appeared with regard to an Oct. 29 finding of the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration NHTSA that a safety defect existed in the engine-and-heater system of Corvairs of the 1965 year model.

In view of the new development, the meeting was cancelled. General Motors disputed the finding, but agreed to issue the notice to all Corvair owners over the nine-year span.

NHTSA noted that it does not have the authority to compel a manufacturer to recall and repair motor vehicles free of charge.

"General Motors is doing more than the law requires it to do by agreeing to conduct a search for the names and addresses of all present Corvair owners rather than limiting its notice to first purchasers or warranty owners, as the law requires," said Douglas Toms, NHTSA administrator.



FACES OF EARTH
159 North Pleasant St.
Amherst, Mass.
Winter Coats
$7.50 to $25.95
Parkas
$24.95 to $39.95
Open to 10: 00 p.m.

New Shipment of Air Force Parkas
WEAR-HOUSE

Winter at OWH
We have just lowered our prices on all kinds of winter clothes.
OLD WEIRD HAROLD'S
NEW & OLD CLOTHING
Handicrafts Too'
Route 9
Road Northampton
(Next to Walter's of Hadley)
Tel: 586-3727
Mon. thru Fri. 10 a.m. - 11 p.m.
Saturday 10 a.m. - 11 p.m.
Jeans $2.50
13 Button Navy Pants $5.00
Flannel & Corduroy Shirts $1.50
Sweaters $3.00 & $6.00
Corduroy Jackets $5.00
Workshirts $2.00
Overalls Jumpsuits $4.50
Fatigue Pants $2.00
Furs $10 - 30
Shawls $2.00
Leathers, Corduroys, Velvets, & Antique Dresses (20's-30's) Parkas, Denim Jackets, authentic P-Coats, new Parkas, Felt Hats, Moutons, Tunics, Berets, Ibt-Shirts & Pants, Long Wool Coats, M-43's, Eisenhowers, Boots, etc.

NOW..YOUR CHOICE OF 5
Showcase
Rt. 5-W. Spfld.
Cinema 1-2-3-4-5
733-5131
MORE NEW SHOWS!
MORE NEW LOUNGER SEATS!
MORE NEW PARKING!!
MATINEES DAILY ... POPULAR PRICES
Adults $1.50 Mon thru Fri Matts
1 Gone With The Wind G
2 French Connection R
3 Sunday Bloody Sunday R
4 Joe Hill GP
5 Together X
ACRES FREE PARKING
ROCKER LOUNGERS
CHARGE YOUR TICKETS master charge
bankamericard

UMass Fine Arts Council Presents
MURRAY LOUIS DANCE COMPANY
London Financial Times: "Murray Louis is one of the finest Modern Dancers ever seen in London." Clement Crisp.
New York Times: "A brilliant dancer ... a wealth ability, a wildly dada concept of the ridiculous, and a crystal bright imagination." Clive Barnes.
BOWKER AUDITORIUM--UNIVERSITY OF MASS.
WED., NOV. 17 & THURS., NOV.18, 1971—8 P.M.
RESERVED TICKETS: UMass undergraduates $1.50; other—full-time students $2.50; UMass faculty staff $3; general public $3.50
FINE ARTS COUNCIL BOX OFFICE. 125 Herter Hall, Tel. 545-0202

(PASADENA, Cal.)—ANOTHER MARINER FREES MAR'S SECRETS. New and better photographs and other data which may answer the question of whether there's life on Mars are the goal of a U.S. spacecraft, Mariner 9, now approaching the red planet. This photo was made by Mariner 7 in 1969 and shows streaks near the south pole. Researchers at Cornell University say recent study suggests the streaks might be similar to grooves on earth caused by movement of glaciers.

Mariner 9 Peers At Mars

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) - Mariner 9's television cameras peered through the thick dust storm swirling on Mars Tuesday and gave scientists a dramatic second look at the strange ridge-like features on Mars' south polar cap.

The cap is covered with frozen carbon dioxide and appeared on television monitors at the California Institute of Technology Jet Propulsion Laboratory as starkly white against the gray surroundings.

At least one scientist thought the photos answered a question that has puzzled Mars experts since the area was first seen briefly by Mariner 7 in 1969. The same area was first seen dimly through the dust Sunday after Mariner 9 went into Martian orbit.

Earlier Tuesday, space agency officials announced they had sent some early data obtained by the spacecraft to the Soviet Union via a special "hot line" teletype circuit set up between Pasadena and Moscow. Two Russian space probes, Mars 2 and 3, are expected to arrive at Mars later this month.

The ridge-like features of the area, called quasilinear features, were discovered by Mariner 7 in 1969. Scientists want to know if the ridge of Martian mountains covered by the frozen carbon dioxide or whether the ridges are made of carbon dioxide by some unknown process.

Caltech scientist Dr. Bruce Murray said detailed study of the photographs might determine exactly what they are. Television cameras were able to see the polar cap Tuesday after scientists made some adjustments in the "seeing angles," the angle at which the cameras photograph the surface. They did this in hopes they could see through the dust, and purposely pointed the cameras at the area where they had obtained the earlier picture Sunday.

The Teletype circuit was set up earlier this month after agreement was reached between the two countries to exchange significant data. The data which National Aeronautics and Space Administration officials sent contained routine information regarding Mariner 9's mission to date.

Sontag Film Shown

"Duet for Cannibals," the fourth film in the series "Films for Intellectuals," will be shown at Amherst College, tonight.

Sponsored by the Amherst College Lecture Committee, the film will be screened at 7:30 p.m. in the Converse Assembly Room, Converse Hall, on the Amherst College campus. The event is open to the public without charge.

Directed by Susan Sontag, "Duet for Cannibals" deals with the influence of an exiled German radical and his wife over a young Swedish couple. The plot revolves around four characters: Arthur Bauer, the German radical; his wife, Francesca; Tomas; and Tomas' wife Ingrid. A strange relationship develops between the two couples when Ingrid becomes involved in the erotic games played by Arthur and Francesca.

The film has been described as having a mixture of Albee's savagery and Bunuel's derision. The "San Francisco Examiner" called it "an interesting, stunningly acted movie."

Jupiter Craft Readied

By THE NEW YORK TIMES

REDONDO BEACH, Calif., Nov. 16—As Mariner 9 continued to orbit the fourth planet, Mars, the finishing touches were being placed here on a spacecraft that should embark early next year on the first journey to the vicinity of the fifth and largest planet, Jupiter.

And by the end of the decade, if the nation's ambitious planetary exploration plans are realized, unmanned spacecraft will have reconnoitered or will be on their way to every other planet in the solar system.

These far-ranging vehicles, equipped with television cameras and remote-sensing instruments, promise to make the seventies the decade of the planets in somewhat the same sense that the sixties was the decade of the moon. After the remaining scheduled moonlanding missions, Apollos 16 and 17, there are no planned lunar exploration flights, manned or unmanned.

Most Ambitious Mission

The planned missions include a Mariner to fly by Venus, the second planet, in 1973 and take the first close-up pictures of the innermost planet, Mercury. Two Viking spacecraft are being designed to orbit Mars in 1976 and release landing vehicles with life-detection instruments.

In addition, engineers at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory in Pasadena, are drawing up plans for the most ambitious planetary missions of them all--the so-called "grand tour." It is the purpose of these missions to have spacecraft fly by and return pictures and scientific data on all the outer planets - Jupiter, Saturn, Uranus, Neptune and Pluto.

A "vital precursor" to such flights will be the Jupiter missions of Pioneers 10 and 11, Robert S. Kraemer, director of planetary programs of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, said here today.

Mr. Kraemer and Pioneer project scientists held a news conference to announce that the 550-pound Pioneer 10 spacecraft was expected to be ready for launching from Cape Kennedy, Fla., in late February or early March of next year and would fly by Jupiter in December 1973. Pioneer 11 is to be launched a year later and fly by the planet in 1974.

The Pioneers will be the first spacecraft to penetrate the vast asteroid belt between Mars and Jupiter, the first to study the giant planet's intense radiation belts and possibly the first to return data from interstellar space. One goal is to assess the hazards of deep space as a prelude to the exploration of the other planets.

"Much of what we know about Jupiter and Saturn is ambiguous," says Dr. Donald G. Rea, assistant director for science at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory. "And the farther out we go, the less we understand the natural environment, planetary structure and composition. About Pluto we know next to nothing."

EVERY FRIDAY ....
Our superb buffet will be from 6:30 a.m. to 9:00 p.m. Please come up to the buffet as many times as you wish. $5.50 per person.
The Lord Jeffery
30 Boltwood Ave. AMHERST, MASS. 253-2576
RAOUL DIETRICH, INNKEEPER

Room To Move Boogie
Fat
Flight
East Jesus
Movies
Video
November 19
S.U. Ballroom
8:00 p.m.
$1.50

Program Council Presents
"M. A. S. H."
Thursday, Nov. 18 S.U. Ballroom
7, 9:30, 11:45 p.m.
50¢

Fri., Nov. 19
7:00 & 9:00
Campus Center Auditorium.

Cagney & Bogart
The Roaring 20s

A U. Mass. Theatre Production
Wm. Saroyan's
THE CAVE DWELLERS
Bartlett Auditorium Nov. 18-20 8:30 p.m.
Reserved Seating Call 545-2579
$1.50 U. Mass. Students
$2.00 all others

The final performance of the Murray Louis Dance Company will be given tonight (Thur. Nov. 18) at 8 p.m. in Bowker Auditorium, concluding their three-day residency at UMass sponsored by the Fine Arts Council. Tickets are available in the Fine Arts Council Ticket Office, 125 Herter Hall until 4 p.m. Remaining tickets will be available at Bowker Aud. one hour before the performance. A phone reaching both ticket offices is 545-0202.

Attica Prison Remains Tense

NEW YORK (AP) — Attica state prison remains tense, and numerous inmate dissatisfactions have not been redressed, a special investigative panel appointed by the governor reported Tuesday.

The panel said improvements had been made since the bloody quelling Sept. 13 of the four-day inmate insurrection at the up-state prison. In some instances, privileges have been restored, even when unearned, to allay the still-seething discontent, its official report said.

The board was named by Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller to examine conditions at the prison following the insurrection, in which 43 persons--32 inmates and 11 prison personnel--perished, most in gunfire behind which state forces moved in.

The five-member board said, "The danger of harassment continues and the likelihood of unjust retaliatory and inflammatory acts in parole and other areas still remains."

However, its report said, "The Department of Correctional Services has agreed to take further steps suggested."

The panel visited and talked with Attica inmates transferred to other facilities after the riots and also interviewed prisoners transferred to Mayor Memorial Hospital, Buffalo, N.Y., and found their treatment to be satisfactory.

During early tours, the panel said it found the most pressing needs were easement of severe overcrowding, filling prisoners' medical inventories and increased monitoring in view of inmates' allegations of post-riot beatings.

Other needs it said it found were for bath facilities, provision for writing paper, toothpaste and personal articles, replacement of dentures and eyeglasses and improvements in food.

Draft Counselor's Corner

A Case Of Liability

By GILBERT J. SALK

A word to the wise, who will soon be going home to prove their wisdom by overeating, should be of interest. If you were born on or before Dec. 31, 1951, and you have a lottery number of 126 or above, you should drop your deferment and serve out your liability.

All you need to do is send the following letter to your board, along with your name and number. "Dear Sirs, I wish to drop my student (or other) deferment and be reclassified 1-A effective immediately. Peace, (your name)."

Make and keep a copy of the letter for your records. Take the letter to the post office and tell the clerk that you want it sent by Certified Mail, Return Receipt Requested. It will cost you 50 cents.

When your board gets the letter they will have to sign for it, and the post office will send the receipt to you. Staple it to your copy of the letter and store it. It will prove that the board received the letter and when.

(This procedure, by the way, should be followed with every transaction you have with your board.)

On the date that the letter arrives at your local board, you will automatically be reclassified 1-A, no matter when your boards gets around to formally reclassifying you. As long as you are in the pool on Dec. 31, you will have served your eligibility year as of Jan. 1, 1972. You only need to be in the pool for one day, in other words.

That's really all there is to it. On New Year's Day, you will be free of the draft. The only requirements are that you had been born on or before Dec. 31, 1951, and that your lottery number be 126 or above.

And don't worry about the number being right. As things stand now, there's no way they can go over 125. This late in the year, even if they wanted to they couldn't change the draft call for Dec., so the 125 cutoff is firm.

Please, when you go home for Turkey Day, tell your friends about the lottery game. They may not know how to use their high numbers. To be safe, cut out this column and bring it home for them to read. It might literally save somebody's life!

PEACE.

Japan Talk Given

Professor James W. Morley, director of the East Asian Institute at Columbia University, will speak on "Japanese-American Relations in the Seventies" at Amherst College tonight.

Sponsored by the Amherst College Lecture Committee, the event will be at 4:30 p.m. in the Converse Assembly Room, Converse Hall, on the Amherst campus, and it is open to the public without charge.

Dr. Morley has taught at Columbia since 1954. He was director of the East Asian Institute from 1964 until 1967, when he left to serve for two years as special assistant to the American Ambassador in Tokyo. In 1971 he was again appointed director of the Institute.

The Columbia professor is an advisory editor of the Journal of International Affairs and consulting editor of Asian Survey. He is a member of the Council of Foreign Relations, a director of the Japan Society of New York, chairman of the advisory committee of Columbia University Seminars, and a former director of the Association for Asian Studies.

He received his A.B. from Harvard University in 1943 and his M.A. from Johns Hopkins University in 1945. He was awarded a Ph.D. in 1954 by Columbia, where he specialized in East Asian and East European history. During World War II, he was graduated from the Navy Japanese Language School.

Could B.C. Lose?

Buy around trip bus ticket to B.C. Game & see!

NOV. 20

Departure 10:30 a.m.

C.C. BUS CIRCLE

BUY NOW $6
RSO OFFICE
or call
Student Senate
Bus Service

Nothing to do this weekend? See
WOODY ALLEN in
"Take The Money and Run"
(1969 - in color)
*Portraying "Virgil" in a variety of hilarious misfortunes
*Plus short subject
Sat. - Nov. 20 - Mahar Aud.
7-9-11 p.m.

INDIA ASSOCIATION'S INDIA NITE
Sat., Nov. 20, 8:00 p.m.
Exotic Dances
Scintillating Music
Delicious Indian Snacks at Amherst Regional
H.S. Auditorium
Triangle Street
Admission $1.00
Tickets at the Door
Reservations: 549-6869 586-0921

Russian Rabbi Dies

MOSCOW (AP) — Yehuda Leib Levin, chief rabbi of the Moscow synagogue and unofficial leader of Russia's three million Jews, died today at the age of 76, Tass repored.

The Soviet news agency said the rabbi had been suffering from heart trouble for the past few years.

Rabbi Levin took over the Soviet Union's most important synagogue in 1957 and since then has had tacit government approval to act as the chief spokesman for Soviet Jewry.

Three years ago, Rabbi Levin spent two weeks in the United States defending the Soviet Union's Jewish policies.

Urban Education Internships
Available For January
There are
Student Teaching Positions
still open in:
Pasadena, Calf.
Washington, D.C.
Paterson, N.J.
Brooklyn, N.Y.
Louisville, Ky.
Worcester, Mass.
For info. call:
545-1560
or 545-1582
Between 9-5
AS SOON AS POSSIBLE
Ask for:
Barbara Love
Dick Schaye
Dennis Tyler
Pat Proctor

Notices

ANGEL FLIGHT
Meeting tonight, 7 p.m., Marilyn Dyer, you had better show up with the composites.

BLACK WOMEN-FEMINAR
Saturday, Nov. 20. Meet for rides as follows: 8:45-9:15 a.m.:
-S. West: on bridge opposite Melville
-Orchard Hill: in front of Field
-Elsewhere: on N. Pleasant St. near North D.C. any questions call 546-6908.

BRIDGE CLUB
There will be a bridge play tonight at 7 p.m. in rm 174 CC.

COFFEE HOUR
All university women welcome to a coffee hour at Chi Omega Frat/Sor park on Thursday from 7-8 p.m. Entertainment and refreshments. Rides leaving Newman Ctr. 6:45.

COLLEGIATE PARACHUTE CHAMPIONSHIP
UMass parachute team will represent UMass in Deland, Florida next week. Bet you didn't even know we existed? Interested? It happens every weekend at Turner's Falls Airport.

CUSP
Meeting tonight at 7:30 p.m. in rm 15 Bartlett. All psych majors welcome to attend.

CULTURNATIVES RAP SESSION
Thursday at 2:30 in 90 CC. Open to all. Advice: bring something about yourself you'd like to change. We may try to create a change-supportive environment. Peace.

GAMMA SIGMA SIGMA PLEDGES
Pledge meeting at 7:30 p.m. in Memorial Hall tonight.

HEALTH SERVICES STUDENT ADVISORY BOARD
We're meeting tonight at 3:30 in rm 802 CC. We're discussing new projects and new problems. Please come and be a contributor.

POVERTY COMMITTEE
Meeting at 6 p.m. tonight. Very important. All members should attend, rm 801 CC.

LANDSCAPE OPERATIONS CLUB
Thursday the LOC will meet in French 9 at 7 p.m. Speaker will be Prof. Paul Procopio, of the Dept. of Landscape Architecture and Regional Planning, UMass.

ROISTER DOISTERS
Anyone interested in direction Spring production, submit proposal by Dec. 2 to Bill Menezes in 415 Machmer or call 52043 Opportunities available in design, stage crew and all facets of production.

SAILING CLUB
There is a meeting tonight in rm 169 for all sailors. Hopefully there will be a movie. Past and new members are urged to attend.

SCROLLS
Meeting tonight in rm 805-809 CC at 6 p.m. Bring candy money. Call 68240 if you can't attend.

STUDENT HOMOPHILE LEAGUE
Coffee hour--tapes of local radio shows that SHL members have appeared on--7 p.m. in CC 917-for further info call 5450154 or come to office, 413 SU-- on balcony above lobby.

STUDENT SENATE PARKING COMMITTEE
Meets tonight at 8 p.m. in 803 at the Campus Center.

SWEET CORN THEATRE WORKSHOP
Free-open to everyone--tonight at 8 p.m. at the Marks Meadow gym, next to School of Ed.

UMASS SKI PATROL
There will be a meeting at 6:30 in rm 165 CC. Tonight for all Ski Patrol members, plans will be discussed for the Hill Course.

UMASS TAE KWON DO CLUB
Meeting this evening in rm 17 of Boyden gym at 8:30 p.m. All new members--people with or without experience in Korean karate--are invited to attend.

VIETNAM VETERANS AGAINST THE WAR
Come and meet the other side. VFW, AL & VA will be at our meeting tonight at 7:30 in the Commonwealth Rm (SU).

WILDLIFE SOCIETY
No meeting this week due to exams.

WMUA STATION MEETING
There will be NO station meeting this week. The November meeting has been cancelled.

LOST
One greeen metal tool box. Monday in CC Store. Contains etching tools and supplies. If found contact Denise, 416 Leach House.
Green snorkel parka w/wallet at Student Ctr. at 11 Wed. Call Jeff at 2532979 late. I have your parka and gloves. Brown leather trim girl's wallet, Belgium linen, $11 & many valuable cards. Call 66794.
Brown leather pocketbook Monday in "Bites 'n' Pieces". Please return to Marcia 309 Coolidge, 67961. Need ID's.

FOUND
Orange and white female kitten. 4 white paws, possible part Angora. Found near Puffton. Owner call 549-3862.
To the person who brought my blue-flowered umbrella to the CC lost & found, thank you.

Special:

Pewter Tankard only $8.50
or
This Handsome Whistle Mug for $13.50!! at BAKER-WINN
JEWELERS
"everyone's favorite jeweler"
31 So. Pleasant St., Amherst

MOVIE
The Prime of Miss Jean Brodie
Mahar Aud.
Fri., Nov. 19
7:00 and 9:30 50¢
Sponsored by Newman Club

MDC CLASSIFIED

AUTOS FOR SALE

'62 Renault Dauphine, excellent body, motor, 38,000 mi., new clutch, 5 gd. tires, needs fuel pump, $100. 948 No. Pleasant St. tf11-19

Real creampuff! '65 Pontiac Lemans, 6 cyl., only 40,000 mi. New brakes, tires, shocks, tune-up, sticker & much more. Asking $550. Call 546-6076. tf11-18

1966 Red Porsche 912, new tires, new battery, good mechanical condition. Best offer. Call 545-2330 or 253-9680. tf11-22

1962 TR-4, new snow tires, battery, shocks, exhaust, body, mechanics in v.g. cond. Must see to appreciate. Asking $350. Call Mark at 253-9611. tf11-19

VW bus, not running good for parts, 4 new tires. Call Bill 253-7148. tf11-22

1963 Oldsmobile 88, new tires & batt., body gd., no dents, asking $200. 549-6318. 11-18

1963 Falcon, new tires, front end good, 6 cyl., auto., great mileage, engine needs minor repair work. Cheap! 665-4602 after 5 p.m. tf11-22

Cheapest Mercedes, 1962, 220sb., runs ok but needs work. With book, spares. After 5 p.m. 863-4424. tf11-23

1966 Opel, good condition, ask $650. Call anytime. 253-9542. tf11-19

1960 Cheverolet Biscayne, running condition, fall sticker, 82000 miles. $45. Call Sumesh after 5 p.m. 549-1644. tf11-18

67 Corvair, excellent condit., automatic, air cond., snow tires, radio, 20,000 miles, $645, phone 253-9425. tf11-19

1967 GTX Plymouth conv., 4 speed, 440 cu. inch, rebuilt trans. and carb., new battery and radiator, excel., shape $800, or B.O., Call 584-4066. tf11-18

'67 Chevelle Malibu, 2-door hardtop, vinyl roof, radio, V-8, A.T., P.S., excellent condition, $995. Call 253-3067. tf11-19

MOTORCYCLES FOR SALE

69 Yamaha 350, here is that great buy you've been looking for. Bike is perf., new tire & tune-up. Drive it away for only $400. 546-6078. tf11-18

FOR SALE

Rieker Plastic Buckle Boots, Orbis G1, size 8 1/2m, used one ski season. Call Larry 617-541-6387, asking $45. tf11-19

63 W.W., can run well but needs some work, sunroof, r & h, 2 fairly new tires, $125 or best offer. Also Nikon Cam. Equip. Call 665-4767. tf11-22

Original Turkish Sheep Skin Coat for a lady, white outside, white fur inside, $90. Call Ahmet 546-6210 after 8 p.m. tf11-22

Humanic Comp Ski Boots, 8 1/2 M, used 1/2 season, $110 new, $45, good shape. May be seen at 160 Lincoln or call Stan at 256-8062. 11-18

Must sell 1 month old pair of EPI 401's, traded for EPI mini towers. Cost 500 the pair new. Sacrifice for $250, Mike 256-8132. tf11-19

AR receiver, 3 weeks old, 120 watts, r.m.s., cost $445, sell $295; AKAI X300D, 1 year old, 20-20000 flat s.o.s., sws., cost $430-$295. 253-8587. tf11-24

Like new $140 Columbia 10-speed bike $70. Also $150 Mono Eico tuner, very good cond., $45. Call Dave 527-6367. tf11-19

8-track tapes all on original label. Wide selection, only 2.50 each. Call 6-5830 on Campus or see Bruce in 706D Brown. tf11-18

Custom hard top for TR4 a, 4 bolts, best offer, over $35. Also 1 set of speakers for home use, must hear. 665-4781. tf11-18

64 Bonneville, rebuilt engine, rebuilt transmission, automatic, all power, $500. Must sell. Call 967-5463 after 6 leave phone & address. tf11-19

Benjamin compacts EMI speakers, Lenco and Miracord turntables at low prices. Concord Equipment at Discount Prices Call 546-6017. tf11-23

Two Mohawk 770 magnum tires, mounted on 14" mags. Will fit any GM car. Pretty new. 1 need $. Dave 546-8004. tf11-19

Natural hide bags, pillows, purses, steer, sheep, goat. Great Xmas gifts. Indian kid skin to $10. Camp Center, Thur. 8-7538 225 James. tf11-18

Rickenbacker 12 string semi-accoustical electric guitar with case, excellent condition, best offer. Call Ed 253-9957. 11-18

Used Rock records for sale in exc. cond. incl. English and Bootlegs $1.25/rec. Call 253-5945. tf11-19

Discount Stereo Components, compacts, T.V.'s. 20-40%off list price. Most major brands available. Jim Jensen 586-1365. tf11-18

AKC Pemgroke Welsh Corgi male, 8 wks, red & white, great disposition, $100.00 Call 498-5819. tf11-18

Records! New albums in stock, tape & sterco equipment by order, discount prices, come to 242 Gorman or call John at 546-6479. tf11-18

Guitars Amps, drums, acc. at reasonable prices. The Guitar Workshop, 98 Main St., North, 586-1704. tf11-20

WANTED

Daily Hampshire Gazette is interviewing students & others for working as stringers. If interested call Editor at Gazet, 584-5000. tf11-22

Female desires traveling companion to West Coast, leaving around Dec. 1. Call Joan Gipson, 538-2303. tf11-19

Photographer wants open-minded female models. Good pay. No exp. required. Write: Rob, PO Box 272, Chicopee, Mass. 01014. tf11-18

Students needed (males) for Psych expt. $2 dollars paid. Contact Jeanne in Bartlett 229B. tf11-19

Guitar teacher, in Amherst for two older kids, neither a beginner. Call 549-0630 after 5:30 p.m. tf11-22

FOR RENT

Presidential apartment-sublet available Nov. 15, $165, including utilities. Call 253-2515. Kamins Real Estate. tf11-19

Giant size apt., Cliffside, one bedroom, all electric. Call 665-4931, available Jan. 1st. tf11-19

Available Dec. 1, 1-bdrm. apt. at Cliffside 135, all utilities. Call 665-2025. tf11-19

Available immediately, 1 bedroom, townhouse, Puffton Village, near UMass, all conviences. Call 549-0177. $156 9 mon. lease. tf11-19

PERSONAL

Frank-first things first. Who are you? 11-18

To Anni: from all us in rooms 314 & 318, including Harry Domo. Have a glorious 19th Birfday! 11-18

Dean, Happy Birthday and Happy Anniversary. May your nineteenth year and our second year be the best ever. Karen. 11-18

India Nite-I have a date with you on 20th Nov. at Amherst Regional H.S., 8 p.m. Call 549-6869. tf11-19

Happy Birthday Frank from Sig, Steve, Chuck, Dee, Bob, Elaine, Lynn, Chico, Weebie, and Lotsa luck. tf11-22

Bouffie: Put it in the box! 11-18

Happy Hour this Friday, Nov. 19 at Phi Sigma Delta from 7:30 - everyone invited. tf11-19

I WANT TO SHARE IN AN OCCULT EXPERIENCE. SEANCE PREFFERED - OR OTHER. PLEASE CALL DEBBIE 546-6868. tf11-18

You're warm, warmer, now you're hot in an authentic air force parka: Mens $37.50, boys & girls $34.50 Call Al at 549-0814-275 Puffton Vill. tf11-19

RIDE WANTED

Ride wanted to either Syracuse, Albany, Rochester or Buffalo, Nov. 23 or Nov. 24. Call Bruce 6-1065. 11-18

Help!-secretary desperately needs ride from UMass to Granby weekday eve. Leave Campus after 5. Call Diane at 5-6600, ext. 68 or 467-9107. tf11-22

ROOMMATES WANTED

Two girls wanted to share bedroom in Puffton Apt. for second semester $55 a month. Call 549-0871. tf11-23

Female roommate to share 2 bdrm. twnhse. apt w. 3 others. Immed. occ. 256-8891, keep trying. tf11-22

Female-preferably grad student. Own room, $80/month includes utilities. Call Linda 665-4125. tf11-23

APT. WANTED

Apt. or large efficiency wanted in Amherst. ($150/mo. or under range) Call Hank-584-6586. tf11-19

SERVICES

Qualified guitar teacher looking for students, reasonable rates. Call Ed at 546-6306. tf11-19

REWARD

For info. leading to recovery of male dog part gold Retriever & Setter. Short ft. tan hair. 6 months old. Lost 11-1-71. 584-0079 after 1. tf11-19

Reward for return of lost wide gold wedding ring. Initials KMW to JSE 8/7/70 If found please call Jake 549-3016 or Kathy 549-1311. tf11-19

$15 REWARD

1 yr. old male Sealpoint Siamese, old brown collar, answers to "Snowy", missing from 327 Puffton since Oct. 9. Please call 549-6786. tf11-18

WANTED TO RENT

2-4 bedroom apartment or house for January or February 1. Call 546-6515 or 546-8560. tf11-19

Wanted for Jan. 1, one bedroom apt., pet must be allowed. Rent between $130 and $160. Call 665-4405 after 6, Mo. & Wed. night. tf11-19

TYPING

Typing-theses, dissertations, etc. Fast, accurate, experienced. Have Math and Chem. symbols. Call 253-3601. tf12-21

TRAVEL

Crimson Travel offers low cost spring vacation trips to Bermuda and Nassau. For more info call Rich Margil 412 Dwight 545-0790. tf11-19

LOST

To the girl who found $21, in front of the Student Union Lobby counter on Fri. Eve., please return it to me-Dan Hikin,- Govt. Dept.-Off. tf11-18

STUDENTS BOOK MATCHING

Register your book in S.U. Rm. 318. Every student with your course next semester will need your books save $ money, sell direct. tf-sem.

FREE

Free kittens, 7 weeks old, 256-6155. tf11-19

MOVIE

WOODY ALLEN IS HILARIOUS IN "TAKE THE MONEY AND RUN" IN COLOR, SAT., NOV. 20, MAHAR AUD., 7, 9, 11 P.M. tf11-19

HELP WANTED

Ski instructors wanted at Berkshire East. M or F, experienced part or full time. Send resume to Director, 21 North St., Windsorlocks, Conn. tf11-19

JOBS

Overseas jobs for students. Australia, Europe, S. America, Africa, etc. All professions & occupations, $700 to $2000 monthly, expenses paid, overtime, sightseeing. Free information-write Jobs riverseas, Dept. 8B, Box 15071, San Diego, Calif. 92115. tf11-22

Professor Finishes Finland Sabbatical

Dr. Paul F. Saagpakk, Associate Professor of English at the University of Massachusetts, has recently returned to campus after spending a year long sabbatical leave in Finland. A 1970 recipient of a Fulbright scholarship for literature, Dr. Saagpakk was involved in the monumental task of researching and finishing his major work, An Estonian-English Dictionary, the end product of more than twenty years of scholarly research. This work is believed to be the only one of its kind in existence with respect to its size and scope.

While in Finland, Prof. Saagpakk had been a guest lecturer on the topic of poet Wallace Stevens. He delivered his lecture at the Estonian Learned Society in Stockholm, Sweden; Uppsala University, Sweden; the University of Helsinki, Finland; the University of Freiburg in Germany, and in other major academic centers of Europe.

In addition to this purely academic lecture, Dr. Saagpakk was also involved in the subject of various American minorities. He delivered lecture titled "Cultural Activities of Some American Minorities" at the Finnish-American Society, Helsinki; the Helsinki Ladies Club, the Finnish-American Society, Joensuu, Finland, as well as other Finnish-American Society chapters, located in such diverse Finnish cities as Valkekoski, Oulu, and Tornio. In addition, Dr. Saagpakk's speaking engagements took him north to the Artic Circle, where he spoke at the Rovaniemi Finnish-American Society and the Rovaniemi Coeducational Senior High School.

Dr. Saagpakk has also been instrumental in arranging exchange programs between universities in Sweden and Finland and the University of Massachusetts.

Dr. Saagpakk is a graduate of Uppsala University, Sweden, where he obtained the Swedish equivalent of the American Ph.D. At Uppsala, he later became head of the Department of English Literature. Emphasizing psychopathology in the modern novel, he received his Ph.D. from Columbia University in 1965. On campus, he teaches a popular course in the modern novel, and he is closely associated with the Finnish Language Course.

According to Dr. Saagpakk, "This lecture deals with cultural activities of Jews, Italians, Irish, Finns, and Estonians, mainly in New York City. In my lecture I emphasize the importance of these cultural activities in their adding color and original features to American culture on the whole, and enriching the American cultural canvas..."

Reserve Hamlin Room Now

All residential students who plan to remain on campus over the Thanksgiving vacation will be required to reside in Hamlin House located in the Northeast area. Further, they will be expected to abide by the procedures listed below.

1. Telephone the Accommodation Office's main desk at 9-549-6000 and secure a reservation in Hamlin House. Reservations will be made by phone or in person up to and including Friday, November 19.

2. Confirmation of phone reservations must be done in person on Monday, November 22. The hotel lobby desk is located on the third floor of the Campus Center. Failure to appear in person on the 22nd will negate the remaining telephone reservations.

3. All residential students who remain on campus in Hamlin House will be required to pay $2.50 per night for their accommodations. These charges will be collected in Hamlin House by the clerk on duty before a room key is issued.

4. Sheets, pillows and blankets will be available for a cost of $1.75 if so desired or you may bring your own.

5. Residence halls on campus will reopen at 1:00 p.m. on Sunday, November 28, 1971.

VOTE

MDC Classifieds

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

by SYDNEY OMARR

Gemini is quick with quips. For humor and activity, it is difficult to top members of this zodiacal sign. Gemini is on the move, mentally and physically. Some famous persons born under this sign include Bob Hope, Ralph Edwards and Mickey Katz.

* * *

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Hold off on travel, if practical. Reservations, directions need checking. Some ideas are subject to revision. Relatives, neighbors now tend to act in eccentric manner. Key is to maintain humor.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Delve into details, especially where finances are concerned. Stick to quality. One who offers something for nothing is not to be taken seriously. Aquarius person can aid cause. Respond accordingly.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): You may be impatient to get started. But wise course now is conservative. Find out where, when and why. Older individual has your best interests at heart. Respond in manner which shows appreciation.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Key now is proper pacing. Gain co-operation of those who share views. Some family members could express envy. Show that you have no wish to exclude them. Message becomes increasingly clear.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Perceive needs of one who performs special services. Means go out of your way to express appreciation. Gift purchase could work wonders. Young person could act in rebellious manner.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Practical issues dominate. Leave speculation to others. Gather facts, analyze figures. Someone is trying to tell you something. Be receptive. Perceive truth when you encounter it.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Finish what you start. Round out reports, projects. Obtain valid hint from Virgo message. See through guise of one who would sell you pig in poke. Some notes need review and revision.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): You may be expending too much effort, money in wrong direction. Pull in reins. Let caution now be better part of valor. New outlook is needed. Leo individual can get what you need.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Avoid self deception. See situations, persons as they actually exist. This will make progress easier. Otherwise, you will be taking backward steps. One who opposes you is bluffing.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan.19): Forces tend to be scattered. You may be trying to do too much at once. Expand, but maintain sense of direction. Also, remember diet, health resolutions and keep them. Key is moderation.

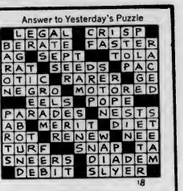
AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Friendship could be tested. Allow others right to their own points of view. Be willing to change mind when and if presented with evidence. Some restrictions now are for your own benefit.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Emphasis on variety, change of scenery, ability to communicate feelings. Some in positions of authority are intent on changing policies. This could directly affect you. Be ready and co-operative.

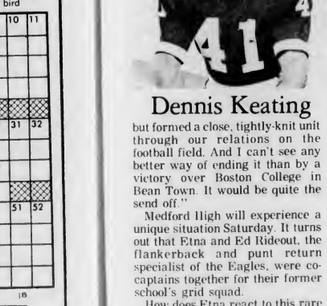
IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are able to aid those in trouble. People gravitate to you with their problems. You are drawn to law, medicine. You soon will have greater freedom of action and gain more personal recognition, happiness.

Copyright 1971, Gen. Fea. Corp.

Crossword Puzzle



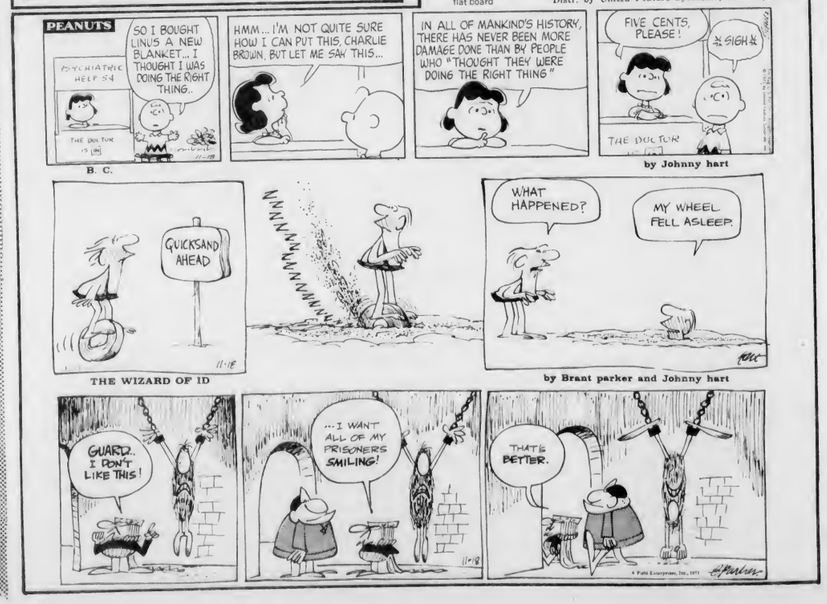
ACROSS



1 Harbor
5 Period of time
8 Mark left by wound
12 S-shaped molding
13 Hawaiian wreath
14 Tramp
15 Killer whale
16 Replied
18 Condescending look
19 Negative
20 Muddle
21 Change color of
23 Emerge victorious
25 Mohammedan name
27 Benign tumors
29 Spoken
33 Yearned
35 City in Philippines
37 Theater box
38 Metal plate
40 Secret agent
41 Moving part of motor
42 Couple
44 Greek marketplace
48 Parent (colloq.)
50 Sea in Asia
53 Water buffalo (pl.)
55 Eat
56 Smooth
57 Employ
58 Direction
59 Remainder
60 New Zealand parrot
61 Narrow, flat board

DOWN

1 Body of water
2 Monster
3 Ebbing
4 Wet with tears
5 Verve
6 Fame
7 Three-toed sloths
8 Lean-to
9 String
10 Son of Adam
11 Was borne
17 Pale
22 Female sheep
24 Doctrines
25 Everyone
26 Game at cards
28 Icelandic writing
29 Preposition
30 Causing laughter
31 High mountain
32 Ballad
34 Earth goddess
36 Perform
39 Inflict upon
41 Engineer's compartment
43 Walks in water
44 Genus of maples
45 Donated
46 Native metal (pl.)
47 Rage
49 On the ocean
51 Handle
52 Native of Latvia
54 Diving bird



Answer to Yesterday's Puzzle

Distr. by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.

VOTING FOR COMMUTER ASSEMBLY IN FRONT OF THE UNIVERSITY STORE 9-5 TODAY

Seniors Reflect On BC Game

(Cont. from Pg. 16)

a rollout situation. Just as I cut 'em down he pitched out to Willis who was mauled for a two yard loss by an intent Joe Sabulis."

Hulecki noted that he put together what was perhaps his finest blocking game of the season against Holy Cross. He labels his receiving performance against New Hampshire as his best this year. "I hope to put both of them together this weekend to help gain a victory over the Eagles," the fired-up end stated.

It's like bowing out at a senior banquet for offensive guard Dick Etna, who has yet to get a crack at playing against the Eagles.

Dick Etna

"I think this has been one of the closest senior classes I've ever been associated with," suggests Etna. "We didn't grow up together.

Dennis Keating

but formed a close, tightly-knit unit through our relations on the football field. And I can't see any better way of ending it than by a victory over Boston College in Bean Town. It would be quite the send off."

Medford High will experience a unique situation Saturday. It turns out that Etna and Ed Rideout, the flankerback and punt return specialist of the Eagles, were co-captains together for their former school's grid squad.

How does Etna react to this rare situation? "Being good friends, we parted this summer as though we would meet each other on the football field. As far as I'm concerned in the game it's kind of interesting about my relationship with Eddie, the fact that we were co-captains together in high school.

"He's one of the top punt returners in the nation. When we do punt, my specific responsibility is to contain. And Eddie does frequently shoot to the sidelines. There is a very good possibility I could meet him there."

"It's like beating the Packers after they won the Super Bowl two years in a row," declares center Dave Levine. "And there is also the added incentive of knowing that this is the last game that I'm going to play. If I can't put on a pair of pads again, I want this to be my most memorable game ever. This is the most emotional game in my life.

"I can sense the tension mounting in practice every day, I can feel it in the locker room right now. I'm just going to go wild. We want this one real bad."

For Levine, an All-YanCon choice as a sophomore, he has started his two other outings against the Eagles. The native of Bethesda, Maryland, says that his family has grown familiar with the status of Boston College.

"I'm not from the New England area," he remarked. "But it didn't take me long to learn the B.C. reputation and tradition. I tell ya this 'we ought to beat B.C.' tradition is just as strong in me as anybody else, if not stronger.

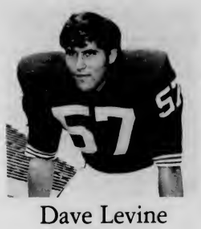
"My whole family is coming up for this one. This is the big one and they know it. It's the one they wanna see."

He looks forward to a pending grudge against Al Dehmbe, a headstrong linebacker who loves to rub it in. Levine snapped: "I played against him last year. He's a tough cookie. He'll intimidate you with words as well as by his actions. I know what I'm in for, a tough afternoon."

Curt Bristol, a defensive end who started his sophomore year against the Eagles but missed last year's battle because of an injury, eyes this one as a reunion of a real good roommate. Ray Wrippman, the quarterback and co-captain of B.C., roomed with Bristol at Manlius Prep School (Elnora, N.Y.).

"I hope I bump into him and throw him for a big fat loss", kidded Bristol. "It's always nice to get to play against a good friend of yours. There's no hard feelings involved. We'll walk off the field the best of friends. I threw him for a 15 yard loss in my freshman year. I hope to do the same again."

Bristol's biggest thrill in two former B.C. tilts was dumping Frank Harris for a big loss as a sophomore.



"It would certainly put a cap on a football career at UMass," reasoned Bristol. "It would be the greatest way to end it. I would certainly be a big help to the athletic program here at the University.

"A lot of people in the state don't recognize UMass as a football power. I think that we have the potential to be able to beat B.C. If we did, I think that Massachusetts' high school football players would take a long look at UMass. It would definitely be a boost to our football program in the years to come.

"It's going to take a supreme effort to win Saturday. It's going to require that everybody work hard and not get tired. I'm going to be up for this game, and I'm sure that all the other seniors are too."

All Yankee Conference safety Dennis Keating says: "It's about time it happened. Beating B.C. has been the biggest thought on my mind for four years. Don't let anybody kid you, because B.C. is the premiere game on our schedule, and that includes Dartmouth and the rest of 'em.

"And the beauty of it is that each year the B.C. game becomes even bigger, cause you get another chance at victory. After losing 35-

Dave Levine

30 in my sophomore year, we said we'll get 'em next year. Then as juniors we lost 21-10. The cry went up again 'wait 'til next year'.

Curt Bristol

"The seniors on this team just can't say wait 'til next year cause we go to get 'em now. This is the biggest game of our careers. I just don't think any of us could ask for a better ending to a football career than to beat Boston College.

B.C. has great tradition and is synonymous with respect to ability and power in the east. The opportunity will be there Saturday and we will be going at it 110%. It would be one of the greatest happenings of modern UMass sports accomplishments.

Not that it's something impossible or beyond our reach, but it has yet to be accomplished in a while.

As a sophomore against B.C. Keating pulled off a diving interception. He points with pride to the fact that last year Harris failed to complete a pass against him. Boston College."

Women's IM's

WIM's (Women's Intramural) Basketball got off to its second week of play Monday night as the Van Meter Houps defeated the Gorman Alkies 18-13 in an action-packed game. Ace Alpaugh was high scorer with seven points; Buckaroo Barr and Patsy Bartholomew tied for second place with 5 pts. each. Rebounder Rufus Goodwin led the team in rebounds, grabbing five in all. Miss Donohue remained the same steady anchor man as in the previous two games. This win gives the team a 2-1 record and second place in the Emerald League.

In another Emerald League contest, the Crabtree Crabapple Corps soundly defeated the Dickinson Swish team by an impressive score of 28-12. Led by high scorer Betsy Gammons with 12 points and high rebounder Kathy Meixner, the corps never trailed in the game. Defensive specialists Sandy Nolan and Sandy Thomies allowed the hot Corps offense to warm up as Toni Roblee was able to get the fast break moving. A well-balanced attack by the "Trees" saw everyone on the team score as Marian Frack came off the bench to keep things rolling while Sue Beede, a mark of consistency all season, played both ends of the court exceptionally well. The win enabled the "Trees" to up their record to 3-0 as they look forward to an undefeated season.

TUESDAY NIGHT 11-17-71

The Van Meter Vikings stole the cheese from the Field Mice at WoPE in their intramural basketball game. Van Meter's full court press an effective zone defense as well as their rapidly improving offense helped clinch the game for the Vikings. The final score was 13 to 5, making Van Meter's record 2 wins and 1 loss. The Vikings play the Lewis Lovers on November 30 at WoPE.

Overcoming a slow start, the Mushrooms outplayed the Gwimps 25-5. The big green established a strong defense forcing many Gwimp turnovers. Scoring for the Mushrooms were Nancy Lindberg with 10, Joyce Knappe with 8, Nancy Nealon with 4 and Carole Pierce with 1.

The Dickinson P.O.'s edged out the Wheeler Trojans 12-11 before a rowdy crowd at WoPE. Joan Field, who went 6 for 6 at the foul line with points overall, led the victors. The stingy defense, led by the strong rebounding of center Maura Hennigan and defensive specialists Sue Curran, Kathy Koehler, and Norma Faris, consistently bottled up the Trojans. The game was nip and tuck all the way as Miss Field and the Trojan's big center exchanged baskets. But Norma Faris' clutch free throw with 25 seconds remaining climaxed the scoring and the game. A last second Trojan shot rimmed the basket and secured the victory for the jubilant P.O.'s who broke into the win column with a well-deserved victory.

In a closely matched game throughout the first half, 10th floor Coolidge topped the Melville Whalers by a score of 26-11. Throughout the game the Coolidge team built up a steady lead, putting pressure on the Melville offense. High scorer was Carla Walsh who popped in 14 points from all over the court. Jane Crook was consistent for Coolidge on defense with her close guarding and interception of passes. Coolidge is now 1-1 in team play.

The Patterson "Pick-ups" topped the Tico's Twirps with a terrific score of 20-1. High scorers were Connie Crowley and Joan Waterman. The Pick-ups now have a record of 2-0.

Gamma Sig came up against another tough defensive unit in Chi O but managed to eke out its second victory of the season, 9-7. It was a team effort all the way, with the "Three Big D's" standing out; Diane Beausolail, Dianne Smith and Diane Janvier, who accumulated all 9 points. Pat Moynihan, Barb Jackson, and Mary Malarpina played a strong defensive game for GSS, who used an effective zone to tame the Chi O's. GSS forced Chi O to foul in the last two minutes, regained possession of the ball and calmly, through the expert ball handling of Marcia Parks and Diane Janvier, killed off the clock to leave GSS with a 9-7 victory.

Johnetta Bagby shot the clutch basket when fouled to lead the Soul Queens to their second victory, 10-9. The Soul Queens are now 2-0.

The Red Jock Will Return

REMEMBER

JOHN MORGAN

Most people know individual fraternities by their individual social style. This is like knowing a beach by one grain of sand. Delta Chi has more than just a social program to offer. Last month we put on a 'Halloween party for retarded children from Belchertown State School. We emphasize academic achievement and aid motivation through goals built into our fraternal structure. We have a wide spectrum of lifestyle for the individual and his goal. Come and meet us.

OPEN SMOKER

Delta Chi Fraternity

314 LINCOLN AVE.

Thursday Night 8:30 - 10:30 p.m.

Call 5-0195 or 5-0156 for rides.

Campus Cinemas

Information 256-6411
Route 9 - Amherst - Hadley Line
In Zayre's Shopping Center

Bonus Nights!
Mon. & Tues.
Everyone
$1.00

Campus II
Daily - 7:15 & 9:15
you'll BREAK UP
you'll HOWL
G.P.
THAT "ODD COUPLE" IS AT IT AGAIN...
WALTER MATTHAU
as "KOTCH"

Campus III
HELD OVER!
MASH
AND
PAUL NEWMAN IS BUTCH CASSIDY AND THE SUNDANCE KID IS ROBERT REDFORD
Shown at - 9:00
At - 7:00

Campus I
Daily - 7:15 & 9
Fri. & Sat.
7, 8:30, 10
TERRIFIC — THE IMPORTANCE OF FEELING!
TASTEFUL
SEE
Together

Seniors "Up" For Final Game

By MARK VOGLER

Beating B.C. is like the successful epilogue to a senior class football story. It's like frosting added to Dick MacPherson's birthday cake which is already two weeks old (it's probably his wish). It's like a going away present for Dean Warren P. McGuirk (more valuable than the gold watch?).

It's like a dream come true. It would certainly make the Thanksgiving bird taste even better. It's something worth writing a letter home about-- especially if it were to happen in the Hub.

John Hulecki

It's like something Jimmy the Greek would bet against. It's like something that hasn't happened since 1912 (42-0). But it's like the man says: "Anything is possible." It's like an upset. It's like something that Mr. Mac has got under his sleeve--like a 5-3-1 season.

Well, enough with the 'it's like' business and on with the show. Another class of football players will terminate their collegiate days Saturday on the turf of the B.C. Eagles.

Throw out the stats for this one baby, because the B.C.-UMass game has developed into somewhat of a rivalry in recent years. Despite the prominence of the Eagles (7-2) as a power in the East, and despite UMass (4-3-1) being mocked as a psuedo small timer--the Yankee Conference doesn't make it according to ECAC standards anyway, this winds down to a game of emotions. It's like the Grand Finale, at least for those seniors on both sides of the ledger who will be playing for the last time.

In order to get a better insight on how the players themselves feel about what a victory over B.C. would be like, the Collegian interviewed eight senior veterans, all of whom are starters. They related past experiences and expectations along with their own personal sentiments. It is hoped that this should add great impetus on Saturday's showdown.

Ron Marino, veteran offensive guard who has previously played in two B.C. games and started last year, likens a victory to the satisfaction you get by taking a star tackle right out of the play.

He recalls his sophomore year

Dennis Collins

when he sent John Fitzgerald, who now plays with The Dallas Cowboys, "to the cleaners". "It was on a trap play," explained Marino. "Right up the middle, and I blocked him. I blew him right out of the play and Jerry Grasso found daylight and scooted 80 yards. It was still a disappointment though, losing 35-30."

Marino is 6'2" and weighs in at 225. Fitzgerald was about 6'5" and tilted the scales at 270. Marino must have felt good.

How does he size up Saturday's encounter? "It's my last game, I'm never gonna play again. I'll remember it for the rest of my born days. And a victory would be the greatest thing ever.

"After losing to the Eagles twice, it's been disappointing because we played as well as we did and went away empty handed. But this year we do have the potential to beat 'em. I look for an upset this Saturday.

"I just hope we beat 'em, that's all. I'll remember it in years to come, I'll tell it to my grandchildren."

All Yankee Conference safety John O'Neil, who will be playing in his third B.C. contest, examines the matter as a test to see whether UMass can hold its own with the big time.

As he puts it: "Each B.C. game is a hard fought battle. We always give 'em a good game, is not as if we're being pushed around the field. We're all seniors, it's our last game, and we'll do our very best. And the team that makes the fewest mistakes will come out on top, that's all that's to it.

"It's a big game for us. There's a lot of prestige involved. It's something for us to prove whether we can play a team that's considered big time and one of the best in the east."

O'Neil thought it was quite the thrill to have played against Harris and Willis, who have both made the pros.

Linebacker Dennis Collins feels that a victory over the Eagles would bring back former memories. In other words, "it's like being freshmen again." This is his third start against Boston College.

Collins's comments: "It's the last time I'll be playing with this group of seniors, probably the last time we'll be together as a group. And I'd like to finish it with a win the way we started with an undefeated squad in my freshman year. Our freshman club beat B.C. three years ago (10-7). It would be nice to beat them again--this time on the varsity level.

John O'Neil

"I always like to play my best against B.C. because they're usually the prestige team on our schedule. It's usually the most physical game of the year for me.

"The most important thing for me is just having a hand in stopping B.C.'s ground game, which is usually a potent attack. We stumped their running game last year which featured Willis who has since been drafted by Cincinnati. He only got 43 yards in 17 carries. That meant the most to me personally, because that's what a linebacker's job is, to stop the run."

Ron Marino

A win over B.C. is like a meal ticket to the pros as far as All Yankee Conference tight end John Hulecki is concerned. Also getting his third starting assignment against the Eagles, Hulecki expressed his objectives like so: "I think the B.C. game to me is a big challenge because I plan on playing pro ball next year. And B.C. is known as one of the top teams in the East. I feel if I can play good ball against them, I might have a chance in the pros because of Boston's size."

"I can still remember my first play of the B.C. game as a sophomore. I was playing defensive end then. It was my responsibility to contain Frank Harris on

(Cont. on Pg. 15)

The Daily Collegian

SPORTS

Varsity M Ticket Expires; Still There Was Laughter

By DAN KAMAL

There was only one sad note yesterday at the Varsity M weekly luncheon. The 10-luncheon ticket expired.

Other than that it was all sweetness and laughter, etc. It goes with winning, you know.

Jim Mulcahy, President of the Varsity M Club was back after his first absence in some four years last week. He was the victim of a quip by Dick MacPherson: "This may be a shock to you, Jim, but we got along OK without you."

After everyone stopped laughing, MacPherson introduced defensive end Curt Bristol, the first of two guest players.

Bristol, speaking in a voice often inaudible (it didn't fit the big frame) praised the "great showing from Piel Pennington, Paul Metallo, and John Hulecki" in last week's game against New Hampshire. He added, "The offense was really ticking."

The senior also mentioned that one of the Boston College co-captains was a roommate of his in prep school and he "would like to be able to say to him--remember the last game senior year?"

MacPherson lauded Bristol for making a key play in the UNH game when he jarred Wildcat running back Dennis Coady hard enough to make him fumble. Mac added, "Being the person that he is, I thought Curt would tell you about it." (More laughter.)

The chuckling reached uproar proportions (uproar for the Varsity M crowd that is) when MacPherson introduced senior co-captain John Hulecki. The head coach's last line of the introduction was, "One of the girls at Chi Omega told me--'he's just a dream.'"

Hulecki got into the comedian act by remarking, "This is a bigger crowd than the last time I was here. The food must be getting better."

The big tight end felt that, "The offense and defense have been putting everything together. We have a tough task versus BC; they have some great ballplayers--the big difference between the two teams is in depth. BC has a lot of it." He added, "There are 18 seniors on the team. We've been looking forward to this and we'll give it everything we have."

Assistant coach Bob Pickett admited that the Eagles have a lot of depth, "but man for man we can compete with this team." Pickett went on to say that BC, which is unbeaten at home and is hopeful of a bowl bid, has great team speed.

MacPherson feels that a key factor in Saturday's game is whether Ed Rideout, BC's fine runner and pass receiver and punt, kick-off return man plays. Rideout is nursing a knee injury.

"I hope Rideout doesn't play. We can afford the luxury of having one of their great players not play."

About the season to date, Mac said, "I'm awful happy the way this thing has turned around." He added, "I know of no higher emotional state than we'll have Saturday--now we have to mix it with poise. When Bill DeFlavio starts coaching the punt return unit, you know you're in business."

With this, the crowd, despite having their tickets expire, went home laughing.

WMUA

The last in a 10-part series of "Warpath" programs will be aired tonight at 7:30 on WMUA. Co-hosts Marty Kelley and Ken Best will have as their guests defensive backfield coach Larry Pasquale, and linebackers Joe Sabulis and Dennis Collins. Sunday night at 10 p.m. Kelley and Best will play hosts to Redman coach Dick MacPherson and co-captains John Hulecki and Dennis Keating in the final football-oriented "Sports Talk" program.

Offense Award To Griese

MIAMI (AP) — Pro football critics once rapped Miami's Bob Griese as a quarterback who couldn't throw the bomb.

"The reason was simple," explains Griese. "A passer can't depend on the long ball unless he's got somebody to catch it."

Enter Paul Warfield in a 1970 trade with Cleveland.

"Now, anytime I throw in Paul's direction," Griese said, "I know he might break it for a touchdown."

Griese linked up with Warfield for touchdown heaves of 86, 60 and 18 yards in last Sunday's 24-21 comeback victory over Pittsburgh and the former Purdue quarterback was named National Football League offensive player of the week by The Associated Press.

"The way I felt Saturday night, I never felt I'd put on a uniform against the Steelers, much less play," said Griese. "I'd picked up a virus of some kind and spent the night in the hospital."

Griese leads the NFL in touchdown passes with 16.

Vida Blue Wins MVP Award

MANSFIELD, A. (AP)-Vida Blue's selection as the American League's Most Valuable Player Wednesday came at an opportune time for the Oakland Star-just as the wage-price freeze expired.

The 22-year-old lefthander from this tiny northwest Louisiana town is acknowledged as one of baseball's most underpaid stars and he's capitalized on the fact by mentioning it in a television commercial.

In addition, at the White House last summer, President Nixon called Blue "the most underpaid player in baseball." Blue earned an estimated $14,00 this year.

In an interview at his home Wednesday, Blue said he had more television commercials lined up and expected to huddle with the Oakland Athletics soon to sign a contract for the next baseball season.

He observed that the Most Valuable Player award coming close on the heels of the Cy Young Award for being the league's outstanding pitcher would not hurt his bargaining position.

"Now that the wage-price freeze is over, I think it's just a matter of time," said Blue. "I'm not saying that we're going to sign within the next day or two, but now that the freeze is over it makes it legal for everyone to negotiate to get a raise or a new contract or whatever they're negotiating for."

It was suggested the Federal Pay Board probably would be willing to exempt Blue from the 5.5 per cent pay raise ceiling.

"They're going to have to," Blue said with a grin. "Because I'm going to be begging, man."

Blue earned 14 of a possible 24 first-place votes and 268 points from the Baseball Writers Association of America committee.

Sal Bando, Blue's Oakland teammate, drew four first place votes and 182 points to finish second.

"I thought either Reggie Jackson or Bando would get it from our team," said Blue. "They really helped our team. It wasn't a super year for either one of them compared to other years they've had in the majors, but they are really valuable to use."

Frank and Brooks Robinson of the Baltimore Orioles finished third and fourth in the balloting. Outfielder Frank received 170 points and two first place votes while third baseman Brooks collected 163 points and three first place votes to come in fourth.

Pitcher Mickey Lolich of Detroit, runner-up to Blue in the Cy Young balloting, got the other first place vote and finished fifth with 155 points.

A total of 29 players were mentioned in the MVP voting but Blue was the only one named on every ballot.

Blue is the youngest player to win the MVP award and the first Oakland player to win it.

Sports Staff Constitutional Convention Tonight Come

New England's Largest College Daily

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

Weather: Lost - St. Bernard, named Clod. Silver training collar. Notify MDC if found.

VOLUME XCIX, ISSUE 51 UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 19, 1971

Remember how it was when you first learned how to read? These kids at the Day Care Center are just having that experience. And they love it-just look at the determination with which they learn. But there's always time to be a kid and have fun. The little girl on the right may even be practicing for a career in modeling. (MDC photos by Barbara Brecher)

Free University Funds Rescinded

By DON BISHOP

In the final business motion of Wednesday's Student Senate meeting, funds for the operation of Free University were rescinded. These funds were budgeted as operating costs last year.

To have funds withdrawn in the middle of a semester, has been exceptionally uncommon in recent years. A 2/3's vote of the Senate was required to withdraw the money. The mentor of the bill, Senator Robert Chiller, did not originally feel that the motion would pass. In the final roll call vote though, a 2/3's majority was achieved, as 37 Senators voted for the recall of Free University funds, 16 against, with 2 Senators abstaining.

In the Senate offices Thursday, a variety of opinions were expressed as to the wisdom of this move against Free U.

Senator John Stevens, a major spokesman against recall of funds in the Senate debate, called the Senate's action "a very irrational and unwarranted move." He made note of the fact that this type of procedure might establish a dangerous precedent. He also stated that he will be at the forefront of the move to reconsider this measure.

Apparently, reconsideration will come at the Student Senate's next meeting on December 1. At that time, a motion could be made that would give Free U. back their funds budgeted for this year. For this to happen it would appear that Free U. will have to come out with a better explanation as to how they intend to serve the UMass student community.

In trying to explain the rationale for the recall of Free U. funds, Senator Robert Chiller, the principal spokesman for the recall side of the issue, listed a number of reasons.

First and foremost, Chiller holds that Free U. cannot claim that it has done anything tangibly of service to the student community so far this year. Those things that Free U. state it was going to do for students this year, have not become reality according to Chiller.

Secondly, Senator Chiller and others criticized the fact that a considerable number of individuals involved in Free U. are not students at UMass. To Chiller it appears as if some of the funds allocated to the organization are being used "to take care of these people", whereas they are supposed to be directed towards service to the University community.

Also criticized by Chiller, was the general lack of publicity given by Free University to any of their planned programs for this year. He feels that Free U. has made virtually no attempt to inform students of what they are doing.

But Senate Vice-President John Hogan probably best summed up the Senate's rationale for recalling the Free U. funds in the statement: "The Senate believed that they were not fulfilling the objectives they started out with at the beginning of the year."

Of the $15,700 allocated to Free University approximately $5,000 to $6,000 has been legitimately spent on equipment, books, etc. At this time, it is not known what will be done with this purchased equipment, or with the unused money.

In this year of international monetary tightness, the Student Senate has likewise felt the economic pinch. They have been requested funds this year by some groups that many Senators consider worthwhile. Yet because of the unavailability of funds, these groups have had to be turned down.

Perhaps this money originally given to Free U. will be granted to one of these projects. Or there remains the possibility that the Senate will favorably reconsider this issue at their next meeting, and return the funds to Free U.

On The Inside:

● It's A Boogie See page 3

● Poor Richard's See page 6

● The Great One See page 12

Landlord-Tenant Committee 'Gets The Faith'

The Committee on Landlord-tenant Relations met Monday night with representatives of the controlling partners of the low-rent apartment complex at Village Park, in an attempt to "open the channels of communication between the two groups before actual problems arise."

Committee chairman Steven Fletcher stated that he had invited representatives from Interfaith, Inc., an Amherst group interested in seeing that adequate housing arrangements are provided for low and moderate income families, and Development Corporation of America, developers of the apartment complex to a "get-acquainted" session with the grievance board.

"No complaint has been brought to this committee's attention concerning the Village Park development," stressed Fletcher. "I do feel however that it is valuable for both parties to become acquainted with each other's proposed and existing operating procedures, so that complaints involving a landlord-tenant relationship will be routed in the correct direction."

The Village Park apartment complex is located adjacent to the university's Fraternity-Sorority park off East Pleasant Street. The relatively low-cost housing, which is subsidized by the Dept. of Housing and Urban Development, is being built by DCA, a firm which has completed in excess of 2,000 apartments in the eastern section of the United States. The first of 200 apartments to be completed by March, 1972, will be occupied next month, according to the managing director of DCA.

A brief account of his group's interest in the housing project was related by Interfaith president Theodore Greene. He stated, "It has always been Interfaith's intention to provide adequate low-cost housing for special-interest residents of Amherst. This includes the elderly, students, unemployed persons on welfare, and especially those persons who earn a moderate income while working in Amherst. The way that we have initially provided several hundred apartment units is by utilizing government subsidized housing, which has been built to meet our specifications by D.C.A."

Greene stressed that the 11 directors of the Interfaith Corporation (including himself and other officers, Arthur Elkins, Willard Weeks, and Ethel Colt) will take primary responsibility for the policies of the Village Park development. The local group outnumbers the representatives of DCA by a two-to-one margin in the partnership agreement.

"I hope that any complaints concerning the Village Park development that are brought to the attention of the grievance board, will be directly referred to the directors of Interfaith," Greene concluded.

A DCA project supervisor followed with an explanation of the FHA guidelines which legally determine who may rent a unit in a HUD-supported complex.

"The Federal Housing Authority is, in effect, a silent partner in this type of development," he related. "Without stating explicitly the limitations imposed upon our selection of tenants, it should be clear that the regulations are intended primarily to insure that prospective tenants who have an income exceeding a maximum allowable figure determined by the FHA will not be allowed to lease the units.

"In addition we are also legally required to meet both minimum and maximum standards concerning the number of persons renting a unit. For example, we must have a family consisting of four, five, or six members in one of our three-bedroom apartments."

The DCA representatives stressed that the Village Park apartments will be rented only to conventional family groups, thus eliminating the possibility that the low-cost housing will become off-campus dormitories for university students. The 200 one, two and three-bedroom apartments (being rented at a per-month cost of $122, $150, and $167 respectively) which will be completed in the first phase of the Village Park development are presently in the process of being leased.

DCA officials revealed that although they have received more applicants than they have apartments, there are still units available for families who qualify under FHA guidelines, because particular quotas have not yet been met. A complete listing of the FHA guidelines, quotas, and limitations is available at the DCA rental trailer at the apartment site.

In other business, the grievance committee referred a complaint brought to their attention by William Stevens to the Amherst building inspector. Stevens claimed that uncomfortable and unsanitary conditions within the apartment building in which he leased a room in September caused him to leave the apartment before the end of that month. Stevens stated that he was unable to contact his landlord concerning the unhealthy condition of the building and has also been unable to reacquire his security deposit.

A suggestion by Atty. Richard Howland, alternate tenant representative, to request an information inspection on the building in question was passed by the committee.

Also, the committee decided to answer a complaint by a tenant concerning the lack of co-operation from his landlord in obtaining an extension phone, by writing a strong letter of inquiry to the landlord in question, suggesting that he install the telephone.

Finally, landlord representative Raymond Campbell was instructed by the grievance board to attempt to clarify and alleged breach of lease by a landlord who has failed to provide his tenants with coin-operated washing machines.

The meeting adjourned following discussion of several revisions in the Landlords-Tenants brochure.

(Reprinted from 11/17/71 Amherst Record)

Second Registration Drive Relatively Unsuccessful

By ERNIE ROTMAN

According to Amherst's Town Clerk, Mrs. Matusko, the second Voter Registration drive held on the UMass campus was not as successful as was the first. As of 5 p.m. yesterday, the registration located in the Campus Center had attracted only 120 students, as compared to the 600 students who registered during the first drive.

Mr. George Como, an aide in the registration session, stated that students as a whole had several misconceptions about their voting rights. He said that while many students, over 64% in a recent survey, stated that they would rather sign up to vote in their home towns where their votes would have a greater impact, others who signed up in Amherst did so not fully realizing what this obligation would be.

"In four years" said Mr. Como, "students will leave here and probably go back home. So why don't they register in their home towns instead of here?" Como added that he did not think students would have much impact on the Amherst government since their stay would last only four years and it would take much longer to 'change' governmental procedures.

Mrs. Matusko said that more than once she had been asked by misinformed students if they could vote both in Amherst and in their home towns, where they had originally signed up.

Taken as a whole, Voter Registration proved to be a new experience to UMass. Manysigned up to vote here but many others will vote in their home towns where their voice, will be much stronger.

MDC Photo by Peggy Stocker

Soledad Brothers To Speak In Area

This Sunday, Penny Jackson, sister of slain "Soledad brother" George Jackson, will be speaking in Amherst.

Hope Congregational Church is sponsoring the visit of Miss Jackson along with that of two men, David Solomon and Willy Johnson, who have served time in Soledad, a maximum security prison in California. They will speak at 7 p.m. in First Congregational Church's sanctuary.

George Jackson was shot down late last summer under mysterious circumstances. He was accused of trying to escape, but conflicting official reports and the impossibility of certain reported events have raised serious questions about what actually happened.

Learn to Drive
AMHERST AUTO SCHOOL
34 Main Street
256-6066

BLACK MAGIC featuring Natalie Cole
at
The English Pub
Saturday Nite

-Undergrads-
—Only—
Course Guides And Schedules For Spring Semester will be delivered Monday at the Collegian drop off points.

THE CHOPPING BLOCK
Where Adam, John, Silvio, and Paul will go to your head. If it has anything to do with hair. They can do it- perfectly. . .For both men and women.
26 Main St., Amherst
Mon. - Fri., 9 to 7:30
Sat 9 to 5
253-9293 & 253-9271
continental coiffures

EXPERT REPAIRS
JEWELRY — WATCHES
FOWLER Jewelers OF AMHERST
65 N. Pleasant St.
253-7615
U.M. MUGS
(Leather and Pewter)

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

Office of the DAILY COLLEGIAN are on the second floor of the Student Union on the University campus, zip code 01002. Phones are 545-2550 (news), 545-0344 (sports), and 549-1311 (editor).

Second class postage paid at Amherst, the DAILY COLLEGIAN publishes five times weekly Monday through Friday during the academic year except during vacation and exam periods, three or four times a week following a vacation or exam period or when a holiday falls within a week. Accepted for mailing under the authority of the act of March 8, 1879 as amended by the act of June 11, 1943. Subscription rates are $6.00 per semester, $10.00 per year.

Room To Move Boogie

Fat	November 19
Flight	S.U. Ballroom
East Jesus	8:00 p.m.
Movies	$1.50
Video

MDC Photo by Carl Nash

CEQ

'Integrated Metropolitan Transportation'

By MIKE McWILLIAMS

On Thursday night Adrian Forestier, Engineering systems consultant to the University of Hartford Transportation group spoke on the topic of "Integrated Metropolitan Transportation".

In the lecture sponsored by the Coalition for Environmental Quality, Mr. Forestier discussed a project he and assistants from U. of Hartford are planning for a Pilot Transportation system for the greater Hartford Area. In his lecture Forestier stressed the need for what he calls a "deep tunnel transit system" because of the problem of land usage in the urban area. He feels that landspace in the cities should not be taken out of use for transportation purposes because of its importance in other respects. Most metropolitan transit systems today are outdated in his opinion. Mr. Forestier also cited that the reason why our cities are dying as so many experts claim is because the people within the metropolitan areas have no mobility. With this in mind he noted that commuters are the life-blood of the cities. The main problem would be to design a system which would have a main connection or "spine" to act as the nerve center. For such a system a "deep tunnel track" should be used. In Hartford the train line he is working on would be thirty miles in length and would go through and under the city.

Mr. Forestier's lecture was the first in the series of Distinguished Ecologists Lecture series sponsored by C.E.Q.

Action Program Draws University Interns

By KAREN PEARSON

Two UMass students are interning as reporters on a new weekly newspaper aimed at the blacks, Puerto Ricans and underprivileged whites of Springfield.

Mrs. Robin Chandler Smith and Peter McDonald are among 49 students from UMass participating in the first year's University Year for Action program. Each student receives 30 credit hours and a $3,000 stipend for spending the year working and learning off-campus and carrying on some academic work on campus.

For Robin Smith, who formerly served the staff of Drum, the black magazine on the campus, working on the newspaper called SALT is an exhilirating experience.

SALT (the Springfield Area Life and Times), is a community newspaper designed specifically to provide the inhabitants of Springfield a greater understanding of local affairs.

SALT was begun by SASSI, the alternative educational system for high school dropouts, as a means for additonal financial support for the school. According to reporter Smith, "It is one of the main goals of SALT to eventually become the sole support of SASSI. Aid for the school now requires constant soliciting, and continually looking for further sources of money. It's a difficult and unnecessary crisis."

The newspaper itself is laid out very much like metropolitan papers, including syndicated columns from Washington, articles on politics, consumer news, calendar events, sports, movie reviews and free classified ads. "SALT's main emphasis, however," says Robin, "is on local news." The paper has a Spanish page and many articles devoted to the poor black and white communities.

"The other goal of our newspaper," she said, "is to bring to the forefront the opinions and feelings of the poor people of the community, who are out of the mainstream of society and who are unable to voice their opinions."

She believed SALT is excellent journalistically. She emphasized it has a policy of presenting all viewpoints in the interest of the citizens of that particular area.

"I feel that newspapers have become dynasties that control opinion through ownership by a few families or corporations," she said.

She called two major problems for the paper a lack of funds and an inability to reach as many readers as they would like. She urges UMass students to help finance the paper by selling SALT on and off campus. "We'd like as many people as possible to get to know the paper, and any aid will be much appreciated," she said.

SALT sells for 15 cents; any student selling it makes a profit of 12 cents each copy. "That's not a bad percentage," she said.

Room To Move

It's A Boogie

Boogie: FAT, FLIGHT AND EAST JESUS

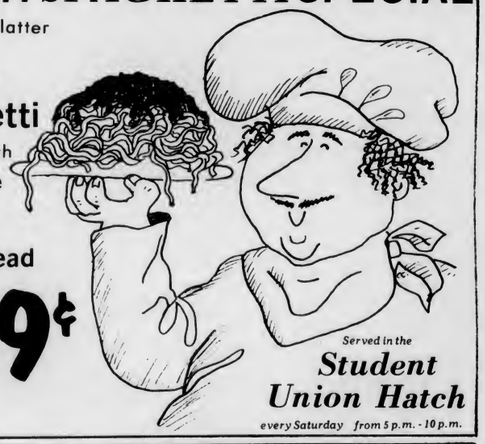
On November 19, at the Student Union Ballroom, there will be a boogie featuring Fat, Flight and East Jesus. Flight has been getting into jazz lately, as well as East Jesus, a group from Boston, who do a fine version of "Jack Johnson" by Miles Davis. Most of us are familiar now with the fine Rock Blues of Fat.

The thing about this gig which will add a new flavor to the boogie is an introduction of "artistic media." Barry Schonhaut is showing Earth-Art movies projecting 8 mm. film on a suspended screen in the middle of the ballroom, and 16 mm. on the wall behind the groups. This approach, because of the quality of the films, and the type of presentation should be quite different from the usual light show of colors dropped on an overhead projector. Also, the media of video tape will be introduced for the first time at a UMass Boogie.

With monitors set up around the room a whole new dimension will be added. For these reasons the cost is more than usual. Room To Move, who is sponsoring the boogie, will be putting the money toward a need of the people of our communiversity.

Many musicians today are far more concerned with the quality of their music than the quantity of their fame. These musicians, because of the complexity and capitalism of the records companies avoid the record industry completely. December 11, will provide the entertainment of such musicians. It will begin with Oegenowelf, two musicians from New York, who play eleven different instruments with a variety of music from Incredible String Band music to Country Music. This acoustic set will lead into "Clean Living", a local valley group doing original pieces as well as songs of groups like Crosby, Stills, Nash & Young. The James Montgomery Blues Band from Boston complete an evening of solid entertainment. ----Dig it!

Wood's Growth Plan



WASHINGTON (AP)-President Robert Wood of the University of Massachusetts, a former cabinet member under President Johnson, has endorsed President Nixon's proposal to set up a new Department of Community Development.

Wood told a Senate Government Operations subcommittee Wednesday he feels the new department, which would include most activities of the present Housing and Urban Development department, is "timely, sensible and promising. Wood is a former Secretary of HUD.

Wood told the panel "the critical urban growth factors of transportation, housing and utilities must be brought together or they will not meet the human needs they were designed to serve."

TONIGHT!!!
Last Performance
at the
TOP OF THE CAMPUS
of
BLACK MAGIC
with Natalie Cole
9-1

EVERY FRIDAY . . . .
Our superb buffet will be from 6:30 a.m. to 9:00 p.m. Please come up to the buffet as many times as you wish. $5.50 per person.
The Lord Jeffery
30 Boltwood Ave. AMHERST, MASS. 253-2576
RAOUL DIETRICH, INNKEEPER

HATCH SPAGHETTI SPECIAL
Heaping Platter of Hot Spaghetti covered with Meat Sauce plus Hot Garlic Bread
ONLY 59¢

Served in the Student Union Hatch
every Saturday from 5 p.m. - 10 p.m.

MOVIE
The Prime of Miss Jean Brodie
Mahar Aud - Fri., Nov. 19
7:00 and 9:30
Only 50¢
SPONSORED BY NEWMAN CLUB

In The Nation And The World

Meany Attacks Nixon Economics

MIAMI BEACH (AP) — AFL-CIO President George Meany won labor approval Thursday to stay on President Nixon's Pay Board but refused to cooperate with wage rulings he considers unfair, and "if the President doesn't like the terms we've laid down he can kick us off."

The AFL-CIO convention of 1,000 delegates representing nearly 14 million workers unanimously approved the action, after Meany said he would quit the board if he decides there is no hope of winning fair wage controls.

The convention approved a resolution that "our representatives remain on the Pay Board only so long as a reasonable hope exists of securing recognition of the validity of contracts and achieving justice for working people generally," and especially for low-income Americans.

"We'll decide when that hope is gone," Meany said.

"Until those objectives are assured, labor cannot associate itself with the actions of the board or encourage cooperation with their administration or enforcement," the resolution said.

The action came after Meany bitingly accused Nixon and his Pay Board of threatening to ruin the nation's economy, and announced Nixon would address the 1,000 AFL-CIO delegates here Friday.

"The wage control mechanism established by the President of the United States is being used as a device to destroy the basic American concept of free collective bargaining," the convention resolution said.

"The American labor movement will not permit itself to become the scapegoat for the adminstration policies which have brought this nation to the brink of economic disaster," it said.

Earlier, Meany recounted the experience of the five labor members of the 15-man Pay Board, in which he said industry and public members offered "under-the-table" deals to win cooperation. After failing in that, he said, the panel tried to goad the labor members into quitting the board and blame them if wage controls fail.

Meany said if he and other labor members finally decide there is no hope of winning payment of all retroactive and future raises, existing contracts, and other labor demands, "We'll get the hell off the board."

The resolution urged all the AFL-CIO's 117 unions to "take every lawful action at their command to insure that their contracts are honored," reportedly including lawsuits and boycotts against companies that refuse payment of wages due.

"As one of its first acts the Pay Board--by a 10-5 vote, with the industry and the so-called public members acting in concert--nullified thousands of legal contracts covering millions of workers," the resolution said.

"We flatly reject the concept that anyone--be it Pay Board or president--has the power to abrogate any legal collective bargaining agreement or any other contract voluntarily and legally entered into by American citizens or their representatives," it said.

"The public members, so-called, are not independent but rather are handmaidens of the administration. They are not neutral but have long ties either to industry or government," it added

Senate Cuts Defense Budget, Votes To Bring Troops Home

WASHINGTON (AP) — Voting to carve $3.3 billion from President Nixon's defense budget, the Senate Appropriations Committee approved Thursday bringing 50,000 American troops home from Europe.

Chairman Alan J. Ellender, (D-La.), dismissed as "hogwash" Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird's protest that enforcing a 250,000 limit on the number of U.S. personnel in Europe would irresponsibly damage the American defense position.

The committe approved 1972 defense spending of $70.2 billion, a figure that is $800 million less than the House-passed total and $3.3 billion less than the administration wanted.

The committee rejected, 14 to 10, another in a long series of moves to use the power of the purse to force withdrawal of U.S. troops from Indochina and, among a number of other specific cuts, it voted to trim spending for military intelligency by $68.4 million. The House voted earlier to trim intelligence funds by an additional $181 million.

Ellender said the cuts will not affect national security in any manner and added: "We are confident the military can operate effectively with this huge sum."

Ellender noted the Nixon administration says the war is practically over in Vietnam and that the nation will not get involved in any more Vietnam-type conflicts.

"Therefore this is an opportune time to cut back unnecessary military spending," Ellender said, suggesting the savings be used to step up domestic programs in education, poverty and pollution.

Ellender said the recommended troop cut in Europe, which was approved on a narrow 14-13 committee vote, also will not affect U.S. security.

"We simply do not need 300,000 American troops there any more," Ellender said. "Our allies must take on a larger share of the defense burden in Europe."

The European withdrawal amendment has been sponsored unsuccessfully for years by Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana.

In its present form it cuts off spending after June 15, 1972, for any troops in Europe in excess of 250,000.

A Senate floor fight is expected but Ellender predicted there are now enough votes to sustain it.

In a two-page letter to members of the committee Laird called the proposed plan dangerous and said it "would undermine chances for the success of mutual and balanced force reduction negotiations."

He said unilateral disarmament would be reckless, weaken efforts to negotiate with the Soviet Union, cause the loss of confidence by America's allies, and create the impression that the United States is unwilling to keep its pledges.

Defense Dept. Snooping On Pentagon

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Defense Department acknowledged Thursday its security agents continued to conduct nighttime forays on the Pentagon press room with a rummage through newsroom desks, but it said this was a mistake and will not be repeated.

A spokesman said Daniel Z. Henkin, assistant secretary of defense for public affairs, "was very distressed to know this happened." The spokesman said Henkin was told by the security people this "was an inadvertent check" and "will not happen again."

Reporters were given a similar assurance by Henkin several months ago but on arriving for work Wednesday cards were found on the desks of correspondents for Time magazine and the New York Daily New which said:

"An inspection of this office area by the Pentagon Counter-Intelligence Force revealed no violations of security regulations."

The Pentagon spokesman, Brig. Gen. Daniel James, said the Counter-Intelligence Force regularly checks all Pentagon offices to make sure safes are locked and no classified materials are left out overnight.

Public To Finance Pols

WASHINGTON (AP) — Amid Republican shouts of "slush fund" and "raid on the Treasury," Senate Democrats closed ranks almost solidly Thursday to keep alive a presidential campaign financing plan that would use government funds.

The Senate voted 49 to 46 to reject a GOP move to kill the proposal, giving Democrats confidence they would be able to write it into the $26-billion tax-cut bill later.

The proposal could give the two major party nominees $20.4 million each in public funds next year.

Lining up against the move to kill it were 49 Democrats. All 43 Republicans present voted for the motion and were joined by Democratic Sens. Sam J. Ervin Jr., N.C., and John L. McClellan, Ark., and Independent Sen. Harry F. Byrd Jr., Va.

The vote was preceded and followed by a lively, shouting debate.

Sen. Robert Dole (R-Kan.,) the Republican national chairman, denounced the proposal as "the biggest Democratic fund-raising affair in history."

The Democrats have a $9.3-million debt left over from 1968.

Republicans said during the debate they would not use the public funds provided in the plan.

Democrats replied this was the case because President Nixon is expected to have available up to $40 million for his re-election drive.

The fund would be created by decisions of taxpayers to check a box on their income tax returns and designate $1 of their payment-$2 for a couple--to go into the fund

Democrats supporting the proposal contended that campaign financing costs have become so huge, particularly because of television, that it is essential to end the dependence on private contribution with the obligations these entail.

Republicans replied that the proposal was not carefully worked out and was merely an attempt to rescue the Democrats from financial embarrassment.

Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield said "some form of public financing is absolutely necessary to put an end to the day of labor's man, industry's man and whoever's man.

"Unless something is done, there is no way to prevent our national politics from becoming the exclusive preserve of the rich or of those who serve one of the economic interests of the nation."

For all your scuba diving equipment, air sales regulator repairs, tanks tested. Largest stock in Central Mass.
WHOLESALE PRICES
U.S. DIVERS — DECOR
Send for Price List.
The REEF DIVE SHOP Inc.
70 Washington St., Leominster
6 p.m. - 9:30 Mon. - Fri.
Sat. 10 a.m. - 6 p.m.
Sun. 7 a.m. - 10 a.m.
Call 534-3546 or 537-2829

FACES OF EARTH
159 North Pleasant St.
Amherst, Mass.
Flannel Shirts
$2.95
Sweat Shirts
$3.95
$6.25 to $6.95
Open to 10 p.m.

How To Move Off-Campus

If You:

1. are a Senior
2. will be 21 years of age during the academic year
3. are married
4. will be commuting from home

Then, notify - the Housing Office before room-choosing (December 6-10) that you intend to exercise any of the above options.

You're Not Covered By The Above Categories?

If you are not covered by any of the above categories then you are required by Board of Trustee regulation to live on-campus. However, you may apply for an exemption to the regulation through your Area Director.

Security Deposit:

If you plan to move off-campus you must notify the Housing Office before December 10, 1971, in order that you may get your deposit back. Students who fail to make such notification by December 10 and who fail to occupy a room in the Spring Semester will, unfortunately, forfeit their deposit. Make your plans early.

The traffic police around here don't fool around when it comes to giving out parking tickets. It seems, however, that whoever is supposed to collect the fines has been a little remiss in his duties. The money NOT collected could be used for scholarships, and students are actively complaining.

Unpaid Fines Cause Scholarship Denial

AMHERST, Mass. (AP) — A University of Massachusetts student claims he and about 350 other students are being denied scholarship aid because the university has failed to collect some $35,000 in outstanding parking fines.

Sophomore John McEleney has filed suit with the student general court to force the student attorney general, Henry Bouffard, to take action to collect the back fines, about $100,000 of which are owed by owners of cars not registered with the university.

Of the remainder, according to reports in the UMass Daily Collegian, some $31,000 is owed by UMass students and $4,000 by faculty.

McEleney told the student court three weeks ago that he felt he was being "deprived" of financial aid because of the uncollected fines, which go into a special UMass scholarship fund. He said he did not receive a scholarship even though he had the qualifying grades and established need.

"I didn't receive any money because there is just not enough to go around," he said, noting that some 350 others could have benefitted from the $700 grants the fund allots.

Hampshire County District Court Clerk Charles Kulikowski confirmed the outstanding parking fines and said, "It's the students--they try to duck everything." The fines have to be paid in his court, where, he said, a deluge of payments arrives every April and May when students are threatened by being prevented from graduating. He said some pay as much as $100, and some personal checks have been known to bounce.

Students, in turn, have complaints about parking facilities on the sprawling campus, claiming the faculty gets preferential treatment, and many times they have to park illegally to make classes.

The cars are ticketed by campus police, with some fines costing $5 to $10. There are designated free parking areas for students and faculty, who have to pay small annual fees to register their cars.

Atty. Richard Howland, who represents UMass students, suggested that the university use its computers to facilitiate the job of collecting fines

U.S. Air Power Stepped Up In Cambodia

SAIGON (AP) — With the military situation becoming critical in Cambodia, U.S. warplanes have stepped up their support of Cambodian troops, official American sources reported Thursday.

Reports circulated in Saigon that the South Vietnamese government was considering a Cambodian request for infantry and heavy weapons for the defense of Phnom Penh. Hand-to-hand fighting was reported near the western outskirts of the Cambodian capital.

Dispatches from Phnom Penh reported U.S. Cobra helicopter gunships have been thrown into the battle raging from 10 to 12 miles west of the capital.

The U.S. sources said the Cambodians have been getting substantially more American air support in the last 10 days.

The increased support has been mainly U.S. fighter-bombers, flying from bases in South Vietnam and Thailand, the informants reported. The planes have been active on Cambodia's northeastern front.

A Cambodian officer on the front west of Phnom Penh said the rockets of the Cobras were unable to penetrate the jungle cover of enemy bunkers and added that heavy weapons are needed. This would account for the request for South Vietnamese heavy guns.

In Brief...

WASHINGTON (AP) - The United States announced Thursday that Communist China had set off a nuclear explosion in the atmosphere at 1 a.m. EST--the first nuclear test by that country since Oct. 14, 1970.

The Atomic Energy Commission said the test--conducted in the vicinity of Lop Nur, in western China--had an explosive yield equivalent to about 20,000 tons of TNT, the same size as the primitive atomic bomb dropped on Hiroshima by the United States.

The latest test brought to 12 the number of Chinese tests announced by the United States, including 11 in the atmosphere, one underground.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Banking Committee voted today to allow pay increases negotiated before Aug. 15 retroactively unless they are determined to be "unreasonably inconsistent" with guidelines established by the Pay Board.

The committee voted to extend the President's authority to control wages and prices for an additonal year beyond next April 30.

(AP) -- Forecasters said today weather changes will diminish severe air pollution that prompted a federal judge to order 23 major Birmingham, Ala, industries to shut down. The pollution conditions affected several Southeastern states.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate turned back 49 to 46 a Republican move today to kill a Democratic-backed presidential campaign financing plan which could give major party nominees $20.4 million each in public funds next year.

The key test apparently indicated that the Democrats have the votes to write the plan into the $26-billion tax cut bill.

But Republicans indicated they might continue to fight the proposal by offering a series of amendments to it.

LONDON (AP) — Expensive duplication of effort has cost the North Atlantic Treaty Organization members their lead over the Soviet Union in development of new weapons, says an authoritative British reference annual.

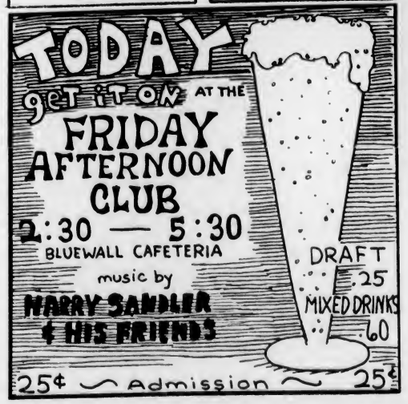
WMUA

TONIGHT ON 91.1 FM:

7:00 p.m. EVENING NEWS--a half hour report with world, national, and local news plus sports, weather and a five minute recap of major stories.

7:30 p.m. NEW RADIO THEATRE--the first in a new experimental series in radio theatre. Tonight's presentation will be "Three's Company, Four's a Crowd". Listening to this first program will be a unique experience.

8:00 p.m. UJAMAA DRUM--a three hour black program featuring soul, jazz, poetry, black commentary and news. The program is put together by the staff of the Black Mass Communications Project.



11:00 p.m.THE JOHN LORING SHOW--rock, folk, and many other good things.

1:00 a.m. THE BEST OF SHERLOCK HOLMES--the outstanding radio dramas from old time radio. (half hour)

1:30 a.m. John Loring returns with music til 3.

COGITO ERGO SUM
The Thinker's Loft exists, too.
It is a bookshop crammed with books dealing with Philosophy, Theology, Biblical Studies, Ethics and Social Issues. There are also chairs and a lounge in which to read them all. Buyers are welcome, too. Open Daily at 25 N. Pleasant St.
Above Wellworth Drugs
In the Center of Amherst

Carter
Overalls
Flannel Shirts
Landlubber
Jeans
WEAR-HOUSE

The Massachusetts
Daily Collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

BOARD OF EDITORS

EDITOR IN CHIEF — Richard C. Hanson
MANAGING EDITOR — Nathan Gorenstein
BUSINESS MANAGER — James Gold
EXECUTIVE EDITOR — Barry J. Rubenstein
NEWS EDITOR — Anne C. Stadnicki
SPORTS EDITOR — Earle T. Barroll

PHOTO EDITOR — Gib Fullerton
FINE ARTS EDITOR — Robert Nesti

TODAY'S STAFF

ISSUE EDITOR — Ann Gurnett
EDITORIAL — Barry Rubenstein, Larry Ladd
SPORTS — Bob Medeiros
DARKROOM — Barbara Brecher
AD LAYOUT — Elaine Stogel

Undergraduate newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The Staff is responsible for its content and no faculty members or administration read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.
Unsigned editorials represent the views of this paper. They do not necessarily reflect the views of the faculty, administration, or student body as a whole. Signed editorials, columns, reviews, and letters represent the personal views of the writers.

One Small Way

In the course of our everyday lives on this campus, we rarely see an administrator unless we have a gripe or need an exemption from some university regulation. We rarely meet faculty except in a submissive student to omnipotent teacher relationship. In all of these cases, we relate to each other only as titles or roles, helping to reinforce already existing stereotypes and prejudices. All of us - students, faculty, and administrators - easily accept these preconceived notions.

This weekend, representatives from all three groups will be gathering together at a site outside of Amherst for the annual SWAP Conference. People will be meeting and talking with each other in an informal atmosphere, discovering that indeed we are not primarily "roles." Hopefully, those who attend will come back to the campus with a much better understanding of the difficult dilemmas we all must face in trying to survive in this vast institution.

We hope that everyone who attends the conference will take the responsibility seriously. The opportunity for understanding and improvement is great. Too often students have complaints that are unjustified or ill-considered. Too often administrators make decisions that are detrimental to the best interests of students and/or faculty. Too often faculty members exist in isolation from the social currents that are all around them, hoping that by ignoring problems they will go away. The SWAP Conference is one way, one small way, to begin to get through to one another.

"Don't Be Taken In By Them Scientists — Leave Everything To Old Doc Polities"

Art Buchwald

Memoirs Worth Millions

WASHINGTON--The story concerning Aristotle Onassis' 170-clause marriage contract with the former Jacqueline Kennedy, as described by Onassis' chief steward, and denied by Mrs. Onassis' secretary, points up the hazard that only the rich must deal with. And that is:

"How does one find a faithful butler who has no desire to write his memoirs?"

By accident, I happened to be in the office of a literary agent the other day, and his phone didn't stop ringing.

This is some of what I heard.

"Hello, yes, Jim. I was going to call you this morning. No. I couldn't find anyone else on the Onassis yacht who had anything to add to the chief steward's memoirs, but would you be interested in a book written by Elizabeth Taylor's former hairdresser. It's got some juicy chapters in it. He was present when Liz cut Richard Burton's ear lobe with her diamond ring. Right. I'll send you over the manuscript."

The agent hung up and the phone rang again. "Doubleday? George, thanks for returning my call. Remember the gardener I told you about who worked for Frank Sinatra? Yeh, the guy who was fired when they found him in a tree at midnight looking into Sinatra's bedreem. Well he's just written a book titled 'A Tree Grows at Midnight.' It's told from the viewpoint of an outsider looking in on a world people rarely get to see. We're asking $100,000 advance. Okay, but give me your answer in 24 hours."

After the agent hung up he turned to me. "I've got one of Rockefeller's ex-upstairs maids writing a book on what went on in Rockefeller's basement when Happy was in Albany. And I have a ghostwriter working with Henry Ford's ex-chauffeur on a book titled 'What Christina Ford Did to Henry Ford When He Got a Better Idea.'"

"That should sell. You seem to have a market for the ex-employees of very rich people," I said.

"We have a saying in the publishing business: 'In every ex-butler there's a memoir screaming to get out.'"

The phone rang again.

"Hello, ah yes, Mr. McMurtry at the Souffle Chef Employment Agency told me you would call. You worked for Ethel Kennedy as a cook? How long? Three weeks? That's marvelous. What have you got? She served red wine with fish at a dinner she gave for Andy Williams? How soon can you get over here? Good, and don't talk to anybody about this."

"I guess there's a lot of money is being a servant these days," I said.

"If you work for the right person at the right time, there is a fortune to be made. I just sold Putnam the biography of the man who used to clean Bebe Rebozo's swimming pool. It's titled 'Backwash at Key Biscayne.'"

"I'd buy that."

"I also have a deal cooking with one of ex-President Johnson's ranch hands who kept a diary of what happened during the opening of the Johnson Library in Austin."

"Juicy?"

"It's going to shake up a lot of librarians."

The phone rang again. "Hello...yeah...yeah. You were? Can you prove it?...And you're willing to talk about it?...You bet I'm interested. I'll see you at five."

"Who was that?" I asked.

"It's the gal who used to work for Martha Mitchell's answering service."

Copyright 1971, Los Angeles Times

Getting Back At Nathan
(For Getting Off On George)

By GWEN GILLMORE

"A." who was over the hill, was walking downhill (thank God Downhill

"A." who was over the hill, was walking downhill (thank God downhill at his age) when "B" ran up to him exuberantly.

B: Hey! ya hear the news?

A: (sighing) Somebody broke another window. They've discovered a quicker way to grow pot. Scientists predict that the Amchitka blast will actually clean the air.

B: NO, man! Nathan Gorenstein went to see George McGovern!

A: Who?

B: Nathan Gorenstein.

A: Hell, I know Nathan. Who's George?

B: McGovern, Candidate for U.S. president.

A: Oh.

B: He appeared IN PERSON at UMass and Nathan put on a tie - or was that some other guy? - and went to see him.

A: A tie? I can't see Nathan choking his neck or chucking his principles...what was McDougal working?

B: McGovern. Tie too, obviously, and hair that Nathan said was exactly the proper length.

A: (startled) Hair has a proper length now?

B: Well, you know, for a prez candidate. Sideburns, hair over his collar. Nathan said it was just right to give the impression that he was a man of his own.

A: A phony. Nathan can spot one.

B: Yeah, and that's not all. McGovern's aides that night were young. Remarkably young, N.G. said.

A: And no doubt Nathan was sharp enough to conclude that he may have two sets of aides, one for the campuses and one for Middle America?

B: How'd you know that?!

A: To know Nathan is to---Look, can we sit down for a minute? My legs...touch of arthritis.

They sit under a tree.

B: (striking a match) Can I offer you---

A: (striking a match) No thanks. I've taken the lung cancer route. Getting back to Nathan, I can't see why he'd waste five minutes of his time listening to---

B: You're a mind reader! Five minutes is exactly how long he stayed for the speech!

A: Naturally. What could a bigshot like a presidential candidate say that someone like Nathan wouldn't have already heard or couldn't guess? I'm a little boggled, though, about the hair.

B: Hair?

A: Yes. In all fairness to the old man---

B: 40's He's in his 40's.

A: In all fairness to the old man what length of hair could he have had to placate the campus? Down to his shoulders, the Nixon barbershop bit, luckily I'm bald but this can be a critical cerebral decision for the Not Now Generation.

B: HAIR! It's irrelevant! The length of a guy's hair SIMPLY DOESN'T MATTER!

A: That's what I thought.

They sit silently for a moment, smoking/polluting. "A" massaging his left knee.

A: You've got to admire Nathan. When you think of the cool, important things he could have been doing that night.

B: Yeah, and Dan Quinlan too. Now there, according to Nathan, is an interesting person. He swept floors in the Hatch last year---

A: So did Nathan.

B: --and Dan thought the whole McGovern conference was vaguely ridiculous.

A: He went too? ? ?
Tell me, what else was the Big Bore wearing, besides sideburns and a tie?

B: Uh. A striped suit and black shiny shoes with side buckles. I think Nathan called them "executive-freak" type.

A: Oh dear. That's undoubtedly as absurd as The Little Old Lady in Tennis Shoes. Still if he had shown up in combat boots or a pair of scruffy old sandals---

B: Look! Do you have a hangup about clothes or something?

A: Who, me?

They get off the ground and stretch.

A: See you around.

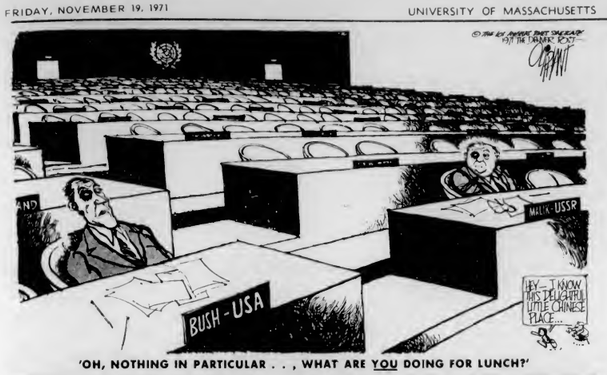
B: See you around. Take care of your arthritis.

B: (calling, from the top of the hill) Oh, one more thing. Nathan said there were an old man and his wife at the conference and they burst out into applause over a statement about Nixon.

A: (shouting uphill, his voice lost in the wind) There's always an old man or woman like that at these youth or dove things. I think they're plants.

(to himself) Why don't they quote all the people like me who don't clap for Nixon? (looking at his feet) Executive-freak, huh? Damned if I know whether to use shoepolish tonight or not.

This Is The Decade Of Invisible Laughs



This is the decade of invisible laughs; I the lop-eared intellectual clutch the night with cabbage hands confining my soft guilt to the sanity of my station. Who will gobble the snow before the rain comes? The girls in raincoats who chain their bicycles to trees, or the men with strontium ninety? Lip-poison makes the tongue bleed twice. I must go home and wait for inspiration. I the child bride of King Farouk will swing through the winter tunnel with Barricini and cartons of milk. I the Arabian myth. Play your flute, Kathy, play your flute on East Fifty fifth, give me your dish of candy.

All the music, all the snow, for mistletoe and brandy.

Jerome Nathanson

'OH, NOTHING IN PARTICULAR . . , WHAT ARE YOU DOING FOR LUNCH?'

Letters To The Editor

Index And Other Minorities

To the Editor:

Yesterday, in an article concerning the funding of the Index and certain other "minority" groups, I stated that I was of the opinion that the Student Senate is becoming divorced from the general will of the overall student body. I feel this is especially so in the case of allocation of the Student Activities Tax Fund. It is my contention that certain aspects of the present operating budget are way out of line with the overall will of the student body. A few days ago, after going through the bureaucracy of the Senate office, and some hassle in trying to obtain a copy of the Budget, I was allowed to sign out a copy for a few days the operating statement, commonly known around political circles as Document 71-S1. As student taxpayers, don't we have the right to be issued this Budget Act, rather than sign them out? After looking through some of the facts and figures for this operating year, and last, I came to the conclusion that this budget act did not represent my interests, over and above the cuts in the Index. For example, the Coalition for Environmental Equality had its budget cut from $9,950 to $6,620. As the pollution problem becomes more acute each day, the Senate sees fit to cut, rather than augment, this group's budget. Does this represent the overall will of the students of the University? For example, the Northern Educational Services, which tutors and performs a variety of services in Springfield for underprivileged students, had its budget increased only $55.00, from $8,150 to $8,205. They are presently sorely aching for more funds, yet the Student Senate funded Harambe (what is it?) for $7,808 dollars. Does this represent the overall will of the students of the University?

Seeing that we can't register for any semester until all fees have been paid, which includes the Activity Tax, why not make a voting poll part of the registration process? An I.B.M. card, listing the R.S.O. groups that are presently being funded, could be given to each student. On the card would be a space for students to mark their priorities one through thirty-five, which is approximately the number of R.S.O. funded groups now on campus. Moreover, a space could be provided for write-in groups, so that any interest on campus would have a more equitable chance of obtaining funds.

This criteria could be used to show how all the students on campus feel, so that when funding time came the budgets could reflect the priorities of the whole campus, and help to end the question of who are the minority and majority.

I urge all students to voice their sentiments about this proposal to their Student Senator. Everyone has a vested interest in the outcome. As the student body grows, the Senate has to consider the realities of present needs, and future, of the students. Included in these realities is the will of the student body. I feel that by initiating a program of this sort one of the many handicaps we are now under,that of not knowing the true wants and desires of all students, will be alleviated to some extent.

Hot Plates

To the Editor:

Respecting Mr. John P. Harrington's letter in the Collegian 11/16/71, he has solicited a reply from me which I assume he wishes in public print.

With a certain trepidation, I should first emphasize that the statement that something has been "found" to be a fact in the past, does not mean necessarily that it was sought after. One can conger up various plausible reasons why and how hot plates had been "found" plugged in and turned on in the past. For instance: plumes of smoke rising from an open window; flames lapping luxuriously beneath corridor doors; roaring infernos heard in corner rooms; and so forth.

With equal consternation, I note that extraordinarily simple "detection devices" often supply misinformation. Hence, I am not willing to accept the alarming conclusion that Mr. Harrington's rather uninteresting closet was the object of janitorial or conspirational investigation. The second paragraph of his letter in which he accepts the University gift of no cleaning does not seem to require lengthy response.

On the general issue of searching dormitory rooms at any time, whether occupied or not, the same general legal principles apply. For the purpose of conducting a police investigation or eliciting evidence the consent of a tenant or a warrant stating with particularity the place and/or person to be searched and the evidence sought to be discovered is required. In some cases an officer may search a person and his immediate vicinity "incident to a lawful arrest", but this is essentially a weapons search for the purpose of protecting the officer.

On the other hand, in a non-criminal matter, on landlord-tenant principles, the landlord or his agent may "inspect the premises and make repairs thereto" at reasonable times with notice to the tenant. Also in an emergency (such as a hot plate being plugged in and turned on) no such notice is required. Also if the nature of the emergency is such and whether it is real or imagined, the landlord is given considerable leeway in the interest of protecting other tenants and his property. If, in the course of an inspection that is permitted and is not a criminal investigation, should evidence that is incriminating be unearthed, it is not likely to be admissible in evidence nor may a subsequent search be based upon the "illegal search".

Obviously, I view any attempt to search anybody or anything as odious, abhorrent, despicable, and usually of dubious legal validity. I am opposed to any search by anybody, particularly a person who is not legally empowered to perform it by a warrant or whatever. The fact remains that some searches are lawful and searches for plugged in and turned on hot plates during vacations is not so unreasonable as to be anathema.

Richard M. Howland
Senate General Council
Attorney for Students

Scholarship Fund

To the Editor:

Three o'clock in the morning is very cold. Very dark. And very unsafe. After leaving WMUA I don't feel like looking all over the campus to find a space. With a little luck I might find one in F lot. Not much good since I live in Greenough (Central). H lot is located directly behind the dorm and is allocated to student parking. I am a student. I can park there.

Not according to Officer Munro. He felt it necessary to charge me five dollars for the spot. The offense listed on the ticket was "blocking an intersection." I was parked ten feet from a "Student Parking" sign. My car is registered and has proper decals for the area.

Upon noticing the ticket this morning I took it down to the Parking Office, where I was told to take it to the Campus Police who told me to talk to Officer Munro at 7:00 in the morning (or during his lunch break, or before he checks out if I can catch him.)

If this is the way the cops give out tickets, no wonder nobody wants to support the scholarship fund. I prefer to apply the capital to my own scholarship fund.

Eric Benjamin

Editorial Points

Wudst believe there's an A. Lincoln on the UMass faculty? Wudst believe, further, that his course is Soc 256, "Race Relations?" Shades of The Emancipation!

* * *

No, friends, SWAP does not stand for Student Worker's Annual Party. It's just a question of bad press.

* * *

If the Founding Fathers drew up a Constitution in the same way that the Collegian did, then we'd all probably be speaking Polish right now. (And I don't even like Kielbasa).

* * *

Maybe the Amherst Voter Registration Coalition could get another Presidential candidate to come to UMass. It is rumored that Sam Yorty is available.

A Few Changes

To the Editor:

I am very disturbed by the story in Wednesday's Collegian concerning the meeting of the Rents & Fees group last night, specifically, concerning the levying of fees. I assured Bob Chiller that I would see that any rents and fees with which I was concerned would be discussed thoroughly with the Rents and Fees Committee. This has been our posture all along.

The implication in the second paragraph of the article may be a bit different than this. There is a complete garble in the third paragraph which indicates that the Campus Center fee is $15, which, of course, it is not. What I was trying to explain was that the $15.00 increase in the Campus Center fee for next year which has been under discussion for a couple of years and pretty generally known, would only be put into effect after thorough consideration by the SUG Board of the total expenses for the Campus Center excluding garage and programs that require funding. The $15.00 increase was only an estimate made almost a year ago.

The published story in the Collegian Tuesday concerning "the use of Hamlin House as a hotel", I have asked Chuck Hampton to check with Don Witkoski to find out what the basis is for the quoted rates and whether in fact students are being charged more than the rate authorized by the Trustees. I am sure that this is not the case and that the rates quoted in the Collegian are those for conferees, not students.

In the paragraph at the top of the next column, I did not say the things attributed to me. What I said was that the Committee which is called Housing Exemption Committee (members: Campion, Gage, Hunt, Cochrane, Chiller, Ladd, Campbell, Pepper) was considering the issues involved with students living in dormitories including those involving requirements that certain students live there, the question of what makes the student want to live or not to live in a dormitory, and the like.

The last sentence in the next to the last paragraph which states that "the University was considering a plan that would enable student living in Sylvan to bypass the meal ticket requirement as a means of attracting people to the area" was not said by me at all. In fact, the subject didn't even come up while I was there. I gave no such information even in an implied sense on this subject. I think this subject must have been discussed before I arrived but I certainly did not participate in that discussion.

Thomas B. Campion

My Ocean Waves

No less than three the condors fly;
the buzzards swoop,
and die.
From beyond the past
the armies leap;
the immortal throes of time,
in heap, the enemy high...
their shields now lie.
No more than this,
the shores reveal:
their ceaseless voices spiel...
my ocean waves.

T. David Barrett

For The Championship Of The United States

Preview

SWAP '71-Conspirators And All

The 1971 Annual Faculty/Staff/-Student Piggyback Sliding Contest is about to get underway, weather permitting, (SNOW) at this year's SWAP Conference. The Conference revolves around the highly exciting and hotly contested title of "Tray Sliding Riders of the year." The administrators have been practicing for weeks in order to make a good showing, some have even converted their offices into sliding areas; others have been spending lunch hours with the kiddies down at Bowditch Lodge Daycare Center. Last year Dean Field walked off with the snow-balling title; will he do it again?

Other treats in store for the delegates are the computerized roommate selection and workshop selection cards, done by your friendly University computing Center. Any corrections may be made after the 21st, but for now you must wait until the computer is fixed. Joel Stoneham's crew from the Dining Commons, we regret to announce, cannot be flown in to cater the event, but our budget was tight.

The round robin list of speakers, done in marathon fashion, will be: Rick Verrochi on "How to Budget the Senate into Giving SWAP," Representative David Mofenson on an undisclosed "Politicized" topic of interest, Chancellor Edward Moore on "How to Name a Building," and finally Prez Bob Wood will give the conference some closing remarks along with SWAP Treasurer Bob Nims (who will announce the bankruptcy file).

The round robin list of discussion topics, 18 in all, appearing 12 times each in 6 time periods (enough to give any computer a headache) will give each delegate a "heavy" schedule with no study halls. Central themes of Chancellorizing, Politicization of the University, and Structures and Functions of the University, have given each workshop leader a broad topic from which to choose a direction for discussion to follow.

Included in the workshops will be: Community Service led by members of ACTION, PIRG, and NES, Budgeting led by Mr. Tom Campion, Governance, Security led by members of the campus police, Prerequisites of a Chancellor, Why do we need a Chancellor and What is he?, and Relationship of the Chancellor to Other Offices, led by members of the Search Committee, Dr. Bromery, Dr. Shapiro, and others, University and Town and University and State Relations, The Student Vote, Living/Learning, Academics, and others.

The outlines of the leaders indicate that some hard-put and incriminating questions will force the university to look at itself with an evaluation necessitating change--changes in goals and changes in the ways we perceive and pursue these goals. The Selection Committee will be there, and since Choosing a Chancellor is a major topic, the Committee's exchange with the SWAP Delegates will mean an increased participation by the community in sharing concern and ideas about how we choose and what kind of man do we want. The political topics will focus on UMass' service to town and state and its impact on each; obviously UMass has not been the resource it should be. Structures and Functions, tired but true, will be more exciting as new programs already underway, some the results of last year's conference, are subjects of controversy. SWAP does not hope to produce a Future of the University Report, but it does hope to make the things we are doing right become extended and broadened. The concern of the campus community about the decisions which affect all of us have proven through the Selection Committee and other tri-partite committees that we can come together and meet common goals, but we need the impetus to do so. SWAP can be the catalyst and the impetus.

A Brief History Of SWAP

The first SWAP was held in 1958 at which time representatives of major student organizations, faculty, and administrators were invited to attend the off-campus conference to discuss such issues as student taxes, communications, student publications, and residence hall and central student government. This format of SWAP was retained for several years.

With the significant growth of the University in size and complexity during the 60's, the students involved in activities as well as faculty members and administrators who were interested in all aspects of student life, naturally tended to be more concerned with broader issues facing the University. The format of the SWAP Conference, in accordance with the concerns of the student representatives of major student organizations, was consequently planned with these broader objectives in mind. Students (and sometimes faculty and administrators) were then chosen on the basis of application instead of being "automatic" representatives of student organizations and University agencies. Trustees, state legislators, and members of Amherst town government were invited as delegates to the recent SWAP Conferences making a full complement of parties with an interest in the University. Student autonomy, reform of residence hall academic reform, the student judicial system and security, long range University planning and University and community relations were among the more relevant issues. Emphasis on SWAP as a catalyst for action and reform, in addition to serving as a forum for discussion has increased over the past few years.

The majority of the expenses of the SWAP Conference has traditionally been borne by students in various manners. The undergraduate Student Senate this year, and for the past few years, is subsidizing the operations costs of the conference as well as most of the costs of students attending the conference.

The concept and history of SWAP has been lauded by many and criticized by some. It is hoped that the delegates of the 1971 SWAP Conference will wisely use the valuable opportunity for social interaction as well as more serious debate and discussion to further the goals of SWAP and the University community and to make this year a significant addition to the history of SWAP.

AUTO INSURANCE

ALL CARS — ALL DRIVERS
BUDGET PAYMENTS

CYCLES — SCOOTERS

Tekoa Insurance Agency

160 Pleasant St. Northampton 586-2742

10 Broad St. Westfield 562-3604

CALVIN
TEL 584-2310

Now . . . Ends Tues.

Eves., 7:45 p.m.

Sat-Sun - 5:00-8:25

ADULTS $1.50

WINNER OF 6 ACADEMY AWARDS!

DOCTOR ZHIVAGO

GP

BARGAIN NITES
Mon. & Tues. $1.00

AD DEADLINE

for

Monday, Nov. 29th issue

is at

4 p.m.

Tuesday, Nov. 23

For Those Who've Always Wanted The Best . . . . .

You'll find the best in Cheeses, Cold Cuts, Stews and Grinders at our Deli.

As a special this week we have:

MARINATED STEAK SANDWICHES 79c reg. 95c

REMEMBER:

We now cater . . . cold and hot (if you have cooking facilities) Plate dinners.
SPECIAL RATES to Fraternities and Sororities.

THE BLACK KETTLE DELI AND STEW HOUSE

TELEPHONE: 665-4084 665-4085

Junction of Routes 47 and 116 Sunderland

HOURS:
Mon.-Thurs. 11 a.m. - 11 p.m.
Friday - 11 a.m. - 1 a.m.
Saturday 9 a.m. - 1 a.m.
Sunday 11 a.m. - 11 p.m.

University Bulletins

The Student Union Craft Center will be opening on Monday. The Crafts Center was created by the Student Union Governing Board so that students would have a place on campus to work and learn about crafts. The Crafts Center will initially be offering some instructions and the space and equipment for work in leather working, silver smithing, candlemaking and photography.

Additional programs including Batik Enammeling and weaving will probably be added within the first few weeks of operation. The center will be supervised by Mrs. Penny Worman who worked with a similar program at Hampshire College last year.

Mrs. Worman will be assisted by 5-6 student helpers who should be able to help and instruct fellow students in crafts and who will also help run the Crafts Center. Persons interested in this instructor helper position and who have sufficient experience in crafts should apply to Mrs. Worman.

The Crafts Center is located in the Old Bookstore across from the Hatch.

*****

Last chance to meet informally with the Chief Undergraduate Advisors in CASIAC (E-22 Machmer) to discuss prospective programs for the coming Spring semester.

The following schedule applies for the period prior to Thanksgiving:

Nov. 19, 9-12, John Chandler, Chemistry; Mr. Lenson, Comp. Lit.; 1:30-4:30, Jay Savereid, Speech.

Nov. 22, 9-12, Sidney Wexler, Spanish; Thomas Andrews, Zoology; Thomas Arny, Astronomy; 1:30-4:30, Robert Wilce, Botany.

WFCR

The music of the jugbands, from the Memphis Jug Band (1925) to Gravy (1969), will be featured on this Saturday afternoon's Folkroots show. Folkroots features old-time music every Saturday at 1:00 on WFCR (88.5 FM) and welcomes your contribution if you have any interesting old-time folk records of if you play yourself in a semi-traditional style of folk music. Drop a line to ED LIGHT c/o WFCR.

Nov. 23, 9-12, Henry Lea, German; William Naff, Asian Studies; 1:30-4:30, Robert Fuller, Biochemistry.

*****

On Monday, Dr. Edward Katkin of the State University of New York at Buffalo will present a colloquium on Attica State Prison located in Attica, New York.

Dr. Katkin received his PhD in 1963 from Duke University and since then has been associated with SUNY at Buffalo.

For the past two years he has done extensive research at Attica State Prison. The topic of his talk is: "Psychological Consultations at Attica State Prison: Some Post-Hoc Reflections on the Making of an Insurrection."

His schedule is as follows: 3 p.m. Coffee in rm. 35 Bartlett (Grad Student Lounge), 4 p.m. Colloquium in rm. 231 Herter.

*****

Marian Taylor will present a modular offering on the topic of "Education and Legislation" Monday in rm. 128 of the School of Education at 1:30.

Mrs. Taylor is Chairman of the Vermont State Board of Education and Administrator of the Prospect School in Vermont (which runs a Federally funded open-learning program). Interested students should sign up on the sheet outside rm. 219 in the School of Education.

Two mods will be given for attending Mrs. Taylor's presentation.

*****

Approximately 194 Springfield .03 rifles, formerly used by the Flying Redman Drill Team and units of ROTC will be disposed of by the University. If anyone believes he has a legal claim on any of said rifles as personal property, he should communicate his claim, in writing to Sidney Myers, Staff Attorney, 324 Whitmore without delay.

Bausch & Lomb Ray-Ban's Are In Stock

Why not try some of the latest fashions in wire-rim sunglasses?? All come with heat treated safety lenses. Great for skiing, touring, or what ever tickles your fancy?

NOW at don call

56 Main St. Amherst's First Optician Amherst

Lox And Bagel Brunch

Rabbi Al Axelrod at Brandeis University Hillel

speaking on:

Violence-Non Violence and the Jew

Hillel Center, 420 Student Union, 11:00 a.m., Sunday

Quicksilver
57 North Pleasant Street

LIVE MUSIC
Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday Nites
OLDIES NITE
Monday
STONES NITE
Wednesday

RESTAURANT
Open 24 Hours

MDC CLASSIFIED

AUTOS FOR SALE

'62 Renault Dauphine, excellent body, motor, 38,000 mi., new clutch, 3 spd. tires, needs fuel pump, $100. 548 No. Pleasant St. tf11-19

1966 Red Porsche 912, new tires, new battery, good mechanical condition. Best offer. Call 545-2530 or 253-9460. tf11-22

1962 TR-4, new snow tires, battery, shocks, exhaust, body, mechanics in v.g. cond. Must see to appreciate. Asking $550. Call Mark at 253-9411. tf11-19

VW bus, not running good for parts, 4 new tires. Call Bill 253-7148. tf11-22

1962 Falcon, new tires, front end good, 6 cyl., auto., great mileage, engine needs minor repair work. Cheap! 665-4402 after 5 p.m. tf11-22

Cheapest Mercedes, 1962, 220sb., runs ok but needs work. With book, spares. After 5 p.m. 863-4424. tf11-23

1966 Opel, good condition, ask $650. Call anytime. 253-9542. tf11-19

67 Corvair, excellent condit., automatic, air cond., snow tires, radio, 30,000 miles, $445, phone 253-9625. tf11-19

'67 Chevelle Malibu, 2-door hardtop, vinyl roof, radio, V-8, A.T., P.S., excellent condition, $995. Call 253-3067. tf11-19

1964 VW for sale. Call 665-3066. tf11-30

1964 Chevy, s.w., toota, must find good home, good running condition. Needs muffler $225. Call 6-3837 between 6-8 p.m. or call late. tf11-30

'65 Corvair Monza, 4 speed, Am-Fm radio, good condition, No Rot, good tires, $200. Call 253-5344. tf11-30

'63 VW bug, excint. mech. cond., new brakes, starter, end., front end., 6 good tires, snow tire mounted. Call 546-9767 evenings. $400. tf11-30

1965 Porsche 356c rebuilt eng., elec. sunrf., new battery, clutch, tires. Will negotiate 545-0329, Dick Jubinville. tf11-23

65 Buz, runs perf., good tires, r & h, etc., reb. front end, new shocks, needs bat., & one oil seal. Call 253-7804, ask for Frank, keep trying. 11-19

FOR SALE

Wedding gown with attached train, empire waist, Juliet sleeves and Venecian lace, pearl seed crown veil. Best offer, call 549-1013. tf11-23

Bike for sale, 3 spd, English girls, best offer. Please call Joyce 253-7611. tf11-23

Minolta SRT 101, body like new, asking $85.00. Call 549-6786. tf11-19

Natural hide rugs, pillows, purses, steer, sheep, goat. Great Xmas gifts. Indian kid skin $10. Camp-Center Thur. 6-7538 - 225 James. tf11-22

Hieker Plastic Buckle Boots, Orbis G1, size 8 1/2m, used one ski season. Call Larry 617-544-6367, asking $45. 11-19

63 W.W., can run well but needs some work, sunroof, r & h, 2 fairly new tires, $125 or best offer. Also Nikon Cam. Equip. Call 665-4767. tf11-22

Original Turkish Sheep Skin Coat for a lady, white outside, white fur inside, $80. Call Ahmet 546-4210 after 8 p.m. tf11-22

Must sell 1 month old pair of EP1 001's, traded for EP1 mini towers. Cost 500 the pair new. Sacrifice for $250. Mike 256-8133. tf11-19

Alt receiver, 3 weeks old, 130 watts, r.m.s., cost $449, sell $295; AKAI X30SD, 1 year old, 20-20000 flat s.o.s., aws., cost $430-$295. 253-9587. tf11-24

Like new $140 Columbia 10-speed bike $70. Also $150 Mono Elco tuner, very good cond., $45. Call Dave 527-6367. tf11-19

Used Rock records for sale in exc. cond. incl. English and Bootlegs $1.25/rec. Call 253-5045. tf11-19

61 Bonneville, rebuilt engine, rebuilt transmission, automatic, all power, $500. Must sell. Call 667-5463 after 6 leave phone & address. tf11-19

Benjamin compacts EMI speakers, Lenco and Miracord turntables at low prices. Concord Equipment at Discount Prices Call 546-6017. tf11-23

Two Mohawk 770 magnum tires, mounted on 14" mags. Will fit any GM car. Pretty new. 1 need $. Dave 546-6804. tf11-19

Guitars Amps, drums, acc, at reasonable prices. The Guitar Workshop, 94 Main St. North. 586-1706. tf11-20

WANTED

Daily Hampshire Gazette is interviewing students & others for working as stringers. If interested call Editor at Hazel 584-5000. tf11-22

Female desires traveling companion to West Coast, leaving around Dec. 1. Call Joan Gipson, 538-2203. tf11-19

Students needed (males) for Psych expt. $2 dollars paid. Contact Jeanne in Bartlett 2298. tf11-19

Guitar teacher, in Amherst for two older kids, neither a beginner. Call 549-6630 after 5:30 p.m. tf11-22

Riders wanted to Montreal, Thanksgiving, 256-8174. 11-19

Wanted to buy-photo developing equip., especially enlarger. Call 1-369-4632. tf11-23

Lessons in Portuguese needed. Brazilian student preferred. Write Linda, P.O. Box 263, Northampton. tf11-22

FOR RENT

Presidential apartment-sublet available Nov. 15, $185, including utilities. Call 253-2515, Kamins Real Estate. tf11-19

Giant size apt., Cliffside, one bedroom, all electric. Call 665-4931, available Jan. 1st. tf11-19

Available Dec. 1, 1-bdrm. apt. at Cliffside 135, all utilities. Call 665-3025. tf11-19

Available immediately, 1 bedroom, townhouse, Puffton Village, near UMass, all conviences. Call 549-0177, $156 9 mon. lease. tf11-19

1 bd. rm. apartment, Puffton Village, avail. Dec. 1. Call 546-7231. 11-19

EMPLOYMENT

International jobs - Europe, S. America, Asia, Australia, U.S.A. Openings in all fields-Soc., Sci., Bus., Sci., Engineering, Ed., etc. Alaska Const. & Pipeline Work. Earnings to $500 weekly, summer or permanent. Paid expenses, bonuses, travel info, only $3. Money back guarantee. International Employment, Box 721 - M515 Peabody, Mass. 01130. 11-19

PERSONAL

3rd. floor Knowlton: Hello Leslie this is...who spiked that punch? Stagerlee made it back fruitily. Igor, Ned and Ratso. 11-19

VVAW: Tell Tony the Tiger I think he's G-R-E-A-T! Laughing Lady. tf11-23

To all aspiring folk musicians. Rumor has it that a Capital recordings talent scout will be at Patterson's Folk night tonight. tf11-19

J.P. Happy Birthday Honey, Love J.C. 11-19

Happy Birthday David - Love Paula (you too Gary) 11-19

India Nite-I have a date with you on 20th Nov. at Amherst Regional H.S., 8 p.m. Call 549-6069. tf11-19

Happy Birthday Frank from Sig, Steve, Chuck, Dee, Bob, Elaine, Lynn, Chico, Weeble, and Lotsa luck. tf11-22

Happy Hour this Friday, Nov. 19 at Phi Sigma Delta from 7:30 - everyone invited. tf11-19

You're warm, warmer, now you're hot in an authentic air force parka! Mens $37.50, boys & girls $34.50 Call Al at 549-0816-275 Puffton VIII. tf11-19

RIDE WANTED

Help! secretary desperately needs ride from UMass to Granby weekday eve. Leave Campus after 5. Call Diane at 5-pone, ext. 68 or 467-9107. tf11-22

ROOMMATES WANTED

Two girls wanted to share bedroom in Puffton Apt. for second semester $55 a month. Call 549-0871. tf11-23

Female roommate to share 2 bdrm. townhse. apt w. 3 others. Immed. occ. 256-8101, keep trying. tf11-22

Female-preferably grad student. Own room, $80/month includes utilities. Call Linda 665-4125. tf11-23

Roommate needed for January, 2 bdrm twnhs., Rolling Green. Pls call Joyce 253-7611. tf11-23

APT. WANTED

Apt. or large efficiency wanted in Amherst. (150/mo. or under range) Call Hank-584-6586. tf11-19

ROOMS WANTED

Two girls would like rooms in a house near campus for January semester. Call Mary at 546-5278. tf11-23

SERVICES

Qualified guitar teacher looking for students, reasonable rates. Call Ed at 546-6106. tf11-19

REWARD

For info. leading to recovery of male dog part gold Retriever & Setter. Short h. tan hair. 6 months old. Lost 11-1-71. 584-0079 after 1. tf11-19

Reward for return of lost wide gold wedding ring. Initials KMW to JSE 6/7/70 If found please call Jake 549-3016 or Kathy 549-1311. tf11-19

$15 REWARD

1 yr. old male Sealpoint Siamese, old brown collar, answers to "Snowy", missing from 337 Puffton since Oct. 9. Please call 549-6786. tf11-19

WANTED TO RENT

2-1 bedroom apartment or house for January or February 1. Call 546-6515 or 546-6500. tf11-19

Wanted for Jan. 1, one bedroom apt., pet must be allowed. Rent between $130 and $180. Call 665-4003 after 6, No. & Wed. night. tf11-19

TYPING

Typing-theses, dissertations, etc. Fast, accurate, experienced. Have Math and Chem. symbols. Call 253-3001. tf12-21

TRAVEL

Crimson Travel offers low cost spring vacation trips to Bermuda and Nassau. For more info call Rich Margil 412 Dwight 545-0790. tf11-19

STUDENTS BOOK MATCHING

Register your book in S.U. Rm. 318. Every student with your course next semester will need your books save $ money, sell direct. tf-sem.

FREE

Free kittens, 7 weeks old, 256-6155. 11-19

MOVIE

WOODY ALLEN IS HILARIOUS IN "TAKE THE MONEY AND RUN" IN COLOR, SAT., NOV. 20, MAHAR AUD., 7, 9, 11 P.M. tf11-19

HELP WANTED

Ski instructors wanted at Berkshire East. M or F, experienced part or full time. Send resume to Director, 21 North St., Windsorlocks, Conn. tf11-19

JOBS

Overseas jobs for students. Australia, Europe, S. America, Africa, etc. All professions & occupations, $300 to $3000 monthly, expenses paid, overtime, sightseeing. Free information-write Jobs Overseas, Dept. 8B, Box 15071, San Diego, Calif. 92115. tf11-22

Notices

AMERICA
Dear America,
do you want to live in a world of garbage? no. so don't litter in the woods, help clean-up! we are!
sincerely,
Mark's Meadow students
grades 2,3,4

APPLE CORPS
Bazaar --Dec. 12--Sunday afternoon--Anyone interested in setting up a booth to sell anything you make (crafts, silver, leather)--Call Howy 66909 after 11pm.

BELCHERTOWN'S VOLUNTEERS
There will be a bus leaving Whitmore on Saturday, at 12:45 pm for the State school. All interested people are welcome to attend. The bus on the following week, on Sat. the 27th will be cancelled due to Thanksgiving vacation.

BELCHERTOWN
Course on mental retardation (focused on State School) offered at Mount Holyoke during January. Anyone interested (or with some ideas) call Mary Hancox 5863100, 2092.

BOLTWOOD BUS
Bus will be running Sunday for the school play. Bus leaves Whitmore at 6:05pm. Donations to cover cost of bus. No programs next week.

CHRISTIANS
Bus leaving for Florence Cong. Church Sunday at 8:35 from in front of the Newman Ctr; at 8:37 at the bus station opp, Morrill; 8:40 at Hamlin and 8:45 at Emerson on Univ. Dr.
Family time: Supper at the Baptist Church at 5:30. Donations for meal 50¢. All invited.

CONCERT
Room to Move Concert: Tonight at 8 PM in Student Union Ballroom; featuring: Flight, East Jesus, Fat. Movies and lights by Barry Schonhaut.

FILM
Sylvan Area--tonight at 7:30 flicks: Dracula, Pit & the Pendulum, W.C.Fields shorts. At Worchester Dining Commons (blue room).
"Beach Party" with Frankie and Annette. Tonight at 7:30 & 10. Pierpont Lounge plus 3 cartoons.

GORMAN HOUSE BABYSITTER SERVICE
Do you need a babysitter? Available names & telephone# registered in Gorman. Call 5464546 or 5469547.

HILLEL
Services at 7:30 in office. Oneg Shabbat with students who have studied in Israel will follow.
Lox & Bagel Brunch Sunday at 11am/ Rabbi Axehor will speak on Violence Nas Violence and the Jew in the Hillel office.

HOME ECONOMICS UNDERGRADUATES
Come and discuss the newly proposed course changes and programs. If you don't come, don't complain about requirements/courses you have to take. Skinner Aud at 7:30 pm Monday.

INTERNATION FOLK DANCING
Folk dancing tonight, 8pm-midnight at Davis Ctr., Smith College. Teaching till about 10. Everyone is welcome.

IVCF
All Nighter Gang--Farley lodge, 9pm-7am. Come and stay as long as you can. Bring your own things, supper at 12 midnight.

JUDO STUDENTS
A special clinic this Sunday at 1:30 in Boyden wrestling room. Black belts from Tohoku Judo club will be visiting. Please come.

LECTURE
Mrs. Jackson, David Soloman, and Willie Johnson (Ex-Soledad prisoners) will speak at the 1st Cong. Church in Amherst on Sunday, Nov. 21 at 7pm. Everyone is welcome. Shirley Chisholm, Presidential candidate will speak on "Face the Nation" at 11:30 on Sunday.

MARY LYON KEG PARTY
Featuring Rush on Saturday, from 8:30-12:30.

O.H. RESIDENTS
Saturday night's the night. All are welcome to attend Free in Field lounge at 7:30. Bring your friends.

SOVIET JEWRY
Meeting Sunday night at 7:30 in the Nantucket room. Plans will be formulated for December's vigil and fast day.

STUDENT SENATE GOVERNMENTAL AFFAIRS
Meeting will be held Sunday at 6pm in rm 801 CC. General laws and constitutions will be discussed.

SWEET CORN THEATRE WORKSHOP
Free-open to everyone--Sunday at 2pm at CCrm 174.

WTOY
Bob Dylan in "Don't Look Back" with Joan Baez and Donovan. A film of Dylan's 1965 tour of England, Tuesday at 7:30 and 9:30 in SU Ballroom.

LOST
Wedding ring, engraving JR & WL. please return to CClost and found or call 5367020 collect.
Wire rimmed glasses in black case after 12:20 class on Monday. If found call 68240.
Brown paper bag containing two bottles of awful-testing solution vital for experiment. Last seen in Bartlett 310. If found call 67613 eves.

FOUND
Girl's blue crocheted hat in Public Health Aud Wed. at 11am. Call Elaime 61171.

PINNINGS
Rick Vogeley, '72, Kappa Sigma to Kathy Pendergast, '74, KKG.
Ken Ford, '74, LCA to Maureen Morley, '72, LDP.
Susan Magiera, '74, JQA to William Feig, '74, US Naval Academy.

ENGAGEMENTS
Phyllis Tagliente, '74, JQA to Albert Rennie, '74, North Adams State College.
Nancy Lee Berwick, '72, Rhode Is. Jr. College to Russell Gordon James, '72, Rolling Green Apts.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

☆ by SYDNEY OMARR ☆

Librans, although gentle-appearing, can fight when they feel cause is right. These persons have the creative fires necessary for artists: They also are dedicated, concerned with principles. You can push a Libran only so far. If you attempt to take advantage of one born under this zodiacal sign, be prepared to pay consequences. Some famous persons born under Libra include Max Schmeling, George C. Scott and Arlene Francis.

• • •

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Plans which have been blocked, thwarted now can be set in motion. Be confident about future. Make reservations, keep in touch with those at a distance. Iron out details. You're going places.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Creative efforts result now in favorable changes. You are able to extricate yourself from sticky situations. What appeared a financial restriction turns around in your favor.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Better relations indicated in connection with mate, business associate. Misunderstandings are cleared; you gain public good will. Now is time to correct past mistakes. Get facts on record.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Vitality makes reappearance. You receive encouragement from co-worker, associate. One who had appeared to desert comes back. You are beneficiary. Take advantage of opportunity.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Young persons stimulate. You are given credit overdue. Money and emotional positions are more secure. Utilize innate sense of showmanship. Refuse to be depressed by perennial skeptic.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Long-rang projects favored. Improve home surroundings. Make necessary repairs. Correct any potential safety hazards. You get things accomplished. Family member will co-operate.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Short journeys indicated and favored. You can get special messages across. Improve relations with neighbors, close relatives. Be independent, but also be willing to accept new concepts.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Finances gain momentum; means money picture is brighter. You collect what you seek. Be selective. Stick to quality. Aquarius individual aids in search--which will be successfully concluded.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Circumstances fall into place. You get going on personal projects. Stress independence, originality. Put brakes on diet. You exhibit tendency now to go to extreme. Avoid too much of a good thing.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): One who is quiet is working in your behalf. Know this; respond accordingly. Attend to details. Concentrate on slow, steady progress. Don't overlook detail that appears to be minor.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Accent on obtaining desires. You are rewarded for efforts. Friendship could blossom. Be receptive. Accept social invitation. Member of opposite sex pays meaningful compliment. No need for excess modesty.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): One who cares demonstrates affection. You are given moral support. Accept challenge. You are repaid for past, present efforts. Accent on career, standing in community. Prestige rises.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY your ideas are original, often unorthodox. You are capable of giving and taking criticism. You abhor hypocrisy. You call shots as you see them. Recent enterprise, opportunity is due to pay dividends.

Copyright 1971, Gen. Fea. Corp.

Crossword Puzzle

ACROSS
1 Mountains of Europe
5 Ocean
8 Hurried
12 Girl's name
13 Chinese pagoda
14 Roof edge
15 Plucky
17 Housekeeper
19 City in Italy
20 Specks
21 Wife of Geraint
23 Melody
24 Aeriform fluid
26 Sufferer from Hansen's disease
28 Obscure
31 Three-toed sloth
32 French plural article
33 Sun god
34 Lift with lever
36 Temporary shelters
38 Place
39 Shield
41 Story
43 Bog down
45 Climbing plant
48 Sings
50 More beloved
51 Wild buffalo of India
52 The self
54 Abound
55 Remainder
56 Soak
57 Sums up

DOWN
1 Seaweed
2 Forsaken
3 Things worth striving for
4 Glossy fabric
5 Pigpen
6 Babylonian deity
7 Dutch measure
8 Surgical thread
9 Separated
10 Cry of Bacchanals
11 Lairs
16 Labor
18 River in Asia
22 Erases (printing)
23 Snappish
24 Opening
25 Ventilate
27 Writing implement
29 Anger
30 Small rug
35 Longs for 36 Cash drawer
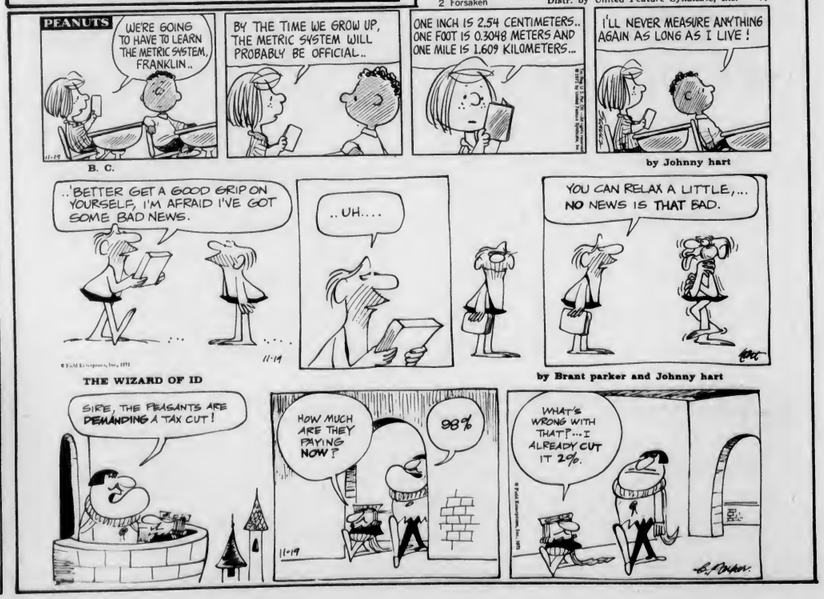
37 Transaction
38 Trapped
40 Gaze
42 Lasso
43 Mark left by wound
44 Biblical weed
46 Want
47 Limbs
49 Weight of India
50 Speck
53 Earth goddess

Answer to Yesterday's Puzzle

P	O	R	T		E	R	A		S	C	A	R
O	G	E	E		L	E	I		H	O	B	O
O	R	C	A		A	N	S	W	E	R	E	D
L	E	E	R		N	O		A	D	D	L	E
		P	Y	E		W	I	N
A	L	I		W	E	N	S		O	R	A	L
L	O	N	G	E	D		M	A	N	I	L	A
L	O	G	E		D	I	S	C		S	P	Y
			C	A	M		T	W	O
A	G	O	R	A		P	A		A	R	A	L
C	A	R	A	B	A	O	S		D	I	N	E
E	V	E	N		U	S	E		E	A	S	T
R	E	S	T		K	E	A		S	L	A	T



GET 'EM WHILE WE HAVE 'EM

THE SHOE-BIN

from $22

Fri. til 9

Notre Dame Shuns Post-Season Bid

(AP) — Notre Dame declared itself out of the post-season game of musical chairs Thursday as pieces began falling into place--unofficially--in the major college football bowls.

Under National Collegiate Athletic Association rules, promoters aren't permitted to contact teams until 6 p.m. Saturday, local time, in the area the team is playing.

Nevertheless, phones have been jangling all over the country for a week, and some of the big bowls are reportedly set.

According to best inside information, they stack up this way:

ROSE BOWL Jan. 1-Michigan 10-0 vs. Stanford 7-3.
ORANGE BOWL Jan. 1-Nebraska 10-0 vs. Alabama 10-0.
SUGAR BOWL Jan. 1-Oklahoma 9-0 vs. Auburn 9-0.
COTTON BOWL Jan. 1-Texas 7-2 vs. Penn State 9-0.
GATOR BOWL Dec. 31-Georgia 9-1 vs. Arkansas 7-2-1.
BLUEBONNET BOWL Dec. 31-Colorado 8-2 vs. Houston 7-2.
FIESTA BOWL Dec. 27-Arizona State 8-1 vs. Florida State 6-3.
LIBERTY BOWL Dec. 20-Tennessee 6-2 vs. Air Force 6-3.
TANGERINE BOWL Dec. 28-Toledo 10-0 vs. Richmond 4-5 or William & Mary 5-5.
PEACH BOWL —North Carolina 8-2 vs. Mississippi 8-2.

Announcement that the Fighting Irish, who for years maintained a firm no-bowl attitude, would sit this one out came from Coach Ara Parseghian in South Bend, Ind.

The coach said he took a sounding of the players and they voted against bowl participation. The Irish this year failed to measure up to expectations, losing to Southern California 28-14 and squeaking past several other teams which they are supposed to overpower.

The Irish also have a tough game coming up Saturday night in Baton Rouge, La., against Louisiana State. Notre Dame lost to Texas in the Cotton Bowl Jan. 1, 1970, but came back to beat the previously unbeaten Longhorns Jan. 1, 1971.

As usual the four big bowls--Orange, Sugar, Cotton and Rose--will command the most attention, bringing into action six teams unbeaten at the present time.

Thus, the national championship may hinge on the Jan. 1 contests, as was the case last year when Nebraska, 17-12 winner over Louisiana State in the Orange Bowl, won the title when Notre Dame beat defending champion Texas in the Cotton Bowl and Ohio State fell before Stanford in the Orange Bowl.

Bob Devaney of Nebraska, the country's winningest football coach, has been biding his time for another shot at Alabama since the Crimson Tide beat his Cornhuskers in the Orange Bowl 39-28 in 1966 and repeated in the Sugar Bowl in 1967 by 34-7.

Coach Bear Bryant of Alabama, with one of his best squads, has a fondness for the Orange Bowl.

The national title could be decided in the Orange and Sugar Bowls, with Michigan, now No. 3 in the AP poll, in position to stake a claim with a triumph in the Rose Bowl.

Nebraska and Oklahoma, now ranked Nos. 1 and 2, respectively, clash in Norman, Okla., on Thanksgiving Day. Auburn and Alabama, rivals of long standing, match their perfect marks in a game at Birmingham the following Saturday, Nov. 27.

Could B.C. Lose?

Buy around trip bus ticket to B.C. Game & see!
NOV. 20
Departure 10:30 a.m.
C.C. BUS CIRCLE
BUY NOW $6
RSO OFFICE
or call
Student Senate
Bus Service

Ack Ack

ARCADIA, Calif. (AP) — Ack Ack, a leading candidate for 1971 Horse of the Year honors in thoroughbred racing, has been retired and will head for stud at Kentucky's famed Claiborne Farm shortly.

Trainer Charlie Whittingham, who handles the 5-year-old bay for the Forked Lightning Ranch of Buddy Fogelson and his actress wife, Greer Garson, confirmed the retirement Thursday.

"We've been thinking along these lines for some time," said Whittingham, himself a candidate for trainer of ten year laurels. "Ack Ack, after all, is five and will soon turn six, and there's not much else left for him to do.

"There is a matter of weights, of course, which can put a horse out of business. Ack Ack has been spotting other horses 7, 8, 10 pound and kept winning."

Purchased for a reported $500,000 by Fogelson after the death of the breeder, Capt. Harry F. Guggenheim, a year ago, Ack Ack won such classics the past year as the Santa Anita Handicap and the Hollywood Gold Cup, the latter under an unprecedented 134 pounds. Jockey Bill Shoemaker was Ack Ack's regular rider for Whittingham.

His career record included 19 wins and six seconds in his 27 starts and more than $600,000 in purses.

A colic ailment put Ack Ack temporarily on the sidelines after the Hollywood Park meeting, depriving him of a chance to campaign in the East.

FACES OF EARTH
159 North Pleasant St.
Amherst, Mass.
Winter Coats
$7.50 to $25.95
Parkas
$24.95 to $39.95
Open to 10: 00 p.m.

John Morgan returns to The Pub
Next Week

Dream Weekend For NFL Football

NEW YORK (AP) — Three divisional leads at stake and three others hanging in the balance.

It's a dream weekend for National Football League fans--and a nightmare for prognosticators.

Dallas and Washington collide again for supremacy in the National Conference East, San Francisco and Los Angeles do the same in the West and, Baltimore invades Miami with the American Conference East lead up for grabs.

And let's not forget that Minnesota, Chicago and Detroit all have a shot at the NFC Central crown and that, in the AFC, Oakland and Kansas City are still slugging it out in the West while Pittsburgh and Cleveland try to back into the Central title.

But enough stalling. The view from this vantage point is that the Cowboys will haul out a chunk of revenge and beat the Redskins, the Rams will gallop by the shaken 49ers and the Dolphins' air show will be too much for the Colts.

And keep an eye on the action in Cincinnati, where the Bengals will return to AFC Central contention, and in Buffalo, where the Bills will finally upset somebody.

So, following a 9-4 weekend that put the nine-week record at 68-42-7 for a .618 percentage, here's what to expect:

Dallas 24, Washington 20: The Redskins' "Over-the-Hill Gang" is anything but washed up--but the same goes for the Cowboys' reawakening Doomsday Defense. Dallas, though, is regaining its confidence as well behind Roger Staubach while Washington is looking over its shoulder. And memories of the loss at home to the 'Skins will give the Cowboys the final push.

Los Angeles 31, San Francisco 21: The Rams stunned San Francisco six weeks ago and they did it without Roman Gabriel, who has returned to pinpoint form. That, plus a jazzy running attack, will be enough to outshine John Brodie and the erratic 49ers.

Miami 34, Baltimore 27: History is on the side of the proud Colts--but they haven't got anything to match the Dolphins' Bob Griese-to-Paul Warfield combination--not even Johnny Unitas. Nor can they shut down Miami's ground game forever.

Cincinnati 28, Houston 14: Believe it or not, the Bengals are only two games out of first in their division despite a dismal 2-7 record. And with Virgil Carter back, they'll cut up the Oilers' pass defense.

Buffalo 21, New York Jets 17: Just a hunch. Kicking away their chance for victory last week did nothing for the spirit of the Jets, who had to struggle in the teams' first meeting. Two of the Bills' last three losses have been by less than a touchdown.

Minnesota 20, New Orleans 9: If Ed Hargett and the Saints pull this one out they deserve an honorary berth in the Super Bowl. But don't worry. They won't even dent the Vikings' granite defense.

Chicago 20, Detroit 17: The Bears have made believers of a lot of people as well as themselves while the Lions are beginning to wonder what's going wrong. Chicago will make its own breaks and defense Detroit out of the NFC Central race.

Pittsburgh 28, New York Giants 21: Terry Bradshaw just keeps bombing along. The Giants are once again without a consistent running game to complement Fran Tarkenton's passing.

New England 31, Cleveland 24: Jim Plunkett may be virtually the entire Patriots' offense but that's all they'll need to upset the sagging, disheartened Browns.

Kansas City 24, Denver 13: Len dawson is crafty enough to pick apart the Broncos' defense. And the threat of the bomb to Otis Taylor will give the Chiefs a chance to run as well.

Oakland 38, San iego 21: John Hadl will sting the Raiders a few times--but not nearly as many times as the Chargers will feel the bite of Daryle Lamonica, Pete Banaszak, George Blanda & Co.

Philadelphia 20, St. Louis 13: Another upset hunch. The smooth-cheeked Eagles are putting together a commendable defense and the hot-and-cold Cardinals won't break through it with the big play enough times.

Green Bay 20, Atlanta 17: Being shut out last week will have the Packers sky-high. However, the Falcons won't be up after last week's last-minute loss to the Giants.

Namath Returns To Practice

NEW YORK (AP) — Joe Namath of the New York Jets worked at quarterback with the club's offensive unit Thursday for the first time since an exhibition game injury, but said afterward he was not yet ready to return to action.

"I certainly haven't worked hard enough to decide if I'm healthy," Namath said after the hour and 50-minute drill. "But right now I know I'm not. If I'm healthy I'll play. It's my job to play if I can."

Namath hasn't played since he tore up his left knee in an exhibition game against Detroit Aug. 7. He has been working with the club recently but Thursday's drill marked the first time he had run the offensive unit.

"His throwing is not as good as it could be," said Coach Weeb Ewbank.

Namath also criticized his own efforts.

"I did not feel completely confident setting up out there," he said. "I'm not satisfied with my timing, but how can you be after one day? But I do feel better than I've felt in a long time."

Demo and Used Equipment Available

Used:

SANSUI 350, 32 watt rms receiver. A good receiver in great shape. List $199.95 — $110.00
PIONEER T3306 Stereo Cassette Deck. 6 months old - owner traded up. List $149.95 — $90.00
TEAC 4010-S Auto Reverse, 3 Motor Deck. List $499.95 — $175.00
AZTEC PICASSO loudspeakers, 1 year old. List $220.00 pair — $130.00
AMPEX 1100, Open Reel Tape Recorder, as is — $25.00
EPI Model 601 speakers, $500 list. the pair — $250.00

Demonstration Units

TEAC Model A1200U, list $299.50 — $250.00
AZTEC Rembrandt Speakers, 10" Woofer, 4 x 10 horn, 2 x 6 horn, extremely effecient. Will run with most any amp. List $339 the pair. the pair — $220.00
EPI model 601, demonstrators, scratched but you can't hear it (new guar.). $500 list — the pair — $375.00
STANDARD 40 watt RMS Receiver, a powerhouse at the price. — $170.00
STANDARD SR180DK deluxe Cassette Deck...probably the best in terms of performance available — $120.00
MIKADO 30 watt RMS Receiver, FM, needs work but great amplifier for the money. List $199.95 — $95.00
TOYO 4 Channel Cartridge Player w/speakers. List $229.95 — $140.00

All used equipment has 7 day money back guarantee.
Demonstrators carry full factory warranty.

Amherst Audio
197 No. Pleasant St. Open Fridays till 9: 00

Redmen Finale At BC

By DAN KAMAL

The end is near. Like tomorrow at Boston College starting at 1:30.

For 18 seniors it really is the end; for the rest of the squad it's the end of a fair, but potentially good season. Potentially good because a win against BC would make any kind of season a good season for UMass.

Wednesday at the Varsity M Club Luncheon, Dick MacPherson noted that his team was at an incredible emotional high. Does he think his squad might be "too high" for the game?

"No, this is a senior group. They've been through it before; they've played BC twice and recognize the fact that they've been in both games. They're not awed; they have a great desire to beat them and recognize that it will take a minimum of mistakes to do it."

MacPherson feels that the Redmen are "really stepping up" when they play a team the caliber of Boston College. He called the Eagle program "the finest in New England."

MacPherson was just noting a couple of facts about a real good football team. But he also added something: "The reason that we've done so well in the Yankee Conference is that when we play outside the Conference we play better football teams than the other Yankee Conference clubs. BC is one of those clubs. Now the task is to convince the players that they're capable of beating them."

Although Eagle coach Joe Yukicka has called this year's team his best all-around club since taking over the head coaching position at The Heights, BC is not invulnerable.

The team got behind early and made a lot of mistakes against West Virginia. The result--a 42-14 defeat. Last week against Northern Illinois, the Eagles had to come from a 10-0 deficit at the half to beat a supposedly far inferior club.

When the Eagles are "on" though, they have it all. As MacPherson noted, "BC has speed at the outside receivers, size and strength at the offensive line, a good running and throwing quarterback, a powerback and a speedback." The UMass coach was equally impressed with their defense.

The players he was talking about specifically are ends Mel Briggs and Ed Rideout (who is questionable with a bad knee), quarterback Ray Wayland, powerback Bill Thomas, and speedback Tom Bogus. On defense he cited senior linebackers Kevin Clemente ("he always makes the play that kills you") and Lou Silva and defensive ends Greg Broskie and Mike Mucci ("who will make it tought on the sweeps.")

UMass has had an outstanding practice week so far according to MacPherson. He seems to think his guys are ready. The team is relatively healthy although split end Bob Cabrelli and lineman Tom Mullen have not practiced all week and are questionable.

Tomorrow is also the last game in the first year for MacPherson at UMass. He reflected briefly on the season: "From a coaching standpoint we're dissatisfied, but we're extremely happy the way this thing has turned around." He was talking about a 1-3 record that now stands at 4-3-1. What will it take for the record to read 5-3-1 after Saturday?

"We're going to have to take away what they like to do best. They like to control the ball on the option. They also use the passing game well to complement the running game and they run excellent position-type patterns."

"We can't give them any special-team points and we can't give them good field position."

Certainly a large order.

ANYONE FOR A PIG PILE?-Go to Boston College tomorrow and you just may see this same style of gang tackling by both teams. It always happens in a big game. (MDC photo by Bob Medeiros)

Metawampe's Picks

As one assistant said so recently, "I came so long for this?" I charge into my last week at picking mere mortals who make Jimmy the Greek look like a defected oujia board, who make the experts look like beginners and who make me look like, well, name your poison to this one. But what a way to end it all, with the Eagle... brings back memories of my people and when I pick these games I just may need them behind me...sort of like moral support...after picking these I may need support from the Red Jock. Well, here I go off into oblivion... What was the name of that place in Hempstead?

THE GREAT ONE?

No matter how much I wiggle and dance,
I can tell my boys don't have a chance.
BC 42 UMass 14

It's an Ivy biggy with Harvard and Yale
Harvard stinks, Bulldogs prevail.
Yale 28 Harvard 10

The Irish are playing LSU,
Ara will win (whoopee do).
Notre Dame 31
Notre Dame 31 LSU 20

Michigan is facing Ohio State,
The Buckeyes will rally, but much too late.
Michigan 38 Ohio State 22

The Bruins are playing the Trojans this week,
The Trojans will make the Bear mighty meek.
USC 30 UCLA 19

The Huskies and Cross are set for a spree,
This time the dog is barking up the right tree.
UConn 17 Holy Cross 10

Oklahoma will be husking corn for Turkey Day meal
The sooner it's over, the better they'll feel.
Nebraska 28 Oklahoma 17

Hoopsters Play Charity Game Tuesday Night At The Cage

By EARLE BARROLL

Mike Pagliara and Rick Vogeley have one thing in common with the track team...and it's not tying on spikes.

What these two do have in common thought personifies the attitude of all athletes on this campus and that's the goodwill of the athletes towards each other and the willingness of them to help each other out in time of need.

And for this reason Mike and Rick sat down during this past summer and decided to make plans for a pre-season varsity-freshman basketball game to make money for a Memorial Track Fund in the names of Tom Jasmin and Mark Robinson, two former UMass trackmen who died in traffic accidents this past summer.

The plans they set out are now a reality and on Tuesday night, NOVEMBER 23 at 7:30 in Curry Hicks Cage the varsity and freshmen will put on a game that will serve the purpose of previewing the season ahead and most importantly to raise money for the track scholarship ..The donation is one dollar.

Tickets can be purchased from any members of the varsity and freshman track and basketball teams, from the track and basketball offices and from the Collegian on Sunday and Monday nights. They can also be purchased at the door before the game.

Yesterday at practice Vogeley and Pagliara recalled their feelings in making this decision over the summer.

"Pag and I worked this summer up here (UMass) and talked the idea over. We never knew Tom or Mark personally but we knew the hard work and dedication they put in and we thought it would be nice to have a game to raise money for a scholarship for the track team which doesn't have any money for this," Vogeley said.

Pag added, "We heard a lot of nice things about these two and felt we could set up a game to make money for the scholarship."

Each year major colleges around the country have this type of game in which the new freshmen play the varsity. Boston College for instance had their game a couple of days ago.

As Vogeley put it, "This game will serve as a showcase for the season ahead and also to raise money for the scholarship." And he added, "You can't spend enough money for three things--education, food and a good chance like this."

After these two formulated their idea they went to coach Jack Leaman who mentioned it to track coach Ken O'Brien when the two were driving to a committee meeting this summer.

"Jack and I were driving along," O'Brien recalled, "and he mentioned to me that Pag and Rick had thought up this game.

"I had had some thought about it myself but couldn't find a way to bring it about and this was a great opportunity to set the game up."

Leaman himself is proud of Vogeley and Pag. "As a coach I'm proud to think that our people can think of a good cause like this.

"I hope to make this an annual affair to make a lot of good come out of this."

Grapplers Compete In Pa. Tourney

By JOHN BOCK

A small contingent of the UMass wrestling team are on the road to East Stroudsburg, Pennsylvania this weekend to participate in the East Stroudsburg Open Wrestling Tournament. This tournament is one of the largest pre-season tournaments in the country. Last year it attracted more than 650 wrestlers from all over the country.

The spectators numbered more than ten thousand for the two days that the tournament was in progress and they saw some NCAA champions, AAU champs and high school wrestlers going at it for top honors.

Last year UMass didn't have any placers but was well represented by its NEIWA champs. This year Coach Barr is taking Dave Amato, Joe Phillips, Bruce Buckbee, Carl Dambman, John Connolly, Steve Bennson, Peter Rock, Barry Godowsky, Dick Muri and Shelly Goldberg.

These grapplers are going largely on their own as the University season is still three weeks away. The Varsity M Club has endorsed the team in this venture by helping defray some of the lodging expenses.

In years past, this participation in the tournament has given the Redmen an opportunity to preview some of their competition and has shown them what kind of overall shape they were in. Whatever happens, the experience gained by the team will be invaluable and they might bring back a feather in their cap.

Poor Richard's

A Weekly Magazine

Get off my leg, Myrtle, you're dripping!

Yowza! Yowzah! Great Ballza Fire!

By LLOYD ADALIST

One night recently I was privileged to be in Orchard Hill when a "stag" film was shown in the second floor lounge of Dickinson House. Unfortunately, I arrived late and missed the titles; as I entered, the disrobing scene was in its final moments.

Stag films are an interesting phenomenon, and the reason for this little review is that it sort of complements Frank Baglione's article in last weeks Poor Richard's. There seems to be something in the culturation of the average American male, and a number of females as well, that draws them to this sort of film. I have a feeling, and it was reinforced by my most recent "experience" with a stag film, that a great number of males might go to see these cinenategraphic extravaganzas for comparitive reasons, i.e. how long is his compared to mine, or how long was he inside her, what positions did they use, etc. For the heterosexually inexperienced or insecure, therefore, stag films can either be a boon or a bane to the ego, depending on how that person "stands up" to the actors in the film.

The film opened, as previously stated, with a disrobing scene, followed by one of the two women having fellatio with the man while the other women fondled the first's breasts. Then, the two women took turns sitting on the man's face and penis, finally the male had intercourse in the "normal" position with one of the females.

In general, the actors seemed to have very little fun in the movie, but who knows, perhaps they are good Calvinists and think that sex shouldn't be fun. Nor were the positions they used very original. It is to be hoped that the average UMass student has more fun than these three did, as it is rumored that this film was made in "of all places" Belchertown, by three of our fellow students.

Perhaps the most fun part about seeing a stag film is the comments made by the audience. In general, the male members had been drinking heavily, so their comments were all the more "gross." But the most interesting thing about the audience was the fact that while males had no fears of going right in and watching the film, very few females went into the lounge; rather they stayed out in the corridor and watched through the window. What does this say about our society? I haven't the foggiest idea.

Aardvarks

Reliving The Gold

BY LANCE LITTLE

Hartford--If another letter to the editor comes in before the Ali-Matthau fight, please do not print this, since it will make me look like a fool. Permeation.

It was the last December night in the office, and The Two sat in the newsroom, alone away from the alleged staff, thinking about his dirt and a missing eight inches. The Former had finished everything except for the first three pages, and The Latter was just killing time.

So the Report was written. Written to the inch--to the line--it just about filled Bill's Hole. It was the yellow snow epic, mentioning Larry and storming the Western Half. The Letter to the Editor came after vacation, so now, after nearly a year, here comes the reply.

Fuck You.

Most of the troubles began in Maggie's All Night Sauna bath when Tom Nay realized what he could always resort to in times of stress. He now knew he could park his black and white geodesic dents without their drippy-nosed Francine Achbars any where his little liberated heart desired. So he did. And the Free University was born. Yuh hah.

So now, about two years later, with Dickinson Dead and Gone, and Tippo a rising young star, the senate votes to cut off Free U's funds. Trama Nay is saddened. Hecries. Boo Hoo.

Idea. Remember the lessons of Maggie's Sauna. The key to turning defeat into subtle victory. The Unexpected.

Nay's lightning sharp brain, hardly affected by the voluminous quantity of drugs he had savored throughout his college career, snapped on with a thump.

Hire the advisory. Confuse the enemy. Pose as a reconciled man, leading a new life with new and respected friends. Hire the very foe from years past. This was perfect. Nay was saved and the Free U concept was still snorting life breath.

After Nay hired The Epp as his P. R. consultant, things began to turn around. He began to build up confidence and launched onto his new plan. He would inflict mortal wounds on two of the longtime enemy, using his newly hired P. R. Epp as a crafty deception.

The Epp put notices into the Daily Collegiate and thought about buying an Ad. But when he called the Fox, Joel was running behind Boyden and the Epp put off making any decision. Still, there were the notices.

* * *

Littleyard and Mealey walked innocently into the Whitmore Caf and read the Collegiate. They did not see any interesting ads so they closed the edition. They would have missed the notice if Gil Saben had not entered. He was the one who talked.

Read the notices. Hee Hee Hee. This doesn't make too much sense here folks, but its a desperate attempt at a connection. Bare with me.

Hey, look at this, Mealey exclaimed. They ran to the Colonial Lounge to hear the Governor speak at the Free U Club on Urban Politics. They ran for fear would miss the event. That means they ran last, nurdface. They did not they had been sitting on chairs in the lot coated with a special glue-like plastic explosive designed by Nay himself. They were walking Bombs. Horrors. The building blew, the Governor was dead, the Establishments were the villians. Nay had triumphed. He had his revenge.

It was just about this time that Tom Nay, hero, revealed to the press that he was from Western Mass.

* * *

When the word got around, The Former and The Latter heard it while in the Drape. The Former, on a two-day Sojourn from that city, was talking about how stupid that dumb Western Mass student looked after they printed the letter after vacation. The latter, a bit at odds with himself at that point in time, decided it was time to make the final assault.

Yet Nay Buck was the game. Fun Fun Fun. Till Daddy took the T-Bird away. another story and two more lines here.

The moment for the great play was at hand as Nay shode into the office amid the screams and tears of sports executives, news and chief editors.

Nay looked at anyone had seen The Epp. He was trapped. The outer door slammed shut behind him. The staff protected the shadows. A pale flame over the Saints face.

Out from the back room the contract man came. He lifted the shotgun to his shin and Nay begged for mercy. The Latter poised his head up from behind the desk, grinning, holding a bucket of yellow paint.

Poor Richard's

Vol. I number seven

Compiled Weekly by Ross Nies and David Williams

The Family That Stays Together

Hasbeen stroke into the office, surprised at finding our hero not in the middle office; no, not in his comfortable position of power and grace, but in the newsroom, squatting behind a thrown-up wall of steel and glass.

"Harrumph. What's this? Have you lost your position? What's come over you?"

Our hero raised his head sadly.

"My world has come apart. The ceiling has come in on me. Woe is me."

"Nonsense. Harrumpph, harrumph. Look, here's what we can do. I have in my hand here a one-hundred dollar bill. You have a load of worries on your shoulders. Why don't we repair to a place of ill repute and I'll treat you to an evening of pleasure and amusement."

He conducted our hero forthwith to the nearest place of ill repute, and the two entered, giving their coats to the little lady in the closet by the door.

"Ahhh, 'tis a sumptious place."

Hasbeen hooked his thumbs into his vest pockets and chewed vigorously on his cigar.

Our hero stood beside Hasbeen choking on cigar smoke.

"Hmmmmm, that's a ripe young tomatoe." Hasbeen watched a young miss prance by.

Eats Potter's Pot-Pies Together.

"I'll just follow this up right now, if you don't mind."

Hasbeen started off after the young lady, leaving our hero in the lobby in confusion. He looked about in distress and his eyes locked onto the steely glare coming from an Arab across the lobby. The two stood motionless, glaring deep into the other's head. Finally the Arab walked over to our hero.

"Meester Hasbeen has caught up weeth yoou, I see."

The Arab twirled his long and curly mustache.

Our hero gave this Arab a penetrating stare, trying to divine the goodness or the badness of this man.

The Arab looked back dully.

"Meester Hasbeen is a friend of mine," he hissed. "He owes me 97 piasters for a telephone beeel. I weeel keeel heem."

He pulled a small green eggplant out of his back pocket and slapped into the palm of his hand repeatedly. Our hero began to feel the first tinges of panic running through him. His mind raced, trying to figure out a good comeback for this surly stringer. The Arab continued to stare at him.

With A Light Flaky Outer Crust,

"Let me go or I'll tell everyone about Ruth Lovelace."

Our hero's voice began to take on a strange quiver.

"Ruuuth Lovelace, Sooo, you know about her, hmmmm? Welll, we'll see about thees. Move!"

He proded our hero not too gently with the eggplant. The two went back out of the lobby and out to a waiting car.

"Where are we going?" asked our hero.

"Never you mind. Just get inn and keeep your mouth shut."

The Arab thumped our hero with the eggplant; twice for practice, then he hauled back and clubbed our hero on the base of the neck. Our hero crumpled into the back seat of the Vega, that stolen Vega, that exquisite piece of sculpted steel and glass and rubber. The Arab jumped behind the wheel and the Vega sped away from the curb, leaving exhaust vapors in the fog.

About this time Hasbeen finished his ministrations with the young lady and wandered back downstairs to find our hero. But, as you all know, our hero had been kidnapped by the Arab and whisked away to the Big 33, where the torture was about to begin.

And A Scrumptious Filling Besides.

Here, have another toke!

"How odd. Our hero has apparently decided to disappear. I wonder where he could have gone?"

Hasbeen paced the thickly carpeted floor, thinking to himself and smoking a silver pipe.

Toke!

"Disturbing. First, our hero decides to come with me, then he decides to desert me. But I won't let it bother me, I'll just wander over and see the Arab."

He walked outside to find his car, his precious Vega, stolen. And he knew, yes, he felt it. The Arab had come for the phone bill and there was nothing he could do but pay. On the way to the Big 33, however, he had an idea.

"It's pushing tive o'clock now. The Arab will be cooking his daily eggplant right about now. Why, that must be where our hero has disappeared off to!"

He

Take another toke!

He hustled over the the Big 33, pounded up the stairs through the former home of Excitable Richard, pulled the door off its hinges, charged up another flight of stairs and into the kitchen, and he was right.

There, in the middle of the kitchen floor, with his arms tied behind his back, knelt our hero. Before him stood a stove and on top of the stove was the pot of eggplant. Our hero was close to passing out. The Arab was sitting at the table with Mr. O'Neil, drinking a bottle or two of Heinekin's.

"Well, here you are my friend. I must talk to you about these phone bills."

"Harrumphh. I've been meaning to talk to you about that," said Hasbeen. He dug into his pocket and pulled out his roll, which he handed to the Arab.

"What'cha got?" said the Arab.

"Medium big," replied Hasbeen. "But get this garbage out of the kitchen."

An Expression of Black Spirit

Take Two

The Development Of Crestdale, New York

Part I, Initial Preparations

by Nathaniel W. Hayden

The following is a summation of a planning meeting held by the Black American New Communities Organization (B.A.N.C.O.) in the Central Harlem Black Cultural Center in New York City on September 20th, 1982. Representatives came from urban and suburban black communities in Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Camden, New Jersey, Hartford, New Haven, and several northern New Jersey cities such as Newark, East Orange, Teaneck, and Patterson. There was a concensus that even though many suburbs are accepting blacks, they are doing so grudgingly. Many of the suburban representatives argued that it is about time for blacks to ask themselves whether or not it is worth it to integrate. This is because to integrate, means to become assimilated; and to become assimilated usually means to give up ones' own cultural heritage. Everyone agreed that what white suburbs have to offer is not and will never be sufficient enough to warrant the loss of our cultural identity.

The chairman of the organization, Lawrence Abramson, of Great Neck, Long Island, pointed out that the organizations' initial task was to get the funds that will be needed to start building new black communities. One representative, Mr. Eugene Hawkins from Newton, Massachusetts, a suburb of Boston, said that before he can go to people to elicit funds, he would have to have some idea about where the communities would be located. At this point, there was considerable debate. The New Jersey contingent demanded that the site of the new communities be in their state; the Massachusetts residents said that they wanted it to be in their state, etcetera. The feuding subsided when Mr. Hawkins read the following article that appeared in the June 9th edition of the Albany Daily News:

> A huge area of land located approximately forty miles southwest of Albany has been designated as the site of a satellite city, the construction of which will be subsidized by the federal government. It is hoped that the city, which will be called Rosemont, will provide close to a quarter of a million jobs.

Following a brief discussion, it was decided that Metropolitan Rosemont would be an ideal site for the communities, especially since the price of land in that section of New York State is very low. Another question arose because of the disenfranchisement of New Yorkers, Bostonians, etc. since blacks became a majority in these cities. For those of you who are not aware of it, representation in the NewYork, New Jersey, Massachusetts and Connecticut state legislature is now determined by county instead of the one-man, one-vote principle. The natural solution that the organizations' representatives came up with was to form an entirely new county. Since the New York State legislature would have to approve of it, this would encompass a great deal of political maneuvering, but it certainly will be done.

At this point the discussion returned to the issue at hand; how to raise funds. A report on the alternatives was delivered by Oscar Adams, a representative from New York City. They were:

First, a corporation, which would have the name of the first town, which at this point is unnamed, could be set up, from which people could buy stocks, by way of the New York Stock Exchange.

Second, people could be asked to make free donations.

Third, the organization could go to Washington to demand that reparations should be given as a payment for the exploitation of black labor during slavery.

Fourth, a corporation, which would have the name of the first town, would sell bonds in black neighborhoods through black publications only.

Fifth, a fund raising meeting could be held with black millionaires and other influential blacks to elicit support.

The first proposal was immediately rejected because the corporation would be backed or supported with capital from white liberals who would undoubtedly want to have something to say about what the communities should be like. The second proposal was also rejected for this reason and because the inevitable question that would be raised in this case is, "Are all of the donations being used for the development of the towns, or is some of it being skimmed off the top?". The representative from Montclair, New Jersey, George Davis, a member of the middle class, objected to the rejection of this proposal on the basis that he believed that blacks are no longer suspicious of each other. One New York City representative replied, "Baby, you been out in the sticks so long you don't know what's happnin' no more". This cut open some old wounds that need not be discussed. Let it suffice to say that this nearly brought and end to the meeting.

Before the third proposal was discussed, the chairman, Mr. Abramson said:

> I want to make it clear right now that I am violently opposed to the idea of going to Washington or any other place to beg for handouts. This project is one that, I feel, should involve only black people. I know what you're going to say. I know that there aren't very many wealthy blacks, but I have faith in the black workingmen. At this point I believe that our proposal will be accepted by them. Gentlemen, I advise you to take what I have just said into consideration before you make a decision on this proposal. Thank you.

Abd-al Bakimu, one of the representatives from Philadelphia said:

> Right on, Abramson. I can dig where you're coming from. You can't have any kind of revolution if you're going to go to your oppressors begging their help. Now, the best idea on this list of proposals, as far as I'm concerned is the next one; the one that would necessitate the unity of black people. And let's face it, if black folks don't go for it, we may as well forget it.

Mr. Abramson then said,

> I want everyone to remember that if we adopt Proposal #4, it will mean that we are almost completely shutting out whites.

Mr. Bakimu retorted,

> Not nearly enough baby, not enough. To make sure no honkies try to get in on our thing we should make it so that only people who own the community bonds are allowed to move into it.

Mr. Davis, the representative from Montclair intercedes:

> Are you out of your mind, Mr. Bakimu? That's racism, besides, it's illegal.
>
> How do you know that, are you some kind of lawyer?, Mr. Bakimu asked.
>
> Mr. David said tersely, No, I'm not, but...

Mr. Richard Curruthers, the representative from suburban Philadelphia said,

> I'm an attorney. Now let me make sure I understand you Mr. Bakimu. Would you like to propose that we make the town's bonds the only negotiable currency for the purpose of buying a home or renting an apartment in the town? That's what I said, baby, replied Mr. Bakimu.

Mr. Abramson then asked, Does anyone second Mr. Bakimu's proposal?

Curtis Jones, the representative from Newark, New Jersey said,

> I second it.

Mr. Davis said angrily,

> Wait a minute. Wait one goddamn minute. Are we going to sit here and allow this to happen? Are we going to accede to this blatant racism? Is our aim to humiliate the whites as much as they have humiliated us? Are we destined to repeat the infantile acts that they have done? I know that we're better than that.

Mr. Bakimu rose and nearly shouted,

> I don't mind telling you Mr. Davis that you ain't nothing but a jive ass, hankerchief head nigger. If you don't dig what's happnin' you scurry back into your hole over in Montclair.
>
> How dare you, you young punk, I ought to...

Mr. Abramson, upon seeing Mr. Davis rise with his fist clenched:

> Gentlemen, please restrain yourselves. The only way this proposal will be decided upon is by voting. I fully understand your viewpoints, but let's let the other representatives decide. Besides, how will people feel about our ideas if they read in the newspapers that there was a brawl at our first planning meeting?

jokingly he continued,

> You know we got to change our image.

Mr. Bakimu said, mockingly;

> Yeah Davis, baby, be cool. You don't know nobody to say that the only thing that happened at this meeting was that some rowdy niggers was acting up, do you?

The proposal passed by a slim margin.

Mr. Abramson said afterwards:

> I'm disheartened about the acceptance of this proposal but I'll have to live with it. However, I believe that we should include in that policy a provision for its' elimination if the residents of the town or towns so decide.

The representatives voted unanimously in favor of the nullification clause. The next topic of discussion was what general philosophy should be presented to people to foster interest in the communities. The representative from Camden, New Jersey, John Mercado, suggested that a list of five major reasons for the development of independent black communities be drawn up. The list that was finally compiled after considerable debate is as follows:

1) For the first time in the North, we want to provide for our people an alternative to a depressing ghetto or an oppressive lily-white suburb.

2) For the first time, we want to make it possible for Black Northerners to control their own schools, police and other municipal services.

3) For the first time, we want to see if Black capitalism will work in the North. All of the stores and shops in the town or towns will be owned and operated by blacks.

4) For the first time in the North, we want to create black towns which project a positive image to our youngsters, one which they will want to emulate when they become adults.

5) To foster the development of towns such as the ones we are building so that no black person will be reluctant to move to one if he feels as if he would like to live and bring up his children in a black environment.

Mr. Abramson then said that it had not been decided what class of black people should be encouraged to move into the towns. Mr. Hawkins said that the most sensible thing to do would be to encourage middle and upper class blacks to come first. They would be able to set up the organizations which the working-class and lower-middle class blacks could later become part of. Also, if the upper class are the first residents, they will be able to establish jobs for the lower classes until businesses move in. This includes all of the service jobs; mailmen, house cleaners, lawn tenders, etcetera. Several representatives stressed the importance of preventing the town or towns from becoming just rich black neighborhoods. Mr. Bakimu said on the matter:

> This project won't mean shit if the towns are composed of a lot of rich black people. We've always had sections for the bourgeoisie. Now's the time to do something for the average black man.

Although there were a few minor protests by several of the suburban representatives, peace was maintained.

Mr. Abramson said,

> The next task before us now is to decide upon a name for the first town. I propose Crestdale. It's a combination of the names of two already existing towns in New York, Crestwood and Scarsdale.

Mr. Bakimu immediately responded negatively. He said,

> I have heard of both of those towns. Aren't they rich-type white suburbs?

Mr. Mercado, the representative from Camden said at this point,

> I think it would be stupid to waste time debating about what the name of the town is going to be. Why don't we just vote on it? Or better yet, if you have any suggestions, Mr. Bakimu, will you let them be known right on?

Yes, I have several suggestions. They are:

> 1) New Harlem
> 2) New Nairobi
> 3) Mount Salaam
> 4) Salaam Village
> 5) Afriqueville
>
> Would anyone else like to propose a few names?

No one did therefore a vote took place. Surprisingly, an equal number approved of Crestdale and New Nairobi. Therefore it was decided that the first would be named Crestdale and the second one New Nairobi.

Mr. Abramson adjourned the meeting with the following statement:

> Gentlemen, we have covered all of the issues on the agenda, and I must say that I am pleased. Our next meeting will take place next week at the same time. At that time we will discuss the following: What type of housing units should be built in Crestdale: Who will be the contractors and architects: What will the general layout of the city be: For example, should it be a cluster of small villages or should it be just one huge town with, perhaps, all of the shopping facilities, schools, and municipal services in the center or should they be spread out? Once again I'd like to thank you all for coming.

ACADEMY OF MUSIC
AT THE GATES OF SMITH COLLEGE
Presenting "THE FRENCH FILM" Festival
NORTHAMPTON, MASS. 584-8435 - PARK MASONIC ST. LOT

Now-ENDS SATURDAY
at 7:15 & 9:10
"Her knee was sharp, narrow, smooth, delicate...within reach of my hand."
BEST FRENCH PICTURE OF THE YEAR
"SUPERLATIVE!" —VINCENT CANBY, New York Times
COLUMBIA PICTURES Presents
JEAN-CLAUDE BRIALY
in ERIC ROHMER'S
CLAIRE'S KNEE

SUN. MON. TUE. only
"★★★★★! HIGHEST RATING!" —KATHLEEN CARROLL, Daily News
COLUMBIA PICTURES
A FRANCOIS TRUFFAUT FILM
Bed & Board

Books

The Family That Stays Together

Review: The Mafia Is Not An Equal Opportunity Employer. by Nicholas Gage. 179 pp McGraw-Hill. $5.95.

By FRANK M. BAGLIONE

In the year 1282 in the city of Palermo, Sicily the natives of that island rose against their French rulers in the rebellion known as the Sicilian Vespers. The motto of the uprising, which to the credit of the Italians

The Mafia is not an Equal Opportunity Employer

$

Nicholas Gage

displays their ineptness at slogan making, was "Morte alla Francia Italia anela!" (Death to the French is Italy's cry!) After the successful rebellion a secret organization was formed to protect poor Sicilians. This organization took as its name Mafia, derived from the first letters of the motto of the insurrection.

Sometime during the end of the nineteenth century, its character and goals already changed, the Mafia came to America within the first wave of Italian immigration. And today, after a violent and capable struggle, the Mafia is an institution as complex and sprawling as any American corporation. It is this later-day organization, sometimes called the Mafia, sometimes the Cosa Nostra, that investigative reporter Nicholas Gage explores in his book.

In the first part of his story Gage aims at clearing up some confusion as to the nature and character of the organization. Surprisingly, his first task is to convince his readers that there is in fact such an organization. "Many (people) honestly believe that the Mafia is a fiction created by the media and law enforcement agencies." Why has there been no infiltration of the Mafia by the FBI; why are there no instances of a member using the word "Mafia" in conversations taped by the police; and why is Joseph Valachi the only man to have come forward and say he is a member?

Gage answers these doubts by saying, first, that the word Mafia has long been dropped within the organization where the terms the "outfit," the "arm," or the "office" are now used. Secondly, the FBI, although it has received information about the Mafia from members with various reasons for talking, will not allow its officers to join any group where the agent may be called upon to commit a serious crime. And besides the recent disclosures given by Valachi, other Mafioso, like Tony Nataro and Nicola Gentile, have come forward to testify about their "families."

There are twenty-six Mafia "families," operating in twenty-one metropolitan areas in the United States. For the most part their leadership is Italian but, and here is the second myth Gage attacks, you certainly need not be Italian to be in the Mafia. Irving Wexler, Arnold Rothstein, John T. Noland (Legs Diamond), Owney Madden, William Dwyer and Meyer Lansky were just a few of the non-Italians who ruled parts of the underworld since 1920 despite the opposition to working with non-Italians on the part of the older "Mustache Petes." Indeed, Meyer Lansky, though recenly forced to flee to Israel because U.S. police were closing in on him, is still a major figure in the empire run by organized crime.

Lemsky has had a terrific impact on underworld operations. Convincing the syndicate that it should de-emphasize such high risk enterprises like narcotics, prostitution, and murder-by-contact, Lansky led them into the areas of banking, investments and manufacturing. Lansky fit well into the new businessman image of the mob. Grey-haired, thin, a conservative dresser, while in the United States Lansky owned a modest three-bedroom home and drove rented Chevrolets. He was the type of guy who walked his dog, loved his country passionately and returned home to his wife every night. He brags about his grandchildren and takes his wife on annual vacations. The only thing that distinguishes him from the rest of middle America is that he is one of the leaders in a huge operation still largely based on crime.

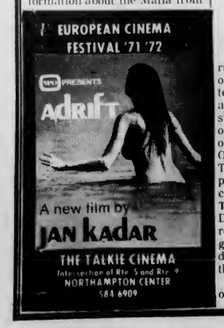
This operation that Lansky helped set up is beautifully simple in operation. Couriers take the Mafia's "black money" profits from illegal activities-to secret bank accounts in Switzerland where it is "washed clean in the snows of the Alps." Middlemen in Europe then send the money back to America as mortgages and loans. The "clean money" is now ready for use in legitimate investments.

To run this new style Mafia Lansky has recruited bright young men, without previous records, training them to be invisible businessmen for the mob. He has sought foreign investment in business and gambling, his greatest coup being his 50's deal with Batista to set up gambling casinos and hotels in Cuba. Only once was the admiration his innovations brought him tarnished, and this was when he lost Cuba to Fidel Castro.

In contrast to Lansky there is Joe Colombo, the leader of a New York family who jumped into movement politics by forming an Italian-American Civil Rights League. The Leagues major purpose? --to put an end to the association of Italians with the Mafia perpertrated by government and press. Colombo's activities were frowned upon by other Mafiosi who did not like the attention the League's activities brought to bear on them. Colombo's ignoring of these fears brought him a few bullets in the back of the head at an Italian-American rally in New York last July. His attacker was shot dead on the spot.

Some leading associates in organized crime in America, 1932--(1) Paul Ricca (2) Salvatore Agoglia (3) "Lucky" Luciano (4) Meyer Lansky (5) John Senna (6) Harry Brown

Association with the Mafia, as Gage points out, does not have to be fatal to public personalities. Frank Sinatra has derived benefits, as well as liabilities by his association with underworld members. When Sinatra's star began to rise in 1939 he was tied to a $125 a week contract with Tommy Dorsey. "The contract he has signed with Dorsey was shackling him. He could not take advantage of his new-found fame. Suddenly and inexplicably the contract was cancelled and Sinatra became a free agent. Dorsey never explained why he let such a valuable property go, but the story, much repeated among the underworld, was that Willie Moretti (a leader of the Mafia in New Jersey) showed up at Dorsey's dressing room one night, put a gun into the band leader's mouth, and suggested that he sell Sinatra's contract. The price was one dollar."



Sinatra, whose Mafia friends included Lucky Luciano, has also suffered because of his underworld ties. Besides tarnishing his image and running his business and Las Vegas gambling interests, it cost him what almost was a very close relationship with President John F. Kennedy.

Although doing financially well, the Mafia is a dismal failure in the area of human numbers and narcotics peddling, there is no room for blacks at the top. "There is little an affronted black gangster can do about the situation. He can hardly go to his local human rights commission charging job bias, and it is dangerous to complain too loudly to one's boss, tho might find it a symptom on excessive ambition. Therapy can be fatal, occasionally involving the gun, the knife, or the cement overshoe."

Women, too, must be content with their position. "The Mafia is the surest stronghold of male chauvinism in America." A woman may be a means to a profitable alliance with another "family," she may be a beautiful showcase for her husbands wealth, a good cook, a loyal helpmate, and ego-boosting mistress, a loving wife, but she must never be a liberated woman. The Mafia does not tolerate liberation. Indeed, there are but two offenses that bring the death penalty in the Cosa Nostra: talking about the mob (informing) or violating another member's wife. Mafia women responsible for major infractions of the rules have been killed or have had relatives or friends killed as punishment. Constance Rastelli was a Mafia wife who broke the rules. Incensed at her husband for his amorous escapades she talked to the police. But before they could make a case against her husband Philip Rastelli, the irrepressible Constance was shot to death. Women who marry within the Mafia must have two qualities above all others--loyalty and silence. If they do not possess the first quality, then they surely will be endowed with the second.

Because Mafia activities have been so glorified in the past, and because the qualities the Mafia displays--loyalty, comradship, swift and unmistakable justice, fast money, the image of organized crime is not totally tarnished. Indeed most people will read Gage's book much like the story of an epic people with heros having long Italian names. Because few people actually experience the brutality of the mob and practically none can see what crime costs them, Mafiosi have more of a folk hero image than a black garbed villain.

And in this age where the mass of men are daily intimidated by college students, minority groups and hard nippled women's liberationists, there is no small comfort in knowing that there is one body of men who can be pushed around by none of these. No, no one wants trouble with the Mafia. The organization is a law unto itself. There is no appeal to the Supreme Court when the Mafia hands down a sentence. But the Mafia itself does not want any trouble. It exists only where people want it, or don't care, or are dishonest themselves. Books like those of Nicholas Gage, while they are informative, do not serve the purpose of exposing the Mafia. They are, instead, another contribution to its myth, its history, its excitement and its glorification.

Music Theater Recruits

The Music Theatre is a student run organization with the function of providing musical theatre entertainment for our community and to provide opportunities for student participation in all phases of production. Following reorganization last fall, the old Operetta Guild was rechristened The Music Theatre and since has presented two immensely successful productions: The Threepenny Opera, directed by Dan Murphy this past spring and recently, Stop the World...I want to get off!, directed by Judy Anderson. The group is sponsored by the Fine Arts Council.

Roister Doisters, also a student organization, is the oldest theatre group on campus. In the past few years the group has presented A Man For All Seasons, Waiting For Godot, and most recently Michel de Ghelderode's Chronicles of Hell directed by Robert Rotenburg.

Both groups are now recruiting proposals from interested directors as well as a production staff for their spring productions. The organizations are open to anyone in the five college community regardless of status. The deadline to submit proposals is December 2, to Bill Memezes, Stephen Driscoll, Janis Cheney, Sandy Donatini or Dan Murphy all of whom are available for further information in 415 or 417 Machmer or call 545-0243.

Jerry Lewis Twin Cinema

Cinema 1 | Cinema 2

586-3209

Hamp Shopping Plaza King St., Northampton

Everyone Wants CATLOW

GP METROCOLOR • PANAVISION

Shown At

7 & 9 7:15 & 9:15

Adults $1.50 Children 50¢

A Casuality Report On Rock And Roll

Review: No One Waved Good-Bye edited by Robert Somma. 124 pp. Fusion Books. $1.95

By FRANK M. BAGLIONE

A good editor can often compile a series of articles, by different authors treating a common theme or subject, and produce a book that is informative and interesting reading. From these materials, diverse in tone, style and emphasis, the skillful editor constructs the larger story, endowing it, through his own selection and arrangement of the articles, with a unifying theme, style and tone peculiar to himself. He may even construct a plot. The final product is a story made up from a series of shorter stories.

If, however, the editor lacks skill, he will put the articles together in an improper manner. The styles and tones of his various authors will not blend smoothly, but rather will jar and bump into one another. Because of a lack of balance and improper paralleling of the material no distinct themes will be evidenced. He will have produced a story without unity that will bore his reader, forcing him to jump over stories that do not have a smooth transition from the last. Unfortunately, this is the type of editing Robert Somma has done in No One Waved Good-Bye.

The book, called "a casuality report on Rock and Roll," is a grouping together of articles written about the tragic deaths of four of rock and roll's larger personalities--Jimi Hendrix, Janis Joplin, Brian Jones and Brian Epstein. Most of the articles deal with Hendrix and Joplin, and probably for this reason most of them are no good.

Five of the ten articles chosen for this book should have never been included. They dwell on metaphysical conceptions of a rock world and culture or engage in "groupie" type canonization of these "tragic" stars. Four of the remaining five pieces display a richer writing style and depth. One of these, "A Magical Connection that Failed" written by Craig McGregor, deserves mention if levelling the remark, "One of the most revealing things about Woodstock is that most of the music was no bloody good." By extension we can say that the music of Hendrix and Joplin was not very good, fo they are the images of Woodstock, the children of the American rock culture. Brian Epstein, manager of the Beatles who died of an overdose of barbituates in 1967, and Brian Jones, rhythm guitar player for the Rolling Stones who drowned in his swinning pool in 1969, were part of the much superior British rock scene that still, happily, dominates the music in general. They receive little treatment in this book, no doubt because the authors of the articles had less identification with, and interest in, them. But of all four subjects, McGregory says, "They all died before they should have. Heroin, barbituates, insanity, sickness, suicide...They cracked up. Splintered like glass, died tragic, ignoble deaths...Hendrix choked on his own vomit; Janis went out with a broken nose and too many puncture holes in the fragile skin, the souls membrane."

The deaths of Hendrix and Joplin reflect the result of professional failure as well as the end of pathetic personal existences. "What they had in common," writes Neil Louison in one of the articles, "was the overriding obviousness of doom and despair. There was clarly and blankly no real music left in Janis. When she went off she was like what they call a dirty bomb--deadly and virulent as hell, a function of an extremely short half- life." And of Hendrix he adds, "The act of Jimi was indeed dead well before he did in fact die."

The best article in this edition is by George Frazier called "Brief Candle." Frazier alone adequately treats the purported theme of this book--the tragedy of "pop-starism." He looks coldly and critically at the personalities and performances of Hendrix and Joplin, the mediocrities glorified by death. "What made Jimi Hendrix a young man worth remembering," he writes, "is not that he was the hero of heroes to the groupies, those Charles Manson rejects who are sustained and sanctified by their being bedded by rock musicians. If Jimi Hendrix is memorable it is because of the individuality of his guitar playing. One senses this same reasoning in the fanaticism with which Joe Namath is viewed. On a football field, few men have ever matched Joe Namath's exquisite skills, but, away from it, he is a pleasant young man who not only dresses atrociously, but is a crashing bore. Yet to the young, Namath's (like Hendrix's) gift is his antagonism towards authority."

Brian Jones

In treating Joplin, Frazier rises to the height of his art. "She was out of Port Arthur, Texas, an unkempt, vulgar, obscene girl (though never malicious and with a certain sweetness) who, given a microphone and an audience of her peers, became a wild child. She was marvelous because she was so dreadful, her screeches a sweaty attempt to sound black, so much energy and so little art. In fact, to describe her as an artist is to demean the accomplishments of her contemporaries.

"To the young everything conspired to canonize Janis Joplin. The four-letter words spewed so indiscriminately as to lose all impact, the wild mane of hair, the garish clothes, looking like they had been grabbed blindly at some rummage sale, the bottle of Southern Comfort she swilled down, the slovenliness that today so often passes for style. Even the name Janis Joplin had a kind of frontier lawlessness to it."

"The trouble with eulogizing Janis Joplin is that, in doing so, we are eulogizing not achievement or artistry but a life style that did no one any real good, neither herself nor those who idolized her. To try to pass off as art what was merely drunk and disorderly is to mislead the young...to endow a wastrel existence with a certain significance. In other words, what comfort is Southern Comfort when it contributes to the end of a foolish little girl? Sometimes the young are very stupid.

"To try to pass off as art what was merely drunk and disorderly is to mislead the young..."

"To equate Janis Joplin with Judy Garland, as I heard someone do yesterday, could not possibly be sillier or more misinformed. All that these two had in common was their destruction of their own bodies. The Garland of the MGM years was an immensely moving performer...Afterwards, when the pills began taking their toll, she was an embarrassment, but by then she had accomplished enough...Judy Garland did not leave us impecunious. Artistically, Janis Joplin died a pauper."

Jimi Hendrix

For the coup de grace to Janis Joplin's career the reader can turn to John Landau's article, "It Hurts Me Too." Landau, while lacking the animosity towards youth culture that Frazier demonstrates, is no less blind to the banality behind the Joplin image. He writes, "Janis's creed--one that excited her audience with its simplicity--was to get high and get laid, and to take it all today because there may be no tomorrow. That creed wasn't enough any more than the idiot creeds of twenty years ago weren't enough. And anyone who believes in it is living in precisely the kind of fantasy world that Janis died in."

And so a few bright sparks in what is otherwise a dull and disappointing book. The subject, the bitter deaths by suicide of four people who had lost control of their lives, should have been fascinating. It must have taken much effort on the editor's part to make it instead a tragic bore.

Albums

Zappa And The Mothers Come Back

FRANK ZAPPA'S "200 MOTELS"--featuring The Mothers of Invention and The Royal Philharmonic Orchestra. (United Artists Records).

Being a constant innovator in the music field, it is difficult to place a label on Frank Zappa. We do know that he has courageously delved into many music forms-rock, jazz, classical, and has even managed to create several genres himself, the most notable being Freak Rock.

Speaking about Zappa as the king of Freak Rock is like referring to the Beatles in their post "Rubber Soul" days. Lennon once said that after a certain point, to think of his group as the Beatles was regressing. "Beatles" as in "Beatlemania" was long gone before the Beatles as a group were. There was a whole new group, but their label was the same. And Zappa, the king of Freak Rock, no longer exists.

The Frank Zappa that I liked best was the one on the cover of "We're Only In It For The Money." That was the record that drew me to him, and it was the record that gave me the patience to sit down and seriously get into "Uncle Meat" and the other more serious music.

To listen to "Money" was to undergo a completely new experience. That album, when listened to under the right conditions, was akin to a King Cobra. There were times when I thought that that record was so fuckin' freaky that I was afraid to approach it, never mind subject myself to its fangs. And this was before I was into dope. Even my dog's ears perked up whenever it was on. No shit.

From that first opening buzz to the last vibrant cacophony, I was held spellbound to "Money". It was a masterpiece of production that could have not ever been duplicated.

So, needless to say, when I bought "Uncle Meat", I was dissapointed. It caught me totally off-guard and unprepared. I always considered "Rubin and the Jets" a piece of shit and dismissed it as the fulfillment of a long-time ambition of Zappa's. But I still had hope for another "Money" after it. I didn't after "Uncle Meat".

In subsequent Mothers of Invention albums there have been occasional hints of, and references to, "Money". Zappa never completely leaves an old music form behind. Each Mothers' album explores a new field, but it dilligently refers back to its predecessors. That's why, ten years from now, there will undoubtably be material written by Zappa that would have perfectly fit right into "Rubin and the Jets" or "Uncle Meat."

It was the light moments in "Uncle Meat" that gave me the perserverance to digest the more complex ones. I got off immediately to the songs, but the Suzy Creamcheese raps offended my parents. The orchestrations grew with time, but the whole fourth side of that album still leaves me indifferent. However, that's what I think Zappa was after, basically. His Fifties takeoffs is his way of saying "This will keep you content enough to let me do my thing." They padded the impact when Zappa made his transition from King Freak to Master Composer.

"Burnt Weenie Sandwich" was largely ignored by the critics. ROLLING STONE didn't even bother to review it, while others dismissed it with a few complementary statements. It has proved itself to be a brilliant piece of music, not as fast-paced as "Uncle Meat" and more cohesive as a separate piece of music. It was an excellent production job with remarkably good musicianship and cleverly used sound effects. During one passage there is a saw and a bicycle horn that result in an incredible musical effect. It was Zappa's first multileveled musical compositon.

Rarely has anyone released two live albums in a row, but with "Weasels Ripped My Flesh" and "Live at the Fillmore", Zappa displayed that it could be done with two totally different effects. Almost a year apart, they showed that the changes the Mothers have gone through traced a complete circle and returned to a more basic mode. "Fillmore" was more like "We're Only In It For The Money" than any other before it. It had the same musical feelings but "Fillmore" was funny and loose while "Money" was dark and ominous.

"Weasels", while being sharp, lacked the color and vitality of previous albums. It was the end product of twelve separate albums that had to be cut down and lacks the continuity and cohesiveness.

Zappa's image has changed from an aberration to a consummate composer. He is less of a prototype and more of an expert. He still imagines himself a stranger in a strange land, though, and gives the appearance of a tormented individual.

"Touring Can Make You Crazy" we are told early in "200 Motels" and this perhaps partly explains the Zappa Syndrome. "It is a collection of sketches recently orchestrated, written over a period of years when I though that it would be fun to be a composer", Zappa explained. "Most of it was written while touring."

"200 Motels" is a rewarding piece of music to get into, and provides for a challenging musical experience. It is the soundtrack of Zappa's movie, about life on the road as a rock band called the Mothers of Invention. Within the grooves of these four sides is a diverse assemblage of music forms and narrative situations that, upon first listenings, overwhelm its audience.

"Does this kind of life look interesting to you?", asks a song on Side Three, and handily offers the theme of the record and the movie.

For the Mothers, life hasn't been easy. Zappa, like any expert, demands much from his musicians. Many have quit the group simply because the rewards didn't justify the efforts. They have always had a very limited audience among the major record buyers. They are paying the price that many innovators have to pay for being different. Zappa once explained his philosophy scornfully, "If a song has three chord changes and a beat basically like "Louie, Louie", it can't miss with the mass audience."

In every touring musician's life, there is a place like Centerville- a real nice place to raise your kids up. It is one of those gigs where boredom and dehumanization reigns. "This town is just a sealed tuna sandwich from another catering service." Much of the singing on this album is caustic and sardonic, like trying to smile when saying "Fuck You." "We get a few of these in very tour/They're always such a fuckin' bore.".

Throughout the album Zappa, in conjunction with the Royal Philharmonic Orchestra, paints an ugly picture of loneliness and aggravation. Many of the pieces are heavily orchestrated with obvious classical overtones, while others are in a hard rock vein. Plus there is almost everything else in between.

Life in Centerville is depressing and monotonous. "I can't wait til we blow this town and work a place with some local hot action".

Groupies have always been a favorite subject for Frank Zappa. The "Fillmore" album showed this, and "200 Motels" reiterates it. On "Half a Dozen Provocative Squats" Zappa employs rich harmonies and lush orchestrations to accompany the sung word "twat". And the subject matter of "Shove It Right In" hardly needs explanation. Groupies, while providing for a contrast with Centerville, display an aura of madness and affliction that also works against the group. The media exploitation of groupies has enabled people to think that touring is a sexual, as well as musical, marathon.

Jimmy Carl Black, recently departed from the Mothers, triumphantly returns as "Lonesome Cowboy Burt"--"speakin' atcha, reekin' atcha." Black, once "the Indian of the group" is now a cowboy. We got a hint of his singing in "Brown Shoes Don't Make It", and it didn't seem too good. But he sounds great here, you can almost smell him reekin'.

There is, however, too much in this album to put down in black and white. Perhaps the ultimate irony of the whole score is that Zappa will undoubtably employ it when the group goes back on tour. It is a masochistic ritual and Zappa gets his points across very clearly.

A New Stones Album In The Offing

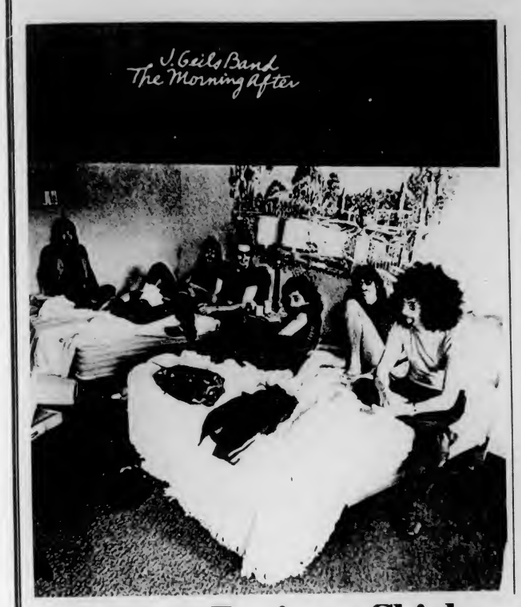
by Kenneth Sulin

Rumor has it that the Stones have a new album in the process but actually it doesn't include new tunes. As you probably already know the Stones comprised a total of fifteen albums with London Records before switching labels to Atlantic, but their first company is not yet a thing of the past. London, although they've lost the Rolling Stones, still have a large assortment of tapes dealing with unreleased material. The American public will be in for a surprise since enough songs exist to make up a double album that's going to be perfectly legal so no bootleg will take its place.

What is expected will be an anthology type of set dating from the earliest of recordings to the latest, probably coming in the first few months of '72 or perhaps sooner. Individual songs to look for include "Come On" the very first single release ever by the group which is a fast moving song done in less than two minutes with Jagger sounding as if he were sixteen years old; "I Wanna Be Your Man" a tune the Beatles wrote especially for the Stones in the first years of their existence; "Poison Ivy," yes, the Stones did it too in a moderate Chuch Berry style; "Money," "Bye Bye Johnny" and a host of others just to name a few.

Those were the old days but more progressive songs will be included; usually these can be found on English or German releases but the lack of room prevented them from any American issues. Remember their top forty single "As Tears Go By"? Well, Jagger took it upon himself to learn the lyrics in Italian and it may well be another on the list of possibilities.

Instrumentals as well as vocals will probably find their places here--another early song entitled "Stoned" (how appropriate) is liable to make the two record set as well as a longer version of "2120 South Michigan Ave" from the album 12X5.



Why these were never pressed on American releases involves the expense--in England, records can have an infinite number of cuts whereas in the United States the number of songs is directly proportional to the price of producing the entire album--there, fewer songs for us. In England small 33 1/3 discs called "E. P."'s are produced, include four songs, and sell for about $1.50. These E. P.'s contributed in the reason for us not ever hearing rare Stones' cuts but London finally will put them out on an album.

As for more recent recordings we'll find fewer but there are some. Songs such as "Give Me a Drink" and maybe live versions of unreleased songs will account for the Stones' sounds of today.

When all the rights have been cleared up and all the necessary legalities have been taken care of, London will bestow a new Rolling Stones' album on us--a miniature history of them but a history few of us have heard.

J. Geils Blasts Off

By JIM LAVRAKAS

J. Geils does it again folks. His second album is the epitome of J. Geil's funky jive. His music is an incredible mixture of music from different decades. I guess you could call it a combination of the beat and sound of 50's rock and roll with the complexity of sounds which has evolved in the later half of the 60's and the beginning of this decade. It's moving music and J. Geils' "Morning After" makes you move.

Per usualhis album concentrates on one subject--women and love, all kinds. The first and last songs on the first side talk about love--one pro and one con. "Whammer Jammer" is pure instrumental. Throughout the album harp player extraordinaire, Magic Dick, complements every song. It seems that in this album he is more conspicuous. That's good because he is an incredible harp player. In "Whammer Jammer" he starts off with the show and keeps it.

"So Sharp" is dominated by keyboard man Seth Justman; J. Geils works his guitar in this one. "The Usual Place" sounds like something from the old Rolling Stones repertoire. It is one of the few slow songs on the album and makes for a nice break in all the movement.

Side one is a fine side; side two is just incredible. J. Geils does not let up. "Looking For a Love" and "Gonna Find Me a New Love" rock from the start and pull you into the side. Once again the Stones sound returns with "Cry One More Time". Having a slow break here was a good idea. It leaves two fast cuts for the end. J. Geils takes advantage of this (and us) and uses these two cuts to blast us off the album with "Floyds' Hotel" and "It Ain't What You Do (It's How You Do It)". This last song has to be the best cut on the album. The tempo at the start is a kind of suspended percussion and keyboard arrangement which changes suddenly into a quick bass and harp. From there J. Geils builds the tempo and fades off the album with Peter Wolf's incredible scream.

Periodically throughout this album J. Geils inserts his own special trademark. A section of song is repeated several times, there is a pause and a shout: "J. Geils!" Right after the shout he takes off on that guitar of his and dominates in a solo.

The album has no filler cuts. It is an album that has been conceived and produced with a lot of hard work. The artists in the J. Geils Band (Boston's own!) are professionals. This has to be one of the best albums of the year; it's well worth the price of a carton of cigarettes.

One interesting point: the photo on the back of the album looks as though it could have been taken in the Student Union. That's very possible seeing that the J. Geils Band was playing on the steps of the Campus Center this summer and the album was just released.

Recipes: Chicken Orange Supreme

By MONA KENT

This is to be a column for half-hearted epicures. It is not a health food column and will not contain any new and exciting recipes explaining how to combine your soy bean meal with powdered bran into a really muscle- popping breakfast treat. Presumably UMass students learned some small something about nutrition back in junior high, and their driving compulsion for knowledge has already sent them clamoring to libraries and bookstores for further information.

It is not that I am totally adverse to dissemination of information about health maintenance foods--I just think there is plenty of it elsewhere and that most students' more immediate, if less incendiary, concern usually boils down to: "What else to do with chicken?" (or hamburger or frankfurters). And the answer to that not so smoldering query must also meet some fairly stringent conditions--it must taste outstanding, it must feed a lot of people, and it must be cheap. If, in addition to this criteria, it is also easy to prepare, we will probably clutch it to our bosoms much as our mothers did the I Hate to Cook Book.

Any recipe given in this column probably originally came from a source other than me, but everyone has been prepared successfully in crummy kitchens with crummy utensils by highly distracted people. And the "eaters" have always liked the end result.

The recipe given below originally appeared in one of those "women's" magazines usually found in grocery stores when standing in the checkout line. It was called something like Ladies Day and its recipes called for toasted almonds plus heart-of-artichokes salad on the side. Ha! The only exotic item in the recipe you are about to get is the bourbon which can be purchased in miniature 35¢ bottles good for two preparations of the recipe.

This recipe serves two, but can be infinitely extended. It is not necessary to increase the quantity of orange juice concentrate or bourbon until the number of chicken breasts reaches about 5 or 6. You will notice that the breasts are supposed to be boned, i.e. the bones are removed from the meat. This can be achieved either by ringing the bell at the meat counter of your grocery store and letting the butcher do it, or doing it yourself by any means possible. If you do the latter, you can save the bones for stock, should you feel inclined to make it. Lastly, if you think chicken breasts are too expensive, I suggest you compare them inch per penny to ground hamburger.

Chicken Orange Delight Supreme!

Ingredients:

2 chicken breasts (boned)
6 oz. can frozen orange juice (undiluted) salt pepper
3 Tbls butter
2 Tbls bourbon

Generously salt and pepper inside of breasts and roll or wrap the skin around to form balls. Brown in 3 Tbls. of butter over medium heat in your heaviest frying pan. Reduce heat to low. Add orange juice concentrate, 1/4 teaspoon of salt and 1/4 teaspoon of pepper. Stir it enough to mix with the fat. Cover and cook for twenty minutes. (Now start cooking some white rice, about half-a-cup for two people.) Baste the chicken with the sauce while it is cooking. When done remove chicken to a plate. Now over a high heat reduce the sauce to a thick brown creamy glop--between 1 to 3 minutes, no more even if it doesn't thicken (unlikely) it will still taste good. Remove from heat and stir in bourbon. Serve with white rice, and maybe a salad with lots of green peppers which are rumored by the Joy of Cooking to be high in vitamin C (not like oranges, mind you, but quite adequate. And since we have returned to the subject of health again, please do not allow any health food fanatic talk you into completely substituting safflower oil for the butter. Most oils outside of olive oil have no flavor. Butter has a distinct flavor which is important to this recipe so do try to leave in at least one tablespoon.

Nothing to do this weekend? See
WOODY ALLEN in
"Take The Money and Run"
(1969 - in color)
*Portraying "Virgil" in a variety of hilarious misfortunes
*Plus short subject
Sat. - Nov. 20 - Mahar Aud.
7-9-11 p.m.

French Connection Is A Jolting Film

by Dan Murphy
Dir: William Friedkin, with Gene Hackman and Fernando Rey

Mayor Lindsay, I'm told, welcomes with open wallet film companies working on location in New York. Yet one wonders if the revenue income balances the inevitable bad press Fun City receives in films like Midnight Cowboy, Klute and now The French Connection. Perhaps earlier even than Dickens, 'The City' became a useful metaphor for the modern loss of innocence, and like no other form, film is able to visually demonstrate in detail violence, crime, and decay as characteristic corruptive forces simply by dragging us through the usually unseen bowels of the city. And certainly everyone knows that New Yorkers are absolutely dehumanized--to the last man, they will step coldly over the prostrate form in front of Tiffany's. As a genre, the hard-boiled detective film is dependent upon the sense of the city as at least a backdrop where profuse violent crime is not only credible but necessary. The French Connection is this genre come of age. Its maturity is evidenced in part by its treatment of the decor.

In early films of this type--The Maltese Falcon, The Big Sleep, or even Bullit--there is a fine sense of action or movement, but lacking is a sense that the events of the plot are determined by the nature of the environment. I don't suggest that detective films should look like sociological tracts. I'm suggesting, rather, that they depend upon our keen sense of place, because it is this sense that supplies immediacy and, thus, excitement. In this sort of genre film we need to feel the decor not understand it through a series of intellectual images, and we do indeed feel the kind of detailed reality that director William Friedkin created out of New York. He offers no attempt to make junkie bars in Brooklyn, garbage strewn alleys, or dirty store front windows say anything but that they exist as part of the physical reality in which violence is credible and tough cops are simply a given.

Gene Hackman in a lighter moment from "The French Connection," the latest popular thriller in the detective genre.

Kracauer suggests that the chase is cinematic material par excellence. And the greater part of The French Connection is a chase par excellence. From Marseilles, the kingpin of a heroin smuggling organization has come to New York to make an eight million dollar exchange, and almost immediately two fairly mundane but decidedly tough cops--Popeye Doyle and Cloudy (Gene Hackman and Fernando Rey)--begin to suspect something big when several known narcotics racketeers are seen together. The pair is thrilled, having grown tired of shaking down "bellboys with three joints in their socks," and the chase is on, if only a kind of cloak and dagger chase. Popeye and Cloudy, I'm glad to say, are not the least bit interested in such troublesome, gratuitous abstractions as justice or honor. Instead, they seem to simply enjoy their work--they follow the suspects on their off duty hours ("That car's dirty, Cloudy. We'll stay here all night if we have to.") We do not bother to quarrel with police methods that are harsh, probably extreme, for if a film of this genre is a good one the characters become, like the dirty store fronts, acceptable on their own terms in their own world. And our impulse as observers is simply to give ourselves to that world, asking only to be excited in return. Certainly we must acknowledge this as a legitimate function of film. Friedkin's art, then, is a technical one, a kind of control over audience response through rhythm and movement to create in, for instance, the climactic chase sequence an actual physical nervousness. This must rank with the finest of chases.

To approach The French Connection as a genre film is to assume a treatment of violence as much as a treatment of the city. Violence is a priori to the form, and The French Connection is a violent film. Hoodlums kill hoodlums, cops kill hoodlums, cops kill cops, and in the activity bystanders, guilty only of living in the city, are shot down. Critics have faulted the film not on the existence of violence but on what they consider to be its too graphic rendering. Again we must fall back on this careful concern for naturalism. When people are shot at point blank range, they do bleed, a fact that film is perfectly capable of reinforcing to those of us fortunate enough not to have witnessed violent death in the real world. However, in a lesser film this sort of violence would have been annoying, if not numbing, but in Friedman's cinematic world violence is simply a fact to be accepted as such. And I didn't walk out of the theater with any socially disagreeable impulses to own a .45 or even to join the police force. I did leave with a film experience, albeit a sensual one that was only slightly marred by the rather didactic Z-like ending

Black Rep Group Makes Interesting Theater

By DORIS ABRAMSON

"THE BLACK REPERTORY THEATRE was created as a part of the University of Massachusetts Black Studies program, and is now a part of the W.E.B. DuBois Department of Afro-American Studies. Its goal is to bring to life the dramatic art of Black playwrights, and to provide ample opportunity for Black Students to participate in all phases of a theatre that relates directly to their lives and reflects an accurate picture of their history and culture. The plays of the past will be brought to life again in the hope that their second coming will find audiences that are better prepared to hear, understand, and appreciate them than those who first heard. The new plays will speak for our times."

The Black Repertory Theatre company on our campus has lived up to this statement of purpose in earlier productions of plays by LeRoi Jones, Lonne Elder, Danny Scarborough and Theodore Ward. With their ambitious production of Jean Anouilh's ANTIGONE plus William Branch's IN SPLENDID ERROR, they acknowledge a universality of intention on the part of these two authors, a white European and a black American. Both plays are about choice, the decision to do or not to do something. The company gives both plays the intellectual fire they deserve.

Anouilh's 1944 play is a modern interpretation of the Sophocles ANTIGONE. The Frenchman showed Antigone's resistance rather than accommodation to tyranny as a lesson for his countrymen during the German occupation. Today, this moment in our own history, it is highly appropriate that Antigone is Black and Creon a brainwashed bourgeois, in this instance a Negro with an attache case.

Esther Terry as Antigone--her performance dedicated to Angela Davis--is just beautiful. Her strength of purpose has a rare combination of sweetness and power. It is the former that is usually missing from portrayals of this role. Danny Scarborough's Creon is intellectural, cold, and yet human. That he is recognizably a man one might know makes him all the more frightening. The lines in the mouths of these two leads are intelligently articulated. Some of the other actors lose lines--the Chorus and the First Guard particularly--but they play their roles honestly enough to compensate for occasional regionalisms. The Nurse, played by Brenda Collie, is exceptionally good in her role, translating the ancient to the modern with ease and warm humor.

Natalie Cole is a memorable Ismene, towering above her sister but the smaller of the two in her conception of the world about her. Miss Cole is a fine young actress who is getting better known for her singing, but this reviewer remembers her as Lutibelle in a production of PURLIE VICTORIOUS a few years ago. A production in which Esther Terry played Missy! Both actresses continue to bring to the stage an excitement that underlines what is intelligent in their roles while hinting at hidden fires.

The set and lights worked well for ANTIGONE. The ideas needed a platform and got one. The colorful dashikis in contrast to business suits and army uniforms were dramatic and just right for this contemporary treatment of a "story of a girl who had gone against the explicit laws of the state to do what she felt was right." The play was sensitively directed by Ray Nichols.

William Branch's IN SPLENDID ERROR, which was first performed off Broadway in 1954, is a historical play about John Brown and Frederick Douglass. Here the choice is Frederick Douglass's. The great Black leader must decide whether to follow the wild white man, John Brown, who passionately defends the necessity of bloodshed in the fight to destroy slavery, or to continue his peaceful abolitionist way. In a key speech Douglass answers Brown's insistent pleas:

> "I cannot cast away that which I know I can do for that which I know I cannot do. I have no right to do that. I should rather fail you, John, than feel within myself that I have failed my people. For them...I believe it is my duty to live, and to fight in ways that I know I can succeed."

Thus, like ANTIGONE, he chooses. He does live to wonder if "there are times when the soul's need to unite with men in splendid error tangles agonizingly with cold wisdom and judgement." But he has made his choice.

IN SPLENDID ERROR is a fascinating if uneven play. Perhaps it should be a film. Its episodic nature would lend itself well to that medium. (Since William Branch is making films these days such a suggestion may not be out of order.) The Black Repertory Theatre production, under the direction of Esther Terry, is a low-keyed, illuminating one.

Ron Murphy as Frederick Douglass and Ray Nichols as John Brown are not only made up to look hauntingly like the originals, but they also play the roles with a conviction that makes their argument truly dramatic. If Ron Murphy isn't careful he's going to be typecast as a hero. His Frederick Douglass is even better than his Joshua Tain of last spring. His rich voice seemed right for the orator, and his gentle mien right for the family man.

Again, the leads were well supported by a cast that included several new faces. Outstanding in heir roles were Jesse Latten as Joshua, the passenger on the Underground Railway, and Herman Davenport as Lewis Douglass. Their characters seemed completely believable; both looked like men of the period, like portraits come to life. Of the white supporting actors, Steve Coutermarsh as George Chatham and Joseph Jacobs as Theodore Tilton were the most effective.

WTOY presents
BOB DYLAN

DONT LOOK BACK
A Film By D. A. Pennebaker
Tuesday, November 30 7:30 & 9:30
S.U. Ballroom 75¢

For Handballs
&
Handball
Gloves
See
A.J. Hastings
Newsdealer & Stationer
54 S. Pleasant St. Amherst

Films

'Sunday, Bloody, Sunday' Is Remarkable

by Bob Nesti

Sunday, Bloody, Sunday is a film which explores the complexities of human relationships with such intelligence, subtlety, and taste that it is the most satisfying sophisticated film in what seems decades and has all the qualities of becoming an instant classic. What British director John Schlesinger has done to complement the near perfect screen play of Penelope Gilliat is quite remarkable as together they have made painfully real in cinematic terms the difficult resolution of a three way affair.

This is nothing new for Schlesinger whose films have nearly always been distinguished with concise and accurate portraits of people attempting to bear with a hostile or boorish existence. In Darling his thrust was bitterly sardonic as Julie Christie brilliantly etched a picture of a social climbing bitch who discovered belatedly that the top of the Jet Set wasn't as fabled as she imagined. Midnight Cowboy, a better film, had two incandescent performances from Dustin Hoffman and Jon Voight and a grittiness of New York City which somewhat compensated for the overt sentimentality and slickness of the script. With Sunday Schlesinger has synthesized his talents and has managed to create his most unsentimental yet sympathetic film to date, one which subtlety blends nuances of character with elements of comedy and pathos to such success that it is without doubt one of three or four major films of this year.

Schlesinger's tale is told in contemporary London and he has constructed a visual kaleidoscope of the chic, upper class society that acts as a mildly disturbing background to the story. He constructs a diverse slice of British life as we witness parties of the spoiled, young rich, a lonely man who has lost his job due to automation, an expensive and tacky bah mitzvah party, Schlesinger even has detailed his film down to showing the mechanics of the inevitable phone conversations between the three lovers making the point that the telephone has become a pivotal part of any relationship in an urban society.

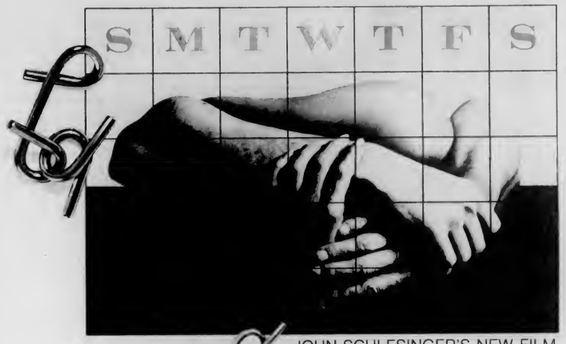
The film's catalyst is a young kinetic artist named Bob Elkin, who is attempting to break for a matter of time his emotional and sexual relationship with an aging doctor and a younger, thirtyish businesswoman. He has decided to leave for America where the chances of his success as a creative artist were far greater than his native London. Young Bob's trip to New York strikes an interesting parallel to Joe Buck (of Midnight Cowboy) and his rather futile trip to New York, yet here the chances for success seem secure. His trip, like Joe's is one of breaking old ties and becoming independent of relationships which somehow bind him and his ambitions.

The plot tells the story of the resolution of his affairs with both Daniel, the doctor, and Alex, the young woman. The fact that young Bob is able to have emotional and sexual relationships with members of both sexes mildly annoys them. His bisexuality is never something anyone gets hysterical over, in fact Bob's two lovers are more jealous of each other than upset with the duality of his sexual preference. It is simply accepted as such and the film is able to move beyond looking at behavior to view the subtleties and complexities of their unique relationship. The scenes between Bob and Daniel are done with such understatement that one wonders why a scene with two men embracing wasn't seen in films years ago.

What upsets Alex and Daniel more is Bob's leaving them and they bitterly argue about this throughout until the Sundav Bob flies off to New York. The dialogue of Penelope Gilliatt has the richness and nuance of fine literature. Her situations and words are chosen with a classicist's eye toward form, one that resembles the lovely Mozart opera trio used throughout the film as an unintended motif. Bob, Alex, and Daniel talk and talk, but one hasn't heard such a finely constructed screen-play since the heyday of the sophisticated Hollywood comedy and the work of Cukor and Mankiewitz. What makes the film even better is that Schlesinger has used the recent liberalization of film more to his story's advantage. Human sexuality has probably never been explored with such incisiveness as it is here.

Schlesinger has constructed visuals that complement his themes to near perfect detail. His view of London is one of a wild and hectic urban environment that the three characters bear with and do not truly enjoy. He has filled his film with so many small moments that amplify and heighten his characters that they emerge as rich, diverse, wonderful human beings who would be a joy to know. Doctor Daniel Hirsh is probably the most complete film character in any film within memory. Schlesinger has lovingly sketched his personality showing him to be an unselfish, warm, accepting man set in his way and admitting to himself that his life will probably never change.

There is one scene in particular that stands out in the mind and the qualities Schlesinger infused it with are probably reasons why I liked the film so much.



It is the bah mitzvah ceremony of a young man which Daniel attends. The scene comes quite unexpectedly within the context of the film, it is, in fact, rather jarring as its place really isn't very specific at first. As the scene progresses Schlesinger reverently presents the ceremony and it still doesn't make sense; then, quite unexpectedly, the film flashes back to Daniel's bah mitzvah some thirty-five years before and we realize the importance of the ceremony in his life. The flashback makes the scene intensely personal, we can empathise with the man at that moment for we have all had similar experiences, and Schlesinger handles it with such care that the moment flows quite naturally. These flashbacks occur throughout the film and they are essential for enhancing our understanding of these three wonderful people.

Nearly every technical aspect of this film is perfect to both mood and theme. The cinematography accents the dizzy, dreamlike background of contemporary London. There is one scene where a number of young people happily roller skate late at night down a main thoroughfare and just that moment, just the way the camera seems to capture their movement, was simply so real that it in a moment captured the whole conception of youth that was so important to the understanding of Bob Elkins.

Schlesinger has managed three exquisite performances from his leads. Peter Finch seems to play the Doctor, Daniel, with such a keen understanding and perfect low key that he quite literally steals the film by default. His final monologue, directed right at the camera evokes a sense of pathos I haven't felt at a film in quite some times. He throughout never asserts himself, is always complacent in his unhappiness, and, in the end, demands our respect as a fellow human. Glenda Jackson plays the gangly Alex with the right amount of frustration, yet keeps her warmth in tune and in the end emerges almost as Daniel's female counterpart, a woman of incredible maturity. She has too often had unsympathetic or difficult roles to play and this is a refreshing change. The film's pivotal character Bob Elkin played by Murray Head has perhaps the most difficult role in the film. Here is a character whose role is simply transitory, he is a go-between-of-sorts between two far more stable characters and, since his character is almost always in perpetual motion, it is harder to capture. Head doesn't even try, instead we get a character with a feeling of movement, an adolescent hoping almost to live a virtuous existence of a child for the rest of his life. His performance is so subtle that it may be outshone by Finch and Jackson yet is a debut performance of the highest order.

The supporting cast all give performances that are memorable. Bessie Love, who is best remembered as the dancer in Broadway Melody back in 1930 gives a wonderful performance as the dishy telephone operator. Peggy Ashcroft and Maurice Denham play the wealthy almost mad young couple with right sense of daftness and other characters, whose names slip the mind do not slip from the memory because of the vividness of their portrayals.

Sunday, Bloody, Sunday is a film of such unusually high quality that one is quite awed by it all. It is Schlesinger's best film work to date and probably the most enjoyable and memorable film of the year.

TONITE—7&9—CAMPUS CENTER AUDITORIUM

THE ROARING TWENTIES
CAGNEY
BOGART
&
SOME OTHER GUY
in

Murray Head, Peter Finch, and Glenda Jackson whose unusual relationship is explored in SUNDAY, BLOODY, SUNDAY.

Basic Audio

Got Change For A Dollar?

by Frank Johnson

Note: The following is a simulated dramatization only. Any resemblance to actual persons, living or dead, is purely coincidental.

SCENE: A small, well-equipped local audio salon.

DRAMATIS PERSONAE: A knowledgeable, aggressive hi-fi salesman, and a potential buyer.

The glass door to the hi-fi store opened swiftly, letting in the sweet smells of the street into the shop. A curly-haired, bearded young man came into the store, wiping his nose. He looked at the salesman and said, "Like, hi, man."

The salesman thumped the cash register and grinned. "aha!" he exclaimed, "you don't have to tell me. I know exactly what you're in here for: a microphone. You've been reading that column on transducers every week in MDC, and you want to do some live recording with your new tape machine. Well, you've come to the right place."

"Well, sort of. Hey, man I got a question. . ."

"Never mind," exclaimed the salesman, smiling broadly. "Come over here for a moment- I want to show you a typical, cheap microphone. Note its high-quality impact fire-resistant plastic. This tells you that it is an inexpensive crystal or ceramic type, similar in design to less-expensive phono cartridges, which generate electric current by piezoelectric stress effects. The sound is collected by a diaphragm, which is coupled to a peizoelectrical element. When this element is stressed by the force of the incoming sound striking the diaphragm, it generates a current. The only fault with this type is that it doesn't have a very great frequency range, and it's quite fragile. Too much heat or physical shock will damage the crystal or ceramic element."

"Yeah, but. . ." said the prospective buyer.

"You're hesitating- that means you aren't sure about this model. You want something better. Well, how about this one over here?" The salesman led the buyer by his shirt collar to a different display case. "See that one there? It's an improvement over the first model, but it costs slightly more. It's called the dynamic type, and it functions like a miniature loudspeaker in reverse. Sound hits the diaphragm, which tapers off and holds a small coil, whose windings are surrounded by a magnetic field. It generates current by inductional, as opposed to piezoelectric, forces. In fact, there's a nifty little lapel model right next to it, which we call the John Mitchell model. The ad slogan for it is 'You rap, we tap.' In your lapel, you know it's right."

"Well, actually, that isn't what I had in mind. You see. . ."

"Still interested in more quality, are you?" asked the salesman. "Try this one- it's called a ribbon mike. This type is similar, except that it doesn't use a diaphragm- instead, a metal ribbon is suspended within a magnetic field, vibrating in accordance with the sound. It's quite accurate, but on the other hand, it's also very delicate. Sometimes even an occasional wind puff will damage the metal ribbon. Oh, and by the way, please don't breathe next to it."

"I'll hold my breath as long as I can, man. But. . ."

"You don't like it- well, I guess cost is no object for a man like you, right? You're a connoisseur of quality: you want only the best. Well, step right this way, heh heh. Here is our selection of special capacitor microphones, which were formerly known as condenser microphones. They're much more costly than the others we looked at; in fact, some of them need a separate power source, either in the form of a low-voltage tap from the AC line or else by a battery. The mechanism of this type is two charged plates with dissimilar electrostatic polarities, like an electrostatic element. These plates change in capacitance as they receive sound, generating a small voltage. The result is a very clean, high-quality output, but it is of such a low level that it must be amplified. Therefore, in addition to the power source for the polarizing charge, a capacitor microphone will need a preamplifier before its output can be utilized by a recorder or a sound system. The cost of these two separate units (which may be combined in some cases) keeps the total price of this mike rather high. But you're a man of wealth and taste; I see you're wearing an Anderson-Little sport coat. This mike therefore is for you."

"Like, wow, man- it's great. However. . ."

The salesman frowned. "Is it because I haven't gone into enough detail for you? Why didn't you tell me sooner! I only covered the basic operational types of microphones, not how they were actually used. Don't you also want to know about pickup characteristics?"

"Outtasite, man- I'm always looking around for pickups."

Obviously pleased, the salesman went on: "Well, this means that some microphones have a certain response pattern which depends on the direction of the sound reaching them. Those microphones which are not directional as to any one location are called omnidirectional. They are different from cardioid types, which pick up only those sounds which originate directly in front of them. These mikes will not pick up sounds from the rear. This is why your favorite rock group uses them to mask the hysterical screams of the audience."

"Like, man, I didn't know that about the Archies."

The salesman chewed his pencil thoughtfully. "Be honest with me, please; haven't I explained all there is to explain? Oh, I almost forgot- there's still output level, the ratio of output strength to input sound strength. Satisfied now? C'mon, let's make a sale! The output, by the way, is measured in db."

"DB?" queried the buyer. "Isn't that a disease you get from dirty toilet seats?"

"Don't be smart. I'm trying to tell you something, and you're being cynical."

"I'm sorry. I was only trying to. . ."

"You're right. I completely forgot about mentioning the importance of a flat frequency response."

The buyer grinned. "Oh, yeah, man. My psych prof used that term when he referred to the copulatory intervals of caged rats."

"Hmm, I hadn't thought of it that way. Well, anyway: this criterion is the same for phono cartridges, also. Didn't you read the earlier column on phono cartridges in MDC?"

The buyer shuffled about, and didn't answer.

"Well, then. The microphone's frequency response is its main weakness, for very few mikes will have a smooth one. On even the finest mikes a frequency response graph looks like a Richter scale sheet that came from Amchitka. Therefore, it's sometimes better to buy a microphone with an apparently narrower frequency response than another one, if the response of the first mike is specified in plus or minus db. This will be easier to achieve w[illegible] a capacitor mike, and harder with the cheaper models. In any case, you want an overall smooth frequency response."

"Yeah, well. . ."

"I'm practically pleading with you," cried the salesman. "If after all this you don't want an expensive mike, at least buy a cheap one. Remember - you can always give it to your frustrated girl friend if you don't appreciate it."

The buyer turned to go. "Well, all right then - go!" snapped the salesman. "See if I care. Lord knows I've tried. Not only could I not convince you to buy a microphone, but I also failed as a salesman. But before you go-"

The buyer hesitated, and turned around.

". . .tell me: where did I fail?"

"Like, wow, man. I didn't come in here for a microphone at all," grinned the departing customer. "My VW bus is parked outside, and I wanted some change for the parking meter.

Saroyan's
The CAVE DWELLERS
Bartlett Auditorium
8:30 p.m.
Nov. 19-20
Reservations call 545-2579

Arthur Crudup: A Review

By MIKE McCORMICK

Last Friday night, Arthur "Big Boy" Crudup took the stage at the Amherst Folklore Center before a rather small gathering. Many members of the audience were completely unfamiliar with Arthur's music. Several drunken youths were present at the side of the stage. These youths proved distracting and annoying to many members of the audience throughout "Big Boy's" first set.

Under these adverse conditions, "Big Boy" did his best. He managed to impress the gathering with his clear, smooth, voice. His stories proved humorous enough to draw laughs. Arthur displayed a surprisingly strong personality. As far as playing goes, "Big Boy's technique" isn't versatile or dazzling, but, it proves to be a more than adequate mobile for his lyrics and superb voice.

Arthur's first set was a bit of disappointment. The interaction between artist and audience needed to produce a thoroughly enjoyable musical event never became firmly established. When Arthur broke into his most famous song, "Thats Alright Mama", there was no audience response. During this number Arthur tried to muster some enthusiasm, but the audience responded with only a spattering of unspirited, unrhythmic, clapping.

By the time "Big Boy" took the stage for his second set, half the audience had gone home. Arthur, who was now fairly drunk, didn't waste much time getting into his first number. Right off it became apparent that this would be a better set. Arthur attacked each song like a man possessed. Discouraged by the lack of response to his first set, "Big Boy" was now playing mainly for himself. Totally involved with his music, Arthur spelled out his troubles in song. Some of the numbers were repeats from the first set, others were partially improvised. After playing a spirited version of "Dust My Broom", Arthur left the stage. The applause was sufficient to merit an encore. "Big Boy" obliged with a totally improvised song which left the audience satisfied.

Arthur Crudup is available on two Delmark albums. Of the two the second, Crudup's Mood, is the better. Record stores which carry blues imports may have one or both of his fine European albums. Rockin' Man (on U.K. United Artists) is Arthur's most recent release. It was recorded when Arthur visited and toured England in 1970. His Blue Horizon album, Mean Ole Frisco, consists of 12 of his early Odds and Ends.

For those of you who find it difficult to obtain blues records there is an excellent blues mail-order house which carries all current available blues recordings, both American and foreign. Prices aren't expensive, service usually prompt. Write and enclosed 10¢ for their great 32 page catalog: J & F Southern Record Sales, 4501 Risinghill Rd., Altadena, Calif. 91001 U.S.A.

NOW..YOUR CHOICE OF 5!
Showcase
Rt. 5-W, Spfld.
Cinema 1-2-3-4-5
733-5131
MORE NEW SHOWS!
MORE NEW LOUNGER SEATS!
MORE NEW PARKING!
MATINEES DAILY... POPULAR PRICES
Adults $1.50 Mon thru Fri Matts
1 Gone With The Wind G
2 French Connection R
3 Sunday Bloody Sunday R
4 Joe Hill GP
5 Together X
ACRES FREE PARKING
ROCKER LOUNGERS
CHARGE YOUR TICKETS

Swinging Swingles Here On Monday

The Swingle Singers, recording group that sprang onto the musical scene a few years back with their singing, swinging interpretation of the music of Bach, will perform Monday, November 22 at 8:00 p.m. in Bowker Auditorium as part of the UMass Fine Arts Countil series of special events.

Despite the name, taken from their leader, Ward Swingle, the Swingle Singers come from Paris. The group was created in 1962 when these eight singers decided to record their first album: Bach's Greatest Hits (French title: Jazz Sebastien Bach). They had been working together in the Parisian recording studios doing vocal backgrounds for various singing stars and jazz groups. During breaks they amused themselves inventing exercises to increase their vocal agility. As their interest in the experiment grew they decided to look for their exercises in the preludes and fugues of the composer they admired most: J.S. Bach.

The sonority obtained in "playing" Bach's instrumental works with their voices proved to be quite fascinating. Also, the singers rapidly discovered the swinging character of Bach's baroque rhythms. They then decided to add string bass and drums to the group to underline the rhythmic element, and to record the result.

It should be stressed, however, that the singers are absolutely respectful of the original writing in the works they interpret--the works of Bach as well as those of the other composers they have recorded since: Haendel, Vivaldi, Mozart, Beethoven, Albeniz, etc.

Ward Swingle, himself a classically trained musician, insists that the Swingle Singers respectful and musical.

Following the success of Bach's Greatest Hits, the group hesitated to make the jump from the recording studio to the concert stage. It was President Johnson who forced them to make that jump when he invited them, in May 1964, to give a concert at the White House. This caused great excitement among the Swingles. What started as vocal exercises had indeed come a long way. There was no question of turning the President's gracious invitation down, so they began furiously to work on problem number one: learning their entire repertoire by heart. This was no mean feat, considering the intricacies of each individual part, plus the necessity of remembering all the onomatopoeia, or "scat" syllables.

The Swingle Singers, who sprang to fame with their revolutionary vocal and rhythmic treatment of the works of J.S. Bach and other classical composers, will appear in Bowker Auditorium on Monday, November 22 at 8 P.M. under the auspices of the UMass Fine Arts Council. Reserved tickets available, 125 Herter Hall, Tel. 545-0202.

The result surprised everyone interpretations are in no way aimed at replacing the traditional ones. He presents interpretations which he believes pleasant and joyful, while at the same time

Added to the aural beauty of the sound was the visual interest of watching the development of Bach's intricate counterpoint on the lips of these eight singers. It was quite impressive for the audience, whether musical or not, to watch the mastery and ease with which the singers handled these difficult works, accompanied by the gently swinging rhythm section.

Since Washington, they have sung in New York (Carnegie Hall), Chicago (Orchestra Hall), Hollywood, Berlin, Amsterdam, London, Paris, Buenos-Aires, Mexico, Tokyo, etc...Many projects are under way which will take them throughout the world.

The group consists of four women, two sopranos and two altos, and four men, two tenors and two bass-baritones. Ward Swingle also sings as the director of this unique combination of voices.

The program on the 22nd will include works by J.S. Bach, Mozart, Telemann, Haendel, Albeniz, Ravel, Sarasate, Rodrigo, De Falla and Gershwin.

Reserved tickets for the performance are available in the Fine Arts Council, 125 Herter Hall, Telephone 545-0202. Remaining tickets will be available at Bowker Auditorium one hour prior to the concert.

Ticket prices: $1.50 UM Undergrads, $2.50 Other Full-time Students, $3.00 UM Faculty/Staff, $3.50 General Staff.

Lebow Concert To Feature Bartok And Stravinsky

Two contemporary musical works are schedued for the third annual Howard M. Lebow Scholarship Fund concert at the U Mass, Amherst, Tuesday, Nov. 30.

Igor Stravinsky's "L'Histoire du Soldat" (1918) and Bela Bartok's "Sonata for Two Pianos and Percussion" (1937) will be presented at 8 p.m. in Bowker Auditorium.

Charles Fussell of the UMass music department will conduct "L'Histoire," which will be staged in accordance with Stravinsky's original conception of the work. Harry Mahnken of the UMass speech department will stage the work, and Candice Morse of the UMass School of Physical Education will do the choreography.

Bartok's "Sonata" will be performed by three UMass music faculty artists: Estela Kersenbaum Olevsky on piano, Fernande Kaeser on piano, and Peter Tanner on percussion. Amy Kidd, Westfield Junior High music teacher, a graduate of the Boston University School of Fine and Applied Arts, will also be a percussionist.

The Howard M. Lebow Scholarship Fund, which proceeds from the concert will benefit, was established by the UMass music department in memory of the late member of their department.

Lebow was killed in an automobile accident near the Amherst campus in January, 1968. He had studied at Juilliard, had won several awards as an outstanding pianist, and had taught at UMass three years.

Interest on the accumulated capital in the scholarship fund is given annually to the music major who demonstrates the highest standard of artistic achievement.

Contributions to the fund will be accepted at the door the night of the concert. Checks should be made out to the 1971 Howard M. Lebow Scholarship Fund Benefit Concert. Contributions by mail should be sent to the Music Department, Machmer Hall, Amherst, Mass. 01002.

A Biography

Howard Lebow was born in Weehawken, New Jersey on June 20, 1935. At the age of 11 he began playing the piano; this was the beginning of a brilliant though tragically brief career as a distinguished artist.

When Howard was 17, he won a scholarship which he continued to hold throughout his student years to the Juilliard School of Music in New York City. In 1959, Howard received his Master's Degree from Juilliard. While there he studied with the highly respected pianist and teacher, Edward Steuermann. Both Mr. Steuermann, who had studied with Busoni in 1911, and his pupil were strongly influenced by the composers Ferruccio Busoni and Arnold Schoenberg. At graduation from Juilliard, Howard received the Loeb Memorial Prize awarded to the student "most outstanding in talent and achievement." Summers he spent in Europe pursuing his studies in Darmstadt and Salzburg. He eventually won a Fulbright scholarship enabling him to devote a year to study in Hamburg.

In the years immediately following his tenure as a Fulbright Scholar, Howard performed extensively in the U.S. and Europe. From 1960-62, he went on short tours for the U.S. Information Service, lecturing in French and German on American piano music. From 1963-64, he was pianist for the International Society of Contemporary Music and the Columbia Group for Contemporary Music. The summer of 1964, he spent at the Cummington School of the Arts in Cummington, Mass.

In 1963, Howard made his debut at Town Hall playing some of Busoni's works as well as pieces by Mozart and Schubert. Howard Klein, reviewing the concert in the New York Times (Dec. 2, 1963), wrote: "Mr. Lebow proved to be a remarkable pianist. His technique is both prodigious and refined. He treats the piano to more coloristic investigation than most young pianists do, getting sweeping crescendos, muffled pianissimos and icy clarify by turns. And there were many emotional crests to the detailed contours of his playing.

Mr. Lebow's personality seemed made for Busoni's music. For his interpretations were intellectual with virtuosity very much in evidence, but always subsidiary."

In 1965, after a Washington D.C. recital, Alan Doerr of the Washington Post called Howard a "very gifted young pianist" and continued. "The program was a taxing one but enormous difficulties were dispatched by Lebow with remarkable assurance, authority and vitality." (May 3, 1965)

In addition to exploring the works of Busoni, Howard also pursued an intensive study of Franz Liszt. Most of his programs included at least one Liszt work. He lectured at the Liszt Academy in Budapest and was invited to join other Liszt specialists at the first American Liszt Festival in Radford, Va. His performances of Liszt works received the following review: "Anyone who heard Howard Lebow play six of the operatic transcriptions for Piano would have learned what works of art these can be."

Howard was very active in the National Arts Club, New York City, serving as Co-chairman of the Music Committee. He recorded the complete music for woodwinds and piano by Carl Nielsen with the Lark Woodwind Quintet on Lyrichord Records.

From 1965 to January 1968, Howard Lebow was an Assistant Professor in the Music Department of the U Mass where he taught piano. He was respected and appreciated as a teacher, artist and friend. While at the University, he received two faculty research grants for work and study abroad. During this period he also toured widely, performing and recording for radio networks in the United States, Europe and Latin America.

In January, 1968, Howard Lebow was tragically killed in an automobile accident near the university campus in Amherst. He was 32 years old. To honor his achievement and perpetuate his memory the Department of Music each year presents a benefit recital to augment the Howard M. Lebow Scholarship Fund.

Last year the Lebow family donated to the University Howard's extensive personal library consisting primarily of keyboard music. It includes many unusual early editions, a reflection of his taste and discrimination as a musician and enthusiastic collector. The collection will be established as the Howard Lebow Memorial Collection in the new Fine and Performing Arts Center currently under construction at the U Mass.

Weekend

By BOB NESTI

Theater

A Night Of Drama

Six short plays will be presented to benefit the "red barn" project at Hampshire College Thursday through Sunday. Performances will be at 8 p.m. in the East Lecture Hall, Academic Building.

A Night of Drama will feature three sketches by Harold Pinter; the world premiere of an original play by Leonard Berkman of the Smith College theatre department; a play by Maine playwrite Gladden Schrock; and the world premiere of a play by Hampshire-College student Paul Callahan. ($)

The Cave Dwellers

UT's production of William Saroyan's allegorical comedy will be given for two more nights, tonight and tomorrow at 8:30 in Bartlett Theater. It hasn't been reviewed but from all reports, this omission is a blessing in disguise.($)

The Connection

This famous off-Broadway play by Jack Gelber about the horrors of the drug world will be presented at the Folklore Center, at the Annex of Grace Church, on Spring St., in Amherst. This production is directed by Nick Orzell, who has edited the book "Eight Plays from Off-Off Broadway." ($)

The Front Page

The rowdy, sentimental comedy from the Twenties by Ben Hecht and Charles MacArthur is given a production at Williston Theater, Williston Academy, Easthampton. ($)

Three Plays

Three avant-garde one actors, "The Zoo Story" by Edward Albee, "A Slight Ache" by Harold Pinter, and "Dutchman" by LeRoi Jones, will be performed at the Studio Theater, Smith College tomorrow night at 8:30. Tonight will see three by Pinter, "The Lover," "Landscape," and "Silence." ($)

Music

China Night

The annual China Night, presented by the Chinese Association of UMass, will be presented at 8 p.m. Sunday in the Campus Center Auditorium. Highlights of the evening include Chiang Ching, a Chinese choreographer, and the Chinese Music Ensemble of New York.

Miss Chaing studied at the Peking School of Dance and, after leaving the mainland for Taiwan, entered the movie business. Her career in films culminated in the Golden Horse Award for the Best Actress in 1966. She is currently chairman of dance at the Chinese Culture Center. She is also an instructor at the University of California, Berkeley. She will perform several provincial folk dances and a classical dance.

The Chinese Music Ensemble of New York was founded in 1964 by its present director, Tsuan-nien Chang. The ensemble has a complete collection of rare Chinese musical instruments. Its repertoire ranges from folk music to classical pieces transcribed from ancient tablatures. The group appears on stage and television and has given formal concerts in many colleges as well as in Town Hall and Lincoln Center, New York.

Tickets are on sale at the Fine Arts Council, 545-0202, and the Campus Center RSO Office. ($)

Relationships

RELATIONSHIPS, an experiment in dance and theatre will be presented by the UMass Studio Theatre this week, Wednesday through Saturday evenings, Nov. 17-20 at 8:00 PM in the Studio Theatre, South College. Relationships, as the title implies, offers the actor/dancer the opportunity to go through a series of transformations, sometimes as a member of a non-human unreal space in which behavior is programmed, sometimes as a murderer, over gogo dancer, child, audience and performer. ($)

Seating is limited, only 30 seats available per evening.

The Swingle Singers

This popular group will appear on campus this coming Monday. For further details see page 11A. ($)

Films

Adrift (the Talkie, Northampton)

A fisherman rescues a strange, beautiful girl from drowning and he is torn between lust for the girl and fidelity for his ill wife. Skillfully photographed and pieced together in such a way by Czech director Jan Kadar as to be an effective and poignant mood piece. Featuring Rade Markovic, Paula Prichett.

Alfie (Saturday, Gamble Auditorium, Mt. Holyoke, 8)

A horrible movie. Michael Caine stars as a bloke who has a chick between his sheets more often than not, but eventually realizes it doesn't mean anything at all. It's like the popular title song suggests, which is even terrible here sung in the usualthroaty style by Cher. The characters are all boring, the situations often unrelated, the performances are either stale or exaggerated; this film was a major dissappointment of the highest order. Besides Caine mumbling and bungling throughout there is Shelley Winters who does a pretty garish parody of herself.

Bed And Board (Sunday through Tuesday, the Academy of Music, Northampton)

The latest film of French director Francois Trauffaut and a true joy. It is the third episode of his trilogy about the autobiographical character Antoine Doinel. Trauffaut first introduced in 400 Blows, followed up some ten years later with Stolen Kisses and now has him married and trying to make it as a writer. The plot is almost incidental as Trauffaut delights us with a random sample of some most wonderful characters Antoine has come in contact with. With Jean Pierre Leaud as always playing Antoine.

Billy Jack (Amherst Cinema, Amherst)

A genuinely honest yet hopelessly cliched contemporary drama about a young man who protects a progressive school from some local rednecks in a Southwestern town. Things here are reduced to the East Rider mentality, which is to say so clear cut as to be unrealistic. The film is the old Grade B Western made hip and despite the sincerity involved, comes off maudlin. It is the first serious directorial effort by newcomer T.C. Frank who has distinguished himself in the past with a number of very good "bikie" pictures, the best of which being Born Losers.

Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid (Saturday, Campus Center Auditorium, 6:15, 8:15, and 10; Campus Cinemas, Hadley)

A fresh, successful, and very likeable comedy-western which follows the exploits of two of the last renegade outlaws in the early part of the century. The sardonic screenplay of William Goldman is based upon the real life exploits of Butch Cassidy and his cohort, the Sundance Kid and in the process touches upon the more serious theme of the closing of the American frontier. The direction is taut and ingenuous, the photography is quite beautiful, and the performances of Paul Newman, Robert Redford, and Katherine Ross are as likeable as they are memorable.

Claire's Knee (through Saturday; Academy of Music, Northampton)

A wholly successful look into the complexities of human behavior. A woman writer goads her male friend into having an intellectual romance with a lovely sixteen year old girl, while he desires another companion. The latest episode of French directors Six Moral Tales that is blessed with the fine qualities of his My Night At Maud's and La Collectuneuse. The film is a sophisticated, subtle blend of witty conversation, lovely visuals, and incisive character interaction. The film, now being seen in a dubbed version along with the original subtitled one, is delightful and intelligent films of the year.

Friends (Showcase Cinema, West Springfield)

This mawkish little film makes Love Story seem acrid in comparison. A French orphan girl meets an equally unhappy poor little rich British boy and they run off to the French countryside to live together. Every cliche imaginable (and then some) is thrown in this hackneyed affair and the whole sugary mess is passed off as lyrical. Banal, prattling, and boring are closer to the truth; with songs by Elton John and directed by Lewis Gilbert who proves that he should have stuck with over-blown adaptations of Harold Robbins novels, as his Adventurers, where at least there was some action.

The French Connection (Showcase Cinemas, West Springfield)

Probably the neatest police-detective film since Bullitt and an action melodrama that will knock you for a loop. Unfortunately you are knocked at the expense of your gut as the film uses violent shock technique to literally leave you limp. For a more detailed review, see page 9A.

Gone With The Wind (Showcase Cinemas, West Springfield)

This romantic historical pageant of the Civil War is remembered by many as the best film of all time. It crystallized an entire generation's idea of what a romance should be, full of color, character, and action. David O. Selznick mounted this gigantic production in association with MGM and utilized three directors (Victor Fleming takes the credit and the Oscar for Best Director in 1939), many of Hollywood's finest technicians, perhaps the most splendid color photography up until the time, and a cast that was chosen with impeccable care. Clark Gable plays Rhett Butler, Vivien Leigh played the memorable Scarlett O'Hara (and copped an Oscar), and featured in the huge cast are Olivia DeHavilland, Leslie Howard, and Butterfly McQueen, whose part as the maid only showed that Hollywood wasn't quite as intelligent as we may wish to remember.

Joan Of The Angels (Tuesday, Thompson 104, 8 and 10)

The story of a Renaissance convent of Ursaline nuns in which the mother superior is found to be possessed. The plot may sound familiar as it was used in the recent Ken Russell film The Devils; both films used the factual occurrences at Loudon in the Seventeenth century as their departure point. This film written and directed by Jerry Kawalernwicz, is much more effective and quite a frightening film. From Poland.

Joe Hill (Showcase Cinemas, West Springfield)

The director of Elvira Madigan, Bo Wilderberg has attempted to tell the story of the legendary Wobbly hero. He has succeeded only in making a pretty re-creation of the early Twentieth century labor movement. The man of the ballad fame comes across as wobbly as his politics as the film seems as empty as its lovely visuals. Thomy Berggren plays the Swedish immigrant Joe Hill.

Kotch (Campus Cinemas, Hadley)

Walter Matthau gives a wonderful performance as the crotchety Kotch, a seventy year old man who attempts to live his life to its fullest. The film is a warm and sentimental comedy that parents drag their little sibblings to under the pretense of it being a family film. Beyond Matthau though, there is little else to admire about this film. Jack Lemmon makes a directorial debut which is dubious at best, wrenching his audience for all pathos using all the Hollywood cliches. Kotch is aimed at the heart, unfortunately the mark it hits is somewhere lower as the bathos is a bit hard to take.

M*A*S*H* 9 (Campus Cinemas, Hadley)

The most memorable film comedy of last year and the best military satire since Kubrick's Dr. Strangelove in 1964. Robert Altman has structured a loose, profane, comedy about the way three surgeons manage to keep their sanity during the Korean War. Their behavior may lead you to think the war was one big frat party, nonetheless their exploits are both hilarious and irreverent as they nearly quite literally shoot the bird at the Army. The scenes of gore occasionally shock the audience, but place the film in its right context. Featured are Elliot Gould, Donald Sutherland, Tom Skeritt, and Sally Kellerman as Hot Lips Houghligan.

The Miracle (the Talkie, Northampton)

A retelling of a legend involving a medieval Spanish nun who left her cloister to follow a knight only to return from her secular travels to find that a statue of the Madonna has taken her place in the order. The film was directed by Roberto Rossellini and features a huge international cast led by Walter Slezak, Dennis King, Federico Fellini, and Anna Magnani.

The Prime Of Miss Jean Brodie (Friday, Mahar, 7 and 9:30)

Jean Brodie, the headstrong Scottish schoolmistress Muriel Spark first wrote of in her fine novel, is seen here in the film adaptation of the Broadway success. She is a woman of strength and character and is given a beautiful rendering here by Maggie Smith. Her performance is an acting feat of the highest order (it won her an Oscar). The plot concerns her teaching at a Scottish private school in the early Thirties and how her unorthodoxed ideas effected her students. The character of Jean Brodie is one of the more complex in any recent film and Maggie Smith complements it brilliantly.

The Roaring Twenties (Friday, Campus Center Aud., 4,7, and 9)

Humphrey Bogart and James Cagney romp through the Twenties.

Shaft (Jerry Lewis Cinemas, Northampton)

A razzle-dazzle, super cool Black detective takes on the Mafia in a film that's a bit weak on plot but makes up for this with strong atmosphere of New York and Harlem, some neat characters, sharp dialogue, and a highly effective music score (by Issac Hayes). Directed by the photographer Gordon Park and featuring Richard Roundtree as Shaft.

Sunday, Bloody, Sunday (Showcase Cinema, West Springfield)

Unquestionably one of the finest films of the year and one with all the qualities of an instant classic. John Schlesinger has neutralized his annoying faults and synthesized his talents in making this unusually perceptive and richly rewarding film. It is the story of a young bisexual breaking up his heterosexual and homosexual relationships as he leaves contemporary London for America, with Murray Head, Glenda Jackson, and Peter Finch. For more, see review on page 8A.

Take The Money And Run (Saturday, Mahar, 7,9, and 11)

Woody Allen's wild imagination went rampant in this funny, funny film about a schmuck who becomes involved in a bank robbery. True to any of Allen's films, the plot is a touchstone as his mind takes off to all sorts of absurd ends. A must for any fan of Woody Allen.

Together (Campus Cinemas, Hadley; Showcase Cinema, West Springfield)

A putrid, putrid semi-documentary that purports to take a healthy attitude towards sexual relationships yet exploits it to prurient ends. It is simply a continued barrage of sex which really doesn't make much sense unless you happen to find pleasure out of thrity five milimeter stag films.

Two Mules For Sister Sara (Sunday, SU Ballroom, 7 and 9:30)

One of last year's most underrated films and a comedy-western that is both diverting and highly enjoyable. Shirley MacLaine plays a prostitute masquerading as a nun in order to cajole Clint Eastwood into taking her across a tract of wilderness. Directed in a nice, easy manner by Don Siegal.

New England's Largest College Daily

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

Weather: Oh no, here it comes.

VOLUME XCIX, ISSUE 52 UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS MONDAY, NOVEMBER 22, 1971

Top: Acting Chancellor Bromery listens to President Robert Wood's closing speech at the SWAP Conference. Lower left: Brian Scott from University Security makes a point to Mary Dumas who seems equally emphatic. Right: John Stevens from the Student Senate. What are we coming to? (MDC photos by Gib Fullerton)

Wood Stresses Student Reality At SWAP

MDC STAFF

President Robert C. Wood told 180 SWAP conferees this weekend that "The old idea that students are suspended from reality for four years...is absolutely untrue". His remarks followed two days of intense discussion among students, faculty and administrators about the "realities" in and around the University and the town of Amherst.

Wood pointed out several basic needs he felt students and others should be aware of if they are to deal with realities and if the University is to "move forward". He said that there must be academic management; in other words, everyone must keep to the schedules in order to maintain efficiency. He also noted that the University needs "far more effective levels and processes of communication". He termed "accountibility", "some way of evaluating what we are doing", as another requirement for the system.

"In an era when peer group evaluation is proving increasingly unsatisfactory, we have got to find a general procedural evaluation that defines what it is that we are", Wood declared.

The entire SWAP Conference at the Northfield Inn attempted the evaluation that Wood spoke of.

The SWAP Conference over the years has served as a forum for discussion and evaluation of many processes within the University. It has also served as a catalyst for action and reform.

This year's SWAP considered the very real problems of three areas vital to the University: the role of the Chancellor (in light of Oswald Tippo's resignation), Town-University relations and the structure of the University. Co-chairmen Judy Gill and Ross Benjamin said that the interaction among the various campus constituencies and the realization that the other parties are not really opponents were steps toward solving the problems under discussion.

In addition to the 18 discussion groups on the three main topics, there were speakers on various subjects. Rick Verrochi, Student Senate Treasurer and SWAP committee member, criticized President Wood's academic policies. Representative David Mofenson related the University to the Legislature. Chancellor Edward C. Moore, Board of Higher Education, became very specific about the structural topic at lunch Saturday, and said that education should be structured for the student. He expressed a desire to shape educational goals and curriculums to "what the student wants to learn, not what the institution wants to teach him".

The committee plans discussion and proposals made to compile a booklet which will impart these results to the University community at large.

Several of the 18 discussion groups did arrive upon concrete solutions to problems or situations within the University. In each of the sections, a SWAP committee volunteer took note of trends in the discussion and proposals made. The committee plans to compile a booklet which will impart these results to the University community atlarge.

In closing remarks, Bob Nims, President of SUG Board and SWAP treasurer, expounded on future effects of this year's SWAP Conference. He said that there are often complaints that nothing "concrete" ever evolves from SWAP, that those involved only make recommendations which are not followed up. Nims made recommendations of his own, in fact, but he said he expected action on them.

Throughout the conference, Nims, Ross Benjamin and Judy

(Cont. on Pg. 2)

On The Inside:

● Soledad Brothers See page three

● Phony Licenses See page two

Two Students Arrested—

Police Hit Fake Auto License Ring

Two UMass students were arrested Thursday when authorities cracked down on a counterfeit automobile license operation.

The arrests followed a raid on a girl's room in the John Q. Adams dormitory where authorities confiscated a camera and other equipment used to produce fake licenses.

Arraigned in Northampton District Court in connection with the case were Janet W. Freiman, 19, of 125 Arthur st., Brockton, a member of the class of 1974, and Philip Riley, 20, of 90 C st., Lowell, a member of the class of 1973.

Miss Freiman pleaded innocent to three charges of making counterfeit licenses. Her case was continued until Dec. 3 and she was released in personal recognizance.

Riley pleaded innocent to possession of a counterfeit license, possession of marijuana and possession of marijuana with intent to sell. His case was continued until Nov. 26 and bail was set at $750.

PHONEY FORM—Carl Catalano, head of Registry's special investigating unit, holds form used to counterfeit driver's licenses.

The arrests climaxed a six-week investigation by undercover agents from the Registry of Motor Vehicles, Amherst Police, UMass campus police and the Alcoholic Beverages Commission.

Carl Catalano, supervisor of the special investigation section at the registry, said it was the first time since the new plastic-covered drivers licenses were issued three years ago that anyone had counterfeited them.

Catalano said the counterfeit operation has been going on for six or seven months and authorities were not sure how many fake licenses had been produced.

He said he believed the fake licenses were used by persons under 21 years of age to obtain alcoholic beverages. Some of the licenses were given away and others paid as much as $30 for one.

The counterfeit licenses were produced, Catalano related, with a Polaroid camera and a three-foot poster of a license application. A person would stand behind the poster where the photograph belonged and a reduced picture was taken with the camera, he said.

The result was a good counterfeit license which would take a trained eye to detect, Catalano said.

Authorities said several counterfeit licenses had been detected in other parts of the state and further arrests will be forthcoming as a result of this investigation.

Registrar David J. Lucey said possession of a counterfeit license is a felony punishable by up to five years in jail and a fine of $500.

Dorms Close Wednesday

The campus dorms will be closed over the up-coming four day holiday. Many dorm residents are upset about this and would like to know why.

In a recent MDC interview with Bruce Cochrane, director of housing, the reasons were explained.

"Security is our major problem. We have enough rip-offs during the usual school year, can you imagine what the dorms would look like after a four day vacation? We are trying to protect our dorm residents."

The room contracts do not cover periods of time during the semester when classes are not in session. This is stated clearly in the student handbook, page eleven. As Cochrane explained, allowing the dorms to remain open would mean an increase in fees. This would obviously be unfair to the majority of the students, he said. Instead, those students remaining over this vacation, as well as any other, are asked to pay $2.50 a night at Hamlin dorm, which will remain open.

The dorm rooms will no longer be used for conventions during the fall and spring semesters, in this way assuring maximum protection for the dorm residents.

Bill For More DA's Awaits Approval

A concerned District Attorney John M. Callahan urged Gov. Sargent to sign legislation awaiting his approval that would provide three additional assistant district attorney's in Franklin and Hampshire Counties.

DA Callahan will join district attorneys from across the state at a meeting with Gov. Sargent in the State House today at 11 a.m. The controversial bill must be signed by midnight to become law.

"This is the first essential step in reforming the antiquated judicial system and enable law enforcement to do its job," Callahan said Friday. "In one year, the yearly savings would far exceed the costs of the new assistants."

Under the bill, 27 assistant district attorneys would be authorized across the state. Reports from Boston indicate Gov. Sargent has "a negative attitude toward the bill.

Citing a rapid increase in court cases, Callahan said he now has two assistants, who must cover Superior Courts in Greenfield and Northampton, and six district courts in Greenfield, Northampton, South Hadley, Ware, Orange and Huntington.

"Right now we have a misdemeanor session in Greenfield and a felony session in Northampton," Callahan noted. "We desperately need additional personnel to guarantee defendants a speedy trial. This bill H-6057 would be the first step in updating and reforming the administration of justice, not only in Hampshire and Franklin Counties, but across the state."

If the bill is passed, DA Callahan said two assistant district attorneys could be assigned to the Franklin County Area, two others assigned to Hampshire County, and another to Grand Jury work.

Honor Students Initiated

The UMass chapters of PHI ETA SIGMA, the men's honor society, and ALPHA LAMBDA DELTA, the women's honor society, recently held their initiations for new members. Afterwards there was an informal reception in the Colonial Lounge where both groups were greeted by the acting chancellor, Dr. Bromery.

Doctor Brian O'Connor, one of the heads of the Honors department, outlined the various programs that the University offers the student to enable him to have a hand in shaping his own education.

SWAP

(Cont. from Pg. 1)

Gill stressed the fact that the weekend would improve the chances of follow-up action after the discussions. One of the benefits of such a conference is to improve relations and facilitate understanding of the different viewpoints on the issues, they said. If students, faculty and administrators can realize that they are all concerned with the broader issues facing the University, then they tend to act for the good of the University as a whole, according to the SWAP committee.

This week the SWAP conferees will be asked to do some of the paper work themselves via an evaluation questionnaire to be sent in the mail. Each participant will be asked to comment on the usefulness of his experience, and what could be done with it.

Nims said at the close of the conference that the SWAP committee hoped that every participant would somehow express to the community how he felt about SWAP, because the issue of funding for next year will soon be coming up in the Student Senate and it is expected to be controversial. His plea was made on the basis of previous reaction among participants, which are almost always positive. (See tomorrow's Collegian for a survey of those involved.)

Learn to Drive
AMHERST
AUTO SCHOOL
34 Main Street
256-6066

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

Office of the DAILY COLLEGIAN are on the second floor of the Student Union on the University campus, zip code 01002. Phones are 545-3550 (news), 545-0344 (sports), and 545-1311 (editor).

Second class postage paid at Amherst, the DAILY COLLEGIAN publishes five times weekly Monday through Friday during the academic year except during vacation and exam periods, three or four times a week following a vacation or exam period or when a holiday falls within a week. Accepted for mailing under the authority of the act of March 8, 1879 as amended by the act of June 11, 1943. Subscription rates are $6.00 per semester, $10.00 per year.

AMOROSO
The very name means love—where else should you buy your
DIAMOND
LOWEST PRICES ANYWHERE
certified appraisals
Call RICHARD AMOROSO 546-4300 anytime.
In Boston Call 542-2226

AD DEADLINE
for Monday, Nov. 29th issue
is at
4 p.m.
Tuesday, Nov. 23

EUROPEAN CINEMA
FESTIVAL '71 '72
NW PRESENTS
Adrift
A new film by
JAN kadar
THE TALKIE CINEMA
NORTHAMPTON CENTER
584-6909

Soledad Brothers Speak In Amherst

By ROBERT C. BROOKS

"Soledad brothers" William Johnson and David Solomon spoke last night at the First Congregational Church in Amherst.

Both served time with George Jackson in Soledad, a maximum security prison in California.

The opening address was given by another Brother, Dr. Acton Lynch.

Lynch said that blacks were brought here not only as slaves but as political prisoners. He said that blacks were taken out of their own culture and forced into a new culture, and are denied the rights to justice attributed to most every white man.

Lynch drew an analogy between Brother George Jackson, who was killed by a guard under mysterious circumstances, and Jesus Christ.

He said that they were both political prisoners of racist governments and were both killed because "both were able to say no."

Lynch then explained that Penny Jackson, sister of George Jackson, did not speak tonight as slated because she was tending her sick mother.

He asked the audience to give the Brothers of Soledad, San Quentin and Folsom prisons "the support for the revolutionary struggle needed to set the country in order."

Lynch then introduced Mike Thelwell, director of Black Studies here at UMass.

Thelwell pointed out that blacks and Puerto Ricans constitute the inmate population in 80% of the prisons in the south, 75% in the north and 60% in California.

He said that prisons exist to "control rather than educate and rehabilitate" the inmates and that this control is based on physical and psychological violence or intimidation.

Thelwell revealed that Jackson had said that he and other black prisoners had only minor adjustments to make to prison life because the violent control in prisons is the "total expression of the relation of blacks to Society."

He said that as only a few whites control blacks' lives in prison, so do a few whites in the outside world in the guise of "teachers, landlords, armed white-controlled police machinery and marshalls to collect rent."

He termed the prisoners as "an extension of the world in which he (George Jackson) lived."

Willy Johnson spoke of the treatment that blacks receive from white police and white courts.

He said that 80% of the blacks serving time hadn't received a fair trial.

He said that they are given a court-appointed counselor, whose main job is to speed up the judicial process, advises his clients to plead guilty on the grounds that it will invoke a lighter sentence from the judge. But, he said, the judges never did give a light sentence to blacks.

Johnson related a case of one black suspect being put in the identification line-up with two chicanos and two whites.

He said that the police claimed to know that the guilty party was definitely black and said that for a victim to pick the criminal "was only logical deduction."

He went on to say the prisoners deal with death every day as they know they could die at any time at the hands of white guards.

Johnson said the black prisoners are "prepared to stand up as men or die in the attempt."

He said they didn't want to kill but "if we can't live, then baby, nobody will."

Finally, David Solomon spoke for Angela Davis, who he said was being prosecuted because she brought blacks into the white community and because she chose to apply philosophy from the text to a working reality.

He then spoke of George Johnson being framed by the prison authorities as pushing a guard from a tower.

Solomon revealed that 180 fellow prisoners were beaten with axe handles and suffered cigarette burns throughout their bodies in order to evoke the name of the murderer of the guard, but no one would talk.

He said that they chose Jackson as the killer because he was a visible symbol of black manhood in 1969.

Solomon said he organized blacks into groups to protect each other from the brutal assaults of the prison guards.

He told of one prisoner named Fleeter Bringall who, on August 24 of this year, complained to a judge about beatings.

Johnson said that he ripped off his shirt in the courtroom and revealed his bruises and scarred body but the judge ruled him out of order.

He claimed that white inmates are being paid to kill black troublemakers and that Jackson's life had been unsuccessfully attacked nine times before his death.

Solomon said that the assassinations are due to the high cost of prosecution, which comes to two million dollars in the Angela Davis case alone.

Before breaking up, there was a brief question and answer period and a collection for Johnson's and Solomon's sponsors: the Hope Congregational Church and the United Christian Foundation.

David Solomon, soledad brother, was one of the speakers at the First Congregational Church in Amherst last night.

Stereo-TV

Stereo-television programming will make its western Massachusetts debut today, with the broadcast of a Stravinsky opera over Channel 57 and FM station WRCR.

The late Igor Stravinsky's opera "Le Rossignol" ("The Emperor and the Nightingale") will be broadcast over Channel 57, western Massachusetts' new public television station, at 8 p.m. At the same time, viewers can hear the opera in full FM—Stereo on WFCR, 88.5, the Five-College public radio station at UMass. A simulcast of this performance has been arranged between Channel 57 and WFCR—FM, national public radio station in Amherst.

Queen Elizabeth II, wearing a jeweled crown, sits in the Irish Coach, a gold-trimmed carriage, as she rides from Buckingham Palace in London to open a new session of Parliament. (AP Wirephoto via cable from London)

Student Senate Committee Calendar

Committee & Chairman	Meeting Time and Place	Main Topic of Discussion
Rents & Fees Robert Chiller	Mon., Nov. 22 7 p.m. Room to be announced	Campus Center Fee Parking Garage Fee
Academic Affairs Nick Apostola	Tues., Nov. 23, 615 Room 811 815, CC	Freshmen Seminars
Budgets John Stevens	Tues., Nov. 23, 7:30 Room 801, CC	First hearings forSATF funding motions

The following meetings will be cancelled this week due to the Thanksgiving recess: Services, Women's Committee, Social Action, Student Matters, Financial Affairs

GET 'EM
WHILE WE HAVE 'EM
THE SHOE-BIN
from $22
Fri. til 9

The brothers of Delta Chi invite all university men to join them for the Monday night football game and conversation.
OPEN SMOKER
Delta Chi Fraternity
314 Lincoln Ave.
Tonight 8:30 p.m.
Call 5-0195 or 5-0156 for Rides

Winter at OWH
We have just lowered our prices on all kinds of winter clothes.
New shipment as of Nov. 18th. Hundreds of heavy winter coats.
OLD WEIRD HAROLD'S
NEW & OLD CLOTHING
Handicrafts Too!
Route 9
Road Northampton
(Next to Walter's of Hadley)
Tel: 586-3727
Mon. thru Fri. 10 a.m. - 11 p.m.
Saturday 10 a.m. - 11 p.m.
Jeans $2.50
Furs $10 - 30
Shawls $2.00
Flannel & Corduroy Shirts $1.50
Sweaters $3.00 & $6.00
Corduroy Jackets $5.00
Workshirts $2.00
Overalls Jumpsuits $4.50
Fatigue Pants $2.00
Tunics Leathers Parkas
Leathers, Corduroys, Velvets, & Antique Dresses (20's-30's) Parkas, Denim Jackets, authentic P-Coats, new Parkas, Felt Hats, Moutons, Tunics, Berets, Ibbt-Shirts & Pants, Long Wool Coats, M-43's, Eisenhowers, Boots, 13 button navy pants, etc.

In The Nation And The World

Tensions Increaase In Middle East

JERUSALEM (AP) — With war talk rumbling through the Middle East, Israel named a popular 46-year-old officer yesterday to assume control of the armed forces.

Maj. Gen. David Elazar becomes chief of staff Jan. 1, replacing Lt. Gen. Haim Bar-Lev, a Cabinet communique said.

At the same time, Israel declared Egyptian President Anwar Sadat's latest speech combined "a military threat with political extortion."

In an official statement, Foreign Minister Abba Eban warned that Sadat "can bring nothing but disaster to his nation and region" with military threats.

He was referring to the Egyptian leader's statement Saturday that "the time for battle has come, there is no more hope."

The Middle East News Agency quoted Sadat as urging his troops, during a tour of Suez Canal positions, "to be ferocious in battle, to prove to the world that we are a fighting people who know how to defend our dignity and honor."

Eban said: "We shall, of course, not yield to military intimidation or to political pressure."

He called on Egypt to negotiate peace with Israel and "stop the public bombast."

Sadat's speech tied in with the Dec. 31 deadline he has set for progress on the Mideast stalemate, whether by force or diplomacy, as he put it.

The Israeli belief, voiced by Defense Minister Moshe Dayan and by Bar-Lev, is that Egypt will not wait indefinitely for Israel to withdraw from the occupied Sinai Desert, but will open hostilities, possibly next year.

At the same time, Israel is refusing to budge unless Egypt agrees to negotiations without preconditions, and says Sadat's threats must be taken seriously.

Elazar, the new chief of staff, won esteem and popularity for his five-year term as chief of the northern command. In this capacity, he ran a day-to-day battle against Arab guerrillas on three fronts--the Lebanese, Syrian and Jordanian borders. In 1969 he was boosted to chief of operations--the No. 2 position in the Israeli military hierarchy. Bar-Lev is expected to be given a ministerial position.

He has served as chief of staff since Jan. 1, 1968, when he took over from Yitzhak Rabin, who became ambassador to the United States.

Bar-Lev was known as "the general of the war of attrition"--a reference to the bitter Suez Canal fighting from late 1967 until the U.S.-initiated cease-fire of August 1970.

The string of defenses Israel built along the canal to protect its troops from Egyptian artillery barrages was unofficially dubbed the Bar-Lev Line.

Before the Cabinet met, Israeli officials had accused Sadat of "heightening war hysteria" and said he had left Egypt "little way out of a confrontation."

The officials noted that President Hafez el-Assid of Syria also visited Syrian army installations. They said this was another step aimed at increasing tension.

"Sadat's declaration further strengthens the fact that more and more people believe this time he means business--whether we like it or not, and whether he likes it or not," one source said.

A source close to the Israeli foreign ministry said: "We want peace to continue, but the decision is not entirely in our hands. We have no doubt about the outcome of the fighting. It is a pity so many lives--including Egyptian lives--will be sacrificed.

"The Egyptians will suffer very grievously."

In an illusion to U.S. reluctance to renew war plane deliveries to Israel, the source said it is a shame that at the time "when we face such a threat, we have to argue about receiving more aircraft."

The officials voiced agreement that Sadat is putting himself in a position where it will be very difficult to extricate himself.

"Still," one said, "he does not close the door completely to a political settlement. He leaves a narrow space open, but let's hope it is not too narrow."

In Cairo, the secretariat of the ruling Arab Socialist Union met to discuss plans for defending Egypt and organizing civil defense units, an ASU statement said.

The statement urged Egyptians to "assume your responsibility, determine your own destiny and restore your lost lands."

The semiofficial newspaper Al Ahram quoted Egyptian pilots at the front as telling Sadat they were "ready for any suicide mission."

The pilots, said Al Ahram, asserted that "we never wanted a peaceful settlement. We want to avenge the 1967 defeat. The coming battle is ours and we need no foreign support."

The paper said one military commander told Sadat that his forces were "fully prepared to fight, awaiting your orders and our motto is win or die."

In Brief...

SAIGON (AP) — The U.S Commandannounced that another unit of the 101st--the 1st Battalion, 39th Artillery-- is being deactivated as part of President Nixon's cutbacks slated to reduce American strength in Vietnam to 139,000 by the end of January. More than 1,500 troops of the 101st were phased out Saturday in the initial stand down of the division.

*****

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras (AP) — U.S. territory will shrink by three square miles Monday when a special emissary of President Nixon signs the Swan Islands over to Honduras.

Robert H. Finch, on a Latin American tour for Nixon, will put his name on the document to relinquish the three tiny islands 100 miles off the Honduras coast.

*****

BOSTON (AP) — A 31-year-old Massachusetts Institute of Technology graduate student and his pretty East German fiancee arrived in Boston, less than two months after she was released from an East German labor camp.

*****

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — The Christina Democrats, Chile's biggest opposition party, rejected yesterday government plans to dissolve Congress and establish a "People's Assembly." The decision makes a nationwide plebiscite on the controversial issue almost inevitable.

*****

WASHINGTON (AP) — Three steel companies are among firms that have asked the Price Commission for price boosts under the Nixon administration's new economic controls.

The Price Commission supplied the names of the companies Thursday, but gave few details on the requests.

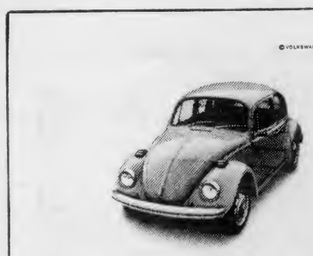
*****

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. bombers struck yesterday in North and South Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia, while an upsurge in ground fighting was reported in South Vietnam.

Battlefield communiques listed three Americans killed.

Pentagon Waste Blamed For Soviet Lead

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate critics of military spending, blame reported Soviet weapons technology lead on Pentagon waste, not efforts in Congress to trim defense money.



all the money we're spending, nearly $80 billion a year?" said Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis. "What do we have to show for it in new weapons? Practically none."

Proxmire and Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, were questioned after editors of the authoritative Jane's Weapons Systems 1971-72 reported last week: "Russia now has the initiative in weapons technology.

"Whereas for a long time it was assumed--with considerable justification--that the NATO countries had a clear lead in the development of sophisticated weapons," the editors said in the 586-page volume published in London, "it is now clear that the U.S.S.R. has extinguished that lead and is outstripping the West."

They cited Soviet advances in naval armaments, an operational antimissile system around Moscow, an early- warning radar system and "fragmentary evidence" of a number of other emerging weapons including a supersonic swinging "Backfire" bomber that they said is ahead of the equivalent U.S. B1 bomber.

Responded Sen. Church: "With all the money we're spending on the military, if the Russians are still outstripping us on technology we're sure wasting a hell of a lot of money."

It gets the once over 1,013 times.

Only after a Volkswagen goes through 1,013 inspections and all of the inspectors give it their thumbs-up, is it a Volkswagen.

If any one of them gives it his thumbs-down, then it isn't.

That's our rule of thumb.

JONES Volkswagen
721 Worthington Street
SPRINGFIELD, MASS. 01101
AUTHORIZED DEALER

UMass Fine Arts Council presents
Monday, Nov. 22 - 8 p.m.
SWINGLE SINGERS OF PARIS
Bowker Auditorium
Tickets: 125 Herter Hall - 545-0202
JAZZSebastienBachHaendelVivaldiTelemannMozartBeethovenGershwinRavelAlbenizRodrigoGranadosDeFalla

Reaction

A Brief Look At SWAP

By NATHAN GORENSTEIN

The reason for SWAP's existence that one most often hears is that it gives a chance for students, faculty, staff, administrators and all the others who make the University function the opportunity to get together in an atmosphere less formal than the University and discuss the present and future UMass.

The workshops took up the bulk of the working time at this year s SWAP. They are where it is hoped that suggestions useful to improving of the University will be generated.

The workshops are a mixture of good and bad. They succeed in bringing students and administration together in an atmosphere where students, and to a lesser degree administrators, are able to debate topics with a freer air of give and take than is usually found at the University. Hopefully, each is able to discover that the other is rational to one degree or another and that some sort of link between the two, in the interests of the University, will be formed.

The workshops varied according to those who made them up. Planned topics were arranged, but rarely adhered to. University town relations went from a discussion of whether or not the townspeople resent students to what could be done to improve dormitory rooms to plans for off-campus housing. A section with Bromery which was supposed to have been a discussion on the duties of the Chancellor ended with Bromery being quizzed on how he saw the Chancellorship and what he hoped to do with it. (Which probably was more productive than if the group had stuck to the formal topic.)

The main drawback to the workships, and therefor damaging to the conference as a whole, was the inability of most of the students there to discuss the topics on the same level as the administrators. (Who are involved in most issues to a much greater degree than students.)

The result of this and the fact that many workshops were overwhelmed by administration people was that discussions were often more theoretical than they needed to be, or else the information needed to participate intelligently was not possessed by the students, inhibiting their ability to respond.

Of those students who were vocally active, it could be questioned to what extent they represented the campus as a whole and not just their own specialized interests. Or whether or not the campus was represented at all. It should be considered what kind of student comes to SWAP, and if any way could be found to attract more typical students. (Someone who is a senate officer or a Collegian editor isn't necessarily typical.)

All this doesn't mean SWAP is merely an exercise in administration rhetoric. It serves to fill a vital need for students as a whole, and student officials especially. It gives them the opportunity to meet the people who run the University, either on a day to day or long-range basis.

The theory behind SWAP is sound. The practice needs only to be perfected.

Robert Gage, above, Acting Vice-Chancellor for Student Affairs, makes a point during one of the SWAP workshops.

Rep. David Mofenson, left, spoke on the relation of the University to the legislature. Right, Chancellor Edward C. Moore, Board of Higher Education, spoke on UMass' relation to modern education. Below, Ross Benjamin, Co-chairman of the SWAP committee.

There was food, too.

Bob Nims
SWAP Treasurer

Photos by Gib Fullerton.

The annual meeting at SWAP of the Trustees Sub-Committee of Student Affairs.

The Massachusetts
Daily Collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

BOARD OF EDITORS

EDITOR IN CHIEF — Richard C. Hanson
MANAGING EDITOR — Nathan Gorenstein
BUSINESS MANAGER — James Gold
EXECUTIVE EDITOR — Barry J. Rubenstein
NEWS EDITOR — Anne C. Stadnicki
SPORTS EDITOR — Earle T. Barroll

PHOTO EDITOR — Gib Fullerton
FINE ARTS EDITOR — Robert Nesti

TODAY'S STAFF

ISSUE EDITOR — Jerry Lazar
NEWS STAFF — Janet Hughes, Charlie Berkow, George Weissletz, Jeannette Martineau
DARKROOM — Barbara Brecner
AD LAYOUT — Terry Wanczyk
SPORTS — Dan Kamal
EDITORIAL — Don Glickstein

Undergraduate newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The Staff is responsible for its content and no faculty members or administration read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.

Unsigned editorials represent the views of this paper. They do not necessarily reflect the views of the faculty, administration, or student body as a whole. Signed editorials, columns, reviews, and letters represent the personal views of the writers.

The Real SWAP

The 1971 SWAP Conference ended yesterday with the hopes of a follow up next year enshrouded by the threats of a loss of SATF funding. With the increasing group demands for funding being placed up the Senate, this student body has found it necessary to cast a more discriminating glance at the budgets of some of the organizations it presently funds. With the budget debates of last year as an indicator, SWAP appears likely to be one of the early victims of this financial noose.

In the past, the arguments waged against SWAP have centered on three main areas; as a waste of SATF money, as a organization which serves no purpose for the University and as an elitist activity. It is useful to point out that these charges are generally put forth by people who have not attended the Conferences.

Perhaps the first two points may be discussed together. What emerges from SWAP must be directly related to what its expected outcomes will be. If it is thought, as has been the general custom in the past, that the purpose of SWAP is to produce some hard, strict proposals for change, then every SWAP which has ever taken place must indeed be viewed as a waste of money. One would be hard put to locate specific recommendations emerging from the Conferences which have been enacted in form by the University.

However, if SWAP is viewed as a type of half way house for University reform, then the conferences can be seen in a different, and more flattering, light. With all members of the University community stripped of their academic roles, the inherent biases of these roles can be more easily overcome. It is easier for opposing points of view to meet in an atmosphere of subdued discussion rather than one of institutionalized conflict--student vs. faculty vs. administrator, and all the separate little battles that are waged between these groups. The key to the success of any SWAP Conference lies not in the number of formal proposals it can piece together, but instead in the quality of the activity which the participants engage in once they return to campus.

The true value is produced by the faculty member who discusses with his colleagues some ideas he heard at the Conference which eventually lead to a new policy in his department; by the administrator who opens his door a bit wider to a student who approaches him with a new proposal; by the student who, instead of bitching constantly about the weaknesses of the University, tries to get his fellow students interested and involved in making the University into a total learning experience.

It would be difficult for all of this to take place on a campus-wide scale. The Conference offers an opportunity for a large number of people to start the ball rolling. It would be nice to think that these people represent a cross section of the community but the fact remains that the people who apply are generally those already most interested and active in the community. If this group represents some sort of elite then it seems it is the fault of those that don't apply, rather than those who do.

This leads to the argument that SWAP should not be funded because it involves only a small number of people. If this is true, then the Senate, WMUA, this newspaper and almost every other group or organization on campus does not deserve and should not use SATF money. However, as is the case with these organizations, the benefits of SWAP should not be enjoyed by the small number of people who are actively involved in the production but in the vast number of people involved in the outcome.

It is impossible at this point in time, and difficult at any moment, to judge the success of a particular SWAP. The implementation of a proposal, tangible as it may be, in no way represents the culmination of the Conference. The paths of useful change are not always so well defined and its sources cannot always be accurately pinpointed. We do feel, though, that the SWAP Conference offers a setting, substance and structure for discussion which cannot be matched in any other activity on this campus.

Richard C. Hanson

UMass - Amherst: The Future

NORTHFIELD--Even though the discussions started at the SWAP conference will be floating around campus for some time to come, some of the hard decisions about University directions and operations have already been made.

Stepping back from the uncertainty and distrust that has soured UMass since Oswald Tippo moved to 318 Morrill, the following observations can be made:

--(Acting) Chancellor Bromery's biggest problem is whether he will be chosen for the permanent position. He knows the problems Amherst will face as part of the whole University and feels that most will be solved through 'trade offs'"; he plans to work more closely with his peers in Worcester and Boston. Hopefully, future conflicts between UMass President Wood and the Chancellors of the separate campuses will be met by unity on the part of the three campus heads. Bromery also wants to have the Amherst campus prepared to lead itself into the future, rather than waiting for a central office to send directions down the pike. That means a Chancellor who spends less time involved in running the campus, and more time in Boston.

--President Wood's concern about tenured faculty (presently, a high 47% of the Amherst faculty are tenured) is sending shivers through the academic community. With a sharp decrease in UMass growth, the somewhat utopian decade of assurance for faculty positions also comes to a screeching halt. There will be much tighter controls on the awarding of tenured positions.

--The faculty are waking up to the fact that a changing world leaves them behind very quickly. The tone of many speakers at SWAP and individuals here on campus is that reform of University academic policies and practices is necessary. President Wood painted a sad but true picture of faculty ten years ago. Most approached the world with "indifference and gentil poverty", said Wood, the implication being that there are still quite a few of those types around and that they had better change with the times.

One glaring need that is being sat upon by some seemingly lazy or indifferent people is the adoption of a University-wide Senate. The Collegian warned the campus in late September that the committee charged with revamping the proposed unicameral body's constitution might not see fit to report out until it was too late to do anything about it this year. The committee, made up of faculty and students, still hasn't been heard from.

The University really isn't in bad shape for an institution that will have tripled in its 1960 enrollment by 1975. What it presently lacks in quality and direction is more than offset by a future potential to shape the affairs and lives of this state's citizenry. President Wood seems to realize this inner quality of promise and, as one in his employ said, "He wants to make this University the best on the East coast."

The "best" for UMass will probably mean continued emphasis on diverse academic programs, avoiding duplication of functions on all campuses. Figuring highly will be the real polite social change and strengthening that Wood has shown interest and concern for. New directions will come quickly. As fast as the Labor Relations and Research Center found a new home in Boston.

The Amherst campus must, in the next several months, face up to its own lack of organization and self-leadership, or the campus will face the future without any certainty. There are so many changes and reforms that must be undertaken by this University that a lack of local initiative will not leave a vacuum.

Art Buchwald

Consumers' World

WASHINGTON--The new bitterness toward the United States being voiced around the world has to do with economics. This country, by putting on a 10% surcharge, has alienated every nation except Albania, which as far as we know is the only country that refuses to trade with us for ideological reasons.

While the United States has much to answer for, the rest of the world is not blameless for the sad state of economic affairs.

Prof. Eberhardt Goldstandard, who wrote the definitive book on the world's economy entitled "Evil, the Root of All Money" told me:

"The problem is that the United States has been the major consumer of the rest of the world's products. Every country's economy is geared to what they can sell to America. But there is just so much stuff Americans can consume. Our citizens can absorb only so many carving knives, cuckoo clocks, tablecloths, stuffed animals, tape recorders, weathervanes, music boxes, salt and pepper shakers and back scratchers.

"We have reached what could be described as a consumer watershed, and unless other countries find new markets for their products, we're all going to go down the drain."

Prof. Goldstandard blames World War II for the world's economy problems.

"With the exception of the United States, most countries who participated in World War II had to suffer great deprivation. There were shortages of everything, and the people in Europe and Japan haven't forgotten it. They still save string and paper, they hoard boxes and they never throw away clothes, shoes or cigarette tinfoil.

"Americans, on the other hand, dispose of everything. They buy something and two weeks later dump it in the trash can. It isn't our buying, but our dumping that has made us the greatest consumers of all time.

"But now," Prof. Goldstandard said, "we have no place left to dump what we buy. Since the countries around the world have upped their production, they are making things faster than the United States can throw them away. This is what has caused the crunch in the world economy."

"What is the solution?" I asked.

"We have to make other industrialized countries realize that their salvation depends on making things that do not work and selling them to their own people who do not need them.

"We must have a new Marshall Plan and sent out quality-control experts to teach everyone the secrets of built-in obsolescence. We must instruct other countries to make furniture that won't hold up, cars that break down, refrigerators that won't freeze, television sets that blow their tubes and washing machines that miss their cycles."

"If they did this, it would certainly take the burden off us," I said.

"That's correct. For 25 years now most countries have assumed that the only suckers in the world are Americans. They have to change their thinking and realize that their own people, with the right advertising campaigns, can be made to be just as gullible.

"The world's economic survival depends on everyone acknowledging that we have carried the consumer burden on our shoulders since 1945, and it is now time for other countries to start absorbing most of the junk they make."

Copyright 1971, Los Angeles Times

Letters

All letters to the editor must be typed at sixty spaces, double-spaced, and no longer than two pages in length. All letters to the editor must be signed and the author's address and telephone number must be included. No letters will be published without this information. No letters will be printed with the author's name withheld by request.

All letters to the editor are subject to editing either for content or space according to the judgement of the editors. Due to space limitations, we do not guarantee that all letters will be printed.

Letters To The Editor

And It Doesn't Even Taste Good

To the Editor:

No doubt this isn't the first letter ever received on the subject of the food served at the Dining Commons and no doubt it won't be the last.

I fully realize that you can't expect university food to be like home cooking. Our mothers don't have 17,000 children to feed. But I don't feel this is any excuse to cook most of the food in grease.

Someone on the staff must be a qualified dietician and I would think that this person would realize the effect of fat on our hearts. Once cholesterol has formed, it is irreversible and very damaging. If we are to consume so much fat before the age of 20, what is to become of us when we are 40??

The amount of starch consumed here is also phenomenal. I realize that the price of food is quite high, but it isn't healthy to fill up on bread and cake. It isn't that hard to serve nutritional and low cost meals for which our parents are paying good money.

This leads me to another point concerning dietary laws. There are a number of Jewish students on this campus who do not eat pork or ham. We are continually served variations of these two dishes with a substitute of something such as veal or sausage, which Jewish people also can't eat.

Both pork and ham are very expensive. Chicken on the other hand is not. We are very fortunate if we get chicken once every 1-1/2 weeks. Also, I've been told that the Dining Commons buys very high quality pork. How come I can think of several people who have gotten food poisoning from this high quality meat?? Or, how come the Dining Commons can't buy a decent piece of pastrami??

I think it is a disgrace as well as economically unfeasable that we have to have meal tickets that we aren't able to reasonably fill ourselves up on, and after dinner we have to buy other food so that we don't go to bed hungry.

Karen B. Finkel

Water Fight

To The Editor:

One month ago a water fight took place on the sixth floor of Cashin. A little amount of water being thrown led to a large amount of water being thrown, which led to buckets of water being thrown into the suites.

The result was $11.60 worth of damage to the corridor rug, which meant each student, and there are about fifty on that corridor, would contribute 25¢ to clean the rug.

However, each student was billed $2.25, for the University charges $2 when it makes out a bill! After much, much talk between the people involved in the fight, the corridor representative, the Head of Residence, and the Student Affairs Office, it was resolved at the Student Senate meeting Wednesday night that just the individuals involved would pay the bill.

The water fight incident demonstrates the lack of communication which often exists between students and administrators. Most of the students were not even aware of the $2 charge, and certainly one bill to the corridor as a whole would have been less complicated and expensive for all involved.

One good outcome though is the unity the sixth floor Cashin found when the people there decided to resolve the matter. Another is the realization that communication is desperately needed here.

Elaine Stogel

Sour Sweet Corn

To the Editor:

In defense of Free University.

The first and foremost reason Senator Robert Chiller gave, to recall funds from Free U. (as he was quoted as having said in last Friday's Collegian), is not totally correct. Free U. has done a tangible service to the student community this year.

Free U. has made it possible for the Sweet Corn Theater Workshops to run free workshops - two on this campus and one at Amherst College -- every week since August. Sweet Corn is a professional company that normally charges for its services.

It was also stated that there was a lack of publicity. One reason I believe that Free U., Sweet Corn and, I know others, have trouble with publicity is that we don't get any help from the Collegian. I've asked the news editor four times, and three other reporters at various times, to please come to a workshop. It's a shame that in four months of operation we've never had an article written on us. My experience with submitting articles is that they are, and I can document this, often lost. Does the student funded newspaper expect student funded organizations to use student funds to pay for ads for free events?

I hope this helps to clear things up. Most problems and conflicts usually boil down to poor communication -I invite Robert's, or anyone else's inquiry.

Demian

Increased Rumors

To the Editor:

Rumors have been circulating, apparently, concerning a possible increase in residence hall rent for the second semester. These may have been based on a first semester occupancy rate which was thought to be substantially lower than had been anticipated.

As far as the rumor is concerned, it has no basis in fact. Indeed, we are determined to find other ways of reducing expenses if income doesn't meet projected expenses. Furthermore, I offer my assurance that as long as I am in this position there will at no time be any serious consideration of raising room rents for on-campus residence halls without thorough advance discussion with appropriate student groups of all reasonable alternatives.

Robert W. Gage
Acting Chancellor for Student Affairs

Editorial Points

The Southwest tunnel has taken a turn for the worse ever since those do-gooders painted it a splotchy, cold white.

*****

It's always a pleasure to use the Thompson Hall elevators, which are the fastest and most reliable in the University. Let's hope that the elevators in the Tippo Library weren't manufactured by the same company that made the Campus Center ones.

*****

DINING COMMONS MEAL OF THE WEEK: Thursday night's "Steak" Night at all the Commons. They sure have nerve calling hydrated, desalinated beef jerky "steak". And this year, there were no onion rings.

*****

Maybe the reason he didn't give you a good night kiss was because you smelled of cigarette smoke. Maybe the reason why no girl will go on a date with you is because you wretch of tobacco.

*****

When is "Rocky and His Friends" going to become the latest camp revival? Watching reruns of it yesterday morning, we realized that it is one of the most sophisticated cartoon shows that ever hit the tube.

*****

Recent pornography appearing in Poor Richard's leads us to ask what the one thing is that's worse than getting poison ivy in the crotch--it's trying to explain how it got there. Write on freedom of the press.

*****

Let's not get too down on Coach MacPherson. Losing to B.C. is like Barry Goldwater losing to Johnson.

Cornhusk Doings

By DAVID HOFFMAN
ASST. DIRECTOR, PROJECT 10

If you were looking for the movement of new ideas and practices that could revitalize American undergraduate education you would have been in Lincoln, Nebraska, last weekend, hunkering down in conference with about 400 students, administrators, and faculty from over 90 universities and colleges from Berkeley to Boston.

For three days we were in nearly breathless encounter ranging from role-playing to task workshops trying to give a definition to this new movement that has been building for several years--the reform of college curriculum by the creation of diversity within each college, the beginnings of real pluralism within the campus. A national but loose grouping of programs has emerged in the year between a similar conference in Ann Arbor in 1970 and this year in Lincoln at the University of Nebraska. We're called variously the "New Academic Community" or the "Experimental College" movement, and quite a head of steam is now underway at schools as varied as Nebraska, Grand Valley State (Michigan), Mankato State and St. Olaf's College (Minnesota), Western Washington State, Tufts, and in the Yankee Conference, the Universities of Vermont, New Hampshire, Connecticut, Rhode Island, and Massachusetts. Yes, Massachusetts.

Thanks to the support of Robert Woodbury, Associate Provost for Special Programs, people from Orchard Hill and Project Ten were in Lincoln getting it on. Our hosts were the faculty and students from Centennial College, Nebraska's experimental program, and the people from Project Ten felt right at home in Centennial, a very lively place indeed. We busied ourselves in workshops on curriculum, finance, community, evaluation, and so on, and learned a lot about what other schools are doing. But the real action came during breaks when knots of five and ten would gather in a lobby, several hundred strong, to follow up on the ideas being generated.

In many places the validity of the "residential college" model seemed well established: Michigan, Michigan State, Santa Cruz, Redlands, but in other schools the problem of developing "living-learning" centers as alternatives to the regular curriculum was a common experience. Here in Amherst, places like Project Ten and Orchard Hill are once again at work presenting proposals for experimimental programs. But faculty bureaucracies can be resistant to change and when money is tight the result is often the throttling of reform.

But we came away from the conference with renewed intention to build in Amherst the conditions for true diversity, to seek a real mandate for experiment, to influence the reward system on behalf of teaching excellence, and to continue to humanize at least one corner of Southwest--the "new" Project Ten in Pierpont. It can be done. President Wood's "Future of the University Report" gives clear evidence of his Commission's goals for Amherst, including an alternative approach to the freshman year and the fostering of work-study and other experimental learning options. Project faculty like Joe Burroughs (Faculty Senate delegate to the Board of Trustees), Gerald Platt (on Wood's Commission), and others, are strong advocates for change. Senate President Lee Sandwen, Southwest Assembly President Lester Meyers, Southwest Master John Hunt, and the two voices for Project Ten on the Chancellor Search Committee--all are coming together, at S.W.A.P., in committee meetings, in proposal and grant writing, to convince the University that next year is the year to move for reforming undergraduate education in Southwest. In Project Ten, we've already begun freshman seminars, and offer a wide variety of special courses. Working with Dr. Harry Schumer, we have a major evaluation now underway comparing the impact of college upon freshman in a number of dorms in Southwest and freshmen not in Southwest, looking also at differences between coed and single-sex housing. Things are moving in Pierpont, and from talking with Leon Barron, Orchard Hill is on the move, too. Who knows, next year the national conference may be here in Amherst. Meantime, if you're a faculty member or a student at UMass, and would like to hear more about the ideas that came down in Lincoln, stop by Orchard Hill in the Master's Office, or come and see us in Project Ten. We'll share what we know.

Two Generations Of Veterans Clash

The Amherst VVAW and the Springfield VFW met last week in an attempt to search out common ground. But the 2 1/2 hour attempt at cooperation only resulted in heated exchanges. (MDC Photo by Jim Cryan)

By JIM CRYAN

The Amherst Chapter of Vietnam Vets Against the War and the Springfield post of Veterans of Foreign Wars clashed over differences concerning the war and the programs for the returning veterans at their last meeting. The VFW had been invited by the VVAW in response to a similar meeting held at the VFW Post in Springfield previously. The two groups had intended to search out a common ground at the meeting in order that they might work together to help the returning veterans.

The VVAW was addressed by Mr. Joseph Scerra, a former National Commander of the VFW during the Johnson Administration and a six-time visitor to the Republic of South Vietnam. Reflecting on the anti-war movement, Scerra stated that he had "never met anyone for the war." Dick Ryan, a member of the U of M VVAW, asked what the VFW was going to do to end the war in Indochina. The former national commander answered that the VFW, "urges that the conflict be brought to an honorable conclusion," and that the group backs President Nixon completely. Some of Mr. Scerra's statements brought angry rebuttals from the audience. Brian Mulclare of the VVAW requested that the speaker be allowed to continue undisturbed since he was the guest of the VVAW, and Mr. Scerra proceeded to define the position of the VFW. He maintained that though the VFW was a "Democratic institution" it did not allow female members. This brought angry questions and comments from several of the younger veterans.

One of the main causes for the meeting of the two groups last Thursday evening, according to VVAW members, was to attempt to work out a means by which the two organizations might aid each other in helping the returning veteran. When Joe Doucette, a member of VVAW, asked if the VFW would assist the VVAW in getting a drug rehabilitation program established at the Leeds Veterans Administration Hospital, Mr. Scerra answered, "We will not stand behind you and I say that bluntly,...We will not branch out or associate with any other organization." He stated that the only way the VVAW could work with the VFW is to "join our organization and you will have a say." Many of the Viet Vets felt that the VFW placed too much importance on the preservation of the VFW and none or very little on the issue of the returning veterans.

The formal meeting was brought to a close when Ray Kildisas, Treasurer of the VVAW, said he thought that there was no way in which the two organization could work together evidenced by the words of the former National Commander of VFW.

Although there were many heated exchanges between the two organizations, the veterans continued to discuss problems informally after the meeting. Several veterans in each organization expressed hope that even though little had been accomplished at the two and one-half hour session, it would be possible to work together on an individual basis in the future.

Job Pool Co-op Formed

Money and jobs are tight so a number of students have gotten together on their own to form a job-pool co-operative. The idea is to find temporary jobs for the students in the job-pool, to keep them working and form a somewhat constant supply of money.

The system works like this: A few students in the pool will do the work of a secretary by taking calls from potential employers and making note of the particular job to be done and the hours. The student and/or student who will do the job are them chosen to work on the basis of their ability and availability. The job-pool is student run, and it needs help. Call these numbers to have a job done: 546-7194 from 5 to 10 PM, and 546-4529 from 9 AM to 5 PM.

Some of the jobs include, typing, babysitting, carpentry, research, yard chores, painting, snow removal, car washing and almost any other type of job you can name.

The job-pool asks that it be given a chance to operate. All of these students need money badly, and are willing to work for it. For more information, call the job-pool phones as listed above.

MERCURY BOOKSTORE

Astrology and Occult Sciences

549-0910

9 EAST PLEASANT STREET

AMHERST,

That odor your shower can't stop... we'll stop Free

...with a Norforms Mini-Pack free for you! Showering's great—but it can't stop the embarrassing feminine odor that starts internally, where soap-and-water can't reach. That's why we want to send you a free mini-pack of doctor-tested Norforms, the internal deodorant!™

Just insert one tiny Norforms Suppository. It kills bacteria inside the vaginal tract...stops odor fast for hours. Yet Norforms are so easy and safe to insert. No shower, no spray, not even douching, protects you the way Norforms do.

FREE NORFORMS MINI-PACK plus booklet! Write: Norwich Pharmacal Co., Dept. CN-A, Norwich, N.Y. 13815. Enclose 25¢ to cover mailing and handling.

Name_____
Street_____
City_____
State_____ Zip_____
Don't forget your zip code

Norwich Products Division
The Norwich Pharmacal Co.

How To Move Off-Campus

If You:

1. are a Senior
2. will be 21 years of age during the academic year
3. are married
4. will be commuting from home

Then, notify - the Housing Office before room-choosing (December 6-10) that you intend to exercise any of the above options.

You're Not Covered By The Above Categories?

If you are not covered by any of the above categories then you are required by Board of Trustee regulation to live on-campus. However, you may apply for an exemption to the regulation through your Area Director.

Security Deposit:

If you plan to move off-campus you must notify the Housing Office before December 10, 1971, in order that you may get your deposit back. Students who fail to make such notification by December 10 and who fail to occupy a room in the Spring Semester will, unfortunately, forfeit their deposit. Make your plans early.

Notices

AMERICA:
Dear America,
do you want to live in a world of garabage? no. So don't litter in the woods, help clean-up! We are!
Mark's Meadow students
grade 2, 3, 4

BLUES CLUB:
Meeting 6:30 in rm 168 CC.

BOLTWOOD PROJECT:
Due to the holiday exodus, no programs this week, no busses either. Programs resume 11/29/71. Senate vote postponed another 2 weeks. See your senator. Sell those raffle tickets.

CAMPUS CENTER PROGRAM COUNCIL:
Meeting for all members will be held Monday in CC 904.

CHRISTIANS:
A special Thanksgiving Liturgy will be held Monday, at 7 p.m. in Newman Ctr. Chapel.

CLASSICAL GUITARISTS:
Intermediate and advanced interested in sharing and swapping ideas, techniques or music call Gary Morris 546-9818.

COLLEGIATE FLYING CLUB:
Ground school will meet at 7:30 p.m. Will cover navigation.

FENCING CLUB:
The fencing club will meet Tuesday in rm 8 WoPE. All members must attend.

HD 270:
Child Development will not be held on Tuesday Nov. 30.

HD 387:
Infancy, will not be held on Tuesday Nov. 30.

HOME ECONOMICS UNDERGRADUATES:
Come and discuss the newly proposed course changes and programs. If you don't come, don't complain about requirements/courses you have to take. It's in Skinner Aud. at 7:30 p.m.

RECREATIONAL ACTIVITY PROGRAM:
Due to the Thanksgiving holidays the program will not function from 6 p.m. Nov. 23 until 12 noon Monday, Nov. 29.

RECREATION SOCIETY:
The Rec. Society will sponsor a bake sale on Dec. 2 to get money for a Christmas party for an orphanage. Anyone interested in donating their baking skills or baked goods, call Jay at 6-1084 or sign up in recreation office. Also Spre meeting tonight in CC coffee shop.

VARSITY AND JV SOCCER PLAYERS:
Meeting 8 p.m. in rm 17 Boyden gym.

LOST:
A pair of black leather gloves outside of Herter Aud. room 227. If you found them, contact Tony at 546-9790, 316 Mack.

Wire-rimmed glasses in black case on Monday. If found, call 6-8240.

German Shepard, 4-1/2 months old. Padre. No collar. Call 5-0082, ask for Linda Alves.

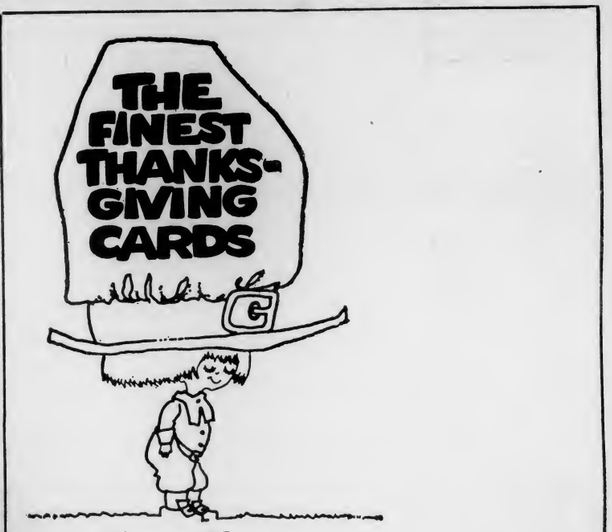
Friday morning, a pale blue-grey high turtleneck jersey, on the stairs of Boyden pool. If found, call Debbie 5-6945, 204 Cashin.

Diamond earring. Reward. Call 6-7420.

FOUND:
Dog. Call 546-7234.

Tomorrow Night
John Morgan
at
The Pub

Student Art Group Formed



The Student Art Association is a newly formed organization whose goals are set to provide art students with information, interaction and involvement.

It was sparked by a suggestion from John Townsend at the Art Department's faculty-undergraduate meeting of some three weeks ago. He proposed a resurrection of the former Art Club which died of apathy five years ago. Since then, there have been three Monday night meetings of this reborn and renamed group.

In the hope of obtaining Student Senate funds, a constitution has been drawn, officers elected, and goals and projects discussed. Shelley Nanes, President, is hopeful of a late appropriation from the Senate in order to at least lengthen our shoestring budget. As yet, there are no fees or dues for membership, and because of its open member policy extended to faculty, graduate students, undergraduates, and non-art majors, the Association would like to keep its members on a no-charge basis.

Jim Langford, Vice-President, and Roland Bisi, Activities Chairman, both had several ideas for goals and projects. More student exhibitions...with a little help from our friends, the Program Council and the Fine Arts Council, are potentials being investigated. Fran Kieltyka, corresponding secretary, will be in touch with various museums, artists (local and far out talent) and film clearing houses in order to plan guest lectures and activities. Another possibility suggested was to find and make available information on the marketing, pricing, insuring, and ethics of selling art work.

Tonight at 6:30 in room 175 of the Campus Center, the Student Art Association will hold its fourth meeting.

MDC CLASSIFIED

AUTOS FOR SALE

'67 Chevelle Malibu, 2-door hardtop, vinyl roof, radio, V8, A.T., P.S., excellent condition, $995. Call 253-3067 evenings.
tf11-24

'64 Ford Falcon, 6 cyl., auto. trans., runs really well & has a lot more miles left in it. Needs no work. Drive it away for $300. 546-4076.
tf11-23

62 Renault Dauphine, excellent body, motor, 38,000 mi., new clutch, 5 gd. tires, needs fuel pump, $100. 946 N. Pleasant St.
11-22

Real creampuff!! '65 Pontiac Lemans, 6 cyl., only 40,000 mi., new brakes, tires, shocks, tune-up sticker & much more. Asking $350. Call 546-4076.
tf11-23

1966 Red Porsche 912, new tires, new battery, good mechanical condition. Best offer. Call 545-2250 or 253-9400.
tf11-22

VW bus, not running good for parts, 4 new tires. Call Bill 253-7148.
tf11-22

1963 Falcon, new tires, front end good, 6 cyl., auto., great mileage, engine needs minor repair work. Cheap! 665-4002 after 5 p.m.
tf11-22

Cheapest Mercedes, 1962, 220sb., runs ok but needs work. With book, spares. After 5 p.m. 863-4424.
tf11-23

1964 VW for sale. Call 665-3006.
tf11-30

1961 Chevy, s.w. toots, must find good home, good running condition. Needs muffler $225. Call 6-5837 between 6-8 p.m. or call late.
tf11-30

'65 Corvair Monza, 4 speed, Am-Fm radio, good condition, No Rot, good tires, $280. Call 253-5344.
tf11-30

'63 VW bug, excint. mech. cond., new brakes, starter, end., front end., 6 good tires, snow tire mounted. Call 546-0767 evenings, $400.
tf11-30

1965 Porsche 356c rebuilt eng., elec. sunrf., new battery, clutch, tires. Will negotiate 545-0329, Dick Jubinville.
tf11-23

FOR SALE

Wedding gown with attached train, empire waist, Juliet sleeves and Venecian lace, pearl seed crown veil. Best offer, call 548-1013.
tf11-23

Bike for sale, 3 spd, English girls, best offer. Please call Joyce 253-7611.
tf11-23

Natural hide rugs, pillows, purses, steer, sheep, goat. Great Xmas gifts. Indian kid skin $10. Camp-Center Thur. 6-7538 - 225 Jsmes.
tf11-22

63 W.W., can run well but needs some work, sunroof, r & h, 2 fairly new tires, $125 or best offer. Also Nikon Cam. Equip. Call 665-4767.
tf11-22

Original Turkish Sheep Skin Coat for a lady, white outside, white fur inside, $90. Call Ahmet 546-4210 after 8 p.m.
tf11-22

AR receiver, 3 weeks old, 120 watts, r.m.s., cost $415, sell $295; AKAI X360D, 1 year old, 20-20000 flat s.o.s., sws., cost $430-$295, 253-8587.
tf11-24

Guitars Amps, drums, acc, at reasonable prices. The Guitar Workshop, 98 Main St. North. 586-1706.
tf11-30

61 Bonneville, rebuilt engine, rebuilt transmission, automatic, all power, $500. Must sell. Call 987-5463 after 6 leave phone & address
tf11-19

Benjamin compacts EMI speakers, Lenco and Miracord turntables at low prices. Concord Equipment at Discount Prices Call 546-6817.
tf11-23

Dual 1215-Kenwood 3140 FM Receiver 85W IHF 4ew RMS-etanton 500E cartridge. Best offer, 3 mos. old, hardly used. Dave 6-7609.
tf11-24

Used Rock Records for sale in exc. cond. incl. English and Bootlegs $1.25/rec. Also Gibson Bass, $135.00. Call 253-5945, kp. trying.
tf11-23

Remington Portable "Quiet-Riter" Typewriter with case, in good condition. Elite type. Call 549-1585.
tf11-23

Lange Ski Boots, size 9m. They are in perfect cond. and are priced for a quick sale at $40. Call 253-3644 after p.m.
tf11-22

FOR SALE MOTORCYCLE

60 Yamaha 350. Here is that great buy you've been looking for. Bike is perf., new tire & tune up. Drive it away for only $400. 546-4078.
tf11-23

WANTED

Daily Hampshire Gazette is interviewing students & others for working as stringers. If interested call Editor at Gazet. 584-5000.
tf11-22

Guitar teacher, in Amherst for two older kids, neither a beginner. Call 549-0630 after 5:30 p.m.
tf11-22

Wanted to buy-photo developing equip., especially enlarger. Call 1-369-4632.
tf11-23

Lessons in Portuguese needed. Brazilian student preferred. Write Linda, P.O. Box 283, Northampton.
tf11-22

PERSONAL

Congratulations to Sully and Barb. Name it after us, the Baker Brrrooskis.
11-22

Happy 20th to Doug Cooney. Good luck on your comeback—from a fan.
11-22

Loyal subjects unite! Scrootus, the Fat, is leaving his kingdom I.e Rol de France and the Trivmvirate will rule Scrootz forever!
11-22

VVAW; Tell Tony the Tiger I think he's G-R-E-A-T! Laughing Lady.
tf11-23

Happy Birthday Frank from Sig. Steve, Chuck, Dee, Bob, Elaine, Lynn, Chico, Weebie, and Lotsa luck.
tf11-22

RIDE WANTED

Help! secretary desperately needs ride from UMass to Granby weekday eve. Leave Campus after 5. Call Diane at 5-0080, ext. 68 or 467-9107.
tf11-22

ROOMMATES WANTED

Two girls wanted to share bedroom in Puffton Apt. for second semester $55 a month. Call 549-0871.
tf11-23

Female roommate to share 2 bdrm. twnhse. apt w. 3 others, immed. occ. 256-8891, keep trying.
tf11-22

Female-preferably grad student. Own room, $80/month includes utilities. Call Linda 665-4125.
tf11-23

Roommate needed for January. 2 bdrm twnhs., Holling Green. Pls call Joyce 253-7611.
tf11-23

ROOMS WANTED

Need place to live beg. Dec. 1 with quiet people close to UMass. Must have own room. Can pay 65-$70 a mo. Call 367-9515 ask for Diane.
tf11-24

Two girls would like rooms in a house near campus for January semester. Call Mary at 546-5278.
tf11-23

SERVICES

Amherst Audio services. Stereo components, tape decks for home or car. 197 No. Pleasant St. 256-8133.
tfs-12

TYPING

Typing—theses, dissertations, etc. Fast, accurate, experienced. Have Math and Chem. symbols. Call 253-3401.
tf12-21

LOST

A pair of black leather gloves, outside of Hert. Aud., Room 227. If found kindly contact Toni, tel. no. 546-9790, 316 Mack.
tf11-23

STUDENTS BOOK MATCHING

Register your book in S.U. Rm. 318. Every student with your course next semester will need your books save $ money, sell direct.
tf-sem.

JOBS

Overseas jobs for students. Australia, Europe, S. America, Africa, etc. All professions & occupations, $700 to $3000 monthly, expenses paid, overtime, sightseeing. Free information-write Jobs Overseas, Dept. KB, Box 15071, San Diego, Calif. 92115.
tf11-22

UMass Gives Opinion Of New Ford Pinto

Last Friday morning, a bright yellow, fully equipped Pinto "Runabout" by Ford was conspicuously parked out in front of the Student Union. The purpose of its presence was to get a UMass student's opinion on the new subcompact.

Over 500 opinion sheets were distributed to passing students in the space of a couple of hours. The survey was conducted by graduate students from Professor Giltman's Marketing Management 722 course who were given the Pinto to use for a period of time for advertising.

The questionnaire asked basically "What do you think of Ford's Pinto?" The age and sex of the students filling out the sheet were asked along with opinions regarding Pinto's style, interior, price, etc.

Ford travels to campuses across the country every year displaying their new products mainly because they believe that the young adult consumer is the one attracted to their low-priced, sporty model such as the Mustang and Maverick, a spokesman said.

It is unknown how soon the statistical results of this Pinto survey will be ready. But from the general feedback of several of the many students who stopped to couriously inspect the vehicle, Pinto seems to have some drawbacks.

Women's Lib

UMass Women's Liberation will meet tomorrow at 7:30 in the Campus Center to discuss the possibility of initiating a Women's Studies program on campus. Discussion will include reasons for having Women's Studies started. Suggestions and new ideas are needed. All university women are welcome to attend. Check the Collegian notices for room number.

French Courses

Is the idea of choosing a French course for the next semester confusing? To benefit by the experience of others, come to the third floor Herter Hall lounge during the week of November 29 to December 3. There will be student counselors available to advise in the choice of French courses and help majors plan their course schedules. Those having questions concerning requirements for teaching may pick up information concerning this which Prof. Berwald has compiled. Drop in between the hours of 9 A.M. and 5 P.M.

Rifle Notice

Approximately 194 Springfield 03 rifles, formerly used by the Flying Redmen Drill Team and units of ROTC will be disposed of by the University. If anyone believes he has a legal claim on any of said rifles as personal property, he should communicate his claim, in writing, to Sidney Myers, Staff Attorney, 324 Whitmore without delay.

NOW...YOUR CHOICE OF 5!
Showcase Cinema 1-2-3-4-5
Rt. 5-W. Spfld.
733-5131
MORE NEW SHOWS!
MORE NEW LOUNGER SEATS!
MORE NEW PARKING!
MATINEES DAILY...POPULAR PRICES
Adults $1.50 Mon Thru Fri Matts
1 Gone With The Wind G
2 French Connection R
3 Sunday Bloody Sunday R
4 Joe Hill GP
5 Together X
ACRES FREE PARKING
ROCKER LOUNGERS
CHARGE YOUR TICKETS

S.W. Bans Sex Bias At Parties

Bills discussing a recreational gym, security provisions for Fantasia snack bar, a tenants organization, water beds, discriminary admission prices on the basis of sex and appropriations to Cance House were all brought up at the meeting of the South West assembly last week.

The first bill, discussing a gym for the nineteenth floor of George Washington Tower was tabled pending an investigation of various ways to finance it.

Dining commons then came under discussion when Service Committee chairman Rick Dinkin asked the assemblymen to go to their heads of residence so that floor meetings could be called to discuss the using of space in the three dining commons in South West.

With a move into special business, the new black members of the assembly asked for a budget of $2500 to promote the black cause in South West. After much discussion it was decided to table the bill with the motion of having the finance committee assist the black representatives in drawing up a budget.

Back to the agenda, on the subject of security of the Fantasia snack bar of George Washington lower, it was moved that the bill be tabled pending a committee report.

The tenant association bill was next. This bill calls for all people in South West to be members of an association for the betterment of the residential college. Called vague by the representatives, this bill was explained more fully by sponsor Rich Dinkin as a kind of laison between the administration and the residents of South West. A committee will be appointed by the president, Lester Meyers, to get the association going within two weeks.

On the subject of discriminatory admission prices on the basis of sex, the assembly passed the bill which called for censure of guilty houses and suspension of all assembly funding for that house for the duration of the academic year in which the offense took place. An amendment to the bill was added which then read, that there would be no discrimination at functions in South West regardless of race, creed, color, sex, or national origin.

The assembly then passed a bill approving the formation of a joint SWA-SWC committee to prepare a recommendation for setting forth a detailed plan for attaining a unicameral legislature in South West.

MDC Classifieds Sell

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

By SYDNEY OMARR

"There's some ill planet reigns. I must be patient till the heavens look with an aspect more favorable." Shakespeare.

*****

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Partnerships put to test. Nothing seems to come easy. This is due to surprise moves, changes, need for readjustment. You do best by seeing in light of reality. Avoid tendency toward self deception.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Long-range plans subject to revision. You could receive aid from unorthodox source. One you considered out of it is very much in. Capricorn figures prominently. Use past experience.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Finish what you start. Temptation is to toss aside details, to skip essentials, to be extravagant. Curb these tendencies. Key is to round out project. Gain additional appeal, power.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Stress independence, originality. Methods that worked in past now must be revised. Obtain valid hint from Aries message. Shakeup due, affects domestic area. Ride with tide. You can win.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Some relatives are restless, on the move. Key is to adhere to your own game plan. Trust hunch. You learn now through observation. One who taught you in past could make reappearance.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Money situation fluctuates. One who makes demands is merely testing. Know this and adhere to basic course. Key is to be versatile without scattering forces. Sagittarius will aid.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Breakthrough indicated. Flash of inspiration could provide solid answer. Recognize truth when you encounter it. Means don't dissuade yourself. Face up to facts as they exist. Then you progress.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Some journeys lead to confusion. Get correct addresses. Applies to correspondence as well as travel. And be sure you have names straight. Mixup could be humorous on surface but create resentment.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Luxury item to buy, rent or otherwise could be a dominant question. Key is to keep within budget without denying quality of comfort. This can be done and you are one to do it.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): See beyond surface indications. You have right to ask questions and to obtain answers. Be wary of one who sweet talks, skirts basic issues. Insist on frank appraisal. Truth frees you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): The more you prepare, the better will be the results. Message will become clear. Capricorn can serve as guide. Definite gains made if you heed voice of experience. Be discreet.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Finish what you start. You tend now to attract one who sings blues. Don't compound error by joining chorus. Dance to your own tune. It can be gay, light and constructive if you so desire.

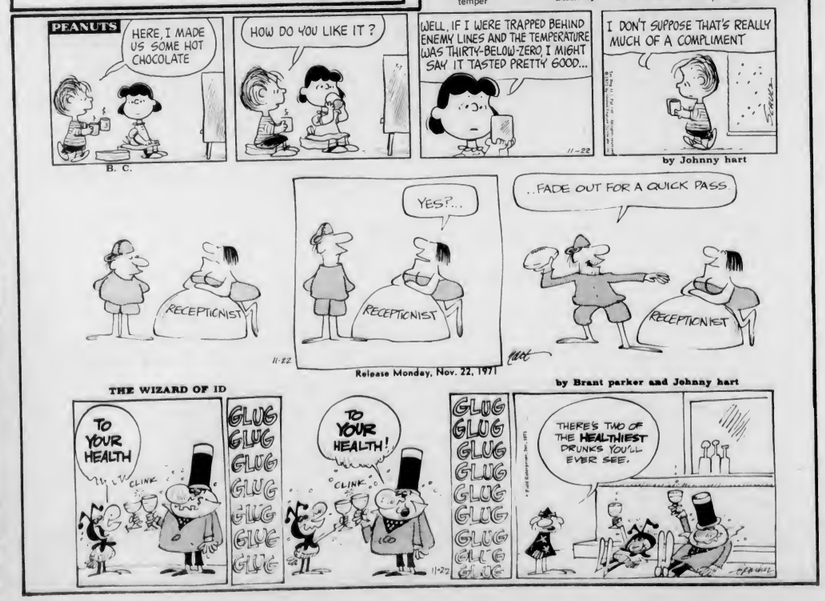
IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you were on your own early. Psychologically, you separated from authority. You are inventive, a natural architect. You recently had change of residence or went through period of domestic adjustment all to the good. Now, settle down and get some of those emotional bruises healed.

Copyright 1971, Gen. Fea. Corp.

Crossword Puzzle

ACROSS

1 Native metal
4 Bone
6 Iron
11 Sharp reply
13 Stew
15 Man's nickname
16 Term of endearment
18 Parent (colloq.)
19 Printer's measure
21 Diving bird
22 Totals
24 Ox of Celebes
26 Agreement
28 Seine
29 Make amends
31 Want
33 Note of scale
34 Walk
36 Levantine vessel
38 Note of scale
40 Sluggish
42 Harvests
45 Man's name
47 Antlered animal
49 Barracuda
50 Offspring (pl.)
52 Woody plant
54 Babylonian deity
55 Printer's measure
56 Gift
59 Note of scale
61 Mend
63 Moves sidewise
65 Kind of hat
66 Man's nickname
67 Poem



DOWN

1 Anglo-Saxon money
2 Soften in temper
3 Latin conjunction
4 Spoken
5 Sharpen
6 Noblemen
7 Hurried
8 Urges on
9 Conjunction
10 Season
12 Hypothetical force
14 Experience
17 Grant use of
20 Cries like cow
23 World organization (abbr.)
24 Cooled lava
25 Emmets
27 Rip
30 Lampreys
32 Expires
35 Earthenware
37 Sleeveless cloak
38 Hoarder
39 Pressed
41 Armed conflicts
43 Tolled
44 Saint (abbr.)
46 Indefinite article
48 Web-footed birds
51 Mast
53 Wife of Geraint
57 Bone of body
58 Touchdown (abbr.)
60 Peer Gynt's mother
62 Hebrew letter
64 Behold!

Answer to Friday's Puzzle

A	L	P	S		S	E	A		S	P	E	D
L	O	R	A		T	A	A		E	A	V	E
G	R	I	T	T	Y		M	A	T	R	O	N
A	N	Z	I	O		M	O	T	E	S
		E	N	I	P		T	U	N	E
G	A	S		L	E	P	E	R		D	I	M
A	I			L	E	S				R	A
P	R	Y		T	E	N	T	S		S	E	T
		E	G	I	S		Y	A	R	N
S	T	A	L	L		L	I	A	N	A
C	A	R	O	L	S		P	E	A	R	E	R
A	R	N	A		E	G	O		T	E	E	M
R	E	S	T		R	E	T		A	D	D	S

Distr. by United Feature Syndicate, Inc. 22

NFL Roundup...

Browns Sock Pats; Rams Take Over Lead

CLEVELAND (AP) — Leroy Kelly scored two touchdowns and ran for over 100 yards Sunday, helping the Cleveland Browns to a 27-7 victory over New England in a National Football League game.

Kelly, who gained 113 yards in 23 carries, caught a seven-yard touchdown pass from quarterback Bill Nelsen and ran one yard for a score as the Browns broke a four-game losing streak, longest in the club's history.

Nelsen, who also threw a 35-yard touchdown pass to Frank Pitts, completed 12 of 23 aerials for 158 yards as he regained the starting job which he relinquished last week to Mike Phipps.

Rookie quarterback Jim Plunkett, who had led the Patriots 4-6 to two straight victories, was intercepted four times. Two of the thefts were by linebacker Billy Andrews, whith his first stopping a New England drive that reached the Browns' 22.

The Browns dominated play early in the game as they built up a 10-0 lead on the pass to Kelly and a 34-yard field goal by Don Cockroft.

*****

CINCINNATI (AP) — Fred Willis scored twice in his first pro start and Virgil Carter rifled two touchdown passes Sunday, powering the Cincinnati Bengals to a 28-13 National Football League triumph over the Houston Oilers.

With Carter back from a shoulder injury, the Bengals atoned for a 10-6 setback three weeks ago at Houston and kept alive their chances of repeating as American Football Conference Central Division champions.

Willis, a 212-pound rookie from Boston College, punched across from one and five yards and piled up 81 in 23 rushes to complement Carter's passing.

*****

CHICAGO (AP) — The Detroit Lions, sacking the Chicago Bears' Bobby Douglass eight times for losses of 62 yards and panicking him into throwing four interceptions, pulled off a 28-3 victory Sunday in a wild, penalty and mistake- filled National Football League game.

Quarterback Greg Landry ran for 52 and 14 yards in a game-opening drive, by the Lions to set up Steve Owers touchdown blast from the 2.

Then Landry became ill, not to return, and Bill Munson replaced him. Landry reportedly was nauseated--and the Soldier Field crowd of 55,049, including 100 old Bear homecomers, probably had their stomachs turned also with the floundering as the game progressed.

*****

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Los Angeles' powerful defense held San Francisco to a pair of field goals and the Rams swept past the 49ers 17-6 Sunday and took the lead in the National Football Conference West.

A sellout crowd of 80,050 and a national television audience saw the Rams knock the 49ers into second place in the division, one-half game back. Los Angeles is now 6-3-1, San Francisco 6-4.

Forty-niner quarterback John Brodie was given a bad time from start to finish and was intercepted four times. Three were by cornerback G. Howard and the other by Jimmy Nettles, who made a leaping catch and returned 29 yards for a touchdown.

It was the interception and touchdown that broke the back of the 49ers with 32 seconds left in the first half. It gave Los Angeles a 14-6 lead and San Francisco never came close again.

*****

OAKLAND (AP) — The Oakland Raiders, trailing San Diego by 14 points at halftime, came from behind Sunday for a 34-33 National Football League victory that was saved by linebacker Dan Connors' end zone interception of a John Hadl pass with 1:11 remaining.

Oakland quarterback Daryle Lamonica threw three touchdown passes including two in the last half, as the Raiders made their record 7-1-2, and maintained a half-game lead over Kansas City in the American Football Conference West.

The Chargers, whose offense was hurt, when running back Mike Garrett left the game with an ankle injury, dropped to 4-6 in the division.

The Raiders, who beat San Diego 34-0 early in the season, trailed 24-10 at the half but moved to a 34-24 lead late in the final quarter on the passing of Lamonica and running of Pete Banaszak and Clarence Davis.

*****

WASHINGTON (AP) — Quarterback Roger Staubach ran 29 yards for a touchdown and Mike Clark kicked two field goals as Dallas blanked Washington 13-0 Sunday to take over the Eastern Division lead in the National Football Conference.

The Cowboys marched 86 yards in 11 plays the first time they had possession.

The only other scores came on Clark's three-pointers from the 26 and 48.

Following the Cowboys' TD, the Washington defense dominated until the opening series in the second half.

The Cowboys had to settle for a field goal after Staubach's 20-yard pass was apparently caught at the three by wide receiver Bob Hayes, who dropped the ball when he stepped into the end zone. An official ruled the pass incomplete.

*****

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Len Dawson spoiled new Denver head Coach Jerry Smith's debut Sunday by throwing three touchdown passes that helped the Kansas City Chiefs to an easy 28-10 National Football League victory over the crippled and outmanned Broncos.

Dawson hit Morris Stroud with a 39-yarder on Kansas City's second possession. The 36-year-old quarterback came back four minutes later with a 69-yard strike that rookie Elmo Wright speared out of the chilly air at the Denver 40 and hauled into the end zone.

Dawson spiraled a 12-yard end zone pass in the third quarter to Jim Otis, who made a one-handed catch. Dawson completed 11 of 19 throws for 294 yards before departing with 12 minutes remaining.

*****

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP) — Defensive back Charles West set up Minnesota's first touchdown by returning a short field goal attempt 61 yards and the Vikings went on to defeat the New Orleans Saints 23-10 before 83,130 fans in a National Football League game Sunday.

The Saints and Vikings matched rugged defenses through most of the first three quarters, but quarterback Bob Lee, starting his first regular season game for the Vikings, skirted right end with a four-yard touchdown run with 4:26 left in the third period. The score came on the third play after West snared a 53-yard field goal attempt by Charlie Durkee and returned it 61 yards to the Saint 30.

The Vikings added another touchdown after driving 70 yards in ten plays early in the fourth period, with running back Clint Jones getting the touchdown from four yards out.

*****

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Bob Davis tossed two touchdown passes and Bobby Howfield booted a pair of field goals Sunday as the New York Jets defeated Buffalo, 20-7, and handed the winless Bills their tenth loss of the National Football League season.

For Buffalo, it was a game of mistakes and, at times, comedy for the 41,577 chilled fans. Starting quarterback Dennis Shaw was intercepted four times, one theft setting up New York's go-ahead field goal and another its second touchdown.

*****

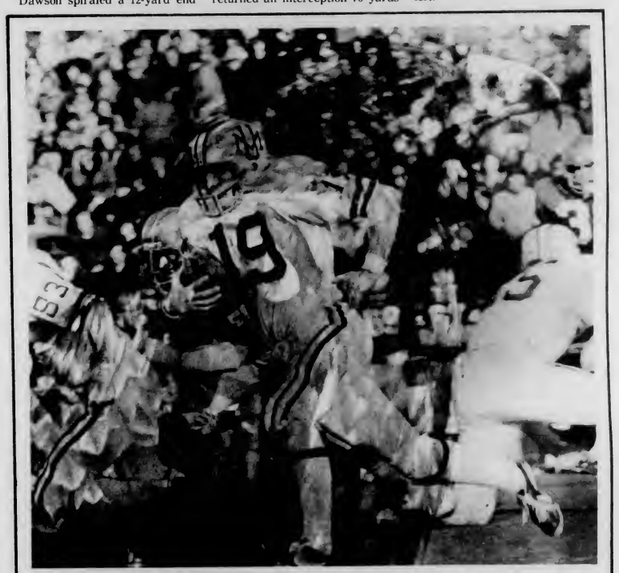
The Bills started out strongly, moving the ball from their own 26 to New York's 41 in seven plays the first time they had the ball.

Shaw then hurled a 41-yard scoring pass to Marlin Briscoe. Instead of carrying the ball into the end zone, Briscoe was spilled at the goal line by the Jets' John Dockery. The ball sailed from Briscoe's hands and tumbled out of the end zone, with the officials ruling that the play was legitimate.

*****

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Defensive back John Rowser returned an interception 70 yards for a touchdown after a pass on a fake field goal and Prestorf Pearson set up another score with a 77-yard kickoff return as the Pittsburgh Steelers defeated the New York Giants 17-13 Sunday in a National League Football game.

Giant quarterback Fran Tarkenton lobbed a 26-yard touchdown pass to Ken Houston in the first quarter and Pete Gogolak booted field goals of 25 and 27 yards to give the Giants the edge.



Then Pearson returned the second half kickoff 77 yards up the middle. Five plays later, quarterback Terry Bradshaw hit Ron Shanklin with a four-yard scoring pass to put the Steelers ahead to stay.

*****

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Pete Liske whipped a five-yard touchdown pass to Les Bouggess and Ben Hawkins scored on a five-yard fumble recovery in the fourth period, helping the Philadelphia Eagles past the St. Louis in a 37-20 National Football League game Sunday.

Liske, stymied by Cardinal defenders through three quarters, made connections with Bouggess for the deciding touchdown after cornerback Al Nelson returned a short Cardinal field goal try 49 yards to midfield late in the third quarter.

The former Denver signal caller, after building a 30-20 lead with the aerial, then hit wide receiver Harold Jackson for the icing on the cake with less than seven minutes left.

SYMBOLIC DOMINANCE: BC's live mascot is superimposed over UMass split-end Steve Schubert. We think the picture symbolizes Eagle dominance over the Redmen. Look hard, the Eagle is there--now, if it weren't for the lemon drop, right Barb? (Photo by Barbara Brecher)

Tomorrow Night
At Curry Hicks Cage
Charity Hoop Game
Varsity Vs. Frosh
7:30

Join us for Thanksgiving Dinner
at the Lord Jeff.
$5.50 per person . . .
children under 12 $3.50
The Lord Jeffery
30 Boltwood Ave. 253-2576
AMHERST, MASS.
RAOUL DIETRICH, INNKEEPER

For
SQUASH BALLS & SQUASH RACKETS
See
A.J. Hastings
Newsdealer & Stationer
54 S. Pleasant St. Amherst

Quicksilver
57 North Pleasant Street
LIVE MUSIC
Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday Nites
OLDIES NITE
Monday
STONES NITE
Wednesday
RESTAURANT
Open 24 Hours

Same Old Story

B.C. Blasts Redmen

By DAN KAMAL

It was the same old story.

Boston College was bigger, stronger, and faster, and although UMass made a game of it for the first half, it was only a matter of time before the Eagle superiority wore down completely the dull edge of Redmen resistance. The result was a 35-0 Eagle rout at Alumni Field in Chestnut Hill.

Piel Pennington who threw the football nearly 50 times in the ball game and had continuous pressure put on him all day, said it best:

"BC is bigger, stronger, faster. I don't know who was hitting me out there, but I've never had such pressure from a defensive line."

Add to the job turned in by the defensive line a brilliant performance by the Eagle linebackers and a solid day's work from the defensive secondary, and the shutout is explained.

When John Hulecki spoke of the depth of the BC squad last week, he was telling a painful truth. The depth was very much in evidence, offensively and defensively. Consider that Ed Rideout, the Eagles' chief offensive threat didn't see any action because of an injury. He wasn't needed.

Boston College took the opening kickoff and drove deep into UMass territory. But split-end Mel Briggs was really popped by Bill DeFlavio, after taking a look-in pass from quarterback Ray Rippmann, and fumbled the ball. Doug Winslow recovered for the Redmen, and the visitors started to move.

From his own 14, Pennington hit Steve Schubert for a first down at the 29. After another first-down pass to Schubert, UMass stalled and Jack O'Neil went back into punt formation. However, he faked the punt and calmly fired a pass over the middle to Hulecki for another first down.

This kept the drive alive, and it carried to the BC 38 before stalling. A 50-yard field goal attempt by Dennis Gagnon was short. It was apparent from this drive that the Redmen were going nowhere on the ground.

BC came right back for the first score of the game, a 45-yard field goal by John Kline. The key play in the drive was a 37-yard blast off tackle by running back Bill Thomas. This score came at 11:11 of the first quarter and it was 3-0.

About seven minutes later, Kline duplicated his feat with another 45-yarder to give the hosts a 6-0 lead.

Shortly thereafter, quarterback Gary Marangi came in to replace Rippmann. After the Redmen had sustained a minor drive that again resulted in a missed field goal try by Gagnon (this one from 55 yards out), Marangi drove his team 80 yards in 10 plays. The sophomore displayed a fine passing arm as he threw for more than 50 yards to Briggs in the series. Tom Bougus capped the drive with a one-yard scoring plunge, and a conversion pass to Briggs made it 14-0, the score at the half.

With second half barely underway, the Eagles scored again. UMass couldn't move after taking the second half kickoff and O'Neil was back to punt. BC linebacker Larry Malloy blocked the kick and it was picked off in mid-air by another linebacker Dave Ellison who brought it in from five yards out for the touchdown.

A 41-yard TD run by Thomas about midway through the third stanza gave the Eagles a four touchdown lead, and they closed out the scoring moments later when a pass intended for Hulecki glanced off his outstretched hands into the welcome hands of linebacker John McElgunn who scampered 30 yards for the score.

Meanwhile, UMass had its best scoring chance of the game early in the fourth when they moved to the BC seven on first down. However, a run and three passes later, the Redmen were still at the seven.

A subdued Dick MacPherson said after the game, "We played much better against Holy Cross (BC's rival next week) than we did today, but BC is by far the best team we've played this year."

It's the same old story.

NOWHERE—UMass fullback Dick Cronin (35) is stopped for no gain by BC's Joe Wappel (76) and Dennis Wolfe (80). The Eagle defensive line played a superb game, putting constant pressure on Piel Pennington and halting the Redmen running game to a paltry 33 yards. The bowl-hopeful Eagles trounced UMass 35-0. (Photo by Barbara Brecher)

	BC	UMass
FIRST DOWNS—Total	25	17
Rushing	12	5
Passing	12	12
Penalties	1	0
RUSHING—Attempts	48	54
Yards gained	277	87
Yards lost	16	54
Net yards gained	261	33
PASSING—Yards gained	213	255
Passes attempted	29	50
Completed	15	19
Had intercepted	2	3
TOTAL OFFENSE—Yards	77	84
Plays passing & rushing	77	84
PUNTING—No. of punts		6
Punting average	2.72	31.1
Punts returned	6	3
KICKOFFS—No. returned	1	7
Yards returned	27	141
PENALTIES—Number	5	8
Yards penalized	29	80
FUMBLES—Number	4	1
Fumbles lost	3	1

SCORING SUMMARY ..

Boston College	3	11	7	0	35
Massachusetts	0	0	0	0	0

Dolphins Stun Colts

MIAMI (AP)-Garo Yepremian kicked a 20-yard field goal with 6:50 left Sunday and title-hungry Miami edged Baltimore's Super Bowl champions 17-14 in a National Football League game before a frenzied crowd of 75,312 in the Orange Bowl.

The Dolphins leaped to a 1 1/2 game lead over Baltimore in the American Conference East.

Earl Morrall, taking over after veteran John Unitas was hurt trying to throw a block, marched the Colts to a tying touchdown before Miami boomed within range for Yepremian's field goal.

Unitas marshalled a magnificent 78-yard drive, hitting five of five passes for 55 yards, as Baltimore took a 7-0 lead in the first period. That stood up through the half.

Jim Kiick cracked for 19 yards to ignite Miami's game-tying drive and the former Wyoming star scored on a one-yard run to make it 7-7.

Linebacker Doug Swift intercepted a Unitas pass on the next series, returning the ball 11 yards to the Baltimore 10 as the largest regular season crowd in Dolphin history went crazy.

Bob Griese zipped a 10-yard scoring pass to former Green Bay tight end Marv Fleming on the next play and the Dolphins had taken a 14-7 lead with two touchdowns in 107 seconds.

Unitas was knocked out of action on the same play that sent wide receiver Ray Perkins to the dressing room with a severe concussion.

Charlotte Lettis: New England Champ

MDC Staff

Charlotte Lettis won the women's New England cross country championships with a record breaking time on Saturday. She out-distanced two very experience cross country runners to chop a whopping 19 seconds off the course record held by Olympian Francie Johnson. Charlotte posted a time of 12:42 for the 2.5 mile course over the grounds of the Stigmatine Father Seminary in So. Natick, Mass.

Three competitors took the lead early in the race. Francie Johnson lead by a few feet at the half mile mark with Janet Bristol and Charlotte a tick behind. Francie Johnson represented the U.S. in Mexico City in the 800 meters and Janet Bristol finished 5th in the World cross country championships held in Spain last year. After some exchanges of places Charlotte took the lead at the 1 3/4 mile point and lead Janet Bristol away from the fading Francie Johnson. With a half mile and the course's only hill left in the race Charlotte accelerated away from Bristol and won by a decisive 100 yards.

Charlotte's team, Liberty A.C., won the team championships so the 20 year old sophomore theater major came home with 2 gold meadlez medals.

Tom Derderian only managed bronze and silver medals in the Men's open A.A.U. cross country championships. He finished 6th place running 10,000 meters (6.2 miles) in 30:49 and paced his team, the North Medford Club, to a second place finish. Chris Chambers ran 13th and also got a bronze medal. Rich Tashjian ran 39th in 33:20.

Chambers and Derderian said after the race that they ran their best races all season. Charlotte also got into this race finishing about 60th out of 140 in spite of a disturbing encounter with the irate men's A.A.U. officials. She plans to run in the women's nationals in Cleveland next week.

Charlotte Lettis
Champion

Intramurals

BASKETBALL

COURT	TIME	TEAMS
1	6:15	Monuments vs. "C" Crushers
2		Bulldozers vs. Senators
3		Patriots vs. Colts
4		Leopards vs. Jaguars
5		Flush vs. Destroyers
6		ZSD's vs. Deacons
1	7:15	Wilburs vs. Gypsies
2		Dirty Dozen vs. #Balls
3		Hoojs vs. Vikings
4		Racoons vs. Risers
5		Crabs vs. Studs
6		Bunch vs. Bogarts
1	8:15	Vols vs. Raiders
2		Boozers vs. TEP "B"
3		Starters vs. Burg
4		Eagles vs. Redwoods
5		Jokers vs. Pipers
6		Rams vs. Hemlocks
1	9:15	Bucks vs. Stains
2		Bunker vs. Mouse
3		JM's vs. Martines
4		Guiness vs. Marauders
5		Plaque vs. Bones
6		Scups vs. Holes
1	10:15	Hicks vs. Grants
2		Maroons vs. Hickory

The Physical Education department announces that ice hockey G 90 PE 100 will be offered January 27th thru March 24, 1972 for 1 credit. Former experience in the sport is required. For further information see Russell Kidd, assistant hockey coach, in Boyden. Lab fee is $20.

New England's Largest College Daily

The Massachusetts
Daily Collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

Weather: "From his undergraduate days as editor of the Harvard Crimson, Richard Caramel had desired to write."

VOLUME XCIX, ISSUE 53 UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 23, 1971

Exclusive: Sarge Wants Bromery

See page three

Crunchy or creamy, there's no way it's gonna move this week. An informal survey was taken last semester concerning peanut butter preference in which it was ascertained that slim people preferred the creamy style and those of a more corpulent nature preferred the chunky variety. Yet they all agreed that Peter Pan was tops in any category. (Photo credit by J. Van Lewicke)

Peter Pan Out; Negotiations Continuing

Bulletin: As of midnight Peter Pan Bus Lines was out on strike. Last reports at 2:15 a.m. indicated that though service was still suspended negotiations were continuing.

By ROBERT MEDEIROS

At the time of the Collegian's deadline, a vote was being taken by union members to consider the last management offer before a strike would be called by union members against Peter Pan Bus Lines. Students should contact the bus ticket office at the Student Union for the latest developments.

If a strike is called sixty-eight drivers and mechanics from Peter Pan Bus Lines will have walked off the job at midnight eliminating direct bus service from Springfield to Boston.

It is expected that as many as 1200 UMass students who have planned to leave the University today and tomorrow for Thanksgiving vacation will be affected by the strike.

The strike will also immediately curtail bus service from Springfield to Amherst and Springfield to Bradley International Airport. Bus Service will continue from Amherst to Springfield.

Alternate routes which include Peter Pan Bus Lines and Western Mass. Bus Lines will remain open. These routes will enable students to make the trip to Boston with a minimum of hardship.

A Peter Pan representative said that the alternate route will take an extra 45 minutes to an hour compared to the direct Springfield to Boston route. He said that the passenger instead of taking a bus at the Springfield terminal directly to Boston will instead take a bus to Hartford. The passenger will change buses at the Hartford terminal then head directly towards Boston.

It is also possible that there will be increased bus service on the Western Mass. Bus Lines today and tomorrow. Students will be able to take a Western Mass. bus from the Campus Center Garage to Worcester. From the Worcester terminal the passenger will be able to change buses and take a B&W bus directly to Boston.

Another possibility for students is the idea of car pools. Dean Field suggested that many of the hardship problems caused by the bus strike could be alleviated if students provide the services of their cars to others. Car pools should be organized at the Head of Residence level if the idea of car pools is to be successful on a University-wide basis.

Negotiations between Division 1512 of the Amalgamated Transportation Workers Union and Peter Pan have been taking place for two months. The contract between management and union expired on October 13th. State mediators have been taking part in talks between management and union but no side has been willing to predict success in the talks.

According to the Hampshire Gazette, union president Donald Whitney said, "We're as far apart now as we were Oct. 14 when contract talks began. The union is demanding a 5.5 per cent increase, four paid holidays a year, and five paid sick days a year; Peter Pan is offering a 3 per cent pay increase and refusing to consider paid holidays and paid sick leave, which the company calls "fringe benefits."

The Hampshire Gazette reported that the Peter Pan contract dispute revolves around the hourly wage and the total yearly wage of the company's 55 drivers. Peter Pan officials said that their drivers earn as much as $12,000 a year which is substantially more than bus drivers earn in many other parts of the country.

Union officials replied that the drivers earn $12,000 a year because they are required to work as much as 70 hours. "There's a huge amount of overtime," Whitney explained. "It's nothing for a driver to be expected to do two round-trips a day from Amherst to Boston.

"We're working seven days a week sometimes," Whitney said. "We're only guaranteed two days off a month. Sure we can make $12,000 a year, but I'd like the company to say how many hours a year a man has to work to make that kind of money."

On The Inside:

- Sylvan — See page two
- New Teacher Evaluation — See page three
- Peter Panning It — See page six

Non Student Arrested On Robbery Charge

A non-student was arrested outside of Patterson House yesterday afternoon and charged with robbery on five different counts.

The suspect gave his residence as Brockton, Mass. His name has not been released.

At 3:45 p.m. yesterday the police received a report from Patterson that a man armed with a chain was holding up students in the dormitory. According to the Campus Police the suspect was arrested at 3:57 emerging from the dormitory.

In addition to the five counts of armed robbery, the accused was charged with ten counts of assault with a dangerous weapon, five counts of attempted larceny, and possession of a hypodermic needle. At this time the hypodermic is being checked for narcotics.

No students were injured during the incident.

The suspect will be arraigned in Northampton District Court this morning.

The Continuing Story Of Sylvan

The Sylvan Area.

By DENNIS FOLEY

Sylvan is wrestling with several major problems. Student frustration and feelings of futility appear to contribute to the complexity of the situation, as does what appears to be poor planning on the part of the University.

Residents of Cashin, Brown, and McNamara have a number of very real gripes. The dorms are officially termed co-ed, although only 19.8% of the students are female and some floors have no girls whatsoever. The males are disproportionately freshmen, while most of the girls are upperclassmen.

Student resentment came to a head last Wednesday when about 50 residents demonstrated at the Student Senate in support of a resolution to admonish the Housing Office for misrepresenting the Sylvan area to students. It was drafted by Skip Casper, a freshman Senator and a resident of Brown House, and he hopes its passage will mark the beginning of action by the Senate to help solve the situation.

Concerned individuals and groups are trying desperately to cope with the conditions. A twelve member Co-ed Committee has been formed and a coordinated effort is being put forth with the three house governments, the Area Improvement Committee and the Area Director's staff (this includes the Human Relations Center in McNamara House). They hope to attract women to the area with publicity emphasizing the wealth of opportunity available at Sylvan.

These are more than just growing pains. It appears Sylvan has become the victim of mismanagement at high levels. According to Casper, recreational, social and Food Service facilities are inadequate.

Who's responsible for this mess?

The concept of guilt is complex, and both Casper and Phil Lacomb, an administrative assistant at area Student Affairs, recognize the Housing Office's apparent willingness to help. Bruce Cochran, the Housing Office director has demonstrated concern, they explained, although the extent to which he would "stick his neck out", was questioned by Casper.

Both Lacomb and Casper agreed the Housing Office was the victim of the University system. They explained the student is considered last in some cases. Consequently, Sylvan has become a dumping ground for excess students, and whether this could have been avoided is a moot and somewhat academic question.

University students are not entirely blameless. With the recent trend toward co-ed dorms, there have become fewer places for men to live since most co-ed dorms were former male dorms and most female dorms have remained so.

Casper plans to propose a study by the Student Matters Committee of the Student Senate to determine the feasibility of converting one or more female dorms to male. This would increase the availability of women and absorb much of the excess female population.

Casper explained he was trying to keep the issue before the Student Senate, but admitted, "there isn't a hell of a lot they can do. Hopefully they will feel a little more generous and give us some money to work with," he commented, "then we'd have something to start with".

Despite these hindrances Sylvan residents have begun many projects that should interest students considering residence there.

It appears students are determined to solve their problems, and at Sylvan, they may succeed.

Draft Counselor's Corner

Check Your Number And Play The Lottery Game

By GILBERT J. SALK

Do yourself a favor. Check the list of birthdates and lottery numbers included here: If your date of birth is listed, and your number is 126 or above, you should play the lottery game. All you need to do is write to your board, tell them that you want to give up your deferment and be reclassified I-A effective immediately. Sign the letter. Keep a copy of it for your own records. Take the letter to the post office and tell the clerk that you want to send it certified mail, return receipt requested.

The draft board will have to sign for the letter, and the post office will send the receipt back to you. Staple it to your copy of the letter, and save it. It is your proof that you sent the letter and that the draft board received it.

As long as the board gets the letter on or before December 31, you will be in this year's pool, and on January first of next year you will be safe! Yes, Safe!

Do not follow this procedure if your date of birth (i.e., the year you were born) is not on the list. Do not follow the procedure if your number is 125 or lower. Do not follow the procedure if you want to conduct an exercise in paranoia and not trust the draft. The chances are that the number will be higher next year and your chances of getting drafted will increase, but it's your choice.

The number 125 is a firm national maximum. No draft board can legally draft anyone with a number above 125. If you get into this year's pool with a higher number, you only need to be I-A for the last day of the year, and that will be your year of eligibility.

Do it now! Don't wait until the Christmas mail rush, because your letter might get lost. You are entitled to drop any deferment other than a I-Y or a IV-F. Do it!

And take a copy of this column home for your friends. They might not have a draft counselor handy, and they will be grateful for the chance to be thankful for something other than too much turkey.

Remember Vietnam. Remember Cambodia. Remember Kent and Jackson State. Remember Nixon and Agnew, Mitchell and Rhenquist. Remember Attica and Soledad. Remember Julie and David. Fuck the draft.

PEACE.

BIRTHDAYS AND LOTTERY NUMBERS

To learn your draft lottery number from this table, find the column for your month and year of birth and go down that column to the number opposite the day you were born.

Day	January 1944-1950	January 1951	February 1944-1950	February 1951	March 1944-1950	March 1951	April 1944-1950	April 1951	May 1944-1950	May 1951	June 1944-1950	June 1951	July 1944-1950	July 1951	August 1944-1950	August 1951	September 1944-1950	September 1951	October 1944-1950	October 1951	November 1944-1950	November 1951	December 1944-1950	December 1951	Day
1	305	133	86	335	108	14	32	224	330	179	249	65	93	104	111	326	220	283	359	306	19	243	129	347	1
2	159	190	144	304	29	77	271	216	298	96	228	94	330	322	45	102	161	161	125	191	34	205	328	321	2
3	251	336	297	196	267	267	83	297	40	171	301	135	115	30	261	279	49	183	244	134	248	294	187	110	3
4	215	99	210	94	275	117	81	37	276	240	20	42	279	59	145	300	232	251	202	296	58	39	160	306	4
5	101	53	214	97	293	299	299	124	364	301	28	233	188	287	54	64	82	295	24	166	310	286	56	27	5
6	224	285	347	16	139	296	203	312	155	268	110	153	327	164	114	251	6	21	87	78	76	245	10	136	6
7	306	158	91	25	122	141	147	142	35	29	86	169	50	362	168	263	8	265	234	131	51	72	12	162	7
8	199	116	181	127	213	79	312	267	321	105	366	7	13	106	48	49	184	198	283	45	97	119	166	323	8
9	194	53	338	167	317	278	219	223	197	357	335	352	277	1	106	126	268	313	342	360	80	176	43	114	9
10	335	101	216	46	323	190	218	165	65	146	206	78	284	158	21	359	71	130	220	160	282	63	41	204	10
11	329	144	150	227	136	317	14	178	37	295	134	355	248	174	324	230	158	286	257	84	46	103	59	73	11
12	221	152	68	262	300	24	346	89	133	210	272	51	15	287	143	320	242	314	72	79	66	256	314	19	12
13	318	300	182	13	250	241	124	148	286	353	69	342	42	349	307	68	175	238	138	92	126	272	163	151	13
14	238	71	4	260	354	12	231	202	178	40	356	363	331	156	196	105	1	247	294	115	127	11	26	348	14
15	17	75	89	261	189	187	273	192	130	344	190	278	322	273	103	270	113	291	171	319	131	362	320	87	15
16	121	136	212	334	166	258	148	31	55	175	274	229	120	284	44	329	267	139	254	34	107	197	96	41	16
17	235	84	189	345	33	220	260	264	112	213	73	289	99	241	154	348	356	200	298	290	143	8	304	315	17
18	140	186	292	307	332	319	90	138	278	180	341	214	190	90	141	109	246	333	5	340	148	280	126	206	18
19	58	188	25	331	200	189	336	62	75	156	104	163	227	318	311	83	177	226	241	74	205	252	240	249	19
20	280	211	302	30	239	170	345	118	188	242	360	43	187	130	344	69	63	261	192	196	185	98	135	218	20
21	196	129	265	213	354	346	62	8	350	225	60	113	27	356	291	50	204	68	243	5	156	35	70	181	21
22	287	133	290	271	265	289	318	256	336	199	247	307	153	282	339	250	160	66	117	36	9	255	53	194	22
23	118	48	87	351	356	281	292	299	319	222	109	64	172	172	116	10	119	206	201	339	162	193	162	219	23
24	59	177	296	226	258	308	3	244	31	22	358	236	23	360	36	274	195	237	196	149	230	81	30	2	24
25	52	87	179	235	343	298	351	328	361	26	127	327	67	3	296	364	149	197	178	17	132	23	84	361	25
26	92	140	366	96	170	121	340	137	357	148	22	306	303	47	245	91	18	93	7	184	309	52	173	80	26
27	356	173	206	66	268	254	74	286	296	122	64	55	286	85	352	232	253	334	264	318	47	168	78	259	27
28	77	346	299	234	223	96	362	65	306	5	222	216	66	190	167	248	257	300	94	28	281	324	123	128	28
29	249	277	286	....	362	147	191	111	326	61	353	154	270	4	61	32	151	308	229	259	99	100	18	145	29
30	164	312	....	....	217	88	208	358	103	290	209	312	287	16	353	167	216	18	38	332	174	67	3	192	30
31	311	60	....	....	30	58	....	....	213	350	....	....	198	221	11	275	....	....	79	311	....	....	100	126	31

...And In The Beginning...

Oyez! Oyez! Know ye by all these presents that Poor Richard will call unto himself all his worthy and appointed staff members for the purpose of deciding what to do for the Christmas extravaganza. So if Frank Johnson can take his nead out of his earphones, Ken Sulin can drag himself away from Chris, Frank Baglione can climb the stairs to the office, Steve Feld can leave the bootlegs alone, we'd like to see them. And if the rest of you; Alan Chapman, Jim Lavrakas, Lloyd Adalyst, Nat Hayden, Mike McCormick, Pete Forget, David Green, Dan Murphy, David Richkopf are free, then you are hereby ordered to the office also. New members are welcome. Sunday, November 28 at 7:30 in the MDC office.

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

Office of the DAILY COLLEGIAN are on the second floor of the Student Union on the University campus, zip code 01002. Phones are 545-2550 (news), 545-0344 (sports), and 549-1311 (editor).

Second class postage paid at Amherst, the DAILY COLLEGIAN publishes five times weekly Monday through Friday during the academic year except during vacation and exam periods; three or four times a week following a vacation or exam period or when a holiday falls within a week. Accepted for mailing under the authority of the act of March 8, 1879 as amended by the act of June 11, 1943. Subscription rates are $6.00 per semester, $10.00 per year.

U-MASS SKI CLUB
presents
CHARLES PURINTON of the Maple Valley Ski Area also info on Dec. 4th Day Trip to Killington Ski Area Meeting Tonight, 8 p.m., Mahar Aud.

Quicksilver Tonite!

ROOM TO MOVE
Campus Drug
Drop-In Center
CALL 5-0400
24 HOURS A DAY
7 DAYS A WEEK

State House Post?

Bromery Still Number One

By RICHARD C. HANSON

Acting Chancellor Randolph Bromery is still "number one" on Governor Sargent's list of candidates for the vacant position of State Secretary of Education, a post Bromery has already declined once.

The Governor, according to several excellent sources, is "holding the job open" for Bromery, who is also the only announced candidate for the permanent Chancellorship of UMass in Amherst.

"Governor Sargent wants Bromery", one source said.

Bromery has been under consideration for the chief Educational office in the Commonwealth for the past several months. In October Bromery sent a letter to the Governor stating that he had "decided to withdraw from consideration by the Governor because this is a critical time for the University." Even though the position Bromery now holds at UMass is a temporary one, he "thought it best" to stay at UMass.

Bromery was named to the position of Acting Chancellor of the Amherst campus by the Board of Trustees after Oswald Tippo resigned on October 3 this year. Just one year ago today, Dr. Bromery was named Vice-Chancellor for Student Affairs.

Responding to Bromery's rejection of the position that the Governor had offered so vehemently, Lt. Governor Donald Dwight stated on October 15 that "We have acceded to Dr. Bromery's request. However, we are not ruling out the possibility that he could be convinced to accept appointment to a higher government service in the future."

At that time, Dwight said that another candidate for the position would be named "very soon". Nobody suspected that the meaning of Dwight's "not ruling out" a Bromery acceptance in the future would be translated into a continued effort on the part of Governor Sargent to get Bromery now.

Reportedly, Bromery is very aware of the wishes of the Governor, but is not ready to make another decision to accept or reject. Bromery is said to be concerned about the possibility that he won't be given the permanent Chancellorship, though.

One administrator commented that it is Bromery's "style" to keep as many "options" as possible open. Bromery conceivably could have received word that the Governor still wanted him and responded that since his proposal wasn't permanent and he might be available for the Secretary's job.

It is expected that the Governor's persistence in recruiting Bromery will put added pressure on the now functioning Chancellor's Search Committee to act quickly if they want to have Bromery as Chancellor.

The Secretary of Education post is the only one of thirteen cabinet positions named under a reorganization of the state's executive branch. The Governor yesterday named a Secretary of Elderly Affairs.

It is widely known that the Governor has fought hard and made deals with several legislators, notably Speaker of the House David Bartley, in an effort to give the cabinet posts adequate staffing.

Sargent Swears In New Secretary

BOSTON (AP)-Gov. Francis W. Sargent today swore in Jack Leff as his cabinet secretary of elder affairs and Frank J. Manning as assistant secretary.

During the swearing-in ceremonies in the House of Representatives chamber, Sargent also announced the transfer of several agencies to the elderly secretariat.

Sargent said that by executive order he was transferring the Office of Services to Older Americans from the state Department of Community Affairs to the elder affairs office.

When the 10-member cabinet was created under the state government reorganization act, the secretary of elder affairs was the only secretariat without any state agencies under it.

Sargent announced the transfer of the Governor's Commission on Elderly Affairs and the state program of assistance to local counsels on aging to the elder affairs office.

He also announced that he has notified the Department of Health, Education and Welfare that he has designated the office of elder affairs as the official agency to receive all federal funds under Title III of the Older Americans Act.

"With these actions that I have taken, we leave no doubt that we mean to make the secretary for elder affairs an important and equal member of our new cabinet," Sargent said.

By executive order, Sargent said he was directing the secretary to establish a home care program for the state's elderly and handicapped citizens.

New T.E. Program To Be Adopted

By DON BISHOP

The story of Teacher Evaluation on this campus has been one of controversy and debate, almost since the program's inception one year ago. Criticism of the concept itself, and of the procedure used in evaluation, has come from student and faculty quarters.

While the majority of students and a considerable number of faculty now agree that the practice of Teacher Evaluation should be retained, the debate goes on surrounding the question of what system should be used.

The Office of the Provost is this year undertaking the task of gathering and studying recommendations and proposals for a new program. This Program would replace the one which was used last year, and is still currently being used.

These recommendations and proposals will largely be coming from the various academic departments who, along with the Student Senate, have been requested to submit their proposals by January, 1972.

Informed sources say that after the Provost has received the proposals from those groups that have expressed interest in this question, he will appoint a Committee to sift through all the various recommendations. This Committee will then come up with a final proposal for the new Teacher Evaluation Program.

This final, compromise proposal will hopefully be acceptable to students, faculty and administration. The Provost holds the final power of accepting, amending, or rejecting this proposal.

The recommendations that the Student Senate has decided to "endorse in principle", are those of the Ad Hoc Committee on Teacher Evaluation. This committee, which came out of the Senate, submitted its report to the Senate last Wednesday evening. After considerable debate, the Senate voted favorably on this report, (the summary of which is contained elsewhere on this page) and it has been sent along to the Provost's Office.

Nick Apostola, Chairman of the Student Senate's Academic Affairs Committee, revealed that this summary of the Ad Hoc Committee's report has been partially modified by the Academic Affairs Committee. One modification came on point 2, where Academic Affairs added the phrase: "or a similar professionally designed, machine scorable, multi-factor instrument."

Senator Apostola made special note of the provisions making it mandatory that each course of each professor be evaluated, and the results be made public after one year for an instructor with tenure, and within two years for those without tenure. He also stressed the recommended establishment of an Office of Teacher Evaluation, along with a Review and Appeal Board.

Summary Of The Ad Hoc Report

1) The University of Massachusetts at Amherst should institute a comprehensive professionally designed and professionally-run system of teacher evaluation. (Recommendation #1 directly from report of TE Committee)

2) The Illinois Course Evaluation Questionnaire, or a similar professionally designed, machine-scorable, multi-factor instrument, should be adopted as the basic evaluation instrument.

3) The use of the Illinois evaluation questionnaire or that of any other questionnaire ultimately adopted, administered in a standardized manner, should be mandatory for all sections of all courses.

4) The processed results of the evaluation instrument utilized should be reported to each instructor for his private use. For instructors without tenure, the data should be released in all cases after the Faculty member has been previously evaluated for four semesters. For faculty members with tenure, the data should be released in all cases after the instructor has been previously evaluated for two semesters.

5) Individual instructors and departments should be encouraged to develop additional supplementary items for use, with any "additional items" option that the evaluation instrument may incorporate. Such additional items might take the form of either additional multi-factor questions or open-ended essay items. Responses to these additional or essay questions should not be reported to an instructor until after semester grades have been filed with the Registrar.

In addition, each department and each instructor should be strongly encouraged to introduce a short, completely essay questionnaire, independent of the principal instrument to be used within the first month of a semester, the results of which would be immediately reported to, and used only by, the individual section instructor. It would be the purpose of this early-semester instrument to report to the individual instructor certain gross observations about his teaching effectiveness sufficiently early in the term so as to permit attempts at change or refomulation of pedagogical techniques.

6) There should be established an Office for the Evaluation and Improvement of Teaching which would be responsible for the administration and interpretation of that evaluation instrument actually adopted, for conducting continuing improvement of that instrument and/or developing a new instrument if this is determined to be necessary, for publishing that report of evaluation results which will incorporate (in annual edition) those evaluations released for publication, and for the development of a broad range of services to help faculty members improve and further develop their teaching skills. Since a major portion of teacher evaluation is evaluation of the effectiveness.

7) There should be introduced Teacher Growth Grants, similar to the present research-oriented Faculty Growth Grants, which will permit instructors to devote substantial blocks of time to the development of their skill and the improvement of their courses.

8) There should be established with the Office of Teacher Evaluation a Review and Appeal Board, composed of students, faculty members and administrators, in equal number, which shall meet on a regular basis. This Board will review and be responsible for policy decisions of the Office for Evaluation and Improvement of Teaching, will report to the faculty and student Senates, and will hear specific grievances from those affected by policy implementation.

Jonathan Edwards
in Concert
December 7

Ivory Billiard Room
23 Pleasant St.
Northampton
11 - 4½x9 TABLES
Est 50 years
2nd floor
over Fabric World

SENIORS
Will You Remember the Day You Graduate?
You Might --- If You Help Plan It.
Senior Committee meetings will take place on:
Tuesday, November 30
Monday, December 6
Thursday, December 9
All meetings start at 7 p.m. in Rm. 905-909, C.C.

In The Nation And The World

Kent Trial Opens; Protesters Present

RAVENNA, Ohio (AP)-As protestors defied a court order and demonstrated outside, a trial began Monday for a man charged with riot and assaulting a fireman in the May 1970 disorders at Kent State University.

Jerry Rupe, 23, was the first of 25 persons indicted by a special state grand jury to go on trial in connection with the disorders. He was indicted in October, 1970, on charges of first-degree riot, assaulting and striking a fireman and interfering with a fireman May 2, 1970, when fire destroyed an ROTC building.

Outside the Portage County Courthouse, about 15 college-age protestors briefly demonstrated and then heeded police orders to disperse. Some entered the courthouse to witness the trial.

Five men and three women were tentatively seated on the jury. Selections will continue this morning.

Judge Edwin W. Jones issued an order at the outset of the trial banning rallies or protest at the courthouse.

Police made no attempt to remove or arrest the demonstrators, some of whom held signs that read "Stop The Trial," "Burn the Indictments" and "Portage County Justice is Sick."

Demonstrators threw a few snowballs as they walked in 10-inch snow, but there were no other incidents.

Jones' order stated that all "picketing, parading, leafletting, demonstrating, passing out handbills, use of a sound truck or bullhorn...with the intent of interfering with, obstructing, or impeding the administration of justice, or with the intent of influencing any judge, juror, witness or court officer, is hereby prohibited."

Dave Scribner, a New York attorney representing five of those indicted, filed an affidavit with the court charging "there is bias and prejudice on the part of Judge Edwin Jones and that the judge is otherwise disqualified to sit in such cases."

By Legislators

Court Bans Sex Bias

WASHINGTON (AP)-In a landmark ruling the Supreme Court Monday unanimously barred arbitrary discrimination against women by legislature everywhere in the nation.

The startling decision, announced by Chief Justice Warren E. Burger, was the first by the high court cloaking women with the equal-protection clause of the Constitution, the basis for earlier rulings advancing the rights of Negroes.

Burger said legislatures may treat women differently from men only when the purpose is reasonable.

The decision came in a relatively obscure case from Idaho in which the father and mother of a deceased son had vied for the right to administer his estate of less than $1,000. Under state law the father had been named the administrator.

"We have concluded," Burger said, "that the arbitrary preference established in favor of males by...the Idaho code cannot stand in the face of the 14th Amendment's command that no state deny the equal protection of the law to any person within its jurisdiction."

Melvin Wulf, legal director of the American Civil Liberties Union which filed the brief for Mrs. Reed, said "I am moderately pleased that we won the case, but the pleasure is very qualified because we did not win on the broader grounds."

"Our purpose was to try to get the Supreme Court to declare that sexual discrimination is unconstitutional and they have apparently declined to take that major step," Wulf said. "Please note that the court is made up of seven males. Those male judges have a vested interest. If women had been on the court, we would have seen all sex discrimination declared unconstitutional."

Last month the House passed a proposed amendment to the Constitution designed to prohibit discrimination on account of sex. Key senators disagreed about the impact of the ruling on this legislation.

In Brief...

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)-George Meany, denying that President Nixon was treated rudely at an AFL-CIO convention session last week, has accused the President of trying to contrive a clash for propaganda purposes.

The administration has charged the labor delegates were discourteous when Nixon spoke at the AFL-CIO convention here Friday.

But Meany, the AFL-CIO president, accused the White House of "a little lack of courtesy" of its own. "I still think we have the constitutional right to laugh," Meany said Monday of the 2,000 delegates' behavior during the Nixon speech.

And then...

WASHINGTON (AP)-Secretary of the Treasury John B. Connally declared Monday that the AFL-CIO could damage the anti-inflation effort by refusal to cooperate and accused its president , George Meany, of boorish and arrogant behavior toward President Nixon.

BOSTON (AP)-A U.S. Appeals judge ruled Monday that a City Hall art show which includes a front view of a nude male and a bas relief of a human buttocks is not obscene and may continue as scheduled.

Commenting that he had "rarely seen so much fuss made over so little," Chief Justice Bailey Aldrich said "the exhibitions, as depictions of the human form, are manifestly not obscene."

WASHINGTON (AP)-The Senate Agriculture Committee approved by a slender two-vote margin Monday the nomination of Dr. Earl L. Butz to be scretary of Agriculture, setting the stage for a bitter Senate fight.

In voting 8 to 6 to send the nomination to the Senate floor, the committee ordered the 62-year-old Purdue University dean to sell his agri-business stock.

WASHINGTON (AP)-The White House announced today President Nixon has signed a continuing resolution which keeps the U.S. foreign aid program alive until Dec. 8.

Ah, fond memories of yesteryear. Dick hard at work, getting Hiss and those reds. Saving the country from Communism. What pleasure it brought. (MDC photo by J. McGinniss)

Quicksilver Tonite!

EUROPEAN CINEMA FESTIVAL '71 '72
WFL PRESENTS
ADRIFT
A new film by
JAN KADAR
THE TALKIE CINEMA
NORTHAMPTON CENTER
584 6909

TONIGHT
DON'T MISS
THE RETURN OF John Morgan
at
The English Pub
(Ladies' Night)
9:30 til close
only 25¢

You too can afford to be a good sport!

Come and see the wide selection of Sport Games the UNIVERSITY STORE has to offer.

New South Viet Offensive Meets Little Resistance

SAIGON (AP)-A new South Vietnamese offensive designed to smash the headquarters of three North Vietnamese divisions in eastern Cambodia encountered only light resistance Monday.

By nightfall, field commanders reported 36 North Vietnamese troops killed in small, scattered clashes north of Highway 7, about 90 miles northeast of Saigon.

No South Vietnamese casualties were reported.

At least 5,000 South Vietnamese infantrymen and part of a 150-vehicle armored brigade were committed to the initial phase of the operation. They were strengthened by 2,500 Cambodian troops.

As many as 10,000 more South Vietnamese troops were taken to the border in overland conveys to back up those already moving into action.

The drive could open a new 55-mile front deep in the rubber plantation and jungle region between Chup and Snuol. It is expected to last about a month.

Associated Press photographer Huynh Cong Ut, saw 2,000 South Vietnamese troops maneuver along the Saigon-to-Phnom Penh highway in the Parrot's Beak section, south of the main target area, to replace troops that had moved north for the new operation.

Key objectives of the new thrust are rear area headquarters and supply depot of North Vietnam's 5th, 7th and 9th divisions. These enemy units operate on several fronts, ranging from the northern and western approaches of Saigon to the outskirts of Phnom Penh.

The 5th and 7th divisions are believed to be regrouping close to the border after suffering heavy casualties in a Hanoi-initiated offensive last month. The 9th Division is pressuring Cambodian troops closer to Phnom Penh.

South Vietnamese field commanders hope a blow against the 5th and 7th divisions while they are still recovering will draw the 9th Division away from Cambodia's northeastern front to help.

Field commanders said this is the first of a series of dry season offensives aimed at preventing North Vietnamese attacks across the border on South Vietnamese territory. The dry season runs from now until next May.

The South Vietnamese officers said the first offensive is two months ahead of last year's dry season timetable.

"During the last dry season it wasn't until February that we began our first operation," said one commander. "At this time last year, the North Vietnamese were attacking us in South Vietnam."

Senior U.S. advisers warned only two weeks ago that if South Vietnam is to survive as American forces dwindle, its troops will have to conduct frequent offensive operations into eastern Cambodia to keep the North Vietnamese back.

U.S. tactical fighter-bombers, B52 heavy bombers and helicopters are backing up the South Vietnamese. Officers said, however, about two-thirds of the air support would be provided by the South Vietnamese air force.

The Cambodian military command reported it lost radio contact with two companies of its troops that came under enemy attack on Highway 5, about 70 miles north of Phnom Penh. A spokesman, Capt. Chang Song, said the fate of the two units was unknown.

A delayed report said Cambodian troops were forced to retreat Sunday night from a key hill seven miles from Phnom Penh. The position was believed used as an observation post for enemy rocket attacks on the Cambodian capital before government forces seized it.

Fighting tapered off on the northwestern outskirts of Phnom Penh, and only one small skirmish was reported.

Elsewhere in Indochina, North Vietnamese infantrymen spearheaded by Soviet-built tanks overran four government positions in the southern panhandle of Laos, the Vientiane government disclosed.

Military observers said increased North Vietnamese activity in southern Laos appears to indicate a dry season supply push along the Ho Chi Minh trail.

In Saigon, South Vietnamese headquarters reported 29 enemy-initiated incidents for the 24-hour period ending at 6 a.m. Monday, the highest total in seven weeks. Most of the incidents were small shellings and ground probes against militia outposts in the northern half of South Vietnam.

Commander Knew Nothing About My Lai Massacre

FT. MEADE, Md. (AP)-A former assistant commander of the Americal Division testified Monday he did not recall mentioning excessive killing of civilians when he gave Col. Oran K. Henderson an order to investigate the My Lai operation.

George H. Young, a retired brigadier general who quit the Army in the wake of the My Lai controversy, said he knew nothing of civilian deaths until after Henderson reported 30 or so noncombatants had been accidentally killed at the Vietnamese hamlet.

His statements as a defense witness conflicted sharply with previous testimony at Henderson's My Lai coverup trial.

One charge against Henderson is that he willfully failed to make a proper investigation of reports of "excessive killing" by troops in his 11th Brigade and of a confrontation between a helicopter pilot and ground soldiers at My Lai on March 16, 1968.

The 51-year-old, much-decorated officer also is accused of failing to report actual or suspected war crimes and of lying to a Pentagon inquiry into the reporting of the My Lai massacre.

Young, of Alexandria, Va., said he first received complaints about My Lai on March 17, 1968, from two officers of an aviation unit in the operation, Lt. Col. John Holladay and Lt. Col. Frederic Watke.

The former general, who was formally censured for his role in the My Lai, said that the two officers told him of a small group of civilians caught in a crossfire and of the confrontation concerning the group's safety. But Young said the two officers made no mention of civilians being killed.

Young said this is the essence of what was told to Henderson a day later when Young relayed to the defendant an order from the division commander, Brig. Gen. Samuel W. Koster, to investigate.

"I don't recall instructing Col. Henderson to investigate whether civilians were killed," Young told the jury of seven officers.

"I believe the first instance I became appraised of civilian casualties was when Col. Henderson informed me of the results of his investigation," Young said.

The results, he said, were that "there had been no noncombattant civilians purposely killed by ground troops but that there had been 25 or 30 killed accidentally by artillery and helicopter fire."

Young's testimony about civilian casualty reports differed from that given by Watke on Sept. 15 and Holladay on Oct. 4 as prosecution witnesses. They related how they received and reported the bloody picture aviators brought back from My Lai.

Holladay said Watke told Young on March 17 of more than 100 civilians being reported murdered and that the next day Young was present when Watke told Henderson of "a great many civilians indiscriminately killed."

Asked by defense attorney Henry F. Rothblatt about the differences in testimony, Young said: "If Col. Holladay has made that statement then he is grossly mistaken."

FUTURE CPA'S
Learn Now About the next CPA Exam.
Becker CPA Review Course
Boston
617 536-1440
OUR SUCCESSFUL STUDENTS REPRESENT
1/5 OF USA
NEXT COURSE BEGINS Dec. 2nd.

TOP of the CAMPUS
THANKSGIVING BUFFET
Served 1-7 P.M.
Reservations 549-6000
only $4.95
special children's prices
4-10 $1.50 11-15 $2.50

The Massachusetts
Daily Collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

BOARD OF EDITORS

EDITOR IN CHIEF — Richard C. Hanson
MANAGING EDITOR — Nathan Gorenstein
BUSINESS MANAGER — James Gold
EXECUTIVE EDITOR — Barry J. Rubenstein
NEWS EDITOR — Anne C. Stadnicki
SPORTS EDITOR — Earle T. Barroll

PHOTO EDITOR — Gib Fullerton
FINE ARTS EDITOR — Robert Nesti

TODAY'S STAFF

ISSUE EDITOR — Bob Nesti
SPORTS — Earle Barroll, Bobo Medeiros, John Bock
DARKROOM — Jim Lavrakas
AD LAYOUT — Jerry Lazar
EDITORIAL — David Williams

Undergraduate newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The Staff is responsible for its content and no faculty members or administration read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.
Unsigned editorials represent the views of this paper. They do not necessarily reflect the views of the faculty, administration, or student body as a whole. Signed editorials, columns, reviews, and letters represent the personal views of the writers.

Bromery's Dilemma

The latest developments in the Governor Sargent-Dr. Bromery tussle may lead one to wonder where it will all end. With Bromery wooed and won and installed in an office in Boston?

We sincerely hope not. But pressure from a governor for an important state position may be hard to withstand for very long. Dr. Bromery has already said no to Sargent once, and has assured the campus that he is interested in the chancellorship. If the governor is holding the Secretary of Education post open for Bromery, then Bromery is in a very ticklish situation. He's damned if he does and damned if he doesn't. It's out of his hands.

The matter rests with the Chancellor Search Committee, that peevish body of scholars and administrators charged with finding a new chancellor. The Committee already knows that Bromery is interested in becoming chancellor. Indeed, Bromery has stated that "he thought it best" to remain at UMass in these "critical times" for the University. What will the Committee do when it learns that Sargent still wants Bromery and is willing to wait for him?

We hope that the Committee does the obvious and solves Bromery's dilemma for him by nominating him chancellor.

"Could You Make This Perfectly Clear?"

Art Buchwald

Nixon's Employment Agency

WASHINGTON--The news that the FBI has been investigating CBS correspondent Daniel Schorr caused some trepidation among Washington journalists early last week.

But then the White House explained it all. Mr. Schorr was being investigated, a spokesman said, because he was being considered for a high government job, and the White House wanted to run a check on him before they offered him the position.

Well, all of us relaxed when we heard the explanation, not only because it made sense, but also because it showed that the Administration harbored no ill feelings. Mr. Schorr has been a consistent critic of Administration policies and if he was being considered for a high government job, that meant any of us could be tapped for public service.

A group of correspondents were sitting in the White House press room the other day, chuckling over the latest White House press release, when Clyde Mothballer of the Kinzu Telegram Ledger was called to the phone.

He came back whitefaced and said: "That was my mother. The FBI was just at her house and wanted to know what library books I borrowed when I was a kid."

"Congratulations, Mothballer," the AP man said, "that means you're up for an important government job."

"I don't know," Clyde said. "The Administration got awfully mad at me about my articles on the Supreme Court appointments. As a matter of fact someone from the White House called my editor and suggested I be sent to Moscow where I understood the government better."

"Don't be silly, Mothballer," the Boston Globe man said. "the Administration doesn't hold grudges. I wouldn't be surprised if they made you secretary of the treasury."

"You would think they would ask me if I wanted a job first," Mothballer said.

"They wanted to surprise you," the Washington Post correspondent assured him. "To think one of our boys will be in the Cabinet!"

"The FBI man didn't say anything to my mother about a Cabinet appointment. But he did want to know if I ever played with Daniel Ellsberg as a kid," Motherballer said.

"It's just a smokescreen, Clyde," the Los Angeles Times man said. "They always ask that when they're considering somebody for secretary of defense."

"My mother said they also went around to the neighbors and asked them if I had ever had any strong feelings about Cuba."

"That means you're being put up for head of the CIA," a UPI photographer said. "With Dick Helms being moved upstairs, they're probably looking for a new chief of operations."

"It's possible," Mothballer said, "but my mother said she caught two of the FBI men going through her trash basket last night."

"That means you're up for an environment job," the NBC man shouted.

"I wish I could be as optimistic as you guys," Mothballer said. "Suppose the FBI was asking questions to intimidate me?"

The Chicago Sun-Times man was shocked. "Bite your tongue, Mothballer," he cried, "the Nixon Administration would never stoop to a trick like that, even if they disagreed with every word you wrote."

"He's correct, Clyde," the Newsweek correspondent said. "Atty. Gen. Mitchell would resign before he'd allow the White House to intimidate a newspaperman."

"J. Edgar Hoover wouldn't stand for it," the New York Post man put in.

"I guess you're right," Mothballer nodded. "I'd better call my mother back and reassure her. She just doesn't understand how Nixon's people operate."

Copyright 1971, Los Angeles Times

PointBlank

Draft Boards Dodge Courts

Last night, I accompanied a young client to his draft board hearing. As a lawyer I was, of course, barred from the hearing itself; Selective Service has long since stowed the Sixth Amendment in its dead file.

While my client parried with the board members alone, I remained in the outer office talking with the clerk. She is regarded by the board as the fountainhead of legal learning, so it seemed advisable to present my client's case to her.

The case couldn't have been more straighforward. Indeed, I showed the clerk copies of decisions by the federal courts consistently upholding my client's position against that espoused by Selective Service.

After my ardent appeal, the clerk looked up from her careful, gum-chewing deliberation: "Well, I don't know, Mr. Shapiro," she apologized, "my Supervisor says we're not authorized to follow the courts."

So it goes.

After three years of practising draft law, I have come to admire the Selective Service System as one of the purest forms of arbitrary rule extant. Within this amorphous setting the draft lawyer's victories are pyrrhic. He has his day in court--but no more. Because the precedents set by judges are never translated into policy by draft boards; or if they are, the legal clout is lost in translation.

Take the monumental safeguards for conscientious objectors recently erected by the Supreme Court. Right now they are being dismantled through a new questionnaire for C.O.s just proposed by Draft Counselor Curtis Tarr. The new SSS Form 150 would increase the present four questions to, at least, twenty-two, and many of these are as intimidating as they are unauthorized.

For instance, the C.O. seeking exemption under the liberalized standards of Welsh v. United States is asked: "Demonstrate to the board that your beliefs are more than a personal moral code. Are they held by others?"

The implication seems to be that there is something disqualifying about a "personal moral code" not shared by others. This implication is false and misleading. The Supreme Court clearly ruled that a personal moral code, if deeply held, is a sound basis for exemption.

The SSS 150 Form would also be revised to inquire: "A man who has a valid claim for conscientious objection may have serious reservations about his nation's political or sociological policies. If you have such reservations, how can you be certain that they have not been the primary reason guiding you to make the claim of conscientious objection?"

Tough question? On its face, yes; but not if you knew that Welsh v. United States ruled that the C.O. exemption does not "exclude those who hold strong beliefs about our domestic and foreign affairs or even those whose conscientious objection to participation in all wars is founded to a substantial extent upon considerations of public policy."

Indeed, the vindicated Elliott Welsh, himself, wrote his draft board: "I can only act according to what I am and what I see. And I see that the military complex wastes both human and material resources, that it fosters disregard for (what I consider to be a paramount concern) human needs and ends; I see that the means we employ to 'defend' our 'way of life' profoundly change that way of life. I see that in our failure to recognize the political, social, and economic realities of the world, we, as a nation, fail our responsibility as a nation."

The proposed C.O. form is also seriously misleading on the relevance of a willingness to use force: "A person's willingness to defend himself, members of his family, or his immediate associates may be consistent with a valid claim for conscientious objection. Are there any other instances in which you believe that forceful acts on your part are justified? Have you ever been convicted of a crime involving physical force or violence?"

These inquiries imply that use of force may adversely affect a C.O. decision. But the courts have consistently held: "The statute...does not speak of objection to force, but rather of conscientious objection to 'participation in war in any form.' ...Agreement that force can be used to restrain wrongdoing, especially as the last alternative, has little bearing on an attitude toward war. We would not expect a full-fledged conscientious objector to stand by while a madman sprayed Times Square with machine gun bullets, or while an assassin took aim at the President."

Such judicial precedent is rendered nonexistent when a bureaucratic form arrogates to itself the role of grand inquisitor. The very questions asked imply that the answers sought will be both relevant and determinative. In fact, they are neither. I know that, you know it, and I daresay Curtis Tarr knows it too.

Copyright 1971 by Andrew Shapiro

Andrew O. Shapiro is co-author of MASTERING THE DRAFT: A COMPREHENSIVE GUIDE FOR SOLVING DRAFT PROBLEMS (626 pp. Avon paperback).

'. . . AND YOU'RE GOING TO CHINA.'

Letters To The Editor

They Need Room To Move

To the Editor:

Last Friday evening, Room-To-Move sponsored an extravaganza Boogie in the Ballroom, complete with light show and 3 bands. Our purpose was to provide good music--bands that people like--and a good time for people. We hoped that people would appreciate the great amount of planning involved and would enjoy coming together with us for an evening of joy and high-ness.

But many of us now feel, in retrospect, that perhaps the admission fee of $1.50 was not understood by those who attended the concert. In putting on a shindig of these proportions, one must take into consideration not only the cost of paying the bands for their energy but also the overhead, which in this case included the rent of the Ballroom, the video-tape equipment, and the light show & movies by Barry Schonhaut.

We lost money and we feel that the bands were inadequately paid for their time, good energy and feelings. We had also hoped to have extra money to put into a medical emergency fund, which would serve our people, and/or towards a free medical clinic which is now in the works and needs support, or towards an in the works halfway house. Friday night's boogie, which we had hoped to be a people's venture, to serve not only a few hours but in a lasting way as well, didn't make it.

Perhaps the price was too high to begin with--maybe $1.00 would have been more attractive to people. Many people laid out their last quarters and fifty cents and dollars to get in; we felt cool about that. Many people had no money and we felt cool about letting them in too. Some people had money but tried to crash anyway--we didn't feel good about that.

We messed up, too--perhaps we just tried to put on too big of a thing. Some of our friends and friends of the bands got in free with no questions asked. Our public relations perhaps was not extensive enough to let people know what the Boogie was about and how the money would be used.

What we want to say is, bands gotta eat too. And we had hoped to draw money to support 3 extremely valuable ventures that would benefit everyone. Well--we've learned!

Please support (and enjoy) our next evening of happiness--we will try to overcome the mistakes of Friday's dance.

Room-To-Move Staff Members

Thank You

To the Editor:

Here is another example of the way the University rips off students. About two and one-half weeks ago, the new Student Directory supplements were displayed on a table in the Student Union bookstore. They were selling the green directory (which almost everyone has) and the new white one together for seventy-five cents. I only needed and wanted the white one, but they charged me seventy-five cents anyhow. Then to top it off, a few days ago I found a copy of the new directory outside my door and found out they were giving them away free. I didn't mind paying the seventy-five cents at first, even though it was a bit expensive for the directory especially for my present budget but to find that it was sold with the sole purpose of ripping off the students really irritates me. If there was any way that I could get my money back I would, but the way this University is set up it would be more bother than it is worth. Thank you, UMass, for making my wallet a little emptier and my mind a little fuller of distrust.

Elise Strickland

You're Not Welcome

To the Editor:

I would like to comment on the Senate's latest move to bring campaign spending under control.

In short, the measure allows for people to indicate on their income tax forms whether or not they want to have a dollar designated to a fund which would give money to the two majority party, presidential candidates.

It is my feeling that (though there be noble intents behind this measure), this is nothing but an attempt to raise campaign funds. Furthermore, there is no real attempt to rid campaigns of any of their real problems.

The bill is markedly lacking in any provision to help fund any or all third parties which may arise. This I feel is a blatant attempt to limit the public's choice of both candidates and parties.

Furthermore, the bill doesn't even attempt to remedy campaigns of their two primary problems. First, the bill in no way puts any ceiling on campaign expenditures. So it merely acts as another way presidential nominees get money. In short, it becomes another fund raising gimmick for political parties. Secondly, it in no way hinders big campaign contributors. It is well known that few politicians accept direct bribes anymore. But there are few politicians who can afford not to accept big campaign contributions.

All this bill has done is provide equal amounts of federal money to the presidential candidates. So we can still expect future candidates to be the same as the past; rich or with rich friends. The bill just allows for more money to be spent on more extravagant campaigns.

In summary this measure hasn't gotten to the root of campaign problems. It has further made our election process more rigid and is a poorly concealed program for political parties to get more money.

I might add that I am in favor of some sort of control over campaigns. But I feel this measure will do little or nothing to control campaign expenses.

Donald J.P. Madden

Cold Turkey

To the Editor:

We hear much these days of heroin addiction and its evils. We are told that progress is being made in the area of rehabilitation. Today I brought a friend of mine who is a heroin addict to Providence Hospital for medical attention. He was turned away, being told that nothing could be done for him.

During the past few weeks, my friend has tried everything available in order to quit. He tried quitting cold but became violently ill. He tried other drugs as substitutes to no avail. He has gone to doctors and clinics for methadone and has either been turned away or put on eight to ten week waiting lists. What should he do for those eight to ten weeks, continue to shoot junk? What other alternatives does he have? Where will he get the money to support a habit he wants to break?

Why a man turns to heroin is caused by a combination of things, but that is not important here. What is important is the fact that this man wants to quit and become an asset to this society rather than a liability to it. The question is, who can this man turn to for help? Doctors, clinics, and hospitals have already turned him away. I say this man deserves a chance, and it's up to those who are trained in this area to give him that chance.

Lawrence E. Smolarz

Editorial Points

A Peter Pan strike would be a welcome relief from the drudgery of UMass right about now. Just think, in 40 years we can all sit around and talk about The Great Peter Pan Strike like we were all there.

•••

It must have been an awfully good concert in Bowker by the Swingle Swingers last night. We know of a couple who went and never came back. Perhaps they've gone off to Paris to sing, or sit on the Champs Elysees and drink cognac all day.

•••

Old UMass grads never die they just fade away, or so the legend goes. (Maybe it was MDC staffers who fade away) In any case, it looks as though BC grads never fade away either. Judging from their behavior at one of their much touted tailgate parties before the football game Saturday, most of them haven't gotten past their anal stage. As a matter of fact, most of them are indistinguishable from that much abused orifice.

Deflating The Domes

By WALTER E. CRONIN
Editorial Staff

Congratulations to those members of the Student Senate for voting for recall of Free University funds. This action sets a valuable precedent for a couple of reasons, and also reflects a serious defect in the procedure of Senate financial control.

Under present rules, a group which seeks funds petitions the Student Senate, through the Budget Committee, must present reasons why it needs such funds. If approved, such a group must contain itself to the rationale which it has presented to the Committee. If there is a feeling that any group is not conforming to its "binds", it takes a vote of two-thirds of the Senators to recall the funds and strike them from the budget.

As in the case of Free University funds, certain senators, notably Bob Chiller, felt that this group was not able to justify its expenditures to the student community. In this case it took the two-thirds vote to rescind these funds.

Bill Spinn, a member of the Finance Committee, feels that the Senate needs some form of Financial Review Board, which would act in some capacity as a method of control to make the R.S.O. groups justify their expenditures in light of the student community needs.

Arguments have been raised to the effect that if the Senate does grant this power to a Financial Review Board, the Senate would in effect control the actions of the various groups. However, does this argument justify that if a group is wasting money it should be allowed to do so until the new request for funding is presented? In other words, if a group knew that if they were going to have to justify the money as it is being spent, wouldn't they act in a more judicious manner, knowing that their whole budget could be stricken?

The question of funding the Free University is assured to be brought up in future Senate business. The individual asks himself: "so what?" Well, if the precedent of letting certain vested interest groups waste student money is accepted, the question comes to mind: Why should I as a student have to contribute to this waste in the form of a mandatory tax?

Harambe Is...

To the Editor:

I quote from Mr. Walter E. Cronin's "Index and other Minorities." "The Student Senate funded Harambe (What is it?) for $7,808.00 dollars." I would like to assure Mr. Cronin that Harambe is a minority by all means. To find out what it is just drop in 321 Mills House or come to one of the meetings (Thursday 7:30 p.m.) or call the very able chairman, Mr. Rudolph Jones at 546-5323. We son't give you any hassles. You could even call our secretary Miss Doris Williams at 546-6605 for a copy of our constitution. It is free of charge!

I hope you didn't miss last Sunday night's China Night in the Campus Center Auditorium. It was a beautiful Chinese Cultural program, co-sponsored by the Unknown Harambe as the 500 plus people who attended could tell you.

Keh Tung

"It's A Free Country. Anyone Can Enter The Race"

Rodgers Here Dec. 7-9

The noted black dancer-choreographer Rod Rodgers will lead his company in a single performance in one of the season's Dance Series events, as well as in two performances for the Celebrity Series, December 7-9 at 8:00 p.m. in Bowker Auditorium, sponsored by the UMass Fine Arts Council in cooperation with the Massachusetts Council on Arts and Humanities. Each evening's performance will feature a different program.

Mr. Rodgers studied in the midwest prior to coming to New York in 1963 to work in several dance companies. With his own company, he has firmly established himself as one of today's most provocative young choreographers. He has also published several outspoken articles on dance.

In 1970 the Rod Rodgers Dance Company received a grant from the New York State Council on the Arts, and in recognition of his gifts as an innovative choreographer, Mr. Rodgers received a John Hay Whitney Fellowship in 1965 and a grant from the National Endowment for the Arts in 1970.

Reserved tickets for the performances are available at the Fine Arts Council Ticket Office, 125 Herter Hall, Tel. 545-0202. Remaining tickets will be available at Bowker Auditorium one hour before the performance.

Rod Rodgers

Lebow Memorial Concert Next Week

Two contemporary musical works are scheduled for the third annual Howard M. Lebow Scholarship Fund concert at the UMass, Amherst, Tuesday, Nov. 30.

Igor Stravinsky's "L'Histoire du Soldat" (1918) and Bela Bartok's "Sonata for Two Pianos and Percussion" (1937) will be presented at 8 p.m. in Bowker Auditorium.

Charles Fussell of the UMass music department will conduct "L'Histoire," which will be staged in accordance with Stravinsky's original conception of the work. Harry Mahnken of the UMass speech department will stage the work, and Candice Morse of the UMass School of Physical Education will do the choreography.

Bartok's "Sonata" will be performed by three UMass music faculty artists: Estela Kersenbaum Olevsky on piano, Fernande Kaeser on piano, and Peter Tanner on percussion. Amy Kidd, Westfield Junior High music teacher, a graduate of the Boston University School of Fine and Applied Arts, will also be a percussionist.

The Howard M. Lebow Scholarship Fund, which proceeds from the concert will benefit, was established by the UMass music department in memory of the late member of their department.

Contributions to the fund will be accepted at the door the night of the concert. Checks should be made out to the 1971 Howard M. Lebow Scholarship Fund Benefit Concert. Contributions by mail should be sent to the Music Department, Machmer Hall, Amherst, Mass. 01002.

Children's Film Set

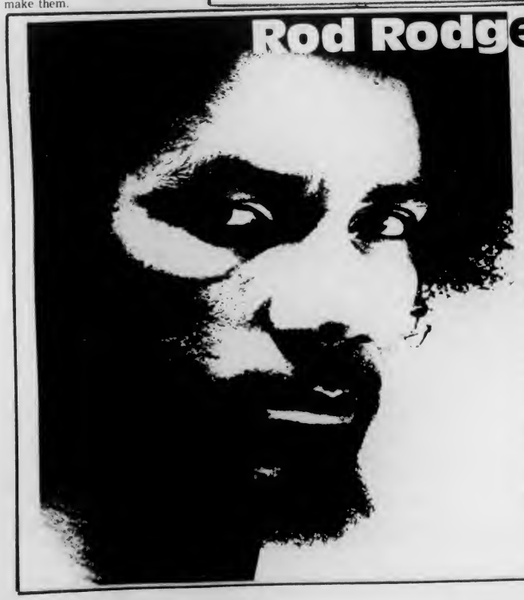
As a salute to the five-year American Revolution Bicentennial Era which opened officially on July 4th, the Women's Symphony League of the Springfield Symphony Orchestra will present a Colonial Williamsburg film - "Williamsburg - The Story of a Patriot" - for area school children and their families on the Friday, Saturday and Sunday after Thanksgiving, November 26, 27 and 28, in the Tolman Auditorium of the Springfield Museum of Science.

Friday and Saturday, Nov. 26 & 27: 1:30 p.m. and 3:00 p.m.

Sunday, Nov. 28: 2:30 p.m.

A donation of $.50 will be asked.

A beautiful film - in color - set in Colonial Williamsburg just before the Revolution, with historic people, events, buildings, gardens, costumes and furnishings as authentic as careful research could make them.



Room To Move
Drop-In Center
5-0400, 5-0401

ACCOUNTING MAJORS
Ask any CPA about
Becker CPA Review Course
Boston
617-536-1440

TONIGHT
COMPARATIVE LITERATURE FILM SERIES
Presents
Joan of the Angels?
BASED ON HUXLEY'S DEVILS OF LOUDUN, JERRY KAWALEROWICZ'S: BERGMANESQUE CHRONICLE OF A POSSESSED NUN
Thompson 104. Shows at 8 and 10.
Tickets $.75, on sale at door.

FOREIGN LANGUAGE BOOK SALE
Now in Progress
At The
University Store
— Campus Center —
Foreign Language Titles
Slashed to 1/2 Price

Rod Rodgers Dance Company
a unique theatre experience

"ROD RODGERS, the choreographer, is torn between the abstract and the actual. He can create a beautiful design like "PERCUSSION SUITE" or use a contemporary theme successfully as in "NOW! NIGGA . . ."
DON McDONAGH, NEW YORK TIMES

"ROD RODGERS demonstrates that he is a more gifted choreographer than many who are better known."
MARION SAWYER, NEW YORK CHELSEA CLINTON NEWS

"ROD RODGERS' dancers perform, with an obvious pride, works which are worth going out of your way to see."
PHYLLIS G. RICHMOND, DANCE MAGAZINE

RODGERS' choreography displays a versitality which enables him to go from abstract patterns to compelling dance drama. The multi-media movement – emphasis of "DANCES IN PROJECTED SPACE" yields smoothly to the insistant political message of "HARAMBEE!".
ZITA ALLEN, NEW YORK AMSTERDAM NEWS

" . . . a company with something to say and a way of saying it that ingratiated and also hit between the eyes".
GEORGE BEISWANGER, ATLANTA JOURNAL

Tuesday- Thursday
December 7-9
8:00 P.M.
Bowker Auditorium
A Different Program Each Evening.

Reserved Tickets:
UMass Undergrads.....$1.00
Other Full-Time Students.....$2.00
UMass Faculty/Staff.....$3.00
General Public.....$3.50

Fine Arts Council Ticket Office, 125 Herter Hall, Tel. 545-0202

Presented by the University of Massachusetts Fine Arts Council

"The Connection" Makes For Vivid Theater

By H. M. SOKOLOW

"The Connection", an off Broadway play, written by Jack Gelber, was presented by the Independent Group Theater, at the Amherst Folklore Center on November 20 and 21.

"The Connection" is more than just a play. It is the world of four addicts, and a producer and a writer who wish to present them to the audience. These people lead the audience through their world, the world of the whole addiction experience.

The play doesn't begin at any one point. Instead, the four addicts, Leach (Mike Cataldo), Solly (Bill Tremblay), Sam (Peter Ryan), and Ernie (Chuck Milkey), wander through the audience to the front platform inconspicuously. Then, the supposed organizer of the experience, Jim Dunn (Woodbridge Brown), tells the audience that he has brought these addicts here to produce an experience. Jay Bird (Ed Howes), the supposed writer of the play, comes forward from the audience, and argues with Dunn over the purpose of the production. Dunn and Bird leave the stage, and the audience is left watching the addicts.

It is this constant involvement of Dunn and Bird, moving from stage to audience that involves us in the world of the addicts. The main concern of the characters in the first act is the connection. That is, they are waiting for Cowboy (Nick Orzell) to bring the dope. Photographers enter the stage area from the audience, and say they have been sent by Bird to film the presentation. This confrontation helps to bring out many of the agonies and truths of the lives of addicts. When one photographer asks who "the man" (on top) is, Solly replies, "You are your own man. You are your own connection."

As Solly, Ernie, and Sam wait for Cowboy, they each reveal their own story to the audience, as if they really have been paid to do it. The audience is now confronted by each of the addicts, as they step into it to tell their stories. Throughout this act, the tension of the wait for Cowboy to arrive, is stressed by all of the addicts. One feels relief, as Sam finally sees Cowboy coming down the road, through the window.

The intermission of the play is extremely unique, as the players mingle within the crowd as addicts, and ask people for money, etc. The reactions of people in the audience varied from a smile to bewilderment.

As Act II begins, Cowboy arrives with the dope, and a female Salvation Army worker, whom he had to pick up in order to avoid police suspicion. Cowboy takes each addict into the bathroom and injects the heroin into their arms, as Sister Salvation (Barb Newell) sits in the other room, as naive as ever. The injection of the heroin is shown by the projection of a shadow on the front wall, and is very effective in involving the audience. Sister Salvation asks if anyone knows Harry McNulty (Richard Newman), who symbolizes the whole of the addiction experience, and all reply "no". Sister finds wine bottles in the bathroom and accuses them of drinking. After reciting lines from the Bible, she decides to leave. Solly replies with the perfect comment. "You'd better leave Sister, before you find out who Harry McNulty really is."

Leach, after complaining to Cowboy about not getting high, injects himself with heroin on stage. As he goes into convulsions from the overdose, a few of the players leave out of fear. As Sam and Cowboy try to save Leach's life, Dunn enters the stage area and complains that he has lost all of his money on this venture. The absurdity of Dunn comes out when he says that he would die if it would bring in high revenues in the film version.

The play ends with the entrance of Harry McNulty. He strides cross stage, plugs in his stereo, and plays a jazz record. But instead of then leaving the stage with his record player, as he did in his first appearance of the first act, the lights just black out.

This is the only possible ending to "The Connection", as it is an experience that has no ending. As Jay Bird tells Dunn, just before the play ends, "We have lost the ending." With the end of the play comes a feeling of relief, as we have been trapped, emotionally, in the world of the addict for the past two hours, where the only meaning in life is the fix, the connection. As Solly puts it, "A fix for hope, a fix to remember, a fix to forget, a fix to be happy, a fix to be sad, a fix to be."

Miller's "Caesar" Next Weekend

The Oxford/Cambridge Shakespeare Company directed by Jonathan Miller will present William Shakespeare's "Julius Caesar" December 6 and 7 at 8:00 p.m. in Chapin Auditorium at Mount Holyoke College in the first of the season's Arts in Performance programs.

In a return engagement, the company which performed "Hamlet" at Mount Holyoke in 1970 on its American tour turns this year to "Julius Caesar" producing an exciting and timely interpretation using modern theatre techniques to press home the meaning, the tension, and the poetry of Shakespear's dramatic treatment of power and leadership, wisely and ill used.

Jonathan Miller, the controversial young director of "Beyond the Fringe" fame, has recently directed Sir Laurence Olivier in "The Merchant of Venice" and Sir John Gielgud in "Alice in Wonderland". He was the director of the Oxford/Cambridge University students in their touring production of "Hamlet" last year.

Tickets at $1, $3, and $4 will go on sale November 29 from 10:00 a.m. to 9:00 p.m. in Chapin box office at Mount Holyoke College. Reservations may be made by telephoning 538-2419.

Join us for Thanksgiving Dinner
at the Lord Jeff.
$5.50 per person . . .
children under 12 $3.50
The Lord Jeffery
30 Boltwood Ave. AMHERST, MASS. 253-2576
RAOUL DIETRICH, INNKEEPER

WMUA 91.1 FM

Quicksilver Tonite!

Genuine
Chinese Food
at Drummer Boy
University Drive
Business Hrs: Wed. thru Friday, 5 p.m. to 9 p.m.; Sat. and Sun. 12 noon to 9 p.m.

PARIS HELSINKI MOSCOW MONACO BRUSSELS BELGRADEGENEVA BUCHAREST OSLO DUBLIN MONROVIA EDINBURGH ATHENS MADRID LISBON VATICAN CITYMONACO ROME MADRID LONDON
FLY SUPERCHEAP
L.A. and San Fran.
Dec. 18 - Jan. 3 — Round trip for $225. If demand is sufficient, price will be $90. Flights leave Boston.
Ski Europe $325
15 days/14 nights at Innsbruck, Kitzbuhel & St. Anton. Departures from JFK & Logan begin 12/18/71 and continue through 3/31/72. Includes air fare, meals, double occupancy hotel & all taxes.
Youth Fare
Guaranteed Round Trip reservations at no additional charge.
Pay with MASTERCHARGE
Nassau $179
Dec. 20-27 or Dec. 27-Jan 3. $179 includes round trip jet from Boston, all taxes & tips & accommodations at the Montagu Beach Hotel, Flagler Inn or Pilot House Hotel*
London $187
Dec. 17-Jan. 2 $187 includes round trip jet air fare from Boston* Dec.
American Student Travel
27 Massachusetts Ave., Boston 02115
For further information call Steve German 253-3359
*open only to 5 College students, faculty, staff & immediate family
SAN MARINO WARSAW PRAGUE LUXEMBOURG COPENHAGEN OUGADOUGOU

MDC CLASSIFIED

AUTOS FOR SALE

'67 Chevelle Malibu, 2-door hardtop, vinyl roof, radio, V8, A.T., P.S., excellent condition, $995. Call 253-3067 evenings. tf11-24

'64 Ford Falcon, 6 cyl., auto. trans., runs really well & has a lot more miles left in it. Needs no work. Drive it away for $200. 546-4076. tf11-23

Real creampuff!! '65 Pontiac Lemans, 6 cyl., only 60,000 mi., new brakes, tires, shocks, tune-up sticker & much more. Asking $550. Call 546-4076. tf11-23

Cheapest Mercedes, 1962, 220sb., runs ok but needs work. With book, spares. After 5 p.m. 863-4424. tf11-23

1964 VW for sale. Call 665-3006. tf11-30

1964 Chevy, s.w. toots, must find good home, good running condition. Needs muffler $225. Call 6-5637 between 6-8 p.m. or call late. tf11-30

'65 Corvair Monza, 4 speed, Am-Fm radio, good condition, No Rot, good tires, $200. Call 253-5344. tf11-30

'63 VW bug, exclnt. mech. cond., new brakes, starter, end., front end., 6 good tires, snow tire mounted. Call 546-6767 evenings, $ 895. tf11-30

1965 Porsche 356c rebuilt eng., elec. sunrf., new battery, clutch, tires. Will negotiate 545-0329, Dick Jubinville. tf11-23

FOR SALE

Wedding gown with attached train, empire waist, Juliet sleeves and Venecian lace, pearl seed crown veil. Best offer. call 549-1013. tf11-23

Bike for sale, 3 spd. English girls, best offer. Please call Joyce 253-7611. tf11-23

AR receiver, 3 weeks old, 120 watts, r.m.s., cost $445, sell $295; AKAI X300D, 1 year old, 20-20000 flat s.o.s., sws., cost $430-$295. 253-9587. tf11-24

Guitars Amps, drums, acc., at reasonable prices. The Guitar Workshop, 98 Main St. North. 586-1706. tf11-30

Benjamin compacta EMI speakers, Lenco and Miracord turntables at low prices. Concord Equipment at Discount Prices Call 546-6917. tf11-23

Dual 1215-Kenwood 3140 FM Receiver 95W IHF 4tw RM5-stanton 500E cartridge. Best offer, 3 mos. old, hardly used. Dave 6-7669. tf11-24

Used Rock Records for sale in exc. cond. incl. English and Bootlegs $1.25/rec. Also Gibson Bass, $135.00. Call 253-9045, kp. trying. tf11-23

Remington Portable "Quiet-Riter" Typewriter with case, in good condition, Elite type. Call 549-1585. tf11-23

MOTORCYCLES FOR SALE

69 Yamaha 350. Here is that great buy you've been looking for. Bike is perf., new tire & tune up. Drive it away for only $460. 546-4076. tf11-23

WANTED

Wanted to buy-photo developing equip., especially enlarger. Call 1-369-4032. tf11-23

PERSONAL

Russ - Happy 21st. Amy. 11-23

William - Happy Birthday - I'm even early. Love, me. 11-23

...and it's going to rain on my way home. 11-23

VVAW: Tell Tony the Tiger I think he's G-R-E-A-T! Laughing Lady. tf11-23

ROOMMATES WANTED

Two girls wanted to share bedroom in Puffton Apt. for second semester $55 a month. Call 549-0071. tf11-23

Female-preferably grad student. Own room, $80/month includes utilities. Call Linda 665-1125. tf11-23

Roommate needed for January, 2 bdrm twnhs., Rolling Green. Pls call Joyce 253-7611. tf11-23

House to share with 1 bedroom, available Dec. 1 and another Jan. 1 $65/month plus share utilities. Prefer woman over 21. 253-7538 after 5:00. tf11-30

ROOMS WANTED

Need place to live beg. Dec. 1 with quiet people close to UMass. Must have own room. Can pay 65-$70 a mo. Call 387-9515 ask for Diane. tf11-24

Two girls would like rooms in a house near campus for January semester. Call Mary at 546-5278. tf11-23

SERVICES

Amherst Audio services. Stereo components, tape decks for home or car. 197 No. Pleasant St. 256-8133. tf5-12

TYPING

Typing-theses, dissertations, etc. Fast, accurate, experienced. Have Math and Chem. symbols. Call 253-3061. tf12-21

LOST

A pair of black leather gloves, outside of Hert. Aud., Room 227. If found kindly contact Toni, tel. no. 546-6790, 316 Mark. tf11-23

REWARD

Reward of $20 for returning knapsack containing books and notes. Taken from Hampshire DC, no quests. asked. Very imp. Call Don 6-0202. tf11-24

FOR RENT

2 bedroom Townhouse, air cond., ww carpet, $200 month, including utilities. Call 665-4128 after 5:30. tf11-30

APT. WANTED

Wanted 2 bedroom apartment in Puffton Village starting in Jan. or Feb. Call Mark at 256-6723 after 6 p.m. tf12-3

2 girls need place to live next sem., approx. $50 or under each. Call 546-8518. tf12-1

APTS. FOR RENT

MT. SUGARLOAF APTS. AVAIL. JAN. 1, LG. 2 BDRM., UTIL. INCLUDED, AIR-COND. POOL $180. CALL SKIBISKI REALTORS 253-7722 EVE. 253-2026. tf11-30

STUDENTS BOOK MATCHING

Register your book in S.U. Rm. 318. Every student with your course next semester will need your books save $ money, sell direct. tf-sem.

Notices

CHRISTIAN FELLOWSHIP MEETING
7:15 a.m. Wednesday rm 804 CC. Faculty and students welcome.
CHRISTIAN SCIENCE ORGANIZATION
Thanksgiving service tonight. Readings from the Bible and Science & Health. All welcome, 6:45 p.m., CC 803.
CEQ
Meeting tonight at 6:30 p.m. in Student Activities area, CC. Steering committee members reminded that this is an important meeting.
CONCERT
Jonathan Edwards in concert, Tuesday Dec. 7 in SU Ballroom. Sponsored by Program Council.
DANCE
Spend Thanksgiving Eve at the Mill Valley Lounge, Mill Valley Rd., Belchertown. Dance, fun and relaxation. Nov. 24 from 8 to midnight. Sponsored by the Belchertown High School Student Council.
FENCING CLUB
Meeting tonight in rm 8 WoPE from 7-9 p.m. Everyone is welcome.
GAMMA SIGMA SIGMA
No meeting tonight. Remember bake sale Monday-- also bring back toys and books.
HEYMAKERS SQUARE DANCE CLUB
The regular square dance will be held tonight at 7:30 in--well, try the CCA. Lessons from 7:30-9:30 and club level from 9:30-10:30.
HILLEL
Israeli folk dancing in Hillel rooms (420 SU) at 7 p.m. All welcome. Free instructions.
MAROON KEYS
A must meeting Sunday Rm. 804 CC at 8:30 p.m. Eleventh hour is coming two days later. Please attend.
PSYCH 101
Craig Manning's class, Sect. 112 (W 12:20) has been cancelled.
SKI CLUB
Meeting tonight--8 p.m.--Mahar Aud. Info on Maple Valley and a Killington Day trip Dec. 4.
SUMMER POSITIONS WITH THE WASHINGTON POST
Those Juniors, Seniors and Graduate Students with interest in Journalism and with writing ability should write to the following address for applications: Employee Relations Dept., The Washington Post, 1515 L St., N.W., Washington D.C. 20005. Applications must be in by Dec. 1. See career planning & placement office bulletin board.
WOMEN'S LIBERATION
MEETING FOR ALL WOMEN interested in discussing the formation of a Women's Studies program. Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. in CC 903.
WTOY
Bob Dylan in "Don't Look Back" with Joan Baez and Donovan. A film of Dylan's 1965 tour of England. Tuesday Nov. 30 at 7:30 & 9:30 in SU Ballroom.
LOST
Beautiful black umbrella w/red and purple border print. Probably in 151 or 251 Goessman, Nov. 15. Call Donna 5469595.
Diamond earring. Call 67420.

WMUA

TONIGHT ON 91.1 FM:
7:00 p.m. EVENING NEWS-30 minutes with a five minute update at 7:25 plus sports and weather.
7:30 p.m. THE BEST OF SHERLOCK HOLMES-another edition of the famous oldtime radio series.
8:00 p.m. LIVE MUSIC FESTIVAL-an hour of live, locally recorded music featuring many area groups and musicians. The recording is done live at WMUA's studios and anyone who plays alone or with a band and is interested should write the station.
9:00 p.m. THE FIRESIGN THEATRE-one hour.
10:00 p.m. FOCUS-Tonight Commentator Ken Mosakowski takes a close look at the new draft law, how it differs from the old one, what effects it might have on foreign policy and mainly what it means to draft age men--especially those with low draft lottery numbers. (one hour)
11:00 p.m. NEWS-another 30 minute report featuring area news.
11:30 p.m. THE WES CANNELL SHOW-Wes plays progressive music and other good things til 3.

Thanksgiving Services

The Christian Science Organization will hold a Thanksgiving service tonight at 6:45 in room 803 of the Campus Center. Citations from the Bible and Science and Health will be read. Testimonies and discussion on Christian Science will follow the service. All interested students and faculty are invited to attend.

NOW...YOUR CHOICE OF 5!
Showcase Cinema 1-2-3-4-5
Rt. 5-W. Spfld.
733-5131
MORE NEW SHOWS!
MORE NEW LOUNGER SEATS!
MORE NEW PARKING!
MATINEES DAILY... POPULAR PRICES
Adults $1.50 Mon thru Fri Matts
1 Gone With The Wind G
2 French Connection R
3 Sunday Bloody Sunday R
4 Joe Hill GP
5 Together X
ACRES FREE PARKING
ROCKER LOUNGERS
CHARGE YOUR TICKETS

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

By SYDNEY OMARR

I have noted that when strangers approach me asking, "Can you guess my sign?" they usually are born under either Sagittarius or Gemini.

*****

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Friendship is emphasized. You bind a relationship. What you say, do in connection with others becomes more meaningful. Avoid making promises you can't keep. Stick to the practical in affairs of heart.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Ambitions are highlighted. You find out just what can be accomplished. Aid from one in position of authority is on agenda. Spread influence. Advertise. Be aware of public relations. Get going.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Good lunar aspect now coincides with how you communicate with those at a distance. Key is to spread your message. Do so in an independent, original manner. Create don't follow set pattern.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Follow through on hunch. Applies especially in connection with investments, marriage, partnerships. Be receptive to suggestions. But be sure you are dancing to what is basically your own tune.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Study Cancer message. Be willing to change ways, but adhere to principles. Check diet requirements. You have tendency now to try doing too much at once. Don't scatter efforts. Concentrate on ultimate goal.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Guard health; protect yourself from character assassination by co workers, associates. Be sure you're not misquoted. Be aware of details, apparent minor matters. There is a loophole.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Accent on relations with children. Creative juices flow. Give full play to self expression. Be ready for change of scenery. Gemini, Virgo individuals could figure prominently. Be flexible.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Basic spotlight is on home, security, how to get greatest value from assets. Taurus, Libra persons now can aid. Know this and toss aside false pride. Improve living conditions.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Perception is keynote. Look beyond what appears obvious. There is an answer available. It will cast light on previously darkened areas. Pisces can play prominent role. Accept.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): You may be concerned with getting money's worth. Key is to aim high. Don't dilute ambitions. Lunar cycle remains high; circumstances favor your efforts. Now is time to collect, assemble facts.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): New steps in new directions that is trend. Move ahead; take initiative. Welcome challenge-you are now a winner. Know it -act like you know it. Brighten surroundings. Move around-see and be seen.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): What you do now is apt to be theatrical. That is, you attract attention. Even if role is behind scenes, your presence is felt. Individual you once helped now is able to return favor. Show gratitude.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you have great amount of curiosity, could write, report and communicate in unique manner. Your position in world is due to be elevated. If single, marriage is not far away. You are a square shooter and soon you will attract persons whose aim is to help not hinder.

Copyright 1971, Gen. Fea. Corp.

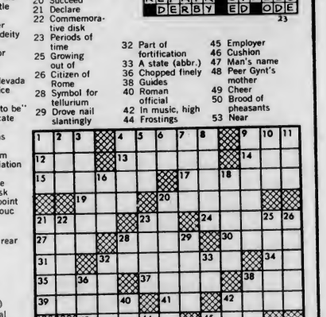
Bach To Speak At Congress Workshop

The Amherst League of Women Voters will hold a workshop on Congress at the home of Mrs. Winthrop Dakin, 650 East Pleasant St., tonight at 7:45 p.m. Stanley Bach, instructor in the department of political science at UMass will speak on "Prospects for Congressional Reform."

Bach was graduated with honors from the University of Chicago in 1966 and holds a Master's degree from Yale University where he is also a candidate for the PhD degree. From June through December 1969 he served as a Congressional intern in the office of Congressman Abner J. Mikva of Illinois. He has published articles on Congress and the title of his doctoral dissertation is "Perceptions of Political Protest: Congressional Reactions to Dissent and Disorder."

All members of the League and their guests are urged to attend this workshop in order to be better informed when Congressional consensus questions are discussed in January, 1972. Committee members for this national study item are Gretchen Fanslow, Charlotte Guyer, Rita Harris, Kathy Masalski, Barbara DeTurk, and Susan Brynteson, chairman.

MDC Classifieds Pay



Crossword Puzzle

ACROSS
1 Gratuity
4 Itching disease of skin
9 Secondary
12 Fruit drink
13 Mollified
14 Things, in law
15 Gasped for breath
17 Water wheels
19 Click beetle
20 Peeled
21 Merganser
23 Teutonic deity
24 Ardent
27 Spread for drying
28 Jog
30 City in Nevada
31 Paid notice
32 Causes
34 Part of "to be"
35 Domesticate
37 Hurried
38 Music: as written
39 Omit from pronunciation
41 Man's nickname
42 Solar disk
43 Lowest point
45 Caoutchouc tree
46 Outing
48 Toward rear of ship
51 Exist
52 Rent
54 Beam
55 Parent (colloq.)
56 Chemical compound
57 Pronoun

DOWN
1 Hit lightly
2 Mountain on Crete
3 Awaited settlement
4 Equal
5 Mournful
6 Bone
7 Rockfish
8 Worship
9 Span across water
10 Affirmative vote
11 Worm
16 Haul
18 Raises
20 Succeed
21 Declare
22 Commemorative disk
23 Periods of time
25 Growing out of
26 Citizen of Rome
28 Symbol for tellurium
29 Drove nail slantingly
32 Part of fortification
33 A state (abbr.)
36 Chopped finely
38 Guides
40 Roman official
42 In music, high
44 Frostings
45 Employer
46 Cushion
47 Man's name
48 Peer Gynt's mother
49 Cheer
50 Brood of pheasants
53 Near

Answer to Yesterday's Puzzle

O	R	E		O	S		P	R	E	S	S
R	E	T	O	R	T		R	A	G	O	U	T
A	L		D	A	R	L	I	N	G		M	A
	E	M		L	O	O	N		S	U	M	S
A	N	O	A		P	A	C	T		N	E	T
A	T	O	N	E		N	E	E	D		R	E
		S	T	E	P		S	A	I	C
M	I		S	L	O	W		R	E	A	P	S
I	R	A		S	T	A	G		S	P	E	T
S	O	N	S		T	R	E	E		E	A
E	N		P	R	E	S	E	N	T		L	A
R	E	P	A	I	R		S	I	D	L	E	S
	D	E	R	B	Y		E	D		O	D	E

Distr. by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.

Matmen Impressive At Weekend Tourney

By JOHN BOCK

How does placing a man in the finals of the most prestigious pre-season wrestling tournament in the east grab you? It grabbed UMass wrestling coach Homer Barr fine as he said, "This was our best showing ever at this tournament."

East Stroudsburg State College held a crowd of six thousand plus that watched 460 wrestlers go at it in a battle for top honors Friday and Saturday. The tournament, down from last year's record 650 entries, attracted wrestlers from as far away as Michigan.

The fact that this was an open tourney immediately indicated that many of the participants would be wrestling unattached or in clubs. A case in point was the Cincinnati Bearcat Wrestling Club, who unofficially took second place team title honors.

Redmen wrestlers represented UMass well, though only one made it to the finals. New England Champions Shelly Goldberg and Carl Dambman wrestled hard bouts before bowing to superior forces. Goldberg just missed making weight for the 142 pound class so he wrestled at 150 pounds. His only loss came after three decisions. He beat the boy from Rider College 7-3, the Franklin & Marshall grappler 8-5, and the Rockport entry 5-1.

The loss came in the form of a 1-1 overtime tie and referee's decision from Minkel of Eastern Michigan. This man has been around, taking a fifth in the NCAA's two years ago and second in the East Stroudsburg Tournament last year. After besting Shelly he went on to take second in the tournament and to receive the Outstanding Wrestler trophy.

Carl Dambman, wrestling at 190 pounds, recorded two falls, one over Rockport and one over Cobleskill Community College, before bowing to a boy from NYU.

Steve Benson, a student at UMass but wrestling unattached, came to the tournament in hopes of bettering last year's fifth place finish. Steve, wrestling at 167 pounds, drew a bye for the first round, mopped up the kid from Montclair 13-1, pinned a Leheigh boy, beat Bruckholder from the Newport Olympic Club, 16-8, and then came to his toughest opponent in the semi-finals. He faced Brennan from the powerful Penn Grapplers, and the man to beat at 167. Steve brought the crowd to their feet by putting Brennan on his back while in the position of disadvantage and thereby forging ahead to win 8-4. "Maybe I just peaked out during my match with Brennan", said Steve as he explained his 4-1 loss to Eric Knuulita of Buffalo in the finals. Knuulita came to East Stroudsburg with the National Junior College Championship and Outstanding Wrestler titles under his belt.

The rest of the team saw some victories before finally being eliminated. The results were: Dave Amato 118 lbs., decisioned Colgate 8-1, Buffalo 3-0 in overtime, and lost 2-0 to Slippery Rock (went on to place second). Barry Godowsky 126 lbs., lost to Temple 6-1. Mike McLaughlin lost 7-1 to Cincinnati. Joe Phillips, 126 lbs., was pinned by Potsdam in the second period. Dick Muri 134 lbs., lost to Morris Community College 7-5.

Gilman Resigns In Charger Controversy

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Sid Gillman, whose long career as one of football's winningest coaches was marred by controversy, resigned Monday as head coach of the San Diego Chargers at the age of 60.

Harland Svare, who was head coach of the Los Angeles Rams at the age of 31, was named to take over the Chargers in the National Football League for the rest of the season.

The Chargers named Svare, 40, general manager earlier this year to let Gillman return to coaching after a bout with ulcers.

No successor as general manager was named immediately.

Gillman's record of 104 victories as a head coach was surpassed by only five others in professional football- Weeb Ewbank, Paul Brown, George Halas, Curly Lambeau and Steve Owen.

The Chargers slipped to a 4-6 won-loss record this season with Sunday's 34-33 loss at Oakland after leading twice by 14 points. It was worse than the 56-3 mark which dismayed the San Diego management enough last season to bring Gillman back after being sidelined 13 months.

During the previous decade, Gillman coached the Chargers to an 83-51-6 record. Charlie Waller, offensive coach, then led the team in the final three games of 1969 and the 1970 season with Gillman looking over his shoulder.

Eugene V. Klein, majority owner of the team, put Gillman back in and praised him as "one of the greatest talents in pro football and a genius."

The ulcer was cured, said Gillman adding, "if I'm going to die, I'm going to die with my cleats on."

He traded to build a talented corps of receivers to replace the Dallas-bound Lance Alworth, bolstered the backfield and added such linemen as Kevin Hardy, Doug Wilkerson and Ron East.

Svare, like Gillman a former head coach of the Los Angeles Rams, was hired to relieve Gillman of the chores of general manager. Phil Bengston, former Green Bay head coach, arrived as defensive coordinator.

From an 8-3-1 record in 1955, Gillman's teams went to 4-8, then 6-6 and then 8-4 and suddenly to 2-10.

Klein said Gillman resigned "by mutual consent."

The owner added, "We felt it was in the best interest of the club that the change be made."

Prefontaine Wins Nationals

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Oregon's Steve Prefontaine outdistanced a field of 302 runners in near-freezing weather Monday and led his team to the NCAA Cross-County Championship.

The Oregon speedster, defending the individual crown he won a year ago in record time of 28:00.2, cruised around the 6-mile course at Fox Den Country Club in 29:14.0.

Prefontaine crossed the finish line 40 yards ahead of Minnesota's Garry Bjorklund, the only runner to give him a serious challenge in the race. Bjorklund was timed at 29:21.

Oregon's team score was a low 83, 39 points ahead of runnerup Washington State. The low score wins in cross country.

Four of Prefontaine's teammates finished in the top 50 in giving Oregon its smashing victory. They were Randall James 19, Patrick Tyson 31, Michael Long 35 and Richard Ritchie 48.

Prefontaine and Bjorklund raced virtually shoulder-to-shoulder for the first four miles, but the Oregon youth began pulling ahead as they entered the fifth mile.

Bjorklund said after the race he felt fine until the 4th mile, but began to tire after reaching that point.

"I didn't realize Bjorklund was hurting at four miles but I had planned to try to take him on that last hill," Prefontaine said.

Big 10 Upset At Hayes Tirade

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Big Ten Commissioner Wayne Duke, who watched Ohio State Coach Woody Hayes' tirade against football officials at Michigan Saturday, plans to talk to Buckeye athletic leaders.

The commissioner, however, would not say whether he planned to take any action against the veteran Ohio State mentor.

Duke said Monday he had already talked with Ohio State athletic director Ed Weaver, but declined to say much about their conversation Sunday.

"I talked with Ed just generally about the situation," said Duke. He said he had not talked with Hayes.

When Hayes was asked Monday if he were still angry, Woody answered with a question:

"If you make a justifiable complaint and it is not dealt with acceptably, wouldn't you be angry?"

The volatile Hayes, in his 21st Ohio State season, stormed onto the field in the final minutes. He protested to officials that an interference call should have been made on Michigan safety Tom Darden's interception.

After two 15-yard misconduct penalties against Hayes, Ohio State players and assistant coaches pulled the dean of the Big coaches off the field.

Hayes then broke a downs marker across his knee and ripped the orange trappings from the chains.

Duke viewed the incident from the Michigan press box. He just rolled his eyes skyward and said nothing after the game won 10-7 by Michigan.

"I'm going to talk to the game officials and to athletic representatives at Ohio State," said Duke. He refused to name the OSU staff members he will contact.

Weaver admitted he had talked with both Duke and Hayes.

All he would say about his conversation with Hayes was that "we talked about the team banquet. Anything else is strictly an internal matter."

Hayes did not say one word to writers after the game, even those traveling with the Buckeyes.

However, he did cut loose on his weekly television show Saturday night.

"It was a horrible, horrible call. I'm bitter about it. The officials took the game away from us. They made a joke of the game," Hayes told his viewers.

Frazier To Defend Title Against College Unknown

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP) — Joe Frazier signed a contract Monday to defend his heavyweight boxing championship here against Terry Daniels, a wealthy collegiate trying to make a name for himself in boxing.

The 15-round bout is scheduled for Jan. 15, the night before pro football's Super Bowl here, and will be carried on home television by Century Telesports Network.

It will be Frazier's first fight since successfully defending his title against former champion Muhammad Ali last March 8.

Frazier, undefeated in 27 fights, is guaranteed $250,000. Daniels, with a record of 29 victories, four losses and a draw, will receive $30,000 plus $5,000 expenses.

Daniels, a 25-year-old from Beaumont, Tex., is within six hours of a government degree at Southern Methodist University in Dallas and plans to attend law school "after I become heavyweight champion."

A relative newcomer, Daniels has knocked out 25 of his 29 victims. A third-round knockout of Ted Gulick of Cleveland earned him the shot at Frazier.

Frazier, 28, will be an overwhelming favorite, but the champion warned Monday:

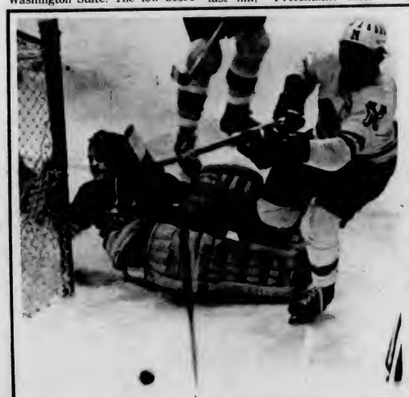
"He's young, he's got two arms that knocked out a lot of people and he's ambitious.

"I don't believe in making a lot of noise before a fight," added Frazier. "He's going to be in there trying to take away my title and I'm going to be trying to keep it. I like being the champion. It brings me a lot of things."

Daniels' parents own a multi-million dollar construction business in Cleveland and he said they often try to get him to take it over.

The good-looking father of an 18-month-old boy, Daniels noted that he was not "hungry" in the sense of the term frequently applied to young fighters.

"My parents have money, but they don't just pour it on me," he said. "I have to make my own money. But I don't want for the material things of life."



Frazier said he will train at Pleasantville, N.J., coming to New Orleans Jan. 2. Daniels said he, too, would arrive here Jan. 2 for one week's hard training after preliminary work at Dallas.

Frazier, one-half inch shorter than Daniels' six feet, said he expects to weigh 206 for the fight. Daniels said he hopes to weigh in at 192.

Top 20

NEW YORK (AP) — The Top 20, based on a 20-18-16-14-12-10-9-8-7-6-5-4-3-2-1 formula of voting, with first place votes in parentheses and total points.

1. Nebraska 40	10-0	1024
2. Oklahoma 8	9-0	976
3. Alabama 1	10-0	740
4. Michigan 3	11-0	695
5. Auburn 1	9-0	553
6. Penn St. 2	10-0	425
7. Georgia	9-1	445
8. Colorado	9-2	356
9. Arizona St.	9-1	338
10. Louisiana St.	7-3	273
11. Tennessee	7-2	236
12. Texas	7-2	229
13. Notre Dame	8-2	116
14. Toledo	11-0	106
15. Houston	8-1	82
16. Stanford	8-3	73
17. Arkansas	8-2-1	71
18. Mississippi	8-2	56
19. North Carolina	9-2	53
20. Washington	8-3	50

REDMEN TIE B.C.--After Saturday's football game the UMass hockey team scrimmaged Boston College over two and a half periods to a 4-4 tie.

P.J. Flaherty (left) makes one of his many fine saves versus the Eagles, this one a pad save off a hard slapper from far out. P.J. has been impressive in pre-season according to coach Jack Canniff.

Jack Edwards (right) goes after the loose puck in the B.C. corner. The hard skating forward will be a big factor in the offensive power of the Redmen this season.

(Both MDC photos by Barbara Brecher)

"Mac" Reflects On Football '71

By EARLE BARROLL

Don't go looking for any football tickets for the next game...there just ain't no more football to be played.

And so comes to an end the first year as head football coach at UMass for Dick MacPherson, one that has seen despair and happiness and ups and downs and just about anything else that can describe the emotions one goes through during the course of a trying season at the helm of a collegiate football team.

While the players and fans alike are taking withdrawal at a seemingly fast rate, MacPherson and his coaching staff are non-stop on the recruiting trail covering Massachusetts from top to bottom trying to attract the best athletes in the state.

The recruiting program got off to a big start in the summer with an intensive scouring of the Bay State and in the words of the head coach, "we feel we've made inroads."

Yesterday was one of those days when the coaching staff was getting itself together for the big push...and in between pep sessions and summit meetings, Dick MacPherson had time to lend his impressions to the season that had just passed.

"Mac" was very thankful for the support and stick to itness of the UMass fans. "It's a great institution and the cooperation of everybody has been tremendous. They were more than gracious and fair.

"This being my first squad, I'll never forget how they hung with us when were 1-3."

MacPherson will certainly not forget the seniors, 18 in all, who brought the team back from horrendous beginning to a winning 4-4-1 slate.

"This was a great senior class," he stated with that little bit of nastalgia that comes on when you lose someone so near and meaning to you. "Coming from 1-3 to 4-4-1 shows the true character of the team."

And as for leadership, "John Hulecki and Dennis Keating lead us right out of the early slump. They're two great men."

What pleased MacPherson so much was the fact that his team had a chance to win the Yankee Conference outright, which was the first goal of the season, but when they had a chance after the bad start to have just a piece of it his men responded to it.

Just what was it like during this stretch drive to the conference title? "We felt this thing being put together as the season progressed," Mac said, "but not to do better for the seniors in the last game (B.C.) was a sad point in the season."

What comes from a loss like this? "This should only stimulate us to try harder in the future."

When going back over the entire season one can look and look and look for the big point that turned things around and never come away with the answer...This was not 'Mac's' case.

He was quick to respond, "at the one yard line at UConn when we turned the corner."

MacPherson came to the collegiate ranks after a stay as an assistant coach for the Denver Broncos of the NFL and to him the big difference between collegiate and pro football is that in the pros most of the mistakes are physical while in the college ranks the players don't have time to put in the mental phase.

"The main phase here is education," MacPherson emphasized. "We as coaches can't concur from that."

In taking a general overview of his team MacPherson turned philosopher. "People today dedicate themselves if you prove to them that it's worthwhile and our team was dedicated to football.

"What we were trying to accomplish they bought. We tried to keep football in its proper perspective on campus and this is what they wanted."

And then you can still look back and say "what if this and what if that and if this happened and that happened....", but for MacPherson the lesson to all this and the season itself is this: "Strike when the opportunity is there...then you have no regrets."

And so ends football '71 at UMass. It bagan way up in Orono, Maine and winded its way through New England finally ending on the B.C. gridiron amongst the wealthy Alumnus, the affluent Chestnut Hill clan and the tall Gothic spires in the background.

What does MacPherson see as the best thing out of the season ending. "I'll be eating breakfast at home with my wife and children...that's a bonus."

DID SOMEONE SAY TRIALS AND TRIBULATIONS?—Just ask Dick MacPherson and this referee what its like to be out on the football field every Saturday in the fall. (MDC photo by Barbara Brecher)

Hoopsters Square-Off Tonight For Track Charity Game

By EARLE BARROLL

What is basketball '72 going to look like at UMass this season? Come to Curry Hicks Cage tonight at 7:30 and you'll get the premier showing of the varsity and freshman teams and while you're at it you'll be contributing to a worthy cause...the Tom Jasmin-Mark Robinson Memorial Track Scholarship.

From the ground plans that were laid down back in the summer by Mike Pagliara and Rick Vogeley has come this charity game to raise enough money for a track scholarship fund at the University which this program has lacked since its beginnings.

Those who knew Jasmin and Robinson were moved by their dedication to their sport and from this came the idea that Pag and Vogeley suggested to coach Jack Leaman who in turn told track coach Ken O'Brien, who had been contemplating, such a move but found this to be the answer he was looking for.

The admission is one dollar and tickets can still be purchased from any members of the freshman and varsity basketball and track teams, from the coaching staff of both squads and at the door.

This will be the first time that a varsity-freshman scrimmage will be held at UMass. Other major colleges around the country have made a yearly event of this and UMass coach Leaman would like to see this become an annual event also.

Tonight's game should be a pretty interesting battle between an experienced group of upperclassmen and an outstanding crop of freshmen.

The varsity is deep in talent but lacking the big man their forte is speed and aggressiveness and with the abundance of good ballplayers, the most ever at one time at UMass, you can look for non-stop action up and down the court from Leaman's group.

In the head coaches words earlier in the season, "we have to run to win."

On the otherhand the freshmen are a big group featuring a 6'8 inch center, John Murphy and a 6'6 forward in Tom Gillams. Both are exceptional passers for big men and can shoot and rebound with the best big men they'll come up against this season.

In the backcourt coach Fran Gaudette, in his first year as freshman coach, will have 6'3 Mike Burke, 6'2 Bill Endicott and 6' Mike Flanagan.

Burke is a sound ballplayer who does all phases of the game well. His coach calls him a headsie and extremely talented defensive player.

Endicott can put the ball in the basket...and probably put it in as well as any freshmen the Redmen will see this year. He's a hustler from basket to basket and personifies the attitude that UMass basketball is looking for.

Flanagan is the playmaker who knows what to do with the ball when he has it. He makes the team go.

Over this past weekend this squad crushed Nasau Community College on Friday and Saturday nights and should be ready to give the varsity a tough go at it...it gets underway at 7:30 at the Cage.

Tom Jasmin

82-Yard Return Paces Falcons Over Packers

ATLANTA (AP) - Jim Butler raced 82 yards with the second-half kickoff, setting up the go-ahead touchdown as the Atlanta Falcons outmuscled Green Bay 28-21 in a nationally televised National Football League game Monday night.

Ken Reaves' 31-yard return of an interception late in the third quarter set up a 38-yard scoring drive by Atlanta, with the touchdown coming on Malone's one-yard run with 11:43 left in the game.

Green Bay got back into contention when Malone fumbled and Ray Nitschke recovered at the Atlanta 24. On the first play, rookie John Brockington scored on a sweep around the right side and the Packers trailed by only five with 5:58 remaining.

Atlanta then ran four minutes off the clock before Billy Lothridge's punt was knocked out of bounds by Tony Plummer at the Packer one.

On Green Bay's first play, John Zuck forced Hunter to fumble out of the end zone for a safety.

The victory, Atlanta's first over the Packers, further tightened the torrid National Conference West race, moving the Falcons within one game of Los Angeles and one-half game of San Francisco.

Monzon Must Defend Title

PHILADELPHIA (AP) - The World Boxing Association says it will order middleweight champion Carlos Monzon of Argentina to defend his title against Philadelphia's Bernie Briscoe by March 26 or forfeit the crown.

Bull Brennan, president of the WBA, made the statememt after Briscoe, No. 1 contender, knocked out Mexican Rafael Guiterrez at 2:20 of the second round of a scheduled 10-round bout.

"Our rules require a champion to meet the leading contender every six months," said Brennan, who came from Virginia to attend the Briscoe-Cuiterrez fight.

Winter Schedules

BASKETBALL

Dec. 1	St. Anselm's	Home 8:00
Dec. 4	Vermont	Home 7:30
Dec. 8	Holy Cross	Home 8:00
Dec. 11	Northeastern	Away 8:15
Dec. 14	Connecticut	Home 8:00
Dec. 16	Manhattan	Madison Square Garden (tent
Dec. 18	Harvard	Away 8:00
Dec. 21	Hofstra	Away 8:00
Dec. 27-30	ECAC Quaker City Tournament	Phil., Pa.
Jan. 18	Vermont	Away 8:00
Jan. 22	Iona	Away 8:00
Jan. 29	Providence	Home 7:30
Jan. 31	Springfield	Home 8:00
Feb. 5	New Hampshire	Home 8:00
Feb. 5	Syracuse	Away 1:00
Feb. 9	Boston College	Away 8:15
Feb. 12	Connecticut	Away 8:00
Feb. 15	Boston Univ.	Home 8:00
Feb. 19	Rhode Island	Home 2:00
Feb. 21	New Hampshire	Away 8:00
Feb. 26	Maine	Home 7:30
Feb. 29	Rhode Island	Away 7:30
Mar. 4	Fordham	Away 8:00
Mar. 8	Maine	Away 7:35

HOCKEY

Dec. 1	Salem State	Home 8:00
Dec. 4	Vermont	Away 7:30
Dec. 8	Williams	Home 8:30
Dec. 10	Norwich	Away 7:00
Dec. 11	Middlebury	Away 7:30
Dec. 15	Boston State	Home 8:00
Dec. 17	Yale	Away 8:00
Dec. 28-30	Williams College Invitational: U. Mass., Oswego, Colby, Williams	Williams
Jan. 26	Amherst	Away 8:00
Jan. 28	Vermont	Home 7:30
Feb. 3	Merrimack	Home 8:30
Feb. 9	Connecticut	Away 7:30
Feb. 12	Northeastern	Home 2:00
Feb. 16	New Hampshire	Home 8:30
Feb. 18	Colby	Home 7:30
Feb. 19	Bowdoin	Home 3:00
Feb. 21	St. Anselm's	Away 6:00
Feb. 23	Boston State	Away 8:00
Feb. 26	Hamilton	Home 2:00
Mar. 1	Providence	Home 8:15
Mar. 4	Merrimack	Away 8:00

New England's Largest College Daily

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

Weather:

VOLUME XCIX, ISSUE 54 UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 24, 1971

Here they are. Two cold, lonely hitch-hikers on their way home for the Thanksgiving vacation. To regain some shreds of their shattered sanity, eat again of mother's homecooking.

Today it is cold out. As a public service for the entire state we cannot stress too strongly the ultimate need of picking up each and every hitch-hiker you who have cars will see when you drive home today. It is your sacred duty. (MDC photos by Pete Manera.)

Committee Discusses Chancellor's Role

By LARRY LADD

The Board of Trustees has "no preconceived notion" about who the Chancellor should be, according to Trustee Alan Shaler at yesterday's meeting of the Chancellor Search Committee. He assured the committee members that the committee had been established because the trustees were not in a position to judge the type of individual who would be best suited for the Amherst campus.

The committee discussed at some length the nature of the position of Chancellor and the type of person who could best fill the role. Much of that discussion focused on opinions and viewpoints expressed at the recent SWAP Conference. However, at no time did they discuss Bromery's candidacy.

Dealing with procedural matters, the committee was in general agreement on the text of a letter to be sent to schools around the nation soliciting nominations for chancellor. Agreement was reached on categories for a committee budget, although specific dollar amounts have not yet been determined. The committee decided to invite a maximum of twelve candidates to the campus itself for visits and interviews, but was in disagreement about the degree of confidentiality that should cloak the visits.

Most of the session was devoted to the role of the chancellor. Math Prof. Donald St. Mary argued that the campus needs "a new kind of cat", someone who could "articulate the goals of this campus" and work politically within the university system to protect the interests of the campus. He added that campus goals are presently too vague and ill-defined.

Govt. Prof. Glen Gordon agreed, saying that he sensed that the chancellor should be "an advocate of the Amherst campus." "If I had to use one phrase," he said, "it would be 'skilled politician.' " Student David Duncan contended that "we need a guy who will fight as hard as Tippo and not resign". But he also added that the campus needed a person who was willing to encourage a wide range of "academic alternatives" on campus.

Geography Prof. Terrence Burke stated that the direction of campus life was shifting from "quantity to quality," so that the campus now needs an academically-oriented individual who can concentrate on improving the academic quality of the institution. Prof. Gordon responded by commenting that "the innovative type will not survive" because campus growth is being stopped.

Objecting to the pessimism that prevailed at the session, student Marc Smith pointed out that the campus still had the opportunity to re-orient its priorities toward innovation if the right man can be found. Several other students agreed, and cited the need for commitment to women and minorities and for support of such academic innovations as residential colleges, the School of Education, the Afro-American Studies Dept., and Project 10.

Most search committee members agreed that they were dedicated to protecting the unique individuality of the campus while looking for a person who can lead faculty and students into new dimensions of educational excellence.

The committee meeting was open to the campus community. About twenty students and faculty attended the session. Some participated in the committee's deliberations.

Yesterday, the Collegian took the editorial position that the Search Committee should quickly nominate Acting Chancellor Randolph Bromery to be permanent chancellor. At the beginning of the meeting, some members of the committee jokingly referred to the Collegian's description of them as a "peevish body of scholars and administrators," but they did not deal with the paper's substantive recommendation. Instead, they tried to ascertain whether the student members were "scholars" or not.

On The Inside:

- Southwest Blackout — See page two
- Pakistan, India at War — See page four
- Mental Health — See page three
- Charity Game Success — See page twelve

Southwest Temporarily Loses Power

Southwest Residential College was without power yesterday for two hours due to problems at the physical plant. Though the cause of the power loss was not immediately known, power was restored to all but two dorms in Southwest by 3 p.m. The outage was first reported at one o'clock.

Boyden Gym and Whitmore were also affected by the failure.

The only dorms without power after three p.m. were Crampton and Prince Houses, whose power was restored at approximately nine o'clock. During the period of power loss the dorms were lighted by candles and emergency lamps in the corridors.

According to residents of the two dorms the only hardship occurred with the loss of heat, which adversely effected environmental conditions within the dormitories. However, there were no reported casualties.

Parts of Hamden Dining Commons were opened to the residents of the dorms as study areas until power could be restored.

The lights glow softly on a wintry night at Southwest. Unfortunately things weren't so aglow last night when electricity was shut off temporarily.

Strike Still On

Peter Pan Bus Lines drivers and mechanics who claim they work up to 70 hours a week with no sick leave or paid holidays went on strike at 12:01 a.m. today.

The strike could cause havoc to customers including students returning home on the eve of a Thanksgiving holiday.

William Lappalainen, customer relations director for the bus lines, said this morning that 68 workers were involved in the strike and that no Peter Pan buses will operate out of Springfield. This affects scheduled trips to major areas such as Boston and New York as well as runs out of Amherst and Northampton.

Many of the striking employes formed a picket line today in front of the Springfield terminal, Lappalainen said. He stated that he has no idea if talks between the striking Amalgamated Transportation Workers Union and Peter Pan are scheduled for today.

At issue are wages and fringe benefits.

The union is requesting a 5.5 per cent increase in wages, four paid holidays a year and five paid sick days a year. The company is offering a three per cent pay increase but will not consider paid holidays and paid sick leave which the company calls "fringe benefits", Donald Whitney, union president said.

The company claims its drivers are now making as much as $12,000 a year.

Peter Pan is not the only bus company which offers runs out of Springfield. Students can take either Greyhound or Continental Trailways. They will have to find their own transportation from Amherst to Springfield unless they can get reservations on a 1 p.m. Continental bus from Amherst.

Greyhound buses travel to New York from Springfield via Hartford. They leave Springfield at 8:55 a.m., 9:55 a.m., 11:55 a.m., 1:55 p.m., 3:55 p.m., 5:55 p.m., 8:40 p.m., and 11:25 p.m.

Buses to Boston run from Springfield to Hartford and Hartford to Boston. They leave out of Hartford at 12:10, 2:50, 5:35, 8:10 and 10:10 p.m. Full fare to Boston via this route is $7.90.

The last Peter Pan bus to leave Northampton prior to the strike was a run to Amherst at midnight.

Peter Pan drivers and mechanics had been working without a contract since October.

Western Massachusetts Bus Co. reported that they may run buses from Northampton to Worcester tomorrow that would connect for Boston. The run is usually scheduled only on weekends.

UMass Develops Maser For Molecular Study

A supercool, super-senstive maser receiver for detecting the faint signals of interstellar molecules is being developed at UMass.

Electrical engineering Professor K. Sigfrid Yngvesson's (pronounced Ingvesson) new maser is so sensitive that it has to be chilled to within a few degrees of absolute zero (minus 452 degrees fahrenheit) so it won't pick up interference from the movement of its own atoms.

It is being developed to operate at very short wavelengths not previously used in radio astronomy maser receivers. Dr. Yngvesson, before joining the UMass electrical engineering faculty, worked at the University of California in Berkeley with Dr. Charles Townes, the inventor of the maser. The group at Berkeley discovered ammonia molecules and water vapor molecules at the 12 millimeter wavelength.

In the present project, Yngvesson is concentrating on the three millimeter wavelength. The faint signals of interstellar molecules are easiest to find at this wavelength, he explained.

Traces of at least 20 different molecules have been found in the spaces between stars in the earth's galaxy in recent years. When these molecules are bombarded by radiation from the stars they radiate electromagnetic waves at characteristic frequencies that can be detected with radio telescopes.

A maser generates and amplifies radio waves and is a cousin to the laser, which operates with light waves. The name comes from Microwave Amplification by Stimulated Emission of Radiation. The essential part of maser is a substance--usually a crystal--put in an excited or high energy state. Atoms of this substance are able to radiate energy of a particular frequency when stimulated by a radio wave of the same frequency. Energy released by the atoms is added to the stimulating wave, amplifying it.

Some masers use ruby crystals; Yngvesson's maser uses a crystal of rutile with stimulation energy coming from a reflex klystron. The most crucial maser receiver components operate in a dewar flask cooled with liquid helium close to absolute zero.

"The limitation of most receivers is in the noise or static they produce," the UMass engineer explained. "At higher temperatures atoms in any material move faster and faster, producing electrical noise. When you cool most receivers down to lessen this noise, you stop the receiver but the colder the maser is the better it works."

The five-member UMass group headed by Yngvesson is cooperating with scientists in Berkeley, who are working on other design aspects. One of these is radio antenna for use with a maser receiver. "The shorter the wavelength the more accurate the antenna surface must be," Yngvesson said. Berkeley has an antenna for use with short millimeter wavelength receivers but there are no such antenna in this area.

The project is supported by a $52,200 grant from the astronomy section of the National Science Foundation. "What we're looking for in the maser is a more sensitive receiver that may not only detect new molecules in space but may detect molecules where they are less abundant and may dig out more information about those that have already been found," Yngvesson explained.

Spring Classics Faculty Appointed

The Classics program announces the appointment of three new faculty members, Associate Professor Vincent Cleary, Professor Robert Dyer, and Mrs. Elizabeth Will. In the spring semester Professor Cleary will offer a course in Latin Literature in Translation, designed especially as a useful background course for students of English and European literatures. Professor Dyer will offer a new course titled Themes in Classical Literature: The Rational Man and His Duty, in which he will lead student in an investigation of ancient ideas about the irrational emotions (such as desire, love, anger, jealousy, hysteria and obsession) and the role of reason and repression in human conduct (readings from ancient and modern sources). Professor Dyer will also teach (with the help of visiting lecturers) The Greek Mind, an intellectual history of the ancient Greeks and an investigation of the impact of Greek thought on our culture. Mrs. Will will offer The Ancient City, tracing the evolution of urban centers in the ancient Mediterranean world from the earliest Near Eastern settlements to the full growth of Rome as an imperial city; emphasis on sociological and economic considerations as well as on the topography, monuments, and daily life of the great urban centers of antiquity.

These courses are being offered as part of an expanding program in Classics designed to encourage students to examine their own lives and contemporary society and values in relation to the ideals of Greek and Roman civilizations. Students are encouraged to group several Classics courses together as a humanistic core in their programs of study, or to consider the very flexible major program in Classics which can be tailored to the needs and interests of the individual student. For further information see Professor Edward Phinney (Herter Hall 402) or any member of the Classics Staff (Herter 403, telephone 545-0512).

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

Office of the DAILY COLLEGIAN are on the second floor of the Student Union on the University campus, zip code 01002. Phones are 545-2550 (news), 545-0344 (sports), and 549-1311 (editor).

Second class postage paid at Amherst, the DAILY COLLEGIAN publishes five times weekly Monday through Friday during the academic year except during vacation and exam periods, three or four times a week following a vacation or exam period or when a holiday falls within a week. Accepted for mailing under the authority of the act of March 8, 1879 as amended by the act of June 11, 1943. Subscription rates are $6.00 per semester, $10.00 per year.

Coffee Hour

There will be a Coffee Hour on Monday November 29 from 3:00-4:30 PM in the 6th floor lounge in Thompson Hall, where you can meet with the Philosophy Faculty and find out about spring semester courses.

On Sunday, December 5, beginning at 8 PM, there will be a Department Wine and Cheese Party for philosophy students and faculty at the home of Gareth Matthews, 216 Lincoln Avenue.

Plea..e come to both events if you can. We are anxious to develop more community among UMass philosophers, and to establish stronger student-faculty ties. We want to hear your ideas on this, and we already have some (tentative) plans of our own (with resources to support them) which we're eager to get your reactions to.

If you can't come either on Monday or on Sunday, please come to see one of us, or any member of the Department, during pre-registration week (November 29-December 3). Most of us will be in our offices much of the time that week. Or call our secretaries Sue or Toby (5-2330) for appointments.

Dr. Michael Cann of University Mental Health discussed the service with students at Knowlton lounge yesterday. He stressed "flexibility" and answered the students questions concerning Mental Health. (MDC photo by Jim Lavrakas)

Explaining Mental Health

By STEVE TRIPOLI

Dr. Michael Cann of University Mental Health Services last night stressed the "flexibility" of the service and answered many questions posed by his audience in a session which lasted nearly an hour and a half.

Speaking in the Knowlton lounge in a question and answer period sponsored by the Northeast Area Government, Dr. Cann gave a brief outline of the procedures and purposes of Mental Health, stating that they are "trying to get involved beyond individual students", and then answered a number of questions.

Asked what a student who just "wanted to talk" would have to do in order to see someone, Dr. Cann replied that you must go to the offices, where "you get hit with a little questionnaire, then you're assigned." He said that it usually is a "two to three day wait, but in an emergency you can see someone the same day."

On the subject of who gets the information when you've visited Mental Health, Dr. Cann stated that all information is strictly confidential, and that without the student's written permission nothing can be released, "even to parents." He also stated that while nothing goes on the student's academic record, it does go on his Infirmary record that he has visited, but no details are given.

Speaking on the general procedure he employs when speaking to a student, Dr. Cann stated that what he tries to do is to "get them to start talking." He also said that "the basic notion behind psychotherapy is that the patient can do most himself to help himself; he has to get out and act."

Asked about group therapy, Dr. Cann replied that Mental Health is "pretty conservative" in their handling of it and stressed that though the student "should bring his problems to group, the emphasis is not on how much you can confess."

When asked if any form of hypnosis was employed by anyone here, Dr. Cann responded that it was not, because no one here had any interest in it. Their basic tools, he said, were "individual therapy, group therapy, and medication." Further discussion on the medication given out at Mental Health revealed that it is not given out very often, and that tranquilizers are the medication most commonly prescribed, with an anti-depressant "occasionally."

He also stated that some of his patients occasionally get worried that their doctor is a little too nonchalant about what they've told him. He admitted that some of the doctors occasionally slip and let out some information accidentally, among themselves but he also stressed that what seems like shocking information to most people is commonplace with them. "We get so used to the fact that we deal with people who are patients that we don't feel too shocked by this kind of information."

SW Robbery Suspect Held Under $3,500 Bail

A Brockton man is being held under $3,500 cash bail after he was charged in Hampshire County District Court with threatening a number of UMass coeds in Patterson.

Joseph A. Venuti, 23, is alleged to have walked into two dorm rooms, brandishing a dog chain wrapped around his fist, and to have threatened the residents with harm unless they gave him money.

Venuti is charged with five counts of assault with a dangerous weapon with intent to rob, nine counts of assault with a dangerous weapon, five counts of attempted larceny and one count of unlawful possession of a hypodermic syringe.

Venuti pleaded innocent to all counts except for the syringe charge, and Special Justice Raymond R. Cross ordered that the court enter a plea of innocent for that.

UMass Police Chief Alexander Blasco told Judge Cross that he would like bail set "as high as possible."

Venuti was given a copy of the drug laws advising him of his right to undergo a drug-dependency for addiction examination and told that he had five days in which to formally make the request. His case was continued to Tuesday, Nov. 30.

Book On Japan Role In WW II Aggression

Was the Emperor a war criminal and was Japan guilty of criminal aggression in World War II? "Definitely not," says UMass historian Richard H. Minear, whose "Victors' Justice," is published today (11/19) by Princeton University Press.

In his book, the first full-length treatment of the International War Crimes Tribunal, Tokyo 1946-1948, author Minear questions the historical assumptions concerning Japan's military stance. Minear contends that Japan was motivated to attack in World War II as much for reasons of self-defense and fear of encirclement as for motivations of imperial aggression. In doing so, he questions whether Japan's pre-war and wartime policy constituted aggression and whether aggression constituted a crime. These theories lead Professor Minear to question whether justice was served at the Tokyo trial and if in fact the trial ever should have taken place.

Sharply departing from previous writing on this subject, Minear claims (from a thorough investigation of primary materials) that the Japanese leaders tried at Tokyo were legally innocent by standards of international law universally accepted prior to 1945. In examining the trial, he attacks its laws, procedure, and verdict. Its law he feels was tainted by retroactivity: for example, aggression was not recognized as a crime before 1945, yet it was the chief count of the indictment. Its precedure was dubious from many aspects: prejudiced judges (one was a survivor of the Bataan death march), rules of evidence slanted against the defense, and arbitrary selection of defendants. Its verdict as history was nonsense, he adds, contradicted not only by more recent historical scholarship, but testimony during the trial as well.

In summation, Professor Minear feels "the trial's majority judgment was indeed merely a repetition of Allied propaganda issued during the war." But to this conclusion he adds, "My book is not a brief for Tojo or Japan, but rather a brief for justice, even to our enemies."

Dr. Minear is an associate professor and teaches Japanese and Vietnamese history at UMass Amherst. A previous book, "Japanese Tradition and Western Law," was published by Harvard University Press. He is a Yale University graduate with M.A. and Ph. D. degrees from Harvard.

MDC Classifieds Pay

Callahan Hires 3 New DA's

Three new assistant district attorneys for Hampshire County will be hired "probably the second week in December," Northwestern District Atty. John M. Callahan said today.

Yesterday Callahan was among a delegation of district attorneys who met with Gov. Francis W. Sargent to urge him to sign a bill passed by the legislature which creates 27 new assistant DAs for the state, three of which will be for Hampshire County.

Sargent finally signed the bill, making it law. If he had not signed it before midnight last night, the bill would have been killed.

"I think this is the most important bill passed by the legislature and signed by the Governor this year in the area of court reform," Callahan said.

The three new men will be hired at the authorized salary of $7,000 a year, Callahan said. Each is now a practicing attorney in Hampshire County.

Callahan said he would announce their names at the end of next week.

The funds to cover the first year's salary of the new men, he said, would come from federal money appropriated for the use of the Governor's Committee on Public Safety. Callahan, who is a member of the committee, said that the group would meet Dec. 10 to consider the $265,000 appropriation. "I'll be voting for it," he said.

"The caseload in this district has increased from 147 to 1,700 a year in five years," Callahan said. Much of the work which needs to be done is in the area of pre-trial motions; he said, and there the added assistants will be especially valuable.

"I think this new legislation will enable the public and the defendants to have their cases disposed of more quickly," Callahan said. "In the past it has happened that defendants have been in jail from six to nine months waiting trial."

New CASIAC Services

Two new services will be available to College of Arts and Sciences students during Counseling Week, November 29 through December 3: first, the CASIAC Office in Machmer E-22 will be open continuously from 8:30 am until 8:30 pm each day, and secondly, experienced students who have done academic counseling during summer orientation will be available in E-24 Machmer to provide counseling which supplements that normally given by faculty counselors. Students who need advice regarding their elections for the Spring Term or who would simply like to discuss their academic program in general are invited to stop by to take advantage of these services, as well as the normal faculty counseling services.

Because preregistration forms must be completed and returned to the Registrar's Office by 5:00 pm, Wednesday, December 8, we anticipate a rather rushed and crowded counseling week. If you find the office crowded when you first stop by, therefore, we urge you to check back around dinner time or early the next morning.

Students who have already declared a major will normally be counseled in their departments, but they too may stop by CASIAC if they wish, either to consult with a student counselor, a faculty counselor serving as a generalist, or one of the new CASIAC counselors in pre-law or pre-social work. Students who wish to change their major should pick up a change-of-major form at the Registrar's Office or at CASIAC and meet with the Chief Advisor in his departmental office.

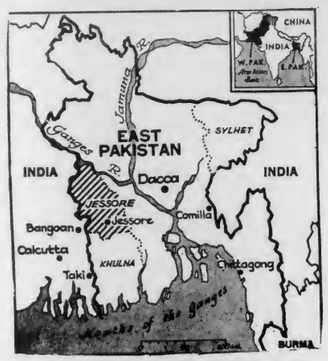
Students who are declaring a major for the first time -- and students are encouraged to delay declaring a major until their fourth term in the College -- should stop by CASIAC for at least a brief chat with a faculty counselor who is a generalist.

Finally, because most of us in CASIAC are new, and because we are experimenting with new approaches to academic counseling we will welcome your suggestions. If, therefore, you have some advice and counseling for us, will you please either mention your ideas to your counselor or drop us a note in the suggestion box outside E-22.

Open Meetings for the Senior Committee will be held Tues., Nov. 30 Mon., Dec. 6 Thurs., Dec. 9 at 1 p.m. in Rm. 905-9, C.C. ALL SENIORS WELCOME

Program Council Presents

"HOTEL"



adapted from Arthur Hailey's novel

Sunday, Nov. 28 7:00, 9:30 p.m.

S.U. Ballroom 50¢

In The Nation And The World

India-Pakistan War Raging

The center of the fighting. (Map by New York Times)

NEW DELHI (AP)-As heavy fighting raged in East Pakistan, India claimed Tuesday that its Gnat jets had shot down three Pakistani warplanes in a dogfight over Indian territory.

V.C. Shukla, minister of defense production, told cheering Indian legislators that all four of India's home-built fighters had returned safely after the confrontation Monday with Pakistani Sabre Jets near Calcutta.

One Pakistani craft escaped but pilots of the three downed planes bailed out, he said, claiming two of the three were captured.

Pakistan reported three of its Sabre Jets were attacked by 8 to 10 Indian Gnats inside East Pakistan and "two of the Sabre Jets failed to return." It alleged that two of the Indian planes were shot down.

A Pakistan army source in Dacca, the East Pakistani capital, claimed his countrymen demolished 18 Indian tanks and inflicted heavy casualties on Indian soldiers in fierce ground fighting along the East Pakistani borders with India.

Senior army officers in Rawalpindi, the central Pakistani capital, said Pakistan has lost eight planes in the fighting over East Pakistan and suffered heavy ground casualties, military attaches reported. But a Pakistani army spokesman denied their report.

Pakistan charged Indialaunched a large-scale offensive Monday, attacking in the Jesore, Sylhet and Chittagong regions on either side of the embattled province.

India denied the charges and said the attacks came from East Pakistani independence fighters trying to wrest the province from government control.

A guerrilla leader at a rear base inside East Pakistan told Santosh Basak of The Associated Press Monday that the fighting was a do-or-die guerrilla thrust to grasp control over the Bay of Bengal coastal area and strangle Pakistani supply routes from the sea.

Guerrillas have been receiving supplies and training in India since Pakistan dispatched its army last March to crack down on an independence movement in East Pakistan. India reports the turmoil has driven more than nine million East Pakistani refugees into India.

Pakistan President Agha Mohammed Yahya Khan declared a state of emergency in his country-which has been under martial law since March 1969- "in view of the threat of foreign aggression."

Yahya has stated he would not hesitate to declare war against India if it helped the Mukti Bahini capture any territory in East Pakistan.

But despite the Pakistani claim that Indian troops were occupying some East Pakistani border areas, only scattered incidents were reported on the border between India and West Pakistan in disputed Kashmir State.

Pentagon Demotes Five High-Ranking Officers

WASHINGTON (AP)-The Pentagon confirmed Tuesday demotions or reprimands are planned for five high-ranking Army officers as a result of the bloody North Vietnamese attack on U.S. Fire Base Mary Ann last March. Thirty-three Americans were killed and 76 wounded in the surprise assault.

Spokesman Jerry W. Friedheim acknowledged only that "letters of intent to take administrative action" were sent to five individuals Nov. 8.

Although Friedheim refused to identify them or discuss details, sources said the five include Maj. Gen. James L. Baldwin, former commander of the Americal Division.

It was learned that Secretary of the Army Robert F. Froehlke has decided to reprimand Baldwin-a procedure which usually forecloses any further promotions.

The others, including two colonels, a lieutenant-colonel and a major, face either reprimand, demotion or both. All five were given 60 days to present evidence that could change the secretary's mind regarding the punishment, which does not require trial by courtmartial.

The sources said a lengthy investigation of the March 28 enemy sapper attack holds Baldwin, as division commander, responsible for "failure to insure that adequate defense measures were taken" around the hilltop outpost. Similar complaints are lodged against the other four, one of whom also is accused of dereliction, the sources said.

In the night attack on Fire Base Mary Ann, a battalion headquarters of the Americal's 196th Infantry Brigade 25 miles west of Chu Lai, enemy sappers crawled through the barbed wire and grenaded bunkers manned by 400 GIs.

The North Vietnamese suffered few losses, but left 109 Americans killed or wounded-the heaviest toll at a U.S. firebase during the Vietnam war.

After the attack some officers and enlisted men claimed the base's defenses were lax and the troops were not prepared for an enemy assault.

Froehlke's action is based on the recommendation of Gen. William C. Westmoreland, Army chief of staff, following investigations.

The sources said Westmoreland recommended that Baldwin be reprimanded and demoted to brigadier general. But Froehlke, the sources said, overruled Westmoreland and decided that a reprimand would be sufficient.

Baldwin, 50, a native of Omaha, Neb., was destined for further promotion until he was relieved of command of the Americal Division last July and reassigned to a Pentagon desk job to await the outcome of the investigation.

The other officers facing punishment are Col. Alphus R. Clark of Ft. Jackson, S.C., former Americal chief of staff; Col. William Hathaway of Portsmouth, Va., former 196th Infantry Brigade commander; Lt. Col. William P. Doyle of Pittsburgh, former battalion commander with the 196th Infantry Brigade commander; Lt. Col. William P. Doyle of Pittsburgh, former battalion commander with the 196th; and Doyle's operations officer at the time of the attack, Maj. Stanley J. Wisneiewski of Sugar Notch, Pa.

Earlier this year similar administrative punishment was carried out against another former Americal commander, Maj. Gen. Samuel W. Koster, and his former assistant, Brig. Gen. George H. Young Jr. Both were accused of failing to properly investigate the 1968 My Lai massacre.

In Brief...

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Price Commission approved increases for two big steel firms and the Western Electric Co. Tuesday as the Pay Board ruled that employers may continue established practices of granting merit raises.

However, the price panel put off decisions on higher auto prices for Ford and Chrysler products and higher coal prices to compensate for a 15 cent raise in miner's pay approved by the Pay Board last week.

*****

RAVENNA, Ohio (AP) — A jury of eight men and four women was seated Tuesday to hear the trail of Jerry Rupe, 23, one of 25 persons indicted last fall on charges stemming from the 1970 disorders at Kent State University.

Rupe is charged with arson, first-degree riot, assaulting a fireman and interfering with firemen during a May 2, 1970, blaze which destroyed a campus ROTC building.

*****

FT. MEAD, Md. (AP) — Col. Oran K. Henderson testified Tuesday he investigated the My Lai operation and concluded "there had been no wrongdoing."

The 51-year-old officer, accused of covering up the My Lai massacre, took the stand as the final defense witness three months to the day the first prosecution witness appeared.

*****

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republican talk of a presidential veto of the pending tax-cut bill was discounted Tuesday by the man who will have a large say in whether the legislation includes the provision for federal financing of presidential election campaigns.

*****

BOSTON (AP) — A Boston pediatric surgeon has successfully removed a giant, cancerous mole from a newborn infant in the first reported surgery of its kind, he reported Monday.

The malignant birthmark covered about 12 percent of the three-week-old boy's body when removed.

Agencies Discuss Pep Pills

WASHINGTON (AP)-Ranking officials of three federal agencies met in a hurriedly called session Tuesday to revive a recommendation, lost in the bureaucratic paper mills two months ago, to curb 1972 production of pep pills.

Their decisions were to be kept under wraps pending Justice Department action Friday distributing the nation's first amphetamine and methamphetamine quotas to the pharmaceutical industry.

NOW..YOUR CHOICE OF 5!
Showcase Cinema
Rt. 5-W. Spfld.
732-5131
MORE NEW SHOWS!
MORE NEW LOUNGER SEATS!
MORE NEW PARKING!
MATINEES DAILY...POPULAR PRICES
Adults $1.50 Also thru Fri Nites
1 Gone With The Wind G
2 French Connection R
3 Sunday Bloody Sunday R
4 Joe Hill GP
5 Together X
ACRES FREE PARKING
ROCKER LOUNGERS
CHARGE YOUR TICKETS

Genuine
Chinese Food
at Drummer Boy
University Drive
Business Hrs: Wed. thru Friday, 5 p.m. to 9 p.m.; Sat. and Sun. 12 noon to 9 p.m.

THAT "ODD COUPLE" IS AT IT AGAIN...
(GP)
you'll SCREAM
Campus III
Daily 7:15 & 9:15
Sun. 2:00, 7:15 9:15
WALTER MATTHAU "KOTCH"

Campus Cinemas
256-6411
AMHERST-HADLEY LINE
SUNDAY MATINEES
2 p.m. - All Three Shows

DOLLAR - NIGHTS -
Mon. & Tues.
Everyone $1

"A LOT OF FANCY WORDS TO SHOW WHAT IS REALLY AN EROTIC MOVIE!"
"I THOUGHT IT WAS TERRIFIC - STRESSED THE IMPORTANCE OF FEELING!"
Together
Campus II
Daily 7:15, 9
Fri. & Sat. 7, 8:30, 10:00
Sun. 2, 7:15, 9

CRY UNCLE!
laugh till you
From the Director of "Joe"
RATED A VERY FUNNY "X"
Campus I
Daily: 7:00 & 9:00
Sun: 2:00, 7 & 9

ARVN Convoys Pour Into N.E. Cambodia

SAIGON (AP)-Reports from Phnom Penh indicated Tuesday the new South Vietnamese drive into Cambodia already had relieved pressure on the Cambodian northeastern front.

South Vietnamese troop convoys continued to pour across the Cambodian border in the second day of the offensive aimed at North Vietnamese sanctuaries and supply depots.

Dispatches from the Cambodian capital said the North Vietnamese 9th Division, which had pinned down nearly 20,000 Cambodian troops on the northeastern front, appeared to be pulling back to meet the South Vietnamese threat to its rear areas.

Cambodian military sources reported several units of the 9th Division are believed to be moving southward toward the rubber plantations not far from the South Vietnamese border, the prime target of the offensive.

The buildup of both sides of the border 55 to 85 miles northwest of Saigon involves more than 15,000 troops, although it was not immediately clear how many are actively maneuvering and how many were being held in reserve. Reports from the front indicated little or no enemy resistance so far.

A 1,000-man task force of South Vietnamese rangers and 40 armored vehicles pushed through dense jungle and rubber groves nine miles north of Krek and 15 miles inside Cambodia in their deepest penetration since the last dry season.

Associated Press correspondent George Esper reported from forward headquarters at Tay Ninh that the rangers were supported by three U.S. B 52 bombers, which struck about 10 miles north of their position.

South Vietnamese field commanders claimed 36 North Vietnamese troops killed in small, scattered clashes north of Highway 7. No government casualties were reported.

U.S. advisers said the rangers turned back toward Krek late Tuesday after finding a deserted enemy base camp containing 60 empty bunkers and abandoned rocket launching sites. Many of the bunkers were destroyed.

South Vietnamese troops are expected to continue this tactic of making lightning raids deep into enemy territory, then returning to the relative security of Highway 7 if they encounter no opposition.

If they do find North Vietnamese troops, they have orders to maintain contact until reinforcements arrive.

Key targets of the drive are staging areas and rear headquarters of the North Vietnamese 5th, 7th and 9th Divisions. One objective is to divert the 9th Division from the northeast approaches to Phnom Penh.

A Cambodian liaison team is stationed at Tay Ninh, the South Vietnamese forward headquarters, to assist in operational planning. U.S. advisers are with government units on the South Vietnamese side of the border.

Although U.S. military advisers are not permitted to cross over into Cambodia, the United States did have some observers at Krek.

Newsmen reported seeing three uniformed Americans who identified themselves as members of the U.S. Military equipment delivery team that is authorized to be in Cambodia and works out of Phnom Penh.

U.S. helicopter gunships, fighter-bombers and B52 Stratofortresses are supporting the South Vietnamese drive.

Asked if American helicopters conducted any troop lifts, a U.S. Command spokesman replied: "I don't have that information. We no longer have the operational channels set up to report this."

U.S. helicopter gunships destroyed an antiaircraft and a 2 1/2 ton truck in the extreme northwest corner of South Vietnam while B52s continued pounding enemy positions and supply lines in both Laos and Cambodia.

The command said tactical fighter-bombers also flew missions in direct support of Laotian troops.

South Vietnamese headquarters reported light ground actions across the country, most of them in the central highlands near the convergence of the Laos, Cambodia and South Vietnam borders.

In Phnom Penh, the Cambodian high command reported an armored column slugged it out with North Vietnamese or Viet Cong forces only three miles from the end of the capital's Pochentong Airport runway.

The U.S. Command announced Tuesday that soldiers scheduled to complete their Vietnam tours by next Jan. 15 will be home for Christmas.

The "Christmas curtailment" program will apply to Army personnel scheduled to leave Vietnam between Dec. 6 and Jan. 15.

Christmas curtailments also are likely to move up the rotation dates of soldiers to leave later in January.

Similar efforts have been made in past years to get as many soldiers as possible home for the holidays.

Senate Passes Israeli Weapons Bill

WASHINGTON (AP)-The Senate moved Tuesday to force President Nixon's hand by voting $500 million in credits for sales of F4 jets and other military weapons to Israel.

The amendment by Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., was approved by a vote of 82 to 14 after the Senate rejected 81 to 14 a move to block the funds on grounds aid had not previously been authorized.

Adoption of Jackson's amendment to a $70.2-billion defense appropriations bill brought the amount voted by the Senate for Israel in about a year to $1.3 billion.

Jackson said that $300 million is in a foreign-aid bill facing possible stalemate in a Senate-House conference committee.

The topheavy vote in favor of the extra funds for Israel came only hours after a group of eight senators met with Secretary of State William P. Rogers on the administration's decision to hold off additional arms aid for Israel at this time.

Sen. Abraham A. Ribicoff, D-Conn., called the session unsatisfactory and said it would only serve to increase Senate criticism.

President Nixon, meanwhile, moved to head off a Senate challenge to his policies in Europe by urging Senate rejection of the amendment to force a 60,000-man cut in U.S. European troop strength by June 15, 1972, bringing it down to 250,000.

In a letter to Sen. John C. Stennis, D-Miss., chairman of the Armed Services Committee, Nixon said the amendment included in the bill by the Appropriations Committee "would be a great mistake" at a time when East-West talks are proceeding on possible mutual troop withdrawals, the question of Berlin and the strategic arms limits.

"Passage of the proposed troop cut would, with one stroke, diminish Western military capability in Europe and signal to friend and adversary alike a disarray and weakness of purpose in the American government," Nixon said.

The administration dispatched Deputy Secretary of Defense David R. Packard to the weekly Republican Policy Committee luncheon in a move to drum up opposition to the amendment.

Republican Leader Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania told reporters after breakfast with the President that approval of either the NATO amendment or a move expected Wednesday to cut off U.S. funds for the war in Inodchina except for U.S. withdrawal would lead to grave difficulties.

Senate leaders hope Senate passage of the bill would come before it quits Wednesday night for the Thanksgiving weekend.

Envoy Assails Common Market

LONDON (AP)-Assailing artificial trade barriers, a special envoy of President Nixon said Tuesday night they were erected by the European Common Market and other economic groups for selfish ends. He called for cooperation in building a new world commerce system.

"The U.S. administration is determined to find a better deal for American farm trade," the envoy, William Eberle, said. "It is determined to find ways to rationalize the chaotic conditions of the world market which result from nationalistic decisions which are often economically senseless decisions."

Eberle is the President's special representative for trade negotiations. He spoke to the British Trade Policy Research Center on the eve of tariff talks in the General Agreement of Tariffs and Trade--GATT-in Geneva.

"Unless something is done in agriculture, we simply cannot make further progress in improving our econimic relations," Eberle declared. "In fact, unless something is done soon, our relations are likely to get worse."

He appealed to his audience of British bankers and businessmen to work for greater cooperation on a worldwide scale when Britain becomes a member of the European Common Market, now set for Jan. 1, 1973.

The special envoy also had harsh words for the four members of the European Free Trade Association--EFTA--who are not joining the Common Market with Britain. The four are Austria, Portugal, Sweden and Switzerland.

"In the eyes of American business people, these countries want to have their cake and eat it too," Eberle said "They want the pleasures of free trade in industry but only with Europe. They do not want to pay the political costs of full membership.

They do not want to liberalize nontariff barriers or agricultural policies against the rest of the world as payment for solution of their industrial tariff problem."

Eberle called for immediate negotiations on a world scale to draft a pact for "across-the-board elimination of substantially all industrial tariffs."

These talks should also serve to draft rules on nontariff barriers to trade, services and investment, agree on specific commitments to open world markets for agricultural goods and rationalize national farm policies.

Jerry Lewis Twin Cinema
586-3209
Cinema 1
Hellstrom Cronicle 7
Gimme Shelter 9
Cinema 2
Patton 7:15
Admission $1 with College ID M-TH
Hemp Shopping Plaza
King St., Northampton

Fabricworld
Holiday Sale
FASHION FABRICS for 8 Big Days!
POLYESTER CREPE
Machine Washable Polyester Double Knits
Val. to 5.99 3.99
*58/60" wide
*Fashion Colors
Reg. 3.99 yard $2.59
*Machine Washable
*Solid Colors
*45-inches wide
Satins Jacquards Metallics
Brocades
Values to $8.50 yard 99¢ and $1.99
Crompton's Crushed Velvet
Reg. 5.99 yard $3.99
*100% Rayon
*Dry Clean
*39/40" wide
Hand Washable Bonded Crepe
$1.99
Reg. 2.99
*45" wide
*Acetate/Nylon Blend
AMHERST 1 Pray St.
Daily 9:30 - 5:30 Fri. til 9
NORTHAMPTON
21 Pleasant St.
Open Daily 9:30 - 5:30
Thurs. til 9:00

The Massachusetts
Daily Collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

BOARD OF EDITORS

EDITOR IN CHIEF — Richard C. Hanson
MANAGING EDITOR — Nathan Gorenstein
BUSINESS MANAGER — James Gold
EXECUTIVE EDITOR — Barry J. Rubenstein
NEWS EDITOR — Anne C. Stadnicki
SPORTS EDITOR — Earle T. Barroll

PHOTO EDITOR — Gib Fullerton
FINE ARTS EDITOR — Robert Nesti

TODAY'S STAFF

ISSUE EDITOR — Steve Fine
NEWS STAFF — Nathan Gorenstein
SPORTS — Steve Gershwin
EDITORIAL — David Williams
DARKROOM — Alan Chapman
AD LAYOUT — Bill Manburg

Undergraduate newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The Staff is responsible for its content and no faculty members or administration read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.
Unsigned editorials represent the views of this paper. They do not necessarily reflect the views of the faculty, administration, or student body as a whole. Signed editorials, columns, reviews, and letters represent the personal views of the writers.

You Deserve It

This is the time of year that supposed to stir in our hearts a brief yet sincere moment of thanksgiving.

A moment that should be divided equally between gratitude for all that our bountiful, yet deteriorating, world has granted us, and absolute kowtowing to the forces which saved us from some of the things that could have happened.

For example, the UMass Varsity football team could have been forced to disband after threats from the Student Senate, forcing all of the people who are getting back into the social aspects of Saturday afternoon football (Lambrusco and apricot brandy to mention a couple.) to seek a new social movement. This is the year UMass seems to want to re-capture the "Good-Party-School Award."

That faculty should be thankful that bad things, like President Wood slapping a 50% limit on tenured faculty (like in Boston, which doesn't have 14% already tenured) haven't occurred yet. The faculty might also bow their head reverently when thinking how their own lack of initiative in the organizing themselves and working for academic reform has not yet damaged irreparably their status here at UMass.

The participants in the SWAP conference can be thankful that the residents of Northfield had passed a special referendum several years ago allowing the Northfield Inn to be the only establishment allowed to serve alcohol in the whole dry town.

President Wood can be very thankful he doesn't have his offices located on the Amherst campus, especially when not everybody here agrees with his way of doing things. We can all be thankful that President Wood is no longer referring to his operation as the "System". (It is now the "University")

Have a nice thanksgiving. You deserve it.

"You Certainly Seem To Be Helping SOME People To Help Themselves"

David Williams

Gobble, Gobble

If the chancellor Search Committee wishes to waste its time arguing about words, then that is its perrogative. However, it is to be hoped that this longiloquent collection of argumentative pedants, students and administrators will soon cut out the bullshit and get down to work.

I refer, of course, to Prof. Samuel Pemberton Johnson's uncalled-for outburst concerning the MDC's use of the word "peevish" to describe the Search Committee.

Prof. Johnson said, "The Daily Collegian has lowered its dubious standards to an even more debasing level in its use of this word...I call for a thorough investigation of the perpetrators of this beastly act...It's time to take the free and responsible to task for its malapropism..."

Prof. Johnson is remembered as the man who tried to hold up the First National Bank downtown one night while sleepwalking. We don't need his comments added to this issue.

But unfortunately the Committee saw fit to cite Dr. Johnson for his remarks, and voted that a bronze medal bearing his likeness be struck and given out at appropriate times to people who contribute more than their share to the all-enveloping piles of academic compost that clog the campus.

I regret this decision and hope that the Search Committee will take steps to eliminate Dr. Johnson from the Committee as soon as possible. A harsh fate, you may be sure, but nonetheless, it must be done in the name of justice. If UMass is ever going to get a new chancellor, if we are ever going to regain some kind of balance, we must be prepared to sacrifice a little.

Surely Dr. Samuel Johnson cam grasp my point, and understand.

Art Buchwald

Explaining Thanksgiving

(Every Thanksgiving Day the French ambassador to the United States delivers a strong note to the State Department demanding to know why all the government offices in Washington are closed. A fourth secretary on the duty desk at State hands him the following reply in a language the French ambassador will understand.)

WASHINGTON—One of our most important holidays is Thanksgiving Day (known in France as le jour de merci donnant).

Le jour de merci donnant was first started by a group of Pilgrims (pelerins) who fled from l'Angeleterre before the McCarran Act to found a colony in the new world (le nouveau mode), where they could shoot Indians (les peaux-rouges) and eat turkey (dinde) to their heart's content. They landed at a place called Plymouth (now a famous voiture Americaine) in a wooden sailing ship called the Mayflower (or Fleur de mai) in 1620. But while the pelerins were killing the dines, the peaux-rouges were killing the pelerins, and there were several hard winters ahead for both of them. The only way the peaux-rouges helped the pelerins was when they taught them to grow corn (mais). The reason they did this was because they liked corn with their pelerins.

In 1623, after another harsh year, the pelerins' crops were so good that they decided to have a celebration and give thanks because more mais was raised by the pelerins than pelerins were killed by les peaux-rouges.

Every year on the jour de merci donnant, parents tell their children an amusing story about the first celebration.

It concerns a brave capitaine named Miles Standish (known in France as Kilometres Deboutish) and a young, shy lieutenant named Jean Alden. Both of them were in love with a flower of Plymouth called Priscilla Mullens (no translation). The vieux capitaine said to the jeune lieutenant:

"Go to the damsel Priscilla (allez tres vite chez Priscilla), the loveliest maiden of Plymouth (la plus jolie demoiselle de Plymouth). Say that a blunt old captain, a man not of words but of action (un vieux Fanfan la Tulipe), offers his hand and his heart, the hand and heart of a soldier. Not in these words, you know, but this, in short, is my meaning.

"I am a maker of war (je suis un fabricant de la guerre) and not a maker of phrases. You, bred as a scholar (vous, qui etes pain comme un etudiant), can say it in elegant language, such as you read in your books of the pleadings and wooings of lovers, such as you think best adapted to win the heart of the maiden."

Although Jean was fit to be tied (convenable a etre emballe), friendship prevailed over love and he went to do his duty. But instead of using elegant language he blurted out his mission. Priscilla was muted with amazement and sorrow (rendue muette par l'etonnement et la tristesse).

At length she exclaimed, interrupting the ominous silence: "If the great captain of Plymouth is so very eager to wed me, why does he not come himself and take the trouble to woo me?" (Ou est-il, le vieux kilometres? Pourquoi ne vient-il pas aupres de moi pour tenter sa chance?)

Jean said that Kilometres Debontish was very busy and didn't have time for those things. He staggered on, telling what a wonderful husband Kilometres would make. But finally Priscilla arched her eyebrows and said in a tremulous voice: "Why don't you speak for yourself, John?" (a cacun son gout)."

And so, every fourth Thursday in November, American families sit down at a large table brimming with tasty dishes, and for the only time during the year eat better than the French do.

No one can deny that le jour de merci donnant is a grand fete and no matter how well-fed American families are, they never forget to give thanks to Kilometres Deboutish, who made this great day possible.

Copyright 1971, Los Angeles Times

'. . . OR MAYBE WE COULD MAKE THE DECISION WE DON'T WANT. SEND IT TO THE SENATE TO BE OVER-RULED AND END UP WITH THE DECISION WE DO WANT!'

Letters To The Editor

I Never Thought I'd Get Involved

To the Editor:

This weekend I attended the SWAP Conference at the Northfield Inn. My decision to get involved in SWAP (the Student Workshop on Activities Problems) was completely spontanous; I read the article in the Collegian and applied. I will never regret that decision. If I had learned nothing at the conference (which is far from the truth) the opportunity to meet the administrators, the faculty and involved students of this University in a relaxed atmosphere was invaluable to me.

I had never realized what a qualified and concerned staff we have. Because of the size and diversity of programs on the campus, I had always considered the leaders of the University to be unapproachable, intangible, and very bureaucratic. Therefore, it was an extremely gratifying surprise to discover the friendly and sincere personalities who are molding and shaping the future of UMass. The experience of meeting the staff is available to every student, but few realize that the faculty and administration actually do want to meet the students with whom they work and live.

The Student Senate will soon be evaluating the value of SWAP, since funds are appropriated to subsidize the conference. I would like to strongly urge the senators to retain the program; the money is serving a worthwhile purpose. I learned this weekend not only numerous facts concerning the chancellor, security, counseling, residential colleges, and academic programming, but also I was made aware of the potential of this University.

The problems we face are formidable, but if I could somehow capture the spirit of interaction and responsiveness that was generated at the SWAP Conference and bring it back to the community, I feel the University of Massachusetts could be developed into a more satisfying and sensitive educational institution.

Betty Londergan

M.Y.O.B.

To the Editor:

To the members of the Southwest Assembly who recently decided to censure and penalize houses which hold discriminatory parties in the area, I would like to, in return, condemn you for your irrational and repressive behavior.

Your decision will significantly benefit no one. Not the females, who go to these parties through their own volition, and not the males, who, in order to keep the parties attractive, decide to "foot the bill".

At a party where the males greatly outnumber the females the behavior may descend to something that is less than complimentary to both sexes.

Your decision to legislate your own morality to people who neither care for your views nor find their own to be degrading is regrettable. The repression is similar to that practiced by people whose ideology considers marijuana unnecessary and harmful and who feel that abortion ignores the rights of the fetus.

In a truly free society, that which proves popularly successful and which does not adversely effect those who choose not to particpate should not be legislated against.

The harm that "free admission for girls" does has been exaggerated. The importance of autonomy has been ignored. The people of Southwest should not be forced to live according to ideals which have not yet been realistically applied to the society as a whole. When this society changes so that party price discrimination is not necessary or desired, then the battle will be meaningfully won.

Frank Tripoli

Sez Who?

To the Editor:

The Collegian issue of Nov. 17 contained an article concerning the use of fiberglass concrete forms by the participants of the boat races during the festival of life. Last summer the D. O'Connell Construction Co. asked the University to drain the campus pond in order to retrieve the concrete forms from the bottom of the pond. The end result of the festival of life was the death of most of the aquatic wildlife in our pond. The irresponsibility of those who participated in the boat races and polluted the campus pond should not be glorified in the campus newspaper.

Len Schultz

Doctor, Doctor

To the Editor:

Perhaps one of our country's most subtly critical problems has become painfully apparent in the past few years: the lack of doctors. This situation demands innovative and dynamic leadership in the educational structure of our doctors including the absolute necessity for the advent of the paraprofessional in medicine. As is already present in the legal and teaching professions, medicine must promptly enact paraprofessional schooling on a national basis which would: 1) create more jobs and 2) more importantly, offer better and more comprehensive patient care.

Clearly the 200 odd U.S. medical schools whose average class of 100 cannot even begin to accommodate the 225 million people of our country. Applications for these 100 positions sometimes number in the thousands of qualified undergraduates, but with current facilities and educational dogmas only a very few are selected. Hence, these thousands, many of whom are potentially good medical prospects, since no other medical option is available, turn to other professions for employment.

Something very vital and electric must happen to our complacent acceptance of medical training. We can no longer accept the mere handful of doctors generated yearly by our current system. We therefore need a new system, one in which our higher potential undergraduate resources could be much more efficiently utilized.

Stephen D. Gladis

Half A Loaf

To the Editor:

Dear Joel Stoneham:

I am writing to you in reference to the purchasing policies of the snack bar in Hampden Commons-Bites and Pieces. I realize that inflation has done a job on food prices these days. I also realize that it is impossible to quote all available prices to find the best possible deal on any one item. However, I feel that you are greatly in error in regard to your source of rye bread. When I recently invested in a tuna fish sandwich, I was stricken by a ten cent ($.10) surcharge, for the luxury of having it on rye bread. Now I don't know where you purchase your rye bread, but at five cents ($.05) a slice, there being thrity slices (approximately) in a loaf, I would estimate that you paid one dollar and fifty cents ($1.50) for each loaf. Fully realizing (as do all of us in the University community) that you wouldn't charge more than was absolutely necessary to maintain expenses, I felt it my duty to tip you off to the possibility that you just might be getting ripped of. I do hope you make another evaluation of your purchasing policies in this area. I know that, in all cases, you have our best interest in mind; I can rest assured that you will take immediate action on this most important matter.

Richard C. Geffin

Editorial Points

Question-if there were legal abortion in the year 1 B.C., would there be a Campus Crusade today? Reflect upon that while staring intently at your navel.

* * *

Will the UMies come through? Will hitch-hikers go unnoticed and unwanted today? Will those people with nice warm cars go driving right by all the rest who are stuck thumbing? Only time will tell.

* * *

The turkey you will eat tomorrow contains enough strontium 90 in its flesh to kill one of Hanibal's elephants.

The Jews In Syria

NEW YORK...A story of harassment, imprisonment, the forced commission of unnatural acts, beatings and other barbarous tortures was revealed last week by a 17-year-old Jewish boy who recently escaped from the terror under which the Jews of Syria now live.

Speaking at a news conference called by the Committee of Concern headed by Gen. (Retired) Lucius D. Clay, the youth, who used the fictitious name of Eli Levy to protect friends and relatives still in Syria described the condition of Syrian Jews as one of "continual fear and a feeling of perpetual danger."

Syrian Jews, he stated, must carry identity cards on which the word "Jew" is prominently written across both the face and back of the card in red ink. They are barred from leaving the country and may not travel outside a radius of five kilmeters (3 miles) from their homes without a special permit. They are subjected to a a variety of economic restrictions and kept under constant surveillance by the secret police.

The young man, who speaks Arabic and some French, had the services of an interpreter as he answered questions put to him by General Clay. He stated that the Jewish community in Syria today numbers about 5,000 with about 3,500 living in the capital city of Damascus, 1,000 in Aleppo and 500 in Kamishlie.

The young man described his own experiences in Damascus, which included a total of 12 days in prison on three different occasions. During these times, he stated, he personally witnessed brutal floggings and other degradations of prisoners.

The first imprisonment occurred, he stated, when his young brother and a friend managed to flee the country. After their departure, he and his elder brother, together with the father and a brother of the other boy went--in accordance with Syrian regulations--to report their absence to the Deuxieme Bureau (secret police), which maintains a special office in the Jewish quarter. All four were held in prison for four days. At the end of those four days, the father of the other boy emerged emaciated and half crazed. He had been forced to undress and to violate his son.

Also at the end of those four days, Mr. "Levy" continued, his brother had contracted typhoid fever, and he himself, as a result of beatings developed an ear injury and displacement of discs in his spinal column both of which ailments still affect him today.

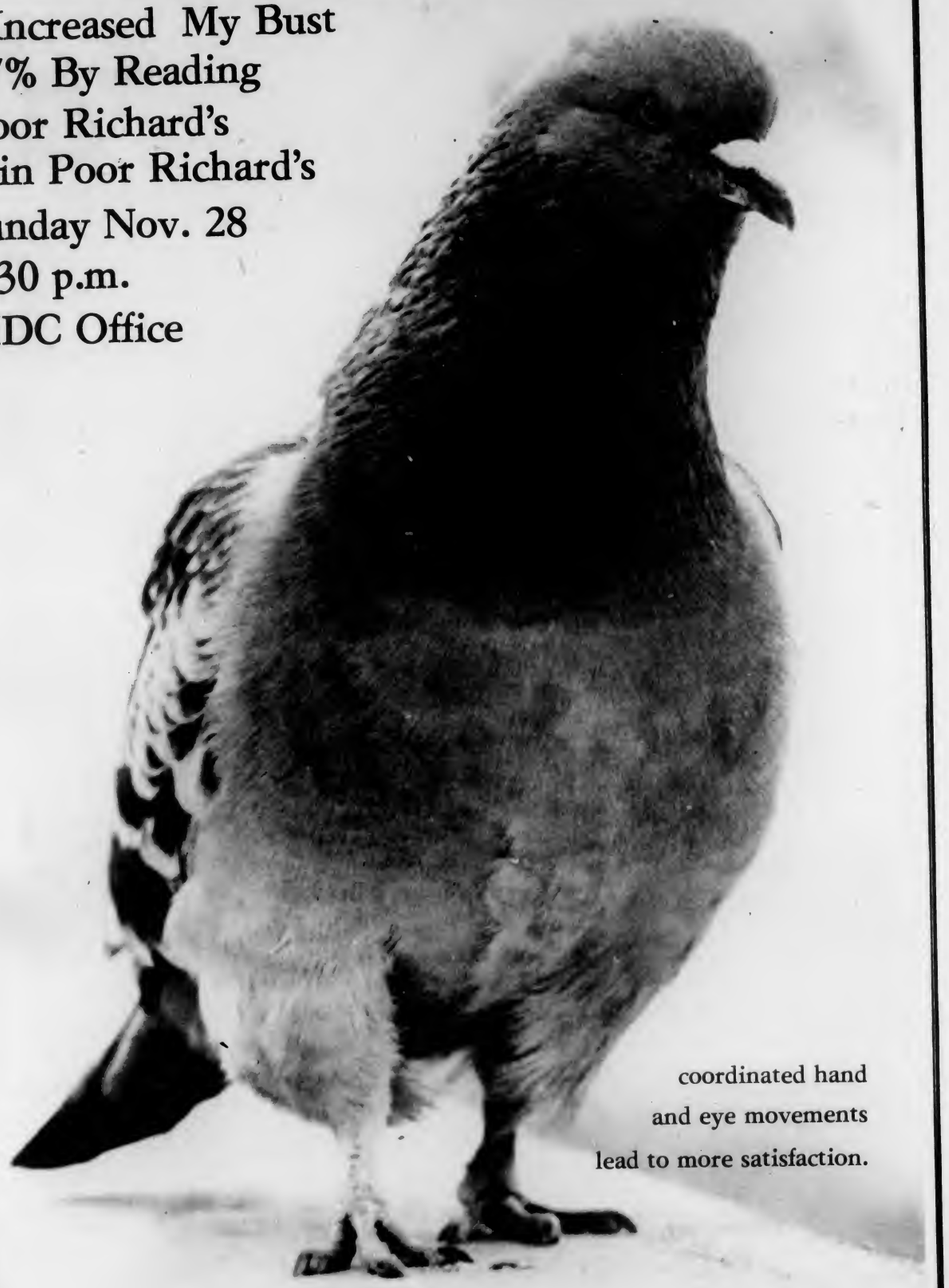
Jewish girls, he continued, live in constant fear of physical assault. He personally knew a Jewish girl who emerged from an interrogation with cigarette burns on her breast. He described the pursuit and taunting of Jewish girls by Arabs as "a continuous sport," and stated that the government does nothing to discourage these acts or to punish the perpetrators.

On occasions when foreign dignitaries have visited Syria the government has taken special precautions to disguise the true situation, he said. He described an instance when a French mission was to pay a visit to a well-known Jewish school. The Syrian authorities sent word ahead of time to the government-appointed Moslem principal that the Jewish teachers and students were to be particularly well dressed that day, and that they were to say nothing that might be "contrary to the interest of the State," he said.

From time to time, he added, Jewish groups are taken to the beach dressed in fashionable clothes, and photographed to indicate that they are living well.

Jews who try to escape and are captured, he said, face a minimum sentence of one year in prison. The relatives and sometimes even acquaintances of escapees or those suspected of trying to leave the country are interrogated and often held in prison for indefinite periods of time. The young man stated that he knew personally 12 young Jews who have been kept in Syrian prisons for the last three months on the charge of attempting to leave the country.

At the conclusion of the young man's testimony, General Clay reiterated his earlier appeal to the Syrian authorities to release the Jews now in prison, to end their persecution of the Jewish minority, and to permit all those who wish to leave to do so. He called on the United Nations and all persons of good will in the United States and other countries around the world to join in this humanitarian appeal.



The Committee of Concern
New York, N.Y.

Poor Richard's

A Weekly Magazine

I Increased My Bust
47% By Reading
Poor Richard's
Join Poor Richard's
Sunday Nov. 28
7:30 p.m.
MDC Office

coordinated hand and eye movements
lead to more satisfaction.

"Take Out The Middle-And Throw The Rest Away"

THE MEMORY LINGERS ON: A memory bank from a pioneering PDP 1B computer helps teach computer systems engineering at the University of Massachusetts in Amherst. the PDP 1B system was the first ever manufactured and sold by the Digital Equipment Corp. of Maynard, back in 1960. The system was then used for a number of years in the Information Sciences and Technology Division of Bolt Beranek and Newman, Inc., where much of the pioneering work on real time computational technique. was accomplished. It was the first computer system on which a time sharing facility was built and commercially demonstrated. The system was leased to UMass Amherst for some years and earlier this year was donated outright by Bolt Beranek and Newman. Now its parts and systems are used in a variety of ways by Prof. Robert Glorioso, shown in photo, in the UMass electrical engineering department's Computer Engineering Lab, teaching graduate and undergraduate students how to build computers.

Chemical War Fare Drugs Called Possible Aid To Heroin Addicts

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22 — A representative of the pharmaceutical industry said today that the Defense Department might have developed "potent chemical warfare drugs" that might be used to fight heroin addiction.

Dr. John Adams, who made this disclosure at a news conference called by Representative Paul G. Rogers, Democrat of Florida, is the co-chairman of a scientific study group of the Pharmaceutical Manufacturers' Association.

He declared that when the Pentagon developed chemical warfare agents it isually also developed an "antagonist" drug as an antidote for the protection of its own forces. It is such an antagonist that the industry is now seeking and believes may be hidden in the secret results of Defense Department research.

The Pentagon referred all calls about its drug research to the White House. There, a spokesman for Dr. Jerome Jaffe, director of President Nixon's Special Office for Action of Drug Abuse, replied that Dr. Jaffe was aware of the Pentagon's work, had asked for its results, had received some of them and was waiting for the rest to be declassified.

The pharmaceutical industry group emphasized today the urgent need for expansion of the Federal clinical research facilities at Lexington, Ky., and other drug addiction treatment centers.

They reported on seven developments in the industry's own research into heroin antagonists:

—Winthrop Laboratories has offered L-cyclazocine to Lexington for trial on addicts. In limited human study, this drug did not produce any hallucinogenic effect such as has accompanied use of other forms of cyclazocine, one of the known heroin antagonists.

—Endo Laboratories has offered En 1639, a more powerful, longer-acting relative of naloxone, another known heroin antagonist, for use at Lexington, and it is being tested there.

—Endo is also studying the paoate salt of naloxone, which protected dogs from the euphoric effect of narcotics for two to three weeks. Clinical studies are to take place in in cooperation with Dr. Jaffe's office.

By the New York Times.

Federal Mediator Predicts Agreement In Dock Strike

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A federal mediator predicts that shippers and striking longshoremen will either reach a settlement Wednesday or recess their talks briefly before continuing the effort to end the 54-day North Atlantic dock strike.

J. Curtis Counts, head of a three-man government team involved in the talks at Miami Beach, Fla., between the International Longshoremen's Association and the Council of North Atlantic Shipping Association, said, "We'll be through here Wednesday one way or the other."

ILA sources in New York said that agreement on a master contract was "very close" and that a settlement probably "will be wound up" shortly. Local contract items would still have to be agreed to in the separate ports after a master contract was reached.

The strike began Oct. 1 when a contract covering stevedores from Maine to Virginia expired. Union officials estimated the strike directly affected some 45,000 ILA members and an additional 30,000 members of related unions.

Although only the contracts in the North Atlantic ports were under negotiation, Counts predicted a settlement could set a pattern for ending disputes in South Atlantic and Gulf ports.

Union men in ports from Wilmington, N.C., to Galveston, Tex., struck in sympathy with the Eastern Seaboard stevedores, and have gone back to the docks only sporadically--and that has been under federal court order.

Peking Dancer Thrills Crowd

For China Night 1971 on Sunday, November 21, 1971, the UMass Chinese Student Association brought Miss Chiang Ching, a Peking-trained professor of Chinese classical and folk dances, and the six-man Chinese Music Ensemble of New York to the Campus Center Auditorium to thrill a capacity crowd with authentic Chinese dance and music.

Miss Chiang Ching started the China Night program by demonstrating the basic techniques of Chinese classical dance--leg raisers, leaps, kicks, and pirouettes. Then, interspersed with selections by the music ensemble, Miss Chiangdonned the colorful native costumes of Tungbei, Hsinkiang, Tibet, and Mongolia and performed the dances unique to these culturally diverse areas of Inner Asia. Miss Chiang's eyes and lips bespoke of sadness, solemnity, and elation; her arms, with kerchiefs, fans, or elongated sleeves, and whole body acted out the coiling around a dragon's body, the riding of a pony across the steps, the flittering about of fish, and the shearing of sheep's wool. Her final dance was a strictly Chinese dance, traditionally performed before the emporer's court in Peking.

The Music Ensemble of New York lead off with the classical numbers entitled, Plum Blossoms and the Hundred Flowers Song, and proceeded with solos on the 'pipa'--a lute-like instrument--and on the 'butterfly harp'--a zither- like instrument whose strings are tapped by two flexible wire hammers. Rejoined by the three players of two- stringed lap violins and a single flute player, the ensemble continued on with other exotically-named Chinese classical favorites, like Felicitious Longevity and Spring Dawn at the Jade Pavilion.

Miss Chiang Ching and the members of the Chinese Music Ensemble of New York are top-flight performers. Miss Chiang completed six years of dance training at the Peking School of Dance, where after she went on to distinguish herself in Taiwanese and Hong Kong cinema. She won the best actress award at a 1966 Taiwan film festival. Now, at age 25, she is a dance instructor at the University of California/Berkeley campus, and continues to perform the traditional Chinese folk and classical dances and to compose new Chinese dances of her own. The six members of the Chinese Music Ensemble are part of a larger, 30-man Chinese orchestra that the Chinese community here rates as the best of four such orchestras in New York. This full, 30-man orchestra is scheduled to perform soon at New York City's Lincoln Center.

Few among the Chinese attending Sunday night's performance had ever seen Mongolian or Tibetan folk dances performed so experly and authentically. Good training in Inner Asian folk dance is only available at the Peking School of Dance.

School Of Ed. Reminder

All undergraduates except those in the Classes of '72 and '73 interested in qualifying for elementary or secondary teaching are reminded that to complete their preparation, they must have applied for and been admitted to one of the alternative teacher education programs by September, 1972.

Currently, there are nine of sixteen programs with openings for elementary majors and/or secondary certification candidates.

All programs with openings wil have information tables staffed from 8:00 A.M. to 5:00 P.M. today in the old library at the School of Education.

Questions about program admissions, course work, certification, etc., can be answered at that time. Program directors can also be reached for individual consultation at other times by appointment. Call the School of Education, 545-1543, 545-1544 or 545-1555 for further general information about programs.

MDC CLASSIFIED

AUTOS FOR SALE

1968 VW, new tires, excellent cond., good radio/heater. Must be seen! Call 253-9165. tf11-30

Dodge Van-'65, best offer, 549-6570. tf11-29

'67 Chevelle Malibu, 2-door hardtop, vinyl roof, radio, V8, A.T., P.S., excellent condition, $995. Call 253-3047 evenings. tf11-24

1961 VW for sale. Call 665-3094. tf11-30

1964 Chevy, s.w. toots, must find good home, good running condition. Needs muffler $225. Call 6-5837 between 6-8 p.m. or call late. tf11-30

'65 Corvair Monza, 4 speed, Am-Fm radio, good condition, No Rot, good tires, $200. Call 253-5344. tf11-30

'63 VW bug, excint. mech. cond., new brakes, starter, end., front end., 4 good tires, snow tire mounted. Call 546-6767 evenings. $400. tf11-30

FOR SALE

Sno-tires (2) studded Sears tires 6.50-13, 4 ply rayon, tubeless, good cond., used only one season. Best offer. Call 6-5270, ask for Linda. tf11-29

Tag Sale, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Thurs., Nov. 25 thru Sun., Nov. 28. Low prices, many interesting items. 110 Columbia Dr., Amherst. 11-24

AR receiver, 3 weeks old, 120 watts, r.m.s., cost $445, sell $295; AKAI X360D, 1 year old, 20-20000 flat s.o.s., sws., cost $430-$295. 253-9387. tf11-24

Guitars Amps, drums, acc., at reasonable prices. The Guitar Workshop, 98 Main St. North. 586-1706. tf11-30

Dual 1215-Kenwood 3100 FM Receiver 95W IHF 4ohm RMS-stanton 500E cartridge. Best offer, 3 mos. old, hardly used. Dave 6-7689. tf11-24

PERSONAL

I am 20, grad-writer looking for trusting relationship w/sensitive woman age 20-30. Please call 549-6917 before 11 a.m. tf11-29

Kathleen J. Mullen of 6 Kennsington Ave., Northampton, call George Urch 5-6915. tf11-29

ROOMMATES WANTED

Female roommate to share one bedroom in Puffton Village. Call 549-6753. tf12-1

House to share with 1 bedroom, available Dec. 1 and another Jan. 1 $85/month plus share utilities. Prefer woman over 21. 253-7538 after 5:00. tf11-30

ROOMS WANTED

Need place to live beg. Dec. 1 with quiet people close to UMass. Must have own room. Can pay 65-$70 a mo. Call 367-9515 ask for Diane. tf11-24

SERVICES

Amherst Audio services. Stereo components, tape decks for home or car. 197 No. Pleasant St. 256-8125. tf5-12

TYPING

Typing-theses, dissertations, etc. Fast, accurate, experienced. Have Math and Chem. symbols. Call 253-3601. tf12-21

REWARD

Reward of $20 for returning knapsack containing books and notes. Taken from Hampshire DC, no quests. asked. Very imp. Call Don 6-9202. tf11-24

FOR RENT

2 bedroom Townhouse, air cond., ww carpet, $200 month, including utilities. Call 665-4128 after 5:30. tf11-30

APT. WANTED

Wanted 2 bedroom apartment in Puffton Village starting in Jan. or Feb. Call Mark at 256-8723 after 6 p.m. tf12-3

2 girls need place to live next sem., approx. $50 or under each. Call 546-6518. tf12-1

APTS. FOR RENT

MT. SUGARLOAF APTS. AVAIL. JAN. 1, LG. 2 BDRM., UTIL. INCLUDED, AIR-COND. POOL $185. CALL SKIBINSKI REALTORS 253-7222 EVE. 253-2626. tf11-30

RIDE WANTED

Help! Secretary desperately needs ride from UMass to Granby weekday eve. Leave campus after 5. Call Diane at 5-0000, ext. 68 or 467-9107. tf11-29

MISCELLANEOUS

Organic Gardening and Farming will be offered next semester as PLSO31, 3hrs. lecture 1100, tu., th., lab (1) 125-330 tu., (2) 125-330th. No prequisites. Permission of instructor desirable. Contact Prof. Allen Barker, Bowditch Hall, 545-2247 for information. 11-24

STUDENTS BOOK MATCHING

Register your book in S.U. Rm. 318 Every student with your course next semester will need your books save $ money, sell direct. tf-serm.

Children Of God To Be Urged Home

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Members of the youthful Children of God movement will be urged to visit their families over the holiday period to counter charges they are being held in the group's colonies against their wills, a member of the fundamentalist group said here Monday.

Parents of teenagers and young adults who live in the colonies of the so-called "Jesus Freaks" have charged that leaders of the organization hold some mysterious power over their children and don't allow them to leave.

The leader of the Houston colony said about 70 persons live here.

Lewis Ingersoll, a leader of the Dallas colony, said in that city that the effort to send the members home is to "disprove some of the malicious lies spread by the parents."

He said there are 39 colonies in the United States, Canada, Great Britain, Germany and the Netherlands and Belgium with about 2,000 members.

Notices

BELCHERTOWN VOLUNTEERS

Bus for the State School on Sat., Nov. 27 will be cancelled due to the Thanksgiving holiday. There will be one, however, on Sat., Dec. 4 at 12:45 p.m. in front of Whitmore.

MAROON KEYS

All please attend an important meeting on Sun. Nov. 28 Rm. 804-808 CC. Eleventh Hour is coming Nov. 30 and we need help.

LOST

Wide gold wedding ring. Initials KMW to JSE 6/7/70. If found please call Kathy 549-1311 or Jake 549-3916.

Gold sweater lost Tues., Nov. 9 in Machmer. Call Dave 546-6235.

A pair of brown leather gloves, with lamb's wool lining. Probably lost in Thompson 104 or 106 on Monday, Nov. 22 in Gov. 100 or Econ. 125. Maybe lost in Goess Please call Ellen at 549-6394.

5 yr. old male beagle/hound Common markings of a beagle Wearing a black flea-killer pendant. Call 367-2065.

A ladies' watch was lost at the sock hop, Nov. 21. It is a Sheraton watch with a black band. If found please call 6-8839.

Part-Time Degree Created

Beginning next year UMass will open its undergraduate degree program to part-time students and will offer a pioneering Bachelor of General Studies degree program especially designed for such students, it was announced today by Associate Amherst Provost Robert Woodbury.

"This is a major step designed to open the resources of the state university to the people of Massachusetts throughout their lifetime and not just immediately after high school," said William Venman, UMass Continuing Education director.

The new degree programs are tailored for people with full-time jobs, housewives, retired persons and others whose primary occupation is other than that of student. The new programs are particularly well-suited for those who now want to complete college careers interrupted by job or family demands. They are directed by the Division of Continuing Education at the Amherst campus but classes will be given anywhere in the state where enough students warrant them.

The Bachelor of General Studies part of the program is the first of its kind in the northeast. "The general studies degree student will have the opportunity to put together his own degree program in nearly any field within the combined capacities of the university and the Massachusetts regional community colleges," Venman said. "The Bachelor of General Studies program is tailored to the needs of adult students with considerable life experience and with educational needs not covered by any of the existing university degree programs," he added.

The new programs are scheduled to be in full operation by the fall semester of 1972, with some day and evening classes open for part-time students during the coming semester. Those interested in the program are requested to make inquiries at once through the Division of Continuing Education at UMass Amherst.

"The general requirements for admission are a high school diploma or equivalent and satisfactory performance--a grade of C or better--in 30 credit hours of university work," Venman stated.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

by SYDNEY OMARR

Capricorn is great for gathering in stray animals and persons. Capricorn can be tough, but also tender. Natives of this sign are ambitious, aware of material needs but also poetic. Indeed, they can be a contradiction. They are not easy to understand, but they are fascinating. Some famous persons born under Capricorn include Sarah Miles, Federico Fellini and Sandy Koufax

*****

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Friendship is tested. Express views. Some around you are now supersensitive. But you have a right to express yourself--and to live a life of your own. Help one who shows willingness to be aided.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Accent on ambition, career, general standing in community. Leo person figures prominently. Original concepts can be successfully utilized. Career area gets boost. Exude confidence.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Develop philosophical concepts. Strive for inner peace. You have the answers; know this and begin acting on what you know. Check correspondence. Be in touch with one you have neglected.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Be cognizant of investments, money, savings, threats to security. Don't feel wed to one method, thought or concept. Give yourself room. Investigate and analyze. Sagittarian is in picture.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Lie low. Play waiting game. Give attention to mate, partner. Take back seat temporarily. Your time will come. Patience now is your ally. Wait and observe. Your judgment, intuition will get sharper.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You gain knowledge about job, well being, general service. More persons express appreciation. Where there was friction now there can be harmony. Be open to chance for improvement.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Creative force flows. You are able to achieve. Personal magnetism soars. People are favorably attracted. Family member makes fine gesture to reconciliation. Be receptive. Don't turn away happiness.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Values should be subject for review, especially as they apply to land, home, real estate. Some persons may want something for nothing from you. Be wary. Take time to do some double checking.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You can gain through journey-short one. Idea which had been held in abeyance, comes to life. You are repaid for past efforts. Relatives, neighbors figure prominently. Conditions improve.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Personal possessions highlighted. Take inventory. Discard nonessentials. Finish project. Don't hang on to past. Your future can be bright--if you so desire. Streamline basic procedures.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Lunar cycle coincides with time when opportunity knocks, beckons and you successfully answer. Stress original approach. Imprint of your individual style fills bill more than adequately.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Element of mystery prevails. Aquarius person figures prominently. Cooperate with special group, hospital, or charitable project. You get facts which in recent past were obscured. Move ahead.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you have ability to appreciate music and the arts. You are fond of teaching, helping others to know. You are the opposite of selfish. You are due, in upcoming months, to gain greater recognition and additional personal happiness.

Copyright 1971, Gen. Fea. Corp.

HAVE YOU GIVEN MUCH THOUGHT TO WHAT YOU'LL BE DOING TOMORROW?

Finding a job that gives you satisfaction isn't easy today. Not in a world as confusing and complex as ours.

But the Paulist finds a frequent joy in his own way of life and values that are lasting.

As a Paulist he may counsel a runaway youth, listen to the problems of a senior citizen, organize a Home Mass or conduct a forum on narcotics. Because Paulists have always been pioneers in communications, he may communicate through the printed word or through mass media such as radio, films or television.

Whatever tool he chooses, the Paulist gets his "message" through.

Can you think of any other life that will provide more inner satisfaction for you?

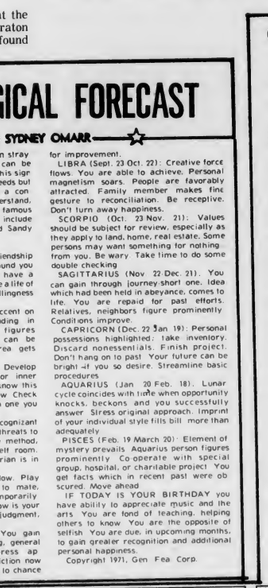
For more information about the Paulist priesthood write to: Rev. Donald C. Campbell, C.S.P., Vocation Director, Room No. 200.

paulist fathers.

415 West 59th Street New York, N.Y. 10019

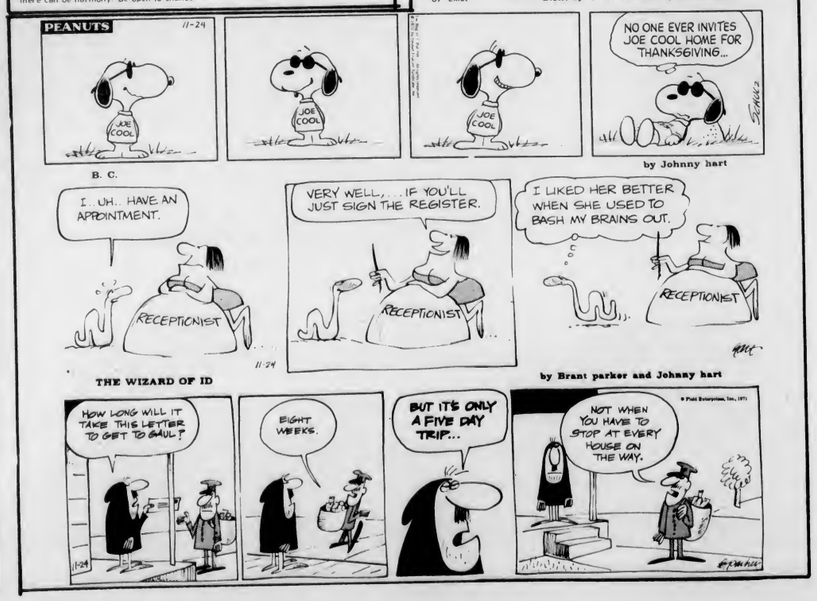
Crossword Puzzle

ACROSS



1 Sink in middle
4 College degree (abbr.)
6 Place for combat
11 Suitable
13 Manly
15 Faroe Islands whirlwind
16 Flaming
18 Stalk
19 Hit lightly
21 Eskers
22 Preposition
23 Temporary rulers
26 Catch (colloq.)
29 Lads
31 Ashes of seaweed
33 Symbol for cerium
34 Part of "to be"
35 Mournful
38 Change color of
39 Babylonian deity
40 Note of scale
41 Lamb's pen name
43 Bird's home
45 Music: as written
47 Father and mother
50 Behold!
52 Female horse
53 Soak up
56 Trade for money
58 Bay window
60 Note of scale
61 Made of wool
63 Roman officials
65 Remain erect
66 Steamship (abbr.)
67 Exist

DOWN



1 Blemish
2 Region
3 Proceed
4 Confuse
5 Get up
6 Avoided
7 A state (abbr.)
8 Formerly
9 Gaseous element
10 Beverage
12 Parent (colloq.)
14 Printer's measure
17 Grade
20 Lift with lever
24 Actual being
25 Crafty
27 High cards
28 Whip
29 Flying mammals
30 Leave out
32 Shut up
36 High mountain
37 Precious stone
42 Sandarac tree
44 Worm
46 Apportion
48 Iroquoian Indians
49 Wants
51 Spanish pot
54 River in Germany
55 Attitude
56 Compass point
57 Dawn goddess
59 Chinese mile
62 Printer's measure
64 Note of scale

Answer to Yesterday's Puzzle

T	I	P		P	S	O	R	A		B	Y	E
A	D	E		E	A	S	E	D		R	E	S
P	A	N	T	E	D		N	O	R	I	A	S
		D	O	R		P	A	R	E	D
S	M	E	W		E	R		E	A	G	E	R
T	E	D		T	R	O	T		R	E	N	O
A	D		R	E	A	S	O	N	S		A	M
T	A	M	E		S	P	E	D		S	T	A
E	L	I	D	E		E	D		A	T	E	N
		N	A	D	I	R		U	L	E
P	I	C	N	I	C		A	S	T	E	R	N
A	R	E		L	E	A	S	E		R	A	Y
D	A	D		E	S	T	E	R		S	H	E

Distr. by United Feature Syndicate, Inc. 24

Butler NFL Offensive Player Player of Week

NEW YORK (AP)--"Roll, Cannonball, roll on!" the television announcer shouted and that's just what happened. Jim "Cannonball" Butler of Atlanta rocked and rolled his way through the Green Bay Packers to the tune of 197 yards Monday night before 58,850 fans and a national television audience.

The seven-year running back's romps, so instrumental in the 28-21 victory that thrust the Falcons back into the National Conference West race, also earned Butler the selection Tuesday as The Associated Press Offensive Player of the Week in the National Football League.

Butler, 28, a 5-foot-10, 200-pounder from tiny Edward Waters College in Jacksonville, Fla., cast off by Pittsburgh in 1968 and ignored by the rest of the league before signing on with the Falcons as a free agent, beat out quarterbacks Daryle Lamonica of Oakland and Len Dawson of Kansas City and Cleveland running back Leroy Kelly.

The victory pushed the Falcons' record to 5-4-1, putting them within a game of front-running Los Angeles and half a game back of San Francisco-and it was the game's most electrifying play that gave the Falcons the push they needed to beat the Pack.

With the Packers leading 14-12 opening the second half, Butler took the kickoff one yard deep in his own end zone, cut to his left, rocketed up the sideline to the Green Bay 40, then swung back toward the middle of the field.

But as he virtually outran his own blockers, he brushed up against a teammate and was finally caught from behind at the Packer 19-yard lines.

Four plays later the Falcons went ahead to say. "It was a perfectly executed play," Butler said of the 82-yard dash. "Maybe if I was a little younger I would have broken it all the way. I didn't break any tackles," he grinned, "but I sure jumped around a couple of guys."

And he wasn't finished yet. On the next series, Green Bay stalled near midfield and seemed to have the Falcons in a hole when the ensuing punt left them on their own 10-yard line. But there was Butler, sweeping around the Packers on the first play for a clutch 19 yards that got Atlanta out of trouble again.

In all, Butler led Falcons rushers with 64 yards on 16 carries, caught a pass for five yards and, on three kickoffs, piled up 128 yards-and scored their second touchdown on a two-yard plunge.

Lamonica, rallying Oakland from a 14-point deficit, threw three touchdown passes and completed 16 of 26 passes for 190 yards to lead the Raiders to a 34-33 victory over San Diego Sunday to keep them atop the American Conference West.

Dawson likewise threw for three touchdowns, amassing 294 yards as he completed 11 of 19 passes in carrying the Chiefs to a 28-10 victory over Denver that kept Kansas City within half a game of Oakland.

And Kelly, rushing for 113 yards on 23 carries and adding 21 yards with a pair of receptions, scored two touchdowns on a one-yard run and a seven-yard pass as the Browns, retaining a share of the AFC Central lead.

Murtaugh Steps Down

PITTSBURGH AP-Cigar-chomping Danny Murtaugh, architect of two World Series championships and a divisional title for the Pittsburgh Pirates, stepped down as manager Tuesday.

Slim, bespectacled batting coach Bill Virdon was immediately named Murtaugh's successor.

Standing calmly in front of a crowd of reporters in a new blue suit, a fragment of a unlit cigar in his hand, Murtaugh quietly announced:

"I have decided not to return next year."

The 54-year-old Irishman said he made up his mind about 10 days ago while returning from a vacation in Puerto Rico. But his decision was not completely surprising.

"He hinted pretty strongly near the end of the season that he wouldn't return if he didn't feel better," said third base coach Frank Oceak.

"I've never seen anything like him," Oceak continued. "He'll be a tough act to follow."

The Pirates became world champions this year after defeating Baltimore in a dramatic seven game set, with Pittsburgh in the roll of underdog.

Last year, the Pirates, riddled by key injuries, won the divisional title, then lost three straight games to Cincinnati for the pennant.

Despite that loss, Murtaugh was named Manager of the Year for the third time.

In 1960, Murtaugh led the Pirates to the World Series-their first since 1927-when Bill Mazeroski hit the game-winning home run over the clock at now nearly demolished Forbes Field in the seventh game of the Series against the New York Yankees.

In between series wins, Murtaugh has been in and out of managing-due to a heart problem.

He quit in 1964 after a slight heart attack. He came back as interim manager in 1967 after Harry Walker was fired, then took over the club again in 1970 when Larry Shepard was bounced and his doctor gave him a clean bill of health.

Health was the major factor for stepping aside again, he admitted, although it wasn't his only reason for returning to a Pirate scouting job.

"I had some events last year which led me to believe that I might be in some difficulties next year," Murtaugh said.

"But I also knew a decision had to be made sometime to step down and I felt it best be now."

"I'll miss him," said Pirate General Manager Joe L. Brown, who calls Murtaugh his best friend as well as "the best manager in the business."

"But this isn't a sad day," Brown insisted.

"I've always said that what I want for my friends is what I want for myself."

Virdon received a phone call two days ago in Puerto Rico, where he is managing a winter baseball team, telling him of his succession to Murtaugh. "I wasn't even home," said Virdon, said to be one of the best conterfielders in Pirate history. "But I had an idea of what was coming."

"Sure it's a tough act to follow," said the 40-year-old Virdon. "But if I had my choice, I'd rather start with a top club than a losing club."

Virdon received a one-year contract and he said he was pleased

Women's I-M Basketball

MONDAY'S ACTION

In a hard fought Emerald League battle Monday night, SWISH of Dickinson House was narrowly defeated by the Houps of Van Meter. Foul shots proved to be the key to the 14-11 Houp win. The low score, however, doesn't do justice to the game, for there was plenty of floor action and some good ball handling. Joan "The Devil" Felde scored 3 pts, Bev Haine 2 points, and Shelley "Doozer" Lorenzon was high scorer with 6 pts. for SWISH. Sandy "Hot Lips" Becher, Linda Cebula, Marge Nappe, Suzanne Fay and Nancy "Pat" Knowles also contributed for the losing side.

The other Emerald League contest resulted in a 12-6 win by Crabapple Corps over The Field Goals.

In the Pearl League, the Brigade bombed The Lang 17-8. Brigade's high scorer was Mary Barry who scored 14 pts. Brigade promises to be a very competent and interesting team. Other Pearl League action saw Johnson defeating Melville Big Times 12-3 and the Fruitloops forfeiting to Chet's Chicks.

TUESDAY'S ACTION

In Ruby League action Tuesday night the Patterson "Pick-ups" picked up where they left off last year as champions. They foamed down the court to cream the Coolidge Crawlers 35-13. In the other Ruby League contest, Tico's Twirps from Emerson outscored the chestnuts from Brett 13-4. In the first half, Tico's Twirps shut-out their opponents 7-0. The Chestnuts came on strong at the close of the game but a 6 pt. rally by the Twirps kept the win secure. Leading scorer for the Twirps was Linda "Fingers" Ciufetti with 4 pts., followed by Fran "Hands" Kinkead with 3 pts. Sharon Puncher Procyk, Bouncing Brenda McConologue and Movin' Peggy McManus scored 2 pts. each.

In the Saphire League, the Waldon Frogs from Thoreau won their first game against Crampton by a score of 26-15. The Froggies were behind the first ten minutes but made a leaping comeback with Kathy Crowley and Karen Bouldry leading in rebounds. High scorer was Kathy Crowley with 12 pts. followed by Karen Bouldry and Ellen Knoff with 6 pts. each. Susan Pitts scored the remaining 2 pts. When asked how it felt to win their first game, replies were "Great. Fantastic and Rib-bit, Rib-bit".

Other Saphire League action resulted in a 58-0 win for the Whalers over Herman's Heavies. We're not quite sure if this is impressive or depressive. Lew's Misfits misfitted by forfeiting to 10th Floor Coolidge.

In Opal League action, the Wheeler Trojans stymied the Van Meter Vikings comeback bid to emerge with an 11-10 victory before an overflow crowd of 6 at WOPE Gymnasium. The score, however, doesn't reflect the breathtaking finish, in which 3 fans with weak hearts had to be carried out on stretchers.

With just under 10 seconds to go and the score standing at 11-10, a defense woman picked off a cross court Wheeler pass and raced for a breakaway lay-up. The fans who had begun to file out stopped dead in their tracks. Coach Greenhaulgh nearly swallowed his victory cigar. Moe "The Pearl" Crowley quickly followed in pursuit. The shot went up and Moe came out of nowhere to bat the ball away. Unfortunately, in the process, she nearly put the shooter through the wall (you can't expect perfection). The astute referees were quick to spot the minor infraction. The foul shots, before the hushed audience were missed and Wheeler emerged victorious.

The heroines for Wheeler were many. Gail "The Stilt" Sanbori and Carla "The Wall" Johnson dominated the boards while scoring 4 and 3 pts. respectively. Joan "Pistol" Connor swished 10 jumper. Debbie Norton and Roberta Garr finished out the scoring. In evaluation, Coach Greenhalgh eloquently articulated, "Da goils came ta play".

Other scores for Tuesday's games were as follows: Lovers 11, Dickinson P.O.'s 9; Kappa Alpha Theta 6, Tri Sigma 2; Mushrooms 26, Treacherous Tenth 6; Space Cadets 10, Gwimps 6; and Kappa Knicks accepted a win by forfeit over Pi Beta Phi.

Senators Renamed Rangers

ARLINGTON, Tex. (AP)—The Dallas—Fort Worth major league baseball club adopted the name Texas Rangers Tuesday and announced that Ted Williams would return as manager of the American League team.

Arlington Mayor Tommy Vandergriff and club owner Bob Short, who moved his team here from Washington, D.C., made the dual announcement at a luncheon viewed as a "birthday party" of sorts for the former Senators.

Williams, who managed the Senators last year, was not present at the luncheon.

It was also disclosed at the session that the Dallas Chamber of Commerce has approved a resolution to rename Turnpike Stadium Vandergriff Stadium. It was Vandergriff who was instrumental in persuading club owners to bring the franchise to Texas.

Short told a news conference after the luncheon that "at or about one million people" attending would be necessary for the club to break even.

He also said ticket prices will be "something less than the average in Washington," adding that the price will be similar to that of such clubs at Atlanta, St. Louis, Kansas City and Houston.

Concerning club personnel, Short said, "We've got a better pitching staff than people give us credit for." And he said his club has "tremendous, young talent."

He admitted, however, that, "We do need help and Williams is going to be out shopping for it."

Short predicted that controversial pitcher Denny McLain and power hitting Frank Howard will be in the lineup next spring but he pointed out that a club seeking help might trade any member of the team. Howard showed signs at one time, at least, that he did not want to move from Washington

TICKETED FOR THE PROS? Tight end John Hulecki (left), and center Dave Levine (right), both attracted several pro scouts to several Redman games.

Hulecki is being scouted for possible linebacker play in the pros with his size and speed. Levine is being considered as a center with his size and aggressiveness.

Charity Game A Success

By EARLE BARROLL

If you came away from last night's varsity-freshman Tom Jasmin-Mark Robinson Charity game impressed by the freshmen and not so impressed by the varsity, then you had the same exact thoughts as their respective coaches did after the game.

And if you also came away from the game with the feeling that the cause this game was set up around was rewarded with a handsome turnout, then you likewise had the same thoughts of not only the two head coaches but also the man who coached the two athletes this game was set up for, track coach Ken O'Brien.

"I thought it would be an excellent turnout if we had a thousand," O'Brien said after the game, "and we got a little extra. the attendance was 1100 and what pleased me the most was the amount of people who bought tickets at the door."

"This money will be set up as a trust fund scholarship in the name of Jasmin and Robinson (both killed within two months of each other this past summer) to be given in their name."

"And I just hope that this type of game can be a permanent event to the basketball program."

As for the game itself, the 89-67 score in favor of the varsity belies the tough struggle the upperclassmen had in trying to contain a strong, quick and well-rounded first unit of freshmen who matched the varsity hoop for hoop and rebound for rebound while they were in the game.

Varsity coach Jack Leaman was not pleased with his team's performance and put it this way: "We have to work h- ard after this one We play against each o ther day after da- y in the gym and you just can't j- udge wh- ere you are, to- night we could "We c- ouldn't get star- ted and in an un- derstatem emt we didn't p- erformw- ell We just have to play better in the co mpetition we'll be playing t his se- ason. He was also unhappy with his team's pi ot play and he said his guards and forwards were average with the exception of Tom McLaughlin who scored 11 points and played a tough board game at both ends of the court.

The success of the freshmen was capsulized by coach Fran Gaudette: "We rebounded extremely well and for freshmen they had tremendous patience. We ran well, especially in the second half and the guys complimented each other so well throughout the game and this is the biggest thing we've been doing since the beginning of practice...anyone will give the ball up."

Gaudette's big center, 6'8 John Murphy, said it all after the game on the cohesiveness of the frosh when he stated: "We all came from different schools, but everyone played together before the season began and we have played as a close unit ever since."

As for himself, "I was a bit nervous at the start, this being my first game before the fans at the Cage, but after a while I started to play and it got to a point where I didn't hear the crowd...I just concentrated on my game."

He concentrated alright to the tune of a dozen points and nine rebounds to match teammate Tom Gillams, 6'6, for game honors off the boards. Tom also has 11 points as did Jim Burke.

Gaudette complimented Burke and his backcourt mate Bill Endicott by saying, "not only can these two shoot well and play good defense, but for being guards they sure can rebound that ball really well."

Sooners' Offense Vs. Cornhuskers' Defense

NORMAN, Okla. (AP) — The game has been billed as Oklahoma's offense against Nebraska's defense. Each ranks at the top of the national statistics.

Quarterback Jack Mildren, the slick option magician who makes the explosive Oklahoma Wishbone attack so devastating gives the impression he's almost looking forward to challenging the defensive unit Nebraska calls the Black Shirts.

"We have a lot of respect for Nebraska's defense," Mildren said Tuesday. "But we're not awed. We'd probably be awed and intimidated by the Minnesota Vikings, not by Nebraska. There's an old theory that if a team doesn't score on you they can't beat you, but in this day and age not many people are shut out."

Certainly not Oklahoma, which is averaging 45 points a game by running more than a cheap pair of nylons. "We don't think anybody can stop us," Mildren said. "We have good players all across the board. I've read where the Nebraska defense thinks they can stop us, but basically the only reason anybody stopped us all last year was when we fumbled the ball. I don't think there are any better runners than the guys we have."

Nebraska has been a zone pass defense team all year. Mildren looks for more of the same Thursday--Nebraska used a zone in last year's 28-21 victory--but he won't be surprised at anything he sees across the line of scrimmage.

"Nebraska's linebackers aren't exceptionally big but they run real well and their front five is very strong. They're better than any defense we've played against so far. Nebraska has enough confidence in its defense that if we scored some quick touchdowns on them, they won't give up."

Mildren is a 6-foot-199-pound senior from Abilene Tex., who came to Oklahoma as a highly recruited passer but has turned into one of the Sooners' most dangerous runners.

FOR THE HOLIDAYS-Just to keep the good old football season in mind while chatting over the Thanksgiving dinner, here's a shot of the true violence that happens weekend after weekend on the gridiron during the fall. (MDC photo by Ann Gurnett)

LSU Pair Co-Linemen Of Week

ASSOCIATED PRESS SPORTS WRITER

(AP) — Ronnie Estay is the emotional sort. Andy Hamilton isn't.

But together they helped turn the Fighting Irish of Notre Dame into Cajun cousins Saturday as Louisiana State rolled to a 28-8 victory and earned a bid to the Sun Bowl.

Estay, a 6-foot-1, 230-pound tackle from LaRose, La., in the Bayou country, was in on 17 tackles, 13 of them unassisted, and spearheaded a defense that stopped Notre Dame three times on fourth-and-one inside the LSU 10-yard line.

Hamilton, a 6-3, 190-pound wide receiver, caught seven passes for 153 yards and three touchdowns, two on tosses from his real-life cousin, Bert Jones.

For their efforts, they were named National College co-linemen of the Week by The Associated Press.

Actually, Hamilton is listed as a splitback, or flanker, but Saturday night he lined up most of the time at split end in another LSU attempt to confuse the heralded Notre Dame defense. The Tigers also threw an unbalanced line at the Irish on occasion.

After LSU's victory over Mississippi State a week earlier, Estay let out a yell in French in the locker room to the effect that now it was time to get ready for Notre Dame.

Coach Charlie McLendon isn't sure what the exact words were--"I just mumble a little bit in French"--but another player got the message. "I don't understand what he said," the player retorted, "but I'll back him up all the way."

McClendon says Estay's "quickness is the greatest thing going for him. The pros are looking at him as a linebacker because they know he's got pretty good quickness and maneuverability. And he's a much stronger boy than he appears for his size. He's just been the leader of our defensive squad. He gave us our pass rush Saturday night. Even an amateur would have noticed him around the football all the time."

Hamilton sewed up the victory in the first half on scoring passes of 36 and 32 yards from Jones. His last touchdown was a 13-yarder from Paul Lyons with 20 seconds left in the game.

All-America Team Named

CHICAGO (AP) — Four undefeated college powers--Nebraska, Oklahoma, Michigan and Auburn--each placed two players on the 1971 All Americ a team announced Tuesday by the Football Writers Association of America. Twice-beaten Tennessee also landed two berths.

No. 1 Nebraska, headed for a Thanksgiving Day showdown with No. 2 Oklahoma, also produced the winner of the Outland Trophy, awarded the nation's outstanding interior lineman, Larry Jacobson, 6-foot-6, 250-pound defensive tackle.

The other Cornhusker named was wide receiver Johnny Rodgers.

Oklahoma's two honored players were center Tom Brahaney and Greg Pruitt, included in a backfield also composed of quarterback Pat Sullivan of Auburn and two running backs, Ed Marinaro of Cornell and Johnny Musso of Alabama.

Auburn's other selection was Terry Beasley as wide receiver.

Michigan, Rose Bowl bound champion of the Big Ten, placed offensive guard Reggie McKenzie and linebacker Mike Taylor. Tennessee had two defensive choices, linebacker Jackie Walker and halfback Bobby Majors.

The team, including 11 offensive and 11 defensive players, plus kicking specialist Bill McClard of Arkansas, was announced by Volney Meece; Oklahoma City Daily Oklahoman and FWAA president.

Hill Drops Golf Suit

NEW YORK (AP) — Dave Hill, controversial member of golf's pro tour, has dropped his $3 million suit against the PGA Tournament Players Division and gained a reduction in the length of his probation.

Settlement of the case was announced here Tuesday in a joint statement by Hill, the Professional Golfers Association and the TPD.

No details of the settlement were given other than the fact that Hill had withdrawn his suit and had had his period of probation cut back from May 21, 1972, to Dec. 31, 1971.

Thus he will be able to start the winter tour in January with a clean slate.

Hill, fined numerous times for infractions, filed his $3 million suit in Memphis this year after he had been assessed $500 for conduct unbecoming a professional.

The fine grew out of an incident in the Colonial Invitation at Fort Worth, Tex., in May. At that time, Hill, disgusted with his play, threw a ball out of a sand trap and signed for a two on the hole instead of the nine strokes he took.

After being fined for the action, he accused the PGA and TPD of violation of the anti-trust laws.

Chamberlain Paces Lakers

NEW YORK (AP) — The Los Angeles Lakers are the most improved team in the National Basketball Association.

Seventh in offense and sixth in defense last season, the Lakers have bounced back to become the No. 1 team in the league in scoring and fifth best on defense.

Part of the reason for this is Wilt Chamberlain, who leads the NBA in rebounding with a total of 399 in 20 games for a 20.0 average.

The weekly NBA statistics announced today show Kareem Jabbar of Milwaukee pacing the individual scoring race with a 32.8 average and leading in field goal percentage with .601. He is just back of Chamberlain in rebounds with a 17.4 average.

Jack Marin of Baltimore tops the free throw list with 98 in 108 attempts for a .907 average.

In team statistics, Los Angeles is averaging 116.6 points a game, a slight lead over Boston, 116.4, and Milwaukee, 114.1.

New England's Largest College Daily

The Massachusetts
Daily Collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

Weather:
When it comes you'll know. Till then, just wait.

VOLUME XCIX, ISSUE 55 UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS MONDAY, NOVEMBER 29, 1971

Though it snowed all over Massachusetts Boston and the immediately surrounding towns escaped. The water wasn't even frozen, which is what you get for moving. (MDC photo by Steve Schmidt)

Jordan's Prime Minister Assassinated

CAIRO (AP)-Prime Minister Wasfi Tell of Jordan, an unrelenting foe of the Palestinian guerrillas, was assassinated here yesterday.

Police seized three men they said claim to belong to the Black Ilul Black September movement, formed to avenge the deaths of guerrillas during the fierce fighting between Palestinians and the Jordanian army in September 1970.

Tell was gunned down at the entrance of Cairo's Sheraton Hotel. The 51-year-old prime minister was representing his country at a 17-nation Arab League Defense Council meeting called to plan joint strategy against Israel.

A white chalk outline and still wet blood where he fell marked the spot as steel helmeted riot police ringed the Nile-side hotel shortly after the shooting.

A statement by the Egyptian attorney general, broadcast by Cairo Radio, said one assailant fired on Tell as he entered the hotel after returning from a lunch given by the Arab League secretariat. Other gunmen, presumably inside the hotel lobby, then opened fire, the statement continued.

The three arrested assailants admitted shooting Tell, the statement said.

One of the gunmen was wounded in shooting that broke out after the attack, the statement continued. An Egyptian security officer also was hit.

The statement made no reference to the wounding of Foreign Minister Abdullah Salah of Jordan. King Hussein said in a broadcast from Amman on Tell's death that Salah was injured.

The Egyptian statement said a medical report showed Tell's death was caused by bone fracture, shattered intestines and internal bleeding.

President Anwar Sadat of Egypt sent a telegram to King Hussein of Jordan expressing "severe condemnation on behalf of myself and the Egyptian people for this crime which took place on Egyptian land."

Sadat's promise that "all those guilty will receive due punishment...We are extremely grieved that anyhody should take advantage of the tolerance and atmosphere of security provided by this country."

The hotel is only a block from Sadat's house.

Police sources said they had identified the three arrested men as Palestinians and gave their names as Ezzet Abdul Fatah, Gawad Baghdady and Monzir Khalifa.

All three were said to be carrying Syrian passports.

King Hussein called the Jordan cabinet into session immediately at his palace in Amman. Afterward he praised Tell as "a true soldier" and declared in a nationwide broadcast that "this horrible crime was aimed at destroying the national unity of the Jordanian people and kingdom."

He declared 40 days of national mourning.

Jordan Arabs under Israeli occupation fear that the assassination might stir additional civil war in Jordan.

Before Hussein's broadcast, the Jordan radio played martial music and broadcast readings from the Koran, interspersed with funeral music.

An announcer interrupted the music occasionally and shouted, "Hatred, hatred, hatred, those who love their country love to die for its sake. Wasfi Tell was an Arab martyr who has been murdered by the black Palestinian movement."

After the shooting, the hotel was ringed shoulder-to-shoulder by helmeted and armed riot police.

Egyptian Vice President Hussein Al Shafei took charge of the investigation and offered condolences to the Jordanian ambassador.

The assassination took place despite security precautions including the evacuation of all Jordanians residing in the Sheraton, to protect Tell, fiercely hated by Palestinians for his attitude toward the guerrilla movement in Jordan.

Tell, a strong supporter of the monarchy, reportedly advised King Hussein to launch his crackdown on the guerrillas in September 1970.

King Hussein named Tell to head the government Oct 28, 1970, after the Jordanian army had battered Palestinian guerrillas in an 11-day civil war in September.

His death followed the breakdown on Friday of negotiations between the Jordan government and the Palestinian guerrillas in the Saudi Arabian city of Jidda.

A guerrilla spokesman was quoted at the time as saying efforts to reach a settlement had reached a dead end and "the next round will be different from all previous rounds."

After news of Tell's death reached the Jordanian capital, shooting in the air, a traditional form of Arab celebration, broke out in Palestinian refugee camps near Beirut.

A statement released by Al Fatah, largest of the guerrilla groups, said "We think that this death came as a natural ending for men whose hands are stained with the blood of the people of Palestine and the people of Jordan."

On The Inside:

● Blasko Reacts
See page four

● Pakistan War
See page three

Student Senate President Lee Sandwen speaks of God-fearing politicians and the youth vote.

Student Leaders On Youth Vote

By ED SLOAN

Two weeks ago three UMass professors of the Political Science Department in a Collegian interview, analyzed the impact of youth voting in American politics and concluded that it will be an important and potent factor only if large numbers of youth voters exercise their right to vote.

But should youth feel any obligation to vote if the American system of electoral politics lacks meaning to them? This time, the Collegian interviewed separately, two UMass students who have taken firm and public stands on political issues and who sum up best, perhaps, the available alternatives in answering the question, "Does youth's vote mean anything in American politics?" Lee Sandwen says "yes;" Tom Moriarty says "no."

Lee Sandwen, president of the Student Senate, thinks that the youth vote can make an impact on society. "Politics," he said, "is a definite game which we can manipulate. We can put the fear of God in all politicians. Voting and direct participation gives us our influence."

Although he doesn't conceive of youth voting in a solid bloc, Sandwen feels that a definite majority of youth will favor certain issues and unite. Politicians will be responsive and aware of the student vote, he believes.

In his introductory remarks in presenting Senator McGovern to an overflow audience in the Student Union ballroom last month, the Senate president indicated his position on the meaning of American politics when he emphasized in strong terms, "We must get involved if we are serious in becoming effective agents of change. It is up to you who claim to want a better world to at least vote."

In his introductory remarks in presenting Senator McGovern to an overflow audience in the Student Union ballroom last month, the Senate president indicated his position on the meaning of American politics when he emphasized in strong terms, "We must get involved if we are serious in becoming effective agents of change. It is up to you who claim to want a better world to at least vote."

Moriarty, leader of the Young Socialist Alliance, takes a completely different viewpoint. Looking workerlike in wearing what resembled a Trotskyite hat and peering through metal-rimmed glasses, Moriarty said, "As long as the political system consists of capitalist politicians, the vote doesn't mean a damn thing. If the young voter votes for the Democratic or Republican parties, then the young voter has no influence."

Moriarty said that the capitalist system creates its own problems and he specifically pointed his finger at the injustices of Attica and the "wage-freeze." However, the YSA leader said he believes that by organizing for a socialist revolution, people can influence society. Though confirming his opposition for working within the capitalist system, Moriarty allows for the fact that it is within the bounds of revolutionary socialists' civil liberties to organize.

But if he is opposed to the capitalist system, he will not be voting in the 1972 election, correct?

"No," Moriarty said, "I will be voting. I will be voting for the Socialist candidate." He conceded, however, that the Socialist cannot win.

SWAP Reactions Mostly Positive

By SHELLEY LAUZON

Participants at last weekend's SWAP conference have given positive reactions in regard to its value and the experience gained through the interaction of members of the University community.

A survey conducted among participants from the University administration, faculty and student body yielded concurring sentiments on the conference.

Dean of Students William Field, who has attended every SWAP conference to date, feels that this year's program was the best organized "in the sense of more people spending more time." The group was also the "hardest-working", with many productive discussions and a great deal of interaction among those attending. He felt that the conference gave many who wouldn't ordinarily have the chance the opportunity to raise questions or issues among other members of the University.

Dean Field added that he personally learned a great deal and has already begun work in areas where improvements were deemed necessary.

Jim Riley, a program advisor in Student Activities, was extremely pleased with the conference. It was an "accomplishment just getting people together," and it presented an opportunity to talk with others and learn what is happening elsewhere in the University. He feels more "aware" now of other's problems and may be in a better position in the future to help.

One important point he noted was the fact that this year's conference "seemed to get away from good Utopian things." Many realized that changes are often difficult to implement over short periods of time and require long range planning. He said he also felt that participants learned that must do things daily here on campus in hopes of accomplishing these changes.

Speaking on the Chancellor Selection Committee, Riley said that he felt "some valuable input" was given from students and faculty. Many of the participants said that the definite goals of the University had to be defined before an attempt could be made to find a person to fit these goals, but others added that these goals are constantly changing. The end result produced a cross-section of opinions and ideas which may prove extremely helpful to the committee, he added.

Existing problems on campus have been brought to light, and if these problems should arise in the future a solution may be found much more easily, according to Riley. This awareness, along with a variety of opinions, and the need for re-evaluation of many University policies, were among the key points of the weekend. It was a "valuable experience at that time," but it wasn't an immediate solution to any problems. However, it will have a bearing on future activity, he feels.

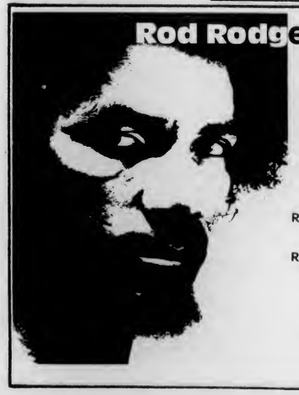
Joe DeSouza, a senior and president of Dickinson House, expressed similar sentiments. As a first year participant, he felt he gained a great deal of personal experience. Hoping to bring this knowledge back here and make others aware of what is going on, Joe added that the weekend was something "personal in an impersonal university."

Randy Dahl, a SWAP committee member, was likewise pleased with the conference. Like others who have attended more than one conference, Dahl said this year's was well orgainized, but that "there is always room for improvement." He also said that there was quite a bit of interaction among all participants, and that many good recommendations were made which should be of value to the university as a whole.

(Editor's note: SWAP conferees were asked at the final session to make public just how valuable or worthless they found the weekend of meetings. The Student Senate, which appropriates funds for the SWAP conference, is questioning its value, and a repeat in 1972 is unsure. This MDC survey is presented as a public service to inform the public of some reactions to the conference.)

Quicksilver
57 North Pleasant Street
LIVE MUSIC
Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday Nites
OLDIES NITE
Monday
STONES NITE
Wednesday
RESTAURANT
Open 24 Hours

DAN DINANCHESCU
Director of Cities Project: A study of London, New York, and Moscow.
"An Urban Approach to National Policy"
Tuesday, Nov. 30, 9:00 p.m.
S.U. Art Gallery
COFFEE HOUR FOLLOWING
Sponsored by Campus Center Program Council



The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

Office of the DAILY COLLEGIAN are on the second floor of the Student Union on the University campus. Zip code 01002 Phones are 545-2550 (news), 545-0344 (sports), and 549-1311 (editor).

Second class postage paid at Amherst, the DAILY COLLEGIAN publishes five times weekly Monday through Friday during the academic year except during vacation and exam periods; three or four times a week following a vacation or exam period or when a holiday falls within a week. Accepted for mailing under the authority of the act of March 8, 1879 as amended by the act of June 11, 1943. Subscription rates are $6.00 per semester, $10.00 per year.

The B.M. is coming

ROBIN MORGAN
Women's Liberationist will speak Dec. 14
8:00 p.m. S.U. Ballroom

Rod Rodgers Dance Company
a unique theatre experience
Tuesday - Thursday
December 7-9
8:00 P.M.
Bowker Auditorium
A Different Program Each Evening.
Reserved Tickets
UMass Undergrads $1.00
UMass Undergrads $1.00
Reserved Tickets:
UMass Undergrads $1.00
Other Full-Time Students $2.00
UMass Faculty/Staff $3.00
General Public $3.50
Fine Arts Council Ticket Office,
125 Herter Hall, Tel. 545-0202
Presented by the University of Massachusetts Fine Arts Council

UMass Police Chief Calls No-Gun Policy A Joke

Chief of Police Alexander "Red" Blasko

By STEPHEN SMITH

"I think this elimination of guns business is a joke," said Alexander "Red" Blasko, the chief of police at the UMass.

He was referring to the recent Student Senate resolution calling for the implementation of a "no gun' policy for Campus Police, except in those times where injury to life would exist."

However, "injury to life" is not a predictable thing, according to Blasko. "If they told me there was going to be a big shootout on Friday at noon," quipped the 57-year-old officer, "I'd stay at home."

He pointed to the gruesome figures contained in a Uniform Crime Report circulated by the FBI to illustrate the necessity of law enforcement officers being armed.

The report stated that 302 local, county, and state officers were "murdered" during the first 10 months of this year, 16 dying as a result of "ambush-type attacks."

"The University is a city within the town of Amherst," said Blasko. "Can you imagine an officer patrolling a street in a city...without being able to protect himself?"

To dispel any doubts that the University's crime problem might not be nearly as severe as a city's, the campus police chief had one of his officers, Robert Joyce, bring in an attache case containing small weapons confiscated on the campus.

The contents of the case closely resembled what Philadelphia police find after breaking up a gang war: a .22 caliber rifle sawed off to handgun size; hunting knives, swtich blades, a billy club, and assorted other weaponry. This did not include the rifles and shotguns which have been seized by the campus police.

"Nobody here has been shot," stated Blasko, "but we've had several narrow escapes."

The dramatic increase in crime on the campus this year is further proof of the need for armed campus police, according to Joyce and Blasko. There have been 402 arrests in the first two months of the school year compared to 87 arrests for a similar time period last year.

He said 103 auto thefts have occurred compared to 49 during this time in 1970. Narcotic arrests have risen from 13 to 112, larceny from a building arrests from 2 to 10, and larceny from $100 arrests from 11 to 36.

Even more striking, the total of larcenies reported rose from 500 to 768, and the grand total of all unlawful activity handled by the campus police increased from 2,054 to 3,094, he said.

The two officers attribute most of the campus crime to the "outside element." They claimed that these outsiders came from all over the state "to rob us blind," in the words of Joyce.

Blasko argued that only a small minority of university students were actually involved in the rash of crime on the campus. "As for the majority of students, you couldn't ask for any better," the chief said. "I'd take them over any other group of students in the country."

Another argument for arming campus police, said Blasko, is that his force assists the Amherst and Hadley Police Departments, as well as the State police. "We're not going into that unarmed," he emphasized.

Officer Joyce put the gun controversy into more general terms. "A gun is inert," he said. "The man behind it is the important thing."

Blasko, who has been chief of the campus police since 1950, expressed confidence in the men behind the guns. Every member of the 27 man force has graduated from the State Police Academy, and 10 officers are currently working toward Police Science degrees. According to their chief, these men are highly trained and have been taught to use a gun only with the utmost disgression.

Both officers felt that a poll of the students would reveal that the majority favored the Campus Police arming themselves. Blasko discounted any possibility of his force conforming to the Student Senate's "no gun" policy request.

The chief has been carrying a gun in police work since the late 1930s. "I've never used it," he said. "I hope and pray to God I never have to."

Student Senate Committee Calendar

Committee & Chairman	Meeting Time and Place	Main Topic of Discussion
Services Brenda Rau	Tues., Nov. 30, 7:15 RSO area	Joint meeting with the Rents & Fees committee after Services finishes its own business, at 8 p.m.
Rents & Fees Robert Chiller	Tues., Nov. 30, 7 p.m. Room 165, CC	Joint meeting with the Services Committee
Budgets John Stevens	Tues., Nov. 30, 7:30 Room 801, CC	2nd hearing for SATF funding motions
Academic Affairs Nick Apostola	Tues. Nov. 30, 6:15 Room 811-815, CC	Freshman year
Social Action Maggie Houghton	Wed., Dec. 1, 6:15 Room 178, CC	Financial appropriations Discussion of sub committees
Student Matters Bruce Bernstein	Thurs., Dec. 2, 8 p.m. Room 175, CC	Sylvan area discussion Concert Committee progress Pending legislation
Financial Affairs Skip Olmstead	Thurs. Dec. 2, 8 p.m. Room 177, CC	Financial appropriations
Women's Committee Lisa Mandell	No meeting this week due to committee organization with other women's groups on campus.
Governmental Affairs Bill Spinn	Sun., Dec. 5, 6:00 Room 802, CC	Committee organization

CASIAC
(Machmer E22)
will be open
8:30 a.m.–8:30 p.m.
every day this week
for all students who need academic advising.

All The Nights To Come
Israeli film set to the poetry of Yehuda Amichai
C.C. 168 7:30 p.m. tonight
Guest Speaker - Mark Edell
Free Admission
Does Being Jewish Mean You Have To Give Money?

11th HOUR LECTURE SERIES
presents
DEAN ALBERTSON
"Ecology and the Machine"
Tues. Nov. 30
Mahar Aud. 8:30 p.m.
Free Admission
Sponsored by the Maroon Keys.

Issue Editors Meeting Tonight
7:00 p.m.
Collegian Office

WTOY Presents
BOB DYLAN

DONT LOOK BACK
A Film By D. A. Pennebaker
Tuesday, November 30 75c
S.U. Ballroom 7:30 and 9:30

How To Move Off-Campus

If You:

1. are a Senior
2. will be 21 years of age during the academic year
3. are married
4. will be commuting from home

Then, notify - the Housing Office before room-choosing (December 6-10) that you intend to exercise any of the above options.

You're Not Covered By The Above Categories?

If you are not covered by any of the above categories then you are required by Board of Trustee regulation to live on-campus. However, you may apply for an exemption to the regulation through your Area Director.

Security Deposit:

If you plan to move off-campus you must notify the Housing Office before December 10, 1971, in order that you may get your deposit back. Students who fail to make such notification by December 10 and who fail to occupy a room in the Spring Semester will, unfortunately, forfeit their deposit. Make your plans early.

In The Nation And The World

Pakistan Claims New Indian Attack

(AP) - Radio Pakistan claimed Sunday that Indian armed forces launched a major new offensive during the day in East Pakistan, employing armored units, artillery barrages and air strikes.

The official government radio said the offensive was a three pronged attack on Dinajpur in the northwest, Sylhet in the northeast and Jessore in the southwest.

The broadcast claimed units from the 80th Indian Infantry Division were heading the attack in the Sylhet area, while air strikes were being used to support the ground attack in the Jessore region.

India, however, reported the troops had crossed into East Pakistan for the third time in a week only "in self defense."

An Indian dispatch from Balurghat said Pakistani guns had shelled a crowded market place, killing six civilians and wounding more than a dozen others.

Pakistan military officials earlier reported repelling five separate Indian assaults, and listed 43 Indian soldiers, three Pakistani troops and 20 civilians killed.

Although Pakistan persisted in its claims that India was waging an all-out battle with Pakistani troops officials in Rawalpindi acknowledged for the first time Sunday that Bengali guerrillas were fighting the Pakistan army as well.

An Indian communique said troops destroyed three Pakistani tanks in the engagement in the Balurghat area 200 miles north of Calcutta, where Indian troops also had crossed the border Thursday following what was described as a Pakistani artillery attack.

The Indians said they moved into East Pakistan again in a "fresh defensive action" after renewed shelling Saturday of Indian border regions around Balurghat, the district headquarters of West Dinajpur district.

According to the Indians, the three border crossings have been made under orders approved by the Indian prime minister, Mrs. Indira Gandhi, permitting troops to move into East Pakistan in "self defense."

The Pakistan government has alleged, however, that India is attacking in the eastern province to help the Mukhti Bahini, the East Pakistan liberation army.

Mrs. Gandhi opposed any move to bring the crisis before the United Nations Security council.

"Referring the issue to the Security Council would neither help ease the situation, nor materially affect it," she told a rally Sunday in Jaipur, after visiting troops on the East Pakistan border for the second straight day.

"Pakistan has committed aggression against us three times in the past," she was quoted as saying in Indian news reports in a reference to the first Indian Pakistan conflict in 1948 and again in 1965.

"It is clear we did not attack Pakistan. But what did the Security Council do to help us against aggression," she asked. "It did not even say who the aggressor was."

In Calcutta, Defense Minister Jagjivan Ram said India would not withdraw its troops from the border unless the East Pakistan exiles could go home "with safety and honor."

Ghandi Wants World Action

PAKISTAN (AP)-While visiting troops on the front line in the Punjab state, Mrs. Gandhi called for international action on the crisis, but she stressed that international pressures should be directed at Pakistan's president, Agha Mohammed Yahya Khan, to reach a settlement.

In her address at Jaipur, Mrs. Gandhi also accused the major powers of raising a hue and cry "when India deployed its forces along its borders last month following an earlier Pakistan buildup."

"So long as we watched the situation and were silent," she said, "those powers felt that everything on the subcontinent was all right.

Meanwhile, in Dacca, the Pakistan Army claimed Sunday that each of the alleged five Indian attacks were "battalion strength, supported by Mortars an' artillery."

A Pakistan army spo. 'an claimed that some 43 Indian soldiers were killed, raising the death toll of Indian troops to nearly 1,000 in one week.

Three Pakistan soldiers were killed and 11 others wounded Saturday, he said, raising the loss to the Pakistan side to nearly 20 during the past week.

"People in east Pakistan by and large are helping the guerrillas," said a Pakistan military spokesman. "But it is quite wrong to compare the situation to a people's war or to Vietnam."

"There is some guerrilla activity but it could not be called anything but stray," the spokesman said. Deserters from the army's regular East Bengal regiment and East Pakistan rifles formed the core of the guerrillas which, he said, now numbered more than 50,000.

He said, "They are fighting a desperate battle because they are homesick. There is no ideological basis to their struggle. Without the active support of the Indians, they may not hold out three months. They will disintegrate."

The Department of Plant and Soil Sciences will offer Organic Gardening and Farming as PI Soil 386, 3-credits. Next semester (Spring, 1972).

Time: Lecture 11:00 Tu Th
(1) 1:25-3:20 Lab-Disc Tu
(2) 1:25-3:20 Lab-Disc Th

No Prerequisites. Permission of instructor is desirable.

For information contact:
Prof. Allen V. Barker
Bowditch Hall
545-2247

MERCURY BOOKSTORE

Astrology and Occult Sciences

549-0910

9 EAST PLEASANT STREET

AMHERST,

Corrected Page 25 of Undergraduate Course Listings, Spring Semester

Page 25

DEPT	COURSE SECT	TITLE MEETING TIME	BLDG	ROOM	CUR CR
RHET	110 CONTINUED
OH	19.TUTH 2.30-3.45		EUGF	434
	A 20.MWF 9.05		COOL	19L
	B 21.MWF 10.10		Q-AD	19L
	C 22.MWF 11.15		THOR	OR
	D 23.MWF 12.20		COOL	19L
	E 24.MWF 1.25		PAT	DL
	F 25.MWF 2.30		MOOR	MR
	G 26.TUTH 8.00-9.15		WASH	SL
	H 27.TUTH 9.30-10.45		PIER	PL
	A 28.TUTH 11.15-12.30		COOL	12L
	B 29.TUTH 1.00-2.15		Q-AD	12L
	32.MWF 9.05		S C	106
	33.MWF 10.10		S C	106
	34.MWF 11.15		S C	106
RHET	140 VOICES OF IMAG WRIT				B 3
OH	1.MWF 9.05		MOAH	104
OH	2.MWF 10.10		EMLY	529
OH	3.MWF 11.15		EUGF	434
OH	4.MWF 1.25		MOAH	539
OH	5.MWF 2.30		EMLY	104
OH	6.TUTH 11.15-12.30		GRAY	104
OH	7.TUTH 9.30-10.45		GRAY	434
OH	8.TUTH 1.00-2.15		GRAY	534
	9.TUTH 2.30-3.45		WOPE	153
	10.TUTH 4.00-5.15		GRES	20B
	11.MWF 3.35		GRES	30B
	12.MWF 12.20		WOPE	153
	13.MWF 9.05		BART	302
	14.MWF 9.05		MACH	W17
	15.MWF 10.10		BART	312
	16.MWF 12.20		BART	312
	17.MWF 1.25		BART	312
	18.MWF 2.30		BART	302
	19.MWF 3.35		BART	312
	20.MWF 3.35		BART	310
	21.MWF 4.40		BART	310
	22.TUTH 11.15-12.30		BART	312
	23.TUTH 9.30-10.45		SBA	103
	24.MWF 3.35		BART	203
	25.MWF 2.30		BART	203
	26.MWF 4.40		BART	201
	27.MWF 4.40		BART	203
	28.MWF 4.40		BART	206
	29.MWF 4.40		MACH	W17
	30.MWF 4.40		BART	302
	31.MWF 4.40		HERT	205
	32.MWF 4.40		SBA	106
	33.MWF 4.40		SBA	105
	34.MWF 4.40		SBA	103
	35.MWF 3.35		BART	302
	36.MWF 3.35		BART	201
	37.MWF 3.35		SBA	105
	38.MWF 3.35		MACH	W17
C	39.MWF 9.05		THOR	OR
E	39.MWF 9.05		THOR	OR
	40.MWF 9.05		FREN	106
	41.MWF 9.05		DKSN	216
A	42.MWF 10.10		COOL	19L
B	42.MWF 10.10		COOL	19L
	43.MWF 10.10		MORA	401
	44.MWF 10.10		WOPE	153
F	45.MWF 11.15		MOOR	MR
	46.MWF 11.15		HOLO	202
	47.MWF 11.15		MORA	401
	49.MWF 12.20		FREN	106
	50.MWF 12.20		DKSN	216
C	51.MWF 1.25		JAMS	OR
	52.MWF 1.25		HOLO	202
	53.MWF 1.25		WOPE	153
D	54.MWF 2.30		Q-AD	12L
	55.MWF 2.30		WOPE	153
	56.MWF 2.30		HERT	225
	57.MWF 3.35		WOPE	153
	58.MWF 3.35		SBA	101
B	60.TUTH 9.30-10.45		Q-AD	5L
	61.TUTH 9.30-10.45		DKSN	214
	62.TUTH 9.30-10.45		WOPE	153
A	63.TUTH 11.15-12.30		COOL	5L
	64.TUTH 11.15-12.30		WOPE	153
	65.TUTH 11.15-12.30		HOLO	202
F	66.TUTH 1.00-2.15		MOOR	MR
RHET	140 CONTINUED
G	66.TUTH 1.00-2.15		MOOR	MR
	67.TUTH 1.00-2.15		HERT	112
	68.TUTH 1.00-2.15		WOPE	153
C	69.TUTH 2.30-3.45		MELV	OL
D	69.TUTH 2.30-3.45		MELV	OL
RHET	144 140-PROJECT TEN				3
	70.W 19.45-22.15		PIER	OFF
	71.TUTH 11.15-12.30		PIER	OFF
	72.TU 19.45-22.15		PIER	OFF
	73.TH 19.45-22.15		PIER	OFF
RHET	148 CRIT & THEATRE ARTS				B 3
	1.TUTH 9.30-10.45		MACH	W11
	2.TUTH 11.15-12.30		MACH	W11
	3.TUTH 11.15-12.30		BART	125
	4.MWF 9.05		MACH	W11
	5.MWF 3.35		MACH	W11
RHET	160 ART OF RHET DISCOURS				B 3
	1.MWF 9.05		BART	107
	2.MWF 11.15		BART	107
	3.MWF 11.15		BART	125
RHET	165 MOD PUBLIC DISCOURSE				B 3
	1.WF 10.10		BART	AUD
	M 12.20		BART	109
	2.WF 10.10		BART	AUD
	M 1.25		BART	109
	3.WF 10.10		BART	AUD
	M 3.35		BART	107
	4.WF 10.10		BART	AUD
	M 4.40		BART	107
	5.WF 10.10		BART	AUD
	M 12.20		BART	107
	6.WF 10.10		BART	AUD
	M 2.30		BART	125
	7.WF 10.10		BART	AUD
	M 3.35		BART	125
	8.WF 10.10		BART	AUD
	M 3.35		BART	127
	9.WF 10.10		BART	AUD
	TU 8.00		BART	127
	10.WF 10.10		BART	AUD
	TU 8.00		BART	125
	11.WF 10.10		BART	AUD
	TU 8.00		BART	109
	12.WF 10.10		BART	AUD
	F 12.20		BART	107
	13.WF 10.10		BART	AUD
	F 11.15		BART	109
	14.WF 10.10		BART	AUD
	TU 2.30		MACH	W11
	15.WF 10.10		BART	AUD
	TU 3.35		MACH	W11
RHET	170 PROCESS OF COMMUNCTN				B 3
	1.TUTH 11.15		HERT	231
	W 8.00		BART	107
	2.TUTH 11.15		HERT	231
	W 8.00		BART	125
	3.TUTH 11.15		HERT	231
	W 12.20		BART	107
	4.TUTH 11.15		HERT	231
	W 3.35		BART	127
	5.TUTH 11.15		HERT	231
	W 2.30		BART	125
	6.TUTH 11.15		HERT	231
	W 3.35		BART	125
RHET	175 RHET OF MODERN MEDIA				B 3
	1.TUTH 11.15-12.30		BART	127
	2.MWF 10.10		BART	125
	3.MWF 8.00		BART	109
	4.TUTH 9.30-10.45		BART	125
	5.TUTH 9.30-10.45		BART	127
	6.TUTH 2.30-3.45		BART	109
	7.MWF 1.25		BART	127
RHET	180 RHETORIC OF FILM				B 3
	1.M 2.30-5.30		THOM	104
	TU 19.45-21.00		SBA	105
	2.M 2.30-5.30		THOM	104
	TU 21.15-22.30		SBA	105
	3.M 2.30-5.30		THOM	104
	TU 1.00-2.15		BART	256
	4.M 2.30-5.30		THOM	104
	TU 9.30-10.45		BART	274
RHET	180 CONTINUED
	5.M 2.30-5.30		THOM	104
	TU 11.15-12.30		BART	274
OH	6.M 2.30-5.30		THOM	104
	TU 9.30-10.45		GRAY	329
D	7.M 2.30-5.30		THOM	104
	TU 11.15-12.30		MCK	1
	8.M 2.30-5.30		THOM	104
	W 9.05-11.00		BART	274
	9.M 2.30-5.30		THOM	104
	W 3.35-5.30		BART	456
	10.TU 2.30-5.30		THOM	102
	TH 9.30-10.45		BART	274
	11.TU 2.30-5.30		THOM	102
	TH 11.15-12.30		BART	274
	12.TU 2.30-5.30		THOM	102
	TH 1.00-2.15		BART	274
	13.TU 2.30-5.30		THOM	102
	TH 2.30-3.45		BART	274
OH	14.TU 2.30-5.30		THOM	102
	TH 9.30-10.45		GRAY	329
C	15.TU 2.30-5.30		THOM	102
	TH 11.15-12.30		PAT	DL
E	15.TU 2.30-5.30		THOM	102
	TH 11.15-12.30		PAT	DL
F	16.TU 2.30-5.30		THOM	102
	TH 1.00-2.15		MOOR	PL
H	16.TU 2.30-5.30		THOM	102
	TH 1.00-2.15		MOOR	PL
	17.TU 2.30-5.30		THOM	102
	W 19.45-21.00		SBA	105
	18.TU 2.30-5.30		THOM	102
	F 9.05-11.00		BART	274
	19.W 2.30-5.30		THOM	104
	TH 19.45-21.00		RELO
A	20.W 2.30-5.30		THOM	104
	TH 1.00-2.15		COOL	5L
B	21.W 2.30-5.30		THOM	104
	TH 9.30-10.45		Q-AD	12L
	22.W 2.30-5.30		THOM	104
	TH 11.15-1.10		BART	456
	23.W 2.30-5.30		THOM	104
	F 9.05-11.00		BART	256
	24.W 2.30-5.30		THOM	104
	F 12.20-2.15		BART	256
	25.W 2.30-5.30		THOM	104
	W 19.45-21.00		SBA	106
	26.W 2.30-5.30		THOM	104
	TH 19.45-21.00		SBA	105
	27.W 2.30-5.30		THOM	104
	F 12.20-2.15		BART	274
RUSSIAN
RUSS	120 ELEMENTARY RUSSIAN				3
	1.MTUWTHF 8.00		HERT	107
	2.MTUWTHF 9.05		HERT	107
	3.MTUWTHF 10.10		HERT	107
RUSS	129 RUSSIAN READING				3
	1.MWF 3.35		HERT	107
RUSS	140 INTERMEDIATE RUSSIAN				C 3
	1.MWF 12.20		HERT	107
	2.MWF 2.30		HERT	107
RUSS	149 EXPOSITORY PROSE		(P)		3
	1.MWF 1.25		HERT	444
RUSS	253 DOSTOIEVSKY				C 3
	1.TUTH 1.00-2.15		HERT	107
RUSS	257 SOVIET LITERATURE				C 3
	1.TUTH 4.00-5.15		HERT	107
RUSS	258 RUSSIAN POETRY				3
	1.TUTH 11.15-12.30		HERT	444
RUSS	259 SLAVIC PEOPLES		(P)		3
	1.MWF 1.25		HERT	107
RUSS	262 ADV RUSS GRAMMAR				3
	1.MWF 9.05		HERT	444
RUSS	266 RUSSIAN PHONETICS				3
	1.TUTH 9.30-10.45		HERT	444
RUSS	272 RUSSIAN CONVERSATION				3
	1.TUTH 1.00-2.15		HERT	444

In Brief...

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (AP)-President Nixon, due to disclose the date of his mainland China visit by midweek, announced Sunday the fourth in a series of pre-departure conferences with allied leaders, a late December meeting with West German Chancellor Willy Brandt.

Brandt and Nixon will meet Dec. 28-29 at the Florida White House in Key Biscayne.

BELFAST, (AP)-Bloody Saturday turned into quiet Sunday in embattled Ulster amid claims that the newest explosive bomb-bullet campaign by the Irish Republican Army may turn out to be one of its biggest mistakes.

British army forces, striving to whip the illegal IRA until a political solution for the province can be found, contended Saturday's massive attack had been repelled and the instigators defeated.

ROME (AP)-The United States and its major overseas trading partners meet here Monday amid signs that the deadlock of nearly four months in their worst monetary crisis since World War II may be easing.

U.S. Treasury Secretary John B. Connally and finance ministers of the non-Communist world's richest nations, the Group of Ten, will be making their final attempt this year to agree on what the once almighty dollar, and the other currencies financing their trade, are really worth.

(AP)-A Trans World Airlines jet, hijacked to Cuba by three suspected police killers, returned to Miami Sunday and a stewardess said she lied at knifepoint to "talk them out of taking us to Africa."

Peter Pan Grounded

Peter Pan Bus Lines is still out on strike. All negotiations have ceased as of Thanksgiving, with none scheduled for at least the next three days.

As of now there is no State intervention planned.

Peter Pan went out on strike at Midnight last Monday over a wage dispute. The strike effects 68 employees and has curtailed service to the UMass community.

While buses still operate between UMass and Boston the strike has made it necessary for the trip to be lengthened. Instead of going to Springfield to Boston it is now necessary to swing down to Connecticut to pick up a Western Mass. bus to Boston.

The ticket office in the Student Union is able to give those who wish to leave campus by bus the needed information.

School of Ed.

Pre-registration for the School of Education will take place today and tomorrow in the former library downstairs in the School of Education building for 9:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m.

Course description will be available at that time. There will be representatives of all centers/programs and TPPC Programs. Graduate, Undergraduate advisors and a general information table will aid the process.

NOW...YOUR CHOICE OF 5!
Showcase
Rt. 5-W. Spfld.
Cinema 1-2-3-4-5
733-5131
MORE NEW SHOWS!
MORE NEW LOUNGER SEATS!
MORE NEW PARKING!
MATINEES DAILY... POPULAR PRICES
Adults $1.50 Mon thru Fri Mats
1 Gone With The Wind G
2 French Connection R
3 Sunday Bloody Sunday R
4 Joe Hill GP
5 Together X
ACRES FREE PARKING
ROCKER LOUNGERS

S. Viets Launch New Drive

SAIGON (AP)-Twenty-five thousand South Vietnamese troops have launched a new dry season offensive stretching over more than 2,000 square miles of the Mekong Delta, field reports said Sunday. Only light fighting was reported.

Another 25,000-man South Vietnamese drive, into eastern Cambodia, ended its first week with only minor patrol clashes reported. There has been no major fighting since the cross-border thrust began last Monday.

Lt. Gen. Ngo Quang Truong, commander of Saigon forces in the Mekong Delta, said the new two-division drive there is aimed at wiping out the last major enemy stronghold in the fertile rice bowl. Truong estimated there are about 5,000 enemy troops in the area which stretches from the U Minh Forest to the Ca Mau Peninsula.

An earlier operation established South Vietnamese control in the U Minh for the first time in the Indochina war but failed to destroy the enemy's regional headquarters. They new sweep began last Friday but was not announced until Sunday for security reasons, the South Vietnamese command said.

It added that reconnaissance and infantry units from the 9th Division clashed with enemy troops Saturday 138 miles southwest of Saigon and killed 12. Three South Vietnamese troops were killed and five were wounded, field reports said.

"We have the initiative and we want to keep it," Truong said. "We must go where the enemy is and maintain our momentum. We've changed our strategy. Instead of going after their combat units, we're going after their supply and transportation units. Without supplies, they cannot last."

In addition to the 9th Division, Truong also has committed the 21st Infantry Division to the new drive.

The 9th Division recently pulled out of Cambodia so it could take part in the delta offensive. It was replaced across the border by South Vietnamese rangers and armored cavalry.

License Case In Court

Registry officials summoned another University of Massachusetts student to District Court Friday morning to answer charges stemming from an alleged counterfeit license making scheme.

Michele D. Cunningham, 19, of Revere was arraigned on charges of possession of a counterfeit license to operate a motor vehicle.

Appearing with Miss Cunningham was Philip Riley, 20, of Lowell who had earlier been arraigned on charges of possession of a counterfeit license, possession of a narcotic drug and possession of a narcotic drug with intent to sell.

The cases of both defendants were continued one week to Dec. 3. Miss Cunningham was allowed to leave on her personal recognizance while Riley left on bail he had previously furnished.

The Massachusetts
Daily Collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

BOARD OF EDITORS

EDITOR IN CHIEF — Richard C. Hanson
MANAGING EDITOR — Nathan Gorenstein
BUSINESS MANAGER — James Gold
EXECUTIVE EDITOR — Barry J. Rubenstein
NEWS EDITOR — Anne C. Stadnicki
SPORTS EDITOR — Earle T. Barroll

PHOTO EDITOR — Gib Fullerton
FINE ARTS EDITOR — Robert Nesti

TODAY'S STAFF

ISSUE EDITOR — Jerry Lazar
NEWS STAFF — Janet Hughes, Charlie Berkow, George Weisslitz
DARKROOM — Phil Saure, S. Schmidt
AD LAYOUT — Bill Manberg
SPORTS — Dan Kamal
EDITORIAL — Don Glickstein

Undergraduate newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The Staff is responsible for its content and no faculty members or administration read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.
Unsigned editorials represent the views of this paper. They do not necessarily reflect the views of the faculty, administration, or student body as a whole. Signed editorials, columns, reviews, and letters represent the personal views of the writers.

Remember T-Day

UMass is back from a much needed break. Although it could have done without the snow and ensuing shoveling, Thanksgiving served nicely as an interim of solitude, a chance to forget school, to deviate from the clocklike regularity of classes, trivia, and even paranoia for some.

Better yet, it served as an opportunity to realize how important it is to maintain a meaningful relationship with your family--that definitively tightknit group that has molded you for the larger part of your pre-pubescent and adolescent years. They have been growing with you, misunderstanding you, compromising, offering advice, consoling, trying to finance you without your taking advantage of their generosity, and most importantly, they have tried to be proud of you.

It's funny to hear adults condemn UMass for it's "moral decay, illicit drug use, and conspiracy groups such as Gay Lib, socialists, etc." Commercial newspapers as well as other forms of mass media have a genuine talent for digging up that which appears negative about an institution and disregarding that which has any semblance of being positive.

A few days away from Amherst can really make one remember that there's a hell of a lot to be learned other than what's in books. People are an education in themselves. It's hip being at school with your peers much of the time, but it's great to interact with older relatives and people whose mere "being experienced" can't be taken too lightly.

Of course kids are great too, they represent salvation, hope for a better way of life. Their idealism seems boundless at times and God knows that someone has to keep alive that feeling of optimism.

We're thankful there was a Turkey Day. We hope you were too.

"Next Time Send Ahead MY Reception Committee, MY Band, MY Television Cameras, And MY White House Guards In Full Uniform, Saluting Me"

Don Glickstein

FacSen Gets An F

The Faculty Senate tried to do something innovative for once and ended up doing something stupid, as usual.

The history of it isn't worth the effort to relate, but suffice it to say, students are going to be shocked this February when they look at their report cards and find a more "precise" grading system of A, AB, B, BC, CD, and F. You guessed it, kids. The Faculty Senate has introduced another educational innovation that doesn't have one empirical or humanistic leg to stand on. For intelligent men, they are kind of stupid.

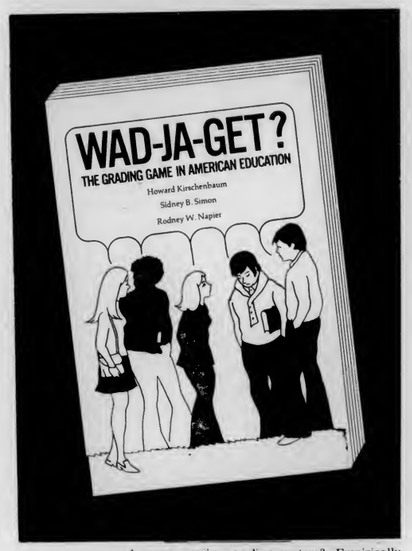
Fortunately for the University, the Faculty Senate's idiocy has been counterbalanced by a University professor, Dr. Sidney Simon, who, along with an instructor and associate professor at Temple University, wrote a superb book called Wad-ja-get? To Dr. Simon's credit, Wad-ja-get? will unjustifiably extend the reputation of UMass throughout the country as a pedagogically progressive place of higher education. No thanks to the Faculty Senate.

The reader at first resents Wad-ja-get? because it attacks the present grading system in American education through the eyes of a classroom observor who speaks not a little condescendingly. But soon, the reader forgets what he eventually realizes is a unique style for a research paper, and he concentrates on the meticuously foot-noted contents.

The contents is damning.

Simon asserts that grading as we know it today never had a pedagogical purpose to it. He says that grading is an inaccurate measure of a person's accomplishment. He discusses limited pass-fail systems, like those here at UMass, and he concluded that they are doomed to fail in whatever they were supposed to accomplish. Simon discourses the entire history of grading in this country, and we learn that grading wasn't always, and doesn't always have to be. The myths of grading--that grades are a motivator, that they measure something, that students need grades to get into college or graduate school--are one by one debunked. Finally, Simon proposes alternatives to the grading game.

Most importantly, Wad-ja-get? is not another humanistic, undocumented tirade against anti-intellectual groups like the Faculty Senate. It provides numerous references and unsurpassed footnotes of actual empirical studies that have blown the grading system's rationales.



* * *

We can learn many things from Dr. Simon's book.

The typical teacher at UMass tries to be objective in his grading. He gives both multiple-choice and essay tests. In his lectures and discussions, he tries to be open to questions. The mark he gives a student is supposedly fair.

Yet would another teacher grade an essay paper the same way? What criteria would he use? When the teacher made the objective test, what measurements did he use to determine the test's reliability? Was the test valid? What is the optimum learning situation for each student? Did the teacher have a set of behavorial objectives in his mind when he began the course? Did a student have any performance criteria to do during the course, or was he just required to sit in a seat all semester? Was the teacher given a diagnostic evaluation or was it merely a good-bad- evaluation? Did the student not achieve because the course was poorly taught?

Most UMass teachers would not consider the above points when marking time came. What with self-fulfilling prophecies and the like, it turns out to be luck--a coup de des--what grade a student gets.

A more precise grading system? Empirically, philosophically, historically, practically, it's impossible. But then again, the Faculty Senate has always laughed in the face of reality.

How To Read The Pentagon

(Editor's note: The following is an excerpt from an interview between Frank Greer, of the National Student's Association and Daniel Ellsberg released by the College Press Service.)

GREER: Many people have not been able to struggle through even the abbreviated form of the Pentagon Papers, and that's a shame because the American public should read that material, but what do you think, in just a brief form, were the major lessons, the kind of message it carries to the public?

ELLSBERG: I think the most important messages do depend on a fairly extensive reading. The messages are not about specific, particularly startling, acts of deception in themselves or aggressions of various kinds, but rather what the documents reveal of the overall values and intentions and practices of the administration. Now, when one does make the effort, I think its an effort that citizens and above all officials should make, to read a great deal of this material.

In my opinion it's very hard to avoid a feeling that this has been an American war from the beginning. And Americans bear the responsibility, or a large part of the responsibility, for all the deaths in Indochina, which are certainly more than a million since we began financing this war, and could well be as many as four to five million-if all are taken into account.

That's a very heavy load to bear, it's a very heavy responsibility to think of continuing it. Given the attitude of this administration up till now, and as I've said I'm hopeful that it could change, it's clear that Congress could get us out of this war, or the public could get us out, only by opposing the President, and that's a very unconventional challenge to make to Congress, and one they are very unlikely to meet unless they get a lot of encouragement from the public.

It is unlikely for the public to press Congress to do that unless they and the Congress together come to regard the war as intolerable and wrong and not merely a mistake, because they will give the President a great deal of the benefit of the doubt when it comes to pursuing or taking care of the stakes.

When you decide that the executive is involved in a criminal, aggressive, entirely wrongful and inhumane war, then one's responsibilities as a citizen are much stronger.

I think that two things are necessary for the public and the Congress to reach that state of mind in which they will be willing to risk their careers in unconventional efforts to end it. First, information contained in these documents and second, the example of respected figures such as Congressmen, who show by their actions and behavior that they agree and that they mean what they may be saying already--that the war is wrongful and must end.

(c)1971, CPS

Letters To The Editor

Vote YES On SWAP

To the Editor:

The SWAP budget for next year will be presented to the Student Senate Budget Committee this Tuesday, and it appears that there will be some controversy over its approval. As participants in this year's SWAP conference, we would like to express our support for continued funding of this activity. Before going to SWAP we also had our reservations about its worthiness. What tangible results come from SWAP? Are whatever intangible results that do come with the expenditure of student funds? These questions were answered during the weekend.

Tangible results can very possibly result from the conference. As members of the University and State Communications Council (USCC), we were primarily interested in the "University-State Relations" workshops. At these discussions we were afforded the opportunity of speaking with students, faculty members, administrators, Trustees, and State Legislators. Projects which had been formulating in our minds were reinforced, and new ideas added. The channels through which we would have to work were made clearer. Contact was made with many people who could help us in the future. During the week since SWAP several concrete proposals have been made.

The intangible results have already been touched upon. They center around the lowering of barriers and the opening of communcations between all sectors of the campus. Personally, we know that it will now be much easier to seek help from the Faculty and Administration. We hope that they, in turn, will seek our assistance.

We are only four of the 180 people who attended SWAP. Certainly we are not the only ones who feel that we have brought something back to campus. Sincerely, we believe that the students of UMass will ultimately be the true beneficiaries. Tangible results will not always quickly surface, but if SWAP funds are slashed a tangible loss will surely be evident next year.

Michael Cooney, Mark Doyle
Peter Lynch, Cindy Price

Open Alternatives

To the Editor:

Regarding Mr. David Williams' editorial "Bromery's Dilemma"; I feel that Mr. Williams' has made a rather rash assessment of the function and purpose of the Chancellor Search Committee when he states that he "hopes the Committee does the obvious (emphasis my own) and solves Bromery's dilemma for him by nominating him chancellor."

Meaning no disrespect towards Dr. Bromery (I quite like the man), I would just like to ask what is so damn obvious that it should terminate the Committee's current search. For the selection of a post as important as that of Chancellor, one must concede that before the best possible candidate can be found, the most complete and exhaustive search must be undertaken, and this search should be examined by as many as possible.

As any of you who might have read my previous letter concerning this ("An Open Letter to the Chancellor Search Committee") could discern, I am no rapturous defender of the Committee. A limited degree of open Chancellor Search Committee have occurred. Whether it was a result of my previous letter I care not; I am concerned only that this committee does a thorough job, with maximum input from the University community, before bringing forth its candidate.

If this were a minor job, I'd say sure give the man a break, decide for him (but isn't that a denial of freedom of choice? --well, it doesn't matter.). But this is not a matter concerning only Dr. Bromery; the entire course of the university is quite conceivably at stake by the choice of a new chancellor. The editorial's suggestions lay waste to the enitre concept of a Search Committee. It has about the same degree of logic to the University as the Draft does to a graduating student...

Gary Gomes
Student Senator

Cold Turkey Help

To the Editor:

(Re: MDC, Tuesday, November 21, "Cold Turkey" letter)

Lawrence E. Smolarz, there are people who would like to help your friend and others like him. Those who will try are not trained, they just have the need and desire to help! They don't promise easy results nor complete success, but they do promise to devote themselves to aiding the person in his fight against addiction.

There are trained counselors who are willing to help also, however informally outside of the realm of institutions. Rather than describe the program here, we would prefer to be contacted personally in order to put across and modify the program to individual needs.

Please allow us the chance to help.

Paul Belanger, Pam Young
310 & 410 Grayson
546-6931 & 546-6959

Bad Pun, Don

To the Editor:

The Schedule Office to the contrary notwithstanding, the Program in Linguistics has nothing whatever to do with the Department of Landscape Architecture, despite the fact that our graduate courses are listed under their department in the spring pre-registration booklet. I attribute this error, apart from alphabetic proximity, to the fact that both departments, when analyzed at a sufficiently abstract level, offer courses dealing with trees.

Sincerely,
Donald C. Freeman
Chairman
Program in Linguisitics

Joe's Open Letter

Dear President Sandwen,

J.O.E. is a new service organization on this campus dealing with the problem of juvenile delinquency specifically at the Westfield Detention Center and generally in Western Massachusetts. As a new student group we had to justify ourselves amongst other new service groups to get funded. Luckily J.O.E. did get funds but only less than one third of what was needed and requested.

Although J.O.E. has approximately 100 students among the ranks working in some capacity at the Westfield Detention Center, J.O.E. was a new group and had to find support from any direction of fellow students to get approval for the funds we did receive. What is more distressing is that we received funds at the expense of other groups. It should be stated that we did not fight to win any type of foolish competitive funding contest, we were just lucky to survive a human situation where fellow students tried to do the best they could in a very tight financial situation.

It is with the above in mind that we find the current situation with the Faculty Senate Athletic Council very distressing if basically untenable. That one half million dollars of student monies are allocated without any say by the students who are taxed to collect this sum. Depending on your perspective this could be considered either a mild or extreme form of extortion when you consider a student can not even register at this university without paying the Athletic Fee.

Therefore, the issue of student representation on the Athletic Council is merely academic. Students should be in control of their money and their lives. This is what is being done at the Westfield Detention Center-allowing for alternatives and making decisions toward these alternatives and growth.

Therefore J.O.E. supports a policy that would allow for a majority representation on the Faculty Senate Athletic Council with a stipulation that all non-students on the council have a voice but no vote. It would seem that any other policy would be very ironic in a country that allows 18 year old adults (or should we still call them teenagers) a voice in choosing its president (a man that directly effects a $1,000,000,000 economy) while at the University of Massachusetts a few people with vested interests deny the same voice in ding their own money.

Sincerely,
Cyndi Dunbar
President
Joe McMillion
Vice-President

All letters to the editor must be typed at sixty spaces, doublespaced and no longer than two pages in length. All letters to the editor must be signed and the author's address and telephone number must be included. No letters will be published without this information. No letters will be printed with the author's name withheld by request.

All letters to the editor are subject to editing either for content or space according to the judgement of the editors. Due to space limitations, we do not guarantee that all letters will be printed.

Editorial Points

That University Security and Dean Fitzpatrick should close the dorms during vacation is understandable; that students who can't go home should be forced to pay $10.00 for a room in Hamlin House (known heretofore as the "pit") is discriminatory, unfair, and immoral. The idea of closing down an entire University during vacation is pedagogically unsound, as well as financially absurd.

***

They finally got around to lighting the path in front of Machmer Hall. Too bad it was in the middle of the vacation when no one was there.

***

A friend of ours who works in WMUA has found a summer job--he'll be working with WOMB, the voice of labor.

***

Isn't it nice when you go to the laundry room and find your clothes all folded?

***

We saw more police cruising around on campus this vacation than any other time in our memory. Nice job, gentlemen. Now if you can only do it when people are here.

***

I'm dreaming of a white Thanksgiving does sound a little out of place. Unless you know of an albino turkey, that is.

***

DINING COMMONS MEAL OF THE WEEK: Sorry, Joel, no award this week. Even Wednesday's supper wasn't that bad. I'm sure we'll be presenting you an award next Monday, though.

***

It's funny how we seem to have a pathological fear of being alone. We equate loneliness with aloneness, and turn up the stereo, keep the television on, and make sure we don't miss the radio. In a deserted Southwest or a ghosttown Hill, strange camaraderies develop between strangers together. Being alone can get your head together, it can help you cope with loneliness. Grass is social, Boone's Apple wine is social, the D.J. on the radio is social, and maybe the fears of our age come from not forcing ourselves to face ourselves. Alone.

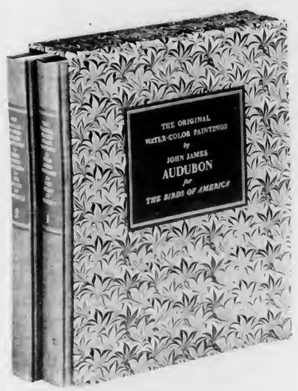
***

Did you ever smell your clothes after you've left a room where people were smoking cigarettes? Isn't it time to stop smoking?

THE

UNIVERSITY STORE

at the Murray D. Lincoln Campus Center,



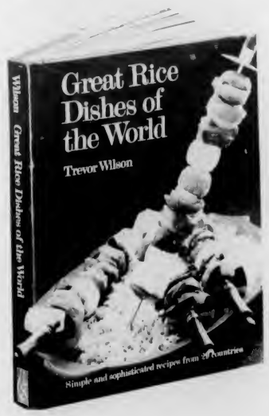
University of Massachusetts

PRESENTS ITS

14th ANNUAL

BOOK FAIR

NOV. 29 -- DEC. 4



Thousands of titles

reduced in price

to make great holiday gifts ...

Gift certificates are always available.

Monday & Thursday 8:45 a.m. to 9 p.m.
Tuesday, Wednesday & Friday 8:45 a.m. to 5:30 p.m.
Saturday 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.

OUR FINANCIAL WIZARD——Thomas Campion, Vice-Chancellor for Administrative Services (MDC photo by whoever took it)

Workshops Aid Job Hunters

Workshop sessions to help students deal with the tight job market have been instituted at the UMass School of Engineering.

Two sessions this fall for seniors and graduate students took up the engineering job market in general and the specifics of resume-writing, job-hunting and interview procedures. Workshop director Duane Cromack of the engineering faculty called the sessions "extremely valuable" and said they would be repeated, possible during the coming spring semester and almost certainly next fall.

The first session included a talk on the current job market by Paul Doigan of General Electric, remarks on career planning by UMass Placement Director Robert Morrissey, the graduate school picture presented by Associate Graduate School Dean Arthur Gentile and a briefing on resume preparation by English Professor John Mitchell.

In sessions two, held a week later, the workshop participants presented resumes and went through role-playing interview sessions with volunteer representatives from industry. Cooperating firms included Heald Machine Co. of Worcester, the Monsanto Co. of Springfield, New England Telephone, Electric Boat Co., Combustion Engineering, the Polaroid Corp., the Foxboro Co. and the Naval Underwater Systems Center.

The second workshop also had talks on the post-college world by three UMass graduates--Donald Tucker of the Western Mass. Electric Co., Paul Sturgis of Monsanto in New Jersey and H. Stafford McCoart of Monsanto in Springfield.

The sessions were presented by the School of Engineering in cooperation with the UMass Placement Office and the UMass student branches of two engineering societies.

Notices

BLUES CLUB
Meeting at 6:30 in Rm 803 of the C.C. Bring Hound Dog bread.

ORCHARD HILL
Applications are now being accepted for those wishing to live on Orchard Hill Spring semester. Pick up an application in the Master's Office, 101 Field House. Interviews will be held from 7:30 to 10 p.m. Dec. 1st, 2 or 3.

STUDENT ART ASSOCIATION
There will be an informal meeting in the Webster Dormitory Lounge tonight at 6:30. Coffee will be served. Interested persons may bring their work along for group discussion after the meeting.

SUMMER POSITIONS WITH THE WASHINGTON POST
Those Juniors, Seniors and Grad. Students with interest in Journalism and with writing ability should write to the following address for applications: Employee Relations Dept. The Washington Post, 1515 1st St., N.W., Washington, D.C. 20005. Applications must be in by Dec. 1. For further info see the Career Planning & Placement Office bulletin board.

LOST
WIDE GOLD WEDDING RING lost. If found please call Jake 549-3916 or Kathy 549-1311. Thank you.

3 month old female puppy lost. Black with white spots on chest. Lost near Ferring St. Call 549-0589.

Perfection Has Its Price

178 the pair

We are convinced the EPI Model 100 is the best bookshelf speaker available.

Amherst Audio

...BY HIGH AUTO INSURANCE COSTS ?

get the lowest legal rates for all vehicles and all coverages with easy monthly payments

NOW'S THE TIME FOR 1972 AUTO INSURANCE!

TKO YOUR INSURANCE PROBLEMS WITH...

TEKOA INSURANCE AGENCY

Avoid downtown Spfld. parking headaches in WEST SPRINGFIELD at 366 MEMORIAL AVE. Opp. Century Shopping Plaza! Free parking for over 100 cars!

WESTFIELD 10 BROAD ST. Next to P.O. | NORTHAMPTON 160 PLEASANT ST. Opp. N'hamp. Jr. College | FAIRVIEW 1847 MEMORIAL DR. On North-South Hwy.

EVERETT J. O'CONNOR INSURANCE AGENCY

HOLYOKE . . . 205 HIGH ST. . . . . Next to Holyoke Nat'l. Bank

MDC CLASSIFIED

AUTOS FOR SALE

1968 VW, new tires, excellent cond., good radio/heater. Must be seen! Call 253-9165. tf11-30

Dodge Van-'65, best offer, 549-6570. tf11-29

1964 VW for sale. Call 665-3006. tf11-30

1964 Chevy, s.w. toots, must find good home, good running condition. Needs muffler $225, Call 6-5837 between 6-8 p.m. or call late. tf11-30

'65 Corvair Monza, 4 speed, Am-Fm radio, good condition, No Rot, good tires, $200. Call 253-5344. tf11-30

'63 VW bug, excint. mech. cond., new brakes, starter, end., front end., 6 good tires, snow tire mounted. Call 546-9787 evenings, $400. tf11-30

'67 BMW, 1800 Ti, 4 speed, 4 new radials, am-fm, sw. radio, excellent condition. Call 773-3139 anytime. tf12-1

1970 Dodge Senaca Station Wagon, mechanically perfect, new brakes, $100. Call 549-1149. tf11-30

3/4 ton '53 Ford V-8 flathead Pickup. Starts, runs, selling reluctantly. Fail inspection sticker $150. 665-3901. tf11-30

FOR SALE

Sno-tires-(2) studded Sears tires 6.50-13, 4 ply rayon, tubeless, good cond., used only one season. Best offer. Call 6-5270, ask for Linda. tf11-29

Tag Sale, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Thurs., Nov. 25 thru Sun., Nov. 28. Low prices, many interesting items. 110 Columbia Dr., Amherst. 11-24

Guitars Amps, drums, acc. at reasonable prices. The Guitar Workshop, 98 Main St. North. 586-1396. tf11-30

5-speed Columbia guy's bike, very good condition. Also tennis racket and hot plate. Call evenings 549-1224 ask for Arlen. tf12-2

Cold?? For sale a Black Persian Lamb Coat excellent condition, great buy, for $30. Call 6-7295. 11-29

20%-50% Discount Stereo Components, all major brands. Also: 8-track tapes. Baker Stereo. Call Barry or Dave 546-6063 1-5:30. tf12-3

Yg. St. Bernard dogs for sale, AKC reg., temp. shots, parentage good disposition, reasonable. 617-544-3806 or Judy 545-2351. tf12-1

Speakers 1 pr. Criterion 25a's, new cond. $40 new, asking $25. Call Doug 546-6379. tf11-30

Discount Stereo Components, compacts, T.V.'s 20-40% off list price. Factory sealed and warranty. Jim Jensen 586-1365. tf12-3

PERSONAL

I am 29, grad-writer looking for trusting relationship w/sensitive woman age 20-30. Please call 549-6947 before 11 a.m. tf11-29

Kathleen J. Mullen of 6 Kennsington Ave., Northampton, call George Urch 5-6945. tf11-29

HBSKFLUVMES 11-29

I C. Elliot condede that after last nite's thoro drubbing that you, Eric Gauger are the craftiest cribbage player at U. Mass. 11-29

A belated happy 19th Val, the Goddess of Gorman, love L. and B. 11-29

Ralph W. — Wishing you a very Happy Birthday! With love, from Weasel. 11-29

Thanks to our Cheerleaders from the 13th and especially to our Coach, Reggie. We love you, The Hookers. tf11-30

Remember Stover? He's at BQ bar (no ID) and we've got a dance teacher for a real bodyam! No cost. No experience. Call Mike 253-5750. tf12-1

ROOMMATES WANTED

Own room in large 2 bedroom apt. in Northampton, $75 mo. utilities included. Avail. Dec. 1. Call 586-3650 after five. tf11-30

We don't discriminate-2F or 2M for 1 room. Rent cheap. Colonial Vil. ph. 256-8851 after supper. tf12-1

Female roommate to share one bedroom in Puffton Village. Call 549-0783. tf12-1

House to share with 1 bedroom, available Dec. 1 and another Jan. 1 $45/month plus share utilities. Prefer woman over 21. 253-7538 after 5:00. tf11-30

ROOMS WANTED

2 male students want 2 single rooms for 2nd semester. Can pay $80, $65. Please call 546-5036, ask for Mike, evenings. tf12-3

MOVIE

"CANDY" STARS EWA AULIN, RINGO, BRANDO, HUNDREDS MORE. MUSIC BY STEEPPENWOLF & THE BYRDS. (IN COLOR 1968). "CANDY" SAT., DEC. 4, MAHAR, 6:30-8:45-11:00. tf12-2

WANTED

POETRY for Poetry Anthology. Please incl stamped return envel. for prompt reply. Idlewild Press, 1907 East Olympic Blvd., Los Angeles. tf12-2

SERVICES

Amherst Audio services. Stereo components, tape decks for home or car. 197 No. Pleasant St. 256-8125. tf5-12

TYPING

Typing-theses, dissertations, etc. Fast, accurate, experienced, Have Math and Chem. symbols. Call 253-3001. tf12-21

FOR RENT

2 bedroom Townhouse, air cond., ww carpet, $200 month, including utilities. Call 665-4128 after 5:30. tf11-30

APT. WANTED

Wanted 2 bedroom apartment in Puffton Village starting in Jan. or Feb. Call Mark at 256-8723 after 6 p.m. tf12-3

2 girls need place to live next sem., approx. $50 or under each. Call 546-6518. tf12-1

APTS. FOR RENT

MT. SUGARLOAF APTS. AVAIL. JAN. 1, LG. 2 BDRM., UTIL. INCLUDED, AIR-COND. POOL $185. CALL SKRIBISKI REALTORS 253-7222 EVE. 253-2676. tf11-30

2 bedroom apt., Squire Village, couples/married? Available Jan. 1, rent $190 includes utilities. Call 665-3218 or 665-2203. tf12-3

LECTURE NOTES

S.E.S Rm. 318, Student Union, has notes for Anthro 104, Bot 101, Econ 123, 126, Geol 101, Micro 140, Phil 105, Psch and Soc 101. tf12-3

FREE

Kittens, 6 weeks, weaned & trained, 4 black, 2 tigers, 549-4079. tf12-3

RIDE WANTED

Help! Secretary desperately needs ride from UMass to Granby weekday eve. Leave campus after 5. Call Diane at 5-0600, ext. 68 or 467-0107. tf11-29

STUDENTS BOOK MATCHING

Register your book in S.U. Rm. 318. Every student with your course next semester will need your books save $ money, sell direct. tf-sem.

Bazaar Coming

By JERRY LAZAR

Local craftsmen will soon have a chance to display and sell their wares at the Orchard Hill Bazaar, December 12.

The Bazaar will be sponsored by Apple Corps, the social and cultural group of Orchard Hill.

Apple Corps is looking for craftsmen of all sorts to make and sell their products for this Bazaar. Tables will be set up in the lounges of Field and Grayson, and everything from leatherwork and papermache items to portraits and etchings will be on sale.

The Bazaar is being held as a service to all UMass students.

According to Howard Levin, who is charge of the Bazaar, "It will be a cross between Haymarket Square, Harvard Square, and an Italian festival. We are trying to set up a friendly comfortable atmosphere where people can browse and shop around, especially since it's so close to the holiday season," he said.

"So far," he continued, "the response from campus craftsmen has been great. We are looking forward to a really big, successful event."

If the event is successful, it may be repeated in the spring.

Reservations have already been made by numerous artisans requesting space to exhibit vegetarian belts, peace pipes, assorted jewelry, photography, patchwork, beadwork, cellophane flowers, mobiles and much more.

But there is still room for more, and anyone interested in participating in the Bazaar can register by contacting Howard Levin at 546-6909.

Bowditch Lodge: 'A People Building'

On a campus dominated by high-rise dormitories, a towering research center, and the nation's tallest library, 53 preschoolers have found that a small, single-story wood frame building at UMass. is "the best of all possible buildings."

That's how Mrs. Betsy Pelz, director of the University Day School, describes Bowditch Lodge, home of the day school which the 53 children of University students and employees attend.

"It's a people building," Mrs. Pelz says to describe the lodge, with its pine panelled walls that are now covered with finger paintings; its basement that houses a water bed, a three-room playhouse, and a large play area; its fenced-in yard with swings and sandpile; its nearby woods that are natural sources for bugs and frogs and other creatures to study.

Mrs. Pelz isn't the first person to develop an affection for the 34-year-old lodge, which was almost demolished in 1967 to make room for construction on its original site in the center of campus. A number of people felt strongly enough about Bowditch, however, so that it was moved to a wooded site on the edge of the University campus, near Alumni Stadium.

Built by 4-H as a gift to the University, the lodge is named for Nathaniel I. Bowditch, a trustee of the University for 49 years. He was a strong supporter of the 4-H program and its many activities and of the Extension Service form of education.

Bowditch Lodge has seen many uses since built in 1937 with funds raised mostly by a 4-H lunch counter at the Brockton Fair. It has been a center for activities of 4-H groups and University and community organizations; has been a training site for Peace Corps volunteers; and has even been used as a classroom.

In 1944, a nursery school operated there, with children of women involved in the war effort enrolled. Students in child development classes used that nursery as a laboratory. Home economics students prepared the meals, and psychology students observed the children's behavior.

The current day school, in its first year of operation, is primarily a service to the parents and less a laboratory for students, Mrs. Pelz says. But students from human development and psychology classes, the School of Education, and the Work Study program do work there, about eight at a time. Besides the students, three full-time teachers and several volunteer workers assist Mrs. Pelz.

Tuition at the UMass Day School is $100 a semester for half-day sessions. The school is also supported by about $10,000 from the Undergraduate and Graduate Student Senates and the Commuter Assembly, and approximately $10,000 from the University. Even with this financial support, according to Mrs. Pelz, the school could not have opened if a building had not be provided.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

by SYDNEY OMARR

Leo persons attract attention. These natives exude an aura of personal magnetism. They are natural entertainers, have innate sense of showmanship. Leo would rather be without food than be deprived of love. ...

ARIES (March 21 April 19): Accent on well-being, ability to find what you need in out of way places. Give full play to intellectual curiosity. Refuse to be embarrassed. That is, when you don't know, admit it.

TAURUS (April 20 May 20): Lunar cycle high, circumstances seem suddenly to favor your efforts. Sense of timing is honed to razor sharpness. You could receive gift which depicts affection, appreciation for past favors.

GEMINI (May 21 June 20): Work quietly behind scenes. This is never easy for you. But you will achieve aim if you do. Pisces is involved. One who has been ill makes comeback. You will have reason to be happier.

CANCER (June 21 July 22): Accent on friendships, hopes and wishes. Member of opposite sex sends morale soaring. You receive accolades. Make working arrangement with one who holds opposing views. Stop wasting emotional energy.

LEO (July 23 Aug. 22): Stress is on fulfillment of ambitions. You will not be too easily satisfied. This is all to the good. Maintain standards. One who advocates otherwise is not worthy of your confidence.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 Sept. 22): Good lunar aspect now coincides with plans, journeys, ability to articulate beliefs. One who has fascinating philosophical religious concept confides in you. Be attentive, respectful.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 Oct. 22): Accent on financial arrangements affecting mate, partner. Seek equitable arrangement. Avoid extremes. Taurus individual is likely to be involved. Balance is a requisite. Concentrate on timing.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 Nov. 21): Lie low. Do more listening than talking. Check legal documents. Don't feel there is only one way. There are others and you should strive for greater versatility. Sagittarian will aid. Make request.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 Dec. 21): Cooperate with Scorpio. Guard health. Work out schedule which allows for sensible diet. One who attempts to rush you is misinformed. Heed your own counsel. Improve relations with co-workers.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 Jan. 19): Creative thinking allows for change of opinion. Know this and act like you know it. Avoid tendency to be obstinate. Exchange ideas. Be analytical. You find answers if you seek. Welcome truth.

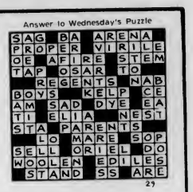
AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 Feb. 18): You can find way of accommodating needs of family member. Money is involved. Realize some around you now are ultra-sensitive. Some freedoms may be temporarily restricted. Be patient.

PISCES (Feb. 19 March 20): Accent on reactions of neighbors, close relatives. You are affected by actions of those around you. This applies now more so than in recent past. Be versatile without scattering efforts.

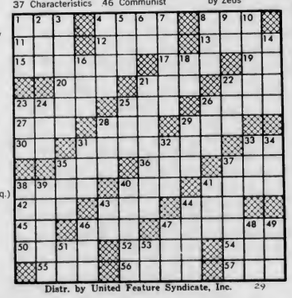
IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are a natural visionary. Many claim you lack practicality. If truth be known, you usually know what's what and where and when. Some restrictions to happiness are due to be lifted. Member of opposite sex will prove inspiration.

Copyright 1971, Gen. Fea. Corp.

Crossword Puzzle



ACROSS



1 Male sheep
4 Part of fireplace
8 Hit lightly
11 A state (abbr.)
12 Detest
13 Mixture
15 Fright
17 Pinch
19 Symbol for nickel
20 Knock
21 Emerged victorious
22 A state (abbr.)
23 Cook slowly
25 Sailor (colloq.)
26 Propositions
27 Succor
28 Lamprey
29 Electrified particle
30 Pronoun
31 Timeless
33 Symbol for calcium
35 Unit of energy
36 Shade tree
37 Man's nickname
38 Pretense
40 Indonesian tribesman
41 Malay canoe
42 Permit
43 Paid notices
44 Edible seed
*5 Cooled lava
46 Free of 47 Dangers
50 Woody plant
52 Ireland
54 Sunburn
55 Parent (colloq.)
56 Chess piece
57 Pippen

DOWN

1 Rodent
2 Beverage
3 Defaced
4 Boutique
5 Equality
6 Pronoun
7 Singing voice
8 Cover
9 Man's nickname
10 Longed for 14 Lubricates
16 Uncooked
18 Preposition
21 Billfolds
22 Noise
23 Man's nickname
24 Cravat
25 Golf mound
26 Genus of cattle
28 Urge on 29 Doctrine
31 Limb
32 Guido's high note
33 Cry like dove
34 Wine cup
35 Dine
37 Characteristics
38 Narrow, flat board
39 Listened to 40 Snake
41 Through
43 Three-toed sloth
44 Sly look
46 Communist
47 In favor of
48 Unit of Latvian currency
49 Vessel's curved planking
51 Babylonian deity
53 Maiden loved by Zeus

Answer to Wednesday's Puzzle

Distr. by United Feature Syndicate, Inc. 29

WTOY Presents
BOB DYLAN

DONT LOOK BACK
A Film By D. A. Pennebaker
Tuesday, November 30 75c
S.U. Ballroom 7:30 and 9:30

OPEN MEETINGS for the Senior Committee will be held
Tues., Nov. 30
Mon., Dec. 6
Thurs., Dec. 9
at 7 p.m.
in Rm. 905-9, C.C.
ALL SENIORS WELCOME

Hill Paces Bills To First Win

BUFFALO (AP)-The Buffalo Bills won their first National Football League game of the season Sunday, beating the New England Patriots 27-20 on two touchdown passes from quarterback Dennis Shaw to rookie J.D. Hill and a clincher TD by O.J. Simpson.

Hill, who is recovered from a knee injury and was making his first start of the regular season, made both scoring catches in the second quarter.

He took an eleven yard pass just over the goal line for the first touchdown. Later, he brought the sports crowd of 27,166 roaring to its feet when he circled behind some defenders, leaped high for a Shaw pass and raced into the end zone on a 47-yard scoring play.

Simpson's eight yard touchdown run early in the fourth quarter put the Bills' in front 24-13, a margin the Patriots were unable to overcome despite a New England touchdown late in the game on a twelve yard pass from Jim Plunkett to Ron Sellers.

Soccer style kicker Charlie Goglak booted two field goals for the Patriots, and Jim Nance tallied on a one-yard touchdown run for New England in the third period.

John Leypoldt accounted for the other Bill's scoring, with field goals of 43 and 41 yards.

Vikings Pound Falcons

MINNEAPOLIS-ST. PAUL (AP)-Clint Jones, charging 73 yards for a touchdown, two scores, combined for more than 240 yards rushing as the Minnesota Vikings smothered the Atlanta Falcons 24-7 in a National Football League game Sunday.

The victory, coming against former coach Norm Van Brocklin in his first return to Minnesota as Atlanta's head man, lifted the Vikings to a 9-2 record in the Central Division of the NFC-one and one half games in front of Detroit with three games to play.

Atlanta, its chances dimming for a run at the Western title, fell to 5-5-1 as a light snow fell throughout the game.

Jones carried 22 times for 155 yards, tying a team record, and dashed 73 yards for a second period touchdown.

Brown, who had gained only 38 yards in his previous 10 games, contributed 85 yards on 18 carries, including a 23-yard touchdown dash set up by Paul Krause's interception in the third period and a one-yard plunge in the fourth.

The Falcons had earned a 7-7 halftime tie on a spectacular 69 yard play. Bob Berry completed a nine-yard pass to Harmon Wages, who funbled the ball at his own 40.

Jim Mitchell, 225-pound Atlanta tight end, scooped up the ball at the 45 and galloped 55 yards uncontested for the tying touchdown with 4:43 left to play in the second quarter.

Fred Cox, who has scored in 123 straight NFL games, sent the Vikings ahead to stay with 3:06 left in the third period on a 19-yard field goal after the Vikings had driven from their 15.

Nebraska-Alabama: Dream Game

There's going to be another college football Game of the Decade this season.

It's set for the night of Jan. 1 in Miami's Orange Bowl with mighty Nebraska returning to the site where it won its 1970 national championship to defend it against Alabama.

Nebraska and Alabama, two of the five unbeaten teams in the country, were rated first and third in last week's Associated Press poll and undoubtedly will rate 1-2 this week in view of Nebraska's 35-31 victory over runner-up Oklahoma on Thanksgiving Day and Alabama's 31-7 mauling Saturday of previously unbeaten Auburn.

"We felt all along we picked the right two teams," said Bill Ward, chairman of the Orange Bowl selection committee which invited Nebraska and Alabama a week ago, "but I do feel kinda lucky about the way things turned out."

"It was the biggest gamble we've taken in many years," echoed Earnie Seiler, executive vice president of the Orange Bowl. "I was relieved when Nebraska won, and Alabama just was the frosting on the cake for a dream pairing."

That leaves the Sugar Bowl with a slightly rancid taste, although Oklahoma still has the nation's leading offense and Auburn boasts quarterback Pat Sullivan, the Heisman Trophy winner.

In other top games Saturday, ninth-ranked Arizona State battered Arizona 31-0, No. 10, Louisiana State ripped Tulane 36-7, 11th-rated Tennessee rallied to beat Vanderbilt 19-7, No. 16 Houston walloped Utah 42-16, Army edged Navy 24-23, Florida State whipped Pitt 31-13, and Iowa State shot down San Diego State 48-31.

The pacific Coast Athletic Association was to meet Sunday to name its representative to face Memphis State in the Pasadena Bowl. The choice was between San Jose State, a 55-10 winner over UC-Santa Barbara, and Long Beach State, which was upset by Texas-El Paso 38-32.

In a wild game between two also-rans, Florida trounced Miami of Florida 45-16, with John Reaves completing 33 of 50 passes for 348 yards and breaking Jim Plunkett's career pass yardage record. Reaves finished with 7,549, five more than Plunkett.

But Florida had to back off and let Miami score late in the game to get Reaves back on the field for the 13 yards he needed. And that drew furious criticism from Miami's Fran Curci, who said he "lost all respect for Florida Coach Doug Dickey as a coach and as a man."

Dickey, however, denied ordering his team to literally lie down on the field with 70 seconds remaining so Miami's John Hornibrook could run eight yards for a touchdown and get Reaves a shot at the record. "I was sorta disappointed it happened that way," Dickey said.

Irwin Placing Shots Well

HILTON HEAD ISLAND, (AP)-Hale Irwin held on in the face of growing pressure and the unnerving effect of hitting a tee shot down the front of a woman's dress and fired a 70 to win the Heritage Golf Classic Sunday.

The 26-year-old Irwin, who hadn't won before in four years on the pro tour, led all the way on the cool, sunny final day and finished with a tournament record of 279, five under par on the very tough Harbour Town Golf Links.

The former Colorado football star became the 10th first-time winner this season when he held off Bob Lunn by a single stroke and edged threatening Frank Beard and Jack Nicklaus by two.

Beard had a 67, the best of the day, and Nicklaus took a 70 and was in contention for his fourth victory in as many starts until he bogeyed the par three 17th hole. Lunn finished with a 280 with Nicklaus and Beard tied at 281.

Arnold Palmer, just three strokes off Irwin's leading pace going into the final round, took a double bogey six on the first hole-he missed the green and three-putted-and never really recovered. He was never again in contention.

Palmer turned in a fat 40 and finished with a 74 for 286.

But he was alone in fifth place and won $4,500 and joined Nicklaus, Lee Trevino and Billy Casper as the only $200,000 winners in a single season. He pushed his earnings for the year to $201,707, the best of his fabled career.

Trevino, who already has set a record for single season money winnings, wasn't a factor in the final round but had a 69 for 290 and put his earnings at $229,553.

Nicklaus closed up some, winning $6,515 for $213,678, some $16,000 back of Trevino with only two tournaments left.

Irwin, a soft-spoken, 6-foot 170 pounder, won a hard-earned $22,000 from the total purse of $110,000.

He had a one stroke lead starting out, birdied the second and third and the par five fifth, turned in 33 and had a three stroke advantage at that point.

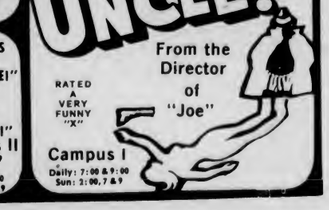
Then things started happening.

He pushed his tee shot on the 10th to the right. It hit a woman spectator in the chest and dropped down the front of her dress.

When he got to the area where he'd last seen the ball, the former collegiate champion started looking around the palms and cypress for the ball and the woman held it out to him.

"I guess I can't play it from where it landed," Irwin said, took his drop and played away. He bogeyed the hole.

Irwin played it very solidly down the tough last three, making par on all of them, good enough as Lunn failed to make a birdie and couldn't close up.



Do The Dead Return?
André Kole Knows

It's Not Too Early For SUMMER JOBS
Summer Jobs Are Hard To Find
Especially Good Paying Ones.
NEW ENGLAND'S LARGEST SWIMMING POOL DEALER . . . .
Wants Retail Salespeople
For Summer Employment.
Opportunity for above average summer earnings. Prior selling experience helpful, or we will train.
WRITE OR CALL COLLECT:
Stephen Schiff
617-848-0517
For Christmas Vacation Interviews
OPENINGS AVAILABLE AT THESE STORES:
• Braintree • Danvers • Raynham • Framingham • Wappinger Falls, N.Y.
• Auburn • Indian Orchard • Salem, N.H. • Portsmouth, N.H. • Portland, Me.
• Manchester, N.H. • Nashua, N.H. • N. Kingstown, R.I. • Woonsocket, R.I. • E. Providence, R.I.
HERE COMES GROSSMAN'S
"EVERYTHING TO BUILD WITH"
AN EQUAL OPPORTUNITY EMPLOYER

Pipes of Peace for family use
MIZAUR'S MERCANTILE
9 E Pleasant St
Amherst, Mass.
NEXT TO AMHERST TOWERS

AMOROSO
The very name means love—
where else should you buy your
DIAMOND
LOWEST PRICES ANYWHERE
certified appraisals
Call RICHARD AMOROSO 546-4300 anytime.
In Boston Call 542-2226

THAT "ODD COUPLE" IS AT IT AGAIN...
(GP)

you'll SCREAM
Campus III
Daily 7:15 & 9:15
Sun. 2:00, 7:15 9:15
WALTER MATTHAU "KOTCH"
Campus Cinemas
256-6411
AMHERST-HADLEY LINE
SUNDAY MATINEES
2 p.m. - All Three Shows
DOLLAR — NIGHTS —
Mon. & Tues.
Everyone $1
CRY UNCLE!
laugh till you
From the Director of "Joe"
RATED A VERY FUNNY "X"

Campus I
Daily: 7:00 & 9:00
Sun: 2:00, 7 & 9

"A LOT OF FANCY WORDS TO SHOW WHAT IS REALLY AN EROTIC MOVIE!"
"I THOUGHT IT WAS TERRIFIC - STRESSED THE IMPORTANCE OF FEELING!"
Together
Campus II
Daily 7:15, 9
Fri. & Sat. 7, 8:30, 10:00
Sun. 2, 7:15, 9

UMass Places Eight On All YanCon Team

The University of Massachusetts dominated the 1971 All Yankee Conference offensive and defensive football teams announced following a vote of league coaches by placing eight men on the mythical 22-man team.

Repeaters from 1970 include William Tuzil, Domenic Carlucci and Brian Herosian from Connecticut and Jack O'Neil and Bill DeFlavio, Joe Sabulis and John Hulecki from Massachusetts. The last three were named for the third consecutive year.

A brother combination from North Abington is also included on this year's team, Jack O'Neil from UMass at a defensive backfield spot, and Bob O'Neil of New Hampshire at the flanker position on the offensive unit.

FIRST TEAM

OFFENSE

SE, Dave Paul (Maine); T, Donald Miller (UNH); G, Gerry Moran (UNH); C, David Levine (UMass); G, Ronald Marino (UMass); T, William Tuzil (UConn); TE, John Hulecki (UMass); QB, Robert Hopkins (UNH); HB, Paul Metelo (UMass); FLK, Robert O'Neil (UNH); FB, Sylvester McGee (URI).

DEFENSE

E, Brett Bernier (UNH); T, William DeFlavio (UMass); T, James Pisciotano (UConn); E,Steve Furness (URI); LB, Dennis Collins (UMass); LB, Fran Prondecki (Vt.); LB, Joseph Sabulis (UMass); DHB, Dennis Breen (URI); DHB, Domenic Carlucci (UConn); DS, Brian Herosian (UConn); DS, John O'Neil (UMass).

SECOND TEAM OFFENSE: Ends—Chris Hes (URI) and Tim Sullivan (Vt.); Tackles — Randolph Hooks (UConn) and Peter Trono (Vt.); Guards —Henry Hill (URI) and Robert Osborne (UNH); Center—Thomas Uhlig (URI); Quarterback—Robert Ehrhardt (URI); Halfback—Danny Weed (URI); FLK—Vincent Rizzeli (UConn); Fullback—Steve Coon (Vt.).

SECOND TEAM DEFENSE: Ends—Wayne Bulma (Vt.) and Stanley Maddock (Vt.); Tackles—Nelson Cassavaugh (UNH) and Charles Russo (Vt.); Linebackers—James Soroud (UConn), Chris Lynch (UConn) and Thomas Keating (Me); Defensive Halfbacks—John Salek (UConn) and James Walsh (Me.); Safeties — Dennis Keating (UMass) and Robert Warren (UConn).

Reprinted from Boston Sunday Herald 11/28/71

HELPING OUT: Ed Isabel, assistant Coach at Penn. State, is shown here at the New England Gymnastics Clinic held this weekend at UMass. The clinic, held for the benefit of young gymnasts throughout New England, was sponsored by Continuing Education and under the direction of Mrs. Kitty Kjeldsen. MDC Photo by Gib Fullerton.

NFL Roudup....

Redskins-Eagles

Two field goals by Curt Knight and Billy Kilmer's 27-yard touchdown pass to Roy Jefferson helped Washington to a 20-13 victory over the Philadelphia Eagles Sunday and kept the Redskins in contention for the National Football League's National Conference Eastern title.

Washington boosted its record to 7-3-1, half a game behind the Dallas Cowboys, 8-3, in the two team Eastern battle, each with three games remaining.

The Redskins, who had won only 1 of their last five games, snapped out of an offensive slump, with 13 points in the second quarter including their first touchdown in nine quarters.

Ironically, the Redskins had to turn to quarterback Kilmer to fire their offense after Sonny Jurgensen, starting his first game of the season, reinjured the left shoulder that had sidelined him most of the season.

Jurgensen was injured in the second period when tackled after a 10 yard advance. That set up a 40 yard field goal by Knight which gave the Redskins a 3-0 lead.

Knight also kicked a 14-yard field goal, his 23rd and a Washington club record. The old Redskins' record was 22 by Charlie Gogolak.

Before the half ended, Kilmer directed the 'Skins 50 yards on three plays for a touchdown.

In the third period, the Eagles moved 82 yards for a touchdown that cut the margin to 13-6. Rookie Tom Bailey scored from the one.

Washington completed its scoring in the fourth quarter when corner back Mike Bass intercepted a Philadelphia pass and returned 38 yards for the touchdown.

The Eagles scored again with 40 seconds remaining on a one-yard pass from quarterback Pete Liske to Steve Zabel.

Browns-Oilers

HOUSTON (AP)-Cleveland rallied for two third-quarter touchdowns on a one-yard run by Clarence Scott and an 18-yard pass from Bill Nelsen to Frank Pitts to register a come-from-behind 37-24 victory over the Houston Oilers Sunday and take the American Football Conference Central Division lead.

The Browns, now 6-5 for the season, moved ahead of Pittsburgh which lost 22-10 to Denver.

The Oilers sprang to life with 17 points in the second quarter for a 17-13 halftime lead on a 27-yard field goal by Mark Moseley, a 19-yard run by Garland Boyette with a Cleveland fumble and a 20-yard halfback pass from Woody Campbell to Charley Joiner.

The Browns scored on field goals of 40 and 35 yards by Don Cockcroft and a one-yard run by Leroy Kelly, who rushed for 107 yards to move into sixth place on the all-time NFL rushing list.

But the Browns scored quickly in the third quarter, marching 26 yards to pay dirt after cornerback Ben Davis recovered a Charley Johnson fumble. Kelly ran the final 20 yards of the drive on three carries.

On Cleveland's next series, Nelsen, who hit 11 of 22 passes for 162 yards, found Pitts in the end zone for the 18-yard clincher.

Colts-Raiders

OAKLAND (AP)-The Baltimore defense stifled the Oakland offense-highest scoring unit in the National Football League-with the help of six interceptions Sunday and quarterback Johnny Unitas directed the Colts' offense to three touchdowns in a surprisingly easy 37-14 romp over the Raiders.

Safety Rich Volk grabbed two of the Colts' interceptions, including one that set up a Jim O'Brien field goal which gave Baltimore a 30-0 lead late in the third period. Three other interceptions led to Baltimore scores.

The victory made the World Champion Colts 8-3 and moved them to within one game of the first-place Miami in the Eastern Division of the American Football Conference.

The Raiders, who hadn't lost since opening day of the season, are now 7-2-2, half a game ahead of the Kansas City Chiefs in the AFC West.

The 38-year-old Unitas, in his second start of the season, hit on 10 of 16 passes for 119 yards. But all four of Baltimore's touchdowns came on the ground.

Norm Bulaich, who led the Colts rushers, scored on runs of three and one yards. Tom Matte went 10 yards for another score and Don Nottingham plunged one yard for the final touchdown.

The Raiders didn't score until the final period, when 44-year-old George Blanda tossed touchdown passes of 18 and 4 yards to Fred Biletnikoff.

Saints-Packers

MILWAUKEE (AP)-The New Orleans Saints, behind five field goals by Charlie Durkee and the strong running of Bob Gresham, ruined Bart Starr's season debut and beat the Green Bay Packers 29-21 in a National Football League game Sunday.

Durkee, who flunked a tryout with Green Bay last summer, set a New Orleans record by connecting on field goals of 35, 26, 11, and two of 12 yards.

Starr, activated a week ago after recovering from two shoulder operations, completed eight of 17 passes for 116 yards, but the Packers stopped themselves with four fumbles and two interceptions as their record fell to 3-7-1. New Orleans is 4-5-2.

Starr was relieved in favor of rookie quarterback Scott Hunter in the fourth period with Green Bay trailing 19-14. But Durkee kicked his fifth field goal after the Saints had recovered a Hunter fumble, and New Orleans clinched the game when Doug Wyatt intercepted a Hunter pass and returned it 55 yards for a touchdown.

Jim Strong scored New Orleans' first touchdown on a one-yard run in the fourth quarter. Dave Hampton returned the next kickoff 90 yards for a touchdown to pull Green Bay within 19-14, but the Packers could sustain only two scoring drives.

Starr marched Green Bay 71 yards in nine plays to a momentary 7-3 lead in the first quarter with Donny Anderson scoring from three yards out: The other Packer touchdown came on a 40-yard pass from Zeke Bratkowski to Rich McGeorge with 40 seconds to play.

Broncos-Steelers

PITTSBURGH (AP)-After handing Pittsburgh a touchdown with a fumble, Floyd Little rambled for a pair of scores, leading the Denver Broncos to a 22-10 National Football League victory over the Steelers.

The Steelers, down 10-0 at halftime, tied the score as Terry Hanratty, coming off the bench in place of Terry Bradshaw, fired a touchdown to Preston Pearson and Roy Gerela booted a 19-yard field goal in the third period.

The Steelers touchdown came after Little fumbled on the first play of the second half and linebacker Brian Stenger recovered on the Denver 25.

Five plays later, Hanratty hit Pearson with a four-yard touchdown pass. But the Broncos drove 74 yards in nine plays with about ten minutes left in the game and Little went the last 16 yards up the middle for the game-winning touchdown.

The Broncos added a safety with 4:21 left when the center snap on a punt attempt sailed over Bobby Walden's head into the end zone where he was tackled.

Chargers-Bengals

CINCINNATI (AP)-Cincinnati scored its first shutout in its four-year history Sunday, intercepting four of John Hadl's passes and routing the San Diego Chargers 31-0 for the Bengals' third straight National Football League victory.

Linebacker Al Beauchamp picked off two of Hadl's aerials, returning one 18-yards for a touchdown in a 14-point Cincinnati second quarter for a 21-0 halftime lead for the Bengals.

Meanwhile, Quarterback Virgil Carter hit 19 of 24 passes for 173 yards and one touchdown and rookie Fred Willis rambled for a pair of scores for Cincinnati.

Willis rammed two and three yards and Carter teamed with wide reciever Bob Trumpy for a ten-yard touchdown strike. Horst Muhlmann's 40-yard field goal rounded out the Bengals' scoring.

Hadl, a ten-year veteran from Kansas, managed only five completions in 18 attempts for 49 yards before interim Chargers coach Harlan Svare called on Marty Domres in the final period.

Domres was also plagued by the alert Bengals defense, throwing two interceptions. The six interceptions gave Cincinnati a club record for one game.

49ers-Jets

NEW YORK (AP)-San Francisco rode the running of Vic Washington and Ken Willard to a 24-21 victory over the New York Jets Sunday despite the three-touchdown passing performance by Joe Namath that threatened the 49ers' hold on the Western Division lead in the National Football Conference.

The 49ers, however, able to hold on despite Namath's return to the Jets' lineup, lifted their record to 7-4 and took a half-game lead over the Los Angeles Rams in the battle for the NFC West title. The Rams are 6-4-1.

Namath, who had been sidelined since the fifth game of the 1970 season with a broken wrist and an exhibition injury that required surgery on his left knee, returned to action with 10 minutes left in the first half after starter Bob Davis was injured.

A standing-room-only crowd of 63,936, interested only in seeing Namath back in action, cheered lustily as Davis writhed in pain on the Shea Stadium turf, fully aware that the man trotting out from the sidelines would be wearing the familiar No. 12 jersey and white shoes.

The Daily Collegian

SPORTS

Miami-Chi Meet

MIAMI (AP)-Miami's ambitious Dolphins shoot for their eighth straight victory Monday night against a Chicago Bears team that specializes in winning the close ones.

An Orange Bowl sellout crowd of 75,000-plus is assured for the nationally-televised ABC game.

"The Bears have beaten a lot of fine teams," said Miami Coach Don Shula. "Chicago plays tough hard-hitting football. It's certain to be a physical night."

Miami, 8-1-1, leads the world champion Baltimore Colts in the American Conference East of the National Football League while the Bears, 6-4, are trying to hang on in the National Conference Central.

Among the Chicago victories were a five-pointer against Detroit, one by four versus Dallas, by three against Pittsburgh and by one against Washington.

Clarence Brooks Named Grid Captain. UMass Dominates All Yankee Conference Team--Details In Tomorrow's Collegian

New England's Largest College Daily

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

Weather: Insanity is interesting, but who wanted rain anyways?

VOLUME XCIX, ISSUE 56 UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 30, 1971

Down down down down down.....wonder where it's going? So do we. Wonder why? Well, to tell the truth we haven't quite figured that out ourselves. But give us time and we might come up with something. Just stare at the place where the tracks end and think of where you'd like to be and....well....hmmm. (MDC photo by Carl Nash)

New Building Authority Member Under Fire

By ROBERT MEDEIROS

The newest member of the UMass Building Authority is under attack from the president of the Graduate Student Senate.

William Aubin denied in an MDC interview Monday the claim of Senate President Veda Ross that he is in a position of conflict of interest because he owns and operates an Amherst building construction firm.

Mrs. Ross has written letters to UMass President Robert Wood and Governor Sargent stating her claim. She told MDC about her views in an interview last week.

She charges the appointment of Aubin on July 14 to the UMass Building Authority "appears to be a blatant conflict of interest."

In answering the charges, Aubin, who is the owner of Aubin, Inc., said, "I know of no conflict of interest on my part."

Mrs. Ross said, "Mr. Aubin, the landlord, the general contractor and the developer, can in no way fairly represent the interests of the tenants paying for self-liquidating building Authority projects."

It is the responsibility of the Building Authority to build non-academic buildings, such as dormitories and dining commons. A major function of the Building Authority is to accept contractors' bids. A self-liquidating building is expected to pay for itself. If it does not, student funds will be taken to make up the difference.

Ross said that Aubin represents the private sector of housing in Amherst. In his position as a member of the Building Authority, he will now be expected to represent the University community or the public sector of housing in Amherst. She said that it is difficult to see how he will be able to combine to the best of the students' advantage these different points of view.

Mrs. Ross said that a letter will be sent to state Attorney General Robert Quinn asking him to make a ruling on the conflict of interest charge. She said that a committee has been formed in the Graduate Student Senate which would handle all proceedings concerning the Aubin case.

She explained that the committee would work with Dick Howland, the student attorney and would draft a letter of inquiry to the Attorney. The committee would also follow up on any further transactions in the case.

"One of the sidelights of the Aubin case will be a cross-examination of the Building Authority," said Mrs. Ross. "The major question which should be answered in this inquiry is how is the student affected by the workings of the Building Authority."

Defending his position, Aubin said that in the past he has been active in promoting housing for the University. He said that he is an alumnus and the only one of the nine-member board who has formal engineering and construction experience.

Concerning his firm's contracts, Aubin said, "I will never build in Amherst again." He said this was because of personal reasons and not because of his appointment to the Authority. In fact, he said, it has been almost five years since he has built in Amherst.

"I have never placed a bid on a University housing project," said Aubin. "It is not our type of work."

Aubin said he has never been active in real estate, even though he does have a license to sell. His main concentration of work likes in land development and design, he explained.

"As far as land development in Amherst is concerned, I am now finishing up work which was part of a ten-year project," said Aubin. "I now do most of my work in Holyoke."

"The role of the Authority is limited," in Aubin's opinion. "The Building Authority is a conduit for the administration. The Authority investigates the housing needs put forward by the administration. The administration runs the buildings and sets the rents."

On The Inside:

● Class Day Meeting Tonight See page two

● Nixon Sets Date See page four

● Youth Voting Improves See page three

First Meeting of Senior Committee Tonight

Larry Ladd and a Senate cohort.

By JEANNETTE MARTINEAU

Seniors interested in helping to plan Senior Day, Commencement, and the Class Gift, are invited to attend the first meeting of the Senior Committee Tuesday night, at 7 p.m. Rooms 905-909 in the Campus Center.

"The committee is whoever shows up at the meetings," explained Larry Ladd, External Vice-President of the Student Senate. "There will be three initial meetings," he continued, "and whoever attends two out of three of these meetings will be a member. The meetings are open to all seniors." Ladd will convene the first meeting.

Norman Patch, Alumnus and president of last year's class, proposed the idea of a Senior Committee last year after class government had been abolished, and the Senate approved it.

According to its Constitution: "Members of the Committee shall be responsible for the planning and execution of Senior events. They shall be responsible for the allocations, budgeting, and appropriation of Senior funds..."

The budget consists mostly of the $4.00 Senior Committee Tax paid by each of UMass's 3,869 Seniors. The Treasurer, along with the Chairman, Vice-Chairman, and Secretary, provided for in its Constitution, will be elected at the third consecutive meeting "from those prospective Seniors who qualify for membership in the Senior Committee."

"Members of the Senior Committee will also be eligible for the Commencement Task Force, made up of 4 Seniors, one Junior, faculty alumni, and trustees.

About Senior Day activities, Larry Ladd suggested that Seniors "organize...Senior Day is open. Seniors are pretty free to determine the kind of Senior Day they want."

Other Senior Committee meetings are scheduled for Monday December 6, and Thursday, December 9.

School of Ed's New Teaching Approach Defined

In the Fall of 1971 the School of Education began a totally new approach to teacher education for both elementary and secondary candidates. A total of 16 distinctive alternative programs, each with a separate approach to the preparation of teachers and related classroom personnel, are currently functioning.

Approximately 900 elementary and secondary candidates are enrolled in 15 of the alternative programs while another 1500 are members of the Individualized (traditional) Program. This last program is gradually being phased out as current programs and new ones to be added this Spring become filled. The Individualized Program will be completely phased out by Fall, 1973, which means that by that time all education majors and/or secondary certification candidates must be in one of the alternative programs.

Any student desiring information as to how to get into a program can inquire at the Teacher Preparation Program Council Office, Room 121, at the School of Education. Or they may call 545-1555, 545-1543, 545-1544.

Some of the questions typically asked about the new programs and some responses are listed below.

1. Who majors in education? Elementary teacher candidates and various non-teacher candidates (such as media for the deaf specialists).

2. What about secondary teacher candidates? Individuals desiring to teach at the secondary level typically major in the department representing their subject matter field. They must meet that department's requirements for graduation. These people take those courses in education which will satisfy personal career objectives, their major department's requirements, as well as state certification standards. The exception to this is in the area of distributive education. Secondary candidates preparing for this field of secondary teaching major in education (see description of Teacher Education Program for Distributive Education elsewhere in this booklet).

3. How do I get admitted to the School of Education? Elementary teacher and non-teaching majors contact the Teacher Preparation Program Council Office, Room 121, School of Education (telephone 545-1543, 545-1544) to apply. However, admissions are closed at this time to members of the classes of '72, '73, and '74 at the elementary level because the School has reached maximum enrollment capacities in this area. Admission is still open to members of the class of '75 and to junior transfer students at this time (November, 1971).

Secondary certification candidates may enroll as a member of one of the 14 alternative teacher education programs by meeting the program's admissions criteria (see question #4 below).

4. Where can I get general information about the School of Education, courses, certification requirements, student teacher information, etc? Come to Room 121 at the School of Education or telephone 545-1543 or 545-1544. If you phone in advance, an appointment will be made for you to see the best qualified person to help you.

Or, if you have already been admitted to one of the 14 undergraduate alternative preparation programs, it would be best for you to contact that program's director.

5. What are the 16 alternative programs? There currently are 14 undergraduate and 2 graduate programs in the School of Education existing to prepare teachers and other school related personnel. Each academic year some new programs will be added and a few old ones will be refined or dropped. Every student who majors in education and/or is seeking certification must belong to one of these programs.

Each program has its own unique thrust, its own set of course offerings, and related experiences, and its own advising staff. All programs are described in more detail in subsequent pages of this booklet.

6. When and how do I get into one of these programs? You may apply directly to the program's director at any time during the course of the school year. Some programs are presently closed due to capacity enrollment or because they admit students at only specific times of the year. However, in instances such as these, you may still indicate your interest and, if you wish, make arrangements for joining as soon as the program is again able to add new students.

Elementary candidates must have been accepted into the School of Education prior to applying to a program (see question #3. Secondary candidates do not have to have been admitted to the School. See question #3).

7. Who is eligible to join each of these programs? All students majoring in education and/or seeking certification. Each program determines its own admissions criteria. All students are assigned to the Individualized Program until they join one of the others.

8. What if I decide the program I join doesn't meet my needs? Can I drop out? Yes. You may then apply to join another program. One drawback to transferring back and forth is that some courses taken for one program may not meet the requirements for another; this should be checked out carefully before withdrawing from one program and joining another.

9. Where and when will I do my student teaching? The various programs assume responsibility for placing students. Frequency and duration of the experience varies from program to program though all meet certification requirements. Typically, programs require twelve to fifteen hours (equivalent of one full semester of student teaching).

10. What about graduation requirements? Each program is responsible for advising its students. This responsibility includes assisting each of its students in planning for course work both within and outside the School of Education which meet University requirements for graduation. Secondary certification candidates typically work primarily with an advisor in their major department.

11. When I complete my program, will I be eligible for certification? Typically, yes. Each of the 14 programs is designed with Massachusetts certification requirements in mind. Thus, once you complete one of these 14 approved programs, you are eligible for Massachusetts certification or for certification in most other states. However, because states do vary in requirements, it is best to ascertain what the specific requirements of other states which you are interested in are. This can be done either by corresponding with a particular state's Department of Public Instruction and/or by consulting with the Teacher Education Placement Office located at Whitmore Administration Building. Should you find you need other course work to meet another state's certification requirements, the School will assist you in this respect.

14. What if I have not majored in education and had not been planning to prepare for teaching until late in my University career? Can I take the courses necessary just to meet certification requirements without joining any program? No. Most state certification agencies require Institutional Recommendation before they will certify applicants. The School of Education gives Institutional Recommendation only to those individuals who successfully fulfill the requirements of one of the 14 alternative programs.

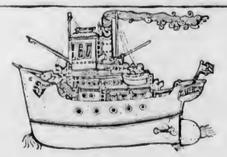
VIBRAM® SOLE AND HEEL

HIKING BOOTS by HERMAN $22

MEN'S & WOMEN'S

ALL KINDS OF BOOTS

THE SHOE-BIN IN THE ALLEY



The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

Office of the DAILY COLLEGIAN are on the second floor of the Student Union on the University campus, zip code 01002. Phones are 545-2550 (news), 545-0344 (sports), and 549-1311 (editor).

Second class postage paid at Amherst, the DAILY COLLEGIAN publishes five times weekly Monday through Friday during the academic year except during vacation and exam periods, three or four times a week following a vacation or exam period or when a holiday falls within a week. Accepted for mailing under the authority of the act of March 8, 1879 as amended by the act of June 11, 1943. Subscription rates are $6.00 per semester, $10.00 per year.

The B. M. is coming Thursday & Friday

Quicksilver Tonite!

The Scupper's Coming

CALIFORNIA - NEVADA - MASSACHUSETTS

Voting Rights For Young Have Vastly Improved

(Note: The University and State Communications Council (USCC), a student organization, will be presenting periodical articles dealing with State Legislative matters relating to the University, in an attempt to keep UMass students informed on this front.)

By CINDY PRICE

The past year has seen great changes in the rights and responsibilities of 18 to 20 year olds. The Massachusetts electorate and the State Legislature had just lowered the voting age to nineteen, when shortly afterwards the twenty-sixth Amendment to the Federal Constitution made eighteen the national voting age. This amendment needed the consent of Congress and thirty eight of the states; it took less time to be ratified than any previous one.

A committee was established in England to study the reasons why twenty-one had been the voting age for centuries and to recommend a new age if necessary. The committee found that in early British history the traditional age of maturity had been fifteen, until the advent of heavy armor. This armor weighed too much for the fifteen year old sons of the artistocracy to bear. The rich sons could no longer protect themselves at fifteen but rather waited until they were twenty-one. They could then leave their homes and fend for themselves. Thus the gradual development of the twenty-one year old voting age. The English committee rejected twenty-one as irrelevant to a modern industrial society and instead proposed that eighteen be the new voting age. Eighteen was chosen because it was felt that most people were on their own at that age by right of working or by being in college. England then proceeded to enfranchise the eighteen to twenty year olds.

The eighteen year old vote issue began a movement in Massachusetts to lower the age of other rights and responsibilities from twenty-one to eighteen. The State Legislature passed bills allowing men to marry at eighteen without parental consent (women already had that right), and made persons eighteen and over eligible to draw up wills.

A highly controversial bill, setting the drinking age at nineteen, passed the House of Representatives last year, but lost on a 21 to 15 vote in the Senate. Another fight is expected this year. It is also the opinion of Attorney General Quinn that eighteen year olds can run for state offices. At the federal level, Congressman Robert Drinan of Massachusetts and Senator Birch Bayh of Indiana have proposed a change in the National Constitution which would reduce by three years, the age of serving in the House of Representatives and the Senate, now 25 and 30 respectively.

A Legislative Commission to study the lowering of the age of majority to eighteen is headed by Representative John Olver of Amherst. The age of majority is the age at which most laws recognize a person as having the rights and duties of a citizen. The commission is looking into the effects and details of a reduced age of majority, jury service, and drinking. The Consumer's Council is analyzing the problems associated with contracts made by eighteen year olds and may suggest a tightening of the State's fraud laws.

The Commission's recommendations are due in either January or February. Soon afterwards will come hearings and voting on the bills. The University and State's Communications Council (U.S.C.C.) will write regular articles to keep students aware of the status of these and other bills and is available to students and organizations needing help in working with the State Legislature, the writing of bills, and the research of laws.

Students Find Satisfaction In Action Program

Wayne Baker, a University of Massachusetts/Amherst student who is a member of the University Year for Action Program, instructs students in Physical Education and Recreation at the West School in Holyoke, Massachusetts.

By JOANNE RESTEGHINI

Since September, some fifty UMass students have been working in urban ghettos, in surrounding communities, as participants in the University Year For Action Program. The hours are long, the jobs are challenging and the experience is greatly rewarding.

For undergraduate students interested in giving some time and effort for the betterment of mankind, the Action Program will be accepting thirty new participants, who will start in January 1972 and continue until January 1973.

The students, this semester, have been working in the communities of Springfield, Holyoke, Belchertown, Northampton and other neighboring towns. Each student is assigned to a community agency where they participate in a training program offered by the agency. The student usually chooses a job which corresponds with his academic background.

Thirty academic credits are given to each participant in the Action Program. However, the credits are not just for the forty hours of work put in each week. Each student has some academic work required by his department, such as attending seminars and completing a reading list.

Each student is paid $53 a week with which he must pay his tuition and living expenses. The money is provided by the Federal Government.

President Robert C. Wood was desirous to have the UMass participate in Action because of the role the University should play in public service and in working towards a resolution of urban problems. The program also provides students with alternate means of pursuing undergraduate education and off-campus educational experiences.

One of the participants in the Program, Juan Nieves, is a physical education major. He has been working at a public school in Springfield where he teaches physical education to four hundred and fifty students. Juan wanted to participate in the program so that he could help his own people. He feels he is accomplishing a great deal.

Another participant in the Program is Nancy Schroeder, a senior at the University. She is the only female working full-time with the residents of Northampton County Jail. Nancy stated that she wanted to get into the University Year For Action Program she felt it would be more of a personal challenge and her powers of perception and judgment would be used more than in academic life.

According to Bill Burke, Assistant Director of the Action Program at the University, all students wishing to apply for the Action Program must appear in person for an interview, next week. Interviews will be held Monday, December 6, through Friday, December 10, at the Action House which is the white house located on the corner of East Pleasant St. and Fraternity-Sorority Park.

ALL COLLEGIAN new staff writers and others interested in writing MUST attend a short writer's workshop with Alvin Oickle, technical advisor to the COLLEGIAN, at 7 p.m. tonight in his office around the corner from the COLLEGIAN on the second floor of the Student Union.

MDC Classifieds Do Work Well

11th HOUR LECTURE SERIES

presents

DEAN ALBERTSON

"Ecology and the Machine"

Tues. Nov. 30

Mahar Aud. 8:30 p.m.

Free Admission

Sponsored by the Maroon Keys.

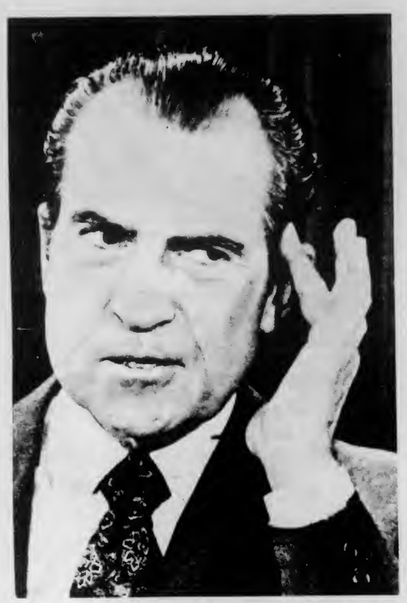
Lindsay Speaker Today

The 1972 Presidential campaign will be the theme of a speech at 9:00 p.m. today in the Colonial Lounge.

The speech will focus on an urban approach to national problems and to the proposed entry into the presidential race of John V. Lindsay, Mayor of New York City. The speaker will be Dan Dimancescu, a Cambridge based urban consultant who is currently directing a five year comparative study of Tokyo, New York, London and Moscow.

"The possibilities of a Lindsay candidacy," said Dimancescu in an interview, "raise important issues for all Americans." He added that he expects to raise questions about the need for a candidate who can take an urban view of the United States.

The speech is jointly sponsored by Smith College Young Democrats and the UMass Program Council. All are invited to participate in this session.



YOU CAN STILL FIND A GOOD, HOT MEAL ON CAMPUS FOR ONLY 84¢ AT THE BLUE WALL CAFETERIA

LUNCH 11:20-1:30/DINNER 4:30-6:30/DELI 11:30-6:30

BBQ GOULD 11:30-1:30 DRAUGHT BEER 25¢ 4:30-6:30

In The Nation And The World

Nixon To Visit Peking In February

The President who announced yesterday that he will make his historical visit to Peking this coming February.

WASHINGTON (AP)-President Nixon will fly to Peking Feb. 21 to begin a historic mission aimed at "normalization of relations" with mainland China, the White House announced Monday.

As this news was released simultaneously here and in the Chinese capital, press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said American officials will provide additional information on the trip within the next 24 hours.

He said he would be able to disclose Tuesday the length of the President's stay in mainland China and other details such as the route he will take on his unprecedented flight to become the first American president ever to go to China.

There had been published and broadcast reports in the United States that hitches had developed in planning for the Nixon trip but Ziegler said, "preparations continue to go well and the general framework has been established."

The joint Washington-Peking announcement of the February date was unusually brief:

"The government of the People's Republic of China and the government of the United States of America have agreed that President Nixon's visit to China shall begin on Feb. 21, 1972."

That will be some three months before Nixon is scheduled to visit Moscow for another first-ever summit conference with Soviet leaders in their capital city.

In advance of the Peking and Moscow trips, as the White House has announced within the past week, Nixon plans a series of face-to-face consultations with the leaders of such major allies as Japan, Britain, France, West Germany, and Canada.

On July 15, Nixon stunned the world by disclosing in a live television-radio broadcast that he planned to go to Peking before May of next year to seek more normal relations between two powerful countries that have diplomatic and ideological enemies for a quarter century.

In addition, Nixon said at the time, he intended to exchange views with Premier Chou En-lai and other Chinese leaders on questions of mutual interest.

Aides have made it clear that Nixon, while in Peking, expects to confer also with Chairman Mao Tse-tung of China's Communist party, the de facto ruler of 800 million Chinese.

Dr. Henry A. Kissinger, Nixon's assistant for national security affairs, secretly visited Peking in July to lay the groundwork for the President's initial announcement.

Kissinger returned in late October with a White House advance party that ranged from communications experts to Secret Service personnel to make further plans.

Ziegler said Kissinger and Chinese leaders agreed upon the Feb. 21 date when they conferred in October. He said they decided to keep it secret for just over a month while "tying down the surrounding details."

The Nixon spokesman declined even to hint at any of those details Monday but, in response to a question, said Nixon would be accompanied by a small traveling party.

This might suggest that Mrs. Nixon will not go.

The precise timing of Nixon's trip to Moscow has not been announced but he has said he will go there in late May.

Teachers Liberate Holbrook

HOLBROOK, Mass. (AP)-Five male teachers dressed in short pleated skirts and cheerleader sweaters walked into Holbrook High School Monday to teach their classes.

Three of them were barelegged, and two wore pantyhose. But, there was no problem.

"It all started with a pre-game rally we had last Wednesday night" before the annual big football game with Hull High, said Principal William T. Buckley.

"The students had prepared a skit in which five men teachers did the cheerleader bit in clothes they borrowed from the girls.

"It went over big, and as a parting shot, one of them said: 'If you win the game, we'll come to school like this on Monday.'"

Holbrook won 8-6.

"If they made a big hit Wednesday night, they made a bigger one today," said Buckley.

"We have a very good relationship with our kids here. They like the teachers, and the teachers like them," he said.

"Of course, I would have suspended all five immediately," he said jokingly, "only I knew the Supreme Court would knock me down."

Brotherhood To Teach Course

There is a course called "Love: the Key to Education". It is offered by the Human Relations Center of the Ed. Dept. and is taught in cooperation with members of the Brotherhood of the Spirit commune.

In this course the group is searching for a communication that is real and meaningful to all people. They want people to go into this communication and see what they can find together. Entrance into this course is by permission of one of the instructors.

Interested students should call Melvin Weiner or Ronnie Tropper 863-8042 or call Debbie Stone 498-9358. (After 5 P.M. is the best time.)

KNOCKED FLAT...

...BY HIGH AUTO INSURANCE COSTS ?

get the lowest legal rates for all vehicles and all coverages with easy monthly payments

NOW'S THE TIME FOR 1972 AUTO INSURANCE!

TKO YOUR INSURANCE PROBLEMS with...

TEKOA INSURANCE AGENCY

Avoid downtown Spfld. parking headaches in WEST SPRINGFIELD at 366 MEMORIAL AVE. Opp. Century Shopping Plaza! Free parking for over 100 cars!

WESTFIELD 10 BROAD ST. Next to P.O. | NORTHAMPTON 160 PLEASANT ST. Opp. N'hamp. Jr. College | FAIRVIEW 1847 MEMORIAL DR. On North-South Hwy.

EVERETT J. O'CONNOR INSURANCE AGENCY

HOLYOKE . . . 205 HIGH ST. . . . Next to Holyoke Nat'l. Bank

DAN DINANCHESCU

Director of Cities Project: A study of London, New York, and Moscow

An Urban Approach to National Policy

Tuesday, Nov. 30, 9:00 p.m.

Colonial Lounge S.U.

COFFEE HOUR FOLLOWING

Sponsored by Campus Center Program Council

Sikorsky Aircraft

REPRESENTATIVES WILL BE ON CAMPUS TO GIVE SENIORS AND GRADUATES COMPLETE DETAILS ON

ENGINEERING OPPORTUNITIES

WITH THE PIONEER AND LEADING MANUFACTURER OF VTOL AIRCRAFT

Female, minority group and veteran applicants especially welcome.

See your College Placement Office now for an appointment on:

FRIDAY, DECEMBER 10

SIKORSKY AIRCRAFT, Stratford, Conn. 06602 • Division of United Aircraft Corp. • An Equal Opportunity Employer

Thanksgiving Day wasn't all that bad, at least not in New Hampshire where this picture was taken. (Photo by Alan Chapman)

News In Brief

JORDAN (AP) — King Hussein picked a new prime minister Monday to take the place of assassinated Wasfi Tell and gave a sign he will continue his hard line against Palestinian guerrillas who oppose his monarchy.

Named to succeed Tell, a sharp foe of the guerrillas, was Ahmed Lozi, 46, regarded as a technical expert. Lozi immediately flew off to Cairo to take Tell's seat at an Arab conference to plan joint strategy against Israel. Tell was slain Sunday in Cairo.

The king appeared to be serving notice that he remains unrelenting against the guerrillas by appointing Maj. Gen. Mohammed Rassoul Kilani as his chief adviser for national security affairs.

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon declared Monday he will veto the pending tax-cut bill unless it is stripped of both a check-off plan to finance presidential campaigns and a set of "budget-busting Senate amendments."

Nixon's warning was relayed by his chief Capitol Hill lobbyist, Clark MacGregor, as a conference committee met to settle differences between House and Senate versions of the bill.

WASHINGTON (AP) — General Services Administrator Robert L. Kunzig testified Monday at a hearing on his nomination for a federal judgeship that he had no personal knowledge of any improper political fund-raising among employees of his agency.

He was questioned by Sen. Roman L. Hruska, R-Neb., presiding at a Senate Judiciary subcommittee hearing, about news stories last week that Hruska said implied some GSA employees had been intimidated into buying $1,000-a-plate tickets for a GOP fund-raising dinner.

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — A Senate subcommittee investigating nursing home care was told Monday about alleged abuses of the elderly and heard one former orderly tell about a bomb threat if he testified.

Daniel W. Henry, Minneapolis, who had worked in a nursing home in that city earlier this year, told the committee that he was awakened by a phone call at 2:50 a.m. Monday.

The young witness said the caller told him, "I put a bomb in your house. So therefore you will not be able to testify." Then the caller hung up, Henry said.

India-Pakistan War Intensifies On Four Fronts

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Indian army reported some of its troops were battling inside East Pakistan Monday in a measure of self-defense. But Pakistan charged Indian forces fought on four fronts in the province and had taken control of a key town in the western sector.

According to the version given out in New Delhi, the Indian force was operating "two to three miles" inside East Pakistan in the northern sector around Balurghat. An Indian spokesman said the Pakistanis had fired into India's side of the border and the troops were attempting to knock out a threat.

Pakistan's army claimed the Indians were on the attack in the west around Jessore, in the east near Comilla, in the northeast of Sylhet and in the north at Dinajpur and Balurghat.

The Indians say that an East Pakistani rebel movement, the Mukti Bahini, is doing most of the fighting in an attempt to wrest control from Pakistan's central government.

East Pakistan is separated from the seat of government in West Pakistan by 1,000 miles of Indian territory. The hostilities now underway grow out of elections last December in which the Awami League, proponents of more autonomy for the East, gained a majority of the legislative seats at stake.

In March, the Pakistani army moved against the Awami League on the grounds that it represented a seccessionist movement. The Indian government says nine million East Pakistanis fled into Indian border areas to escape the army, putting heavy strain on India's resources.

The Indians have announced their support for the Mukti Bahini and allowed them to operate from Indian territory.

After months of scattered skirmishing, broader hostilities have broken out in the past two weeks.

The heaviest new battles reported by Indian spokesmen and by Radio Pakistan were around the strategic areas of Balurghat Jessore and Comilla.

Pakistani army's main supply centers.

In New Delhi, an Indian spokesman said Indian troops crossed into the northern sector around Balurghat last Friday and Saturday.

"If they have to stay inside in Area one shows where the Indian forces are operating near Balurghat. Area two shows where the newest battles have arisen.

The Mukti Bahini guerrillas were very active in Jessore and Comilla, an Indian spokesman said.

Radio Pakistan claimed Indian forces have lost 200 to 400 soldiers in the last three days of clashes.

The government radio quoted an official in Rawalpindi as saying "Pakistani forces are holding on firmly in the face of the Indian attacks."

Jessore is about 30 miles east of the Indian border and one of the defense of our lives and property, they will stay," the spokesman said.

He reported 35 casualties on the Indian side and 160 on the Pakistani side.

The spokesman said the Indians had first crossed into East Pakistan because the Pakistanis had made "a direct threat on our positions"

Pentagon Papers Again Stir Court Action

BOSTON (AP) — A U.S. Curcuit Court of Appeals Monday ruled that a federal grand jury here may resume a limited re-investigation of the release of the Pentagon Papers, an aide to Sen. Mike Gravel, D-Alaska, said.

The court had ordered the grand jury inquiry halted pending a ruling on Sen. Gravel's contention that attempts to subpoena two of his associates were an infringement of his legislative immunity.

Ted Johnson, an aide to Sen. Gravel in his Washington office, said he was notified by an Appeals Court clerk that it had issued a brief "interim order" allowing the grand jury to continue its investigations under certain restrictions, pending a final judgment on the senator's claims.

Johnson said the court ruled that neither the senator, nor his aides nor members of the staff of a Senate subcommittee of which he is chairman could be called to testify before the grand jury.

TONIGHT

COMPARATIVE LITERATURE FILM SERIES presents

KWAIDAN

The Human and The Supernatural

AN INCREDIBLE FILMIC ANTHOLOGY

One Showing Only At 8 p.m. in Thompson 104

Tickets on Sale at door, Street Entrance

WTOY Presents

BOB DYLAN

DONT LOOK BACK

A Film By D A Pennebaker

Tuesday, November 30 75c

S.U. Ballroom 7:30 and 9:30

Fairness
Intelligence
Concern

That is all it takes to be a member of the Student Judiciaries.

— Then why do only 5% of the applicants get accepted?

— Maybe the best people are not applying!

Pick Up Applications For:
Area East Judiciary
Area West Judiciary
Greek Area Judiciary

Where?
Rooms 111 and 113 C.C.
(Due back by Dec. 10)

The Massachusetts
Daily Collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

BOARD OF EDITORS

EDITOR IN CHIEF — Richard C. Hanson
MANAGING EDITOR — Nathan Gorenstein
BUSINESS MANAGER — James Gold
EXECUTIVE EDITOR — Barry J. Rubenstein
NEWS EDITOR — Anne C. Sladnicki
SPORTS EDITOR — Earle T. Barroll

PHOTO EDITOR — Gib Fullerton
FINE ARTS EDITOR — Robert Nesti

TODAY'S STAFF

ISSUE EDITOR — Bob Nesti
NEWS STAFF — Charlie Berkow
SPORTS — Dan Kamal, Bob Medeiros
EDITORIAL — Ann Gurnett
DARKROOM — Alan Chapman, Carl Nash
AD LAYOUT — Jerry Lazar

Undergraduate newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The Staff is responsible for its content and no faculty members or administration read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.
Unsigned editorials represent the views of this paper. They do not necessarily reflect the views of the faculty, administration, or student body as a whole. Signed editorials, columns, reviews, and letters represent the personal views of the writers.

"And NOW — From The Same People Who Gave You G. Harrold Carswell — "

Art Buchwald

Campaign Sabotage

WASHINGTON--Once again Congress is attempting to pass legislation which would infringe on the rights of people. The Senate passed a bill last week which would permit each taxpayer to donate $1 of his taxes to finance the 1972 presidential campaign. The House has several bills limiting the amount of money politicians can spend on their campaigns.

If any of these bills become law, it means that the right of large corporations and labor unions to buy politicians would be abrogated, and the vested interests in this country would be hard put to finance the campaigns of congressmen, senators and the President.

Terence L. Bloodstone, president of the Washington Order of Loyal Lobbyists, angrily denounced the new plans to finance politicians as a threat to the American political way of life.

"The salvation of this democracy," he told me at a $500-a-plate political testimonial dinner, "is big business' and big labor's financing of political campaigns. For years we have made it possible for every politician in this country to be elected. There isn't one congressman, senator or governor who doesn't owe a debt to us. Now Congress wants to take that away."

"It does seem unfair," I admitted.

Bloodstone stabbed his fork into his lobster thermidor.

"We've been buying and selling politicians for years. They trust us, they believe in us, they'll go to bat for us."

"Many of them are even in bed with you," I said, trying to be helpful.

He ignored this remark. "Look around at this dinner. Every table of 10 people represents $5,000. Who bought these tables? Corporations, bankers, manufacturers and public-minded millionaires. We don't ask anything for ourselves. We just want the best man elected to the best job. Do you think people who contribute one lousy dollar from their taxes will have any idea who the best man is?"

"I should say not," I replied. "You have to contribute a lot of money to know what is good for the country."

Bloodstone started tearing his duck a l'orange apart.

"Do you know what is going to happen if these political fund-raising schemes become law? The politicians aren't going to be responsible to anybody. They're going to figure it's the taxpayer's money so they don't have to answer for their actions."

"It's true," I said. "At least now a politician knows who gave him the money and can react accordingly."

"The Democrats are sore," Bloodstone said, "because they can't get anyone to come to their dinners. But I say if a political party can't sell out a $500-a-plate dinner, it shouldn't be in politics. Just because they don't have an Agnew or a Martha Mitchell is no reason to sabotage all of the campaign fund-raising methods of this country."

Bloodstone was now gulping down his foie gras.

I said, "It seems a pity that after all the seed work the lobbyists have done to get politicians in their pocket, that a group of senators or congressmen would destroy it with some self-serving legislation."

"Don't think the fight is over," Bloodstone said. "The Senate bill has to go to the House and then it has to go to the President. Do you think any Republican President would sign a law that would help the Democrats finance their campaign?"

"I should hope not," I said.

The waiter brought our cherries jubilee.

Bloodstone belched. "Besides, we have to think of the economy. What's going to happen to all the hotel banquet rooms if they do away with political fund-raising dinners?"

"What a blow to Conrad Hilton," I said.

Copyright 1971, Los Angeles Times

PointBlank

Sexual Politics A La Florida

"I know you've heard it hundreds of times," Shirley Wheeler wrote me a year ago, "but if men had to go through pregnancy, abortion would have been legal years ago.... I don't have the money to raise a child the way I'd like to and besides the world situation keeps getting worse for anyone's kids to grow up in such a mess."

Six months earlier Shirley had discovered she was pregnant. She knew that childbirth would be physically dangerous for her and that she did not want a child and, therefore, that she must have an abortion.

Abortion is legal in Florida only when necessary to save the life of a woman. As in most states the decision as to whether a woman will obtain a legal abortion is left to the doctor, who normally refuses to perform the procedure rather than expose himself to a potential prosecution.

Shirley, therefore, arranged her abortion as millions of other women have over the years. She called a number given her by a friend, was picked up by a stranger, blindfolded, and taken to an abortionist in Jacksonville. She never saw the person who performed the abortion because she was covered by a sheet during the entire procedure.

Afterward Shirley returned to Daytona Beach, but the abortion was unsuccessful. She had to visit Jacksonville again and finally, approximately one month after the original trip, she began hemorrhaging. She was placed in a local hospital by her own doctor where the abortion was legally completed.

Police learned there had been an "abortion" in the Daytona hospital and traced the fetus to a local funeral parlor. Shirley was arrested and jailed shortly after being discharged from the hospital. While in jail Shirley was questioned about her abortion. When she refused to answer, she was shown photos of the dead fetus taken by police at the funeral parlor.

Shirley was also questioned about the identity of the abortionist. When she was unable and unwilling to disclose the identity, she was threatened with prosecution. Such threats are not unusual in efforts to prosecute abortionists, but they are rarely carried out. In Shirley's case the threat came true.

On July 13, 1971, Shirley Wheeler, twenty-three years of age, was convicted of manslaughter, which carries a penalty of up to 20 years in prison. Ironically enough, on the very day Shirley's trial had begun, the Florida Supreme Court reversed a conviction of three men for conspiring to commit abortion (Walsingham v. Florida). One of the judges explained in a concurring opinion that he did not believe the Florida statutes prohibiting abortion were constitutional, for nowhere in the statutes is it shown that the State has an interest in protecting the fetus: "(N)owhere is there a provision express or implied, for punishing women who abort themselves, either directly or indirectly."

Shirley Wheeler was sentenced on October 15, 1971, in a courtroom filled with concerned women and members of the press. She was given two years probation. Then, alone with her probation officer, the conditions of her probation were revealed; she must either marry the man with whom she had been living for three years or return to North Carolina to live with her family.

We have grown accustomed in recent years to the concept of the political trial and the political prisoner, but rarely, if ever, have those concepts been applied to women prosecuted for exercising their constitutional rights as women. Since the legalization of abortion in New York, more than 200,000 women have had abortions. Because she had the identical procedure in Florida, Shirley Wheeler has been forced to become a political prisoner.

Shirley has decided to appeal. I will be handling her case as a staff attorney for the Center of Constitutional Rights. Shirley's decision was based on her desire not only to vindicate her own rights, but also to insure that no other woman will become a political prisoner for exercising her right to have an abortion.

The appeal comes at a time when thousands of women are organizing throughout the country to express their opposition to laws which restrict abortion, and the United States Supreme Court is faced with determining the constitutionality of the abortion laws in Georgia and Texas. Courts do not operate in a vacuum. The success of Shirley's struggle for her rights and those of her sisters may well depend upon the degree to which women throughout the country see her fight as their own and join forces.

Nancy Stearns is a staff attorney with the Center for Constitutional Rights in New York City.

Walden Three

By ANN GURNETT
EDITORIAL STAFF

The American way of life is being threatened in a new and insidious way. The mentality of cleanliness and health so important to the country's well-being is about to be torn out from under the well-washed public. The reason for this ominous threat, you ask? Nader's Raiders have decided to attack that established American chemical-of-all-uses: hexachlorophene.

Think of the implications this attack could have. Almost every deodorant soap on the market has some percentage of hexachlorophene as its 'active' ingredient. Deodorants, dandruff shampoos, surgical washes, acne preparations, makeups --, all share, to some extent, the now-dubious asset of the ingredient abovementioned. Nader says that all products containing this wolf in lamb's clothing should be pulled off the market as soon as possible and be made available to the public on a prescription basis only.

The reason for this catastrophe is the fact that the chemical has been known to produce brain damage in experimental animals. No details are available about how the hexachlorophene got into the animals' brains in the first place, but that could be considered of secondary importance to the layman.

One thing not of secondary importance is the result this ban will have on the already fluctuating economic situation. What will become of all the people now engaged in the manufacture of products containing hexachlorophene? Thousands will be laid off while the company scientists try to concoct new chemicals approximating the effectiveness of hexachlorophene without its harmful side effects. Prices for a bar of Ivory (99-44/100% pure-it even floats) will soar. Reservoirs that have been dry for years will start to refill because people won't take showers without their favorite brand of soap. Dress shield sales will accelerate with stupefying rapidity. Deodorants will become a thing of the past. The new vogue will be to smell exactly as nature planned we should smell.

Perhaps the bastions of American high society will fight this regression back to the basic way of life. People may stockpile their favorite soaps and deodorants, anticipating the wet years to come. Clothing styles will lean towards the minimum coverage necessary. All this, because American technology created a chemical that will be almost impossible to live without.

There is but one solution. We must go back to the days of the covered wagon, where dirt and toil and sweat were a way of life. Back to the days when the only soap available was made of lye and animal grease. We must go back to nature.

'TESTING! TESTING! 10-9-8-7-6 . . .'

Letters To The Editor

The Litterbug Will Get You

To the Editor:

Isn't it nice after spring has sprung, summer has come and is gone, and autumn has fallen at our feet, that we have the cold sterilizing wind of winter blowing around us. Thankful that the thick blanket of whitewashing snow covers what large numbers of damnable UMass students leave behind them as they selfishly and inconsiderately make their way along knowledge and pleasure-pursuing paths.

The evil is not the passing of time, the cold winter, the pursuit of knowledge, or the similar pursuit of pleasure. They may need to be dealt with, but not as urgently.

Litter UMassis a pretty campus underneath all the litter. Many trees and pines grow tall and filling out. There are large areas of green grass close at hand to all points on campus. Parts of campus are a muddy, disrupted mess, true, but presumably most of that will disappear when the construction workers leave. Even in Southwest, signs of returning greenery are about, despite abuse and destruction of many of the greening areas.

Thousands of students. And there lies the blame. We students and our contemptable practice of seeing the waste containers a minute too late. Too much effort and too little time to go back. While students pleasure seek, beer cans, wine bottles, food containers and paper wrappers find their way into shrubbery and under trees. Too out of our head? Ha! And those wallowing in their intellect--How about the newspapers and notebook paper caught in the corners of buildings. Minds tangling with too many "heavy thoughts?

Such together people. Heads high in the clouds, unconcerned with the things at their feet. Just exactly what is our culture countering? The contradiction between words and actions is obvious. It keeps men carrying around sharp-pointed sticks and keeps their buckets busy, though.

Maybe the litterers are giving that cold winter wind something to blow around us? Try. Take time.

John Barr

Project (Your) Self

To the Editor:

Project SELF, a women's studies program initiated by the Valley Women's Center and co-sponsored by the Division of Continuing Education at UMass, is presenting at 8 p.m., Wed., Dec. 1, the first in a planned series of colloquia between women of the community and noted women speakers in the arts and professions. Dr. Rose Olver, chairwoman of the Psychology department at Amherst College, and Priscilla Warner, member of the VWC and workshop leader of "Problems of Senior Women" at W.P.C., will speak about the November Massachusetts Women's Political Caucus and other relevant women's liberation topics. The free meeting will be at Farley Lodge, located off University Drive behind the stadium. These colloquia hope to promote a more personal contact between local women and those involved in issues affecting their lives as women.

Joan B. Engel

Tax Resistance Party

To the Editor:

At a time when few tactics for opposing the war in South East Asia seem effective, when there is little vitality in the "movement," some of us are gathering tonight to discuss tax resistance as a means of war protest. Instead of a formal meeting, the occasion is a house-warming party for our new (to us) home at 623-625 Main Street in Amherst. At some point in the evening, we will talk seriously about the potential of tax refusal as a form of conscientious disobedience to the war-making national administration. Special attention will be given to the 10% Federal Excise Tax on all telephone usage--a conspicuous war revenue measure specifically retained by Congress in 1967 to help pay for the enlarged American role in Vietnam. Many people are refusing to pay this tax. Others could join such resistance with a minimum of fuss and with increasing effectiveness as the numbers grow. One topic to be discussed is whether to attempt a public campaign to enlarge the number of phone tax refusers in the Amherst area. If you are at all interested in tax resistance, whatever your present involvement, please feel free to join us tonight (Tuesday), 8 p.m. or later, at the address given above.

Jean Matlack
(Special Student, School of Education)
Jim Matlack
(Assistant Professor of English)

Summing It Up

In light of all the criticism recently published by the Collegian regarding U of M Police I have decided that it is time for the "silent majority" to make some comments.

Therefore, I'm sending you a copy of an article which sums it all up.

Thank you,
Supporter of our U of M Police

(Reprinted from The San Francisco Examiner)

This concerns a minority group with high visibility.

It is a group too often condemned and too seldom commended.

There are fewer than 800,000 of this minority in all the United States. In all of California, there are fewer than 50,000.

They tend to congregate in core cities. There are 1,872 in San Francisco.

Members of this minority group have longer work days than our average citizen. Their earnings are limited. Few belong to unions.

They get jobs others shun. Their work is frequently dangerous. As a result, their insurance rates are higher than average.

In the past 10 years more than 640 of their number have been brutally gunned down.

Many have been targets for rocks, clubs, bottles, and bags of human excrement. Many have been spat upon. Most have been insulted and called vile names.

The lives of many have been threatened. The homes of some have been bombed and burned. Children and wives of this minority group are often terrorized and criticized.

The men are expected to accept insults without responding in kind.

While earning less than some laborers, they are required to expertly and instantaneously make legal decisions that may require months of deliberation by the Supreme Court.

They are criticized and condemned for being too soft. Just as they are criticized and condemned for being too tough.

They are not without fault, but if all of our citizens were as law-abiding as they, all people could walk our streets in safety at all hours.

They give strength to laws. Without them our cities would become jungles. They are as precious to society as doctors, lawyers, teachers, and preachers.

They belong to all the races of man. They are black and white and brown and yellow. They are Catholics, Protestants, Jews, and agnostics.

They are our police officers...members of a proud profession.

They merit more respect than they receive.

On The Breeding Habits Of The Volkswagen

(Editor's note: So you thought the Volkswagen controversy was over, eh? It's just beginning. Last week we ran an editorial point about the Theory of the Infinitely Expanding Volkswagen. Our reply was quick in coming. This came in from someone in the Zoology Dept. who signed his accompanying note "E. Scheisskopf." He said it, we didn't)

ON THE BREEDING HABITS OF THE VOLKSWAGEN (VULGIVEHICULUM: (PORSCHIDIDAE).

By Erich Scheisskopf

The prevalence of Volkswagens in the Nearctic and Palaearctic regions (with occasional small populations occurring in other areas) has led to some speculation upon this species. The Common Volkswagen (Vulgivehiculum vulgaris)has been surprisingly ignored by modern behaviorists, who seem preoccupied with the bizzare and spectacular (but rare) antics of copulating Ferraris, Maseratis, Bugattis, and other pizazz. Accordingly, a sizeable ($50,000) grant was sought and obtained from the NSF (Nazi Science Foundation, an exile group in Buenos Aires) for the study of this common species.

Through diligent effort, 56 copulating pairs were observed, mainly with a snooperscope, at a distance of 500 to 1000 meters. Sound recordings of 12 unseen copulations were also obtained. Contacts between the Common VW (V. vulgaris) and the Karmann-Ghia species (V. semivulgaris) were also observed and photographed in areas where the forms are sympathetic.

I am indebted to my intrepid assistant, Hugo Schultz, who was mauled by an angered Vulgivehiculum after crawling too close to the festivities and is now recovering from his injuries.

Vulgivehiculum is typically a secretive breeder. Males and females pair during early evening and retreat to some secluded spot to complete the ritual. Males are particularly dangerous when disturbed.

The female is polyestrous and appears to come into heat approximately every 3 weeks, except during a refractory period in January. Commonly only 2 ova are liberated, but cases of 3 and 4 have been reported (Scheisskopf, 1960). The female is receptive to the male only during heat. At other times she usually resists overtures by bending fenders, smashing headlights, and creasing bumpers. Males in Vulgivehiculum populations commonly show traces of such past encounters (Scheisskopf, 1962). Pregnancy normally lasts 45 days, though duration can be affected by several factors. Johannesslaufer (1955) demonstrated that sludgy oil in the engine and transaxle increased pregnancy duration by an average of 5 days. The young are carried in the front compartment and usually implant on the gas tank, though some other sites can be used. The placenta is of the gasoline-chorial type, with some fetal invasion of maternal tissue (Scheisskopf, 1952, 1953). Transfer of gases and metabolites across the placenta seems to be fairly efficient.

The male remains in the rut all year long.

After pairing, the male commonly circles the female at a speed of 15 mph, honking his horn and squealing the brakes occasionally. If a supercharger is developed, it is switched on (since presence of the supercharger in the male renders it far more attractive to the female). The female responds with a series of 15 rapid jerks, in each of which the nose is depressed until the bellypan touches the ground. The female responds, apparently, to the form and color of the male's headlight rims. Gemuesekopf (1963) demonstrated that males whose headlight rims were taped over experimentally were always rejected by females, and he suggested that this is the isolation mechanism which prevents interbreeding between V. vulgaris and V. semivulgaris. This cue and response pattern is similar to that found in the Ferraridae: by Rivoli (1952, 1955, 1956a, 1956b, 1956c) and in the Fordidae by MacNamara (1960). It may be uniform throughout the Order. Obviously, however, this isolating mechanism is by no means perfect, since there is reason to suspect that the Common American Corvair (Corvus horridus) is derived by introgressive hybridization between Vulgivehiculum and some yet unidentified species of Chevroletidae; this view was championed by Scheisskopf (1965) and has been vigorously opposed by Mire (1965a, 1965b, 1965c, 1966a, 1966b, 1966c, 1966d, 1966e ad nauseam).

Significantly, in the contacts between V. vulgaris and V. semivulgaris which we observed during the present study, contact between individuals was broken off at this Stage.

The male responds to the female's jerks by circling around and mounting from behind. The concave bellypan (plastron) of the male assists in mounting. Intromission commonly takes 30 seconds, after which the male jumps off and screeches 5 or 6 times.

Each female usually produces 4 young per year, and since mortality is negligible, recruitment is a significant factor in population growth. It appears now that the species responds to increasing density by migration. This means of reducing density is of course only temporary, since the species must eventually run short of habitable territory. Possible, we might find some parasite capable of controlling the population, but parasites so far seem to be very rare in Vulgivehiculum. Another possible alternative is interesting the beasts in birth control.

Perhaps the most interesting aspect of the biology of Vulgivehiculum is the lack of variation in external morphology, both geographically in the modern species, and through time. Vulgivehiculum seems to be of the right hand. Behaviour, 27: 137-138.

1956c Masturbation in the Ferrari, III. Synthesis: use of both hands. Behaviour, 27: 139-140.

Rowland, R.

1968 Evolution of the MG. Nature, 217: 240-242.

Scheisskopf, E.

1952 Placentation in Vulgivehiculum. I. Early Stages. Hard-core Biology, 1: 45-48.

1953 Placentation in Vulgivehiculum, II. Fine Structure of the Placenta.

LITERATURE CITED

Gemuesekopf, H.
1963 The importance of headlight rims in courting behavior in Vulgivehiculum. Oecas. Pap. Nat. Hist. Soc. of Rangoon, Series B, 32: 544-546.
Johannesslaufer, E.G.
1955 Effect of oil pressure and consistency on duration of preganacy in Vulgivehiculum. Jour. Obscure Research, Suppl., vol. 32: 122-123 (abst.)
MacNamara, R. Strange
1960 How I Designed the Edsel. Triumphs in American Engineering and Technology, vol. IV, 358 pp. Privately printed, Dearborn. Mire, E.
1965a Introgressive hybridization, a farce. Amer. Zool., 5: 232-233.
1965b The insufficiency of introgressive hybridization as an explanation for the origin of the Corvair. Awk, 66: 133-145.
1965c Introgressive hybridization as a dangerous concept. Jour. Theoret. Bicl., 44: 25-27.
1966a Erich Scheisskopf, ein Gott-verdammter Idiot. Zeit. f. Volgelforschung, 165: 254-257.
1966b (Same title), Amer. Nat., 200: 120-130.
1966c Introgressive hybridization (different title, but same paper as above). Jour. Obstructive Res., 13: 15-25.
1966d Erich Scheisskopf, the New Typologist. Syste. Zool., 2z: 35-56.
1966e My Way is Right. The Norman Vincent Peale Quarterly. 15: 46-68.
Rivoli, E. J.
1952 Reproduction in the Ferrari, I. Overtures. Behaviour, 23: 245-246.
1953 Reproduction in the Ferrari, II, part A. Circling. Behaviour, 24: 1-22.
1955 Reproduction in the Ferrari, III, part B. Mounting. Behaviour, 26: 77-78.
1956a Masturbation in the Ferrari, I. Use of the left hand. Behaviour, 27: 133-136.
1956b Masturbation in the Ferrari, II. Use

DON'T LOOK BACK, D.A. Pennebaker's documentary about Bob Dylan and his British tour in 1965 will be shown tonight in the SU Ballroom at 7:30 and 9:30.

Draft Counselor's Corner

Getting Out Legally

By GILBERT J. SALK

Welcome back from Turkey Day. I hope you've all recovered from your cases of indigestion. Unfortunately, some of us still haven't gotten over a bad case of the draft, so here we go.

I want to spend some time today talking about medical deferments. The main thing you want to know about them is what will get you one and how to go about getting it.

The main thing to remember is that they are not all that hard to come by. Even if you don't have any medical problems which you feel are serious, Uncle Sam may disagree with you, so don't give up hope. You should note that the military can cause you to undergo rather extreme physical, emotional, and climatic conditions, and medical problems which don't interfere with your normal day-to-day living could be severe problems in the service.

With that bit of hope, let's go on.

I want to list some of the more common problems. This list will not be definitive; if you don't disqualify yourself because of something on this list, talk to a qualified draft counselor to determine whether you might have something a little more esoteric.

If you have any history of asthma since your 12th birthday, you will be rejected. Allergies, if they are severe and not helped by either antihistamines or shots, can lead to a rejection. Generalized allergic reactions to insect bites or common foods are rejections. (Generalized means that the reaction affects more than the immediate part of your body stung or bitten.)

Recurrent problems with your joints--wrist, elbow, shoulder, hip, knee, or ankle--can disqualify you, as can severely flat feet and many back problems. If you are "double-jointed" at all, this is a rejection.

Skin problems such as eczema, psoriasis, severe acne, and other problems can lead to disqualification. A history of migraine headaches will disqualify you.

If you are a homosexual, or have had any homosexual experiences, you cannot be drafted. If you are in the custody of a court (awaiting trial, on probation or suspended sentence, involved in an appeal) you cannot be drafted until your case is settled. If you have a history of psychological or emotional problems, or if you have been troubled by psychosomatic or "nervous" ailments, you could be deferable.

If you're into dope at all heavily, you could be deferred as drug dependent. (Be careful on this one, though. Draft records are not all that confidential.)

Keep in mind that for most deferable medical and/or psychological problems, documentation is important. I'll deal more with medical documentation in Thursday's column. If you have questions about what is or isn't deferable, see a draft counselor. They are trained, and will be glad to help you.

Free draft counseling is available from Draft Counseling Services. The office is in 923 Campus Center.

Room To Move
Drop-In Center
5-0400, 5-0401

Campus Carousel

Cruising The Campuses

By TONY GRANITE

THE GREEKS HAVE WORDS FOR IT, and they are expressed in a new monthly newspaper making its debut on the Indiana University campus, Dec. 10.

That's the word from the Indiana Daily Student, announcing its competition from the Interfraternity Council, which is subsidizing the tabloid-size publication.

Only the news that fits the Greek interests (and presumably that which isn't covered in the campus newspaper) will appear.

An ominous note is that the new paper will be selling ad space to help finances.

****

MORE NEW WORDS for old concepts appear in the Daily Reveille of Louisiana State U. You've heard of "contemplating one's navel" and other euphemisms for the gentle art of introspection?

Comes now Author Jim Wells with a think piece in which he contemplates childhood dreams.

He calls it the "View from the toenail."

****

WHICH LEADS TO NOTIFICATION that the University of Wisconsin Daily Cardinal recently (just before Thanksgiving) devoted its weekly magazine section to "gay liberation in our lifetime."

Some of the titled pieces: "Gay Liberation: Out of the Closets"; "Coming Out"; "Homosexuality and the Law"; "If You Can't Dance, Get Off the Floor" and "To Be Black and Gay."

****

WATERBEDS FOUND UNSAFE in the dormitories of Central Michigan U., according to a piece in Life, the thrice-weekly newspaper on campus.

And in banning the beds, Housing Director George Jennings announces that studies show that "waterbeds exceed safety regulations" in that the live load capacity (the weight in addition to the weight of the building on the ground) will not safely hold waterbeds.

Heads of residence have been instructed to remove all waterbeds and not to permit new ones in the dorms.

****

HEADLINE SAYS IT ALL,in the UWisconsin-Milwaukee Post: "Too Many Cars, Too Many Tickets, Too Little Space."

The statistics: one zoologist on campus considers the automobile to be "a sophisticated and fantastic phallic symbol" which "consumer advocates seem to feel that manufacturers give the shaft to drivers while the environmentalists think drivers shaft the ecology."

Total of 6,700 students were given permits to park in 711 parking spaces. Result: 4,064 parking tickets issued since Sept. 7.

****

TREE PLUCKERS have been busy on the campus at Southern Illinois U-Edwardsville, this Fall. The Daily Alestle reports their busy work being the replacement of maples that couldn't survive "compacted soil conditions, lack of water and daily exposure to the bus and auto exhaust emissions."

They have been supplanted by the hardier black oak which "hopefully can weather...(it) until next Arbor Day."

Oak-y doaky!

****

LOOK MA..all cavities at Mankato (Mich) State College are being diagnosed in a dental hygiene clinic manned by students and their instructors who supervise cleaning of teeth for a small fee and render free diagnoses for referral to family dentists.

The two-year-old diagnostic clinic has 11 chairs manned by 15 students enrolled in the two-year dental hygiene program.

According to the MSC Daily Reporter, "The girls have pleased patients with their proficiency and pleasantry."

Which should always be free-even in one's own neighborhood cavity cubicle.

****

WHICH LEADS THE CAROUSEL to the headline of the week, discovered in the Letters columns of the UWis-Milwaukee Post: "Be an athletic supporter."

BEWARE!
André Kole
will make you think!
and that could be painful!
Cage - 8:00 p.m. - Dec. 9
Tickets - $2 at door
$1 in advance
at table in C.C. Concourse
or Call 549-6149

Quicksilver
Tonite!

WTOY Presents
BOB DYLAN
DONT LOOK BACK
A Film By D. A. Pennebaker
Tuesday, November 30 75c
S.U. Ballroom 7:30 and 9:30

MDC Classifieds Pay

SENIORS
Will You Remember the Day You Graduate?
You Might --- If You Help Plan It.
The first meeting of the Senior Committee will be held Tonight at 7 p.m. in Room 905 - 909, C.C.
Future meetings are planned for Dec. 6 and Dec. 9

Rodgers Here Next Week

The noted black dancer-choreographer Rod Rogers will lead his company in a single performance in one of the season's Dance Series events, as well as in two performances for the Celebrity Series, December 7-9 at 8:00 p.m. in Bowker Auditorium, sponsored by the UMass Fine Arts Council in cooperation with the Massachusetts Council on Arts and Humanities. Each evening's performance will feature a different program.

Mr. Rodgers studied in the midwest prior to coming to New York in 1963 to work in several dance companies. With his own company, he has firmly established himself as one of today's most provocative young choreographers. He has also published several outspoken articles on dance.

In 1970 the Rod Rodgers Dance Company received a grant from the New York State Council on the Arts, and in recognition of his gifts as an innovative choreographer, Mr. Rodgers received a John Hay Whitney Fellowship in 1965 and a grant from the National Endowment for the Arts in 1970.

The acclaim for Rodgers has been as widespread as its been unanimous. Phyllis G. Richmond in Dance Magazine said "Rod Rodgers' dancers perform, with an obvious pride, works which are worth going out of your way to see." George Beiswanger in the Atlanta Journal said the company is one "with something to say and a way of saying it that ingratiated and also hit between the eyes. And Marion Sawyer in the New York Chelsea Clinton News said "Rod Rodgers demonstrates that he is a more gifted choreographer than many who are better known."

Reserved tickets for the performances are available at the Fine Arts Council Ticket Office, 125 Herter Hall, Tel 545-0202. Remaining tickets will be available at Bowker Auditorium one hour before the performance.

Rod Rodgers

Lebow Memorial Concert Tonight

Two contemporary musical works are scheduled for the third annual Howard M. Lebow Scholarship Fund concert at the UMass, Amherst, Tuesday, Nov. 30.

Igor Stravinsky's "L'Histoire du Soldat" (1918) and Bela Bartok's "Sonata for Two Pianos and Percussion" (1937) will be presented at 8 p.m. in Bowker Auditorium.

Charles Fussell of the UMass music department will conduct "L'Histoire," which will be staged in accordance with Stravinsky's original conception of the work. Harry Mahnken of the UMass speech department will stage the work, and Candice Morse of the UMass School of Physical Education will do the choreography.

Bartok's "Sonata' will be performed by three UMass music faculty artists: Estela Kersenbaum Olevsky on piano, Fernande Kaeser on piano, and Peter Tanner on percussion. Amy Kidd, Westfield Junior High music teacher, a graduate of the Boston University School of Fine and Applied Arts, will also be a percussionist.

The Howard M. Lebow Scholarship Fund, which proceeds from the concert will benefit, was established by the UMass music department in memory of the late member of their department.

Contributions to the fund will be accepted at the door the night of the concert. Checks should be made out to the 1971 Howard M. Lebow Scholarship Fund Benefit Concert. Contributions by mail should be sent to the Music Department, Machmer Hall, Amherst, Mass. 01002.

Mizaur's Mercantile
announces
A Large Selection of Incense, Candles
Pottery, Etc.
NEXT TO AMHERST TOWER

Children's Theater's Christmas Production

"Christmas Medley," an informal and improvisational children's theatre production on less familiar Christmas legends, will be presented by the UMass Theatre Dec. 2,3, and 4 in Studio Theatre, South College.

Under the direction of Dorothy Aldrich of the UMass faculty, the play will feature a style of theatre up until now rather unique for children's theatre. Nine actors and actresses will improvise the legends and Christmas stories, which include A.A. Milne's "King John's Christmas," "Christmas Chimes", "Voyage of the Wee Red Cap," and "The Wishing Well."

There will be no admission charged, but it is necessary that tickets be picked up in advance since the Studio Theatre has limited seating. Tickets may be obtained at Bartlett box office, 545-2579, from 10 a.m to 4 p.m. Nov. 29 through Dec. 3. There will be no tickets at the door.

Performances will be at 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. Dec. 4 and at 7 p.m. Dec. 2 and 3.

Rocha Film Slated

"Antonio Das Mortes," the fifth film in the series "Films for Intellectuals," will be shown at Amherst College Thursday.

Sponsored by the Amherst College Lecture Committee, the film will be shown at 7:30 p.m. in the Converse Assembly Room, Converse Hall, on the Amherst College campus. The event is open to the public without charge.

Directed by Glauber Rocha, "Antonio Das Mortes" explores the themes of violence and repression, while trying to define a new revolutionary esthetic.

"CANDY"
(1969 - in color)
*Ringo Starr
*Ewa Avlin
*Marlon Brando
*Music by Byrds and Steppenwolf
SAT., DEC. 4
MAHAR AUD.
6:30 — 8:45 — 11:00 p.m.

SAVE ★ ★ SAVE ★ ★ SAVE ★ ★ SAVE ★ ★ SAVE
Redeem Coupons at the
STUDENT UNION HATCH
between 5 p.m. - 9 p.m.
Tues., Nov. 30 - Sat., Dec. 4
One Coupon Per Order
With This Coupon
2 Hamburgers
French Fries
8 oz. Soft Drink
for
Only 75¢
($1.00 value)
from 5 p.m.-9 p.m. Tues.-Sat.
Nov. 30-Dec. 4
at STUDENT UNION HATCH
Ice Cream Sundae
of your choice
10¢ Off
With This Coupon
Tues.-Sat., Nov. 30 - Dec. 4
5 p.m.-9 p.m.
at STUDENT UNION ICE CREAM BAR
SIZZLING STEAK SANDWICH PLATTER only 89¢
DAILY 3 P.M.-10 P.M.

MDC CLASSIFIED

AUTOS FOR SALE

1966 VW, new tires, excellent cond., good radio/heater. Must be seen! Call 253-9465. tf11-30

1964 VW for sale. Call 665-3004. tf11-30

1961 Chevy, s.w. toots, must find good home, good running condition. Needs muffler $225. Call 6-5837 between 6-8 p.m. or call late. tf11-30

'65 Corvair Monza. 4 speed. Am-Fm radio, good condition, No Rot, good tires, $200. Call 253-5344. tf11-30

'63 VW bug, excint. mech. cond., new brakes, starter, end., front end., 4 good tires, snow tire mounted. Call 546-6767 evenings. $ 600. tf11-30

'67 BMW, 1800TI, 4 speed, 4 new radials, am-fm, sw. radio, excellent condition. Call 772-3120 anytime. tf12-1

1970 Dodge Senaca Station Wagon, mechanically perfect, new brakes, $100. Call 549-1149. tf11-30

3/4 ton '53 Ford V-8 flathead Pickup. Starts, runs, selling reluctantly. Fall inspection sticker $150. 665-3001. tf11-30

FOR SALE

Speakers 1 pr. Criterion 25a's, new cond. $40 new, asking $25. Call Doug 546-6379. tf11-30

Guitar Amps, drums, acc. at reasonable prices. The Guitar Workshop, 96 Main St. North. 586-1706. tf11-30

5-speed Columbia guy's bike, very good condition. Also tennis racket and hot plate. Call evenings 549-1224 ask for Arlen. tf12-2

20%-50% Discount Stereo Components, all major brands. Also: 8-track tapes. Baker Stereo. Call Barry or Dave 546-4042 1-5:30. tf12-3

Yg. St. Bernard dogs for sale, AKC reg., temp. shots, parentage good disposition, reasonable. 617-544-3804 or Judy 545-2351. tf12-1

Discount Stereo Components, compacts, T.V.'s 20-40% off list price. Factory sealed and warranty. Jim Jensen 586-1365. tf12-3

X Country Skis, Alpine Skis, 1/2 price. Ski Poles for only $4. You can't get them any cheaper! Call Marybeth at 546-5214 anytime. tf12-1

PERSONAL

Thanks to our Cheerleaders from the 13th and especially to our Coach Reggie. We love you. The Hookers. tf11-30

Remember Stover? He's at BQ bar (no ID) and we've got a dance teacher for a real hodown! No cost. No experience. Call Mike 253-5750. tf12-1

ROOMMATES WANTED

F. rmmt. to share 2 bdrm. apt., frnsho, frpic, grg. 2 flrs. of old hse. Dec. or Jan. Judy 13 Middle St., Hdly.. 586-5784, $130 do/mo. ht incl. tf12-6

Female roommate to share room in lg. farmhouse $50/month plus utilities. Call 549-0336. tf12-3

Female roommate to share one bedroom in Pulfton Village. Call 549-6753. tf12-1

House to share with 1 bedroom, available Dec. 1 and another Jan. 1 $60/month plus share utilities. Prefer woman over 21. 253-7538 after 5:00. tf11-30

Own room in large 2 bedroom apt. in Northampton, $75 mo. utilities included. Avail. Dec. 1. Call 586-3650 after five. tf11-30

We don't discriminate-2F or 2M for 1 room. Rent cheap. Colonial Vil. ph. 256-8401 after supper. tf12-1

ROOM WANTED

2 male students want 2 single rooms for 2nd. semester. Can pay $80, $65. Please call 546-5036, ask for Mike, evenings. tf12-3

MOVIE

"CANDY" STARS EWA AULIN, RINGO, BRANDO, HUNDREDS MORE. MUSIC BY STEPPENWOLF & THE BYRDS. (IN COLOR 1969), "CANDY" SAT., DEC. 4, MAHAR, 6:30-8:45-11:00. tf12-3

SERVICES

Amherst Audio services. Stereo components, tape decks for home or car. 197 No. Pleasant St. 256-8133. tf5-12

Babysitting in my home anytime: weekends, nights. Call Pam at 536-0076. tf12-3

TYPING

Typing--theses, dissertations, etc. Fast, accurate, experienced, Itsve Math and Chem. symbols. Call 253-3801. tf12-21

HELP WANTED

Live-in woman for infant care. Will prov. in return pvt. rm. cooking facil., semi-pvt. bath, living area furn., 2 1/2 mi. from camp. 549-1112. tf12-9

WANTED

Ride to Wisc. X'mass Vac. Call Singh 6-9930. tf12-1

POETRY for Poetry Anthology. Please incl. stamped return envel. for prompt reply. Idlewild Press, 1807 East Olympic Blvd., Los Angeles. tf12-2

FOR RENT

2 bedroom Townhouse, air cond., ww carpet, $200 month, including utilities. Call 665-4128 after 5:30. tf11-30

APT. WANTED

Wanted 2 bedroom apartment in Pulfton Village starting in Jan. or Feb. Call Mark at 256-8723 after 6 p.m. tf12-3

2 girls need place to live next sem., approx. $50 or under each. Call 546-6518. tf12-1

APTS. FOR RENT

MT. SUGARLOAF APTS. AVAIL. JAN. 1, LG. 2 BDRM., UTIL. INCLUDED, AIR-COND. POOL $185. CALL SKIBISKI REALTORS 253-7222 EVE. 253-2826. tf11-30

2 bedroom apt., Squire Village, couples/married? Available Jan. 1, rent $190 includes utilities. Call 665-3218 or 665-2203. tf12-3

LECTURE NOTES

S.E.S Rm. 316, Student Union, has notes for Anthro 104, Bot 101, Econ 125, 126, Geol 101, Micro 140, Phil 105, Psch and Soc 101. tf12-3

FREE

Kittens, 6 weeks, weaned & trained, 4 black, 2 tigers, 549-4079. tf12-3

STUDENTS BOOK MATCHING

Register your book in S.U. Rm. 318. Every student with your course next semester will need your books save $ money, sell direct. tf-sem.

Notices

ANGEL FLIGHT
Meeting 7 p.m. tonight.
CAMPUS SCOUTS
Don't forget our trailblazing expedition Sat. Dec. 4. Rides leaving at 1 p.m. For info call 67504.
COALITION FOR PEACE AND JUSTICE
Where do we stand: What we have and will do. Dorm leafletting and canvassing. Tonight at 8 p.m. in Rm 174 CC.
COLLEGIATE FLYING CLUB
Monthly meeting of the club will meet in Rm 165 CC at 7:30 Wednesday. Discussion of the air meet on Saturday and a film will be shown.
GAMMA SIGMA SIGMA
Meeting in Rm 805-809 CC at 6:30 p.m.
GEOGRAPHICAL ASSOC
Meeting at 7:30 CC rm 903.For discussion of courses & requirements for next semester. All majors & persons interested in georgraphical courses are urged to attend.
HILLEL
Israeli dancing tonight at 7 p.m. in the Hillel rooms. All interested may attend, free instructions.
COMMITTEE ON NUTRITION AND HUMAN NEEDS
Meeting 7 p.m. tonight in 105 CC. Business matters to vote on Christmas fund drive plans to be discussed. New members welcome.
DEPT OF PLANT & SOIL SCIENCE
Course in Organic gardening and farming, Pl Soil 386, 3-credits, next semester (spring 1972). Prof. Barker. Time: Lecture 11:00 Tu Th; (1) 1:25-3:20 Lab-Disc Tu, (2) 1:25-3:20 Lab-Disc Th. No prerequisites. Permission of instructor is desireable.
HEYMAKERS SQUARE DANCE CLUB
The regular square dance will be held tonight in the CCA. Lessons will be from 7:30-9:30 and club level dancing from 9:30-10:30.
NAIADS
Naiads will follow Thursday schedule today. Mixed group and deviations meet at 3:45. Natatorgraphers Run-thru scheduled for Mon., Dec. 13 at 4:45.
PRE LAW
There will be a meeting of the Pre-Law Assoc. on Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in CC 163. Law students in the area will discuss standards for admission and the legal programs at their institutions; also LSAT scores and latest requirements.
REC SOCIETY
Anyone interested in baking or donating baked goods for the Rec Society fund-raising bake sale Thurs. Contact Jay (61084) or signup in Rec. Office. Money will go to a party at Christmas for kids at an orphanage. Please try and help.
RELIGIOUS DISCUSSION
The Holy Spirit--Tonight in the Newman Center Classroom at 7:30.
SPECIAL EDUCATION
We need to know how many students are interested in majoring in special education. If you are interested or would like more information call Sue (66675) or Jean (66560).
STUDENT INTERNATIONAL MEDITATION SOCIETY
Introductory Lectures-Tuesday Nov. 30 at 8 p.m. or Wed at 12 noon in 917 CC.

Parking Office Asks Your Cooperation With Snow Rules

The Parking Office wishes to remind all University students, staff and faculty to cooperate with the snow parking rules and regulations so as to facilitate snow removal operations.

During heavy snowstorms, parking rules and regulations will be temporarily suspended to permit vehicles to park in lots other than those to which they are assigned while snow removal operations are taking place or in cases when parking in a particular lot would cause excessive hazard to the vehicle operator. Vehicle owners will be expected to use good judgement in returning vehicles to their assigned lots within a reasonable and prudent period of time.

The Physical Plant Department has prepared the following priorities for snow removal operations:

Priority I. Clark Hill Road, Infirmary Rd., Stockbridge Rd., access road to Sylvan Dorms, Massachusetts Ave., University Drive, Commonwealth Ave.

Priority II. Road to Fraternity-Sorority Park, road to Chancellor's House, Eastman Lane, Thatcher Way, Fearing St. Ext., Campus Center Way, oil unloading area, North Village Road.

Priority III. Worcester and Franklin Dining Commons parking lots, Mark's Meadow School, Lot #14, Lot #1, front of "F" lot, Lots #10, #11, #12, #13, areas #5, #6, #4, #2, #7.

Priority IV. Lots "N", "M", "F", "H", "V".

Vehicles will be permitted to park roadside on cleared roadways while snow removal operations are taking place in the lots, without being ticketed. Move back into the parking lots within a reasonable and prudent period of time. The Parking Office is requesting the cooperation of all resident vehicle owners in helping with snow removal. The Physical Plant is going to try and alert various dorms when snow removal will take place. Movement of cars will enable snow removal to be handled quickly and effectively.

It is recommended that all members of the campus community insure as safe and convenient a winter as possible by winterizing their vehicles. Mount snow tires as soon as possible. Any abandoned vehicles presently standing on University parking lots should be removed by the owner well in advance of December 1, 1971, or prior to the first major snowstorm.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

☆ By SYDNEY OMARR ☆

Gemini individuals gesticulate, use their hands more so than the average person. These natives are active, display intellectual curiosity and often become involved with those born under Leo. Teachers, reporters and photographers appear to be predominant occupations of the Gemini born.

*****

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Spotlight on what you earn, pay and collect. You draw persons to you now who can aid in near future. But don't press, push, force or cajole. A receptive attitude will gain you what is required.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): This could be the start of something big. Means you make contacts, receive offers, test ideas. And you attract favorable attention. Those who may have opposed you now put out welcome mat.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Some may attempt to apply heavy handed methods. In most cases, this is a coverup for actual knowledge, ability. Realize those in positions of authority ultimately intend to back you. Be confident.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Be receptive to gesture of goodwill. You can spread influence for good. One who attempts to restrict you will relent. Aries individual can help you obtain what might be missing.

LEO (July. 23-Aug. 22): Spotlight on career, added prestige and standing in community. Stress independence, originality and innate creative force. Taurus person may appear as formidable opposition. It will be mostly bluff.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Good chance now to impress with writing, special causes. Idealism floats high. Get solid base. One at a distance can be valuable ally. You teach and learn. You gain now by sharing assets.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Study investment potential. Your collateral may be worth more than you imagine. Check with one who seems happy go lucky. There is more to situation than surface appearances would indicate.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Accent on how you relate to public opinion. Plug loopholes. Be positive about legal maneuvers. Mate or partner takes initiative. Don't fight progress. Status quo is due to become a memory.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Work methods subject to change. Obtain hint from Scorpio message. Streamline procedures. Do what comes naturally but cut expenses. Diet, health, medical appointments also figure prominently.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Like many, you, too, will be caught in whirl of change, travel, variety. Lunar aspect encourages creative endeavors. Imprint your own style. Highlight individuality. Young person aids.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Build toward security. Household products demand attention. Staples should not be neglected. Don't take details for granted. Close observation now is a necessity. Avoid wishful thinking.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): You gain by doing what gives you pleasure. Be versatile, but don't spread efforts too thin. Relative who does much talking may not really be serious. Know this and respond accordingly.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you have sense of humor, you have made significant changes and now you are gnawed at by self doubt. Realize that what you have planted will blossom. A Piscean will be in picture. You are due for added recognition. Know this and stick to course. Goal is closer than you think.

Copyright 1971, Gen. Fea. Corp.

Crossword Puzzle

ACROSS
1 Rip
5 Prepare for print
9 Tear
12 In addition
13 Girl's name
14 Fruit drink
15 Prefix: down
16 Cook in hot water
18 Idle chatter
20 Parent (colloq.)
22 Stupefy
24 Diplomacy
27 Danish island
29 Shield
31 Rocky hill
32 Breaks suddenly
34 Epic poetry
36 Greek letter
37 Thoroughfare
39 Declines
41 Cooled lava
42 Metal fastener
44 Apportioned
45 Anger
47 Jump
49 Expires
50 Old musical instrument
52 Let it stand
54 A state (abbr.)
55 Rodent
57 Caudal appendage
59 Teutonic deity
61 Time gone by
63 Declare
65 Skin ailment
67 Pronoun
68 Planet
69 Fondles

DOWN
1 Youngster
2 Fundamental
3 Conjunction
4 Take unlawfully
5 Choice part
6 Downpour
7 Preposition
8 Label
9 Clerical collar
10 Cyprinoid fish
11 Hebrew letter
17 Bone
19 Near
21 Sandarac tree
23 Pinches
25 Complete set
26 Relies on 27 Attack
28 Unlock
30 Traded for money
33 Fur-bearing mammal
35 Petitioned
38 Cravats
40 Principal
43 Second of two
46 Mistake
48 Fruit (pl.)
51 Babylonian deity
53 Note of scale
56 Scottish cap
58 Once around track
60 Things, in law
61 Exclamation
62 Earth goddess
64 A state (abbr.)
66 Symbol for cerium

Answer to Yesterday's Puzzle

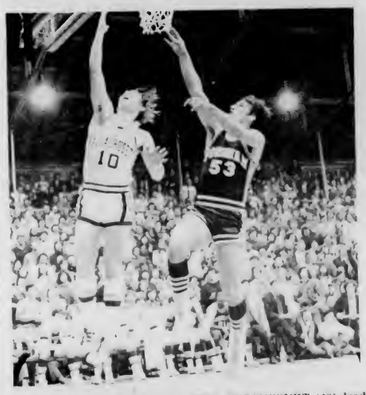
R	A	M		S	P	I	T		T	A	P
A	L	A		H	A	T	E		O	L	I	O
T	E	R	R	O	R		N	I	P	P	L	E
		R	A	I		W	O	N		D	E	L
S	T	E	W		A	R		B	I	D	S
A	I	D		E	E	L		R	I	O	N
M	E		A	G	E	L	E	S	S		C	A
		E	R	G		E	L	M		T	O	M
S	H	A	M		A		P	R	O	A
L	E	T		A	D	S		P	E	A
A	A	R	I	D		P	E	R	I	L	S
T	R	E	E		E	I	R	E		T	A	N
D	A	D		R	O	O	K		S	T	Y

30

Distr. by United Feature Syndicate, Inc. 30

Today Is Thursday

NOW..YOUR CHOICE OF 5
Showcase
Rt. 5-W. Spfld.
Cinema 1-2-3-4-5
733-5131
MORE NEW SHOWS!
MORE NEW LOUNGER SEATS!
MORE NEW PARKING!!
MATINEES DAILY... POPULAR PRICES
Adults $1.50 Mon thru Fri Matts
1 Gone With The Wind G
2 French Connection R
3 Sunday Bloody Sunday R
4 Joe Hill GP
5 Together X
ACRES FREE PARKING
ROCKER LOUNGERS
CHARGE YOUR TICKETS



Tomorrow Night:

CAPTAIN MIKE PAGLIARA (11) leads the Redmen into basketball action at the Cage vs. St. Anselm's.

GOALIE P.J. FLAHERTY leads the Redmen into hockey action at Orr Rink vs. Salem State.

ALL-CONFERENCE GUARD JOHN BETANCOURT (10) leads the new hoopsters' fast-break offense.

AND THE PUCKSTERS try to lead off with another barrage on the Salem State goalie.

Baseball Brass Goes Wild McDowell Headed For Giants

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. (AP)-Baseball's winter meetings opened with a bang Monday, highlighted by two major trades and the annual player draft as the major league general managers did their Christmas shopping early.

Cincinnati and Houston swung the day's biggest deal, an eight-man swap that sent home run slugger Lee May to the Astros and brought second baseman Joe Morgan to the Reds.

Before that, the pitching-hungry Oakland A's picked up left-hander Ken Holtzman from the Chicago Cubs in exchange for outfielder Rick Monday.

Earlier the major league teams drafted 13 players at a cost of $25,000 each, but the trading action easily overshadowed the draft.

The Reds, looking for speed, surrendered May, second baseman Tommy Helms and utilityman Jimmy Steward, to Houston in exchange for Morgan, outfielder Cesar Geronimo, pitcher Jack Billingham, infielder Denis Menke and minor league outfielder Ed Armbrister.

The key man for the Astros had to be May, whose 39 home runs was the third best total in baseball last season. The big slugger batted .278 in 1971 and has hit 147 homers in five full seasons for the Reds. He was a heralded cog in the Big Red Machine that drove Cincinnati to the National League pennant in 1970 but the Reds seemed unconcerned about surrendering him.

"Sure, we're giving up power," said Sparky Anderson, Manager of the Reds, "but I think that this trade gives us a chance to play more actual baseball. There's a lot more to baseball than hitting homeruns. Morgan is the key man. I look for him to steal 50 bases."

Morgan stole 40 bases for the Astros last season and has swiped 195 in his career. He will take over at second base for the departed Helms and Menke will likely play at third base, with Tony Perez switching to first for the Reds next year.

It was an interest in speed that sent the Cubs after Monday.

"He can fly," said Leo Durocher, Manager of the Cubs. "The game has changed. With that AstroTurf, if you can't run, you're in trouble."

Dick Williams, manager of the A's, said the deal was under discussion for some time and that it was beneficial for both clubs.

"We hated to give up Monday, but we had to have pitching help," said Williams. Chuck Dobson, one A's starter, underwent elbow surgery earlier this month. Williams said the condition of Dobson and John "Blue Moon" Odom, who also had arm problems last year, precipited the trade.

Starr Returns To Action

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP)-Bart Starr, the man Vince Lombardi made a great quarterback, returned to action Sunday after a nearly year-long layoff, but much of his magic was missing.

His right arm, laid open twice this year by surgical scalpels, showed some of the brilliance that helped make the Green Bay Packers of the 1960s one of the most devastating teams ever on a gridiron.

But neither Starr or the rest of the Packers showed the smooth precision that made them champions as they lost to New Orleans 29-21.

"You can't blame Starr," Coach Dan Devine said of the 16-year veteran who underwent surgery in July to correct a painful tendon problem in his right arm and then again when an artery severed in the original repair job was found to be leaking.

"I thought he played quite well," said Devine. "But we didn't have a good field position, we had to punt into the wind and we always seemed to be second and 25."

"That came from penalties that hurt more than the yards measured off and six turnovers-mistakes that weren't there when the Packers won three consecutive world championships under the late Lombardi.

Starr, a bench-rider until Lombardi made him a starter in 1959, completed eight of 17 passes Sunday, including his first two, which netted 41 yards in an early touchdown drive. In that drive they looked like winning Packer teams, not the current 3-7-1 version.

But Starr fumbled later and a pass was intercepted The Saints turned those miscues into 10 points.

"I don't think Starr was intercepted as a result of not having enough on the ball," Devine said.

"I felt much too much had been made out of me playing again," Starr said. "I didn't do the job I would have liked to have done. That's about all I've got to say."

Mitchell Has A Goal

WASHINGTON (AP)-Bobby Mitchell has a simple goal-he wants to be a head coach in the National Football League.

Lack of experience and his color stand in his way, he says. He is a black man.

To prepare for the jobs, the former player owns an insurance agency, consults for a soft drink company and is an assistant coach with the Washington Redskins.

"I'm in professional football now for one reason and one reason only" Mitchell said in an interview published in the December issue of Manpower magazine. "I would like to run a football team one day."

Manpower is the official publication of the Manpower Administration, U.S. Department of Labor.

"This is my third year in management in professional sports and I'm in no hurry," he said. "Management has to learn that I'm capable, and that I can help them, and they have to make up their minds whether they want a black man as head coach, which of course is the seat of the problem.

Following an 11 year NFL career, Mitchell retired in 1969. He played four years with the Cleveland Browns before being traded to the Washington Redskins.

Quicksilver Tonite!

MDC Classifieds Get Results
75¢ First Day - 50¢ Each Consecutive Day Afterwards
Massachusetts Daily Collegian
CLASSIFIED INSERTION ORDER
Client _____
Taken By _____
DATES TO RUN _____
Ran _____ Payment Received _____
Headline _____
ADVERTISING COPY

Brooks Earns Football Mandate

By EARLE BARROLL

Clarence Brooks is the new captain elect for next year's UMass football team succeeding this year's co-captains John Hulecki and Dennis Keating...the vote was an overwhelming mandate for the junior from New Bedford.

What does it mean to Brooks to be such a clear cut choice? "It's quite an honor to be held in such high respect by such a great bunch of guys," he said last night in his initial response.

"This is probably the high spot in my football career and I hope to live up to it..I just want to go out a winner."

Head coach Dick MacPherson was very happy for Clarence. "We preach so often the respect for your teammates," he philosophized, "and I think the greatest compliment a player can have is not only to have this respect from the others, but for them to also recognize him as their leader."

Will it be any different being captain next year? "There won't be that much change in what I'll be doing next season," he said, "all I want to do is provide enough leadership to be a winner."

His coach sees him as a captain in two respects. "They talk about some captains who lead by doing and they talk about captains who lead by talking it up...and the nicest thing about Clarence is that he does both."

MacPherson continued, "He proves that football is not a game that requires effort above and beyond college education...he is active in the CCEBS program and is also a counselor in his dorm.

"This is what we mean when we say we try to put football in its proper perspective on campus. Clarence epitomizes what we're after in a student and from his example we'll be accepted by the student body...he's one of them."

Brooks cited the CCEBS program as the reason he is here getting a college education. "CCEBS gave me the opportunity to come here and the most I can do for the program is get my degree."

On the field Clarence exemplifies the hard work that leadership is molded around. This season he was forced into the tackle spot when Bob Donlin was sidelined after the second game of the season by a knee injury.

Normally a guard and "a real good one" according to his coach Brooks said of the switch, "It wasn't too difficult as I had played the position before, but what really was tough on me was that it came all of a sudden after Bob Donlin got injured.

CLARENCE BROOKS

"I had worked hard all summer at the guard position and it certainly will be a pleasure to get back to my old position next year."

What type of ballplayer does his coach see him as? "He's what we're after in a ballplayer," MacPherson quickly responded, "Somehow, somewhere he'll get the job done...he's where he's supposed to be when he should be."

And to highlight all that has been said about Clarence throughout the season and in the past week, MacPherson hit it right on the head when he summed his captain up:

"He's the kind of guy that will be a success in the future for he has learned to take care of himself and budget his time wisely in his busy schedule."

UMass Places Eight On All-Conference Team

By DAN KAMAL

For seven seniors, it was a good way to top off a collegiate career. For one junior it was a good note on which to start next season.

The "it" was being picked to the All Yankee Conference first team. It might better be called the All UMass team.

Head coach Dick MacPherson was not surprised that his players make up such a large portion of the mythical team. "We've said all along that we had some pretty good football players; our problem was quantity, not quality."

The eight players picked were Bill DeFlavio, Dennis Collins, Joe Sabulis, John Hulecki, Dave Levine, Jack O'Neil, and Paul Metallo. Metallo is the only junior in the group.

MacPherson, a bit remorse at the thought of losing seven of these players, commented on each of them.

"I'm positive that DeFlavio (defensive lineman) was a unanimous choice. If the coaches in the Yankee Conference were to pick a best-defensive player, he'd be it."

On Collins (linebacker): "Being picked to the All Yankee Conference team was one of Dennis' objectives. With his size and weight he had to do things exactly right. He applied intelligence to his play and was a pleasure to watch."

"Any coach would be pleased to have Joe Sabulis (linebacker). He did what we told him to do. He was always in the right place."

MacPherson was "displeased that we didn't get the ball to Hulecki (tight end) more. For a while Piel (Pennington) was a little reluctant to throw over the middle because of problems with interceptions. John was our best offensive blocker."

Dave Levine, a third year starter at offensive center, was tabbed by his coach as "an experienced ballplayer--and it showed. He made the line calls and adjustments."

Jack O'Neil should be attractive to the pros because of his dual talents as a punter and defensive back, according to MacPherson. "He punted us out of a loss at Connecticut and helped beat Holy Cross with his interceptions. In fact, our best defensive against the run was O'Neil's interceptions.

"He really came into his own this season. He went from back-up center to All Conference guard." MacPherson was talking about Ron Marino. He led Metallo on the sweeps and got us the outside game."

On Paul Metallo: "After four games he had 10 carries for one yard. Then he got well and showed what a well Paul Metallo can do."

AND AWAY WE GO-All-Conference picks Dennis Collins (43), Jack O'Neil (45, with the ball) and Bill DeFlavio (76) show why they were defensive selections with this bit of open field mayhem against Holy Cross. (MDC photo by Barbara Brecher)

BONE JARRING ISN'T IT?-Just ask this Rhode Island ead who is in the process of being decapitated by All-Conference selections Joe Sabulis (52) and Jack O'Neil (45). (MDC Photo by Gib Fullerton)

It Was Like A Gang Fight

NEW YORK (AP)- "I feel like I've been in a gang fight," Joe Namath said, rubbing a swollen right jaw.

"My right arm is so sore, I think it may fall off any minute. Two toes on my left foot are black and blue. I got some pretty good bumps."

But those fabled fragile legs held together by surgeon's stitches and adhesive tape-they're standing up like stanchions of steel.

The New York Jets' crippled quarterback surfaced Monday to find himself a resurrected national hero- roundly acclaimed for his feat in coming off the bench Sunday after 19 games of idleness and missing-by the margin of a fingertip-an upset victory over the San Francisco 49ers.

The 49ers won 24-21 but not before they had been chilled to the marrow by one of Broadway Joe's guttiest and most dramatic performances.

"Naw, I don't consider it a moral victory," Namath reacted to an observation. "The only kind of victory I know is winning. We could have won, but we didn't."

Namath, tossed into Sunday's game at Shea Stadium when starting quarterback Bob Davis went out with injuries, completed 11 of 27 passes for 258 yards and three touchdowns. An interception by Johnny Fuller on the last play of the game thwarted what could have been the winning touchdown.

Namath appeared in the NBC studios in mid-Manhattan shortly after noon Monday to tape the first of a series of talk shows he will host this winter.

He changed from leather jacket and jeans into a snappy ensemble of gray flared slacks, blue jacket, white and gray striped shirt, got a face makeup and greeted his guests-bearded Richard Harris, the actor, and Paula Sperber, blonde and pretty U.S. ladies' bowling champion from Miami, in purple hot pants.

WMUA

Tomorrow night at 7:55 Ken Best and Marty Kelley open the basketball season coverage for WMUA at Curry Hicks Cage when the Redmen host St. Anselm's in the season opener.

Dolphins Swamp Bears, 34-3

MIAMI (AP)-Bob Griese, the leading touchdown tosser in the National Football League, passed for two scores and directed an awesome Miami offense that brought the Dolphins an easy 34-3 victory over the Chicago Bears Monday night for their eighth consecutive triumph.

The humiliating defeat of the Bears lifted the Dolphins' record to 9-1-1-best in the NFL-and increased their lead to 1 1/2 games over the defending Super Bowl champion Baltimore Colts in the battle for the American Conference East title.

It also all but destroyed whatever chance the Bears had of qualifying for a spot in the post-season playoffs, leaving the Chicagoans with a 6-5 record in the National Conference Central.

Billed as a struggle between division powers in which the Chicago defense would test the Miami offense, the game quickly became a rout as Griese directed the Dolphins to score the first four times they had the ball.

At the same time, the Miami defense allowed the Bears to penetrate only as deep as the Dolphin 45-and once the Chicagoans had managed to move that far, they were immediately thrown back to their own territory on the next play.

Griese wound up with 12 completions in 17 attempts for 214 yards and touchdown passes of six yards to Marv Fleming and 10 yards to Larry Csonka before he was relieved early in the fourth quarter. That brought Griese's touchdown total to 19.

But there were other Dolphin heroes:

—Csonka, the burly running back who gained 104 yards in 16 carries and brought his AFC leading total to 878 yards while scoring on the pass from Griese and on a two-yard run.

—Garo Yepremian, the little field goal kicker who booted three pointers from 43 and 35 yards out while raising his NFL-leading point total to 98.

G 90 PE 100

THE PHYSICAL EDUCATION DEPARTMENT announces that ice hockey G90 PE 100 will be offered January 27 thru March 24, 1972 for 1 credit. The course will be on Tuesday and Thursday, 8 to 9:55 at Orr Rick for men only. Students must supply their own equipment and must have university health insurance. Former experience in the sport is required. For further information see Russell Kidd, assistant hockey coach, in Boyden. Lab Fee is $20.

Intramurals

BASKETBALL

COURT	TIME	TEAMS
1	6:15	TC vs. KS
2		SAM vs. ZN
3		SPE vs. DC
4		PLP vs. APO
5		SAE vs. LCA
6		BKP vs. PSK
1	7:15	English vs. Civ. Eng.
2		Gunners vs. Zeroes
3		Education vs. #Eg. Plan
4		Math. vs. Burners
5		Government vs. Analysis
6		Ind. Eng. vs. Zeroes Too
1	8:15	Ironmen vs. Lions
2		Seagrams vs. Academics
4		Bears vs. Barracudas
5		Trouts vs. Buttaloes
6		Lemons vs. Broncos
1	9:15	"F" Troop vs. Roaches
2		Atoms vs. Apples
3		Shall vs. Bucceves
4		Bulldogs vs. Second
5		Crams vs. Joeys
6		Buzzards vs. Grunters
1	10:15	Heads vs. Comanchees
2		Madcaps vs. Mags
3		Crums vs. Oaks

New England's Largest College Daily

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

Weather: It might be a good idea if we all go home and go to bed.

VOLUME XCIX, ISSUE 57 UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 1, 1971

A downcast Dean Albertson expressed his feeling last night in a Maroon Key Lecture that America is on a "Death Trip". Albertson primarily discussed "Ecology and the Machine", focusing mainly on the American way of life and how its inherent consumerism is leading on a course of oblivion. (Photo by Gary Alpaugh)

Albertson - We're On A Death Trip

By STEVE TRIPOLI

Professor Dean Albertson last night said that America "is on a death trip". He described the circumstances of our doom in part of the 11th Hour Lecture Series sponsored by the Maroon Keys honor society.

The lecture, entitled "Ecology and the Machine" focused on the American way of life and how its inherent consumerism and lack of concern for the environment were taking the world on a collision course with death.

Speaking on the beginnings of the American debacle, Albertson explained how from the very start Americans destroyed everything in their path. "First came the fur traders exploiting the animals, then came the farmers exploiting the land...and then came the businessmen exploiting the people and the preachers exploiting the people's guilt."

He went on to state that the conservation of natural resources is based on two ideas in America. First is the idea of recreation to fulfill the people's "adoration of the rugged life" of cowboys and fur traders. Second was the "curious kind of hoarding operation" with the object of reserving resources for new exploiters. Albertson stressed that both of these were "without any rational notion of ecology at all."

Albertson then described the five kinds of conservationists bred in the American environment. First was the "Hunting and Fishing" conservationist who was interested in ecology so that he would have a steady supply of animals to "kill kill, kill". These are "the guys with the snowmobiles" who have wrecked the ground and awaken hibernating animals. Albertson characterized them as "totally ignorant of ecology."

The second kind is the "Bird Watchers". These are "nice, well motivated people" who in reality are self concerned and "out for their own aesthetic joys".

The third kind Albertson cynically described as the "Save Mt. Shnook" group. He called these people "elitists" who knew nothing of eco-systems and were "oblivious to their own harm".

The fourth group is the "Mr. Clean" group, made up of middle class Americans who look at their suburban homes and say "isn't this clean". Then they look at the ghetto and say "let's clean up the mess". Albertson accused this group of evading the ecology issue.

The last of Albertson's groups is the "let's get in there and do something" group. He called them "faddists" who felt that everything could be solved with effort, organization, collection of dues, media campaigns, and the like.

Albertson summarized the American conservationist by saying "You will fail-your children are dead." He said that if America persisted in her attitudes she would die. The reasons he gave for this were many. First was religion, which places man among the top orders of life, and gives him the feeling that he is in charge of the environment. He said that man's vanity prevents him from understanding that he's only one species, and a species that is not depended on by any other, while he depends on many others.

He also cited our use of pesticides, putting it this way: "DDT kills bugs. It also kills some harmless bugs. Birds eat bugs. Fish eat bugs. Men eat fish."

The next reason that Albertson gave for the approaching end was our consumerist policies. Stating that "You will die because of the capitalism in your heads," he went on to say that our ideas are death oriented, citing the fact that America, with 6% of the world's population, consumes 60% of her goods "But the slogan is still 'Buy American'...the flag flies over the coffin." He also quoted Attorney General Robert Quinn who recently stated that "Ecology and capitalism are on a collision course."

He closed saying that the oceans were also dying, quoting Swiss oceanologist Jacques Picard who recently stated that at current pollution rates the Baltic and Meditterranean seas will die within 5 years, and that the Atlantic Ocean will not be far behind. He also stated that a scientist friend of his told him that he and his colleagues felt that they could clean up the environment, but that the major prerequisite to this was making the average person recognize the situation: "We have to change people's heads first."

On The Inside

Page 4 Indian Ultimatum
Page 6 Rehnquist
Page 14 Culternatives

Jenness To Give Lecture

Linda Jenness, Socialist Workers Party candidate for president, will speak in Mahar auditorium at UMass next Tuesday at 8:00 P.M. She will hold a press conference beforehand in the Colonial Lounge of the UMass Student Union at 6:30 P.M.

Linda Jenness is one of the most well-known and respected women leaders in the radical movement. As the Socialist Workers Party candidate for mayor of Atlanta, and the party's candidate for governor of Georgia the following year, she pioneered in bringing socialist politics to the South. "History is on the side of Mrs. Jenness," commented the Atlanta Journal, referring to her campaign.

The SWP '72 campaign, the biggest socialist election campaign since Eugene V. Debs ran in 1920, has been reported in over 50 newspapers including the New York Times, Chicago Tribune, Chicago Sun-Times, L.A. Times, St. Louis Post-Dispatch, Washington Post, National Observer, and the Boston Globe. Her candidacy was reported by Walter Cronkite on nationally televised CBS Evening News, and Mrs. Jenness has personally appeared on numerous T.V. and radio programs. Steve Bennett, in charge of campaign press relations, estimated that from newspaper coverage alone, more than 10 million people have already learned about the campaign.

"Our campaign is the campaign that will change American politics," declared Mrs. Jenness.

Linda Jenness was born on Jan. 11, 1941, in El Reno, Okla., but she has been a legal resident of Georgia for most of her life. After graduating from high school, she attended Antioch College, where she majored in military affairs. While in school, she studied in Mexico and France.

In Sept. 1968, she represented the YSA in Lares, Puerto Rico at the fortieth anniversary celebration of the Puerto Rican independence movement. In January 1969, she spent five weeks in Cuba as part of a YSA delegation invited by the Cuban government to participate in activities marking the tenth anniversary of the Cuban revolution.

Linda Jenness was the Socialist Workers Party candidate for Mayor of Atlanta in 1969 and for governor in 1970.

While a candidate in Georgia, she was a leader of the Atlanta Mobilization Committee and was active in Emory University Women's Liberation. She is coauthor of several pamphlets on Women's liberation: Women and the Cuban Revolution, Abortion: A Woman's Right, and Kate Millett's Sexual Politics: A Marxist Appreciation. This spring she toured the country speaking on women's liberation. Mrs. Jenness has also spoke as a representative of the SWP at the April 24, 1971 antiwar demonstration in San Francisco.

The Town

New Sewage Plant In Works

Amherst wants to build its new sewage treatment facility on a piece of land in Hadley which is owned by UMass, and they will probably have to go through the State Legislature to get it. And so, as Town Manager Allen Torrey told the Amherst Board of Selectmen today, state representative John Olver will probably introduce a bill in the state legislature which will allow the UMass Board of Trustees to approve the transfer of a parcel of land on the west side of campus.

The Board also endorsed the opinion of the Zoning Board that a proposed subdivision on Long Meadow Mountain should not be permitted and gave general approval to the "principle and scope" of the proposed long-range capital budget. (For more details on the capital budget, see story on page 12.)

The UMass Trustees do not have the power to authorize the transfer of a piece of land as big as Amherst will need for its new sewage plant without the permission of the state legislature. However, the Trustees do have to approve the transfer. Torrey said that there are several steps yet to be taken before Amherst can begin construction of the facility: permission must be obtained from sanitation authorities, from the town of Hadley, and from UMass.

Long Meadow Mountain is part of a proposed National Park in the area. The selectmen endorsed the Zoning Board's decision against the proposed subdivision on the mountain, because they wanted to prevent "encroachment on future National Park areas." They wanted to extend the decision to include a general ban of construction on the mountain. The matter of the proposed subdivision will also be on the agenda of the Planning Board meeting, which is scheduled for tonight.

Allen Torrey is to discuss the proposed capital budget with the Finance Committee this week. He said that there are some parts of the proposed long range budget which he doesn't think are too good. Some of the selectmen said that they had points of difference with the budget too, but they voted unanimously to go on record as supporting the general principles and scope of it.

Also endorsed in principle by the selectmen was a preliminary proposal regarding HURDLE (Hampshire United Research into Drugs in the Learning Environment).

The preliminary TOPICS report, dealing with traffic problems and solutions, met with some disapproval. Selectman Nancy Eddy reported that the Traffic Circulation Committee met on Monday night and didn't think that the TOPICS report considered the Triangle Street area in a wide enough scope. Allen Torrey thought that the report wasn't detailed enough. He also said that he thought since the report was a preliminary one, it was intended only as a sketchy report and didn't need the Board's approval. There wasn't any mention of further communication in the report, however, and the selectmen voted to get in touch with TOPICS concerning this.

The selectmen also:

—Heard a report that the new recycling center on Belchertown Road is nearly completed;

—Granted "approval of character of incorporation" of three people forming a "New England Center for Personal and Organizational Development;"

—Received the annual budget, the first in 2-1/2 years;

—Decided to grant all requests by local clubs, taverns, etc. to stay open extra hours (until two in the morning) on New Year's Day, but will still require them to submit requests;

—Selected to send a letter to the Belchertown government re-affirming their concern over an apartment development there and its effect on Amherst;

—Put on the agenda for next Tuesday's meeting the

(Continued on Page 3)

Activist To Discuss Plans

Sid Finehirsh, Southern Coordinator of the Student Mobilization Committee will speak tonight in the Campus Center at 8 p.m. in rooms 168-70.

Finehirsh's topic of speech, "The Antiwar Movement November 7, 1971: An Evaluation," will concern the present state of the national antiwar movement and its future plans. He will also discuss the National Peace Action Coalition Convention to be held in Cleveland this weekend, December 3-5. At this conference decisions will be formed about the plans for spring peace action in 1972.

Finehirsh has been working in the Atlanta area where the antiwar movement has expanded throughout southern cities in areas previously uninvolved in the movement. Tampa and Atlanta were two of seventeen cities in the U.S. which held major antiwar demonstrations on November 6th of this year. The support which has arisen from these cities covered a wide range of participants: veterans, GI's, women, organized labor, and antiwar coalitions. Speakers in Atlanta November 6 included Sid Finehirsh, representing the SMC, Yolanda King, and members of the National Welfare Rights Organization, Georgia Women's Abortion Coalition, and the Atlanta Labor Council.

Amherst Bans All-Night Cars

The annual winter season ban on all-night parking will become effective on December 1, 1971. Under this regulation cars parked on any Amherst street after 2:00 A.M. are liable to towing at the owner's expense.

This ban on overnight parking will be in effect for the entire period December 1, through March 31, 1972 regardless of snow and ice conditions.

In addition to the ban on all-night parking, vehicles may be towed away at any time, day or night, if they impede or interfere with the plowing and removal of ice or snow, or if illegally parked.

In order to provide off-street overnight parking areas during the no-parking ban, the town will allow cars to park overnight on three public parking areas: the Amity Street parking area, the Lincoln Lot off Main Street, and the Pray Street parking lot. Vehicles may park overnight only on these three lots without charge.

Because vehicles are to be allowed to park on these lots overnight, it will not be possible to plow and remove snow from these areas as quickly as from other public parking areas.

Women's Center Sponsors Political Caucus Lecture

By Marilynn Martin

"The Future and Significance of the Massachusetts Women's Political Caucus" will be the topic of a speech by Dr. Rose Oliver, chairman of the Psychology Dept., at 8 p.m. Wednesday at Farley Lodge.

The lecture, open to all women in the community, is one in a series sponsored by the Valley Women's Center (VWC) and project SELF.

Project SELF is a fairly new idea on campus coordinated by Lois Phillips and Joan Engle and co-sponsored by the Department of Continuing Education.

The project, initiated by an action group of the Valley Women's Center, is an effort to explore the theory of continuing education for women, part-time. VWC's ideas are particularly for women returning to school after being away for quite a while.

As a result, project SELF was instituted as an aid in fostering women's self-confidence and to help them with any problems they may have, according to Mrs. Phillips.

In another attempt to help, a Bachelor of General Education degree is being created on this campus to benefit these part-time students.

The project now consists of occasional non-credit workshops and open lectures, but it hopes to evolve into a special program with accredited courses for the benefit of women who wish to go to school and continue their careers.

The aim of project SELF, now, is to get involved people to teach courses and become involved with various workshops.

Bomb Checked at UM

Three bomb threats were reported at the John Quincy Adams dorm at the UMass campus early yesterday with the first coming at 1:12 a.m. and the other two at 3:38 a.m.

The Amherst Fire Department was notified that the alarm system had been reset after the final two calls and did not respond, but were alerted.

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

Office of the DAILY COLLEGIAN are on the second floor of the Student Union on the University campus, zip code 01002. Phones are 545-2550 (news), 545-0344 (sports), and 549-1311 (editor).

Second class postage paid at Amherst, the DAILY COLLEGIAN publishes five times weekly Monday through Friday during the academic year except during vacation and exam periods; three or four times a week following a vacation or exam period or when a holiday falls within a week. Accepted for mailing under the authority of the act of March 8, 1879 as amended by the act of June 11, 1943. Subscription rates are $6.00 per semester, $10.00 per year.

ROOM TO MOVE
Campus Drug
Drop-In Center
CALL 5-0400
24 HOURS A DAY
7 DAYS A WEEK

Robin
Morgan
will speak
December 14
8 p.m. S.U.B.

Program Council Presents
Jonathan Edwards
with Bill Workman
in concert
Tues., Dec. 7
7:30 & 10:00
Advance Sale tickets at RSO Office
$1.25

Campus Security Budget Reorganized

Mr. Gerald O'Neil, an Assistant Director of Security, makes a point concerning proposed Security reorganization at last night's Rents and Fees Committee meeting. (MDC photo by Gary Alpaugh)

By DON BISHOP

Category changes in this year's budgeting for University Security allowing for a reorganization of security were discussed by Administration and Security representatives before last night's weekly meeting of the Student Senate Rent's and Fees Committee.

Present at the meeting were Acting Vice-Chancellor Robert Gage, Acting Director of Security Douglas Forsyth, Assistant Director of Security Gerald O'Neil and Whitmore Staff Assistant Charles Hampton. To explain the rationale for the category changes and how a surplus in Security monies has allowed for the category changes in the first place, these individuals brought a written statement which follows below.

"For fiscal year 1972 (the current school year), $134,029 was budgeted in the Residence Hall accounts for internal security. Of this total, $37,119 was to come from the Residence Halls Trust Fund and the remaining $97,910 from the UMass Building Authority Dormitory Projects.

"$40,321 of $134,029 was budgeted for six Residence Hall assistants. These positions are carried over from the previous fiscal year. Campus security, therefore, requested only $93,708 in new funding for fiscal '72.

"At the time of the initial request for $93,708, it was contemplated that this money would be used to fund fourteen new Residence Hall assistants.

"Since the initial request there have been significant changes in campus security thinking on internal dormitory security. First, sixteen security guards were transferred from walking beats into the dormitories to provide internal security. Second, a student security program was instituted to provide additional dormitory security.

"In both cases, the source of funding for these changes is State money. In the first case, the cost is $103,670, and in the second $100,000. This means in fiscal '72, $243,991 is being spent by campus security to provide internal dormitory security.

Residence Hall Assistants (six)	$ 40,321
Security Guards (sixteen)	103,670
Student Security Program	100,000
TOTAL	$243,991

"The dormitories were originally asked to fund $134,029 for internal security in fiscal '72. Now that $243,991 will be spent for internal security in fiscal '72, the dormitories are $109,962 better off.

"Under the present internal security program, the dormitories are funding only $40,321 of the total $243,991, since the security guards ($103,670) and the student security program ($100,000) are State funded.

"Campus security now plans to use the $93,708 of the budgeted $134,029 in the dormitory accounts to fund positions in their planned reorganization of the Security Department. Without this money reorganization is impossible.

"The logic behind the use of this money is as follows: In essence, there exists a trade off between State monies of $100,000 and $93,708 of the dormitory monies. Instead of using the $93,708 in dormitory monies to provide internal security, $100,000 in State monies is being used. The $100,000 does the same job as the $93,708. This $100,000 could have been used elsewhere on campus rather than in the dormitories. Since it is being used in the dormitories, it is fair for the $93,708 to be used elsewhere."

After representatives went over the above material, questions were raised by members of the Rents and Fees Committee.

In response to a question asking why the $100,000 in state funds couldn't be used for the Security reorganization (as opposed to the dormitory funds) Mr. Hampton stated that they could be. But he went on to say that if this were done, in all probability the State Legislature would allocate fewer funds next year in the category granted the $100,000 for this year, namely the Student Security Program. If that were the case then far fewer students than are currently working in the program could be hired for next year.

Another point of concern for various Committee members was with what will happen regarding Security funds in future years. Will the state continue to grant the $100,000 in the Student Security Program and what will happen to student jobs if they don't?

Gage, Forsyth, and Hampton all felt that the monies for student security jobs would continue to be granted, although naturally they couldn't guarantee it. Acting Security Director Forsyth stated that under the reorganized Security Department he hopes to have more jobs for students and that those hopefully permanent jobs created in the department will in the future be funded by the state.

The Committee delayed giving final approval to the category changes for one week although it appeared to this reporter that the majority of opinions were in favor of the changes, with some reservation on future use of dorm security funds.

(Continued from Page 2)

drafting of a charge to the Sewer Treatment Facilities Technical Advisory Committee;

—Postponed until April action was a proposed ban on overnight parking, because overnight parking will be banned anyway until then (see related story on this page);

—Voted to acknowledge receipt of a letter requesting a "No Parking" sign in the area of East Street School and look into it;

—Postponed hearing the report from the Town Assessor on the cost of proposed change in farm land valuation as scheduled, because the necessary information could not be obtained;

—Scheduled a conference with representatives from the Landlord-Tenant relations Committee for the Board of Selectmen meeting Monday, December 13, because they could not understand a letter received from the Committee;

—and granted several permits to various organizations.

Lindsay Supporter Stresses Change

Dan Dimancescu, urban consultant and supporter of the John V. Lindsay Presidential campaign, spoke last night on the urban world and its importance to political thought.

According to Dimancescu, the country is seeking new ideals in domestic goals. The last twenty-five years have produced two negative results. These are a profound disillusionment with America's values and goals, and a sense of frustration in influencing change.

Internationally, the speaker feels that the United States has entertained a false sense of superiority. During World War II, America rose to the position of a great world power. Such subsequent failures as in Vietnam have created deflated egos and doubts in America's ideals. New leadership is felt to be needed to redefine the country's objectives.

Domestically, the priorities rest with the cities. In 1971, 175 million people reside in urban areas. Dimancescu believes that the focus of American life now rests in the cities where it once centered on the small towns. Therefore, the logical candidate is one familiar with the problems of this part of the country.

John V. Lindsay is felt by Dimancescu to be the only logical candidate for President.

IVS Has Openings

International Voluntary Services, Inc. currently has openings for immediate placement in four countries plus future possibilities for which applications are being accepted. The nature of IVS and these opportunities are further explained in the enclosures.

Present programs include Education in Algeria, Education and Rural Development in Laos, Range Management and Soil Conservation in Morocco, and Agricultural Credit in the Congo(Kinshasa). In addition, IVS is about to begin agricultural programs in Libya and Algeria. They are also presently exploring the possibility of agricultural programs in Chad, Cameroons, Upper Volta, and Kenya. The majority of IVS team members are single, recent college graduates who have training and skills useful on projects in developing countries.

Further information is available at the Career Planning and Placement Service-Room 239, Whitmore Admin. Bldg.

Winter at OWH
Old Wierd Harold's
on Rt. 9 betwn. Amherst and Northampton
New and Used Clothes

Jerry Lewis
Twin Cinema
584-3209
Cinema 1
Bob & Carol & Ted & Alice 7
Cactus Flower 9
Cinema 2
Blue Water White Death 7:15
Who is Harry Kellerman 9:05
Admission $1 with College ID M-TH
Hamp Shopping Plaza
King St., Northampton

A meeting to establish a
Clearing House for Community Service
will be held in
Room 165 at 7:30 p.m. on Dec. 2, 1971.
Short and long range plans and goals will be discussed. The object is to centralize information, share resources and to develop an unified effort to establish community service as a legitimate part of university academic life.

Jenness To Give Lecture

Linda Jenness, Socialist Workers Party candidate for president, will speak in Mahar auditorium at UMass next Tuesday at 8:00 P.M. She will hold a press conference beforehand in the Colonial Lounge of the UMass Student Union at 6:30 P.M.

Linda Jenness is one of the most well-known and respected women leaders in the radical movement. As the Socialist Workers Party candidate for mayor of Atlanta, and the party's candidate for governor of Georgia the following year, she pioneered in bringing socialist politics to the South. "History is on the side of Mrs. Jenness.", commented the Atlanta Journal, referring to her campaign.

The SWP '72 campaign, the biggest socialist election campaign since Eugene V. Debs ran in 1920, has been reported in over 50 newspapers including the New York Times, Chicago Tribune, Chicago Sun-Times, L.A. Times, St. Louis Post-Dispatch, Washington Post, National Observer, and the Boston Globe. Her candidacy was reported by Walter Cronkite on nationally televised CBS Evening News, and Mrs. Jenness has personally appeared on numerous T.V. and radio programs. Steve Beren, in charge of campaign press relations, estimated that from newspaper coverage alone, more than 10 million people have already learned about the campaign.

"Our campaign is the campaign that will change American politics," declared Mrs. Jenness.

Linda Jenness was born on Jan. 11, 1941, in El Reno, Okla., but she has been a legal resident of Georgia for most of her life. After graduating from high school, she attended Antioch College, where she majored in history: while in school, she studied in Mexico and France.

In Sept. 1968, she represented the YSA in Lares, Puerto Rico at the hundreth anniversary celebration of the Puerto Rican independence movement. In January 1969, she spent five weeks in Cuba as part of a YSA delegation invited by the Cuban government to participate in activities marking the tenth anniversary of the Cuban revolution.

Linda Jenness was the Socialist Workers Party candidate for Mayor of Atlanta in 1969 and for governor in 1970.

While a candidate in Georgia, she was a leader of the Atlanta Mobilization Committee and was active in Emory University Women's Liberation. She is coauthor of several pamphlets on Women's liberation: Women and the Cuban Revolution, Abortion: A Woman's Right, and Kate Millett's Sexual Politics: A Marxist Appreciation. This spring she toured the country, speaking on women's liberation. Mrs. Jenness has also spoke as a representative of the SWP at the April 24, 1971 antiwar demonstration in San Francisco.

The Town

New Sewage Plant In Works

Amherst wants to build its new sewage treatment facility on a piece of land in Hadley which is owned by UMass, and they will probably have to go through the State Legislature to get it. And so, as Town Manager Allen Torrey told the Amherst Board of Selectmen today, state representative John Olver will probably introduce a bill in the state legislature which will allow the UMass Board of Trustees to approve the transfer of a parcel of land on the west side of campus.

The Board also endorsed the opinion of the Zoning Board that a proposed subdivision on Long Meadow Mountain should not be permitted and gave general approval to the "principle and scope" of the proposed long-range capital budget. (For more details on the capital budget, see story on page 12.)

The UMass Trustees do not have the power to authorize the transfer of a piece of land as big as Amherst will need for its new sewage plant without the permission of the state legislature. However, the Trustees do have to approve the transfer. Torrey said that there are several steps yet to be taken before Amherst can begin construction of the facility: permission must be obtained from sanitation authorities, from the town of Hadley, and from UMass.

Long Meadow Mountain is part of a proposed National Park in the area. The selectmen endorsed the Zoning Board's decision against the proposed subdivision on the mountain, because they wanted to prevent "encroachment on future National Park areas." They wanted to extend the decision to include a general ban of construction on the mountain. The matter of the proposed subdivision will also be on the agenda of the Planning Board meeting, which is scheduled for tonight.

Allen Torrey is to discuss the proposed capital budget with the Finance Committee this week. He said that there are some parts of the proposed long range budget which he doesn't think are too good. Some of the selectmen said that they had points of difference with the budget too, but they voted unanimously to go on record as supporting the general principles and scope of it.

Also endorsed in principle by the selectmen was a preliminary proposal regarding HURDLE (Hampshire United Research into Drugs in the Learning Environment).

The preliminary TOPICS report, dealing with traffic problems and solutions, met with some disapproval. Selectman Nancy Eddy reported that the Traffic Circulation Committee met on Monday night and didn't think that the TOPICS report considered the Triangle Street area in a wide enough scope. Allen Torrey thought that the report wasn't detailed enough. He also said that he thought since the report was a preliminary one, it was intended only as a sketchy report and didn't need the board's approval. There wasn't any mention of further communication in the report, however, and the selectmen voted to get in touch with TOPICS concerning this.

The selectmen also:

—Heard a report that the new recycling center on Belchertown Road is nearly completed;

—Granted "approval of character of incorporation" of three people forming a "New England Center for Personal and Organizational Development;"

—Received the annual budget, the first in 2-1/2 years;

—Decided to grant all requests by local clubs, taverns, etc. to stay open extra hours (until two in the morning) on New Year's Day, but will still require them to submit requests;

—Selected to send a letter to the Belchertown government re-affirming their concern over an apartment development there and its effect on Amherst;

—Put on the agenda for next Tuesday's meeting the

(Continued on Page 3)

Activist To Discuss Plans

Sid Finehirsh, Southern Coordinator of the Student Mobilization Committee will speak tonight in the Campus Center at 8 p.m. in rooms 168-70.

Finehirsh's topic of speech, "The Antiwar Movement November 7, 1971: An Evaluation," will concern the present state of the national antiwar movement and its future plans. He will also discuss the National Peace Action Coalition Convention to be held in Cleveland this weekend, December 3-5. At this conference decisions will be formed about the plans for spring peace action in 1972.

Finehirsh has been working in the Atlanta area where the antiwar movement has expanded throughout southern cities in areas previously uninvolved in the movement. Tampa and Atlanta were two of seventeen cities in the U.S. which held major antiwar demonstrations on November 6th of this year. The support which has arisen from these cities covered a wide range of participants: veterans, GI's, women, organized labor, and antiwar coalitions. Speakers in Atlanta November 6 included Sid Finehirsh, representing the SMC; Yolanda King; and members of the National Welfare Rights Organization, Georgia Women's Abortion Coalition, and the Atlanta Labor Council.

Amherst Bans All-Night Cars

The annual winter season ban on all-night parking will become effective on December 1, 1971. Under this regulation cars parked on any Amherst street after 2:00 A.M. are liable to towing at the owner's expense.

This ban on overnight parking will be in effect for the entire period December 1, through March 31, 1972 regardless of snow and ice conditions.

In addition to the ban on all-night parking, vehicles may be towed away at any time, day or night, if they impede or interfere with the plowing and removal of ice or snow, or if illegally parked.

In order to provide off-street overnight parking areas during the no-parking ban, the town will allow cars to park overnight on three public parking areas: the Amity Street parking area, the Lincoln Lot off Main Street, and the Pray Street parking lot. Vehicles may park overnight only on these three lots without charge.

Because vehicles are to be allowed to park on these lots overnight, it will not be possible to plow and remove snow from these areas as quickly as from other public parking areas.

Women's Center Sponsors Political Caucus Lecture

By Marilynn Martin

"The Future and Significance of the Massachusetts' Women's Political Caucus" will be the topic of a speech by Dr. Rose Olver, chairman of the Psychology Dept., at 8 p.m. Wednesday at Farley Lodge.

The lecture, open to all women in the community, is one in a series sponsored by the Valley Women's Center (VWC) and project: SELF.

Project: SELF is a fairly new idea on campus coordinated by Lois Phillips and Joan Engle and co-sponsored by the Department of Continuing Education.

The project, initiated by an action group of the Valley Women's Center, is an effort to explore the theory of continuing education for women, part-time. VWC's ideas are particularly for women returning to school after being away for quite a while.

As a result, project: SELF was instituted as an aid in fostering women's self-confidence and to help them with any problems they may have, according to Mrs. Phillips.

In another attempt to help, a Bachelor of General Education degree is being created on this campus to benefit these part-time students.

The project now consists of occasional non-credit workshops and open lectures, but it hopes to evolve into a special program with accredited courses for the benefit of women who wish to go to school and continue their careers.

The aim of project: SELF, now, is to get involved people to teach courses and become involved with various workshops.

Bomb Checked at UM

Three bomb threats were reported at the John Quincy Adams dorm at the UMass campus early yesterday with the first coming at 1:12 a.m. and the other two at 3:38 a.m.

The Amherst Fire Department was notified that the alarm system had been reset after the final two calls and did not respond, but were alerted.

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

Office of the DAILY COLLEGIAN are on the second floor of the Student Union on the University campus, zip code 01002. Phones are 545-2550 (news), 545-0344 (sports), and 549-1311 (editor).

Second class postage paid at Amherst, the DAILY COLLEGIAN publishes five times weekly Monday through Friday during the academic year except during vacation and exam periods, three or four times a week following a vacation or exam period or when a holiday falls within a week. Accepted for mailing under the authority of the act of March 8, 1879 as amended by the act of June 11, 1943. Subscription rates are $6.00 per semester, $10.00 per year.

ROOM TO MOVE
Campus Drug Drop-In Center
CALL 5-0400
24 HOURS A DAY
7 DAYS A WEEK

Robin Morgan
will speak
December 14
8 p.m. S.U.B.

Program Council Presents
Jonathan Edwards
with Bill Workman
in concert
Tues., Dec. 7
7:30 & 10:00
Advance Sale tickets at RSO Office
$1.25

Campus Security Budget Reorganized

Mr. Gerald O'Neil, an Assistant Director of Security, makes a point concerning proposed Security reorganization at last night's Rents and Fees Committee meeting. (MDC photo by Gary Alpaugh)

By DON BISHOP

Category changes in this year's budgeting for University Security allowing for a reorganization of security were discussed by Administration and Security representatives before last night's weekly meeting of the Student Senate Rent's and Fees Committee.

Present at the meeting were Acting Vice-Chancellor Robert Gage, Acting Director of Security Douglas Forsyth, Assistant Director of Security Gerald O'Neil and Whitmore Staff Assistant Charles Hampton. To explain the rationale for the category changes and how a surplus in Security monies has allowed for the category changes in the first place, these individuals brought a written statement which follows below.

"For fiscal year 1972 (the current school year), $134,029 was budgeted in the Residence Hall accounts for internal security. Of this total, $37,119 was to come from the Residence Halls Trust Fund and the remaining $97,910 from the UMass Building Authority Dormitory Projects.

"$40,321 of $134,029 was budgeted for six Residence Hall assistants. These positions are carried over from the previous fiscal year. Campus security, therefore, requested only $93,708 in new funding for fiscal '72.

"At the time of the initial request for $93,708, it was contemplated that this money would be used to fund fourteen new Residence Hall assistants.

"Since the initial request there have been significant changes in campus security thinking on internal dormitory security. First, sixteen security guards were transferred from walking beats into the dormitories to provide internal security. Second, a student security program was instituted to provide additional dormitory security.

"In both cases, the source of funding for these changes is State money. In the first case, the cost is $103,670, and in the second $100,000. This means in fiscal '72, $243,991 is being spent by campus security to provide internal dormitory security.

Residence Hall Assistants (six)	$ 40,321
Security Guards (sixteen)	103,670
Student Security Program	100,000
TOTAL	$243,991

"The dormitories were originally asked to fund $134,029 for internal security in fiscal '72. Now that $243,991 will be spent for internal security in fiscal '72, the dormitories are $109,962 better off.

"Under the present internal security program, the dormitories are funding only $40,321 of the total $243,991, since the security guards ($103,670) and the student security program ($100,000) are State funded.

"Campus security now plans to use the $93,708 of the budgeted $134,029 in the dormitory accounts to fund positions in their planned reorganization of the Security Department. Without this money reorganization is impossible.

"The logic behind the use of this money is as follows: In essence, there exists a trade off between State 03 monies of $100,000 and $93,708 of the dormitory monies. Instead of using the $93,708 in dormitory monies to provide internal security, $100,000 in State 03 monies is being used. The $100,000 does the same job as the $93,708. This $100,000 could have been used elsewhere on campus rather than in the dormitories. Since it is being used in the dormitories, it is fair for the $93,708 to be used elsewhere."

After representatives went over the above material, questions were raised by members of the Rents and Fees Committee.

In response to a question asking why the $100,000 in state funds couldn't be used for the Security reorganization (as opposed to the dormitory funds) Mr. Hampton stated that they could be. But he went on to say that if this were done, in all probability the State Legislature would allocate fewer funds next year in the category granted the $100,000 for this year, namely the Student Security Program. If that were the case then far fewer students than are currently working in the program could be hired for next year.

Another point of concern for various Committee members was with what will happen regarding Security funds in future years. Will the state continue to grant the $100,000 in the Student Security Program and what will happen to student jobs if they don't?

Gage, Forsyth, and Hampton all felt that the monies for student security jobs would continue to be granted, although naturally they couldn't guarantee it. Acting Security Director Forsyth stated that under the reorganized Security Department he hopes to have more jobs for students and that those hopefully permanent jobs created in the department will in the future be funded by the state.

The Committee delayed giving final approval to the category changes for one week although it appeared to this reporter that the majority of opinions were in favor of the changes, with some reservation on future use of dorm security funds.

(Continued from Page 2)

drafting of a charge to the Sewer Treatment Facilities Technical Advisory Committee;

—Postponed until April action was a proposed ban on overnight parking, because overnight parking will be banned anyway until then (see related story on this page);

—Voted to acknowledge receipt of a letter requesting a "No Parking" sign in the area of East Street School and look into it;

—Postponed hearing the report from the Town Assessor on the cost of proposed change in farm land valuation as scheduled, because the necessary information could not be obtained;

—Scheduled a conference with representatives from the Landlord-Tenant relations Committee for the Board of Selectmen meeting Monday, December 13, because they could not understand a letter received from the Committee;

—and granted several permits to various organizations.

Lindsay Supporter Stresses Change

Dan Dimancescu, urban consultant and supporter of the John V. Lindsay Presidential campaign, spoke last night on the urban world and its importance to political thought.

According to Dimancescu, the country is seeking new ideals in domestic goals. The last twenty-five years have produced two negative results. These are a profound disillusionment with America's values and goals, and a sense of frustration in influencing change.

Internationally, the speaker feels that the United States has entertained a false sense of superiority. During World War II, America rose to the position of a great world power. Such subsequent failures as in Vietnam have created deflated egos and doubts in America's ideals. New leadership is felt to be needed to redefine the country's objectives.

Domestically, the priorities rest with the cities. In 1971, 175 million people reside in urban areas. Dimancescu believes that the focus of American life now rests in the cities where it once centered on the small towns. Therefore, the logical candidate is one familiar with the problems of this part of the country.

John V. Lindsay is felt by Dimancescu to be the only logical candidate for President.

IVS Has Openings

International Voluntary Services, Inc. currently has openings for immediate placement in four countries plus future possibilities for which applications are being accepted. The nature of IVS and these opportunities are further explained in the enclosures.

Present programs include Education in Algeria, Education and Rural Development in Laos, Range Management and Soil Conservation in Morocco, and Agricultural Credit in the Congo(Kinshasa). In addition, IVS is about to begin agricultural programs in Libya and Algeria. They are also presently exploring the possibility of agricultural programs in Chad, Cameroons, Upper Volta, and Kenya. The majority of IVS team members are single, recent college graduates who have training and skills useful on projects in developing countries.

Further information is available at the Career Planning and Placement Service-Room 239, Whitmore Admin. Bldg.

Jerry Lewis Twin Cinema
586-3209
Cinema 1
Bob & Carol & Ted & Alice 7
Cactus Flower 9
Cinema 2
Blue Water White Death 7:15
Who is Harry Kellerman 9:05
Admission $1 with College ID M-TH
Hamp Shopping Plaza
King St., Northampton

Winter at OWH
Old Wierd Harold's
on Rt. 9 betwn. Amherst and Northampton
New and Used Clothes

A meeting to establish a
Clearing House for Community Service
will be held in
Room 165 at 7:30 p.m. on Dec. 2, 1971.
Short and long range plans and goals will be discussed. The object is to centralize information, share resources and to develop an unified effort to establish community service as a legitimate part of university academic life.

In The Nation And The World

India Gives Pakistan Ultimatum

(AP) — Prime Minister Indira Gandhi and Defense Minister Jagjivan Ram of India called Tuesday for Pakistan to give East Pakistan independence and avoid possible war on the subcontinent.

Mrs. Gandhi told the upper house of Parliament that President Agha Mohammed Yahya Khan of Pakistan could make "a gesture toward peace" by pulling out his troops and allowing East Pakistan to establish an independent Bangla Desh-Bengali nation.

Ram, in a television interview in New Delhi, was more forceful, declaring: "War can still be avoided if the rulers of Pakistan see the writing on the wall and give independence to the people of Bangla Desh. The people of Bangla Desh expect nothing less than that."

The apparent hardening of India's official stance toward Pakistan came as Radio Pakistan reported that Indian troops were making some advances in a drive inside East Pakistan. The Indian government has said the fighting mainly is between the Mukti Bahini, the East Pakistan independence fighters, and West Pakistani troops.

A Pakistani military spokesman asserted in Rawalpindi, West Pakistan, that Pakistan forces were still operating under restraint against hot pursuit across the Indian border.

The spokesman said heavy fighting was in progress around Pachagarh in the northern tip of the East Pakistan-Indian West Bengal frontier where Pakistani troops withdrew two miles "under heavy pressure."

Pakistan claimed that the Indians threw in fresh forces and were using tanks in the attack from south of the sugar mill town of Pachagarh after failing to take the town from the north.

An Indian military spokesman in Calcutta said Indian troops were still inside East Pakistan in the Balurghat-Hilli region, 200 miles north of Calcutta where they crossed Saturday following what was described as a Pakistani artillery attack.

A Defense Ministry communique issued in New Delhi said that only sporadic fighting had been reported from the area during the day and that a Pakistani counterattack had been repulsed.

Ram reiterated that Indian troops could move into East Pakistan in self-defense as deep as the range of the Pakistani guns. India has so far acknowledged three crossings. Pakistani howitzers have a range of up to 20 miles.

"The intention is to eliminate the danger which these guns pose to our civilian population," Ram added. "It is more effective to silence these guns from their own territory."

Ram also acknowledged for the first time that members of the Mukti Bahini--whom he said totalled 70,000-- had been recruited inside the refugee camps on Indian territory.

Mrs. Gandi described the influx of the refugees into India as an invasion that "threatens the security of our country."

Similarly, she said, "the presence of Pakistani troops in Bangla Desh is a threat to our security.

"It is not in our national interest to let an entire population be annihilated. It is a threat to our freedom and security."

Radio Pakistan reported Yahya had received a personal message from President Nixon about the crisis.

A similar message sent by Nixon to Mrs. Ghandi was delivered Monday. It was discussed by the Cabinet Tuesday.

Authoritative sources said Nixon had appealed for India to take steps to de-escalate the crisis. There was no comment from the government.

United News said Nixon counseled restaint by India and renewed his suggestion for a mutual pullback of Indian and Pakistani troops from their borders.

The agency added that Mrs. Gandhi is likely to send a reply to Nixon Wednesday, although her opposition to a mutual troops withdrawal already had been stated in Parliament.

In Brief...

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Police Chief Donald M. Scott has proposed comprehensive regulations limiting use of firearms by policemen and calling for automatic suspension of officers involved in fatal shootings.

Scott, named to his post last September, said Tuesday the proposals are patterned after recommendations of the President's Commission on Law Enforcement and Administration of Justice

*****

NEW YORK (AP) — Two of the best-known publishers of sex books are worried these days about a four-letter word: cash.

Bernard Geis Associates, which brought you such best-selling sizzlers as "Valley of the Dolls" and "Sex and the Single Girl", recently announced that its debts of $800,000 outweighed assets of $500,000, and filed for reorganization under the Federal Bankruptcy Act.

*****

WASHINGTON (AP) — Legislation providing for grants up to $5.3 billion a year for five years to states and local governments was introduced Tuesday by Rep. Wilbur D. Mills as a substitute for President Nixon's revenue sharing proposal.

The Arkansas Democrat, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, said his bill avoids the features he objected to in the administration plan to earmark part of the federal income tax yield for the local governments.

*****

Nixon To Spend Week In China

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon plans to spend a full week in Communist China, visiting three cities, during his historic journey there in February.

After the White House made the announcement Tuesday, Dr. Henry A. Kissinger said summit talks to be held in Peking, Shanghai and Hangchou Feb. 21-28 will not result in bringing peace to Vietnam or settling the future of Taiwan.

Kissinger, the President's national security affairs adviser, said Nixon's conferences with Chairman Mao Tse-tung, Premier Chou En-lai and others would focus on problems of direct concern to the two countries rather than those involving third parties.

The White House foreign policy specialist said arrangements which have been made indicate "a reasonably successful outcome" for the first visit ever made to mainland China by an American president.

Mrs. Nixon will make the trip, too, and will have a schedule of her own.

Kissinger said Nixon will spend at least four days in Peking and that the early-morning hours may be devoted to face-to-face talks with Chinese leaders.

The President's full itinerary has not been fixed but Kissinger said Nixon would stop only on American territory during the flights to and from China. At least one stop, he reported, would afford the President an opportunity to rest and adjust himself to time-zone changes.

Secretary of State William P. Rogers and Kissinger will accompany the President.

In summarizing the American approach to talks, Kissinger said of Vietnam: "We do not expect to settle it in Peking."

While he predicted the Chinese will raise the subject of Taiwan, he said, "the United States' position is that the ultimate relationship between Taiwan and the People's Republic of China should be settled through direct negotiations."

Nixon will seek a better understanding of the views of Chinese leaders, said Kissinger, and a means of continuing communication between two countries isolated from each other for nearly a quarter century.

Kissinger said Nixon would like also to make "at least a beginning" in opening areas of communication outside the political or diplomatic realm.

Peking, the Communist Chinese capital of four million, is a northern city lying between the upper reaches of the Yellow Sea and Mongolia. Shanghai is the country's largest city with a population of 6.9 million and is a seaport lying west of the southernmost main islands of Japan. Hangchou is inland southwest of Shanghai.

While he reported that a general outline for Nixon's meetings has been fixed, he said "there's going to be a free-wheeling nature to the discussion."

Any participant, he reported, can raise any question he deems urgent.

But he added that "no agreements will be made about third-party problems..There will be no deals made concerning other countries or at the expense of other countries."

Another American advance team will go to China prior to the Nixon visit but Kissinger, who returned from the first advance in October, said the next one will be exclusively technical.

Learn to Drive
AMHERST AUTO SCHOOL
34 Main Street
256-6066

The
B. M. is coming
Thursday and Friday
C.C. Aud.
7 & 9:15

Macrobiotic Food in the HATCH
11:30-2 weekdays

ROOM TO MOVE
Campus Drug Drop-In Center
CALL 5-0400
24 HOURS A DAY
7 DAYS A WEEK

CHOOSE FROM 5 BEAUTIFUL CINEMAS!
Showcase Cinema 1-2-3-4-5
MATINEES DAILY-POP PRICES
GROUP RATES-733-5131
RT. 5 RIVERDALE RD. WEST SPFLD.
CHARGE YOUR TICKETS
OPENS TODAY!
Exclusive Western Mass. Premiere
FRANK ZAPPA'S
"200 MOTELS"
COLOR R
THE MOTHERS OF INVENTION RINGO STARR
ACRES FREE PARKING-ROCKER LOUNGERS

Rod Rodgers Dance Company
a unique theatre experience
Tuesday - Thursday
December 7-8-9
8:00 P.M.
Bowker Auditorium
A Different Program Each Evening.
Reserved Tickets
UMass Undergrads $1.00
UMass Undergrads $1.00
Reserved Tickets:
UMass Undergrads $1.00
Other Full-Time Students $2.00
UMass Faculty/Staff $3.00
General Public $3.50
Fine Arts Council Ticket Office,
125 Herter Hall, Tel. 545-0202
Presented by the University of Massachusetts Fine Arts Council

JORDAN--AT FUNERAL FOR ASSASSINATED PREMIER-- Ahmed Lozi shakes hands with Egyptian minister Hassan Sabri el Kholi in Amman Monday. Lozi, chosen to succeed the assassinated Wasfi Tell as prime minister of Jordan, met the Egyptian, acting as President Sadat of Egypt's emissary, at Tell's funeral.

Arab Politics: Risky Business

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — A political career in the Arab countries is a risky business.

Victims of assassinations in the last 30 years include kings in Jordan and Iraq, prime ministers in Egypt, Syria, Jordan, Lebanon and Iraq, and a score of other figures.

Even leaving the area does not insure safety. Opposition leaders from Tunisia, Morocco and Algeria have been killed in Europe, and a former Syrian president was shot in Brazil.

The assassination Sunday of Jordan's prime minister, Wasfi Tell, was the third one in the area this year.

"I'm not sure political assassinations are more common in the Middle East than in other areas of the developing world," says Dr. Elie Salem, a political science professor at the American University of Beirut. "But it is true that politics has not been as stable in this part of the world and tends to revolve more around personalities than issues. Thus people frustrated by the system take short cuts, sometimes violent ones, to express their dissent."

The assassination of Tell underlined the frustrations of the Palestinians, who regarded this regime as oppressive to their interests. It demonstrated "once again that there can be no final settlement in the Middle East without resolving the Palestinian dilemma," a Beirut editor said.

Tell was shot by Palestinians, as was King Hussein's grandfather King Abdullah, assassinated in Jerusalem in 1951 for advocating a settlement with the Israelis.

Since he assumed the throne Hussein has survived a dozen assassination attempts.

One of Tell's close friends, outspoken Prime Minister Hazza Majali, a former Jordan army chief of staff, was assassinated in his office Aug. 29, 1960, by leftists from Syria and Egypt who opposed the monarchy and favored the creation of a Palestinian Arab state in west bank land Jordan occupied in the 1948 war with Israel.

In 1959 a Lebanese prime minister, Riad Solh, was shot and killed while visiting Jordan by a member of the Syrian Popular party.

The first assassination of the modern era took place in 1944 when Prime Minister Ahmed Maher was shot outside his Cairo office after trying to take Egypt into World War II on the side of Britain.

King Hussein's cousin, King Feisal of Iraq, members of his royal family and Prime Minister Nouri Said were murdered in 1958 when the army led by Gen. Abdul Karem Kassem overthrew the monarchy.

Kassem was shot and killed in 1963 when a coup led by the army and the Baath party brought a new regime to power.

Many Arabs are critical of the wave of violence. The right-wing Beirut newspaper Al Jarida says: "Despite four wars, hundreds of battles, thousands of casualties and millions of refugees, the Arabs have not yet agreed that their enemy is Israel. They still relish the spilling of Arab blood."

Registry Of Vehicles Selling Information

BOSTON (AP) — Despite statements from officials to the contrary, the state Registry of Motor Vehicles is continuing to sell information about motorists to businesses.

In a Nov. 9 letter to state Rep. David J. Mofenson, D-Newton, Administration Commissioner Robert L. Yasi said he had been informed by Registrar David Lucey that "until a decision to the contrary is made, no bulk sales of lists to the public are being made."

Lucey was unavailable for comment on allegations that information about the motoring public was still being sold to commercial operations.

He has begun an investigation of the sales and had said that, pending completion of the investigation, the practice was discontinued.

It hasn't been. Lucey Tuesday night confirmed that the sales have continued after an Associated Press story disclosed the fact.

"At the moment, anything here is something I've inherited," said Lucey, who was named registrar in July by Gov. Francis W. Sargent.

He said he expected the investigation to be completed within two weeks, and he would then formulate a policy about the sale of information.

The AP learned that the R.L. Polk Co., of Detroit paid more than $35,000 this year for the registry's entire auto registration file.

Polk, described by Boston Atty. Robert T. Capeless, who represented the company at a legislative hearing earlier this year, as a supplier of "general information to businesses," buys the entire file each year, according to Louis R. Pleau, chief of the registry's Record's Division.

Deputy Registrar George H. Dooley said the sales to Polk have not been suspended. Nor have other registry practices which were the subject of an assault by a group of legislators headed by Mofenson.

The registry, Dooley confirmed, provides office space for "credit girls," who search out records for commercial operations. He said there are least 10 such girls working at the registry and there may be as many as 25.

The registry also permits companies to hire groups of registry employees on "off hours," Dooley said, to comb through the records.

Mofenson, who said he has failed in his attempts to discuss the sale of records with Lucey, said he recently received a letter from the registrar which follows:

"Please be advised that at the present time, members of my department are in the process of investigating and evaluating the entire area concerning the dissemination of the information contained in our records.

"When this task is accomplished, I will establish a policy consistent with the laws, rules and regulations of the commonwealth concerning the release of any information in our files."

Mofenson said he had "reason to believe that the registry is seriously considering selling accident notices, court notices and insurance cancellations."

Dooley said these records are, in fact, being sold.

"Some groups come in and hire our people at night or on off hours to look through the records," he said.

The search by companies for specific registry records may soon become much easier.

The AP learned that the agency is now testing a more sophisticated computer which will have the ability to search out any file.

Pleau said the computer will have terminals at all registry offices and it will be directly connected with the state police computer.

It also has been learned that the insurance industry is interested in taking advantage of a 1970 ruling by state Atty. Gen. Robert H. Quinn and plugging into the registry's computer.

In an opinion dated Aug. 28, 1970, Quinn ruled that"the registrar may allow members of the insurance industry to use a computer terminal by which they can inquire directly into the registry's computer."

A source who asked not to be named said the computer available at that time could not facilitate the tie-in, but there "are plans to gear up the computer to the point where one could go and get all sorts of information."

The information, he said, would include a driver's record as well as the traditional information.

Dooley, meanwhile, said he takes a "dim view" of letting private industry tie into the computer.

"CANDY"
(1969 - in color)
*Ringo Starr
*Ewa Aulin
*Marlon Brando
*Music by Byrds and Stephenwolf
SAT., DEC. 4
MAHAR AUD.
6:30 — 8:45 — 11:00 p.m.

MDC Classifieds

TONIGHT!
CAT DANCE
9:30 till close only 25¢
AT
The English Pub

LectraMatic™ FOOTBALL
Action Packed • Realistic • Exciting for every Football Fan
This is the game . . . that offers the challenge. Is your quarterbacking good enough to make your team a winner?
This is the game . . . that offers every thrilling play, offensive and defensive of a real game . . . runs, passes, punts, field goals, even fumbles and pass interceptions.
This is the game . . . that sees all the official rules, offers all the excitement of Pro Football anytime you want it — plus all the comforts of home minus only the bumps and bruises of a real game.
This is the game . . . that tests . . . the quarterbacking skills of your family and friends.
This is the game . . . that's the next best thing to playing in an actual game. Now, football buffs can enjoy it all year round. If you're the type of fan that never gets enough football . . . this is the only game for you . . . Lectrastatic Football!
Complete with heavy-duty printed circuit game board 28" x 20" in full color, 22 miniature players, scoreboards, and complete 16 page instruction book. Batteries not included.
Our price 29.95
UNIVERSITY STORE

This is a cow. You ate a relative of his last night. Bet he tasted good. Don't worry about it. We all have to contribute something to the end of the world. (MDC photo by Gary Alpaugh)

Election Reform Bill Passes

WASHINGTON (AP)-The House passed Tuesday an election reform bill calling for spending ceilings, retaining the equal time broadcast law and plugging loopholes governing financial reporting. The vote was 372 to 23.

The bill goes back to the Senate, which has passed a similar but not identical measure.

Before the final vote, the House turned down a Senate provision to create an independent commission to monitor campaign spending. Also rejected was the Senate's' proposal to repeal the equal time requirement applicable to all candidates for federal office.

The House refused, as did the Senate, imposition of limits on individual campaign contributions to candidate for president, vice-president, the Senate and the House of Representatives.

Both the House and Senate bills would only affect candidates for those federal offices.

The equal time provision of the communications act requires radio and television stations to make available comparable air time to all candidates requesting it if time is provided free to an opponent.

The Senate provision to create a presidentially appointed six-member monitoring commission was replaced by House language giving the Clerk of the House, Secretary of the Senate and the Comptroller General administrative supervision over the proposed law.

The House approved spending limitations on broadcasting and printed media by candidates for federal office and retention of the equal time provision of the Communications Act designed to guarantee equal air time for all rival candidates.

It approved by vote of 233 to 147 an amendment by Rep. Orval Hanse, R—Idaho, to spell out the right of labor unions and corporations to use their funds for registration and get-out-the-vote drives among members and stockholders and their families.

Hansen and his supporters contended that existing law allows such activities but is not clear on the matter. They emphasized that the amendment would not allow use of the funds for general political activities, but would not bar use of voluntary funds for general election purposes.

By a vote of 79 to 52 the House knocked from the Senate bill a proposal to create a six-member Federal Elections Commission to administer financial reporting and fund-raising activities of federal office seekers.

Rep. Wayne L. Hays, D—Ohio, whose amendment eliminated the commission plan, said Congress should not turn over to an executive commission the job of monitoring financial aspects of congressional elections.

Hays' amendment would give the task to the clerk of the House for House candidates, the secretary of the Senate for Senate aspirants, and the comptroller general for candidates for President and vice-president.

The House approved by an 80-48 vote an amendment by Rep. Jonathan B. Bingham, D—N.Y., to include in over-all election spending ceilings the costs of campaigning by banks of five or more telephones and computerized mailing lists.

These costs would be charged against the proposed spending ceilings for advertising media of 10 cents for each person of voting age.

Boston "Safest City"

BOSTON (AP)-The city of Boston, says its police commissioner, is "still one of the safest of major cities."

Edmund L. McNamara told a news conference Tuesday that a survey of 10 cities of comparable size showed at least half scored above Boston in all crime categories except auto theft.

Even in that category, in which Boston ranked second, offenses were falling, he said.

McNamara said increased patrolling had helped cut auto thefts by 25 per cent in the past month alone. So far this year, 1,163 vehicles have been stolen, compared to 1,549 at the same time last year.

The past month, the commissioner said, also found assaults down by 11 per cent, burglaries decreased by 7 per cent and larcenies by 8 per cent.

He said the survey included Baltimore, Cleveland, Dallas, Denver, New Orleans, Pittsburgh, St. Louis, San Francisco, Washington D.C. and Kansas City, Mo.

What does the future hold?

André Kole knows

Rehnquist A Step Closer

WASHINGTON (AP)-The Senate Judiciary committee, in a majority report urging Senate confirmation of William H. Rehnquist to the Supreme Court, said Tuesday he has shown "a deep and unwavering commitment to the Constitution."

It said also that Rehnquist, a former Phoenix, Ariz., lawyer and now an assistant attorney general, has what it called the prime prerequisites for service on the Supreme Court- "professional competence, open-mindedness and a sense of fairness."

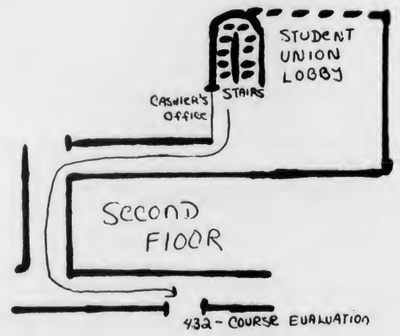
The report dismissed as totally unfounded attacks made on Rehnquist's civil-rights and civil-liberties record, including an allegation by opponents that he had harassed black voters in Phoenix in the 1960s.

The committee recommended also Senate confirmation of President Nixon's nominee for a second vacancy on the Supreme Court, Richmond, Va., attorney Lewis F. Powell Jr., a former president of the American Bar Association.

Powell's nomination was approved unanimously by the committee, composed of nine Democrats and seven Republicans.

Rehnquist's nomination was approved by a 12-4 vote.

The four dissenting votes were cast by Sens. Birch Bayh, D—Ind., Edward M. Kennedy, D—Mass., Philip A. Hart, D—Mich., and John V. Tunney, D—Calif.



Late in the day, they completed a minority report urging rejection Rehnquist's nomination, saying his record reveals "a dangerous hostility to the great principles of individual freedom under the Bill of Rights and equal justice for all people."

"He has persistently opposed the use of law to promote racial justice in America, and he has just as persistently analyzed legal problems in a way which minimizes the importance of civil liberties values and maximizes the importance of executive power," the four said.

Their report, challenging major conclusions of the majority, said Rehnquist's record presented no problem of integrity or excellence but that his philosophy was an appropriate concern of the Senate.

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota, the 1968 Democratic presidential candidate, announced that he will vote against confirmation of Rehnquist's nomination. He previously had disclosed he would vote to confirm Powell.

COURSE EVALUATION

FORMS may be picked up at

432. S.U. before Dec. 17.

"Health Coverage In This Country Is A Farce"

DENVER (LNS)-For five years Dr. Samuel Scherker worked quietly--but profitably--about a mile south of downtown Denver. Called Dr. Sam by many, the physician practiced among poor whites, blacks, and Mexicans in a neighborhood of old movie houses, cheap hotels and used-car lots. In 1970 he grossed about $130,000 with $73,000 of that coming from Medicare and Medicaid.

Then last February, he initiated a "total-health-care" package and things haven't been the same since. For $20 to $40 a month, the program provides unrestricted visits to or from the doctor and free hospital and dental care.

The patients, of course, love it. "I don't know what I'd do without it," says Corene Wood, a hospitalized cancer patient. But last April, Dr. Sam was hauled into court by the Colorado Insurance Commission. He was charged with selling insurance without a license and operating a health plan that was fiscally unsound and dangerous to the public.

Some 140 angry patients turned up at his trial, jamming a courtroom designed for 60 persons and overflowing into the hall. The doctor was fined $2000 for not obeying a court injunction to drop the health plan. Other contempt charges were dropped and he was sternly lectured on the risks of continuing the program.

But Dr. Scherker is not only continuing the program, he is expanding it. "Health coverage in this country is a farce," he said. "I'm going to show that through faith and hard work and cooperation people can take better care of themselves at the neighborhood level better than these top-heavy bureaucracies can do it for them. We can cut health costs in half."

So far, the plan is breaking even, he said. Approximately $4000 is taken in and the same amount is paid out monthly. About 200 of the 1,500 patients in the plan are covered by family policies at $40 monthly per family.

Couples pay $30 and singles pay $20. Families with Blue Cross and Blue Shield pay $10 a month, for which they are covered on all hospital, doctor and dental bills not paid by the national plans.

Other rates range from $2 monthly for one person with Medicare and Medicaid coverage to $10 a month for patients on Medicare.

"If you don't have a dime and you walk into his office, you'll get help just the same," says Corene Wood.

But Dr. Sam's critics don't understand how he does it. "I really question his ability to provide so much care at the rates he charges," said John Vance, executive vice president of Denver Blue Cross-Blue Shield.

Dr. Scherker asserts that his critics overlook several cost-saving innovations of his plan, including elimination of paper work to the point that patients don't have any contracts and pay monthly "on faith".

Dr. Sam has enormous confidence in the value of preventive medicine, which he maintains is almost nonexistent in the U.S. nowadays.

"When a patient has unlimited visiting, you catch illnesses before they get to the expensive hospital stage," he contends.

"Even if I'm just upset," explains Mary Ann Hart, one of his patients, "I can walk in and talk to him about it."

Dr. Scherker, who is the only physician in the program, draws no salary at the present, though he says he would draw one once the program got onto solid ground. Nor has he collected money from Blue Shield or Medicaid-Medicare since the program started because of legal complications. Now he and his wife and six children live off returns from investments and live in a one-bedroom apartment.

He admits that under current circumstances, a rash of costly illnesses could overload the program but he is already working on a solution for that possibility.

Since much of today's medical costs comes from hospital care, Dr. Scherker has under construction a six-bed "home-pital" to house patients.

"Never again will a hospital charge one of my patients a dollar for a roll of toilet paper," he said.

The facility will also become the home of Dr. Scherker and his family. The term "home-pital" was coined to avoid state and federal regulations covering hospitals.

Colorado still hasn't signaled its next move, but state insurance regulators have suggested that he might have more confrontations with the law.

But his patients are unwavering in their support. One of these is Norman Halse, a 32-year old former steel worker who credits Dr. Scherker with saving his life.

"If they lock him up," he said. "I'll demand to see him. Nobody else can treat me."

Winning Minds Across Asia

OKINAWA (LNS)-In a modest complex of buildings in the Machinato area of Okinawa, the Seventh Psychological Operations (7th Psyops) group of the United States Army maintains its Pacific Headquarters. Although 7th Psyops is only one of the more than 140 American military installations in the Ryukyu Islands, it subtly but directly influences the lives of people in every Southeast Asian country through its intelligence gathering and propaganda dissemination projects.

The formal mission of 7th Psyops is "to influence the action, behavior and attitude" of both friendly and enemy Asian people in support of U.S. strategic policies. Efforts range from smuggling "line crossers" into North Korea to publishing the official Boy Scout handbooks for all of Okinawa and part of Japan.

The briefing room of 7th Psyops is sectioned off on a country by country basis with the various propaganda items produced and distributed by Psyops on display for visitors and for use in "briefing" sessions. Special attention is devoted by Psyops to the following countries: Cambodia, Laos, Taiwan, the People's Republic of China, Malaysia, Burma, Indonesia, Singapore, the Republic of the Philippines, North and South Korea, Thailand, Japan and Okinawa. Propaganda items on display include:

- for Okinawa--Leaflets for air and ground distribution and Boy Scout Manuals;
- for North Korea--Magazines and leaflets, float bags (for offshore distribution of propaganda items), toys, balloons with explosive devices for air distribution, and radios with frequency control soldered to receive only Psyops broadcasts;
- for Vietnam--Printed materials, soldered radios and toys;
- for the People's Republic of China--similar propaganda materials which are distributed through the cooperation of the Taiwanese military.

Since American agents would be to conspicuous, the propaganda materials produced and distributed by Psyops are based on data provided by an intelligence network made up of defectors, business leaders, students and an occasional clergyman.

Japanese "friends" who cooperate with Psyops play a substantial role in the overall work of disseminating American propaganda. Executives with shipping companies and other Japanese businessmen in countries like Korea and Indonesia provide data on a regular basis. Almost all Psyops materials (radios, balloons, etc.) are produced in Japan. The large color press which prints all of Psyops propaganda materials is located in the American Grand Heights suburb of Tokyo.

Information is usually passed to military intelligence agencies in Japan for initial evaluation and then transmitted to 7th Psyops in Okinawa. Business, university and opposition party members in other S.E. Asian countries are also regular sources of information.

"Connection" Cop Withholding Dope

NEW YORK (LNS)--A New York City policeman who played a narcotics sleuth in the movie "The French Connection" was accused on November 17 of failing to turn over seized drugs to the police department.

Detective Edward Egan, 41, faces demotion to patrolman and a reduction of his pension for withholding drugs seized in 22 separate cases as well as failing to show up for a scheduled court appearance as a prosecution witness. As a result of his absence, charges against the defendant had to be dropped, police said.

Egan, along with his real-life partner Detective Salvatore Grosso, starred in the movie about one of the biggest narcotics busts in history--the discovery in 1962 of a cache of 120 pounds of pure heroin said to be worth $32 million.

In addition to his part in the film, Egan acted as a technical advisor.

In response to the charges against Egan, Bill Friedkin, director of "The French Connection", defended the detective saying he was "the most dedicated man I've ever met, perhaps too dedicated."

Egan is now in line for another movie part because of his work in "Connection", and has said that "I love acting...but I don't love it more than police work."

The charges against Egan are not extraordinarily rare. It is common practice for police to withhold drugs and sell them for a profit.

On November 18, another New York City detective and a civilian were seized by Customs officials near Kennedy Airport with an estimated $60,000 worth of marijuana.

Detective Sydney Francis, 46, was immediately suspended by Police Commissioner Murphy. Officials said that over 200 pounds of marijuana were confiscated from two barrels which Francis had come to pick up.

NOW..YOUR CHOICE OF 5!
Showcase
Rt. 5-W. Spfld.
723-5131
MORE NEW SHOWS!
MORE NEW LOUNGER SEATS!
MORE NEW PARKING!
MATINEES DAILY... POPULAR PRICES
Adults $1.50 Mon thru Fri Matts
1 Man in the Wilderness PG
2 Maid in Sweden X
3 French Connection R
4 Gone With The Wind G
5 200 Motels R
ACRES FREE PARKING
ROCKER LOUNGERS
..HARGE YOUR TICKET..

Getting Engaged?
VERY LOW PRICES ON DIAMONDS
Christmas Specials
Call Richard Amoroso 6-4300 anytime
In Boston call (617) 542-2226

ROOM TO MOVE
Campus Drug
Drop-In Center
CALL 5-0400
24 HOURS A DAY
7 DAYS A WEEK

Buy One
Get One Free
every Wednesday
Night
BRUNI'S
PIZZA
Corner of Main & Triangle
256-6676

How To Move Off-Campus

If You:

1. are a Senior
2. will be 21 years of age during the academic year
3. are married
4. will be commuting from home

Then, notify - the Housing Office before room-choosing (December 6-10) that you intend to exercise any of the above options.

You're Not Covered By The Above Categories?

If you are not covered by any of the above categories then you are required by Board of Trustee regulation to live on-campus. However, you may apply for an exemption to the regulation through your Area Director.

Security Deposit:

If you plan to move off-campus you must notify the Housing Office before December 10, 1971, in order that you may get your deposit back. Students who fail to make such notification by December 10 and who fail to occupy a room in the Spring Semester will, unfortunately, forfeit their deposit. Make your plans early.

Debate Team Stays Alive

By JUDY BENNETT

In recent weeks the UMass debate team has hosted a high school tournament here and also gone to a number of intercollegiate tournaments. This year's intercollegiate topic is "resolved that greater controls should be imposed on the gathering and utilization of information about U.S. citizens by government agencies."

Two teams represented UMass at Pace College each achieving a 4-2 win-loss record. Betsy Kohler, a sophmore from Lakehurst, New Jersey, and Karin Kramer, a Smith College sophmore from Levittown, Pa., had wins over Columbia, Alfred, Army, and St. John-Jamaica's. The other team of sophmores Jean Bayer, from Dorchester, and Harry Feinzig, from Brookline defeated Emerson, Iona, Merchant Marines, and Hofstra.

At Emory University junior David McCaffrey from Leominster and senior Paul Lamarche, from Worcester, went 3-5 defeating teams from Missouri, Pensacola, and West Virginia.

In Detroit at Debate Days, a 9-9 total record was achieved as the teams debated in front of audiences with judges. Participating here were freshman C.C. Hooper, from Ann Arbor, Mich., and junior Bruce Murphy, of Abington, and the other team of sophmore Terry Hofmann, from Rochester, N.Y., and junior Roger Legendre, from Leominster.

At Southern Connecticut State College, novices John Hermanson, from Quincy and Richard Le Blanc, from Pittsfield, beat Syracuse, Rhode Island, and Fitchburg State. Junior Bette Napoli, from Winthrop and freshman Jill Peltin, from Wellsley were victorious over Vermont and Southern Connecticut.

Junior John Day, of South Hamilton and sophmore Jim Lane, of Greenfield debated at Brown University although results have not yet been received.

Thirteen states, represented by a total of 600 people, recently attended a high school debate tournament here, the largest yet. Junior Paul Drager, from Peekskill, N.Y., was tournament director and because of his many long hours of work and organization, the tournament was successful. Debating that "the jury system in the U.S. should be significantly changed", Professor Matlon, Director of Debate, explained that the purpose of the tournament was "to provide excellent competition for high school students in debate."

To conclude, recent intercollegiate debates as well as the high school tournament held here have produced extremely favorable results.

WASHINGTON, NOV. 29--NIXON TO GO TO CHINA--Press Secretary Ron Ziegler makes the announcement of President Nixon's journey to Peking next February 21.

A PAULIST DOESN'T WAIT TO BE ORDAINED TO GET INVOLVED.

If you think that ordination is something like graduation —and the time in between is similar to marking time—then you couldn't be more mistaken.

The Paulists were founded with the belief that each man is a member of the community and he contributes his own thing. Each is an individual with his own talents and he is given the freedom to use them in his own way. But not later. Now.

For instance, during the novitiate, novices work in such diverse areas as hospitals, vocational rehabilitation centers and Universities. They serve as assistant chaplains, co-retreat masters, student teachers and psychiatric aides.

Paulist Seminarians create recreational programs, direct "Days of Recollection" for CCD students, direct film series, experiment with the use of media in the liturgy as a preaching tool, originate and edit the Paulist Free Press, coordinate Lenten lectures and organize Home Masses, to mention just a few.

When you commit yourself to the Paulists, it isn't a someday thing. It's now. Today.

For more information about the Paulists write to: Rev. Donald C. Campbell, C.S.P., Vocation Director, Room 300.

paulist fathers.

415 West 59th Street
New York, N.Y. 10019

Every record you buy is one more reason to own a Dual.

The people you buy records from . . .

AMHERST AUDIO

Community Mental Health Discussed

By NANCY PRAJZNER

"Undergraduate College Students in Human Service Roles" will be the topic of an all-day conference at the Campus Center, Friday, December 3, sponsored by the Department of Psychology at the University and the Massachusetts Department of Mental Health.

Programs in Western Massachusetts where college undergraduates work with troubled people will be the main focus of this conference. Workshops in the facilities of the Massachusetts Department of Mental Health, and those in which students work in educational and correctional facilities will be included.

Among the various workshops will be those by the Belchertown State School, ACTION, Incentive Community, and Counselor Companions.

This conference is part of a continuing effort to show what mental health professionals and college undergraduates are doing to satisfy the mental health needs at the community level. This is the second conference of this type held at the University. Last May the two groups sponsored a similar program.

The concept of community mental health, has increased in recent years in the view that mental health needs are universal among all people. In the past, however, the benefits of psychological treatment in its conventional clinical forms have been largely restricted to those persons at a relatively high educational and socio-economic level. It is hoped that this conference and other new projects will expand the treatment and counseling of mental health patients to the entire community.

One way to expand mental health assistance to the community is by the collaboration of mental health professionals from various facilities, and undergraduate students from the University who work in human service roles.

Since last year, the University has initiated many new experimental courses that are offered to students interested in human service roles. These courses serve as a two-fold purpose. They offer undergraduate students a chance to enrich their education by doing practical fieldwork. At the same time these students are an effective personnel source for a number of mental health facilities.

The first course of this type was initiated last February. Undergraduate students worked with patients at the Northampton State Hospital. Each student serves as a counseling companion to a patient who is soon to be discharged, and the student helps prepare the patient for his re-entry into society. This course has expanded this year to an enrollment of sixty students.

Undergraduates also work with students in Amherst Regional High School and the Wildwood School. They provide a counseling and tutoring service for several students.

A similar project is provided for patients at the Belchertown State School.

Although a student receives credit for these courses, they are not designed as technical and career opportunities. Instead, the courses act as compliments to the overall academic requirements for a Bachelor's degree. These various courses just serve to strengthen the regular subjects that must be taken. They are a continuing effort by the Department of Psychology to develop a curriculum which includes field work.

The conference Friday will provide an opportunity for the Massachusetts Department of Mental Health and students enrolled in human service roles to study and examine the present projects, and discuss future projects in the field of mental health.

The conference is open to all students. Anyone who wishes to attend must fill out a registration form by December 3. These can be obtained by contacting: Dr. Stuart E. Golann, Berkshire House 207, Tel. 545-0167.

Biology Professor Appointed To State Conservation Post

Dr. Joseph S. Larson, associate professor of wildlife biology at UMass has been named to state and national posts in the conservation field.

He has been elected to the board of directors of the Massachusetts Association of Conservation Commissions, the organization representing over 200 community conservation commissions in the state. A resident of Pelham, Dr. Larson was instrumental in organizing the conservation commission in that town and also serves on the local planning board.

On the national scene he has been appointed chairman of the Professional Education Committee of The Wildlife Society, international professional organization of wildlife biologists and managers. In this capacity he is leading a study to determine whether educational institutions and employers wish to establish a formal accrediting system for wildlife schools.

Larson is a native of Malden who received B.S. and M.S. degrees in wildlife management at the UMass and his Ph.D. from Virginia Polytechnic Institute. Prior to his present position he held private, state, federal and university positions in Massachusetts and Maryland.

Miss Barbara Anne Peterson, candidate for a B.S. degree in nursing at UMass, has been elected first vice-president of the Massachusetts Nurses Association.

Miss Peterson, a staff nurse at Morton Hospital, is a graduate of Union Hospital School of Nursing, Fall River. She lives at 25 Linden St., Taunton.

The Massachusetts Nurses Association, a professional organization of registered nurses, is the state constituent of the American Nurses Association.

Robert R. Faulkner of the UMass sociology department will deliver a paper at a national Conference on Sport and Social Deviancy at the State University of New York College at Brockport Dec. 9-11.

The UMass sociologist's paper will be on "Violence Among Professional Hockey Players," to be delivered in a section on problems associated with the professionalization of sport.

Norfolk Transfers Prisoners

BOSTON (AP)-Sixteen inmates were transferred from Norfolk Prison Colony to Walpole State Prison several weeks ago because guards feared the Norfolk institution would be blown up, the state corrections commissioner told a U.S. Magistrate Tuesday.

Corrections Commissioner John Fitzpatrick testified during a hearing on an inmates' petition asking they be returned to the Norfolk prison.

An attorney for the inmates, Matt Feinberg, has argued the transfer violated the prisoners' civil rights because they were arbitrarily chosen for transfer.

Fitzpatrick told U.S. Magistrate Willie Davis he approved a decision of prison Superintendent Theodore Ristaino to transfer the inmates on Nov. 7 following a meeting with about 50 guards.

The commissioner said Ristaino and Senior Corrections Officer James Magnan, who is also president of the guards' union, decided to remove up to 32 prisoners to Walpole as a corrective measure.

Fitzpatrick testified he approved the move after the number was cut to 16, described by Magnan as "the most disruptive."

Prisoners at Norfolk staged a temporary work stoppage Sept. 27 to dramatize grievances.

Prior to the transfer, Fitzpatrick said, he received a letter from some 200 "Concerned Employes of Norfolk" which warned that the "insurrection" at the institution threatened to end in harm to the guards and other inmates.

Meanwhile Judge Harry J. Elam, chairman of a governor's committee studying prison problems, denied published reports the committee would recommend the removal of Superintendent Ristaino at Norfolk and Superintendent Robert J. Moore at Walpole.

CASIAC Pre-registration

CASIAC announces that in an effort to give all students a fair chance at obtaining their course preferences no overloads will be authorized during the pre-registration period.

College of Arts and Sciences student may elect up to and including 17 hours without an overload card during PREREGISTRATION. Although the Registrar will not refuse cards showing more than 17 hours, the final scheduling procedure will list no more than 17 hours per student.

WMUA

TONIGHT ON 91.1 FM:

7:00 p.m. EVENING NEWS - 30 minutes with emphasis on area news.

7:30 p.m. VIEWPOINT - Tonight a recent interview with UMass President Dr. Robert C. Wood will be featured. Topics discussed with Wood include the future of the Amherst campus in a statewide university system, changes in policy that would affect every student at UMass/Amherst, and the President's role in relation to the chancellors, campuses and university community.

8:00 p.m. REDMEN BASKETBALL - Ken Best and Marty Kelley bring you all the action as the Redmen meet St. Anselm's at the Cage for the season opener.

11:00 p.m. NEWS - another half hour report.

11:30 p.m. THE ERIC BENJAMIN SHOW - good music til 3:00.

Quicksilver

57 North Pleasant Street

LIVE MUSIC
Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday Nites
OLDIES NITE
Monday
STONES NITE
Wednesday

RESTAURANT
Open 24 Hours

Fabricworld

Holiday Sale

FASHION FABRICS
Last 3 Days!

POLYESTER CREPE
Reg. 3.99 yard $2.59
*Machine Washable
*Solid Colors
*45-inches wide

Machine Washable
Polyester Double Knits
Val. to 5.99 3.99
*58/60" wide
*Fashion Colors

Satins
Jacquards
Metallics
Brocades
Values to $8.50 yard and 99¢ $1.99

Crompton's Crushed Velvet
Reg. 5.99 yard $3.99
*100% Rayon
*Dry Clean
*39/40" wide

Hand Washable
Bonded Crepe
$1.99
Reg. 2.99
*45" wide
*Acetate/Nylon Blend

AMHERST 1 Pray St.
Daily 9:30 - 5:30 Fri. til 9
NORTHAMPTON
21 Pleasant St.
Open Daily 9:30 - 5:30
Thurs. til 9:00

The Massachusetts
Daily Collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

BOARD OF EDITORS

EDITOR IN CHIEF — Richard C. Hanson
MANAGING EDITOR — Nathan Gorenstein
BUSINESS MANAGER — James Gold
EXECUTIVE EDITOR — Barry J. Rubenstein
NEWS EDITOR — Anne C. Stadnicki
SPORTS EDITOR — Earle T. Barroll

PHOTO EDITOR — Gib Fullerton
FINE ARTS EDITOR — Robert Nesti

TODAY'S STAFF

ISSUE EDITOR — Steve Fine
NEWS STAFF — Bev Adamonis
EDITORIAL — Barry Rubenstein
SPORTS — Earle Barroll, Dan Kamal, Bob Medeiros
DARKROOM — Gary Alpaugh, Jim Reardon
AD LAYOUT — Bill Manburg

Undergraduate newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The Staff is responsible for its content and no faculty members or administration read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.
Unsigned editorials represent the views of this paper. They do not necessarily reflect the views of the faculty, administration, or student body as a whole. Signed editorials, columns, reviews, and letters represent the personal views of the writers.

Time To Act

Last spring the Faculty Senate passed a motion charging its Committee on Committees with making a proposal to increase representation of students and women on the Athletic Council. This was certainly not a radical move, but it was a step toward making the Council more representative of the campus.

The Committee on Committees was instructed to submit its recommendations no later than October 1. The committee did not begin to consider the question until November 23, and its formal recommendations still have not been presented.

On November 19, President Robert Wood met with the Athletic Council, urging them to add as many students as possible, under NCAA policy, to the Council.

Meanwhile, the Student Senate has passed a proposal to reorganize the Council to give students substantial control of the athletic funds derived from the student athletic fee.

In the midst of all of this activity, the Faculty Senate has remained aloof. The Student Senate's proposal was submitted to the Faculty Senate in October and was originally on the agenda for action this Thursday. Unfortunately, last week the Faculty Senate Rules Committee pigeon-holed the proposal in the same committee "for further study." In this case, students have played by the rules but the Faculty Senate seems to be using those rules to delay and delay.

We urge the Faculty Senate to act quickly on this issue. The cause of student participation is too important to be stalled any longer.

Permanent Hostages

Art Buchwald

In Defense Of Booing

WASHINGTON–Washington is still in shock from a booing incident that took place at the last Redskin home football game at RFK Stadium. It seems that the Redskin fans who had been euphoric about the team's early winning streak started to boo Coach George Allen because he refused to replace quarterback Billy Kilmer with Sonny Jurgensen, who had been out with injuries.

The fact that the Redskin fans would boo a team they had been cheering a few games back even shook up President Nixon, who made a surprise visit to the Redskin camp to reassure the players that he was rooting for them.

While most responsible people in Washington deplored the booing, my friend Lem Katcawler defended it.

"Booing is as American as apple pie," he said to me. "If we can't boo at a football game, we're no better than the Russians."

"But Lem," I protested, "you're not supposed to boo your own team."

"That's how much you know about booing. Everyone knows that booing is a form of emotional release. There was a time, I'll admit, when booing the other side was sufficient to get the juices flowing. But in the world we live in today the only real satisfaction fans get is booing their own team."

"It seems awfully cruel," I said.

"Perhaps," said Lem, "but everyone is doing it and not just at football games. Children are booing grownups, grownups are booing long hairs, voters are booing politicians, students are booing speakers and rank-and-file workers are booing their own labor leaders. There is 75% more booing going on in this country than there was 20 years ago."

"Why is that?"

"Everybody is mad," said Lem, "and they have to take it out on somebody. All of us have been brought up on the axiom that the only thing that counts in life is to win. So when somebody is losing, the natural thing to do is to boo him."

"But maybe if you cheered, it would help him win," I protested.

"That's old hat," Lem said. "There's so little to cheer about any more that people actually feel silly when they do it. Besides nobody pays any attention to people who cheer. It's the man who boos that everyone worries about."

"I guess I'm old-fashioned," I said, "but I feel much better when I cheer than when I boo."

"Anyone who cheers anything today is living in a fantasy world," Lem said. "What's there to shout about?"

"I don't know, Lem, but there has to be something."

"Look, when I was young I used to do a lot of cheering myself. I cheered the Flag, I cheered the President, I cheered for my school, I cheered for the sake of cheering. But now that Americans don't know which side they're on any more, the safest thing to do is to boo."

"It's awfully tough on people who are trying their hardest," I said.

"That's too bad," Lem said. "But if I don't boo, people will think I don't care what happens. I'm just one guy, but when they add my boos to everyone else's boos, they're going to have to reckon with us and change their ways."

"Who's they?" I asked.

"Whomever we're booing, stupid."

Copyright 1971, Los Angeles Times

Nixon Brings It All Home

By FRANK JOHNSON
Editorial Staff

My colleague Frank Baglione's recent and scintillating article on contemporary obscenity was interesting, and timely as well. According to a recent article written by John Osborne in the New Republic, President Nixon is reported to have said: "fuck the ABA!" when asked about the possible opposition of the American Bar Association to his recent court nominations. This rather strong and visceral utterance brings to mind three appraisals of Mr. Nixon. The first one intimates that apparently he's been doing some listening to some of the more vociferous student demonstrators and assimilating their language; evidently it's an irresistable force he's up against. Second, the office of the President of the United States is apparently not such a lofty haven reserved only for those intellectuals loath to utter the language of the street. Thirdly, it tells us something about Mr. Nixon himself; evidently he's turned out to be one of us after all. Can't we all admit to having at least thought in those terms before, if not having actually yelled them outright? Such news is welcome relief that tends to dispel the myth of the President as an ubermensch, borrowing an idea from Friedrich Nietzche, and it tends also to invoke a line from Bob Dylan: "Sometimes even the President of the United States has to stand naked."

But assuming intellectual equality with everyone else should not be the goal of the President. In the context of the situation cited in the Osborne article, there might have been some excuse for the utterance itself, but there is no excuse for the reason Mr. Nixon uttered it. If indeed the President feels so strongly about a judicial body eminently more qualified than he to evaluate Supreme Court nominees, he should at least have the courage to assess the prudence not only of his expletives but of his knowledge of this countries judicial system. Mr. Nixon's history of nominees to the Court is a dismal one. In no instance has he seen fit to overthrow the anachronistic cloak of "strict interpretation of the constitution" or the "Southern strategy." In the latter respect, the President may indeed be fulfilling his 1968 campaign promises made to the Southern contingent, and he may also be fulfilling additional promises of law-n-order, which he made in that same year. But in so doing he is definitely not fulfilling any task of bringing wisdom and much-needed liberalism to the Supreme Court. Instead, he insists on questioning the integrity of that judicial body by suggesting less than totally desireable nominees, all the while bestowing accolades on them and citing their notable achievements selectively. In the event that Powell's substantial financial holdings come into question, is Mr. Powell to sit down in front of the TV camera and do a repeat performance of the 1952 "checkers" speech, in gratitude for his nomination by "the old chief?" Is Mr. Rehnquist planning to distinguish himself by making efforts to conceal his sorry record of civil rights and related legislation? Or is Mr. Nixon planning to be good to his word and "fuck" the ABA, as he says? He has certainly done it symbolically in the form of his record of nominations to the Supreme Court.

"Adequate Planning?"

WALTER E. CRONIN
Editorial staff

Tonight, members of the undergraduate body set out to represent the University in both hockey and basketball. But where will they perform? Well, basketball fans, once again you are privileged to frequent the "Cage," constructed back in those days of Mass Aggie, when the school served the needs of a few thousand. And hockey fans, you will find the rink about two miles down the road at Amherst College, but beware of arriving late, as the capacity is no more than 1400.

The year 1971 is drawing to a close. In a few short months the class of 1976 will have been accepted. And what is being done to fill the needs of the University community?

Last year the Administration deemed it necessary to stop the concerts from being held at the "Cage." The public safety was at stake, and a wise step was taken. But what is being done to plan for the community an auditorium of adequate size? And who defines what is an "adequate" size? What was an adequate gymnasium? For example, there are nearly 10,000 men, including the graduate students, but excluding the faculty, staff, and administration, at the present time. Down at Boyden there are 5 handball-paddleball-squash courts, and they are continually in use and oversubscribed. Was this "adequate" planning?

As the University delays in constructing an "adequate" auditorium, which could somehow incorporate a hockey rink and basketball complex, the building construction costs soar. The need is now, and for the future, and what is being done?

Imagine having an auditorium where commencement could be held, distinguished guests could speak, movies could be run, conventions could congregate, concerts could be held safely...the list could go on. And think, for a moment, of having a hockey rink so that we could have intramural hockey, public skating, ice rental, and skating classes in which there is no need of a $33.00 lab fee...the list could go on. And think of the pleasure of being able to see a basketball game, or a hockey hame, without the inconvenience of standing in line for hours, or being told that there is no more room available.

In the interim, would it be possible for the proper authority to put that fire hydrant, which is next to the pond, to use? Some of us would appreciate having the ice flooded once in a while during the skating season. And, if this is possible, could it be done at night, when those of the student population, who like to throw rocks and sticks on the surface, aren't around? Many thanks.

'THERE COMES A TIME WHEN ENOUGH IS ENOUGH . . . '

Letters To The Editor

Non-Debasing Films

To the Editor:

Women and non-white students contribute in fees and in other ways to UMass, however, the activities especially in entertainment are oriented toward white and sexist students. We are opposed to an expensive, commercially pushed all male, all white rock (symbolic of rape?) festival this Spring in the stadium. We are also aware of the films shown nightly on this campus. Dorm committees that rent films as well as the Student Senate Program Council might consider criteria other than what is popular, i.e. pushed by mass media, Hollywood pervert P.R. people and what is profitable, i.e. white male habit of greed. These popular films are very expensive also. "Beyond the Valley of the Dolls" rents for $200. Another response for not considering other films besides the popular ones is that they are "political," but might it not be true that by not showing films such as those we list below that these organizations exemplify institutional racism and sexism. These organizations patronize status quo attitudes, white male directed movies, movies where the leading roles are played by "good?" white dominant males and submissive non-real, sex-for-sale females with the "bad" roles played traditionally by non-whites and where nonwhites either as directors or characters in films are labeled "foreign." Blacks, Hispanis and a growing battering in the media and entertainment of these racist and sexist themes.

We are petitioning for our right to see non-debasing films subsidized by these university committees.

Deborah Peterson, et al

Greatest Performance Ever

To the Editor:

On Sunday evening, November 21, I watched the greatest performance I have ever seen. It was great not because the plot was intricate or mind bending, not because the scenery was beautiful, or not because the costumes were well designed. It was none of these. The performance was the talent show put on at the Belchertown State School and it was great because it will be a long time before I ever again see a show where the actors and those who directed the show put so much of themselves into the performance. It was great because the patients who acted showed as much enjoyment in giving the performance as the audience did in watching. It was great because it was a bargain. No one who went made themselves have a good time because they had to empty their wallet for a front row seat. Admission was free. Watching the patients act made me wonder whether they had been committed because they were mentally deficient or whether they were there to save themselves from those of us on the "outside" who don't know what it's like to be ourselves and to act freely and natural. It's a shame there weren't enough people at the show to give everyone involved the credit they deserved.

George Gilman

Student Statement Of Ownership, Management And Circulation (Act of August, 1970: Section 3685, title 39, United States Code)

1. Title of Publication--Massachusetts Daily Collegian 2. Date of Filing--September 30, 1971
3. Frequency of Issue--Five times weekly, Monday through Friday, during academic year, except during vacations and exam periods, or when a holiday falls within a week.
4. Location of known office of publication--Student Union Building, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, Mass.
5. Location of the headquarters or general business offices of the publishers--Student Union Building, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, Mass.
6. Names and addresses of the Publisher, Editor, and Managing Editor--Publisher, Student Body of the University of Massachusetts, Amherst; Editor, Richard C. Hanson, Butterfield House, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, Mass.; Managing Editor, David D. Williams, Moore House, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, Mass.
7. Owner--
8. Known bondholders, mortgagees, and other security holders owning or holding 1 percent or more of total amount of bonds, mortgages or other securities--none.
9. The purpose, function, and nonprofit status of this organization and the exempt status for Federal income tax purposes have not changed during the preceding 12 months.
10. Extent and nature of circulation:

A. Total No. Copies printed: Average No. copies each issue during preceding 12 months, 13,500; actual number of copies of single issue published nearest to filing date, 16,500.

B. Paid Circulation. 1. Sales through dealers and carriers, street vendors and counter sales, average no. copies each issue during preceding 12 months, 100; actual number of copies of single issue published nearest to filing date, 100. 2. Mail subscriptions, average no. copies each issue during preceding 12 months, 300; actual number of copies of single issue published nearest to filing date, 60.

C. Total Paid Circulation: average no. copies each issue during preceding 12 months, 400; actual number of copies of single issue published nearest to filing date, 160.

D. Free Distribution by mail, carrier, or other means: 1. Samples, complimentary, and other free copies, average no. copies each issue during preceding 12 months, 12,900; actual number of copies of single issue published nearest to filing date, 15,340. 2. Copies distributed to news agents but not sold: average no. copies each issue during preceding 12 months, NONE; actual number of copies of single issue published nearest to filing date, None.

E. Total Distribution: average no. copies each issue during preceding 12 months, 13,300; actual number of copies of single issue published nearest to filing date, 15,500.

F. Office use, left-over, unaccounted, spoiled after printing: average no. copies each issue during preceding 12 months, 200; actual number of copies of single issue published nearest to filing date, 1,000.

G. Total: average no. copies each issue during preceding 12 months, 13,500; actual number of copies of single issue published nearest to filing date, 16,500.

I certify that the statements made above are correct and complete.

James E. Gold
Business Manager

Joy To Be Female

By SUSAN J. RAY

What with all this Women's Lib, biz, I'm really beginning to discover my true role in today's society. Though a difficult project, raising the consciousness of the men in my life is almost as rewarding as it used to be working for the day when, I, too, would be happily wedded to home and family.

Needing an audience for my daily insights, I was brought to approach a male with the proposition:

"Honey, I've seen the clear light of good thoughts, and I need you to share with me the joys of my new existance."

He was demure at first, but acquiesced after I hinted to the extent of my sexual prowess. We would, of course, share in the daily progression of events, drinking in the essence of each unique occurence. I took the responsibility seriously, and was anxious to show him all I knew.

First of all, it was important to demonstrate where contemporary society was missing most of the good points about women and their lot. As Ghandi used to say, "An hour's worth of menial work daily reaffirms one's ties with the earth." Sometime I ought to write whoever it was who started the whole bit about getting back to the good earth and thank her. True, Ghandi took to spinning, but we were bound to make this a totally creative venture, so I suggested that housework was entirely suitable to reaffirmation in general. He was agreeable, in his winsome manner. Such a good man; never difficult or argumentative, and I grew to love him for this.

With my years of experience, it was a simple process to explain the workings of cleaning, laundering and so on. I suggested after this brief introduction to his consciousness practice that if I left him to work out the details of his own personal method, he would gain enormously by doing it himself. I mentioned the many instances of new blood revamping and improving on old, possibly outdated methods, suggesting that it was within his power to come up with an earth shattering way to turn the corners on bedsheets, or dust into the very depths of the floor space beneath the desk. It was gratifying to sense the vitality that grew within him as he groped through the possibilities available to him for his enlightenment. For my part, I was quick to stand by his side through difficult scrubbings, praise him, even bring him little gifts and good, green plants for his window sill. As his assurance grew, so did mine, and I retired to the phone in pursuit of my own search for truth.

"Hello, Margaret? Listen: there's a good show on at eight. Let's head on down to the Drake and catch it over a few beers." Margaret, as a fellowwoman, was more in tune with my place on the road to serenity, and I often sought her company during those times when my industrious male was preoccupied with the tasks before him. She usually beat the shit outa me at pool, but we were on a par with pinball, and she had an eye for a good ass whenever some likely cat passed in our revue.

Margaret mentioned how this dude had proposed to her a week ago, and I asked her how she got around him. She explained that it had become mostly a point wherein he wasn't willing to follow her from coast to coast while she worked up her career singing country bluegrass.

"Men are strange like that," she concluded. "They get excited over the status of being married to an entertainer and then expect her to give up rehearsal time and important engagements for family and home. Liberating men is going to be damn difficult, that's all I gotta say."

We screwed around at the Drake till it closed and I gave some guy a ride home.....got into the yard around two. He was sleeping gently when I crawled under the sheets, but it took more than one caress to wake him. He lifted his head, looking a little fuzzy.

"Not tonight, honey, huh? I'm tired."

"What's this? Don't you want to relate together? Remember, if you want to raise your consciousness ya gotta raise more than your head. Wake up."

It was useless, though, he had curled back up into a ball and slept on, his head on my forearm. I lay back on the pillow thinking of the day's events. It was obvious there was more to be done before we really got into the groove together. He was cool, though, was really anxious to see to both my own and his fulfillment, and I had confidence. After all, not all men were being given the opportunity to contribute to the growth of a female psyche. In a way it was fantastic to be a part of all I was showing him. Yes, I had to admit, It's a real joy being female, and all the responsibilities of seeing that this new ideal was spread through the land came to me as I dozed off.

"We Feel We've Maintained A Balance In The Middle East"

MIT Professor Files Boston Wiretap Suit

BOSTON (AP) - Noam Chomsky, professor of linguistics at MIT and a critic of the Vietnam war, Monday asked a U.S. District Court to bar the government from conducting illegal wiretaps on his telephone.

The suit names as defendants U.S. Atty. Gen. John Mitchell, FBI director J. Edgar Hoover and the New England Telephone Co., a statement from Chomsky's attorneys said. The suit seeks a temporary and permanent injunction to halt any illegal wiretapping, one attorney said, as well as restitution and punitive damages.

Allan R. Rosenberg, one of the attorneys, said no date for a hearing was set. He said he expected to ask for a hearing on the request for a temporary injunction "within a week or so."

Rosenberg said Chomsky also filed "requests for discovery and interrogatories" asking the court to require the government and the telephone company to disclose whether certain numbers used by the MIT professor had been tapped.

The grand jury inquiry had been suspended since Oct. 29 after Sen. Mike Gravel, D—Alaska, argued before the U.S. Court of Appeals.

Amherst Increases Budget Horizon

By STEPHEN SMITH

A sharp rise in capital outlays beginning in 1974 was forecast in the Long Range Capital Budget (1972 through 1976) submitted to the Selectmen Monday, while estimates for 1972 and 1973 spending approximate the 1971 budget level.

The increase in pirmarily

The increase is primarily due to the new Wildwood-type school and sewage treatment facilities approved at the Oct. 4 special Town meeting. The expenditures peak in 1975, when they are projected to be more than $300,000 over the 1971 total.

The budget came to the selectmen in working draft form for review before being sent to the finance committee. The board discussed it at leagth, made some tentative suggestions, but failed to give it official approval.

"The matter is still before the selectmen," said Town Manager Allen Torrey. "I hope the budget is adopted, at least in principal, at their next meeting."

After the selectmen's endorsement, Torrey will redraft the document for submission to the finance committee. The budget will then come before the March town meeting for ultimate approval.

The Long Range Capital Budget, which includes debt, and debt service in its totals, is comprised of all expenditures over $2000, and is not to be operating budget which is considerably higher. Ninety-four per cent of the operating budget is allocated to salaries of town personnel.

The working draft of the five year budget was prepared by an administrative committee, including Torrey, Supt. of Public Works Stanley Ziomek, Town Engineer James Smith Assessor John McDermott, Town Planner James Cope, and Administrative Assistant John Tegley Torrey gave Tegley most of the credit for the actual compilation of the document.

The town manager summarized Monday's meeting by saying the selectmen gave a "general endorsement of the Long Range Capital Budget, expressing for the acquisition of land and some concern that we should be moving ahead on fire and police station needs."

The board also indicated that it might be preferable to include the replacement of equipment within the operating budget rather than in the capital budget.

In regard to the specifics of the budget, there is a projected 2.4 decrease in capital outlays from 1971 to 1972, from $1,133,301 to $1,106,049. The 1973 estimate shows an approximate return to the 1971 level.

In 1974, however, an expenditure of $1,351,418 is expected, representing an increase of 18.4 per cent over the previous year. The increase, as was previously mentioned, is due to a sharp upswing in land and building spending, specifically the new school and sewage facilities.

The apex of the capital budget is marked in 1975 with a projected outlay of $1,440,256, a rise of 6.5 per cent above the 1974 total. There is a slight drop-off of 3.1 per cent from 1975 to the estimated 1976 figure of $1,395,736.

A comparison between the specific categories of spending in 1971 and those of the next five years is impossible at this time, because the functional area breakdown in the long range budget does not coincide exactly with the 1971 classifications.

Capital improvements in land and buildings represent the largest expenditure in the budget as well as the greatest increase in the five year period. The total land and building spending for 1975 is $944,728 which is $365,400 more than the estimated outlay for 1972.

The most notable aspect of this total is the "Wildwood II" costs, which for 1974 through 1976 are over $200,000. This spending continues in 1977 and 1978 at a figure slightly less than $200,000.

Also important are the allocations for the sewage treatment plant, which beginning in 1975 are more than $100,000. The budget also calls for funds for a new police station, which approach $50,000 starting in 1975 and continue at a similar amount during the following three years.

Public safety spending is envisioned to be high from 1972 to 1974 when close to $180,000 is allotted. This total includes the purchase of an 85 foot elevating platform apparatus ($85,000) and a Deisel automatic pumping engine ($44,000).

Public works equipment spending rises about 30 per cent in 1974-76 due in part to the acquisition of a sanitary landfill tractor ($30,000) and a truck and hydraulic bucket ($20,000).

The water division allocations rise from $216,301 in 1972 to $240,645 in 1976, with appropriations of $50,000 in 1974 and 1975 for water main construction from the Belchertown well area to Bay Road.

Highway project outlays remain fairly constant in the five year span at close to $200,000. The school department equipment and recreation expenditures are characterized by single sizeable outlays: $11,000 for a school bus in 1972 and $10,000 for a tractor and mower in 1974, respectively. By Hampshire Gazette

National Park Backing Urged

AMHERST - At last night's meeting of the board of selectmen word was received from Mrs. Naomi Langford and James Walker of the Amherst Environmental Concerns Committee urging the town to take over stewardship of the proposed Mount Holyoke Range national park if park enacting legislation should fail in Congress.

Ten days ago a request for approval of preliminary plans for a development south of Bay Rd. and extending on to the Mount Holyoke Range was brought before the Planning Board by Gordon Neylon of Amherst.

Much of the area in the proposed development is included in the boundaries of the planned national park.

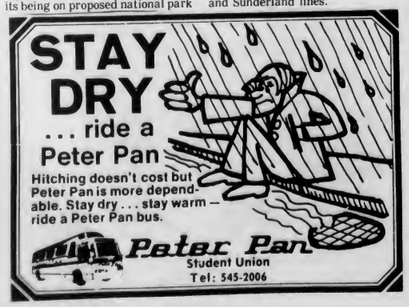
In reference to the Neylon project, Selectmen Nancy Eddy said it was "a real desecration and this board should do anything it can to halt it."

Town Manager Allen Torrey commented that if "the selectmen are against it, if you feel that strongly about it, then say so." He added that town board "always get stuck" in situations where they don't like something, but feel they can't do anything about it.

Torrey urged the board to communicate their feelings to other town agencies on the matters, in effect to say "if you go to court, we'll back you up."

The Planning Board had not concealed their antipathy to the project when it comes before them, and in fact, flirted with the idea of rejection it solely on the grounds of its being on proposed national park land, and unprecedented move. However, they postponed their decision pending a report from their subcommittee.

According to Mrs. Eddy, the proposed national park is in danger of dying in Congress ostensibly, because of a lack of citizen support. She related that Sen. Edward Kennedy had only received 50 letters on the park's behalf.



The board determined to study the plans for the national park, as well as the plans for the proposed development, and discuss the situation at its meeting next Tuesday.

In the meantime, Chairman Merle Howes will call Sen. Kennedy to convey the Selectmen's endorsement of the park and to get the latest information on the park's chances of approval in Washington.

The Selectmen also discussed the Sewer Treatment Plant Technical Advisory Committee's request for a specific charge. "If we have a committee, it should have a charge," said board member H. Hills Skillings.

The board agreed, but no one was anxious to volunteer. "Who feels nearly on the verge of volunteering?" asked Howes. There were still no takers. Finally Torrey offered to prepare a draft by Monday, at which time, he said, "you can react to it."

In reference to Saturday's perambulation of the town lines, Skillings reported that he and Torrey had "viewed and properly decorated the appropriate monuments" along the Shutesbury and Sunderland lines.

Additional Course Descriptions

Italian 126-Intensive Elementary Italian - Anthony Terrizzi - Herter 304
Organization of course (lecture? Discussion? Seminar?)
Lecture,and discussion
Aim of course
To gain in one semester the degree of competence in the language which the linguistically gifted student demonstrates after one year of the traditional semester sequence.
Readings (suggested and required)
Texts:
Speroni-Golino: Basic Italian
Ragusa-Letture facili
Requirements (papers? exams? oral reports? projects? field trips?)
Two hour exams and final
Pre-Requisites for admission
None
Added notes
For highly motivated students with no previous knowledge of Italian, regardless of their success or failure in other language courses. Meeting as it does 5 days a week, the process of learning is effected by immediate correctional and continual reinforcement.

Italian 140, Intermediate Italian - 3 credits
Organization of course (lecture? Discussion? Seminar?)
Lecture and discussion.
Aim of course
To review four language skills while introducing the student to Italian literature.
Readings (suggested and required)
Readings in various literary forms selected from among contemporary writers, short stories, plays and novels.
Requirements (papers? exams? oral reports? projects? field trips?)
A few short papers or quizzes, 2-hour exams, and a final
Pre-Requisites for admission
Italian 130
Added notes
Discussion and papers on the readings are conducted exclusively in Italian.

Italian 146, Intensive Intermediate Italian - 6 credits
Organization of course (lecture? Discussion? Seminar?)
Reading and discussion of literary and cultural texts.
Aim of course
Second semester of our intensive track. For motivated students who have had the equivalent of one year of College Italian. Reinforcement of basic language skills, further training in all skills. Reading and discussion of literary and cultural texts.
Readings (suggested and required)
Grammar review materials, short stories and poetry, one novel, two plays.
Requirements (papers? exams? oral reports? projects? field trips?)
Frequent short papers, oral reports, 2 hour exams, final.
Pre-Requisites for admission
Italian 126 or equivalent
Added notes
Discussion and papers on readings and on various other topics. The class is conducted exclusively in Italian.

Italian 162 - Introduction to Italian Literature - Anthony Terrizzi - Herter 304
Organization of course (lecture? Discussion? Seminar?)
Lecture and discussion
Aim of course
Selected works in several genres from the 17th century to the present studies analytically and critically to develop intensive reading skills and extend the student's ability to interpret and explicate in Italian both orally and in writing. (Marino, Baretti, Foscolo, Manzoni, Leopardi, Verga, Pirandello, Pavese, Saba, Ungaretti, Montale)
Readings (suggested and required)
Requirements (papers? exams? oral reports? projects? field trips?)
one paper, midterm and final exams
Pre-Requisites for admission
Equivalent of Italian 140 or permission of instructor.

Italian 182
Organization of course (lecture? Discussion? Seminar?)
Conversation
Aim of course
This course will focus on the oral aspects of the Italian language as it is spoken today. Emphasis will be on pronunciation, vocabulary building and fluency through informal discussions.
Readings (suggested and required)
Current Italian periodicals, short novel.
Requirements (papers? exams? oral reports? projects? field trips?)
Pre-Requisites for admission
Italian 140 or equivalent or permission of instructor.

Italian 290 - Italian Literature in translation. First half. From the origins to 1700. Instructor; Robert Bongiorno. Office Hours: Mon., Wed., Fri., 10 to Noon.
Organization of course (lecture? Discussion? Seminar?)
Depending on enrollment. Preferably seminar, but, should enrollment make this impracticable, we will try to alternate discussion with lecture.
Aim of course
This will be to introduce the student to early Italian literature, particulary in its application to and influence on other European literatures and its residual effects on the contemporary world.
Readings (suggested and required)
Xeroxed poetry of the Scuola Siciliana and the Dolce stil nuovo, supplied by instructor. Dante, The New Life, paper, Penguin. Boccaccio, paper, Dell, The Decameron. Petrarch, Selected Sonnets, Odes and Letters, paper, Appleton, Century Crofts. Bentley, The Classic Theater (Vol. I), paper, Anchor. Pico della Mirandola, On the Dignity of Man, paper, Regnery. Lorenzo Valla, De voluptate (On voluptuousness). xeroxed translation by instructor. Machiavelli, The Prince, (suggested), paper, Washington Square Press. Machiavelli La Mandragola, paper, S.F. Vanni., Castiglione, The Book of the Courtier, paper, Ungar. Poliziano, The Stanzas for the Joust, xeroxed translation supplied by instructor. Kristeller, Eight Philosophers of the Italian Renaissance, paper, Stanford U. Press (suggested). Ariosto, Orlando Furioso, paper, S. F. Vanni, Tasso, Aminta, edition to be decided. Recommended: Garzanti, Dizionario Italiano-Inglese, Inglese-Italiano, S. V. Vanni.
Requirements (papers? exams? oral reports? projects? field trips?)
Not open to Italian majors or to students who have completed Italian 161. One brief paper, one hour exam, final exam.
Pre-Requisites for admission
No pre-requisites. Not open to Italian majors or to students who have completed Italian 161.
Added notes
The nature of this course may vary somewhat as the nature and interests of the students is discovered. The reading list is not to be construed as immutable. There will be an attempt made to link the literature of the pre Renaissance, early Renaissance and late Renaissance to Italian civilization and its effects on European culture.

Italian 302 Dante and the Duecento 3 credits
Organization of course (lecture? Discussion? Seminar?)
Aim of course
Selections from the works of Dante and his contemporaries; intensive study of the Divine Comedy.
Readings (suggested and required)
The Divine Comedy
Requirements (papers? exams? oral reports? projects? field trips?)
Pre-Requisites for admission
Italian 301
Added notes

Italian 310-Pre-humanism and early Renaissance - Sara Sturm - Herter 307
Organization of course (lecture? Discussion? Seminar?)
Lecture for background material; close reading and discussion of texts.
Aim of course
To study in depth selected masterpieces of Italian Renaissance literature, and to relate these to the more general questions of humanism and the Renaissance in Italy.
Readings (suggested and required)
Russo, I Classici Italiani: Dal Duecento al Quattrocento, part II; Petrarch, Il Canzoniere; Boccaccio, Il Decameron; Wilkins, Life of Petrarch; Ady, Lorenzo dei Medici and Renaissance Italy; Lorenzo de'Medici, Poesie; and a number of reference books on humanism and the Renaissance will be suggested.
Requirements (papers? exams? oral reports? projects? field trips?)
Mid-semester and final examinations (probably outside class); one critical paper.
Pre-Requisites for admission
Italian 161-162 or equivalent.

Italian 340, Modern Theater
Organization of course (lecture? Discussion? Seminar?)
Primarily discussion, some lecture.
Aim of course
Close reading and analysis of representative works of Italian theater of last 100 years and 3 fold aim will be to arrive at some insights into theater as an art form. This period in Italian literature and the individual art works and authors.
Readings (suggested and required)
Readings will be selected from among the works of Verga, Pirandello, Buzzatti, Giacosa, Betti, etc., plus supplemental literature of appropriate critical works.
Requirements (papers? exams? oral reports? projects? field trips?)
Several short critical papers and one term paper.
Pre-Requisites for admission
Italian 162 or equivalent.

French 120
Organization of course (lecture? Discussion? Seminar?)
3 classes and 2 labs
Aim of course
This course is the second semester sequel of the Beginning French course (110). Its aim is to continue the development of the 4 basic abilities: speaking, comprehending, reading and writing the foreign language.
Readings (suggested and required)
Parole et Pensee - Yvone Lenard
Requirements (papers? exams? oral reports? projects? field trips?)
Daily homework assignments; weekly quizzes; frequent oral and written compositions; 2 hour tests; 1 final exam
Pre-Requisites for admission
French 110 or the equivalent

French 123
Organization of course (lecture? Discussion? Seminar?)
Aim of course
This is an intensive review of basic French for students who have had two to three years in high school but failed to place into 130.
Readings (suggested and required)
Parole et Pensee
Requirements (papers? exams? oral reports? projects? field trips?)
Written exercises, quizzes, hour exams and final
Pre-Requisites for admission
Some high school French

French 126
Organization of course (lecture? Discussion? Seminar?)
Oral drills, discussion. Intensive eight classes and two labs/week for 6 credits.
Aim of course
To cover in one semester what is usually done in one year. For motivated students only.
Readings (suggested and required)
Thomas H. Brown, French, Listening, Speaking, Reading, Writing (Required)
Paul Pimsler, C'est la Vie (Required)
Requirements (papers? exams? oral reports? projects? field trips?)
2 hourly exams and 1 final - both written and oral; 1 oral report; short compositions, quizzes
Pre-Requisites for admission
This course is for students who have never had French.

French 130
Organization of course (lecture? Discussion? Seminar?)
Aim of course
To give students ability to read French texts both literary and non-literary and to review grammar with a reading (translating) orientation. The course is not meant for French conversation nor for developing the 4 skills necessary for a French major.
Readings (suggested and required)
La Nouveau Passe Muraille, Sandberg and Schubert; Nouvelles du Matin, Maurino; La France et les Francais, Brodin and Ernst; Le Meutre d'un etudiant, Georges Simenon
Requirements (papers? exams? oral reports? projects? field trips?)
2 hourly exams; several quizzes (usually weekly); sheets for practice drills; final exam
Pre-Requisites for admission
French 120 or its equivalent

French 131-Intermediate Conversation
Organization of course (lecture? Discussion? Seminar?)
Discussion and Exercises
Aim of course
To develop skill in speaking French
Readings (suggested and required)
Text: Spoken French in Review(revised edition), Quentin M. Hope, Macmillan
Requirements (papers? exams? oral reports? projects? field trips?)
Considerable memorization, participation in discussion, reading aloud, short oral reports. Individual oral exam at semester's end, consisting of conversation and prepared and unprepared reading
Pre-Requisites for admission
French 120 or its equivalent
Added notes
Enrollment limited to 15. No English will be spoken.

French 132-Intermediate honors
Organization of course (lecture? Discussion? Seminar?)
Aim of course
To give a thorough review of grammar and training in the four skills necessary for students wishing to continue French beyond the 140 level
Readings (suggested and required)
L'Etranger, Camus; Le Square Marguerite, Duras; L'Essentiel de la grammaire francaise, L.F Hoffmann; Nouvelles du Matin, Maurino
Requirements (papers? exams? oral reports? projects? field trips?)
Drill sheets; compositions; small oral reports; conversation, more informally organized
Pre-Requisites for admission
A willingness to work hard on basic fundamental grammatical concepts is absolutely required in this course.

French 141
Organization of course (lecture? Discussion? Seminar?)
Conversation
Aim of course
This is a continuation of French 131 and the emphasis is on conversational French.
Readings (suggested and required)
Pour Parler, Anne-Marie Bryan and Jean Duche, Prentice-Hall
Requirements (papers? exams? oral reports? projects? field trips?)
Proficiency exams
Pre-requisites for admission
French 131 or equivalent
Added notes
Class attendance is compulsory. The class meets 4 times a week.

French 142-Intermediate French (Honors and Majors) - Mrs. P. Johnson and staff. 319 Herter - 11:00-11:45 M, F; 1:00-2:00, T; 8:00-9:00 W.
Organization of course (lecture? Discussion? Seminar?)
Ordinarily a discussion course, although there may be occasional lectures.
Aim of course
To acquaint majors and prospective advanced students in the department with the basic literary vocabulary and procedures of analysis, as well as to help them acquire an ability to express themselves in French in literary essays.
Readings (suggested and required)
Contempoary French short stories, novels, plays, and poetry. Student editions containing vocabularies will be available at the bookstore; precise readings vary with sections. A good dictionary (Harrap's Mansion's) should be in the student's possession at the beginning of the course.
Requirements (papers? exams? oral reports? projects? field trips?)
6-8 short papers in French on a choice of assigned subjects; 1 hour exam, one final exam; quizzes at the discretion of the instructor.
Pre-Requisites for admission
Any course at the 130 level (130, 133, 132) or advanced placement (preferably by placement exam).
Added notes
For honors students, majors, prospective majors, and any student planning to elect advanced courses in French. (Honors students planning no further French may wish to consider other alternatives at the 140 level which require no composition.)

French 144-Contemporary French Fiction Staff. Questions concerning this course should be directed to Mrs. P. Johnson, 319 Herter, 11-11:45 M, F; 1-2 T, 8-9 W.
Organization of course (lecture? Discussion? Seminar?)
Essentially a discussion course, although there may be occasional lectures.
Aim of course
To enable students to read contempoary French fiction in French without recourse to translations in English, as well as to acquaint them with the works of major contempoary French writers.
Readings (suggested and required)
Student editions containing vocabularies will be available at the bookstore. Precise selections vary with sections. A small dictionary (French-English) of the Larousee paperback type will be helpful.
Requirements (papers? exams? oral reports? projects? field trips?)
No term paper, occasional short quizzes as required by the instructor. Two hour exams, final exam.
Pre-Requisites for admission
Any course at the 130 level (130-133-132) or advanced placement (preferably by placement exam).
Added notes
Students planning further courses in French should elect French 142, since French 144 is not designed to prepare students for more advanced work.

French 145-Readings in the Humanities - Sara Sturm, Herter 307
Organization of course (lecture? Discussion? Seminar?)
Practice in rapid reading of French as necessary; discussion of works considered.
Aim of course
To develop skill and ease in reading French through the study of selected topics in the humanities.
Readings (suggested and required)
Readings will include N. Sarraute, L'ere du soupcon; Simone de Beauvoir, Pour une moraie de l'ambiguite; and two works illustrating modern use of classical myths, Anouilh, Antigone, and Giraudoux, La guerre de Troie n'aura pas lieu. Further readings will depend in part on the students' major areas of interest within the humanities.
Requirements (papers? exams? oral reports? projects? field trips?)
No term paper; occasional short exercises; mid-semester and final exams.
Pre-Requisites for admission
Any course at the 130 level, or equivalent advanced placement. Class discussion and writing will be in English. This course should not be taken by students who plan further study of French; these should elect 142.

French 146-Intensive Intermediate French - 6 credits
Organization of course (lecture? Discussion? Seminar?)
To give students ability to read French texts both literary and non-literary and to review grammar with a reading translating) orientation.
Aim of course
Covers 3rd and 4th semesters in one.
Readings (suggested and required)
Beckett: En attendant Godot; Carlut and Marks, eds., Recits de nos jours; R. Laubreaux, ed. Anouilh: Antigone; Smith and Savacool, eds. Voix du siecle; Valette, Rebecca, Ed. Lectures Libres; Barson, John-Cahier d'exercices: A l'oeuvre; Barson, John - La Grammaire a l'oeuvre
Requirements (papers? exams? oral reports? projects? field trips?)
Pre-Requisites for admission
French 126 or its equivalent.

French 161-Phonetics and Phonemes
Organization of course (lecture? Discussion? Seminar?)
Intensive practice of French pronunciation with emphasis on a comparison of the French and English sound systems and concern for intonation.
Aim of course
see above
Readings (suggested and required)
Valdman, Albert, Robert J. Salazar, Marie-Antoinette Charbonneau: A Drillbook of French Pronunciation; Delattre, Pierre, Les difficuites phonetiques du francais
Requirements (papers? exams? oral reports? projects? field trips?)
No papers. Transcription practice; also several quizzes, one hourly and a final
Pre-Requisites for admission
Beginning courses in French

French 162-Conversation 3 credits
Organization of course (lecture? Discussion? Seminar?)
Aim of course
Practice in conversational French
Readings (suggested and required)
F. Novion, Les Mots Anglais; Carduner, l'Amerique d'aujourd'hui vue par les Francais; Francois, et al, Voix et iangage
Requirements (papers? exams? oral reports? projects? field trips?)

French 171-French Literature: Novel and Poetry - Chairman: Mrs. Lawall
Description
The generes of novel and poetry studied in a series of unabridged French texts. The course emphasizes literary analysis with special attention given to the genres as such, to recurrent themes, to close reading of given passages (explication de texte), to development of a critical vocabulary in French, and to the relationship of texts to main movements in French literary history.
Required texts:
Marie de France, Lais (selections provided by department); Guilleragues, Lettres portugaises (text provided by the department); Prevost, Manon Lescaut; Constant, Adolphe; Balzac, Le Colonel Chabert; Gide, L'Immoraliste; Camus, La Chute; Dufau and D'Alelio, Explication du poeme
Optional texts:
The bookstore will have a limited number of Cruickshank's French Literature and Its Background (paper) and of Scholes Elements of Fiction (paper)
Supplementary materials:
Taking up a suggestion of students in the course, the department will offer optional bi-weekly evening lectures to orient students in the main movements of French literary and political history. Also, as noted in the list of texts, several works will be duplicated and supplied at no charge by the department.
Vocabulary lists provided.
Pre-Requisites and limitations:
All reading and discussion is in French. However, non-French majors may write papers and exams in English. French 172 considers only theater and essay; its companion course, French 171, may be taken at any time.
Papers:
Two short papers (3-4 pp.), probably following the form of explication de texte.
Exams:
Two hour-exams plus one final.
Short quizzes.

French 172-French Literature: Theater and Essay - Chairman: Mrs. Lawall
Description:
The genres of theater and essay studied in a series of unabridged French texts. The course emphasizes literary analysis with special emphasis given to the genres as such, to recurrent themes, to close reading of given passes (explication de texte), to development of a critical vocabulary in French, and to the relationship of texts to main movements in French literary history.
Required texts:
Le Mystere d'Adam; Moliere, Le Misanthrope; Racine, Phedre; Musset, Lorenzaccio; Vian, Batisseurs d'empire; Montagne, Des Cannibales (text provided by the department); Descartes, Discours de la methode; Voltaire, 25e Lettre philosophique (text provided by the department); Tocqueville, Les Trois Races aux Etats-Unis and Les Tribus indiennes (text provided by the department); Breton, Premier Manifeste du surrealisme; Sartre, L'Existentialisne est un humanisme
Optional texts:
The bookstore will have a limited number of Cruickshank, French Literature and Its Background (paper) Scholes and Klaus, Elements of the Essay (paper)
Supplementary materials:
Taking up a suggestion of students in the course, the department will offer optional bi-weekly evening lectures to orient students in the main movements of French literary and political history. Also, as noted in the list of texts, several works will be duplicated and supplied at no charge by the department.
Vocabulary lists provided.
Pre-Requisites and limitations:
All reading and discussion is in French. However, non-French majors may write papers and exams in English. French 172 considers only theater and essay; its companion course, French 171, may be taken at any time.
Papers:
Two short papers (3-4 pp.), probably following the form of explication de texte.
Exams:
Two hour-exams plus one final.
Short quizzes.

261 Advanced Grammar
Organization of course (lecture? Discussion? Seminar?)
Lecture--exercises
Aim of course
Intensive and systematic review of French Grammar
Readings (suggested and required)
Req: Daudon, R., French in Review; Sug: A.V. Thomas: "Dictionnaire des difficultes de la iangue francaise"
Requirements (papers? exams? oral reports? projects? field trips?)
Quizzes; exams (2 - one hourly); exam (final)
Pre-Requisites for admission
Knowledge of French

French 263-Composition
Organization of course (lecture? Discussion? Seminar?)
Discussion of individual problems of structure - translation of sentences.
Aim of course
To gain a better understanding of the problems of the structure of French by comparing this structure with English structure
Readings (suggested and required)
Darbelnet, Pensee et Structure; Darbelnet, Cahiers d'Exercices
Requirements (papers? exams? oral reports? projects? field trips?)
One mid-semester. A final. Seven papers of ca. 300-400 words.
Pre-Requisites for admission
None

French 264-Composition and Translation
Organization of course (lecture? Discussion? Seminar?)
Seminar - much discussion!
Aim of course
To develop skills in French composition and stylistics and in written translation of English into French and visa-versa.
Readings (suggested and required)
Text: Stylistique et Traduction, Ecole francaise de Middlebury, Middlebury, Vt., 1956
Requirements (papers? exams? oral reports? projects? field trips?)
Generally 2 papers weekly - (one composition, one translation) - dealing with specific problems of style
Pre-Requisites for admission
A good grounding in French grammar, and some experience in composition

French 311-Le Moyen Age - Sara Sturm, Herter 307.
Organization of course (lecture? Discussion? Seminar?)
Occasional lectures for background material; close reading and discussion of a variety of texts.
Aim of course
To provide a context for the reading of medieval literature, and to acquaint students with a variety of French masterpieces of this period. Some consideration will be given to the origins and development of the various genres and related literary developments in other countries.
Readings (suggested and required)
(All French texts are in modernized versions) Readings will include selections in Lagarde et Michard, Le Moyen Age; La Chanson de Roland; Yvain; Tristan; Painter, French Chivalry; a translation of the prose Perceval; and for comparison, Sir Gawain and the Green Knight.
Requirements (papers? exams? oral reports? projects? field trips?)
Mid-semester and final exams; one critical paper.
Pre-Requisites for admission
Ability to read modern French and to contribute to class discussion.

322-Tragic Vision in Seventeenth century literature - B. Rountree, Herter, 3rd Floor
Organization of course (lecture? Discussion? Seminar?)
Lecture-discussion
Aim of course
To study the works of Corneille, Pascal, Racine, La Rochefoucauld and Mme de Lafayette in view of defining the "tragic sense" in their respective writings.
Readings (suggested and required)
Corneille: Le Cid, Horace, Polyeucte, Nicomede. Racine: Andromaque, Britannicus, Phedre, Athalie. Rochefoucauld: Les Maximes. Pascal: Les Lettres Provinciales, Les Pensees. Mme de Lafayette: La Princesse de Cleves
Requirements (papers? exams? oral reports? projects? field trips?)
1 term paper; 2 hourly exams; 1 final exam
Pre-Requisites for admission
Knowledge of French

French 334-French Literature of the 18th Century
Aim of Course
A study of representative authors of the Enlightenment, their ideas, their principal contributions, their literary styles.

French 345-The Romantic Novel
Organization of course (lecture? Discussion? Seminar?)
Lecture/Discussion
Aim of course
To introduce students to the main traditions in the French novel of the first half of the 19th century through a close reading of selected works.
Readings (suggested and required)
Chateau briand, Ataia and Rene; Constant, Adolphe; Hugo, Notre Dame de Paris; Nerval, Sylvie; Stendhal, Le Rouge et le Noir; Balzac, Le Peau de Chagrin La Cousine Bette; selected short stories
Requirements (papers? exams? oral reports? projects? field trips?)
2 short papers, exercises in textual analysis, oral reports
Pre-Requisites for admission
French 170, 171

French 354-Literature in French from Africa and the Caribbean - 3 credits
Organization of course (lecture? Discussion? Seminar?)
Aim of course
Survey of contempoary literature written in French by African writers, and its literary and ideological background.
Readings (suggested and required)
Lilyan Kesteloor, Les Ecrivains noirs de iangue, francaise: naissance d'une iitterature; Robert Pageard, Litterature negro-africaine; Cheikh Hamidou Kane, L'Aventure ambique; Norman Shapiro, Negritude; Rene Moran, Batouaia; Lilyan Kesteloot, Aime Cesaire in series, Poetes d'aujourd'hui; Amadou Kourouma, Les soleils des Independences; Sembene Ousmane, Le mandat; `Mongo Beti, Mission Terminee; Olive Wake, An Anthology of African and Malagasy Poetry in French; Camara Laye, L'enfant noir; Birago Diop, Contes choisis; Aime Cesaire, Cahier d'un retour au pays natal, La Tragedie du roi Christophe
Pre-Requisites for admission
French 171 or 172, or equivalent

French 356-(Major Figures of the Contemporary Novel) - S.S. Weiner - Herter 318 - Monday 10 a.m.; Wednesday 1 p.m.; and by appointment.
Organization of course (lecture? Discussion? Seminar?)
Primarily discussion, with the instructor providing background lectures and data of historical and biographical relevance.
Aim of course
Familiarity with the various aspects of the French novel from the eve of the First World War to the advent of the "anti-roman". Authors have been chosen to represent tendencies and for styles not treated in French 355.
Readings (suggested and required)
Duhamel, Celine, Sartre, Fournier, R. Martin du Gard, Ch.-L. Philippe, Ramuz, Cocteau, Robbe-Grillet
Requirements (papers? exams? oral reports? projects? field trips?)
A mid-term and a final; one paper on an author or aspect represented in the readings; serve as discussion leader for one of the books.
Pre-Requisites for admission
Ability to read and understand French; majors will write their paper in French (non-majors may use English)
Added notes
Complements without duplication French 355. But that other course not a prerequisite.

French 357-Modern Poetry: Apollinaire to Surrealism - Instructor: Mrs. Lawall
Description:
Major French poets from the turn of the century to Surrealism. Emphasis on Apollinaire, Valery, Eluard, and Breton as representing the major "formal" and "anti-formal" trends in modern poetry. Some consideration of Tzara, Desnos, Char, Cendrars, Claudel, Reverdy and minor surrealists. Although we will study the poems basically as poems, we will also try to relate poetic themes and structures to contemporary developments in arts, music, and politics (see Requirements)
Texts:
Apollinaire, Aicoois, Calligrammes' Valery, Charmes; Eluard, Capitale de la douleur; Bedouin, La Poesie surrealiste. A number of individual poems will be duplicated and supplied by the department.
Pre-Requisites and limitations:
All reading and discussion is in French. However, non-French majors may write papers and present reports in English.
Requirements:
I would like to see this course as project-oriented rather than exam-oriented, and therefore will ask students to write a series (3-4) of short papers on individual poems, to do one research project (to be reported in class) on a related development in arts, music, or politics, and to write one longer paper (10-15 pp.) on some aspect of the poetry covered in class.

French 361/661-French Applied Linguistics: Prof. Jean-Pierre Berwald - Herter 328: Present office hours - MWF 2:30 - 3:30 p.m.
Organization of course (lecture? Discussion? Seminar?)
Lecture and discussion- students will also make a number of presentations during the course of the semester
Aim of course
To provide the teacher of French with a theoretical and practical background of audio-lingual methodology. The course will focus on the problems of native language interference most often found by the American student of French.
Readings (suggested and required)
Politzer: Teaching French (An Introduction to Applied Linguistics)
Requirements (papers? exams? oral reports? projects? field trips?)
One paper: one or more oral reports: midterm and final exam. Students will also present various points of grammar.
Pre-Requisites for admission
Students should either have completed coursework in foreign language methodology or have experience in teaching French.

Big Ed Vardos, master of ceremonies of the Wednesday night Coffee House, holds up a fateful paper of destiny in his hand. Ed's festive sing along is held at 8:30. Come on down to get your ya ya's out.

New DA's Are Sworn In

District Attorney John Callahan, busy with a Superior Court caseload twice the size of last year's, will be aided by three new Assistant District Attorneys sworn in yesterday.

Attorneys Edward J. Ryan Jr., of South Hadley, Saul Gliserman of Williamsburg, and John J. Foley of Northampton were sworn in during brief ceremonies in the office of Hampshire Superior Court Clerk Salvatore Polito.

This gives Callahan a total of five assistant district attorneys for Callahan's northwestern district, Hampshire and Franklin Counties. Each assistant DA is paid $7,000 a year for a job that was originally set up to be part-time, but which-with the increased Superior Court caseloads-will take about three-quarters of each attorney's time, Callahan explained this morning.

Callahan immediately announced that the three new appointees will go to work at Superior Court sessions in both Northampton and Greenfield to help handle the record 1,700 Superior Court cases tried in 1971. This compares with 1970 total of 750, the previous record.

Most of the increase is in drug and drug related cases, but there is also a large increase in misdemeanor cases appealed from the District Courts, Callahan said.

Superior Court session in Hampshire and Franklin Counties will run almost continuously until May or June, Callahan said. "They're getting to be almost full-time sessions," he said.

Polito, who has been Hampshire Superior Court Clerk for the past seven years, added that in that time his job has changed from a part-time to a full-time position.

Despite the increase in case work, the authorization for the three new positions came only after a delegation of district attorneys, Callahan among them, met with Gov. Francis Sargent last week and urged him to sign a bill creating 27 new assistant DA positions throughout Massachusetts. Sargent signed the bill only shortly before the midnight deadline which would have automatically vetoed it.

Yesterday Callahan thanked House Speaker David Bartley and Representatives Edward McColgan and John Olver as well as all the representatives of Hampshire and Franklin Counties. All supported the legislation.

Atty Gliserman, 31, is a partner in the firm of Finn, Brownell and Gliserman in Northampton. He is a cum laude graduate of the University of Massachusetts and a graduate of Harvard Law School.

He is vice president of the Hampshire Regional YMCA, on the Board of Trustees of Northampton Junior College, a member of the Board of Directors of the Northampton Visiting Nursing Assn., Inc., and the Children's Aid and Family Service of Hampshire County, Inc. He is married to the former Jane E. Morrison.

Atty. Foley, 43, is former city clerk of Northampton and former vice-chairman of the School Committee in Northampton. He has also been director of the Chamber of Commerce and Chairman of the Heart Fund.

Atty. Foley has been practicing attorney in Northampton for the past 14 years in the firm of Foley and Murphy and has had extensive experience in trying criminal and civil cases. He has taught courses at Greenfield Community College in Criminal Law and Criminal Evidence for policemen.

He resides with his wife Kathleen and three children at 65 Blackberry Lane in Northampton.

Atty. Ryan, 31, is town counsel for South Hadley. He is a graduate of St. Anselms College and Western New England Law School, where he received several awards for academic excellence.

(By Daily Hampshire Gazette)

New Radical Left Meeting Aims Energy At Workers

DAVENPORT, Iowa,-The radical left, divided and isolated during the last few years, took some initial steps this weekend to build a new national movement aimed mainly at winning support from working people.

About 400 radicals from about 25 cities around the nation met for three days here and decided to form a new group called NAM, for New American Movement, whose main effort will be to build local opposition groups to President Nixon's economic policies and controls.

The meeting, which adopted a set of priority programs and set up a tentative national organization, thus became one of the first significant attempts to revive the radical movement since it splintered apart in the last convention of Students for a Democratic Society in July, 1969.

Many of those attending the conference, held in the basement of the Black Hawk Hotel here, were former S.D.S. members who became weary of the factionalism within that organization during its last years and then completely turned away when it was taken over by the militant Weather People.

During the five-month effort, which began shortly after the Mayday demonstration in Washington last spring, to form the New American movement, attempts were made to exclude remnants of the old Students for a Democratic Society such as the Progressive Labor party and the Yippies.

Three members of the Progressive Labor party who came to pass out leaflets at the convention were told to leave for fear that they would try to divide and take over the new organization.

The NAM program emphasizes action on a local level on issues such as wage and price guidelines, job discrimination against women, deterioration of social services and what it calls unequal taxation. It is expected that support will come from a variety of people such as workers, housewives and students.

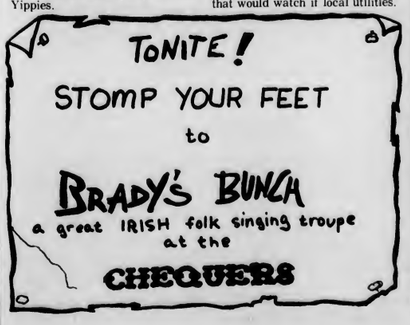
There was a general feeling at the meeting that the radical movement had isolated itself during the late nineteen-sixties from any mass support and that this must be avoided in all future actions.

The economic program, for example, said that the new organization's local chapters, which now exist in about 25 cities and are usually made up of less than 10 persons, should give priority to supporting wildcat and illegal strikes against President Nixon's economic policies.

"Wherever possible," the program said, "we attempt to bring to these strikes classwide demands which can bring together all sections of the working class around a common interest program."

To oppose the present controls on the economy imposed by the Government under Phase Two, the program urged local chapters to set up community organizations that would watch if local utilities, landlords and stores violated the price guidelines.

"It should," the program said, "raise the goal of social control over these dicisions (to raise prices) in place of private control."



The central principle of the new group, the statement said, should be the people's control of the economy.

At the meeting, which had none of the sloganeering and chanting of similar gatherings in the past, it was decided to set up a 13-member national interim committee, limited mostly to an advisory role, until next June, when the organization expects to have its formal founding convention.

There was a mood among many of those here that it was still too early to organize nationwide. But there was also a strong feeling that just working isolated in their own communities was very discouraging and some kind of national direction was needed.

By The New York Times

MDC Classifieds

Culturnatives

An Alternative To Armed America

By GILBERT J. SALK

An article in Monday's paper about the campus police and their guns disturbed me, and I'd like to share some thoughts about violence and nonviolence with you.

Consider some facts. The campus police carry guns. The uniformed men who come to pick up the money from the cashier's windows in the Student Union carry a shotgun. (How many dollars are in those bags, I wonder, and how many men are those guards willing to kill to get that money to the bank? What, in other words, is the dollar value of a human life to those men?) The town police carry guns, and in Northampton they have shotguns in the cruisers. The Sheriff's Dept. is armed. The State Police have guns. The Registry of Motor Vehicles now carry weapons. (To shoot runaway cars, I suppose.) The FBI has guns. So does the Secret Service, and the Border Patrol, and the Customs, and the Treasury agents. The National Guard, the Reserves, the Armed Forces, all carry guns.

Sleep well, you are protected.

But who will guard us against the guardians?

Think what all these guns mean. We, as a society, have authorized, equipped, and instructed some of our brothers to kill other of our brothers. Every one of these men, by the simple act of carrying a weapon, is stating to all who come in contact with him that he is willing to take another human life. That is the only message that a gun can carry.

There are arguments, such as the specious one attributed to Mr. Blasko in Monday's paper, that the weapons are carried as deterrents, that they will act to prevent violence. The flaw in the argument is that guns are violence. It is not the gun which stops an attack or a robbery, it is the willingness of the gun carrier to use the weapon--his statement that he will willingly kill another human being if he determines that what he has to gain is more valuable than that other person's life.

Unfortunately, there is rarely a chance to evaluate the other person's life, and compare it with 10, 50, 100, or one million dollars. How many of you would kill a man to stop him from stealing a dollar from you? Would you kill him to save ten dollars? Or one hundred? At what point is the money worth more than the man?

I hope that most of you feel, as I do, that life is more valuable than any amount of property. If you do, then how can we tolerate the existence of an army of men paid by our taxes and supported by our unwillingness to take responsibility for their actions, who will kill for us to defend our property?

Let's go a step further and examine a self-fulfilling prophecy which is forced out of our paranoia and our willingness to take responsibility for their actions, who will kill for us to defend our property?

Let's go a step further and examine a self-fulfilling prophecy which is forced out of our paranoia and our willingness to let guns talk for us.

Police have guns. Criminals (a term we use to dehumanize those who act in ways uncomfortably outside of our societal norms) know that the police have guns. They therefore carry guns themselves as a defense against the police, because they are afraid of being shot or sent to prison. (Their actions may not be justifiable, but their fears certainly are.) Thus, criminals have guns. Police, being charged with defending our property, and being products of a culture which teaches that might makes right, and that you must fight fire with fire, knowing that the criminals are carrying guns, insist that they have to carry guns in self defense.

What happens? When policeman and criminal meet face-to-face, each reacts out of his own paranoia and begins to shoot, or fight. An atmosphere of panic has been created, and each expects the other to try to shoot him. His only response is to try to strike the first blow.

We have a circular pattern here, in which no one is to blame, and everyone is to blame. Each side kills. We call the actions of one side law and order, and praise it. (Kent State, Attica, Watts, Jackson State.) We call the other side violence, and we condemn it. (Jackson State, Watts, Attica, Kent State.)

Is there an alternative?

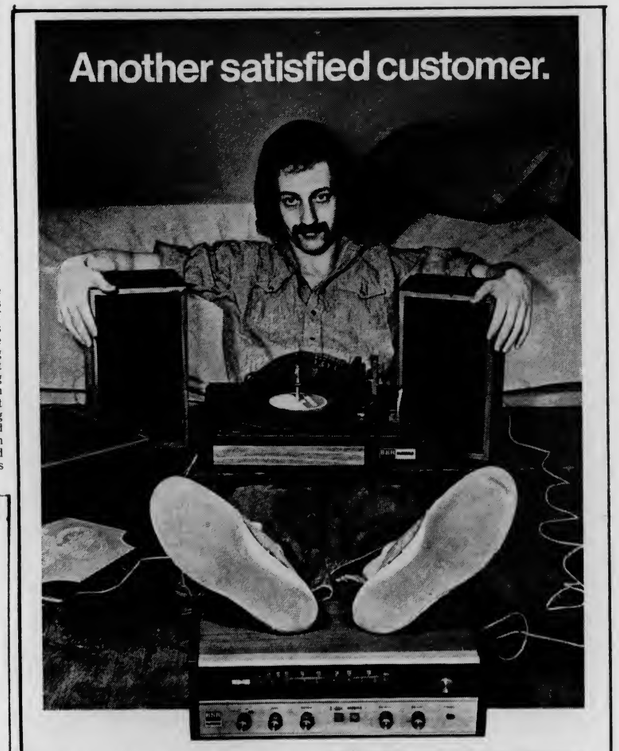
I believe that there is. I believe that people tend to act in ways which satisfy the expectations of those around them, and in ways consistent with what they are taught. We could try teaching nonviolence in school, starting at the elementary level, teaching children ways of coping with hostile situations in nonviolent ways. We could start teaching history around the periods and dynamics of peace, rather than basing the story of our past around wars. This might glorify peace as an alternative, rather than instill war as an inevitibility.

We could devise a national nonviolence training program, (voluntary, of course, because coercion is a form of violence) which would eventually replace the army. It would train the citizens of this country in nonviolent resistence, so that a national nonviolent defense program could be implemented. The armies of our "enemies" are made up of human beings, believe it or not. They may kill us if their government is able to convince them that we may kill them. After all, that's why we kill them, isn't it? But what if they know that we pose no threat to them at all? Do you really believe that hordes of fanged invaders would sweep across the country murdering unarmed, non-resisting people if we gave up our guns? Do you really claim that you would have the courage to face an army of invaders with a gun in your hand, but that you would be afraid to say "no!" to a man ordering you to do something you didn't want to do?

Think about it. There's no way to guarantee that peace and nonviolence would work, but our history shows that wars, armies, and strong armed police forces sure as hell don't work. As a nation, we seem willing to kill and run the risk of dying for peace. I wonder if we have the courage to keep the risk and take away the willingness to kill.

PEACE

NOTE



The CULTURNATIVES Rap Session is back from Thanksgiving. It will meet tomorrow at 2:30 in 909 Campus Center. Come if you can. We may discuss today's column, or bring your own trip. If you are into alternatives, share your trip with others. If you're just curious, come and look.

BOOK REVIEWS

Dave Dellinger is one of the most outspoken proponents of nonviolence on the scene today. A member of the Chicago 7 and editor of Liberation Magazine, he has been a pacifist for most of his life. Revolutionary Nonviolence ($2.50. Doubleday & Co., Inc. Garden City, N.Y.) is a collection of Dave's essays dealing with WWII, the war against Vietnam, violence and nonviolence, and other subjects. If you're curious about pacifism or nonviolence, this book is a superior resource.

Martin Luther King, Jr., is a man who cannot be overlooked in any study of nonviolence. Where do we Go From Here: Chaos or Community? ($1.25, Bantam, NYC) contains an excellent analysis of a world view for peace. Pay special attention to the final chapter, "The World House."

The Ultimate Defense by Frederic F. Clair ($3.00, Charles E. Tuttle Co., Rutland, Vermont) proposes a specific plan for peace based on universal concepts found in the major world religions. It is a bit heavy-handed, but the approach is interesting. It's major value is that it demonstrates a certain universality of humanistic beliefs which could supercede cultural differences.

By the time Phil got through paying for tuition, late registration, student fees, books, and an outrageous deposit on his apartment, he didn't have a whole lot left for a stereo.

BSR McDonald makes the RTS-40A for people like Phil. It's a complete AM/FM/MPX Phono component stereo system. The receiver delivers an honest 50 watts and boasts excellent sensitivity and separation specs. The turntable is our best-seller, and comes complete with a matched base, tinted dust cover, and Shure magnetic cartridge. The speakers are true two-way sealed acoustic suspension, with amazing bass response.

We invite you to see the RTS-40A at your nearest BSR McDonald dealer. If you think it sounds good on paper, wait'll you hear it.

BSR McDONALD

BSR (USA) Ltd.
Route 303, Blauvelt, N.Y. 10913

Please send full-color catalog of your stereo component systems and automatic turntables.
I enclose no money whatsoever.

Name

Semi-permanent address

City

State Zip

Make it a Special
Christmas . . . Make those Special Gifts yourself!

Knit or crochet a shawl, vest, hat, scarf, sweater . . .

Sew up a quick long skirt, tie, robe, dress, shirt . . .

We have the nicest materials -- you supply the love.

FASHION FABRICS OF AMHERST

103 North Pleasant St.

Special Sale Until Christmas

Thanksgiving Feature

J.O.E. Lifts Thanksgiving Spirits

By JOE

Thanksgiving presented many problems to many people. That splendid time of the year brought a bus strike and a snowstorm for many homeward bound students. For those kids held at the Westfield Detention Center it almost proved to be a real downer. However, some dedicated people including about 10 J.O.E. volunteers lifted a few Thanksgiving spirits.

The original plan was to have Thanksgiving up in the Berkshire Hills at the Department of Youth Services' Middlefield Project House. Staff, volunteers, kids and parents were to attend this turkey feast. There was going to be fun for all away from the stark walls of the Westfield Detention Center.

The Middlefield Project House is a large country estate that is located on a large sloping hill looking into Connecticut. Food and people were to be transported in for a home-cooked meal including turkeys cooked by Lea, Bea, Cyndi, Pat, Pat, Marian, Harriet and her roommate from Rolling Green. All this was shut down by three-foot drifts.

The disastrous part about the snow was that nothing was planned for at the Westfield Detention Center. Approximately fifty kids were to be locked up for the day which the hard fact of delinquency in America makes an everyday occurrence. The real down is that Thanksgiving despite all the commercial trappings is still a holiday and a special day for something special. Basically for the kids it would be food cooked in a home style instead of the regular hospital menu.

Therefore at the crack of dawn last Thanksgiving day the Turkey Parade cast snowflakes to the wind and reversed its field. It was off the Westfield we go-besides who wanted to go to grandma's anyway. Christ! If ya got wasted there you'd only catch all kinds of st from your parents or girl.

So with turkeys loaded in about four foreign cars a bunch of crazy people took off for Westfield with a foot of snow on the ground. The trip was cool, with one weird person zipping along route 91 at 50 mph with one hand out the window cleaning off the front windshield. It seems his windshield wipers were a little anemic, although his rear defrosters worked fine.

As all good stories go this one worked out fine. The kids took the opportunity to get at staff with snowballs and about three football games. The turkey was good and nobody as usual ate the boiled onions. Generally it was a good day as the evening staff at the center will testify-all the kids went to sleep long before the nine o'clock curfew.

However, there is a serious note to be reckoned with here. A lot of people worked hard for this simple happening that maybe some kids or people not at Westfield could care less about. Still it was a simple thing of providing a special event for some kids where special things are hard to come by.

As most volunteer groups, J.O.E. as an organization is only designed to give support to any project you as a potential volunteer might want to do. It can only help in a limited way because it is the commitment you make that is 90% of what will happen, and there is always a need for volunteers.

So, if you are interested in working with kids in an environment that does not help in any way-see you at the Westfield Detention Center. If you are interested in seeing the kids from Westfield perform their own play, "A Trip for Tina," there will be a presentation at 7:30 PM today in the Webster Dorm Lounge on Orchard Hill. If you have questions about transportation call Cyndi Dunbar at 253-9353. In any case stay interested (in anything). JOE.

CHAPEL HILL, N.C.--BIRTH CONTROL BOUTIQUE--An unidentified youth looks over a variety of nonprescription contraceptives in a shop called "Adam and Eve", which bills itself as "America's first love boutique." The owners say they are trying to provide a tasteful and sane response to the sexual revolution and hope to open similar shops across the nation. (AP WIREPHOTO)

UMass Hosts Rec Conference

The UMass Recreation Society is hosting the Northeast Regional Park and Recreation Students' Conference in the Campus Center on December tenth and eleventh.

Representatives from forty-four colleges and universities throughout the entire Northeast Region of the National Student Recreation and Park Society, stretching from Maryland to the Eastern provinces of Canada, are expected to attend.

Joseph Curtis, the Commissioner of Parks and Recreation, Boston, Mass., will be speaking on: "The University - Supermarket or Antique Shop for Leisure Services." Dr. Donald Henkel from the National Recreation and Park Association, Washington, D.C. will address the conference on two topics: "A Job or More Education: Projects and Procedures" and "Do Students Need A Voice? - N.S.R.P.S. and 'Communique'."

Students will also have the opportunity to meet with students and faculty from other colleges and universities to discuss curriculums, internships, and other topics relating to academic affairs and student organization and communication.

Any Recreation or Park student who would definitely be interested in attending this conference must register in the Recreation Department office in Curry Hicks by today. The registration fee of $5.00 must be paid in full (at the same place) by Friday, December 3. For more information, call Jim Laquerre at 546-5730 or the Recreation Department office at 5-2522.

Abe Burrow's and Frank Loesser's
All Time Great American Musical

GUYS AND DOLLS

MOUNT HOLYOKE COLLEGE
LABORATORY THEATER
SOUTH HADLEY, MASS.

Performances: Dec. 3-5 and Dec. 9-12 at 8:15 p.m.
Matinees both Saturdays at 2:15 p.m.

Box office now open: 10-9 Mon.-Sat. and 1-9 Sun.
Call 538-2046 Adults $2 and Students $1

MDC CLASSIFIED

AUTOS FOR SALE

1971 Toyota Mark II, 2dr., 1900 cc engine, 110 h.p., 4 speed, std., AM/FM radio, 5 good tires & 2 new snows, 13000 mi. Call evenings 549-0024. tf12-7

1965 Corvair Monza, 4 speed, AM-FM radio, good condition, no rot, good tires, new exhaust and clutch, $150. 253-5344. tf12-7

60 Rambler good engine, no trans., extra wheels and tires. Will sell all or parts $50 or best offer. Call Zig 256-6650 after 6. tf12-3

1941 Cadillac Antique Classic. Engine and interior perfect. Must sell, only $800. Call Ron at 549-0477 eves. tf12-3

1965 Pontiac, perfect cond., completely winterized, new tires. $485. 1963 Dodge runs well $270. Call eves 1-536-8577 or 549-6360. tf12-3

'67 BMW, 1800 TI, 4 speed, 4 new radials, am-fm, sw, radio, excellent condition. Call 773-3139 anytime. tf12-1

FOR SALE

1-ear Jet 8 Track Auto Tape Deck with two rear deck mount speakers $45. Call evenings 549-0024. tf12-3

Skis for sale, head 360, Exc. cond. Marker heel, Nevada toes $65. Call 545-0472 before 9 a.m. or late p.m. Ask for Jim. tf12-3

Skis, Hawk 180 cm wood skis with Dovre bindings and size 9 lace boots. Good shape, $30. Takes it all. Call Pete 446 Gorman 546-4584. tf12-2

X-Mas Time-Suede makes ideal gifts. I have suede, pants jackets, skirts, midi's and skins. Wholesale prices. Jon, 115 Chadbourne, 5-2640. tf12-7

1965 V.W. Bug for sale, very good condition. New brake job. 1970 rebuilt engine 4 good tires (2 snow) excellent body, radio heater. 253-8619 after 5 p.m. tf12-3

Take the plastic out of Christmas. Everything handmade with care. People's Craft Co-op, 99 S. Pleasant, above Hastings. 12-1

RCA 8-Trk. Tape Pl. 1 yr. old, gd. cond., lg sel. tapes incl., $150. New, best offer. Call Sue 253-8403 anytime. tf12-3

64 VW Bug, new bat., tires, rebuilt eng., new red paint $550, sun roof, ex. cond. Call Jerry 545-2501, 786-1781 after 5 p.m. tf12-3

Gibson Thunderbird Bass; w., case, $135.00, or best offer. Also used Rock records, exc. cond., $1.25/rgc. Call 253-5945, keep trying. tf12-3

Sansui 800, Rectilinear xl's, dual-1215, w/Shure M91E. Call Dan at 253-7510 or come to 797 Main St. 12-1

Gold Band Diamond Ring. Can be seen 12 noon to 2:00 p.m. Call Nancy 5-2568. tf12-3

2 tickets to NY Ranger vs. Boston Bruins, Dec. 16, 7:30 p.m. Call 549-6501. tf12-2

1 stereo tape recorder, 1 auto. radio, 1 VW Bus. Best offers 6-7084. 12-1

Yashica J-5 35 mm.w/ built-in light meter, 55mm fl: 8 lens; excellent cond. $100 (includes leather case) 586-3206 after 6 p.m. 12-1

16 mm Bell & Howell Camera 70, $125; projector $55-$20 slide rules $10-Aerial Reconnaisance Camera! Best offers considered 337-4853. tf12-2

Guitars: Martin, Yamaha, Aria, Harmony also Dulcimers and Autoharps. Find out what you want, then see me for better price. John 6-5401. tf12-7

5-speed Columbia guy's bike, very good condition. Also tennis racket and hot plate. Call evenings 549-1224 ask for Arlen. tf12-2

20%-50% Discount Stereo Components, all major brands. Also: 8-track tapes. Baker Stereo. Call Barry or Dave 546-6063 1-5:30. tf12-3

Yg. St. Bernard dogs for sale, AKC reg., temp. shots, parentage good disposition, reasonable. 617-544-3806 or Judy 545-2551. tf12-1

Discount Stereo Components, compacts, T.V.'s 20-40% off list price. Factory sealed and warranty. Jim Jensen 586-1365. tf12-3

X Country Skis, Alpine Skis, 1/2 price. Ski Poles for only $8. You can't get them any cheaper! Call Marybeth at 546-5214 anytime. tf12-1

PERSONAL

The Shadow Knows. tf12-3

Jinxy, Happy 20th. Love, Lizard. 12-1

Biggest one, the true mother bumper of them all, Happy B.D. from Dr. Z the shortionist. tf12-1

Daphne & Earl wish Charlie's girl a very happy 19th birthday-finally. 12-1

Remember Stover? He's at BQ bar (no ID) and we've got a dance teacher for a real hodown! No cost. No experience. Call Mike 253-5750. tf12-1

ROOMMATES WANTED

F. rmmt. to share 2 bdrm. apt., frnsho, frpic, grg. 2 flrs. of old hse, Dec. or Jan. Judy 13 Middle St., Hdly., 586-3784, $130 dp/mo. ht incl. tf12-6

Female roommate to share room in lg. farmhouse $50/month plus utilities. Call 549-0336. tf12-3

Puffton Apt. needs 2 roommates in Jan. Call 549-0822 eves. tf12-6

Female roommate to share Townhouse apt., $76/mo. - own room. Call 256-6467 avail. Dec. 1. tf12-7

Female roommate to share one bedroom in Puffton Village. Call 549-0753. tf12-1

We don't discriminate-2F or 2M for 1 room. Rent share Colonial Vil. ph. 256-8491 after supper. tf12-1

ROOM WANTED

2 male students want 2 single rooms for 2nd. semester. Can pay $80, $65. Please call 546-5036, ask for Mike, evenings. tf12-3

MOVIE

"CANDY" STARS EWA AULIN, RINGO, BRANDO, HUNDREDS MORE. MUSIC BY STEPPENWOLF & THE BYRDS. (IN COLOR 1968). "CANDY" SAT., DEC. 4, MAHAR, 6:30-8:45-11:00. tf12-3

SERVICES

Amherst Audio services. Stereo components, tape decks for home or car. 197 No. Pleasant St. 256-8133. tf5-12

Grand opening, Mike's speed equipment, starts Wednesday. One case of Valvoline Oil, one Grant Steering Wheel Kit to be given away, Rt. 9, Hadley, 586-3950. tf12-7

Taking orders for handmade leather bags and things. Order now, get before Christmas. Reasonable prices. 549-6331. tf12-8

FOR RENT

6 bedrms., 2 baths, kitchen & rec. room in Holyoke, 14 miles from U. of M. All util., ex. phone. Much Furn. $300 per month. Call 323-7893. tf12-8

1 bdrm. effic apt., avail. Dec. 1, incls all util., exc. gas. $110 mo., partly furn. 85 No. Whitney St., Apt. B-1. tf12-3

Babysitting in my home anytime: weekends, nights. Call Pam at 536-6076. tf12-3

TYPING

Typing--theses, dissertations, etc. Fast, accurate, experienced. Have Math and Chem. symbols. Call 253-3601. tf12-21

HELP WANTED

Live-in woman for infant care. Will prov. in return pvt. rm. cooking facil., semi-pvt. bath, living area furn., 2 1/2 mi. from camp. 549-1112. tf12-9

WANTED

Ride to Wisc. X'mass Vac. Call Singh 6-9930. tf12-1

POETRY for Poetry Anthology. Please incl. stamped return envel. for prompt reply. Idlewild Press, 1807 East Olympic Blvd., Los Angeles. tf12-2

APT. WANTED

Wanted 2 b'droom apartment in Puffton Village starting in Jan. or Feb. Call Mark at 256-8723 after 6 p.m. tf12-3

2 girls need place to live next sem., approx. $50 or under each. Call 546-8518. tf12-1

APTS. FOR RENT

MT. SUGARLOAF APTS. Avail. Jan 1, lg. 2 bdrm util. included, air-cond., pool $185. Call Skibiski Realtors 253-7222, eve. 253-2626. tf12-22

2 bedroom apt., Squire Village, couples/married? Available Jan. 1, rent $190 includes utilities. Call 665-3218 or 665-2203. tf12-3

LECTURE NOTES

S.E.S Rm. 318, Student Union, has notes for Anthro 104, Bot 101, Econ 125, 126, Geol 101, Micro 140, Phil 105, Psch and Soc 101. tf12-3

Lecture notes are available for Psych 262, 263, 270, 280, 301, 302, Soc. 256, Zoo 101, 135, and others. SES Room 318 Student Un. tf12-3

RIDERS WANTED

Riders wanted to Buffalo, N.Y., leaving Dec. 2 or 3. Call Susan 253-7761 after 6. tf12-2

LOST

Yang is lost again, large short, blond hair dog, lovable, affectionate and missed by all of us. Please call Stu at 546-6740. tf12-3

BUSINESS OPPORTUNITIES

Play music in a band? Interested in skiing? Combine the two in the greatest business opportunity yet! Needs solid musicians for winter. Dave 549-6679. tf1210

FOUND

Found: 1 grilled cheese sandwich — may be claimed for 30¢ at The Catalyst, Worcester Commons. tf12-1

SUMMER JOB OPPORTUNITIES

Complet list of businesses requiring summer employees-waiters-waitresses-kitchen help-clerks-camp councillors-chambermaids, etc. Includes application form. Send $2.00 to: STUDENT JOB OPPORTUNITY BOOKLET R.R. 1, Box 11-c, Orleans, Mass. 02653. tf12-3

FREE

Kittens, 6 weeks, weaned & trained, 4 black, 2 tigers, 549-6679. tf12-3

STUDENTS BOOK MATCHING

Register your book in S.U. Rm. 318. Every student with your course next semester will need your books save $ money, sell direct. tf-eem.

Notices

ACTION PROGRAM
Interviews for the University year for Action Program will be held Monday, Dec. 6-Dec. 10 at 513 E. Pleasant St. Appointment not necessary but must come during these days.

AMATEUR RADIO ASSOC.
Meeting tonight in rms 805-808 CC at 6:30. This is the Senate budget proposed. All please attend.

CHESS CLUB
The tournament continues tonight in the New Hatch at 7 p.m.

COMMUTER ASSEMBLY EXECUTIVE COUNCIL
Meeting Thursday night at 5:30 rm 802 CC. All should attend.

CUSP
CUSP is sponsoring a Counseling Night for undergrad Psychology majors on Thursday at 8:00 P.M. in the Colonial Lounge of the Student Union. Many faculty members will attend to discuss Psychology department courses and requirements with students. All are welcome. Refreshments.

DORM PRESIDENTS
Anyone interested in serving on an administrative committee on dorm improvements with Dr. Gage, please contact Bruce Bernstein, c/o Student Senate Office.

GERMAN MAJORS
Mr. Malsch will meet with students interested in next semester's Senior seminar at 3:45 this afternoon in the Dept. library.

HEALTH SERVICES ADVISORY BOARD
We're meeting tomorrow at 3:30 in CC 815. This is the place for your complaints, suggestions and comments. Please come.

LATINOS AMERICANOS
Hoy a last 7:30 en Mills House segundo pizo una reunion de AHORA (para alludan nuestro hermanos entrar las universidad). Se necesita ideas y alluda.

NAIADS-CORRECTION
Run-Thru is rescheduled for Wed., Dec. 15 at 7:30 p.m. All members must attend.

NES
The School of Ed did it again! They didn't get around to approving course and assigning course numbers for next semester. Do not pre-register for course, but leave time open, 12:30-3:15 Mon., Wed.; 11:30-2:15 Tues., Thurs. The course will be held.
Center will be closed for the rest of this week. Center Coordinator has a kidney ailment.

NORTHAMPTON VOLUNTEERS
A bus will leave tonight at 6:30 from Hasbrouck Lab and 6:35 from Patterson House for the State Hospital. Everyone welcome to come.

RECREATION DEPT.
Anyone interested in registering for the conference for the Society of Park and Recreation Educators and Students, sign up in recreation office in Curry Hicks bldg. this week. The conference is on Dec. 10-11 at UMass.

STUDENT JUDICIARIES
Applications now being accepted for East, West, and Greek area Judiciaries. Obtain rooms 111 or 113 CC. Due Friday Dec. 10 at noon.

WHOLEARTH IMAGELANGUAGE
Free U presents "Wholearth Imagelanguage", multi-projection film-slide environments by Barry Schonhaut, Wed., Dec. 8 at 8 and 9:30 p.m. in Thompson 106.

ANIMAL SCIENCE
Meeting tonight at 7:30 p.m. in 901 CC. Movies to be shown. All welcome.

LOST
Man's 1973 UMass ring; white gold with Delta Chi on ruby stone; initials MC; lost in CC-Hasbrouch-#4 lot vicinity Sunday eve. Return to CC lost and found or call Mike at 5-0156.

Small dog, black, no ID, looks like poodle, near Friskee, followed to campus near Skinner Hall, call 549-1146.

FOUND
Small black cat in Orchard Hill area. To claim contact Helen, 623 Webster, call 546-7201. He needs a home.

DEAR PEOPLE
It has come to our attention that someone in the Community has been calling students claiming to be doing a survey on student drug use for "Room to Move". If you receive a call of this type, please be aware that 'Room to Move" is not conducting any surveys. Peace to you, the staff of Room to Move.
Student Counselors as well as faculty counselors are available during counseling week in the CASIAC Office E-24, Machmer, 8:30 a.m. until 8:30 p.m. The Students' Counseling Office phone number is 545-1583.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

by SYDNEY OMARR

A Pisces woman can be gentle, loving, perceptive. She also has an excellent memory--and if a man attempts to deceive her, the odds are against him. Living with a Pisces woman is not so different from being with a human lie detector.

*****

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Avoid beginning project which involves travel and relatives. Time is on your side. You can afford to be analytical. Some ideas, though quick and attractive, obviously need more development.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Hold off on long range financial commitment. Security considerations should be paramount. Leave speculation to others. Be aware of fine print, hidden clauses. Read between the lines. Be logical.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Study Taurus message. Give logic equal play with impulse. Strive for balance. Patience is your great ally. If you can wait, you can win. Some make offers which look great but lack substance.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Nervous energy tends now to dominate. Realize there are commitments, responsibilities to be fulfilled. Fun and games can come later. Capricorn person is involved. Work at steady pace behind scenes.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Friends agree to disagree. You may have tough choice. Take path which has most promise for future. Leave glitter to others. Seek integrity. Side with one who adheres to principles. Avoid Johnny come lately.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Full moon position accents career, standing, ambitions, how you relate to those in authority. New process, policy favors you. Know this and discard needless fears, tensions. Leo will stick by you.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Lunar position accents restlessness, desire to be on move. But aspects indicate caution, delay would better serve ultimate purpose. Act accordingly. Neighbor could relay misleading message.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Forces tend to be scattered. Take aim at goal. Follow straight line instead of circle. Accent is on preserving assets. Steer clear of schemes which lack real foundation. Sagittarian will aid.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Cooperate with Scorpio individual. Opportunities multiply. Key is to be selective. You don't have to jump at first offer. Know this proceed accordingly. Avoid seeing through rose colored glasses.

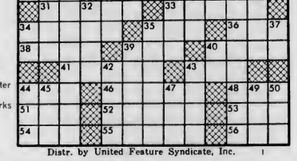
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Dependents make demands. Be considerate. But make clear that you have a life of your own to live. Some will be happy to take advantage--if you so permit. Strive for greater freedom of action.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Obtain hint from Leo message. Strive for harmony without discarding principles. Affairs of heart are accented. Lunar position emphasizes unorthodox approach to creative project.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Home situation needs adjustment. See in light of reality. Don't give up something for nothing. One who played important role in past could make reappearance. See situations, persons as they actually exist.

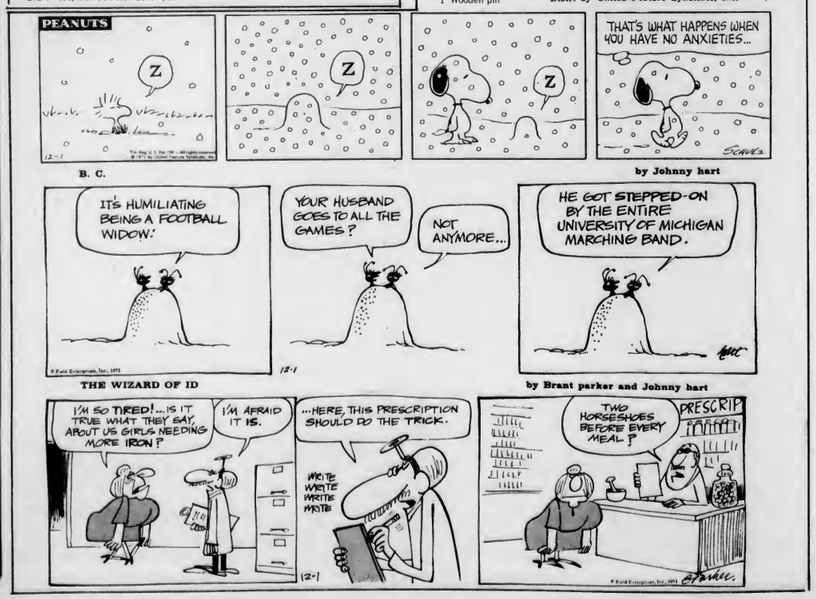
IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are direct, honest and you stick to truth even when it hurts. You have recently been through period of restriction, frustration. Now, however, you get chance to show off talents and you will be appreciated. You harmonize with Aries, Leo, Aquarius and Libra.

Copyright 1971, Gen. Fea. Corp.



Crossword Puzzle

ACROSS
1 Moccasin
4 Diminishes
9 Outfit
12 The self
13 Wideawake
14 Period of time
15 Precious stone
16 Look fixedly
17 Household pet
18 Stroke
20 Numbers game
22 Stop
24 Pronoun
25 Pilaster
28 Simian
29 Organ of hearing
30 Mountains of South America
31 Repeal
33 Start
34 Fear
35 Ethiopian title
36 Afternoon party
38 Rage
39 Wager
40 Girl's name
41 Former Russian rulers
43 Cry of derision
44 Music: as written
46 Reason
48 Seine
51 Goddess of healing
52 Acclaim
53 Guido's high note
54 One, no matter which
55 Nerve networks
56 Obscure



DOWN
1 Wooden pin
2 Mature
3 Forming a completing part
4 Swift
5 In music, high
6 Trader
7 Mistake
8 Let it stand
9 Renovated
10 Man's name
11 Ship channel
19 Near
21 Zest
22 Exclamation
23 Three-banded armadillo
24 Possessed
26 Doctrine
27 Conjunction 29 Goal
30 Roman bronze
32 Dines
33 Flying mammal
34 Physician (abbr.)
35 Outcome
37 Cooled lava
39 Pair
40 Artificial language
42 Genus of maples
43 Greek letter
44 Ocean
45 Metal
47 Capuchin monkey
49 Man's name
50 Scottish cap

Answer to Yesterday's Puzzle

T	E	A	R		E	D	I	T		R	I	P
A	L	S	O		L	E	N	A		A	D	E
D	E		B	O	I	L		G	A	B
	M	A		S	T	U	N		T	A	C	T
A	E	R	O		E	G	I	S		T	O	R
S	N	A	P	S		E	P	O	S		M	U
S	T	R	E	E	T		S	L	U	M	P	S
A	A		N	A	I	L		D	E	A	L	T
I	R	E		L	E	A	P		P	I	E	S
L	Y	R	E		S	T	E	T		N	M
		R	A	T		T	A	I	L	E	R
A	G	O		A	V	E	R		A	C	N	E
H	E	R		M	A	R	S		P	E	T	S

Distr. by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.

We can aid and assist a limited number of qualified senior or graduate students to gain admission

for the session starting fall 1972 in recognized

medical schools overseas

We offer the following program: an intensive 8 week orientation and highly concentrated technical language instruction. (90% of the difficulty in attending & remaining in a foreign school is the language barrier.) The intensive programs are given in the country where you will attend medical school.

For the qualified students who wish to parteke of this program, admission can be secured to a recognized European Medical School.

Write today for further information and an application form

EUROPEAN MEDICAL students placement service, inc.
3 McKinley Avenue,
Albertson, N.Y. 11507

Your Name_____ School_____
Mailing Address_____
City_____ St.____ Zip____
Graduation Date_____

There is no charge for application form and subsequent interview.

Nebraska Readies: Alabama Set

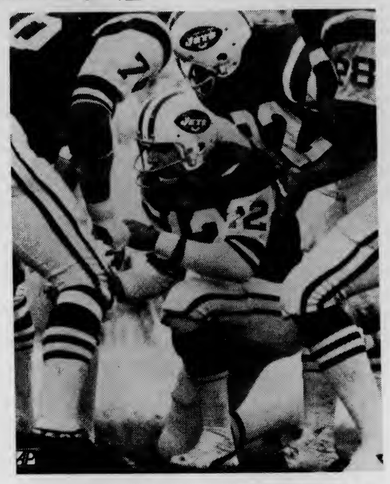
(AP) — Only the University of Hawaii stands between another match-up of college football's 1-2 teams, provided, as Coach Bob Devaney of Nebraska puts it, "We can somehow manage to win that one."

The defending national champion Cornhuskers travel to Hawaii for their regular season windup Saturday night and a victory--they're prohibitive favorites--would send them into the Orange Bowl on New Year's Night with a 12-0 record to face runner-up Alabama 11-0.

Nebraska's defending champions received 48 first-place votes and 1,086 points in the next-to-last regular- season poll from a nationwide panel of 55 sports writers and sportscasters. The Cornhuskers won last week's 1-2 showdown with Oklahoma 35-31.

Because Nebraska and three other members of this week's top 20 play their final games this Saturday another regular season poll will be conducted next week. It will be the final balloting for the regular season.

The final poll will be taken after the post-season bowl games.



The Sooners dropped to third while Alabama moved up to second following an impressive 31-7 clouting of previously unbeaten Auburn.

Alabama received four first-place votes and 938 points while Oklahoma had 851 points. Many voters still rated the Sooners No. 2.

Michigan, 11-0 and heading for the Rose Bowl, remained fourth with two first-place votes and 764 points while Penn State had the remaining top vote and climbed from sixth to fifth with 740 points. The Nittany Lions, idle last weekend, wind up their regular campaign Saturday against Tennessee and then face Texas in the Cotton Bowl.

Auburn skidded from fifth to sixth, followed by Georgia, Colorado, Arizona State and Louisiana State, the same as last week. Over the holiday weekend, Georgia defeated Georgia Tech 28-24, Arizona State whipped Arizona 31-0 and LSU tounced Tulane 36-7.

In the Second Ten, Texas and Tennessee were 11-12, reversing last week's positions, and Toledo and Notre Dame did the same for the 13-14 spots. Houston remained No. 15.

A FAMILIAR SIGHT IS BACK--Although admittedly stale and off, Joe Namath, pictured here calling a play during his incredible comeback Sunday against the 49ers, threw three touchdown passes as the 49ers pulled the game out by the margin of a field goal.

Glover Lineman Of Week

(AP) — At one point in Nebraska's 35-31 victory over Oklahoma last Thursday, Coach Bob Devaney "told the defensive line that they ought to give Glover a little help."

Fortunately for the Cornhuskers, Rich Glover, a 6-foot-1, 234-pound middle guard, didn't need much assistance as he got in on 22 tackles, recovered a fumble and batted down a pass on Oklahoma's final play.

For that performance, the junior from Jersey City, N.J., was named national college Lineman of the Week by The Associated Press.

Glover went to work early in the game. On Oklahoma's first play he teamed with Larry Jacobson to stop fullback Leon Crosswhite after a measly two-yard gain, far below average for the nation's top rushing team.

The fumble recovery came in the second period at the Nebraska 27 and stalled an Oklahoma drive that had started on its own 20.

Nebraska led the nation in total defense last week and Glover was one of the main reasons.

"That middle guard has amazing agility and quickness for a man his size," said Les Snider, a member of the Oklahoma State staff, who was scouting Nebraska against Kansas a few weeks ago. "He should be playing pro ball. As a matter of fact, the whole defensive unit should be a pro team. They have the quickness and size to make it."

Glover and his defensive mates are known as the Black Shirts. Eight time in 11 games they have achieved their goal of "no more than one touchdown for sure." And of the seven touchdowns scored against Nebraska in the first nine games, only three were against the Black Shirts. The rest came against the reserves or on kick returns.

As a middle guard, Glover is following in the cleatmarks of such Nebraska greats as Walt Barnes, Wayne Meylan, Ken Geddes and Eddie Periard. He admits it's a tough act to follow, but adds, "I want to be just as good as they were...maybe a little better."

Others considered for Lineman of the Week honors were guard John Hannah of Alabama, linebacker Bob Terrio of Nebraska, linebackers Mark Driscoll and Steve Aycock of Oklahoma, defensive end George Abernathy of Vanderbilt and wide receivers Rhett Dawson of Florida State and Andy Hamilton of Louisiana State.

Next Mon. and Tues. ONLY
Jonathan Miller's Production of Shakespeare's JULIUS CAESAR
with the Oxford and Cambridge Shakespeare Company
Mount Holyoke College Arts in Performance
CHAPIN AUDITORIUM, SOUTH HADLEY, MASS.
Performances: Mon. and Tues. only Dec. 6-7 at 8:00 p.m.
Box Office open: 10:00 a.m.-9:00 p.m. Mon.-Sun.
Call 538-2419 Ticket Prices $1, $3, $4.

Baseball Trades Continue

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. (AP) — Minnesota and California kept baseball's trade market moving Tuesday with the fourth major swap of the winter meetings as the Twins sent shortstop Leo Cardenas to the Angels for relief pitcher Dave LaRoche.

That came on the heels of three big trades Monday including the Sam McDowell-for-Gaylord Perry swap, and exchange of pitching stars between Cleveland and San Francisco.

Oakland's acquisition of disenchanged southpaw Ken Holtzman from the Chicago Cubs for speedy Rick Monday, and an eight-man trade between Cincinnati and Houston which included slugger Lee May, also highlighted the first-day action.

The Twins, anxious for bull-pen help, reluctantly parted with Cardenas, a 12-year veteran who slugged 18 homers and batted .264 for Minnesota last year.

"We gave up a good player," said Minnesota Manager Bill Rigney, "but we felt we had to do something about the end of the game. We needed someone for the ninth inning and I believe LaRoche is the best left-handed reliever in the American League." LaRoche was 5-1 in 56 games with the Angels last year and had nine saves.

The trade was the first for California's new general manager, Harry Dalton. He said Cardenas would play shortstop for the Angels and that Jim Fregosi would either be moved to third base or first. "We might also be able to make a deal for him," Dalton added.

Earlier, Dalton had been rumored to be interested in Baltimore's aging Frank Robinson. But the Orioles are looking for relief help and the LaRoche trade would seem to have eliminated the chance of the Angels producing the pitcher it would take to get Robinson.

There were indications that there was more trading action to come as the general managers huddled here.

Manager Leo Durocher, embattled boss of the Cubs, indicated that the Holtzman-Monday trade wasn't his last piece of business here.

Holtzman was one of the Cubs' dissidents last summer and his departure leaves Chicago with a vacancy for a southpaw on the pitching staff. The New York Yankees have indicated that left-hander Fritz Peterson might be available and have been shopping for a third baseman like perhaps Ron Santo, another unhappy Cub.

Maravich Back

CHICAGO (AP) — Coach Richie Guerin of the Atlanta Hawks said Tuesday that Pistol Pete Maravich "will be out there tonight against the Chicago Bulls and he will be playing."

Maravich, the Louisiana State All-American who averaged 23.2 points for the Hawks as a rookie last season, told the Atlanta Journal that he may be out of action the rest of the season because of illness.

"I'll never be back--at least not this year," the newspaper quoted him as saying in a dispatch from Chicago where the team arrived Tuesday morning for their Chicago Stadium date with the Bulls.

The newspaper said that Maravich asked to be taken out of a game in Buffalo last week, saying, "My heart, man, I just couldn't take it any more...I love basketball but it's not worth my life."

Maravich contracted mononeucleosis and missed the first two weeks of the National Basketball Association season.

Guerin told The Associated Press that "the doctor says Pete is recovered from mono now and it is a question of him working back into shape."

FACES OF EARTH
159 North Pleasant St.
Amherst, Mass.
Next To The Post Office
BLUE JEANS
only $5.95
Open till 10 p.m.

CLEAR SKY
RETURNS TO HILLS NORTH
FRIDAY DEC. 3rd 8-12 P.M.
LADIES 50¢
GENTLEMEN 50¢
*b.y.o.b.

PARIS HELSINKI MOSCOW MONACO BRUSSELS BELGRADEGENEVA BUCHAREST
LONDON ROME MADRID LISBON VATICAN CITY MONACO
OSLO DUBLIN MONROVIA EDINBURGH ATHENS MADRID
FLY SUPERCHEAP

Los Angeles $189
Dec. 18 - Jan. 3 — Boston - L.A.-Boston. Round trip jet for $189. Can give info. on connecting flights to San Francisco.

Ski Europe $325
15 days/14 nights at innsbruck, Kitzbuhel & St. Anton. Departures from JFK & Logan begin 12/18/71 and continue through 3/31/72. includes air fare, meals, double occupancy hotel & all taxes.

Youth Fare
Guaranteed Round Trip reservations at no additional charge.

Pay with MASTERCHARGE

Nassau $179
Dec. 20-27 or Dec. 27-Jan 3. $179 includes round trip jet from Boston, all taxes & tips & accommodations at the Montagu Beach Hotel, Flagler inn or Pilot House Hotel*

London $187
Dec. 17-Jan. 2 $187 includes round trip jet air fare from Boston* Dec.

American Student Travel
27 Massachusetts Ave., Boston 02115
For further information call Steve German 253-3359

*open only to 5 College students, faculty, staff & immediate family
SAN MARINO WARSAW PRAGUE LUXEMBOURG COPENHAGEN OUGADOUGOU

At The Cage

Hoopsters Host St. Anselm's

By EARLE BARROLL

Head basketball coach Jack Leaman has been abnormally nervous this past week waiting for the season to begin..he just has too many questions about his squad to be answered to be calm and collective as the season nears.

Two days ago at practice he was reaching his peak in emotions and had this to say about his squad: "I know that Al Skinner has been playing better than any forward we had last year outside of Julius Erving. I know that John Betancourt has been playing better than ever. I know that Tom McLaughlin has been super and Chris Coffin, Rick Vogeley and Mike Pagliara have been better than ever. But we still haven't been in actual competition.

"We scrimmaged the freshmen three times before last Tuesday's game and handled them easily and then came that game and we weren't up for it...we just can't judge where we are until we get into the season.

"We go at each other practice after practice. With a 6 game schedule you're not allowed to scrimmage another school and I just can't keep telling guys like McLaughlin who's great one day and off the next to keep getting psyched for Vogeley...you just can't do it."

And so this period of stagnation comes to an end tonight and Jack Leaman will get some indication of his team's progress when the Redmen host St. Anselm's College at the Cage with the tip-off set for 8 p.m.

"You never really understand what the game is all about until you play it," Leaman emphasized. "St. Anselm's has already had two scrimmages."

But the three time New England coach of the year was quick to note, "We will be ready to play this first game. We're playing as well as we have been playing throughout preseason."

If history is any indication as to what kind of game to expect, look for the Hawks to play a slowdown, semi-freeze type of offense trying to keep the ball away from the Redmen.

"They won't be a big team," Leaman said, "and they won't run with us, so we can expect a slow paced game."

Just what can the Redmen do to prevent this from happening? Assistant coach "Fan" Gaudette has this solution: "We'll have to go right after them and trap that ball and cause them to make mistakes right off the bat to open the game up."

Leaman added to this: "Speed and conditioning and numbers will be our biggest asset and we'll run as much as we can as long as we keep from turning the ball over. We'll play a number of people so we can play a faster pace for a longer time."

The series between these two teams stands at 3-1 in favor of the Redmen. They have won the last three games in a row including last year's 98-63 season opener at the Cage.

Starting for the Redmen tonight will be captain Mike Pagliara and John Betancourt in the backcourt with Chris Coffin, Tom McLaughlin or Al Skinner and Tom Austin up front. Austin will jump center and will be replaced shortly thereafter by Rick Vogeley.

Daily Collegian

SPORTS

THE CAPTAIN-Mike Pagliara (11) leads the Redmen into their season opener tonight at Curry Hicks Cage. (MDC Photo by Gary Slickman)

Pucksters Open At Home Against Salem State

By ALAN WRIGHT

They're Ready. Sure enough, Coach Jack Canniff's contingent of pucksters are rallied to take on Salem State in the first hockey clash of the '71-'72 season tonight in Amherst's Orr Rink at 8 p.m.

Coming back from a record-setting season that saw 129 goals and 188 assists, the team has been on ice since October 18th. Three pre-season scrimmages with tough teams have been played already, so the skaters have tasted competition in preparation for tonight's opener.

Salem State is new to the UMass hockey schedule, but this year's seniors have had experience with them. Way back when captain Brian Sullivan was a freshman, Salem State beat the frosh who were having a good season by one goal in overtime.

Thus, a slight feeling of revenge has to be in the minds of the ten seniors tonight. Also, Salem won their season opener against Bridgewater a couple of nights ago, so it goes without saying that they'll be sparked to hand UMass a hockey upset.

Although there's a hoop tilt tonight at the Cage, you can be sure there will be a full house on hand to see the flashy Redmen take the ice. So, a word to the wise is to get down to Orr Rink early. All you need to do is show your UMass I.D., but the limit on seating is 2000 and they'll be going fast.

Gymnasts Open On Road At UNH

By MICHAEL CUSACK

The UMass varsity gymnasts will open their 1971-72 season tonight at 7:30 as they travel to Durham, N.H. to take on the UNH Wildcats. This marks the first time that the varsity squads will meet each other.

As Coach Erik Kjeldsen moves into his 10th year at the helm of the UMass squad, the Redmen gymnasts will be facing a challenging season. The loss of 6 seniors from last year's team which placed third in the Eastern Intercollegiate Gymnastic League has taken away much needed experience and depth and could make this season a rebuilding one.

This year's squad is led by senior co-captains Tony Vacca and Dave Genest. Vacca finished fourth in the E.I.G.L. Championships as an all-around, while Genest was crowned parallel bars champion. Other E.I.G.L. medalists on this year's team are John Calabria, Jay Aronstein, and Tom Myslicki.

With talent like this available, the prospects for a winning season are good, but lack of experience will hamper the team in early meets.

The Redmen should start the season with a win over Lou Datilio's Wildcats. Last year, UNH won the College Division at the New England Championships, but, in the Redmen, they are facing a University Division team. The greater depth of the Redmen should be a major factor in the outcome of the meet.

New Hampshire has been hurt by the loss of their top gymnast, Jim Gornell, who won the College Division all-around title last year. Rich Rettstadt, who finished right behind teammate Gornell in the New Englands, will be leading the Wildcats. He will have several fine specialists with him, but this nucleus of gymnasts should prove too small to match the Redmen.

Although the Wildcats premiere University calibre meet may not be a winning one, it will be a memorable one. Coach Datilio wants to, "show the UNH community some good gymnastics," and is going all out to make a good presentation. This will include the UNH band, coverage by local television, and conducting the meet along international competition guidelines.

The Redmen will open at home on Sat., Dec. 11 at 7:30 p.m. when they host Southern Connecticut State College.

Pistol Pete Denies Mono Will Curtail His Season

CHICAGO (AP)-A grinning Pete Maravich denied Tuesday night that he was out for the season and shrugged off rumors that his mononeucliosis ailment would further sideline him.

Earlier, The Atlanta Journal quoted Maravich as saying "I'll never be back-at least not this year."

But Maravich, prior to Tuesday night's game against the Chicago Bulls, said "Sure, I'm not up to par but I can't tell you where this story came from.

"I imagine that somebody overheard me telling a player or a friend that I wasn't feeling so good and there might be times I could not play," Maravich told The Associated Press.

Maravich said he lost 26 pounds during a two-week stretch when the disease, usually restricted to teen-agers and young adults, put him out of action.

"I still have 15 pounds to go," said Maravich. "Just look how thin I am. I can't play full steam yet because I'm still under a doctor's care. The doctor told me to go ahead and play but if I get tired I should tell the coach to take me out of the game.

"There is no reason on earth to believe I would be out for the season," added Maravich. "I came here to play and I know that Atlanta has not been winning so much lately. I want to help get us back on the track."

Atlanta Coach Rich Guerin, reached earlier, said: "The doctors say Pete is recovered from Mono now and it is a question of him working back into shape. All I know is that Pete is with the team and that he will be out there against the Bulls and will be playing. And as far as I know, he will be playing every game."

The Atlanta Journal story quoted Maravich as having said: "My heart, man, I just couldn't take any more. My pulse was up to about 122. I love basketball but it's not worth my life."

Top 20

1.	Nebraska	11-0	1,086
2.	Alabama	11-0	938
3.	Oklahoma	9-1	851
4.	Michigan	11-0	764
5.	Penn State	10-0	740
6.	Auburn	9-1	478
7.	Georgia	10-1	458
8.	Colorado	9-2	397
9.	Arizona State	10-1	380
10.	Louisiana State	8-3	319
11.	Texas	8-2	245
12.	Tennessee	8-2	220
13.	Toledo	11-0	128
14.	Notre Dame	8-2	122
15.	Houston	9-2	104
16.	tie Arkansas	8-2-1	46
	Stanford	8-3	24
18.	tie Mississippi	9-2	24
	N. Carolina	9-2	24
20.	Washington	8-3	19

Would You Believe... ?

NEW YORK (AP)-"Those defensive guys were feeling no pain," Cincinnati Bengals Coach Paul Brown said.

But they gave San Diego plenty of it Sunday, relentlessly hounding the Chargers, the National Football League's No. 1 offensive team.

When Cincinnati's 31-0 rout was over, the Bengal defenders had limited San Diego to a meager 130 yards, 83 of them through the air, and intercepted six of the nine passes thrown by John Hadl and Marty Domres.

Linebacker Al Beauchamp and cornerback Ken Riley were the most obvious, each picking off a pair of passes with Beauchamp running one of his 18 yards for a touchdown.

But the rest of the young defenders-ends Roy Berry and Ron Carpenter, tackles Mike Reid and Steve Chomyszak, linebackers Billy Bergey and Ken Avery, cornerback Lemar Parrish and safeties Neil Craig and Sandy Durko-were, if not quite as spectacular, equally effective in landing the Bengals the first shutout in their four year history.

That's why, in a rare move, The Associated Press NFL Defensive Player of the Week selection Tuesday went to all 11 of them.

Leaman And MacPherson Highlight M Club Opener

If a preview of the basketball season and a forecast for next year's football team are what you want for a noontime highlight to go along with a good meal come to the Newman Center today at 12:15 p.m. to hear basketball coach Jack Leaman and football coach Dick MacPherson open the winter slate of weekly Varsity M Club Luncheons.

Leaman will preview tonight's game with St. Anselms and will also go over a schedule that features 11 teams that may be in the top 20 in the nation at some time this year. He will also have a couple of his players with him.

MacPherson will go over next year's schedule that will feature new opponents Harvard and Bucknell.

As per usual the Newman Center will supply an excellent noontime meal and there will also be a raffle at the door of choice seats for the basketball game.

All for $1.50...the public is welcome.

UM Basketball On The Air

Tonight at 7:55 p.m. Ken Best and Marty Kelley will open WMUA's coverage of Redman basketball from Curry Hicks Cage when the UMass hoopsters play host to St. Anselm's College.

THE RED JOCK

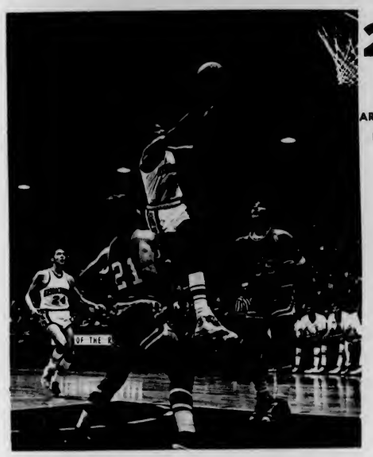
Basketball

Dec. 1	St. Anselm's	Home	8:00
Dec. 4	Vermont	Home	7:30
Dec. 8	Holy Cross	Home	8:00
Dec. 11	Northeastern	Away	8:15
Dec. 14	Connecticut	Home	8:00
Dec. 16	Manhattan Madison Square Garden		7:00
Dec. 18	Harvard	Away	8:00
Dec. 21	Hofstra	Away	8:00
Dec. 27, 28, 30	ECAC Quaker City Tournament	Phil., Pa.
Jan. 18	Vermont	Away	8:00
Jan. 22	Iona	Away	8:00
Jan. 29	Providence	Home	7:30
Jan. 31	Springfield	Home	8:00
Feb. 3	New Hampshire	Home	8:00
Feb. 5	Syracuse	Away	1:00
Feb. 9	Boston College	Away	8:15
Feb. 12	Connecticut	Away	8:00
Feb. 15	Boston Univ.	Home	8:00
Feb. 19	Rhode Island	Home	2:00
Feb. 24	New Hampshire	Away	8:00
Feb. 26	Maine	Home	7:30
Feb. 29	Rhode Island	Away	7:30
Mar. 4	Fordham	Away	8:00
Mar. 8	Maine	Away	7:35

UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS

REDMEN HOCKEY

Official Varsity "M" Club Program



15¢

ORR RINK 1971-1972 AMHERST MASS.

REDMEN vs. ST. ANSELM'S

University of Massachusetts

REDMEN BASKETBALL

25¢

OFFICIAL VARSITY 'M' CLUB PROGRAM

CURRY HICKS FIELD HOUSE December 1, 1971 AMHERST, MASS.

Hockey

Dec. 1	Salem State	Home	8:00
Dec. 4	Vermont	Away	7:30
Dec. 8	Williams	Home	8:30
Dec. 10	Norwich	Away	7:00
Dec. 11	Middlebury	Away	7:30
Dec. 15	Boston State	Home	8:00
Dec. 17	Yale	Away	8:00
Dec. 28-30	Williams College Invitational--U.Mass., Oswego, Colby, Williams	Williams
Jan. 26	Amherst	Away	8:00
Jan. 28	Vermont	Home	7:30
Feb. 3	Merrimack	Home	8:30
Feb. 9	Connecticut	Away	7:30
Feb. 12	Northeastern	Home	2:00
Feb. 16	New Hampshire	Home	8:30
Feb. 18	Colby	Home	7:30
Feb. 19	Bowdoin	Home	3:00
Feb. 21	St. Anselm's	Away	6:00
Feb. 23	Boston State	Away	8:00
Feb. 26	Hamilton	Home	2:00
Mar. 1	Providence	Home	8:15
Mar. 4	Merrimack	Away	8:00

"I'd Love It Better In March"

IT'S A WHOLE NEW BALL GAME

By EARLE BARROLL

If you were to have taken a poll in early September and for that matter back in the first week in April as to the number one question facing any one athletic team at UMass, there would be no contest as to which was number one: "What can the basketball team do without the services of Julius Erving."

And it seems that this season did get underway during that week in April when Erving was plucked from the UMass campus by the Virginia Squires of the American Basketball Association for the cool sum of a half million dollars.

Since then the credibility gap of the basketball team has widened and widened in the eyes of the fans and there's no one else on campus who this has affected more than the basketball team and their coaches.

They have heard it, they have read it and they have been questioned time and time again by fans and publications alike. But like true athletes these men have left the outside world just where it should be, off the court, and have carried on to make this their season...

What lies ahead for the Redmen and their coaching staff is the toughest schedule that any UMass quintet has had to face. No less than eleven of their opponents have a chance to be ranked in the top 20 in the nation at some time this season according to head coach Jack Leaman and with the added strength of the New England area the Redmen have bit off quite a chunk of basketball to prove their worth this year without the big guy.

Leaman pulls no punches when it comes to talking about this schedule. "It's tough no doubt and the major difference in it is the trip to the Pennsylvania (Quaker City Tournament)."

It's quite a difference alright...like Villanova, runnersup in the NCAA tournament last year to U.C.L.A.

Leaman continued: "This is a challenge for us and our program. But, we desire this. We have proved that we can play anywhere in the country and now we have to prove we can consistantly beat them."

Leaman didn't hide the fact either that Erving still casts a shroud over this season. "We know people are worried with Erving not being with us.

"But just in the back of our heads we have a dream that we can put it together and go back to New York."

And to add a little beat to the season Leaman added, "There is a song called "I Love New York in June". But I'd love it better in March!!"

Maybe this will go down with some of the great inspirational songs of our time.

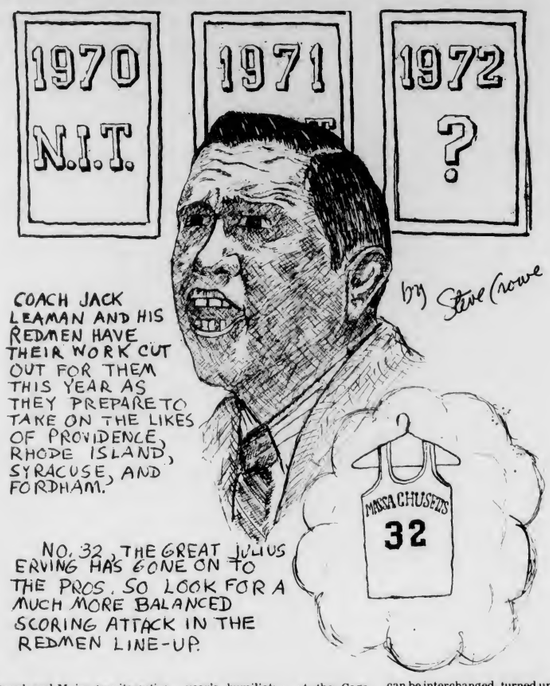
There is also another aspect to this added strength in the schedule and Leaman explains, "I really feel we need something to be major college in some area. This will be good for the students, the athletes and the administration.

"If we make up our mind and dedicate ourselves we can be the number one school in New England...in the administration, the coaches, the athletes and the students."

But for now the number one concern for the basketball team lies in plowing its way through the seemingly impervious wall that faces them.

Here is a capsule of the major obstacles the Redmen will be up against in the coming months:

PROVIDENCE: Sports Illustrated rated the Friars number ten in the nation, other publications have rated them no worse than twelfth, they are the number one team in New England and they feature Ernie DiGregorio and Marvelous Marvin Barnes, 6-9 who was featured by Sports Illustrated. Just add to this a well rounded compliment of players and a schedule that feautere Southern Cal and Jacksonville and enough is said.



HARVARD: There are only four teams in the country with four high school All-Americans on them. Southern Cal, New Mexico, Maryland and Harvard. The Crimson are also rated in SI as the best of the non-rated teams in the country (like 21st) and, to top this off three Harvardians, James Brown, Tony Jenkins and Floyd Lewis were pre-season All-New England picks.

QUAKER CITY TOURNAMENT: First round opponent Villanova returns four starter from last year' squad including Hank Simientowski, a pre-season All-America selection. The Wildcats also feature a pair of 6'5 guards. Other tourney, entries include powers South Carolina, Tennessee, LaSalle, Boston College, Manhattan and Fairfield.

HOLY CROSS: The Cross is faced with the same story again this year. Good ballplayers, an explosive team, but can they win the big ones? The Crusaders have one of the fine all-around forwards in New England in Stan Grayson. They come to the Cage on the 11th of December.

RHODE ISLAND—Just mention transfers and Ram coach Tom Carmody gets his fish net out and sets out on the chase. The Rams are loaded with transfers and the question remains if they'll be as good as their press clipping indicate. They're big and brauny up front and big in the backcourt but lack the ballhandler and this could be their one drawback...in every publication the Rams are the team to beat in the Yankee Conference.

THE REST OF THE CONFERENCE: Look for Connecticut and New Hampshire to be strong this year, especially the Wildcats who have their entire team back from last year and who can forget the scare the Redmen had at Durham last year. Vermont could be tough and Maine has its entire team back and could also pose problems in Orono....for the first time in many years the Redmen will be smaller than the rest of the conference physically.

FORDHAM: The Rams have lost Charlie Yelverton and their exceptional coach Digger Phelps but have enough coming back to again be a rough unit characterized by their lightening quick pressing defense and their jumping jack offensive front court to go along with a good shooting backcourt. John Charles is the man to watch for Fordham...he's an all-east selection.

BOSTON UNIVERSITY: James Garvin, 6'6 and Ken Boyd 6'5 (who jumps like 6'9) make the Terriors a team to contend with. On any given night if they want to play basketball they'll make it pretty rough for the opposition.

SYRACUSE: The Orange will be looking to get back at the Redmen on their home court after last year's humiliation at the Cage. Four starters are back from last year's NIT team. They could be hurt though by the loss of 6'11 center Bill Smith who now plays for the Portland Trailblazers of the NBA.

Well, that's what a progressive basketball program can gain as far as respectability to its basketball schedule is concerned.

Who are the players who have to face this task? Leaman feels this is the deepest unit that has ever been at the university. Unlike past years there are at least ten players who could have started the opening game.

And with the "run to win" dimension this season the Redmen will need all the fire power coming off the bench they can muster to keep the flames burning in their attack.

First in the backcourt, Leaman has a four deep unit of captain Mike Pagliara, John Betancourt, Rick Pitino and Peter Trow. They can be interchanged, turned upside down and inside out and what you have is perhaps the finest all-around backcourt in New England.

Pagliara and Betancourt are seniors and started last year while Pitino and Trow are sophomores and spearheaded the 18-1 freshmen last year.

In the frontcourt there are a group of players around the 6'4, 6'5 range in veterans Tom McLaughlin, Chris Coffin, Rick Vogeley and Charlie Peters and sophomores Al Skinner and Art Levine.

As McLaughlin said earlier in the practices, "We have to take up the slack that Julie left. We can no longer stand around like we used to with Julius doing the board work."

And at center is lean 6'9 Tom Austin and Charlie Peters, 6'7 both juniors and both green.

The success of this team...it's anyones guess as of now.

But come March 8th we may have the answers.

Loyal Blurp Blurts

(Continued from Page 4A)

"Of course I am. It will be interesting to see just how far the basketball team can go without you know who, and it will be just as interesting to find out if the hockey team is really the Division II contender that so many people are saying they are."

"Do you feel any resentment, Harry, at having to walk 35 minutes to a hockey rink on a different campus in which barely 2000 packed sardines can fit, and then having to walk all the way back to the Cage--that is, of course, assuming that you go to the hockey game first?"

"No not really," replied Blurp. "Just because there are around 19,000 undergrads in this university and just because the UMass hockey team is picked in the top three in every Division II poll taken and just because a hockey rink could be used for intramurals, public skating, skating shows, concerts, major speakers and even for rental to local hockey teams, doesn't mean that we should have one. I realize the financial complexities involved."

"Harry, what if you go to one of the games first that turns out to be a real tight contest? Will you still leave?"

"Yes, even though I doubt that my stats will lie. Even if I'm at the basketball game, and it's real close, I'm still going to Orr Rink. It's my duty as a loyal UMass sports fan--besides, I have a car."

Varsity M Moving Along; Now Printing Two Programs

Tonight the basketball and hockey teams begin the 1971-72 season. Both have home games that are expected to attract capacity crowds to Curry Hicks Cage and Orr Rink respectively. The Varsity 'M' Club is pleased to publish quality programs for both of these teams.

This is Varsity 'M's fourth year of growth with basketball. The program now has 32 pages chuck full of facts and comments. To the Smoke Signals of Dick Bresciani '60, statistics, Hall of Fame biographies, guest sports writers, Meet the Redmen, background of our opponent, and a changing cover photo is added another page by Bresciani on our alumni in the Pros and a series on UMass athletic teams by Earle Barroll '73.

This is Varsity 'M's first year with hockey. The development of Redmen hockey has excited the Varsity 'M' Club, the official booster organization for UMass athletics, so much that hockey has been added to basketball and baseball as sports for which Varsity 'M' shall publish a program. Jim Mulcahy '66 has secured the financing from McDonalds hamburgers while Bresciani prepared the layout and Tom Peters '71 will write the Face Off articles for each issue.

The Varsity 'M' Club is devoted to improving the atmosphere for athletics at UMass. Because all sixteen varsity sports are supported, Varsity 'M' is happy once again to expand its services to the University community. Advertisers have shown their appreciation for your patronage by paying for the printing and administrative expenses. The basketball and hockey teams appreciate the added interest in their athletic efforts. The baseball and lacrosse teams will once again be selling the programs with proceeds supporting their teams. And you the fan continually comes out on top with some of the finest programs available in collegiate athletic circles.

Meet The Basketball Coaches

Jack Leaman...

The mark of a great coach is one who meets even his stiffest task head-on. And in just half a decade of head coaching at UMass, basketball mentor Jack Leaman has done just that.

Unable to assess the abomidable loss of one Julius Erving--the Redman superstar who was drafted by the Virginia Squires of the ABA with a year of collegiate ball to go, Coach Leaman took it hard at first. How else would he react. You'd expect the same from any coach when his star does the disappearing act just like that.

But after a closer appraisal of the situation, the competent coach shrugged off the matter as a reality and buried the issue. His sights were focused on what could be done to compensate for the loss and how to make the most of his manpower.

So what does Leaman point to as his greatest coaching challenge at UMass? As he puts it: "Well my greatest challenge of all has been in developing a basketball team that was content to be run as a so run club on a so run program in the Yankee Conference to a position where it constantly challenges for the New England championship and the right to play in the National Tournaments."

And what about the hole left by Erving's abscence, does he think it's going to be a tall order to fill? "Oh yes, definitely," agrees Leaman. "How often does a boy like that come along? I don't think that we're going to replace Julius Erving. I simply don't feel that we have any one individual with as much talent as Jules had - on the ball club at this moment.

"But the surrounding players we have are as fine as any. And the sophomore crop, fresh from an 18-1 freshman season, have given us depth and that added factor of competition for those first team berths. They are battling the mainstays all the way down the line for the starting spots. This has given us the dimension of a more physical practice. Competition is the thing that makes us improve and when we get it into our own practice sessions it has to make us a better basketball team."

A graduate of Cambridge Latin High School, Leaman later went on to star for Boston University in basketball, captaining the Terrier team (1958-59) which got as far as the Eastern NCAA Regional finals, only to bow to Jerry West and West Virginia, 86-82.

Upon graduation he coached the Terrier Freshman unit and piloted Mills High to one of its finer finishes the following winter. In 1961 Leaman entered the UMass basketball picture tending to the freshman five. And during that four year tenure he relished resonable success, racking up 43 victories against 14 setbacks. His link from freshman coaching to the big time was sandwiched around a year of scouting and recruiting for the varsity.

In five short years at the helm he's brought basketball to its best on the UMass hardwood. Last season the Redmen registered a club record-breaking high of 23-4, smashing the previous peak set a campaign earlier. On top of that the Yankee Conference titlists secured their second straight entry to to the NIT.

His overall career credentials of 83-43 (42-8 in YanCon tilts) are indicative of Leaman's well-tutored teams which have landed four consecutive conference crowns.

UMass has put together some solid ball clubs over the past two decades, but basketball is definitely in its prime right now. How does Leaman substantiate this?

"We no longer strive to be good at Massachusetts. We want to be great. And we can't do that until we're dedicated, poised, and proud of what we have accomplished and what we can accomplish."

Ray Wilson...

Having had the distinction of coaching Julius Erving in both high school and college, basketball assistant Ray Wilson was popped the question whether he would like to work with the former Redman star in the pros.

He seemed baffled at the outset, probably because it was the first time he had encountered such an inquiry. Coach Wilson finally drew an analogy before rattling off his response: "Somewhere along the line the baby's got to break the cord and come out and say: 'I'm a man'.

"I actually never gave it any thought. I really don't think that you coach for that purpose, you coach to mold men. You want to see your seniors leave so you can get a new group of players and start your job all over again. And if you've done your job, then they don't need you anymore.

"I would hope that there would be five or six more Ervings coming through so that I could play a part of their maturing and going on to being independent."

Wilson hypothesized the loss of Erving: "It's almost a positive type of thing in affect to recruiting because of the publicity he's receiving. You talk to a recruit now, it's not just UMass, but rather the UMass and Julius Erving basketball program. It's been a positive influence in that respect."

As far as Erving being irreplaceable, Wilson replied: "I hope not. There's quite a few outstanding basketball high school seniors around, it's just a case of interesting them in UMass.

"I tell you, I think Coach Leaman, Coach Gaudette, and I are in agreement that there are going to be outstanding basketball players like Erving--and there are going to be better ones. In other words, it's a little early to say that he is the greatest basketball player that we will have had."

Wilson, like Jack Leaman, is a graduate of Boston University. He lettered there in basketball just as his coaching mate did.

In seven years at Roosevelt (Long Island, N.Y.) High, Wilson's teams sported an enviable 86-37 mark. He joined the UMass varsity coaching corps in 1969 as an assistant. His extensive efforts in the upgraded areas of scouting and recruiting have been a thrust to the Redmen on their rise as a New England powerhouse.

Bill Greeley...

Coach Jack Leaman wasn't joshing last year when he spoke of the value of reserve guard Bill Greeley. He said it was no accident that UMass started winning when Greeley came in to the program.

The three year record of 58-18 and the two National Invitation berths were enough in Leaman's mind to qualify this. "You can't ask much more than that from any player," the head coach declared. "His enthusiasm and desire have definitely helped us to the best three year record in UMass basketball."

And just to show that Coach Leaman is in the same frame of mind today, Bill Greeley has become the newest member to the Redman brain trust. He will assist Roland "Fan" Gaudette with the freshman program. At least he will maintain that position temporarily, until a year from now when he hopes to secure a high school coaching job.

When asked about the appointment, Leaman explained why in his estimation Greeley was the right man for the job:

"Billy Greeley is an outstanding student of the game of basketball. He was a phys ed major at Massachusetts and plans to make coaching his career. And we always felt that whatever he has contributed to the UMass basketball program, anything we could do to help his professional preparation would be an obligation to us."

"I believe Bill will be an outstanding young coach, and he exemplifies the qualifications of one. He's been through our program, he knows what to teach and how to teach it, and he knows what has been successful. Those are three things we want our freshmen to understand when they come into our program."

Greeley was a three sports standout at Melrose High, competing in football, basketball, and baseball. As an All-State guard for his hoop squad, he led them to a state championship.

"Fan" Gaudette...

Traces of Peter Broaca are still evident in the UMass basketball program. The big guns who forged an 18-1 freshman record a year ago under his guidance, are now among the crop vying for starting berths on the varsity. Yet the man has since departed, taking on a head coaching job at Coast Guard.

Replacing a coach of this caliber is no easy chore, since Broaca was instrumental in helping bring UMass basketball to what it now is. But of the field of applicants for the opening, Jack Leaman thinks he's picked a good one in newcomer Roland "Fan" Gaudette."

"Coach Gaudette is a fine young coach who had reasonable success in a difficult situation on a small college level," remarked Leaman. "As a young man and because of his teaching prowness, he can certainly do an outstanding job with our freshmen.

"Fan knows this, has accepted this, and is doing a great job readying the people in the program to the path that lies ahead. We are fortunate to get a man of such qualifications to assume this position."

Using an outstanding schoolboy career at David Prouty High (Spencer) as a springboard, Gaudette made the big leap to Clark University (Worcester) where his success was similar. He was co-captain of the basketball and baseball teams and also played soccer.

Upon graduation in 1961 he had high hopes of making coaching his profession. His first assignment was at Nichols College where he took charge of soccer. It was there that he negated the generation gap--some of his players were older than him.

It was out with the old and bring in the new at Nichols during Gaudette's baptismal year. He went with an all freshman team that wound up 5-6. The dividends paid off the next two years as his squad went unbeaten, working up to a 27-game winning streak which was busted in an overtime loss. His five year credentials were 47-10-1.

In the course of his third campaign at Nichols, Gaudette became a man of multiple jobs. He began a three year stint at St. Louis H.S. in Webster, Mass., coaching basketball and baseball. In basketball he developed a .500 (31-31) ball club out of the 4-17 mediocrites he inherited.

In 1967 Gaudette returned to his alma mater and coached basketball, soccer, and baseball. He piloted Clark's hoop squad to a respectable 35-25 record over a three year stretch. Next stop was UMass.

Here's how Gaudette evaluates his new position: "I think that freshman coach's job is actually two-fold in a sense. You're trying to prepare the kids so that they will be ready to play varsity ball, while at the same time you're trying to instill a winning type attitude for the whole team.

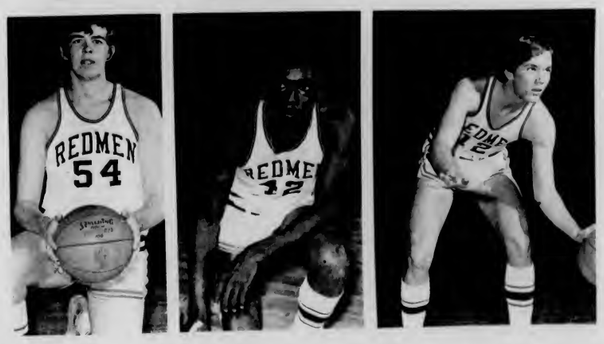
"You don't want to end up 5-15 if you can possibly be 20-0. You can look at it and say if you did that type of thing you could've won a game. But what good has it done for the future is all that counts--we're trying to get those players ready to play, to help our overall program.

"It's a challenge, alright. What you do for those kids that one year molds them forever. If you don't do your job, that kid may never play again. If you do your jcb, he may wind up on the varsity for three years."

All Coach Profiles By Mark Vogler

Frosh Start Things Off Against St. A's

By FRED ROSENTHAL
MDC Staff



"Unbeaten, untied and unscored upon. "Freshman basketball coach Fan Gaudette was joking as he gave his prediction for the coming season. But this year's freshman team just could fulfill one or two of these seemingly remote goals. At any rate, UMass hoop fans will have a chance to see some very exciting basketball when the frosh open tonight against the St. Anselm's JV's at the Cage at 6:00 p.m.

To get this team running the Little Redmen have two big men up front to get the ball off the backboard. Center John Murphy (6'8 from Clinton) and forward Tom Gillams (6'6 from Uniondale, N.Y.) are both very adept at grabbing the rebound and getting the outlet pass off quickly. The other forward is Jim Burke from Needham. At 6'3 Burke is a good rebounder and is most effective at running the ball up the court on the break. He is also a good passer and should see some action as a guard.

In the backcourt the frosh will open with Mike Flanagan (5'11 from Manchester, N.H.) and Bill Endicott (6'2 from Somerville). Both are good shooters and ballhandlers. All five starters are excellent passers.

Waiting on the bench in case any of the starters should falter are forwards Dave Dibble (6'4 from Holyoke), Rick Boron (6'1 from S. Deerfield) and Addison Becton (6'4 from Chicopee). In the backcourt the Little Redmen have four reserves: Joe Leone (5'10 from East Boston), Joby McBride (5'9 from Melrose), Peter Grimes (6'0 from Winthrop) and Dave Schoen (5'10 from Huntington, N.Y.). The reserve center is 6'7 Bruce Guzowski from Indian Orchard.

This year the Little Redmen play only 16 games. There are, nowever, very few games against weak opponents, and many schools are boasting strong freshman teams.

JOHN MURPHY TOM GILLAMS BILL ENDICOTT

P.J. Flaherty

Lonnie Avery

Bob Bartholomew

Mike Waldron

Pat Keenan

Pucksters Resume Drive For Division II Pinnacle

Jack Edwards

Dennis Grabowski

Dan Reidy

Don Riley

By ALAN WRIGHT

As expected, this year's puck team looks like an improved version of last year's exciting record setting varsity that posted a 14-6-1 overall record and made it all the way to the Division II playoffs.

The team has been looking sharp in preseason scrimmages and workouts and it will just take a matter of a few games to hone their organization of play to the precision-like performances executed last year. UMass was beat by B.U. 6-2 on November 13 the first period. On October 18, the pucksters sustained a draw with Boston College 4-4 (like B.U. they are a Division I team and are supposed to be of a higher hockey calibre.) In this B.C. game, marked improvement could be seen in the team's passing, and as Coach Canniff remarked, "We were able to keep up with them on the ice and this is a pretty good indication that we will be strong enough when the season opens". Finally, last Friday, it all came together in Natick as the Redmen took on the Carling Black Labels--a semi pro team composed of ex-college stars. The play was sloppy at times, but UMass was potent on offense, scoring a 7-3 win.

The 25-man pre-season roster has 18 lettermen returning which should provide the strength needed to face their 23-game schedule. Captain and defenseman senior Brian Sullivan leads the returning veterans which lists no fewer than ten class of '72 members.

Senior goalie P.J. Flaherty, who was really stingy at letting the red light go on behind his cage last year, is returning along with Bob Bartholomew and Al Nickerson on defense. Wings Eric Scrafield, Jack Edwards, Dan Reidy, Charles Donovon, and Mike Waldron will be joined by center Dennis Grabowski at the offensive positions.

Playing a feature role in tonight's opener will be the high scoring Canadian center Pat Keenan who scored new Redman records last year as a soph with 28 goals and 28 assists. His supporting junior cast consists of Don Reily, Bob Shea, Don Lowe, Lonnie Avery, and Bob Shilalie. Backing up P.J. in the goal will be Peter Erickson, Charlie Rheault and John (Goose egg) Kiah. (Incidentally, if John can do as well on skates this winter as he did on the turf for the soccer team during the fall, it would be a tremendous help).

An excellent crop of sophomores, including Jeff Gill, Jim Lynch, Jim Coleman, Tom Casey and Bob Edwards will be seeing action this year as everybody has been hustling in practice and scrimmages.

Coach Jack Canniff, who is beginning his fifth year as head hockey coach at UMass, believes in building strong lines that can be shuffled in and out at will. "We have more talent, experience, and depth to work with this year than we've ever had," claims the Redman hockey mentor. "It really has to be, because we're playing our most challenging hockey schedule ever."

Besides Salem State tonight, there are a few new tough adversaries that the pucksters will face. They are St. Anselm's, Oswego, and Division I Yale. The winter season's challenging 23-game schedule also includes power houses Providence, Northeastern and New Hampshire as well as Division II's perenially tough Vermont, Bowdoin, Middlebury and Merrimack.

It looks tough, but everything should fall together and UMass' amazing hockey prowess should be picking up where they left off last year--a team that can come through in the clutch and win consistently.

Canniff Eyes Playoffs

By MARK VOGLER

What does Head hockey coach Jack Canniff have to do in order to get the athletic department on the stick about a hockey facility? Would a Division II Title merit any sort of consideration whatsoever?

According to what Coach Canniff has to say, first things come first. As he commented: "A Division II Title, oh boy. We've got to make the playoffs first, that's our goal above all. There are eight teams in the playoffs this year, and our main objective is to be one of those eight teams. When we cross that bridge, then we'll optimize how far we'll go.

"We're playing all season to make the playoffs to have an opportunity at the title. If we don't make it, then we certainly don't have anything to shoot for, do we."

But in regard to the rink, Jack, what about the rink?

"This is something I had in sight that would take a space of about three years time when I came here. But look now, this is my fifth year and there still hasn't been a move made in a positive direction, yet.

"What can you say. Money is money. I don't exactly know what is going on, whether we have any chance of getting it from the legislature or what. But I do think that it's quite a chance that a university such as ours doesn't have an ice facility.

"If we had a rink, I'm sure it would be going 24 hours a day--and that still wouldn't be enough ice time for everybody. Actually if they even built a double rink it would still be going around the clock.

"Just think how the students on campus would benefit from this. They could have intramural hockey teams, figure skating, recreational skating, and what not. Those from the hockey program aren't the only ones who would reap the benefits. It sure would be a step in the right direction."

Well, from the way things are going, not even an ECAC Division II Crown could motivate the construction of a long sought after rink here at the university. For the time being, the Redmen will have to make themselves at home at Orr Rink. Take a look at the headway Canniff has made, and you'll see why.

From a feeble 5-15 mark in his rookie season, to a 9-12 record the following winter, he gradually warmed up to a 10-8 log--the best record on tap since the 1960-61 campaign.

Last year came the breakthrough. UMass skated to a school record of 14-6-1 and established another feat with their premiere entry to the ECAC Division II playoffs. Canniff has employed a very progressive program which has shown traces of improvement annually and there's no telling what heights the Redmen might hit in the not-to-distant future.

Canniff enjoyed a long and successful stint at Gloucester High where the North Shore school boasted a classy 104-30-20 slate and secured nine state tourney berths in 11 campaigns.

From there he stepped into the UMass command post in April of 1967. Asked why he decided to take a stab at collegiate hockey, the Boston College alumnus replied: "When you're in any field, there's always some other goal that you would like to attain. After being in high school coaching for so long I sought a change of pace. Wanting to continue, I thought I might try out the collegiate level."

Kidd Returns As Frosh Coach

By MARK VOGLER

It may only be the second year of collegiate coaching for Russ Kidd, but for all intensive purposes, he's an experienced hand at the helm of his freshman hockey post.

The former UMass hockey great returned to the rink for the Redmen last year after about a 15-year absence, this time as coach. A 1956 graduate of the university, Kidd set all sorts of school records on the ice. Head coach Jack Canniff is confident that his assistant will be invaluable on the other side of the glass with his present position.

Canniff stated last winter that the addition of Kidd was a binomial plus and would help streamline hockey's Meadway.

As he put it: "Being an alumnus of UMass, Coach Kidd has an excellent jockey background. I feel he can aid in upgrading this program and should help our recruiting situation tremendously.

"Previously I had to do all the recruiting myself. With nobody to fill in for me during practices, doing an adequate job in covering the area was tough. But since Russ' contacts and associations are now the same as mine, naturally it should help broaden our recruiting program."

Kidd didn't exactly move mountains in his rookie year as a skipper-his squad could only muster 3-9 record. But give him a little time and things will start to click. This year the junior tribe is in for a grueling 15-game slate--the most that any freshman hockey club has ever undertaken here at the university.

Coach Kidd talked about the recruitment of this year's freshmen and the new JV rule, and how important a factor both would play in the overall hockey program.

"We think we have done very good recruiting for ourselves this year. It seems to be a very fine freshman group. Some of the fellas we lost, we wanted to get. But for the most part, we did quite well. About 59 tried out for the team, and when it comes to cutting those last 10 guys, it gets tough to making the decisions. Considering we don't have a rink, I think we have some highly talented potential.

"I think that new JV rule is something in itself, for mobility's sake. Being able to bring a freshman up to the varsity, and sending an upperclass man down to the freshman unit is to our own advantage. The benefits we derive from it are endless."

Prior to his appointment to the Redman coaching staff, Kidd had been employed at Canton High School under a triple assignment: hockey coach, assistant football mentor and a phys. ed. instructor. His coaching experience also includes brief service at Deerfield Academy, Portland (Maine) High School, and Scituate High.

A standout schoolboy athlete at Melrose, Kidd went on to earn his B.S. and M.S. degrees from the Redmen he competed in football, lacrosse, and hockey--captaining the latter. For his exclusive ability and dedication as a senior athlete he was feted with the Samuel Crossman trophy.

Blurp Will Go To Both

By DAN KAMAL

Tonight the basketball team and the hockey team are playing--at the same time. This is bound to create a good deal of ambivalence in those fans who have an interest in both teams. Which game does the typical hockey-basketball go to?

To find out, I got on the phone and made a few quick random calls, or at least what was supposed to be a few quick phone calls. As it turned out, it was the 22nd call before I reached someone who had a relatively equal interest in both teams--his name was Harry Blurp.

Before going into the conversation with Blurp, I'd like to relate a few of the other 21 calls I made. On the fifth call, a diehard basketball fan said, "Hockey?! Are you kidding? The Cage is closer and warmer." On the tenth call (it's fun to keep track of important things like this), a diehard hockey fan shouted, "Hockey?! Are you kidding? I love it, but the Cage is closer and warmer."

On the sixteenth call, I got hold of a math major who told me (presumably tongue-in-cheek), "Well, I live in a house on Fearing Street which is 15 minutes away from the Cage and 30 minutes away from Orr Rink. So, in view of the fact that I like hockey twice as much as basketball, but am slightly adverse to walking twice as far, I think I'll stay home. Besides, who's playing?"

Getting back to Blurp, he was quite a knowledgeable fan. "I've been going over the records of the past three St. Anselm's hoop teams and the past three Salem State hockey teams. Next, I'll compare those statistics with the stats of the Redmen hoop and hockey teams over the last three years. That should enable me to determine which UMass team will get the quickest and largest lead over their respective opponents. Then I'll know which game to go to first and which to save for last."

"You mean you're going to both games," I asked?

(Continued on 2A)

New England's Largest College Daily

The Massachusetts
Daily Collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

Weather: None.

VOLUME XCIX, ISSUE 58 UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS THURSDAY, DECEMBER 2, 1971

President Wood presented the report of the Future University Community in Boston yesterday to the Commonwealth. Its recommendations are expected to stir a great deal of controversy. (MDC photo by Gary Alpaugh)

Free U. Issue Closed; No Funding

By ROBERT MEDEIROS

A blueprint model defining the future growth of the University of Massachusetts was presented to President Wood and the Board of Trustees yesterday at a press conference in the Sheraton-Boston Hotel.

The 60,000-word report of the President's Committee on the Future University of Massachusetts stressed the importance of developing new means of involvement between the University and the society around it.

The Future University report stressed a number of important changes and goals. The most important for Amherst and the system as a whole are summarized below. The report will be examined at greater length in next week's Collegians.

Amherst

Growth at Amherst should be slowed over a period of years and then stopped at a ceiling of 25,000 students, or notably less if possible.

Amherst should be the primary place for advanced training; Boston should be the more professionally and urban oriented center; and Worcester should be a health professions and health sciences campus.

A 403 bed teaching hospital at Worcester should be constructed as soon as possible.

Columbia Point

Plans for Columbia Point should be reformulated to create a University centered at Columbia Point but also the nucleus for a system dispersed throughout the Boston area.

Students and Faculty

The University should seek to intensify its undergraduate focus, offering a diversity of programs, places and times to learn suitable to a diverse student body and a complex society.

The faculty and departmental reward systems should encourage teaching and public service activities as much as they do research and publication, and an appropriate teaching evaluation system should be considered to facilitate this.

The University should have 50,000 full-time students and 15,000 to 20,000 part-time students by 1980.

Money

The budget for fiscal 1973 should be increased by the order of $6 to $7 million to reflect the recommendations made in this report.

The Committee's report defined the future roles of the Amherst and Boston campuses. The report said Amherst should be the primary place for advanced training and research while Boston should be a more urban and more professional-oriented center of learning.

A recommendation which immediately affects the UMass student and the Amherst resident is concerned with the question of student growth. The Committee in its report said, "The stopping point should be 25,000 students, indeed we would prefer that the ultimate ceiling be noticeably less." The 1971-72 total is 20,000.

The Committee also recommended that one-third of the student population from the Amherst and Boston campuses should come from the lower third of the income body. The report said the lowest family income third of the population in Massachusetts in 1970 included all families with incomes below $8,850.

Dr. Alden said, "There has been a drifting away from the admission of lower income students especially in Amherst. "He said the Freshman Class of '74 contained only 23% of students from the lower third income group compared to the 31% total of the Freshman Class of '70.

Touching on the possibility of a future tuition increase, the Committee report said, "We believe that if immediate efforts to attract more low-income students are to succeed, financial barriers to access should be fully removed before any increase in tuition is considered. "Dr. Alden said the Committee did not recommend that the tuition should not be increased under any circumstances because the recommendations of the Committee extend into 1980. He said that it would be foolish for the committee to make a binding recommendation in this area in light of rising costs, inflation and other unpredictable factors.

There were also other far-reaching recommendations made by the Committee:

-Financial aid: "We strongly support the President and Trustees who have already decided to ask the Commonwealth for an additional $4.5-million for financial aid for fiscal 1973."

-Freshman year: "The freshman year should be re-examined to bring to it better advising and counseling, more resources and new curricula approaches."

-Women: "The University, particulary at Amherst, should move actively to admit more women in all its programs including faculty positions."

-Growth at UMass Boston: "We think Boston will have to exceed the 15,000-student capacity now envisioned for it in 1980 if it is to accomodate a substantial numbers of older, part-time students as we think it should."

-UMass-Amherst relations: "The University should be doing much more than it is doing to alleviate the negative effects of its impact on the area around it."

-Trustees: "The Board should concentrate on major policy issues, leaving details of elaboration and management to administrators and other decision-making bodies within the institution."

President Wood in his press conference remarks said, "I appointed this Committee because I am convinced that new patterns must be found for university education in the Commonwealth if we are to serve the needs of the next two decades."

The 21-member committee was headed by Dr. Vernon Alden, former president of Ohio University. Wood announced the appointment of the Committee early last December when he was installed as president. The Committee was made up of educators, businessmen, students, alumni and community leaders.

In describing the make-up of the committee, Wood said, "We have benefited in that this was an outside group (two-thirds of the members were not from the University). I feel the recommendations are so exciting and the prospects for change stronger."

Dr. Alden in his letter of transmittal to Wood said, "The ideas and recommendations put forward are intended not as a blueprint but as a catalyst for a process of reevaluation and renewal. It is this process and not any particular set of answers that will move the University forward during the decade to come."

Former UMass activist, Sid Finehursh, as he appeared last night at the Campus Center. (MDC Photo by Richard Hinckley)

Sid Finehursh Returns To UMass

By BOB McWILLIAMS

"We have one weapon-the truth. Nixon can only take refuge in his lies. His objective in Vietnam is victory by military means and he is trying to do this behind the backs of the American people", said Sid Finehursh, Southern coordinator of the Student Mobilization Committee last night at the Campus Center.

"Due to the mass anti-war movement, American opinion has radically changed in the last five years. We are now including the powerful sectors of the trade unions and the Black community", Finehursh said, emphasizing these sectors participation in the Nov. 6-7 demonstrations.

The main aim of the SMC, as Finehursh explained it, is the immediate, complete and unconditioned withdrawal from Vietnam.

Through peaceful legal demonstrations "a mass movement is possible in the U.S.—Nixon is sitting on social dynamite", Finehurshconcluded.

The purpose of the National Peace Action Coalitation this weekend in Cleveland is to map anti-war strategy for the coming year, Finehirsh explained, and its importance is heightened by the approaching presidential elections. He urged all interested persons to attend.

Justice Douglas Stops Draft In L.A.

WASHINGTON (AP)-Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas halted Wednesday the drafting of men in the Los Angeles area until a federal district court rules on an alleged loophole in the recently revised draft law.

Shortly after Douglas issued his order, the Selective Service said it had already barred military inductions at the Los Angeles induction center and advised the Army not to induct men from Central and Southern California anywhere in the nation, until further notice.

The U.S. District Court in Los Angeles is schedule to hear, next Jan. 6, the claim by lawyers of the American Civil Liberties Union ACLU, representing seven Men. Their suits alleged that a draft law clause bars all inductions for 90 days after last Sept. 28, when the most recent revisions to the draft law took effect.

Selective Service says the 90-day-delay clause applied only to the original 1948 law.

"When Comedy Was King"

with

Laurel and Hardy, Buster Keaton, Charlie Chaplin and many others

plus

Little Rascal and Three Stooges Films

Thomson 104

Thursday & Friday Dec. 2 & 3

7 & 9 p.m.

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

Office of the DAILY COLLEGIAN are on the second floor of the Student Union on the University campus, zip code 01002. Phones are 545-2550 (news), 545-0344 (sports), and 549-1311 (editor).

Second-class postage paid at Amherst, the DAILY COLLEGIAN publishes five times weekly Monday through Friday during the academic year except during vacation and exam periods, three or four times a week following a vacation or exam period or when a holiday falls within a week. Accepted for mailing under the authority of the act of March 8, 1879 as amended by the act of June 11, 1943. Subscription rates are $6.00 per semester, $10.00 per year.

The Town

Kropf Announces For School Committee

Rita Kropf announced her candidacy for the school committee yesterday. She is the second candidate in the running for Sidney Myers' seat.

Myers also made an announcement yesterday, a regretful decision that he will not be able to run again. He plans to take an active interest in school affairs in the future.

The statement prepared by Mrs. Kropf reads, "I am deeply aware of the great responsibility this position carries with it. I hope that I have gained perspectives on this responsibility in several ways." She states that she is a parent with three children in the Amherst public schools and is a member of the parent councils of the schools: elementary, junior and senior highs. She also teaches part-time at Holyoke Community College.

Her statement continues, "I hope that I have gained experience which would help me carry out this responsibility with my broad background as an active worker in community affairs, with my many years of work with the League of Women Voters of Amherst, including four years as a director, and two as president, and with my long standing interest in town government and particularly my concern with the participation of citizens in local governmental decisions."

Rita Kropf

Mrs. Kropf goes on to say that she looks forward to the opportunity to discuss her view on educational issues prior to election. She concludes, "I only wish to say now that I believe strongly that our school system is an integral part of the community, and that the ideas and feelings of that community must be given serious and sincere consideration in all school policy decisions."

Her husband, Allen Kropf, is professor of chemistry at Amherst College and she holds a master's degree in biochemistry. She has both taught and worked in research laboratories.

3 Federal Appeals Judges Charge Attica Inmates Tortured After Riots

NEW YORK (AP)-Attica state prison inmates were tortured, beaten and threatened in the wake of last September's riot, a federal appeals court held Wednesday. The three judges barred correction officers from any further "barbarous abuse and mistreatment."

The Sept. 9-13 riot involved about half of Attica's 2,280 prisoners, 85 per cent of whom were black or Puerto Rican. It was quelled by state police. The uprising resulted in the deaths of 32 inmates and 11 prison guards or employes.

In the aftermath of the rioting, U.S. Court of Appeals Judge Walter Mansfield wrote in his opinion that the prisoners were subjected to treatment "beyond any forced needed to maintain order."

Mansfield's opinion was endorsed by the other two appellate justices, J. Edward Lumbard and James L. Oakes.

In Albany, State Correction Commissioner Russell G. Oswald had no immediate comment.

The appellate decision constituted a reversal of District Court Judge John Curtin of Buffalo. He had denied inmate petitioners an injunction, after hearing their claims of abuse at the hands of guards and other correction personnel.

The appellate court directed Curtin to issue such an injunction.

The appeals court detailed testimony that prisoners, some injured and on stretchers, were struck prodded or beaten, others spat upon or burned with matches, or poked in the genitals with sticks.

The court of appeals noted Curtin's finding that Attica's warden, Victor Mancusi, had not endorsed abuse or threats against the inmates.

MDC Classifieds Sell, Buy And Trade

Discrimination Charged

WASHINGTON (AP)-Women, blacks and Spanish-surnamed Americans are victims of blatantly unlawful discrimination by American Telephone and Telegraph and its associated companies, the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission said Wednesday.

The charge, which was first leveled in 1970 and which has been denied by the company, was made in a bulky report submitted to the Federal Communications Commission by the EEOC.

Robert D. Lilley, AT&T executive vice president, disagreed with the report.

AT&T will have two months to examine the materials before public hearings are scheduled to begin Jan. 31, 1972.

Keep Campus Discipline On Campus

(And out of Northampton)

All it takes is a fair and competent Student Judiciary openings on:

Apply Now

Area East Judiciary
Area West Judiciary
Greek Area Judiciary

Applications Available:
Now
Rooms 111 and 113 C.C.
Due Back by NOON Friday
Dec. 10

Future U. Report Asks For Involvement

Following the proceedings closely, at last night's Student Senate meeting are Vice-President John Hogan , President Lee Sandwen, and the Secretary Laura Emmons. (MDC Photo by Richard Hinckley)

By DON BISHOP

An attempt to restore funds to Free University proved unsuccessful at last night's meeting of the Student Senate. A motion to rescind a bill of two weeks ago which had withdrawn the Free U. funds was defeated by a 39 to 17 vote. This issue and the consideration of the rationales for funding, of various campus groups, represented the major business measures of the Senate meeting.

In other business, the Senate granted $945 in transportation funds to the Boltwood Project, and passed a measure allowing for the codification of the Senate's general laws. They also allowed a category change in the budget of the Afro-Am Organization, making it possible for them to hold a free concert this weekend.

The Senate postponed for a week a measure calling for the release of all known information on the identification of police drug informers working on this campus. Considerable debate on the possible legal ramifications of dispersing this information to the student community forced the postponement of this bill. The legal aspects will be discussed in the coming week with the Attorney General of the University General Court, Henry Bouffard, and with the Attorney for Students, Richard Howland.

The motion for rescinding the bill striking the Free U. budget was introduced by one of its sponsors: Senator John Stevens. He called the Senate's action of two weeks ago, as one which established a dangerous precedent, that being the decision to recall a group's funds in the middle of a year. To Stevens the only possible justification for the recall of funds would be if the group violated the "financial policy act". He went on to say that although Free U. had not done everything that it had planned to do this year, that it was still worthy of funds in that it is an alternative form of education.

A number of Senators agreed with this position, including Senators Bernstein, Mandell, and Ladd, but there was also a good deal of opposition to the regranting of funds to Free U.

Leading the opposition was Senator Robert Chiller. He maintained that Free U. has not done what it said it would do when it was budgeted last spring, and, therefore, the Senate was justified in striking its budget. Chiller stressed the point that he feels that it is time that the Senate showed all the groups that they fund, that they must make a reasonable attempt to live up to their stated objectives. He also stated that he felt that the Senate has too often in the past favorably reconsidered motions which they had defeated previously. He felt that the Senate should stick to its previous decision to strike the budget of Free University.

Agreeing with Chiller's position in the debate were Senators Doran and Olmstead. Vice-President John Hogan stated that in his opinion, this action against Free U. would not be establishing a dangerous precedent, and that he believes this year Free U. has lost both its purpose and its popularity.

In the final roll call vote, it was apparent that the majority of Senators agreed with the original decision of two weeks ago; to strike the Free U. budget for this year. The question of what is to be done with the remainder of the Free U. funds and with the already purchased equipment was due to be brought up later in the meeting.

At about the time of the Collegian deadline, the Senate was considering the submitted rationales of various groups, who wish to be funded by the Senate tor next year. Basically because of their service in the past, the Senate did agree to fund the following groups for next year: the Collegian, R.S.O., the Senate Academic Affairs Committee, the Office of Student Judiciaries, the Orchard Hill Area Government, the Office of the General Council, USCC, WMUA, the Greek Council, the Student Senate Transit Service, the Northeast Council, the Central Area Council and the Commuter Assembly.

Gluckstern Announces

Steven Gluckstern, a 20-year-old Amherst College student and resident of Amherst since 1964, has announced his candidacy for the Amherst School Committee in the upcoming February elections.

Gluckstern believes he "will introduce into the School Committee a new and different perspective." This belief is based, he feels, in his varied working experiences and education in and out of the Amherst area.

Currently Gluckstern is a senior at Amherst College pursuing a degree in psychology and education. He began his university education at the University of Chicago in 1968 but transferred to Amherst College in the spring of 1970.

During that year he was a member of the Amherst Community Drug Study Committee. Last fall he was involved in work at the Wildwood School as a volunteer. This past summer, while consulting for the New England Program for Teacher Education in Durham, N.H., he helped design an alternative school.

He is now teaching in that school, the Bent Twig school in Marion. This November he was named a student Fellow to the New England Psychological Association.

Gluckstern's family also resides in Amherst. His two sisters are currently students in the Amherst schools.

His father, Robert Gluckstern, is vice chancellor for academic affairs at the University of Massachusetts. His mother, Norma Gluckstern, is finishing her doctoral degree at the UMass. School of Education. Prior to coming to Amherst the family lived in New Haven, Conn.

A 1968 graduate of the Amherst Regional High School, Gluckstern was a member of the National Honor Society in his senior year, as well as being an active participant in the band, orchestra, and chorus, and president of the 1968 debating team.

His youth, Gluckstern believes, will offer a distinct perspective to the Amherst School Committee, and will be an advantage to the committee's work.

Having recently been a member of the Amherst School System student body, he feels he will take to the post not only his personal insights but also a closer relationship with the students.

(Daily Hampshire Gazette, 12/1/71)-See related story, page 2.

Corporate Irresponsibility

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department accused the Ford Motor Co. Wednesday of shipping some 200,000 1972 model cars and trucks to dealers in violation of the Clean Air Act.

At the same time it filed suit in U.S. District Court in Washington, the department and Ford entered a proposed consent judgment requiring Ford to pay $10,000 in civil penalties and agree not to do it again.

The suit said Ford shipped the vehicles to dealers before receiving certification that the vehicles conformed with emission standards set by the Environmental Protection Agency.

In a statement, Ford said it believes its consignment program did not violate either the spirit or letter of the law. Ford added that the vehicles were certified within the standards prior to their date of introduction.

*****

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Chicago Board of Trade, the nation's largest commodity exchange, was accused Wednesday of violating antitrust laws by allegedly fixing commission rates and brokerage fees charged by brokers trading commodity futures contracts.

The Justice Department said the Board of Trade violated the Sherman Act, in a suit filed in U.S. District Court in Chicago to prohibit jointly fixing and maintaining minimum rates of commission, floor brokerage and other fees for the purchase and sale of commodity futures contracts.

In Chicago, the board said it had not seen a copy of the complaint and could not comment directly.

*****

WASHINGTON (AP) — The president of the world's largest manufacturer of pinball machines and 12 Louisiana men were indicted Wednesday by a Federal grand jury in a case involving alleged shipment of machines to aid illegal gambling operations.

Quicksilver Tonite!

C.C. Aud.
Tonight & Friday
7:00 & 9:15
50¢

"AN UNCONVENTIONAL MOVIE!" – Time Magazine

The Baby Maker

plus 2 Cartoons

They get a baby of their own. She gets the joy of making it.

The beauty of creating life. The freedom to give it away... The Baby Maker

Starring BARBARA HERSHEY
COLLIN WILCOX-HORNE
SAM GROOM

Senior Photos

For January Grads and Second Semester "Ed-Blockers"

When: Week of Dec. 13-17

Where: Norfolk - Plymouth Rms., S.U.

How Much: $3.50 Sitting Fee

Sign Up
in the Index Office,
S.U. 401
as soon as possible

In The Nation And The World

India Occupies Areas In E. Pakistan

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

India's troops have carved out a three-to five-mile stretch of East Pakistan in five days of occupation and have cut the only rail line into the northwest sector of the troubled province, an Indian spokesman said Wednesday. Pakistan warned that the two nations were drifting toward a major conflict.

The spokesman told reporters in New Delhi the main Indian objective is to make it possible for 10 million East Pakistani refugees in India "to go back to their homes in honor and dignity."

"The immediate objective is to silence the Pakistani shelling of our citizens in the border towns," he continued. "But if you ask what is our overall objective, it is to see that these refugees go back."

The spokesman's statement followed by a day Prime Minister Indira Gandhi's demand that West Pakistan pull its troops out of East Pakistan, where it is trying to crush a rebellion, and let the people there have their independence.

The spokesman disclosed that Indian troops who had moved across the frontier Saturday near Hilli, about 190 miles northwest of Dacca, East Pakistan's capital, were still there.

The spokesman said Indian troops occupy the territory north of Hilli, an important East Pakistani railcenter linking the surrounding Dinajpur district with the rest of the province.

The spokesman asserted that although Pakistani shelling had stopped, the Indians did not feel it safe to pull back across the border because a brigade of Pakistani soldiers was still in the area.

Radio Pakistan claimed, however, that Indian troops had been driven back across the border at Hilli.

Radio Pakistan quoted an official spokesman in Rawalpindi as saying that so far war has been avoided because of the extreme restraint shown by Pakistan.

"As India is escalating the situation, we are drifting toward a major conflict," the spokesman added.

Although India never has admitted it, a report from East Pakistan said Indian troops also were still inside the province in the region of Jessore, about 175 miles south of Hilli.

Associated Press correspondent Peter O'Loughlin reported from Jessore, 15 miles from the border, that Indian troops were four miles west of that important garrison town. Reporters who went out to see for themselves came under fire from an Indian tank.

Witnesses told O'Loughlin that while the fighting appeared to be less serious than claimed by either side, Indian troops are increasing their pressure on the smaller Pakistani forces.

Irritated because they were forbidden to counterattack, Pakistani army officers predicted an Indian attack in force on Jessore in the near future.

They said India wanted Jessore so they can proclaim it the capital of Bangla Desh, the name meaning Bengali nation given East Pakistan by the rebels who are doing most of the fighting against the Pakistani army.

The Indian spokesman said India is supporting the Mukti Bahini, the East Pakistan rebel army, because "we have a responsibility to see that people in an adjacent country are not annihilated."

In New York, U.N. Secretary-General U Thant passed on to the Security Council the responsibility for acting on a Pakistani request for U.N. observers to be stationed along the East Pakistani border, a spokesman said.

There is no precedent for a secretary-general acting on his own in such a situation.

U.N. sources said it was unlikely the council would meet on the request or reach agreement in private consultations to accede to it.

India has rejected the idea of U.N. observers on its border with Pakistan, and the Soviet Union-which has a friendship treaty with India-is also opposed.

U.S. spokesman said the United States had adopted "a waiting position on the subject."

Coal Increase Blocked

WASHINGTON (AP)-The Price Commission barred the coal industry Wednesday from passing on to consumers all of its recent big wage boost. It also warned U.S. business not to expect that it can use price increases to cover the full cost of excessive pay raises.

The commission's precedent-setting decision in the case of Old Ben Coal Co. put the coal industry in a gulf between the commission and the Pay Board, which recently approved a new coal contract carrying a 15 per cent, wage-and-benefits increase.

The commission said the amount of the wage increase guideline is 5.5 per cent per year. C. Jackson Grayson, the Price Commission chairman, told a news conference his panel decided to allow Old Ben to pass on a 5.5 per cent wage increase and added another 4.1 per cent in allowable pass-on costs to protect the pensions of retired miners.

Grayson said the Price Commission "will take a very careful look" at any price increase requests which reflect wage boosts above the Pay Board's 5.5 per cent guideline.

He answered a firm "yes" when asked if he were saying that businesses are not yet "out of the woods" when they win Pay Board approval of new labor contracts.

Old Ben, a subsidiary of Standard Oil Co. of Ohio, had sought a 6.71 per cent price rise to cover the increased labor costs. The Price Commission said it could raise prices only 3.78 per cent.

Grayson said the same general principles of the Old Ben decision will be applied to every company in the coal industry.

"This coal settlement was made after the wage guidelines were known," Grayson said.

Neither Old Ben nor coal industry spokesmen offered immediate comment.

But Edward L. Carey, general counsel for the United Mine Workers, said he anticipated no renegotiation of the coal industry contract.

"We have a signed agreement and people are bound by it," he said.

Carey said how the coal companies pay for the labor increase "is strictly a managerial function."

Grayson said the Pay Board, by approving contracts with wage raises in excess of 5.5 per cent, was making decisions favorable to labor.

But he said he thinks both panels "are on the same track."

He said the Price Commission did not use Pay Board data in the coal decision but that there is some liaison between the two groups.

Butz Confirmation Expected

WASHINGTON (AP)-A divided Senate appeared Wednesday to be ready to confirm Dr. Earl L. Butz as secretary of Agriculture, but probably by a narrow margin.

An unusual conservative-liberal coalition which sees widespread dissatisfaction with President Nixon's nomination of the Purdue University dean appears now to expect no more than a strong protest vote in the roll call set for early Thursday afternoon.

That group of opponents, which cuts across usual political and ideological alignments, has not grown significantly beyond the 35 to 40 senators it attracted shortly after Butz was named to succeed Clifford Hardin.

As Nixon flew to Chicago Wednesday to address the national convention of 4-H Clubs, the White House reaffirmed his complete confidence in Butz.

Tradition is strongly on the side of the President because only twice in the 20th Century has the Senate refused to confirm a Cabinet appointee. Many senators hold strongly to the view that any president is pretty much entitled to have almost anyone he chooses in his Cabinet.

Supporters and opponents alike began to say the real focus of rural unhappiness over farm policies is not an administrator like Butz, but the chief setter of farm policies: President Nixon.

Low Midwestern farm prices and unhappiness over Butz's recent affiliations with the large corporations which many blame for consolidating smaller farmers off the family acres, produced an anti-Butz coalition in the Senate.

The list of Butz critics includes three senior and loyal Republican conservatives, the majority of Farm Belt senators, a number of Southern Democratic presidential nomination.

Mills Predicts Trouble for Nixon

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Wilbur D. Mills said Wednesday Congress will not remove the disputed campaign- contribution provision from the pending tax-cut bill even though President Nixon has promised it will mean a veto of the bill.

Mills, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, said the dollar checkoff amendment to the tax bill will emerge intact from Congress, where a conference was nearing final action on the bill, and be sent to the White House for Nixon's consideration.

"He'll have the opportunity of passing judgment on that provision," Mills told a luncheon audience of the Capital City Democratic Club.

"We will hold fast for the dollar checkoff," the Arkansas Democrat said.

The amendment to the bill, otherwise generally liked by Nixon, would let taxpayers direct $1 of their federal income-tax payment be used to help finance presidential campaigns. The remainder of the bill provides for reductions in taxes.

In the Senate, where the amendment was approved 52 to 47 last week, support was divided almost totally down party lines, with the financially plaguef Democrats in favor.

MDC Classifieds

We have space for women—Sylvan

In Brief...

SANTIAGO, (AP)-Riot police fired dozens of tear gas grenades at more than 5,000 women who marched on the presidential palace Wednesday night to protest food shortages and Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro's visit.

Police also fired gas at leftwing youths who were flinging rocks at the women's demonstration in the heart of Santiago's business district.

WASHINGTON (AP)-Leaders of the White House Conference on Aging were accused Wednesday of undermining delegates' recommendations for federal help by seeking support for a voluntary-action agreement among 119 organizations such as the American Red Cross.

Charles Chaskes of Michigan, president of the National Association of State Units on Aging, said some members are 'concerned about being asked to approve a "very, very sketchy" plan near the end of the conference which closes Thursday.

WASHINGTON (AP)-The Senate passed the bill Wednesday extending until April 30, 1973, President Nixon's power to control wages and prices, and also granting retroactively most of the raises halted by the pay freeze.

ALBANY (AP)-Aerial search teams, including two helicopters, scoured sections of western Massachusetts and eastern New York Wednesday for a light plane believed to have crashed with a Michigan couple and their three children aboard.

Cambodian Troops In Retreat

SAIGON (AP)-North Vietnamese forces renewed heavy attacks along Cambodia's northeastern front Wednesday, and Cambodian troops were reported retreating from two key towns.

Cambodia urged the United States and South Vietnam to provide greater air support to prevent its troops from being overrun.

Official reports reaching Saigon said the Cambodians had pulled out of the town of Baray, about 60 miles northeast of Phnom Penh, the Cambodian capital, and were retreating from Kompong Thmar, six miles farther north.

Some 20,000 Cambodian troops on the northeastern front are isolated in pockets along more than 30 miles of Highway 6 and can be resupplied only by air drops. The Cambodian high command described the fighting as fierce.

The Phnom Penh government, with its tiny air force incapable of meeting the North Vietnamese threat, asked for additional air support from its U.S. and South Vietnamese allies.

In Saigon, sources described the situation as serious and said there was no reason why the United States could not provide additional air support within certain limitations.

The South Vietnamese air force was reported planning to send a transport helicopter squadron and six to eight helicopter gunships to support the Cambodians.

Earlier in the day, Col. So Satto, commander of the Cambodian air force, told Associated Press correspondent Robin Mannock the now enemy attacks were "a general offensive," and called the situation "very serious, but not yet alarming."

The 25,000-man South Vietnamese offensive in eastern Cambodia continued with only light resistance. One objective of the operation was to relieve pressure on Cambodian troops along Highway 6 by drawing the North Vietnamese 9th Division back toward the South Vietnamese border.

Recent reports from Phnom Penh indicated that North Vietnamese pressure along Highway 6 was easing, and that it was believed elements of the 9th were moving southward.

In South Vietnam, small patrol clashes were reported in two dry-season offensives by Saigon forces-one in the central highlands and one in the Mekong Delta. The three operations involve 57,000 government soldiers and heavy U.S. air support.

The U.S. Command announced another round of pre-Christmas troop cutbacks, reducing troop strength in Vietnam by 1,190 toward a goal of 139,000 by the end of January. Present strength is 182,400.

N. Ireland Rejects Christmas Truce

BELFAST—(AP)-Irish guerrilla leaders and the Belfast government have rejected an appeal for a Christmas truce in Northern Ireland.

Prime Minister Jack Lynch of the Irish Republic called for the holiday truce in a television interview Tuesday night. He suggested the removal of British troops from the streets of Londonderry and Belfast.

John Taylor, a minister in the provincial Home Affairs Department on Wednesday called Lynch's appeal a "crazy proposal" which was designed to permit the underground Irish Republican Army-IRA-to regroup its forces under cover of a truce.

A spokesman for the militant branch of the IRA said a truce would only be accepted if the provincial government is disbanded, all Ireland united and all British influence removed.

Violence continued. An elderly man was shot in the shoulder by a guerrilla gunman for trying to toss a smouldering gelignite bomb out the window of a glass warehouse. Four other persons were injured by a blast in the warehouse.

It was the second attack in a week on a glazier store, apparently in an effort to halt window repairs in the shattered city center.

Police said three gunmen whom they identified as members of the IRA burst into the warehouse, ordered everybody out and planted three bombs. The elderly man grabbed one of the bombs that was smoking and tried to throw it through a window.

He was shot in the shoulder as the gunmen fled. Workers at the warehouse escaped before the bombs went off but four were slightly hurt by flying glass.

Police headquarters identified the body of a man found slain in a lonely country road near the border with the Irish Republic Monday as British soldier, Pvt. Robert Benner of the Queen's Regiment.

Officials said he had been shot four times in the head and there were signs he had first been tortured.

Benner, 25, was on leave at the time of his death and was believed on his way back to his army barracks after seeing his Irish sweetheart.

One police theory was that the British soldier may have been shot for associating with an Irish girl.

Benner was the 41st British trooper killed in Northern Ireland's fighting this year. The province's death toll in 28 months of fighting now stands at 165.

Hiring Practices Hit

BOSTON (AP)—The Council on Public Employment of the Disadvantaged Wednesday proposed sweeping changes in hiring practices for state jobs to increase minority group employment.

In its final report to Gov. Francis W. Sargent, the Council recommended that the first-come-first-served hiring rule for state labor jobs be suspended until minority employment is increased to reflect the minority percentage in the population.

The Council, noting that three-fifths of all civil service appointments are provisional, recommended that appointing authorities be required to fill these positions from lists of minority group persons drawn up by the civil service division and the Massachusetts Commission Against Discrimination.

It also recommended that Spanish-speaking persons be hired for police, welfare, housing and corrections positions in communities with large Spanish-speaking populations.

The report called for a revision of the civil service examinations system, an active job recruitment program by the state and additional opportunities for training.

The council, which began its study last year, said that out of 58,259 state employes in 1970 only 2,988 or 5.1 per cent were from minority groups.

"Minority group representation is extremely low in the highly sensitive areas of law enforcement and corrections," the report said.

MDC Classifieds Pay

The University Store
Campus Center

RACISM!!!

"It's a terrible problem, but what can I do?"

GET INVOLVED!!!!

School of Education
Workshop on Racism

Tuesday, December 7
9:00 a.m. Campus Center

ALL SCHOOL OF EDUCATION STUDENTS

ROTC Rifles Given Away

By BUFFY SPENCER

163 Springfield Rifles, vintage 1903, are to be given by the University to the State Police Supply Depot in Framingham. These rifles were removed from UMass during the student strike in accordance with an edict banning guns from campus.

The rifles in question were formerly used by the Flying Redmen Drill Team and by some units of ROTC. When it became necessary for the guns to be taken off campus the Air National Guard, the Army National Guard, the State Police, and Westover Air Force Base were all contacted as possible storage places. None could provide the long-term storage required. Finally the weapons were taken to Fort Devens. A general there, a UMass graduate himself, has informed the University that the guns can no longer be stored at Devens. The reason for this is that state property cannot be stored on a federal base.

Former Chancellor Oswald Tippo asked University Staff Attorney Sid Myers to look into the matter. Later, the Acting Dean of the School of Physical Education, David Bischoff was given dual responsibility and became the prime researcher. The main problem lies with the inability to discover who actually owns the guns. The purchase was made before any of the present administration was in office and there are no purchase documents. It is thought, however, that the rifles were purchased by the University from the government.

Two ads were placed in the Collegian, the first on November 8th, asking anyone who had legal claim to the rifles to come forward. Many requests to purchase the guns for collections or target practice were made. No one was found to have a legal claim to the rifles. The guns cannot be sold to individuals because they are state property. Every other state unit must first have a chance to purchase the guns.

The edict banning guns from campus is still in effect. Although some of the guns are plugged and cannot be fired the shock value of their appearance is still a danger.

One more ad will be placed in the Collegian before the guns are moved from Devens. If no legal claims to ownership appear the guns will be transferred to the State Police Academy for training purposes. In this way it will be assured that these valuable weapons will be well cared for.

This was awhile ago. Before the Kent, Jackson, Cambodia and the Strike. Since then ROTC has lost their rifles, which are to be given to the State Police. (MDC Photo)

'Action' Expansion Urged

William Burke, assistant director of the University Year for Action Program, discussed the possibilities of expanding the concept of the Action program to encompass the entire student body, as the Advisory Board of the UYA met Sunday in Farley Lodge to discuss future plans and informally meet with the student volunteers.

The twenty member advisory board consists of five representatives from four different groups involved with the program, community agencies, faculty, student volunteers, and students at the University. The board offers suggestions to the Action staff and helps in orienting non-members of the board, as to the purpose, present programs and future plans of the action program.

Warner Heuson, director of the Urban League, and Douglas Ruhe, co-director of Sassi Prep, both expressed extreme satisfaction in the work that the Action students are accomplishing in their agencies.

Ruhe stated that the "Action students have directly taught and assisted all 85 students at Sassi Prep and helped the 11 students who will be entering the University of Massachusetts in January." He added, "Students have helped Sassi and Salt (newspaper) to survive during an intense funding crisis, and it can be safely said that without their steady assistance and willingness to take on ever-larger responsibilities, the program might well have collapsed."

Michael Gaffney, student volunteer at the Neighborhood Legal Society in Springfield, discussed what took place in Washington, D.C. at the Action conference held a week earlier. He stated that one Action volunteer from each of the 11 participating colleges and universities throughout the country discussed mutual problems and programs.

Free Film Showing Tonight

"Antonio Das Mortes," the fifth film in the series "Films for Intellecturals," will be shown at Amherst College today.

Sponsored by the Amherst College Lecture Committee, the film will be shown at 7:30 p.m. in the Converse Assembly Room, Converse Hall, on the Amherst campus. The event is open to the public without charge.

Directed by Glauber Rocha, "Antonio Das Mortes" explores the themes of violence and repression, while trying to define a new revolutionary esthetic.

The plot centers around Antonio, who has been hired by a landlord to kill a band of peasant rebels but joins them instead. In the process, Rocha develops his ideas on social injustice and superstition, to a background of African and Portugese folk music.

Off-Campus
Teacher Education Program
Elementary & Secondary

Do your Student Teaching somewhere exciting -

Unique Education field positions available in:

San Francisco, Calif.
Los Angeles, Calif.
Idaho Springs, Colo.
Indian Pueblos, New Mexico
Miami, Florida
Montreal, Canada
Zurich, Switzerland
Bristol, England
Bournmouth, England
Dusseldorf, Germany
Milan, Italy
Turino, Italy
Paris, France
Amsterdam, Holland

Why? —

This program is designed to aquaint students with education innovations at a practical, workable level. Integrated day, differentiated staffing, flexible scheduling, modularized curriculum, etc. Each site offers something quite unique and valuable for the pre-service teacher.

$ Expense$ —

In almost every case, it will cost no more to travel to-and live at the off-campus site than it would to stay right here in Amherst living on campus.

How To Enter —

Come to room 100 for more information and to talk to Bill Fanslow, Bill Byxbee or Jeanne Kamansky.

A meeting to establish a

Clearing House for Community Service

will be held in

Room 165 at 7:30 p.m. on Dec. 2, 1971.

Short and long range plans and goals will be discussed. The object is to centralize information, share resources and to develop an unified effort to establish community service as a legitimate part of university academic life.

Spanish Study Is Held Abroad

The 8th Summer School in Spain will be held at CIUDAD UNIVERSITARIA, Madrid, from June 30 to August 8, 1972.

This program provides an excellent opportunity to learn Spanish, to see the country, and to enjoy the warm hospitality of this friendly nation. Students will spend six weeks of intensive study in the Spanish language as well as in the culture and civilization of Spain. Our program is aimed mainly to study, and great emphasis is placed on the academic and cultural aspects of the program.

The courses to be offered are: Elementary Spanish; Intermediate Spanish; Composition and Conversation; Spanish Culture and Civilization (one section conducted in English); Cervantes; 19th Century Novel; 20th Century Novel; Survey of Spanish Literature; and Independent Study.

While studying in Madrid, the students will have opportunities of broadening and enriching their formal studies by visiting the Prado Museum and the Old City.

A full day will be spent in Toledo, visiting the famed Cathedral, San Juan de los Reyes, the house and museums of El Greco, the church of San Tome, and the Alcazar.

Students will travel through Castillian wheat fields, visiting La Mancha of Don Quixote, and his windmills.

The cost of the 1972 program will be only $790.00.

For brochures and full information, interested persons should write to: Dr. A. Doreste, Augustana College, Rock Island, Illinois 61201.

CIVIL WAR RERUN--The Rebs lost again and had to withdraw from this Washington County community as the Sons of the Veterans Reserve staged their annual fall maneuvers Sunday. A Confederate infantryman goes down before a Yankee's charge (top) in one battle settled hand-to-hand, while Lt. Ronald Aronis of St. Louis covers the primer hole of a cannon while Pvt. John Gibbons, St. Louis, rams a charge home. (AP WIREPHOTO)

G.I. Enrollment Increases

G.I. Bill enrollment of 1,043,000 veterans and servicemen in college, high school and on-the-job training programs last month was the highest of any October since 1951, the Veterans Administration reported today.

VA officials said October enrollment showed a 25 percent increase over the 832,000 in training in October of last year. April and November are normally the peak months of the school year for veterans and servicemen studying under the G.I. Bill, they noted.

Total enrollments during fiscal year 1971 reached 1,585,000 following an upward trend which officials said may go as high as 2,000,000 in the current fiscal year (1972).

For the preceding five fiscal years, enrollments have been: 468,000 (in 1967), 687,000 (1968), 925,000 (1969), and 1,211,000 in 1970.

The number of veterans in on-the-job training programs in October -- some 90,000 -- was up 5,000 over the previous year.

Comparing the October 1971 peak with other months of the year, fluctuations in enrollment levels have been fairly typical. In 1970, enrollments went from 381,000 in August to 467,000 in September and 832,000 in October. For 1971 the figures were 653,700 for September, 459,000 for August with a peak of 1,043,000 in October.

Not included in the October 1,043,000 total were 18,400 disabled veterans in rehabilitation programs and 33,000 trainees.

Racism Workshop Opens

On Tuesday, December 7, from 9 a.m. to the evening, the School of Education will hold a workshop on racism in the Campus Center. The focus will be on WORK and ACTION directed towards combatting institutional racism in the School of Ed.

Education undergraduate and graduate students are urged to sign up for a task group this week in the School of Ed., or Tuesday morning in the Campus Center, first level, at the bottom of the escalators. The task groups that will be focusing on racism in the School of Ed. include: CURRICULUM, GOVERNANCE, UNDERGRADUATE EDUCATION, OFF-CAMPUS PROJECTS, ADMISSIONS, FINANCIAL AID, EXTERNAL SCHOOL OF ED. RELATIONS and PERSONNEL. Also: FACILITATING MINORITY USE OF FORMAL/INFORMAL STRUCTURE, BUDGET, RACISM AND TEACHER BEHAVIOR PATTERNS, THE OPERATIONALIZATION OF RACISM VIEWED THROUGH BEHAVIORS: INDIVIDUAL AND INSTITUTIONAL and PLANNING FOR FUTURE FACULTY-STAFF WORKSHOPS ON RACISM.

Faculty have been encouraged to cancel their classes on Tuesday, in order to allow students to participate in the workshop. However, students should check with their professors to find out whether or not their classes will be held.

Students are urged to participate in these groups and to contribute their energy and skills. Work begun Tuesday in the task groups will hopefully continue after that day, thus involving more people in the School's efforts to combat institutional racism.

Quicksilver
Tonite!

CASABLANCA

Friday, Dec. 3, 7, 9, 11
Student Union Ballroom

The University Store
Campus Center

The Massachusetts
Daily Collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

BOARD OF EDITORS

EDITOR IN CHIEF — Richard C. Hanson
MANAGING EDITOR — Nathan Gorenstein
BUSINESS MANAGER — James Gold
EXECUTIVE EDITOR — Barry J. Rubenstein
NEWS EDITOR — Anne C. Sladnicki
SPORTS EDITOR — Earle T. Barroll

PHOTO EDITOR — Gib Fullerton
FINE ARTS EDITOR — Robert Nesti

TODAY'S STAFF

NEWS STAFF — Nathan Gorenstein, Charlie Berkow, Steve Fine
SPORTS — Bill Ballou
DARK ROOM — Jim Lavrakas
EDITORIAL — Ann Gurnett
AD LAYOUT — Elaine Stogel

Undergraduate newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The Staff is responsible for its content and no faculty members or administration read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.

Unsigned editorials represent the views of this paper. They do not necessarily reflect the views of the faculty, administration, or student body as a whole. Signed editorials, columns, reviews, and letters represent the personal views of the writers.

Your Future U.

As if it wasn't bad enough already this semester to lose a Chancellor, the Future of the University committee yesterday released its bomb on the Amherst campus that will alter more than personalities over the next two decades.

The "blue-ribbon" report more or less put into writing and solid recommendations the concept that President Wood first articulated little more than a year ago; The Public University, and with crispness says that UMass/Amherst should be the "primary place for advanced training" while the great University spreads public service tentacles across the State.

Emphasizing that the University must become more a servant of the people (recruiting more lower-income students, providing vast programs for continuing education and greater utilization of University expertise in public concerns), the report should cause some stir amongst faculty members who value the traditional views of scholarship for scholarship's sake, particularly here on the Amherst campus.

The more notable trends are creating graduate programs that "enhance" undergraduate education and the proposition that the Boston campus dramatically alter its plans for growth, substituting facilities for expanded public service and continuing education around the Boston area. Most notable of the recommendations is that their implementation will require enormous expenditures in the near future.

The report might justifiably be called the crystalization of President Wood's plans for making UMass "the best University on the east coast." Clearly, there aren't too many revelations in the massive document, that the President could disagree with. There is a good chance that he will act as quickly as possible, primarily through the budget, to move the University on several fronts.

This may be the time for the divergent parts of this Amherst to finally realize that, they will be left behind if they aren't leading their own way. The blueprint is out and the implications for this campus' immediate future are beyond this campus' present ability to do anything about them.

"If You Throw In A Bunch At Once, He Can't Stop 'Em All"

Rationale For A Socialist Campaign

By TOM MORIARTY
Editorial Staff

As the '72 elections approach, political activity in this country inevitably gravitates in some degree toward those elections. This past autumn, we in the YSA have been asked a number of times, "Why are you bothering to run a socialist candidate? You can't hope to defeat the Democrats and Republicans. Don't you know that you are splitting the liberal ticket?" We are pleased that so many people know that we are bothering to oppose the two capitalist parties with the biggest socialist election campaign in over 50 years. Defeat the capitalist parties at the polls in '72? No, we have no illusions on that score. But what should be born in mind is that the major economic, political, and social problems pressing capitalist America and the world, will not dissolve after Nov. '72. The political gains to be made by the growing socialist movement in this country during the year to come will not be eroded after those elections. We are faced with the perspective of a large number of people becoming disgusted with capitalist politicians, election campaigns, party machines, and capitalist politics in general. When not a single capitalist presidential contender, Democrat or Republican, can be pinned down to the specifics of their platform as regards the still raging war in Southeast Asian, are the American people to put their trust into yet another vaguely defined "peace candidate?" Not one of the major capitalist presidential candidates even addresses himself (they are all men) to the question of abortion law repeal. President Nixon, who perpetuates a war that kills nearly 300 Indochinese each day, is against abortion law repeal, because he believes in "the sanctity of life." Is there one capitalist presidential hopeful who does not support the wage freeze? No. Is there a peep out of any one of them on the fact of institutionalized racism in the U.S., which continues today to keep the overwhelming majority of Black Americans "in their place," i.e. at the very bottom of the economic, political, and social ladder? No.

Aren't campaigns supposed to be a forum for the discussion of issues, during which time the concrete political differences between candidates are brought to light? That is exactly what the Socialist Workers Party '72 campaign is all about. It is a campaign of political explanation and discussion around a clearly delineated program. Linda Jenness has met each of the above stated issues head on, explaining her position, and supporting a program of action. When McGovern was asked to debate her in Wisconsin, he refused on the "grounds" that she was the chosen candidate of her party, and that he was not of his. At UMass, McGovern was asked about a leaflet distributed outside the S.U. Ballroom by the YSA on the night of his appearance. The leaflet stated several instances in recent years in which McGovern had voted for war appropriations, and also, that he voted against repeal of the Gulf of Tonkin Resolution. All information of the leaflet came directly from the Congressional Quarterly. McGovern replied by slandering the SWP by questioning the "accuracy" of the leaflet, but didn't have time to answer a single charge. He then went on to other questions. And he's the best they've got!

Will we see or hear capitalist politicians arguing the finer points of their respective programs? Will they define specifically their program? Are there major political differences between the Democrats and the Republicans? Ever notice how one party can slip out of office and the other party slip into office with barely a political ripple? No muss. No fuss. Who chooses the two capitalist presidential candidates? Why is the political level, on which even presidential campaigns are waged, so low? Who owns and controls the television and radio news media, and nearly every major daily newspaper in the country? One guess. Do you think that socialist ideas are given a fair hearing in that media? Who but the capitalist parties have the millions upon millions of dollars needed to win a national election in America today?

What does all of this mean? It first of all raises the question of whether we have a "two party system," or a one party system with two factions. It means that with no control over which two men the capitalists put before them as a "democratic choice," the American people will continue to be blackmailed by the "lesser of two evils" threat. It means that as long as Americans worry only about splitting the liberal ticket, they will continue to get evil. It means that the American capitalists have so little confidence in the rationality, equitability, and democracy of the system which keeps them in power, that they try to make it virtually impossible for opposing political currents to compete with them.

There are a lot of people in America today who are angry about an economy based on enormous, perpetual military expenditure and periodic war. Many wonder about living their lives in a society rife with racism and sexism. More and more wonder why the richest, most highly industrialized nation the world has ever known, functions, with a perpetual, "normal" unemployment rate of 4% and is now at 6%. Why, many are asking, is the American economy utilizing only 75% of its productive capacity, while over five million workers are unemployed and over 25 million American citizens are kept in poverty? Add to this the discontent over a political system that is responsible for murder at Kent State, Jackson State, San Quentin, Attica, and in Southeast Asia, to mention only the most recent, and you have a basis for the growing radicalization in this country. The SWP wages a concerted anticapitalist election campaign in order to confront capitalist politicians on the issues of the day. You've heard Nixon, Muskie, Humphrey, and McGovern. You owe it to yourself to hear and evaluate socialist politics. Linda Jenness will speak in Mahar auditorium on Dec. 7th at 8:00 p.m. Question and discussion are encouraged.

Cleaning Up The Community

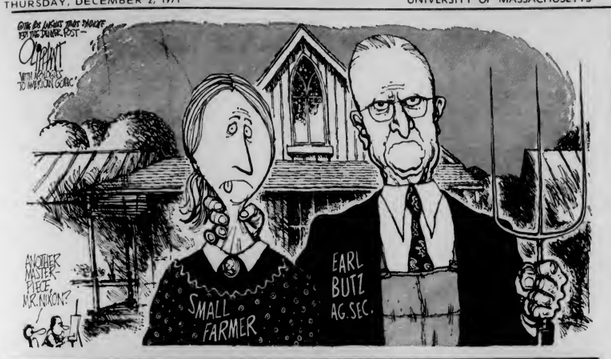
By CLARK KENT

A clearing house for community service-A new idea? No! An idea whose time has come? Possibly yes. A meeting is scheduled for tonight in room 165 at 7:30 PM in the Campus Center to discuss the implications a viable clearing house could have for the University of Massachusetts campus. All service groups are invited-in fact anyone interested in service to the community should attend this meeting to get in on the ground floor of an idea whose time may have come.

This new initiative to set up a centralized mechanism to feed students to community service organizations and to help hustle financial and other resources came out of the SWAP conference. However, the conference is over and it is time to get it together.

The agenda for the meeting hasn't been formally set. It is hoped that enough inputs from the various groups and individuals attending this meeting that an agenda will be established by the needs of all the groups. However, there are some ideas that should be mentioned that the campus should know about.

The concept of service to the community especially when it means developing alternative ways to achieve the American Dream is spreading. Just this semester three new groups were established. Much time and effort could have been saved if there was a centralized place where students could go to get information on establishing a group or to find out if a group is already working on that particular problem. However, there is more to it.



With the establishment of these three new service groups came the need for financial support. Only one group received any support and that was only a fraction of what was requested. A clearing house could effectively, if it is on top of these events, negotiate discretionary funds from the Student Senate to cover such new projects.

Still there are other implications surrounding the concept of community service beyond the short range needs of individual groups and a clearing house that might solve problems of administering information and resources. What is being considered is the university's role both academically and financially in the area of community service?

People from the University Year for Action attended SWAPs and with them came a certain perspective that many service groups lack and that is the University Year for Action program is a totally legitimate program within the university community. It is community service in an ideal form-student living in the community where you work while receiving credit. The only imperfection is that it is just one model and there must be variations.

Therefore, beyond SWAPs and beyond RSO groups doing community service there appears a long range goal where community service should become a part of university academic life with a self sustaining financial support base. However, this long range goal is not meant to blind community service activists to short range goals and needs.

Thus we return to the purpose of the meeting tonight. There is a need to find out what each service group does and what each service group needs. Through all this there has to be a tying force that will constantly bring each group and individual together. It does not matter where you do your thing as long as you are helping people and you want to become better at it. And doing it better may eventually mean changing the university.

Letters To The Editor

A Very Sick Buckeroo

To the Editor:

Down on the men's room wall at Quicksilver is the wisdom of one swift mind reduced to graffiti. Commenting on a pointless, wandering description of the epitheal joys of using narcotics, the sage notes the user is "one sick buckeroo". Lately, the "sick buckeroos" seem to be more and more from the "other" latrine. About two weeks ago this University was treated to a heated vendetta from a long-legged female who also runs long distance races, offtime, she runs down the sexists in our ranks. Next, from a cohort of hers came the expected dittoing of every nauseous feature of this racist, sexist, oppressive society including an indictment of the desire of many otherwise wholesome, intelligent girls to have a child of their own (to be a mother as their principle desire in life--even more than being heavy equipment operators, traffic cops, or long distance runners.

That series of letters was bad enough - but most of us just shifted in our seats, looked up from our papers momentarily, long enough for a caustic remark and some laughter - then went immediately to the cross-word puzzle.

Yesterday's letter (Non-Debasing Films) has got to take the first prize for the innovative theme, neurotic thrust and silliness. Because there is a ready public market for such films as "Beyond the Valley of the Dolls", "Carnal Knowledge", "Together", ad nauseum, these seedy films continue to command huge gates. They represent what the public wants to see - nothing more, nothing less. There is one thing you can say for sure about this economic system - the investor backed producers of films (or virtually anything else) will always try to put out the most attractive item because through lucrative sales, they stay in the high rent districts. Whether or not you disagree with the film content is virtually irrelevant since that is only your individual choice. If however, your desire is to legislate the morality or tastes of the majority who seem to like these things, then perhaps go to mainland China (or Albania) where everyone seems to be in blissful concurrence on virtually every subject.

I submit that the most oppressed group in the world is definitely the white male (symbolic of rape?). Imagine yourself as a perfectly average white man with 700 million Chinese, 400 million ark-skinned people, 21 million American black people, plus teeming uncounted masses elsewhere, in addition to many white American women, all pointing to you simultaneously screaming murder! raper of continents! oppressor of all non-Western peoples! chauvinist! elitest bastard!

Oppressor/oppressed white man take faith! These hoary wenches who attack you are female alright - but with an excess of the same kind of hormones that define your masculine traits.

Robert Corry

America, My Friend

To the Editor:

On America, as you stand with majestic arms outstretched, what have you to show? Beautiful landscapes? Wondrous Skyscrapers? Amazing Machines?

Yes.

And what of your people? They are proud of their accomplishments, are they not? Heaven knows they worked long and diligent hours for them, did they not? They say, "See what we have done?" Yes, they may be pleased in their efforts to better mankind. They have defended other nations, given them food when they were hungry, even shown them how to help themselves.

Oh America, as you stand with majestic arms outstretched, be careful who you receive. There are those who would tear you down. For in their misery and ignorance, they blindly strike out, caring not what falls before them. Already you have those within who are dedicated to a life of destruction. See that you do not allow them to have their way.

Oh America, with arms outstretched, your people are frightened. They sense something amiss, but do not know to whom to turn for reassurance. But to whom can they turn? What can be done? Surely the leaders can heal the wounds, make the system work. Have they? How many promises must you hear? Where are the results?

Oh America, be quick. Time is no longer on your side. No longer can your people sit by and watch each rock crumble, feeling safe beneath your outstretched arms. They must somehow find their own way. No longer can promises go unfulfilled. The time is now. They must unite, else the scavengers shall pluck each one.

Oh America, as you stand with majestic arms outstretched, - you have my prayers.

Lane Bowen

A Growing Problem

To the Editor:

This year, as every year, women on this campus will suddenly find themselves faced with the problem of an unexpected, unwanted pregnancy. Many will be desperate because of their financial situation. In the past, there were few places they could go for financial aid. This year a Medical Emergency Loan Fund has been established so that women with problem pregnancies can receive long-term, no interest loans. Money is desperately needed so that the fund can be put into operation. A table has been set up in the Campus Center on Wednesdays and Thursdays for those who want to contribute. Everyone's help is needed.

Karen Minyard

Reach Out and Help

To the Editor:

In recent months the people of East Pakistan have suffered through a tragic chain of events; some of these were natural disasters, and some were man-made.

Last winter a cyclone swept across the countryside and its winds and flood waters claimed thousands of lives and destroyed many thousands of acres of farmland.

The people had no sooner finished counting their dead and had gotten back to work when they were caught in the middle of a bloody civil war. At times it seemed as though this civil war was more than a question of loyalties - a question of a people's right to existence.

Thousands of people left their homes and they were pursued by soldiers, cholera and hunger.

As many as six million refugees are established in camps on India's border, while several million more may be wandering the countryside and the streets of Calcutta.

The terror continues for the people of East Pakistan and 30,000 new refugees arrive every day from the interior.

Try to imagine a group of people as large as the population of Chicago or New York living in camps with no shelter, a minimum of food, and little medicine.

Each day the numbers increase by the size of one of our largest universities.

India, which strives to feed all of her own hungry people and to battle her own floods, is now burdened with the devastating problems these newcomers have brought with them.

The cost of this vast undertaking is estimated to be over $4 million a day. India does not have these funds and money is not coming in fast enough to avoid an even greater disaster.

The United States government is pledged to help, but even this aid will not be enough. Nine million people need your help, and if India is faced with this burden alone, there is a serious danger of war.

Your school can undertake a campaign on behalf of the refugees. You can begin by organizing a fast, presenting speakers, collecting funds at a benefit program, and informing as many others as you can about this tragic situation.

A massive fundraising drive is underway now. Won't you help us?

Mark Nelson
Michigan State University
East Pakistan Emergency Refugee Fund

Editorial Points

Just when you're really feeling down about the turn the semester's taken, they shove a course description booklet at you and tell you to start all over again. It's a vicious circle.

*****

Have you taken a look at the UMass skyline recently? Notice anything different? For those of you who haven't the strength to lift your heads, WMUA finally installed their antenna on the roof of Dickinson House. It's a great step forward-now MUA will be one kilowatt stereo. Hooray.

*****

We all know that Nixon has resolved to go to China with his wife Pat. The intriguing question is whether he'll brush up on Ping-Pong or Checkers before he goes.

*****

Have you noticed that many of the paintings in the Campus Center have been covered with posters as of late? Perhaps that's an indication of the artistic awareness of the masses.

*****

It's been reported that someone has been calling students claiming to be doing a study on drug usage for "Room to Move", the drug drop-in center.

The Room to Move people say they're doing nothing of the kind. Keep that in mind if you get one of these calls.

*****

Basketball games just don't seem the same without Julius. I wonder if he feels the same way about us?

*****

Since the advent of the cold weather so many people have begun wearing Air Force jackets and Army coats that one begins to wonder if the government owns this campus and uses it as a sort of landmark for student passivity and complacency. Isn't it a lovely thought--twenty thousand students quietly attending a state school? It's a nice place to visit, but does anyone really want to live here?

Spread The Yule Spirit

To the Editor:

The soldiers in Vietnam are about to face another Christmas away from home. Some may never be able to celebrate anything again. Please help us make this Christmas a little more cheerful for them. Join us in our drive to send cards, letters and/or packages to the men still over in Southeast Asia.

The University's Sorority Houses and the Vietnam Veterans Against the War can use help from individuals interested in writing letters, sending cards, or who are willing to bake articles for packages. We can also use financial support to help defray the cost of postage.

If you care to help us in this Christmas program, you can receive more information by contacting either a sorority house or the Vietnam Veterans Against the War (Office in 125 Cance House - Phone 546-5020). We will also have a table set up in the Campus Center for the next two weeks.

We will appreciate any help offered, but, more important, the guys in Vietnam will appreciate it even more.

Brad Armstrong
VVAW

That's Our Senator

Senators Edward Brooke and Edward Kennedy have been formally invited to the UMass campus as part of a program, being put together by the Program Council, to bring elected Massachusetts leaders here. Governor Francis Sargent and Attorney General Robert Quinn will be among others invited to speak here next semester.

At this time, Senator Brooke has expressed a willingness to come here. A date has been chosen, and he will try to work it into his schedule.

Dear Mr. Manburg:

I just want you to know how much I appreciated your invitation on behalf of Murray D. Lincoln Campus Center.

Although this is something I would like very much to do, my Senate responsibilities and other commitments just make it impossible for me to accept. I deeply regret that I am unable to give you a more favorable reply.

Again, my thanks for your thoughtfulness in contacting me.

Warm regards,

Sincerely,
Edward M. Kennedy

Dear Senator Kennedy:

I just received your letter dated November 15, and I was very disappointed to hear you will be unable to speak at the University of Massachusetts.

I must confess in all honesty, that I did expect you would be able to speak, for I feel you as Senator from Massachusetts have an obligation to speak at your state University. I realize your responsibilities as Senator are great, but I can't rationalize in my mind how you can find time to speak all over the country, but can not find time to speak here. In my letter to you I listed numerous dates in February and March available for you to speak. Am I correct in assuming that even though you appreciated the invitation, but didn't suggest an alternative future date, that you will be unable and do not plan to visit here this academic year? If this is so I believe you owe the UMass community and all Massachusetts residents an explanation for your actions.

With the Presidential election of 1972 quickly approaching the need for student participation is critical to help reshape the priorities for the future. This considered, I'm sorry to say I find your unavailability because of "Senate responsibilities and other commitments" as unacceptable and a "put down", and I wish further clarification.

I am submitting this letter for publication in the University newspaper "the Daily Collegian". If you care to reply and wish the letter published, I will arrange for that.

Sincerely,
William Manburg

ROOM-CHOOSING

For The Spring Semester

DATES: Monday, December 6 - Friday, December 10

Monday, December 6

- students who wish to remain in their present rooms should notify their head of residence on this date

Tuesday, December 7

- students who wish to move to available space within their present residence hall may sign up with their head of residence on this date

Wednesday and Thursday, December 8 and 9

- students who presently reside in a residence hall who wish to move to another residence hall may sign up with the head of residence of the new residence hall on these dates

Friday, December 10

- students presently residing off-campus who wish to move on-campus may sign up with the head of residence on this date

Note: Students who have not paid the Room Security Deposit will not be reserved a residence hall space.

Draft Counselors Corner

Document Your Medical History

By GILBERT J. SALK

Some words on documenting medical problems...

In most cases, it is important to assume that the AFEES (Armed Forces Examining and Entrance Station) personnel know very little, care less, and will deal with you as a steer on its way to the slaughterhouse. Cases have occurred where people with very obvious physical defects have been passed and drafted. The only way to combat this is to be sure that you have doctor's letters with you when you go for your physical.

No matter what your problem, it will help immensely if you can establish a medical case history for it, and get your doctor to write you a letter. The letter does not need to be long, but it should contain at least the following information. There should be a diagnosis. The doctor should describe your problem in both medical and lay terminology, as fully as possible. If treatment has been prescribed, the letter should include a description of the treatment and medication, and the effect it has had, particularly if the problem has not been helped by the treatment. The doctor should make some kind of prognosis, especially if your problem is one which will continue to trouble you for some time to come.

If the doctor feels that, in his medical opinion, your condition would be worsened by exposure to military training and/or duty, or if he feels that it would prevent you from satisfactorily performing your duties, he should say so, and explain why. If you have had x-rays or other tests which will confirm the problem, get copies of the technician's report as well. If you have been sent to a specialist, submit a supportive letter from him.

It is not necessary to have a large pile of letters from a dozen different doctors, but it is usually a good idea to get a letter from each doctor which you have seen about the problem (or problems, if you have more than one.) Letters from the Infirmary are good, and most of the male doctors there are fairly sympathetic. They won't help you fake anything, but if you have a legitimate problem they will write you a good letter.

If you have a conservative family doctor who is unwilling to write you a letter, remind him that the SSS asks you to bring letters about your physical condition with you to the psysical. You are asking him to perform his patriotic duty to supply the AFEES with sufficient information so that they can determine whether or not it will be worth their while to spend the money it would take to train you. Who knows, he may save himself a tax dollar or two.

The main point: Get the letters!

Once you have them, show them to a draft counselor. In most cases, he will be able to tell you whether they are strong enough to make it likely that you will get out, and if not, what other possibilities might be open to you.

PEACE.

Free draft counseling is available from Draft Counseling Services. The office is in 923 Campus Center.

Seniors Lack Quorum

By DON SAINT-PIERRE

In its first meeting, the Senior Committee elected Margie Davis as Acting President.

The meeting was convened by Larry Ladd, who reminded the 18 seniors present that the committee's constitution requires a 1% quorum of the class and that this had not been met. The senior class has now 3,869 students. This would require 39 students to be present at the meetings.

Ladd said that "if this quorum is not met, the entire budget of $19,500 would be absorbed by the University."

He asked those present to "spread the word" to insure that more seniors will be present at the committee's next two meetings. These are scheduled for Monday, December 6, and Thursday December 9. These will both be held at 7 PM in 905 in the Campus Center.

Motions presented Tuesday night for discussion at the next meetings if and when a quorum is met were: to have the Senior Committee control the awarding of Honorary Degrees and the selection of Commencement Speakers (This is currently controlled by the Commencement Task Force); to present the class gift in the form of a scholarship; and to eliminate Class Day and provide those funds to charity.

Class Committees were discontinued by the Student Senate last year because of poor representation at meetings. However, the Senior Class felt that some organization was necessary to control class day and the class gift.

The meeting was adjourned until December 9 when a quorum will hopefully be met.

92,000 Names Collected

BOSTON (AP)-Nearly 100,000 signatures on initiative petitions seeking use of gas tax money for mass transportation were filed with the Secretary of State's office Wednesday.

The bipartisan drive was sponsored by Gov. Francis W. Sargent and State Rep. Charles F. Flaherty, D-Cambridge.

A spokesman for Sargent said the number of signatures totalled around 92,000.

Only 56,038 signatures were needed to bring the proposed constitutional amendment permitting use of highway fund money for mass transit before the legislature next year.

Brought on an initiative petition, the proposal will need only 70 votes in the legislature rather than the majority required last year when a similar measure was defeated.

After approval by two sessions of the legislature, the proposed amendment will go on the ballot for voter ratification.

CHOOSE FROM FIVE LUXURY CINEMAS
Showcase Cinema 1-2-3-4-5
MATS. DAILY-POP. PRICES
STUDENT DISCOUNT CARDS
CALL 733-5131
RT. 5 RIVERDALE RD. WEST SPFLD.
CHARGE YOUR TICKETS
FRANK ZAPPA'S 200 MOTELS STARRING RINGO STARR
Thurs. Fri. Mon. Tues. 7:30 & 9:45
Sat. & Sun. 2:00, 3:45, 5:30 7:25 & 9:50
Mon. - Fri. 2, 7:30, 9:30
Sat.-Sun. 2-4-5:50 7:40-9:55
Maid In Sweden
Positively no one under 18 admitted
"GREAT! ABSOLUTELY GREAT!" W.S.P.R.
THE FRENCH CONNECTION
Today - 7:30 - 9:45
RICHARD HARRIS
Man in the Wilderness
2 - 7:30 - 9:35
1:30 - 3:20 - 5:20 - 7:25 - 9:40
Daily 8 p.m. Sat.-Sun. 2 & 8 p.m.
"GONE WITH THE WIND"
10 ACADEMY AWARDS
ACRES FREE PARKING-ROCKER LOUNGER COMFORT

Program Council Presents
"DR. DOOLITTLE"
December 2 6:45, 9:45 p.m.
S.U. Ballroom 50¢

TODAY'S BIG HITS
FROM CAPITOL RECORDS

at Yesterday's Bargain Prices
D $5.98 List $3.39
THE LISTENING POST
25 South Pleasant St. Amherst
186 Main St. Northampton

The final rites of spring. That wash in a fresh, clean stream. It all ends so soon, doesn't it? (MDC Photo by Alan Chapman)

ROBIN MORGAN will be here

Tuesday, December 14

8 p.m. - Student Union Ballroom

SISTERHOOD IS POWERFUL!

Pre-Law Meeting

There will be a meeting of the pre law association tomorrow at 7:30 P.M. in room 163 of the Campus Center. Attending this meeting will be students from the various law schools in the area, including Harcard, Boston University, Boston College, Northeastern University, Suffolk University, and the University of Connecticut. They will be discussing standards for admission to their schools as well as discussing the legal programs at their respective institutions. Naturally they will be open for questioning.

Also, the pre law advisors will be discussing the results of the last scores as well as up to date requirements for admission to most of the nation's law schools.

This will be an extremely important meeting and the Association urges those with the least interest in applying to law school to attend this meeting.

Smith College News

Leo C. Curran, professor of classics at State University of New York at Buffalo, will lecture at Smith College at 5 p.m. today in McConnell Hall 103.

Sponsored by the classics department at Smith, his lecture topic will be "Ovid's 'Metamorphoses': A Revaluation." The event is open to all interested persons.

Curran received his bachelor of arts and Ph.D. degrees at Yale, and his master of arts at Oxford, England, on a Julian Biddle Prize Fellowship.

Currently chairman of the classics department at State University of New York, Buffalo, he is the author of numerous published works.

The human relations program series at Smith College continues today with "Journey Into Self," to be shown at 7:30 p.m. in Wright Hall Auditorium.

The film, an Academy Award winner as the best documentary of 1968, shows excerpts from an actual Encounter Group workshop led by Doctors Carl Rogers and Richard Farson. The group participants, initially strangers to each other, represent a cross-section of well-adjusted people from different parts of the country. It illustrates how these individuals learn to trust one another so completely that they feel free to share the deeper personal aspects of their lives.

Following the film, there will be a discussion led by Rabbi Yechiael Lander, associate chaplain of the college, and Diedrick Snoek, professor of psychology at Smith.

The 1219: For the purists who insist upon a full-size professional turntable.

Ever since its introduction, the 1219 has been widely acclaimed as the "no-compromise" turntable. Although measuring less than 15" x 12", the 1219 offers a full-size, dynamically balanced platter that weighs 7 lbs.

The gimbal-mounted tonearm is 8¾" long from pivot to stylus tip. This unusual length, combined with correct engineering geometry, reduces horizontal tracking error to the vanishing point while maintaining one-piece stability.

Further, the highly sophisticated Mode Selector achieves perfect 15° tracking in single play by shifting the entire tonearm base—down for single play, up for multiple play. Maximum vertical tracking error in multiple play is only 1.5°.

Other major features of the 1219 include: powerful continuous-pole/synchronous motor, cue-control damped in both directions, and pitch-control. Will track at as low as 0.25 gram. $175.00.

Amherst Audio

Learn About Mental Health

Undergraduate College Students in Human Service Roles will be the topic of an all-day conference at the Campus Center Friday.

The program will bring together college students, mental health agency representatives, and organizers of mental health programs in which students work in educational, correctional, and other settings with troubled people. Participants look forward to learning about current programs, discussing problems encountered there, and sharing perspectives on this subject of growing significance.

WMUA

TONIGHT ON 91.1 FM:

7:00 p.m. EVENING NEWS-a half hour summary of the days events with local, national, and world news plus sports and weather.

7:30 p.m. Rock, jazz and other good music.

8:00 p.m. CYCLEBREAKER - Tonight's program will be a special in depth look at the plight of the American Indian.

9:00 p.m. MARC'S BLUES - Marc Dashevsky is your host for two hours of blues from many different artists.

11:00 p.m. LATE NIGHT NEWS - another 30 minute report from WMUA News.

11:30 p.m. ROCKET RICK MORTON - heavy music and other good sounds til 3:00 a.m.

Program Council Presents

Jonathan Edwards

with

Bill Workman

in concert

Tues., Dec. 7

7:30 & 10:00

Advance Sale tickets at RSO Office

$1.25

Choose Today for

Merry Christmas Giving!

Shoes - Boots - Scarfs - Handbags - Ties - Wallets - Hosiery

BOLLES

8 Main Street

Amherst Open Fri. till 9

MDC CLASSIFIED

AUTOS FOR SALE

69 Firebird, perfect condition. 37,000 miles, vinyl roof, automatic, 350, V8, good tires. $1800 or offer. Call Don, 253-2770. tf12-8

1965 Baracuda — V8, 4sp. hurst, new paint job. $400. Call 967-4098 after 6 p.m. tf12-2

65 Volkswagen Bug, good condition, new engine, generator, brakes, $500. Call Tom between 4 and 8 at 253-5345. tf12-8

1971 Toyota Mark II, 2dr., 1900 cc eng., 110 h.p., 4 speed, std., AM/FM radio, 5 good tires & 2 new snows, 13000 mi. Call evenings 549-4024. tf12-7

1965 Corvair Monza, 4 speed, AM-FM radio, good condition, no rot, good tires, new exhaust and clutch, $150. 253-5344. tf12-7

60 Rumbler good engine, no trans., extra wheels and tires. Will sell all or parts $50 or best offer. Call Zig 256-6650 after 6. tf12-3

1911 Cadillac Antique Classic. Engine and interior perfect. Must sell, only $800. Call Ron at 549-0472 eves. tf12-3

1965 Pontiac, perfect cond., completely winterized, new tires, $185. 1965 Dodge runs well $270. Call eves 1-536-8577 or 549-6360. tf12-3

FOR SALE

2 Optimus 1 Speakers, 4 mos. old, were $160, only $100. Call 546-8804. tf12-3

Pro Electronic Combo Organ, portable, list $385, for sale $190. 323-4429. 12-2

Used furs-coats, jackets, capes & stoles. New shipment, all sizes, $10 to $25. Call 253-5995. tf12-2

Gibson 335, early 60's, perfect cond., $300. Also Fender super-reverb amp $200. Call Steve 546-6748. tf12-8

Upright piano, excel. condtn. Best off. 549-6037. tf12-6

Men's suede fringe vest size large; men's ski boots size 11, $15; double burner hot plate. Call Mike 256-6408 leave mess. tf12-6

2 VW Continental snow tires with rims, used 500 miles, like new, $30. Wall 308-4113, Fits 60-67 VW's. tf12-3

Dunham Hiking Boots. Women's size 8. New and never used, tan suede. Call 549-6514. tf12-6

Guitars: Acoustic, Electric, Classical. All way below retail. Sale on some. Prices start at $30. Call: 546-7072 or visit 209 Webster. tf12-3

Fender Bandmaster speakers & cabinet, Gibson amp with reverb. Other accessories also for stereo. Call Jack W. 545-0670. tf12-6

Tyrolian boots by Dunham, discount prices. Call 549-6074. tf12-6

New double burner hot plate. $15.00. Call 549-6074. tf12-8

Siamese cat, beautiful seal point, $20.00. Call 549-6074. tf12-6

Skis for sale, head 360, exc. cond., Marker heel, Nevada toes $65. Call 545-0172 before 10 a.m. or late p.m. Ask for Jim. tf12-3

1969 Yamaha DT1 B 250c.c. Enduro knobby tire, gd. cond. Call Nino 546-8013. 12-3

1 ear Jet 8 Track Auto Tape Deck with two rear deck mount speakers $45. Call evenings 549-6024. tf12-3

Skis, Hawk 160 cm wood skis with Dovre bindings and size 9 lace boots. Good shape. $30. Takes it all. Call Pete 446 Gorman 546-6548. tf12-2

X-Mas Time-Suede makes ideal gifts. I have suede, pants jackets, skirts, midi's and skins. Wholesale prices. Jon, 115 Chadbourne, 5-2640. tf12-7

1965 V.W. Bug for sale, very good condition. New brake job. 1970 rebuilt engine 4 good tires (2 snow) excellent body, radio heater. 253-9619 after 5 p.m. tf12-3

Take the plastic out of Christmas. Everything handmade with care. People's Craft Co-op, 69 S. Pleasant, above Hastings. 12-1

RCA 8/tk. Tape Pl. 1 yr. old, gd. cond., lg sel. tapes, incl., $150. New, best offer. Call Sue 253-8419 anytime. tf12-3

61 VW Bug, new bat., tires, rebuilt eng., new red paint $550, sun roof, ex. cond. Call Jerry 545-2561, 796-1751 after 5 p.m. tf12-3

Gibson Thunderbird Bass; w., case, $135.00, or best offer. Also used Rock records, exc. cond., $1.25/rge. Call 253-3915, keep trying. tf12-3

Gold Hand Diamond Ring. Can be seen 12 noon to 2:00 p.m. Call Nancy 5-2568. tf12-3

2 tickets to NY Ranger vs. Boston Bruins, Dec. 16, 7:30 p.m. Call 549-6581. tf12-2

16 mm Bell & Howell Camera 70, $125; projector $55-$20 slide rules $10-Aerial Reconnissance Camera? Best offers considered 337-1853. tf12-2

Guitars: Martin, Yamaha, Aria, Harmony also Dulcimers and Autoharps. Find out what you want, then see me for better price. John 6-5401. tf12-7

5-speed Columbia guy's bike, very good condition. Also tennis racket and hot plate. Call evenings 549-1224 ask for Arlen. tf12-2

Discount Stereo Components, compacts, T.V.'s 20-40% off list price. Factory sealed and warranty. Jim Jensen 586-1365. tf12-3

20%-50% Discount Stereo Components, all major brands. Also: 8-track tapes. Baker Stereo. Call Barry or Dave 546-6063 4-5:30. tf12-3

PERSONAL

The Pppga and 2 Ellie-fant friends wish Suma Quagmire a Happy 19th. Birthday. 12-2

To two really neat big brothers, Thumbs and Matty, happy one month anniversary. Love your little sisters. 12-2

The Shadow knows. tf12-3

Cool it! (?)?-with ice-cream - The Catalyst' Worcester Commons. 12-2

There's an opportunity to create your own life style-sylvan. 12-2

Approximately 1 out of 4 residents have singles in Sylvan. 12-2

Ron Ebert G, student please call Nina 546-9013. tf12-3

Roberta and #3 - we're glad you've decided not to see each other as often congrats! Beef, Phyl, More or Less, Edwina, Natasha. 12-2

Hey Weasel from My Hairless Legs to you: Love and Kisses, the Gipp. 12-2

The Shadow Knows. tf12-3

ROOMMATES WANTED

F'rmmt. to share 2 bdrm. apt., Ironsho. frplc., srg. 2 firs. of old bse, Dec. or Jan. Judy 13 Middle St., Hdly., 586-3784, $130 dp/mo. ht incl. tf12-6

Female roommate to share room in lg. farmhouse $50/month plus utilities. Call 549-0336. tf12-3

Pufton Apt. needs 2 roommates in Jan. Call 549-0822 eves. tf12-6

Female roommate to share Townhouse apt., $76/mo. - own room. Call 256-6467 avail. Dec. 1. tf12-7

I need a place for second semester. Own room preferred, male, over 21, 549-6570. tf12-7

Roommate wanted: available for second semester. Apt. two miles from campus. Call 256-8020 after 6 p.m. David. tf12-8

Married student couple will share apt. with girl student. Located behind Orchard Hill. Rent $50-$60 per month. 549-6416. tf12-3

Lonely lass wants lively male roommate. Call 253-2648. tf12-6

Woman and cat (spayed) need a room in house or apt. in Amherst area. Can afford up to $75. 00/month. Call 549-6514. tf12-6

ROOM WANTED

2 male students want 2 single rooms for 2nd. semester. Can pay $80, $65. Please call 546-5056, ask for Mike, evenings. tf12-3

MOVIE

"CANDY" STARS EWA AULIN, RINGO, BRANDO, HUNDREDS MORE. MUSIC BY STEPPENWOLF & THE BYRDS. (IN COLOR 1968). "CANDY" SAT., DEC. 4, MAHAR, 6:30-8; 45-11:00. tf12-3

TYPING

Typing-theses, dissertations, etc. Fast, accurate, experienced. Have Math and Chem. symbols. Call 253-3001. tf12-21

SERVICES

Amherst Audio services. Stereo components, tape decks for home or car. 197 No. Pleasant St. 256-8123. tf5-12

Grand opening, Mike's speed equipment, starts Wednesday. One case of Valvoline Oil, one Grant Steering Wheel Kit to be given away, Rt. 9, Hadley, 586-2050. tf12-7

Taking orders for handmade leather bags and things. Order now, get before Christmas. Reasonable prices. 549-6331. tf12-6

Babysitting in my home anytime: weekends, nights. Call Pam at 536-6076. tf12-3

FOR RENT

One bedroom apt. in Puffton Village dishwasher, disposal, avail. Jan. 1. Take over lease. Please come to 270 Pufton and ask for Bill or Bob. tf12-8

1 bdrm. effic. apt., avail. Dec. 1 inclu all util., exc. gas. $110 mo., partly furn. 85 No. Whitney St., Apt. B-1. Call 253-2702. tf12-3

6 bedrms., 2 baths, kitchen & rec. room in Holyoke, 14 miles from U. of M. All util., ex. phone. Much Furn. $300 per month. Call 323-7083. tf12-8

1 bdrm. effic. apt., avail. Dec. 1, inclu all util., exc. gas. $110 mo., partly furn. 85 No. Whitney St., Apt. B-1. tf12-3

HELP WANTED

Live-in woman for infant care. Will prov. in return pvt. rm., cooking facil., semi-pvt. bath, living area furn., 2 1/2 mi. from camp. 549-1112. tf12-9

WANTED

Flute - Clarinet - Sax - Jazz - Classical. Andy Flacks 655-9079. tf12-8

Band wanted to play the night of Dec. 18 for Beta Chi Christmas Party. Call Joe 549-0130 after 6 p.m. and give price. tf12-8

Wanted A or B Psych Research Paper, 10-15 pages, almost any topic. Will pay. Call Kathy 549-4566. tf12-4

English term paper on pertinent moral issue, will pay. Call Joan 253-7148. tf12-3

POETRY for Poetry Anthology. Please incl. stamped return envel. for prompt reply. Idlewild Press, 1807 East Olympic Blvd., Los Angeles. tf12-2

APT. WANTED

Pufton sublet wanted, 1-bedroom for second semester. 549-6570. tf12-9

Wanted apt. in center of Amherst for spring semester, reasonable rent is a must. Call Craig eves. 586-2562. tf12-4

Wanted 2 bedroom apartment in Puffton Village starting in Jan. or Feb. Call Mark at 256-8723 after 8 p.m.

APTS. FOR RENT

Cozy new apt., 2 mi. from campus, ideal for 1-2, pets welcome, all conveniences, avail. Jan. 1, $140 month. Call 253-3055. 12-2

2 bedroom apt., Squire Village, couples/married? Available Jan. 1, rent $190 includes utilities. Call 665-3218 or 665-2283. tf12-3

MT. SUGARLOAF APTS. Avail. Jan 1, lg. 2 bdrm util. included, air-cond., pool $185. Call Skibiski Realtors 253-7222, eve. 253-2626. tf12-22

GARAGE FOR RENT

Garage for rent, store your classic, sports, or race car for the winter. Call Jeff at 253-7700 leave name & number. tf12-7

FREE

Free kittens, 9 weeks old, trained, 256-6155 or 545-0000 Jim. tf12-3

Kittens, 6 weeks, weaned & trained, 4 black, 2 tigers, 549-6079. tf12-3

LECTURE NOTES

S.E.S Rm. 318, Student Union, has notes for Anthro 104, Bot 101, Econ 125, 128, Geol 101, Micro 140, Phil 105, Psch and Soc 101. tf12-3

Lecture notes are available for Psych 262, 263, 270, 290, 301, 302, Soc, 256, Zoo 101, 135, and others. SFS Room 318 Student Un. tf12-3

RIDERS WANTED

Riders wanted to Buffalo, N.Y., leaving Dec. 2 or 3. Call Susan 253-7704 after 6. tf12-2

TRAVEL

Nassau $149, from Boston & N.Y., hotel flight, transfers, 12/20-27, 12/23-29, 12/27-1/3 Ski-Australia $325, 15 days, flight, hotel, meals, transfers, insbruk, deluxe package. London-$187, flights in January. Call-Student Flights 584-1050. tf12-15

LOST

Anyone finding red wallet belonging to Marilyn Kennedy mail to 26 Main St., Amherst. ID's very important. tf12-8

Yang is lost again, large, short, blond hair dog, lovable, affectionate and misered by all of us. Please call Stu at 546-6730. tf12-3

BUSINESS OPPORTUNITIES OST

Play music in a band? Interested in skiing? Combine the two in the greatest business opportunity yet! Needs solid musicians for winter. Dave 549-6079. tf1216

SUMMER JOB OPPORTUNITIES

Complet list of businesses requiring summer employees-waiters-waitresses-kitchen help-clerks-camp counciliors-chambermaids, etc. Includes application form. Send $2.00 to: STUDENT JOB OPPORTUNITY BOOKLET R.R. 1, Box 11-c, Orleans, Mass. 02653. tf12-3

STUDENTS BOOK MATCHING

Register your book in S.U. Rm. 318. Every student with your course next semester will need your books save $ money, sell direct. tf-saem.

—Notices—

AHEA
Professor Hans Harms, architect from MIT, will present a lecture and slides on "Housing and its effects on people", Dec. 7 at 7:30 p.m. in CC 163-171.

BOOKSTORE ANNEX
Store hours changed beginning Monday, Dec. 6 to: 8:30-4:30.

BRIDGE CLUB
There will be a bridge play tonight at 7 p.m. in CC174.

CONCERT COMMITTEE
There will be a meeting of the committee in CC 175 at 9 p.m. All interested may attend. For more info, contact Joe Tropiano, Dwight House.

FENCING CLUB
The fencing club will meet tonight in rm. 8 WoPE from 7-9 p.m. It is the last practice before the Pittsfield tournament Sunday. Everyone is welcome.

GAMMA SIGMA SIGMA
Pledge meeting 7:30 p.m. in Memorial Hall. Christmas notions at 6 p.m.

HILLEL
Refunds for cancelled Computer Dance today in Hillel office Rm. 420 SU. 11-1 p.m. ONLY. Hillel business meeting tonight at 6:30 in Hillel office.

Coffee House tonight at 8 p.m. in Melville Date Room. Free refreshments. All are welcome.

INNKEEPER'S CLUB
Meeting Thursday at 7:30 Chenoweth 227. All HRTA majors Welcome. Discussing courses and pre-registration. If you're confused, maybe we can help (Stockbridge and University students).

IVCF
Is Christ God? Dr. George Ensworth, from Gordon Conwell Seminary will be speaking Friday night at 7:30 in 301 Herter. Books on the subject will also be available.

LANDSCAPE OPERATIONS CLUB
Meeting tonight at 7 p.m. in CC 911-915. Albert N. Cyr talks about his experience in Nurseries Gardens Ctr., and Landscaping.

LINGUISTICS
Lecture by Prof. M.A.K. Halliday of Brown University will speak on "Learning How to Mean" today, at 8 p.m. in CC 904. The talk is open to the public.

NEWMAN CLUB
Fr. Owen Bennett will discuss St. Bonoventure tonight in the Social Lounge of the Newman Club, 7:30.

OUTING CLUB
There will be a meeting Monday at 6:30 in Rm. 165 CC. Upcoming trips, Christmas party, and Dec. 15 sale to be discussed.

POVERTY COMMITTEE
Meeting tonight at 6:30 in 801 CC. All members must attend.

REVELLERS
Meeting tonight at 7 p.m. in CC 811-815. We have business to discuss--and more than a quorum is necessary. Call Jean or Ron if you are unable to attend.

SCHOOL OF ED
Pre-registration for the School of Education is taking place today and tomorrow. Graduate materials will be available outside Room 107 and all pre-registration will be conducted in the various Centers and Program Focus points. Maps and instruction will also be available.

SENATE STUDENT MATTERS
Meeting in CC 175 at 8 p.m. Dick Palomba will address committee on Sylvan. Concerts will be discussed. All invited.

SKI CLUB
Anyone wishing to ski at STOWE Jan. 16-21, call Chris in 422 at 5-2302 or Carol Klett at 6-8129; or come to the ski club table outside the bookstore today.

Deposits for Killington trip Dec. 4 taken 9-4 p.m. in RSO office.

SPRE
Those people interested in helping during the Recreation Conf. Dec. 10-11, come to the CC Coffee Shop Tonight at 7. Those people on the committee, please try and attend.

Progress Made In Monetary Crisis?

ROME (AP) — Finance ministers from the Group of Ten have ended a three-day meeting, reporting progress toward solving the international monetary crisis. They agreed to meet again in Washington Dec. 17-18.

Treasury Secretary John B. Connally, speaking as chairman of the meeting, told newsmen Wednesday night: "I think some progress was made today. We did not reach a decision. We did not solve the problem."

He said, however, the progress made "was hopeful enough to warrant another meeting soon."

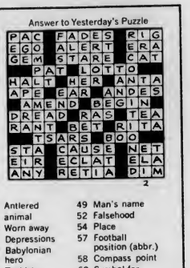
"I think the meeting can be characterized as one which produced considerable frankness and candor," Connally added.

Connally reported the day's meeting discussed a number of hypothetical solutions and a number of assumptions. He did not elaborate, but other delegation sources said that among the hypothetical settlements discussed was what sort of upward revaluation would be decreed by other countries if the United States agreed to devalue the dollar against gold.

Connally said only: "The price of gold was discussed in the meeting."

Connally reported the meeting discussed the overall magnitude of the currency realignment needed to solve the crisis and the distribution between various countries taking part. He declined to disclose the specific figures discussed or the positions taken by any one nation.

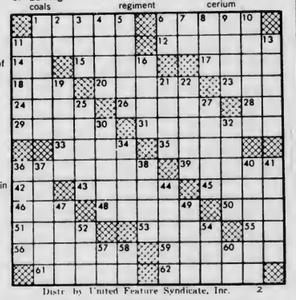
Connally said no one country made any specific offer on what it would contribute to a settlement and the discussions were confined to hypothetical packages.



By implication Connally's remarks ruled out any direct offer here by the Americans to devalue the dollar under the settlement. Earlier one delegation had reported an American willingness to do so, but other sources had said the talks remained on a theoretical level.

Connally said the Washington meeting of the Group of Ten would not interfere with the monetary talks President Nixon will be holding with allied leaders starting later this month.

Nixon meets with President Georges Pompidou of France four days before the finance ministers reassemble in Washington. France may prove a key to a settlement. It has been demanding in Rome that the dollar be devalued by raising the price of gold, now pegged at $35 an ounce.



Crossword Puzzle

Answer to Yesterday's Puzzle

ACROSS
1 Leather thong
6 Army officer
11 Characteristic of old age
12 Dwelt
14 King of Bashan
15 Saints (colloq.)
17 Distance measure
18 Be ill
20 Sum
23 Nothing
24 Part in play
26 Memoranda
28 A continent (abbr.)
29 Breaks suddenly
31 Opulent
33 Speck
35 Mast
36 Conductors
39 Haste
42 Printer's measure
43 Choice part
45 Withered
46 Arabian garment
48 Growing out of
50 Offspring
51 Trade for money
53 Long, slender fish (pl.)
55 Delirium tremens (abbr.)
56 Spoors
59 Female relatives
61 Prolonged attempt to gain possession
62 Performed

DOWN
1 Multitude
2 Printer's measure
3 River island
4 Narrow, flat board
5 Long-legged bird
6 Parent (colloq.)
7 Hebrew month
8 Man's nickname
9 Norse god
10 Fondness
11 Floats in air
13 Procrastination
16 Pack away
19 South American animal
21 The sweetsop
22 Jumps
25 Epic poem
27 Strikes
30 Gravestone
32 Woody plants
34 Ireland
36 Smallest number
37 Burning coals
38 Antlered animal
40 Worn away
41 Depressions
44 Babylonian hero
47 Turkish regiment
49 Man's name
52 Falsehood
54 Place
57 Football position (abbr.)
58 Compass point
60 Symbol for cerium

Distr. by United Feature Syndicate, Inc. 2

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

by SYDNEY OMARR

Capricorn is capable of gaining ultimate vindication. These persons are patient, persistent and ambitious. They are able to analyze, to form valid conclusions on spur of moment. The Capricorn person does not always act immediately but remembers and utilizes experience in constructive manner. Capricorn would rather play the clown than the scoundrel.

*****

ARIES (March 21-April 19): One who entices really has little to offer. Know this; respond accordingly. Stick close to familiar ground. Going too far afield now would be costly. Stay away from one who carries chip on shoulder.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Examine with care what is offered. Someone is desirous of obtaining what you possess. You get nothing for nothing. Know this and act accordingly. Avoid self-deception. Guard valuables.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Opposition due to fade. Legal obstacle could boomerang in your favor. Heed voice of experience. Avoid panic. Follow through on familiar course. Circumstances due to favor your efforts.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): You draw to you persons with problems and those who can aid you in solving your own possible dilemma. Finish project. Stress universal rather than narrow appeal. Be direct.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Friends could be in expansive mood and this could be ex. pensive for you. Means get promises in writing. Goodwill is fine but cash is best. You will understand and learn valuable lesson.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You may feel drawn in two directions simultaneously. Key is to please professional superior without sacrificing principles. This may not be easy but it is necessary to your happiness.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Don't write letters or make calls while upset. Avoid scattering energies. Be versatile, not confused. Relatives, neighbors may act in manner which can best be described as "exasperating." Be calm.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Be specific. Attend to basic chores. Check details. Refine techniques. Improve relations with one who performs special services. Leo and Aquarius persons now could play prominent roles.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Good fortune comes from unexpected source. One who appears to oppose you performs a service. Permit others to show their hands. You will be surprised in pleasant way. Self restraint is essential.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Vitality makes comeback. Your morale gets boost from family member. There is more harmony than in previous days. You find out where you stand. Sense of direction is sharpened. Time moves.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Perceptiveness can cause failure or success. Heed inner voice. Follow through on hunch. Look behind scenes. Don't judge by surface indications. Penetrate facade. Results will be constructive.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): You get solid results. What has been held in abeyance is now concluded. Past efforts pay dividends. You get added responsibility but rewards also are greater. Accept assignment.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are due to settle down. This includes domestic adjustment, possible change of residence. You are studious, appreciative of music and the creative arts. Recent and sudden changes will work out in your favor.

Copyright 1971, Gen. Fea. Corp.

Astronomer Speaks Today

The Five College Astronomy Colloquium speaker this week is Dr. Donald Goldsmith of the University of California at Berkeley. His talk on "Intergalactic Clouds in the Coma Cluster?" will be today at 4:45 p.m. in Lecture Room 3 at Amherst College. Tea will be served at 4:15 p.m.

¼ ct. Fine White Diamond
$100.00
at Baker-Winn
JEWELERS
"everyone's favorite jeweler"
31 S. Pleasant St., Amherst

'Hospital Case' Unitas Named NFL Offensive Player of Week

BALTIMORE (AP)-Johnny Unitas is as surprising in his mental approach to the game of football as his play selection is to the opposition.

While coaches, players, reporters and broadcasters extoll the value of emotion in the contact sport, the Baltimore quarterback takes a divergent view.

"Football is a thinking man's game, not an emotional game despite what some people think," Unitas says. "As far as I'm concerned, when you're emotional, you don't think well."

Unitas, clearheaded and cool, directed an astonishing 37-14 victory over Oakland last Sunday as he made the moves of a chess master in dissecting the Raiders' defense.

For his generalship, particularly in the first half as Baltimore moved ahead 20-0, Unitas was selected as The Associated Press Offensive Player of the Week in the National Football League.

The Colts drove 80 and 51 yards for touchdowns as Unitas completed all six of his pass attempts, and only once reached a third-down situation.

"It's exciting to play with John as quarterback," said center Bill Curry, "because you never know what he's going to call. The guy in front of me doesn't know. We don't know ourselves."

Baltimore's new running game has given Unitas more options than ever to confuse the opposition.

"John was effective in the past, even when everyone knew he had to throw," said tight end John Mackey. "Now he moves us on the ground, too. He's the master."

The start against Oakland was only the second of the season for Unitas, who underwent surgery in April to repair a torn Achilles tendon suffered while playing paddle ball.

It was the latest in a long line of injuries for the 38-year-old veteran who is in his 16th NFL season. Once again, he recuperated more quickly than expected.

"John is a unique physical specimen in that respect," said trainer Eddie Block, who then ticked off the various injuries Unitas has sustained:

"A punctured lung, broken ribs, a severe 'tennis elbow,' broken nose, a knee operation, severe contusion of the right shoulder, and a great deal of etcetera."

"According to medical averages," Block said, 'it takes six months to recover from the Achilles operation. John was ready a month ahead of time."

Block estimates that Unitas spent about four hours a day in therapy at first. "And even more than that in training camp because of all the exercises he did on the field."

While there was concern the Achilles injury would end Unitas' career, he remained typically calm.

"I'll just try to come back," he said. "If I can, I'll play. If not, to heck with it."

Unitas who had been written off once before-when he sat out the 1968 season with arm problems-did not look particularly impressive while being used sparingly early this year.

But he contended all he needed was more playing time to "get the general feel of the game, to recognize things more readily."

Disney Open Debuts

LAKE BUENA VISTA, Fla. (AP)-Arnold Palmer and Jack Nicklaus, the giant figures who have dominated pro golf for a decade, ranked as the men to beat Wednesday on the eve of the new, $150,000 Walt Disney World Open.

Lee Trevino, the game's new folk hero who is having a little elbow trouble, and dangerous Billy Casper were next in line in the outstanding field of 144 that includes nine of the top 12 money winners and such other standouts as Masters champion Charles Coody, Julius Boros and Sam Snead.

South African Gary Player, Australian Bruce Crampton and veteran Miller Barber are the only major names missing in this event. It is being held for the first time as an obvious promotion gimmick in connection with the recent opening of the multi-million dollar Walt Disney World, a spectacular attraction built along the lines of Southern California's Disneyland.

The tournament offers some additional interest in the three-man race between Trevino, Nicklaus and Palmer for the year's leading money winning spot.

Trevino, winner of six events including an unprecedented sweep of the American, British and Canadian Opens, already has established a single-season record with $229,552-but he's far from secure.

Nicklaus, winner of four U.S. titles including the PGA national title, plus two Australian championships and the individual title in the World Cup, is within striking distance at $233,678.

And the 42-year-old Palmer, playing less-and better-than he has in years, also has an outside shot at it with $200,706. It's the first time in his career he's gone over $200,000 in a season and came after he decided on a trimmed-down schedule that brought him four U.S. victories plus another in France.

It would appear, however, that Palmer would need to take the $30,000 first prize in this one to have a chance. Only one tournament-next week's Bahama Islands Open-remains on the schedule and none of the three contenders are certain they'll compete.

"Only if it's very, very close," said Palmer.

"I'm not sure yet," said Nicklaus.

"We'll have to wait and see what happens here," said Trevino.

Intramurals

BASKETBALL

COURT	TIME	TEAMS
1	6:15	Spunks vs. Dodos
2		Squires vs. Jacks
3		Yups vs. Brother
4		Dutchmen vs. Phantoms
5		Pulfers vs. Rip Offs
6		Acme vs. Hobits
		Position Thailen
1	7:15	1 vs. 3
2		2 vs. 4
3		Theta vs. LDP
4		GSS vs. TS
5		Frogs vs. Heavies
2	8:15	Crampton vs. Coolidge

Marinaro, Sullivan Lead All-Americas

NEW YORK (AP)-Cornell's Ed Marinaro, college football's all-time rushing champion; Auburn quarterback Pat Sullivan, the Heisman Trophy winner, and scoring champ Lydell Mitchell of Penn State were named Wednesday to The Associated Press All-America football team.

The members of the All-America team will appear on The Bob Hope Special on Thursday Dec. 9 NBC-TV, 9-10 p.m., EST.

Rounding out the backfield is speedy Greg Pruitt of Oklahoma, who averaged 9.2 yards every time he carried the ball. Terry Beasley, Sullivan's dazzling split end at Auburn, made the squad as wide receiver.

Marinaro sloughed his way for 1,881 yards in nine games, erasing the national one-season mark of 1,720 set only last year by North Carolina's Don McCauley, who did it in 11 games.

That boosted the career total for Cronell's hard-running workhorse to 4,715 yards, most ever for a major college player, making him the first runner ever to crack the magic 1,000-yard barrier in three seasons. Marinaro finished second to Sullivan in the Heisman voting.

Sullivan sparked Auburn to nine victories before Saturday's loss to Alabama. The clutch-throwing quarterback completed 162 of 281 passes for 2,012 yards and 20 touchdowns.

Penn State is still unbeaten thanks in large measure to the strong running of Mitchell, who is averaging 148.4 yards a game and has smashed the national one-season scoring record with 28 touchdowns. The Nittany Lions have one game remaining.

Pruitt provided the blazing outside speed that made Oklahoma's Wishbone attack the most awesome ground game in the history of college football. He has carried 160 times for 1,476 yards and 15 touchdowns.

Quicksilver Tonite!

TONITE
The Great
Charlie Bradshaw
9:30 - 12:00
The English Pub

Ringo Starr — Ewa Aulin — Marlon Brando
Walter Matthau — Elsa Martinelli in
"CANDY"
(1969 - in color)
Music by Steppenwolf and the Byrds
Sat. Dec. 4 Mahar Aud.
6:30 — 8:45 — 11:00

Hoopsters Open With Romp

Stop Vikings 101-53

By EARLE BARROLL

Tom McLaughlin was in high gear when he entered the UMass locker room last night after the Redmen had soundly trounced St. Anselm's, 101-53, in their season opener.

"I could have gone home, had a meal to eat and come back and played some more," he chuckled...and this was the story of the game.

The Redmen unleashed a multi-player, non-stop, full court press at the Hawks and exploded midway through the first half with a 19-0 outburst to run away with the long awaited opener for Jack Leaman and his players.

Leaman went to his bench early and often and it was the insertion of sophomores Al Skinner and Rick Pitino that turned the game around.

Up to that point, some seven minutes in, the Redmen had jumped off quickly, 10-1, but found themselves holding on at 12-12 before the explosion came.

"We were too satisfied at 10-1," Leaman said after the game. "We just can't play that way...we're not strong enough...we have to run."

Now enter Skinner and Pitino and according to Leaman, "They changed the tempo of the game. This also points out the beauty of having a bench when you can have your first five go all out and then be able to bring in players and keep the same strength."

To this juncture in the contest, the press was nil, but Skinner gave it the impetus it needed by stealing an inbounds pass at 12-12, laying it in and from there on lead the Redmen off the boards while Pitino controlled the floor show.

What was it like for these two in their first varisty game? Skinner had this to say: "I felt pretty good and it was just a matter of getting running out there before I could do something." The 6'3 leaper lead all scorers and rebounders with 16 and 13 respectively.

Pitino added to this: "I was nervous in the first half, but I calmed down in the second half. I went under the legs with a couple of passes to get the team moving. We needed this game to get us ready for Vermont."

What Leaman had preached during pre-season in the areas of speed, defense and the abundant talent came to a reality. He used four guards, his team shot 59 percent from the floor and he gave his big men plenty of needed work up front.

Ten Redmen saw between 10 and 27 minutes of action and six scored in double figures. They played it non-stop and pressed the daylights out of the Hawks.

What was Leaman's thinking behind this press? "We pressed them for two reasons. One, we were afraid they were going to slow the ball down on us. Two, we knew they wouldn't take the ball to the basket so we could afford to gamble and go out after them."

Was he satisfied with the results? "I feel good," he said, "but I'm not completely satisfied. We have to play better to play the bigger teams on our schedule."

But he was quick to add, "It's over and we got it in the satchel and now we have to work hard and put it together...I could see out there tonight that we have the potential to be a good club."

BOX SCORE

UMass	G	F	T	St. Anselm's	G	F	T
Vogeley	1	1	3	Kennedy	3	3	9
McLtin	3	7	13	Costello	5	1	11
Coffin	4	5	13	Sarton	3	4	10
Beln'ct	4	5	13	Hunt	3	1	7
Pagliara	4	2	10	Ryle	2	2	6
Skinner	4	8	16	Calapietro	1	0	2
Pitino	2	2	6	Lew'ski	1	1	3
Austin	1	4	6	Casey	0	0	0
Trow	4	2	10	Walsh	1	3	5
Peters	3	3	9	Mullin	0	0	0
Olsen	1	0	2	Landers	0	0	0
Levine	0	0	0
	31	39	101		19	15	53

ABOVE AND BEYOND-Al Skinner goes up over an unidentified St. Anselm's player during last night's season opening UMass win at the Cage. (MDC Photo by Barbara Brecher)

Skaters Waltz Over Salem State

By ALAN K. WRIGHT

The UMass hockey fans turned out in force last night to see the Redmen pucksters smother Salem State 10-1. From the faceoff it was total dominations as the Vikings from Salem never posed a threat. Practically everybody got into the fun of the fracas as 8 different players scored and Charlie Donovan accounted for two markers himself.

The action was fast and furious in the early going with UMass outshooting Salem by a wide margin in the first period. Eric Scrafield, Mike Waldron, and Charlie Donovan were all denied goals on super shots before Donovan scored his first goal at 7:52. He was assisted by Jim Lynch and Bob Bartholomew.

Play started getting very physical and a slight skirmish halfway through the first period preceded a breakaway slapshot tally by Pat Keenan at 10:42. Captain Brian Sullivan assisted on this one. Shortly afterwards, some heavy checking went on and Bob Shilalie was called for interference after mixing it up with a Salem player and breaking his stick.

It took a while for the skaters to get the next score on the board, but Brian Sullivan came through with what had to be the prettiest goal of the night. He put on an amazing display of stickwork, taking it up ice all by himself, pirouetting through several Viking defenders and putting the puck neatly into the net at 15:10.

Jack Edwards followed up the act with another unassisted goal at 17:04. He caught four Salem players sprawled on their knees and tucked it in the right corner. It was an amusing situation to say the least. Dave "Whale" Ouellette and his army of hard-core hockey fans were really digging the action.

Dennis Grabowski took a couple of consecutive shots before Jim Lynch was given a two minute penalty for charging. With the man advantage, Salem capitalized and Bill Foley sneaked a clean shot by P.J. Flaherty at 19:19. That was the end of scoring for the first period and the end of any more scoring for Salem State. UMass took 19 shots on goal and Salem State had five during that initial period.

Three minutes into the second period, Salem was left shorthanded when two of their skaters were put in the penalty box concurrently. However, Mike Waldron evened it up by also drawing a penalty. Action started really getting intense as both teams were fighting hard for the disc. At 9:33, a Salem Viking went down and almost out as he caught a UMass skater's blade heel right in the kisser.

Donny Lowe was tenacious on defense in the second stanza and Don Riley was all over the ice, taking a hard shot from the point to be followed by a Keenan breakaway that went the length of the ice, only to be denied a score. As the buzzer sounded a full-fledged fight nearly developed at the mouth of the Salem goal and Shilalie was given a roughing penalty.

It didn't take long into the third period when Don Reily took an assist from Sullivan to score goal number five for UMass. Then, at 2:26, Dan Reidy slipped one in on a pass from Pat Keenan. The fans were really eating it up--6-1.

